DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen. I am sure that you, along with me, had several qualms about the words of the last sentence of subsection 2, which was deleted by this Convention. In the first place, the goals which we set forth for education were obviously unattainable for a considerable period of time. We set forth in the first section that we wanted to provide full educational potential—develop the full educational potential for each person. The committee very carefully explained to you that this was a goal and not a mandate to the Legislature. They divided the section into two subsections; and they came down to the second subsection and they said, very properly, "The Legislature shall provide for a system of quality free public elementary and secondary schools"; and they explained to you that it was their intention in this regard to limit this to elementary and secondary schools. In the remarks which was made, they carefully pointed out they did not intend to saddle the State of Montana with the funding of kindergarten schools, nor to saddle the State of Montana with this free public school, the higher educational system. By the insertion of the word "basic" into this program, we clarified, I think, satisfactorily the fears that many people had that the courts would come along and there would be a series of lawsuits to try to compel the Legislature to provide whatever type of elementary and secondary school education someone might conceive of. We have clarified this in the Constitution. We said they shall provide a basic system, and this is what the Legislature has been doing. It's been—it's done it for years. Whether or not that has been a system which gives every child in the State of Montana truly equal opportunity to an equal basic educational program is questionable. Back in 1949 the foundation program, which I'm sure is now familiar to all of you, was developed-which theoretically, at least, provided that the property -the money would be raised from the taxing of property where the property was and would allow it to be spent on an equalized basis where the child is. This program has been nurtured, worked out, conceived and is-1 think correctly so-is now on the statute books. But the inequities that the Committee on Education has pointed out exist in it principally for the reason that the State of Montana, after requiring the basic levies which bring into play the foundation program, has never funded its share of the foundation program, with the result that the foundation program, as it is adopted by the Legislature, sets forth the basic educational system all right, but it does not equalize between districts and between counties because of the fact that when it fails to fund its share of this, pouring the money in so that the program is truly equalized, the poorer counties or the areas with low valuations are forced to tax themselves even greater than before, and many times without a vote of the people, to meet the foundation program plus the permissive levy. Now, what have we done so far in this Convention to take care of education? The Revenue and Finance Committee, in its well-presented and passed article, mentioned to you the Serrano case and why they were trying to arrange the Revenue and Finance Article so that they could take care of this, and by a tremendous majority, this body voted to turn over to the Legislature the requirement that taxes and assessments be equalized between counties and they gave them the teeth to carry this into effect. There has been a lot of debate as to whether or not they would be able to do this any better than they have done through the State Board of Equalization-the County Boards of Equalization or not, but at least the command is there, and they will have to attempt it. Then, the next thing, the State Board of Equalization-the Revenue and Finance Committee did-was to change the mill limitation which has previously existed, limiting the mills that could be levied by the Legislature to 2 mills. If the Legislature is to tax property for any reason whatsoever, it was pointed out on this floor, the only reason that they should have the right to tax property is for education. The suggestion has been made by members of the Revenue and Finance Committee--where is the Legislature going to get the money to finance its share that they have failed to fund up to now? Up to this time, in fairness to the Legislature, you will have to say that we have limited them; they could not tax property, they had to provide the money from some other source--and I'm in favor of that, if they can. But if they cannot, it is no more unfair or wrong for the Legislature to tax property on a statewide basis to fund their share of the educational program than it is for the local districts to have to do it on an unequalized basis. The proposal which I have made is not, I contend, legislative; it is strictly constitutional. We are saying to the Legislature, "We have untied your hands. We want you to set up a basic elementary and secondary education. You have full power to decide what that is going to be; but when you get it done, the state's share of it, as you determine it"—we give the Legislature full power there to determine its share, too-we haven't tied their hands-"shall be funded and distributed in an equitable manner to the school districts of the state." Now, we have also, heretofore, provided in this article that the school districts shall be in charge of the local schools, and this is as it should be. I think it's also essential that the Legislature should have the power to require school districts to tax for a portion of their educational program in order to keep control of education at a local level, in order to allow people to know what is being spent for education, and this is what my proposal also does. It does not say to the Legislature, "You have to pass a sales tax; you have to increase income tax; you have to do this or you have to do that." If they can do it through some other means, they can; and that is where legislation comes in and where their hands are free. But as a constitution is both a grant of powers and a prohibition of powers, I submit that the only body who can tell the Legislature what they shall do as far as funding of the state's share is concerned is this body sitting here today; and if the things you said in the Bill of Rights means anything, if the things you said in regard to a desire to provide a basicsystem of quality free public elementary and secondary schools means anything, then the Legislature deserves the protection of also having you to say to them that they have the duty to fund and to distribute in an equitable manner the state's share of this program. I urge you to think this over very carefully. The committee's proposal, as I read it, did nothing more than what I have here, except we have taken out the words that have caused uneasiness, like "full funding" and "sufficient''-we struck "funds sufficient to insure full funding"—and then they didn't have in there the state's share. We put back in that it's to be the state's share, they shall fund it. And I urge you to seriously reconsider your action on this and put back in the Constitution-or put into the Constitution that we will submit to the people this provision; and I feel very strongly that there isn't a school district, there isn't a board of trustees throughout the State of Montana-except in those limited instances where we have excessive valuations and they are getting by on low taxes because no one can reach their property for the support of schools-that would be against this proposal. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Habedank yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I yield.

DELEGATE ECK: I-you know, I read through this a half dozen times before it dawned on me what it was meaning. But I still don't think it quite says it, because if you break it down, it really says something like "it shall distribute the state share of the elementary and secondary school system", and, you know, I kept seeing the school system being distributed, and I wonder if maybe what you mean to be saying is something more like "the state share in the funding of the basic elementary and secondary school system".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank, the Chair had the same trouble; and don't you mean the state share of the program or of the cost?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I would be happy to put in "of the cost".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Maybe we can let Style and Drafting do it, but the sentence-as it stands, you have them distributing the system, whatever that means.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I would be-1 had in there originally, "It shall be the duty of the Legislature to provide by taxation or other means" and do these things; and in an attempt to meet the objections of various members of the Revenue and Finance Committee, we tried to strike it down to basic words and I-the cost is what I'm talking about, and I'd be very happy to amend "the state share of the cost of the"-Mr. Chairman, I move—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck, if he added the words "of the cost"-"share of the cost of the basic elementary system"-is that what you're driving at, Mrs. Eck?

DELEGATE ECK: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank, do you want to make that amendment to your own motion?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Yes, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, after the word "state share", we'd put in the words "of the cost of the basic elementary and secondary school system". All in favor of letting Mr. Habedank make that amendment in his amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, that's what we'll do-"the state share of the cost". It passes. Is there further discussion?

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to nominate Mrs. Eck and Mr. Choate to the Style and Drafting Committee, because the three of us had the same idea and one of them got the floor first. I also wonder if Mr. Habedank would yield on another question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I yield.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Is there any magic in the word "basic"? I don't recall that there's any definition anywhere in the statutes or elsewhere about a basic elementary and secondary school system. Wouldn't it be just as well if we just called it the "elementary and secondary school system"?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I think there may be no magic in it-there's no magic as far as I am concerned-but I think there's a magic as far as the public is concerned. They are very concerned. And the delegation here, in deleting that section, evidenced its concern about educational theorists coming in with every type of-shall we call it "screwball education proposal" and insisting that this be in here, and it was felt that "basic" would help. I conceded something-the court would have to-might be called upon to construe, but I think the Legislature is also given an opportunity to construe it in that word.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Members of the committee, Mr. Schiltz, you might-I might refresh your recollection. The other day when we redid subsection 2, we struck out the word "high" and we added the word "basic", so it now says, at the moment: "The Legislature shall provide for a basic system of quality free public elementary and secondary schools". I don't know why we did that, but we did put the word "basic" in line 1 and took out the word "high".

Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman, I will have to give my same speech I try and give every time, I guess, but I have read all of these new, modern constitutions and they all say generally that the state will provide a free public school system. They all stop. They don't try and go on and say what kind of taxes are we going to have, how we're going to distribute them. It's purely legislative. The brief comments we've had now show the confusion or differences between delegates; and obviously if we say that the Legislature shall provide for a public school system, they're obviously going to have to raise taxes. I can't say that we'll have a foundation program 30 years from now, or how they'll have to finance it. It might be all by sales tax, income tax, property tax, oil income; and I just think that-or a lottery-I just think we're getting into trouble to keep legislating in this Constitution, and this type of language has no place in it, so I speak in opposition to it. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman, I would have to disagree with what Mr. Brown says. I feel this is a very much needed thing in our Constitution. It's true that the other constitutions don't include this, but the other states aren't in the same position that Montana is in. Mr. Drum said the other day that our state ranks third in the amount of property tax that our citizens pay towards schools, and that's true. Our people are doing a tremendous job. They are carrying a tremendous load and burden in this respect. But there's another statistic that we need to look at here, too. Montana ranks 44th among the states in the amount of support that the state gives to the school systems. About 24 percent of the total budgetary needs of our school system is supplied by the state. There are only a very few states that are below us in this category, and this is one of the reasons that we feel that we have to have something like this in our Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Mr. President, I don't oppose this amendment, for some of the reasons I had the other day; however, I'd like to comment on what Mr. Harbaugh just said. When we talk about percentage of contributions, there's undoubtedly some states that levy a statewide property tax for school systems and that's included in the state's grants back to the school system, so you really can't use percentages like that. What you're trying to do is glue into a Constitution a mandate on top of a purely legislative program. The foundation program was started in '49, and it's purely legislative and depends on what the Legislature wants to do every fiscal period, or every year now if we're going to meet every year. And you're just trying to mandate something on top of that program that they can change at will, and I agree very strenuously with Mr. Brown that you are just creating more words and more words for confusing in this program. And just the way it's worded-like we had trouble--what Mr. Schiltz and Dorothy Eck brought out, but we also have, I think, trouble with the word "equitably". Equitable to who? The student, the taxpayer, the teacher-to who? I just don't think it belongs in the Constitution. Thank YOU.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Three points, sir, if I may. In reference to Mr. Brown's comment, only these are-this is a statement that he used from the Municipal League's suggested constitution. States have adopted-only 10 states have adopted this particular wording; most others have some kind of detail. In reference to Mr. McDonough's comment; our biggest problem, Swede, has been not the foundation program; it won't be, I don't think, in the future, any particular type of program that the state puts out. The thing that we want to do is to make sure the state pays their share, and they haven't been doing it in the past, Now, I am in support of the Habedank amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce,

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Brown keeps stealing my lines all the time. What if, hypothetically, the state determines that its share of the support of the state schools is going to be 10 percent of the cost of the basic program, which they certainly can do because, after all, they set the foundation by law, and here we haven't defined the foundation program in the Constitution. And besides, who's the state and who's the county? The state doesn't have any money; the state just gets the money from the taxpayers, and the state has to work out a system of how they are going to distribute the taxes that they collect from the people. So, it seems to me that it's-to say that the state will fund the foundation program when we don't even define the foundation program in the Constitution seems the height of absurdity. We had a considerable argument, as I remember it, when the General Government came in and suggested that the Legislature might amend the Constitution by passing an amendment and letting two sessions of the Legislature go by and then have it go into effect; but here we're putting an amend-a provision in the Constitution that would give the Legislature the power to repeal it the next day by simply repealing the foundation program. And so it just gets back to the fact that we're going to have to finance our schools the way the Legislature, through-acting through the people of the State of Montana, wanttodoit; and I just can't see where this sentence adds anything but confusion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman, I oppose this amendment, too, but not really because of the amount of money. I can't help but make an observation. I think our committee did say that we opened the door to statewide financing, and maybe we were wrong in doing that. Maybe we should have said we just unlocked it and we wanted the Legislature to open it. But, certainly, we didn't expect to have the Board of Education just-well, I mean, the Committee of Education right there at the door when you open it up and come right through. (Laughter) We sort of figured we should have a little time to get this thing squared away; and if we're going to do it on a statewide basis, it's going to take a little while to arrange this on a statewide basis and get it appraised on a statewide basis. And after all, we didn't do it, we just made it possible for the Legislature to do it; and I really think we're rushing things a little bit, because this is going to be a little matter of time and it's going to-first they are going to have to agree to do it, which we haven't told them to do, and we're letting it up to them; we're suggesting they do it. We should think it be on an appraisal-but, man, to have someone just come up to the door and knock it down and say, "We want it right now"-before we are ready-1 really think it's too soon, and I, frankly, don't think this would do any good anyway. I don't think it's part of the Constitution. I am against the amendment. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Mr. President, I can see both sides of the argument. I can see where this could be legislative, but while I was home just Sunday-we didn't have a very long weekend, as you know, this weekend-I had two calls from local School Board members wanting to know why we deleted the state's funding of the school program, and they were quite concerned about it. And I explained to them that I didn't think this really done what they thought it did, that it was still up to the Legislature and they could still do it, but that didn't seem to satisfy them. They seemed to have the idea that, when we take this language out, that we don't necessarily intend to finance the program through the state levy; so perhaps we ought to think of it from that standpoint, from the reaction that some of the local School Board members are going to have, because they're going to have a lot of influence on the final acceptance or rejection of this Constitution. Thank you, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harrington.

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of Mr. Habedank's motion. I feel that in the cities across the State of Montana, now, we're faced with a great problem-the number of mill levies that will have to be run in this current school election-will be held April the first-and the city I come from and the city Mr. Joyce comes from, that mill levy is-36 mills will be run this time; and I'd say the chance of passage of this are very slim. And somewhere along the line, we have to do something to correct this problem; and maybe a mandate to the Legislature to fund this program will be the mandate necessary. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of it, and I think the most important reason is the one that Mr. Habedank explained. The state, up till now, has set a foundation program and has been unable to fund it, and they simply put it back on the local property tax. And most of the trouble that education has been catching is because the Legislature has essentially balanced its budget with the educational program of the State of Montana. What this does say is that once the state determines that, the state is responsible for its share. I think it's essential and highly desirable. We will get equitable assessment, and this will help. And I'd like to disagree with my esteemed Chairman, Mr. Rygg; I don't think education is kicking down the door. I think this is necessary to go along with what Revenue and Finance has attempted to do-provide equality and equality of assessment, taxation within the state.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President, I support the Habedank amendment. I'd like to point out, as he did, that we do have a good foundation program in the State of Montana and thatthe more that the state funds that program, the more closely our foundation program comes up to the criteria as laid down by the Serrano case in California. It is only when our state Legislature fails to meet the obligation under the foundation program that we begin to get these real inequities built into it. For instance, the state right now is funding only about 65 percent, and the other 35 percent has to go back on local property tax levies, which builds in these inequities. And, to make matters worse, the Legislature has fully-has failed to fully fund even these inadequate schedules for 16 of the 23 years since the enactment of the foundation program. We are also fully aware of what the Legislature will attempt when hard-pressed for money. In the last session the Senate, by a vote of 42to 11, passed a bill that would have reduced income tax earmarking for school equalization from 25 percent to 1 percent, barely enough to still be constitutional and with no assurance or commitment to replace the money with an increased appropriation. Now we have, in the Revenue and Finance Article, completely removed earmarking of income tax for school equalization and last Friday even removed the instruction to the Legislature to appropriate any money for school support. In fact, Revenue and Finance even removed the constitutional requirement that there be a state income tax. So, I think that this is little enough insurance, if we put in the Habedank amendment, to at least instruct the Legislature that they must meet their share of the foundation program; and I support the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is still on Mr. Habedank's amendment.

Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, the diagram I hold in my hand shows the manner in which the pie is cut at the present time, only it isn't. This proposition in the Habedank amendment would make constitutional what is now statutory. It would place the foundation fund into the Constitution-that's what it amounts to-and I have no particular objection to it excepting I think it's statutory and has been ever since the thing has been started. I point out that in the-since the removal of the Z-mill levy, that there is no reason why the state could not take over the county equalization basic 25-mill levy and 15-mill levy and approximate the state equalization fund and levy enough mills to make it. That would undoubtedly qualify us, under any construction of the Serrano case, as affording equal funding by the state; and I don't think this amendment is worth all of the haggling.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux, do you want to—

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Briefly, sir, if I may respond to that. Mr. Romney, Mr. Rygg, we are only knocking at the door; but you know, we've been inside that room before-that lovely damsel known as education has been statutorily raped because we haven't got, and we haven't up to this day received, what we should have to fully clothe what is known as the educational system of Montana. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Nutting.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this amendment. I think it's innocuous, it doesn't mean anything, it won't cause--won't do any good and won't do any harm; and if it'll keep somebody happy, I guess we'd better put it in.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Habedank's motion that we add to subsection—

Do you want to close, Mr. Habedank?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Yes. First I would like to say that my interest in this is not that I have children in school who will need this. My children are finishing college, but I have worked with this since 1949. The next thing I would like to say, in regard to my colleagues who are so interested in constitution instead of legislation, that I would suggest that they might have thought of that a few days ago when they amended the legislative act by constitutional amendment in order to take care of an actrelating to Workmen's Compensation, which the Legislature could have corrected. I have learned very well, while I've been here, if I'm for something, it's constitutional, and if I'm against it, it's legislative. I can't think of anything, Mr. Rygg, that would bring about fair appraisals faster than if you had a statewide levy, and I do not think we necessarily have to wait until the Legislature gets around to correcting all these things before this could take effect, because you are, in effect, having levies now unequally on a county basis. To those of you who say we're locking in the foundation program, I say to you most sincerely the foundation program is on the books. We are not locking it in. The Legislature can change it; and to that extent I agree with Mr. Nutting that this thing may not do any good, but it certainly won't do any harm, and if it will make me and a lot of other people who have been working with schools for a lot of years happy, I think the schools and the chidren of Montana are entitled to have it. The next thing I would call to your attention is that the Montana School Boards Association, the M.E.A., and I am aware of no other school organization-people who work with the schools-who opposed the full funding of the state's share of whatever program they have for equalization. The only organization that I'm aware of who has opposed this-and they don't oppose it in principle, but they're always talking about the inequalities of taxation-they've been talking about it since they helped get the foundation program through in the first place-and that's the Montana Taxpayers Association. And even there, in the article which appeared in the paper which I'm sure you received-it came in our box-was directed more to this funding of education at a level which no one could understand what it was going to be-in other words, full educational opportunities for everyone-then they were-then they point out that this would have to be funded by the Legislature. We have taken care of all of these objections. Admittedly, the Legislature can change the program, and this is fine. I think that this is what the Legislature should do, but I think the children of Montana are entitled to this, and I urge you to reconsider your vote and include this in the new Constitution as a new basis for the children.

DELEGATE FURLONG: I ask for a roll call, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue before us is Mr. Habedank's amendment to add to subsection 2 of Section 1 the language: "It shall fund and distribute in an equitable manner to the school districts of the state the state's share of the cost of the basic elementary and secondary school system". So many as shall be in favor of that, vote Aye; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK HANSON: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well-is your mike out? Very well, 75 having voted Aye and 19 voting No, that motion carries and that amendment is made. Members of the body, you have before you, on the motion, I believe, of Mr. Harbaugh, originally, that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration subsection 2 of Section 1 of the Education Article, as amended, that we recommend the same be adopted. Is that all right, Mr. Harbaugh?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted as amended.

Mrs. Bates, you have a motion to reopen Section 9, 10 and 11. Is that correct?

DELEGATES BATES: Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And may the Chair read your motion?

DELEGATE BATES: Yes, please; and then I would like to speak on it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, the clerk-do you want to read the motion to reconsider.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Sections 9, 10 and 11—"

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, you are—did you—

DELEGATE BATES: I'm asking—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -vote on the prevailing side?

DELEGATE BATES: Yes, I did vote on the prevailing side.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, she means to make this as a motion to reconsider.

DELEGATE BATES: —reconsideration—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Go ahead.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. Having voted on the prevailing side, I move to reconsider and to amend Sections 9, 10 and 11, pages 5 and 6, by deleting these sections in their entirety and inserting in lieu thereof the following language: 'The general control and supervision of the State University and the various other state educational institutions shall be vested in the Superintendent of Schools and one or more State Boards of Education whose powers and duties shall be prescribed and regulated by law.' Signed: Bates." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Point of order, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a moment. Mr. Champoux, what's your point?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I'm questioning the-Mrs. Bates' vote on one particular—Section 9 we were working on. For instance, if we are working on the Gysler amendment-is that the one?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, we're working on the final adoption of Section 9—

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: This morning?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: —10 or 11—

DELEGATE BATES: Final adoption.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -10 and 11 this morning-

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: This morning.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -and 9 last night.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: All right, I remove it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Now, Mrs. Bates, explain briefly the purpose for which you want 9, 10 and 11 opened, please.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. President, fellow delegates. We here are working for a workable Constitution, a fundamental document. We are trying to get away from the too-detailed, restrictive Constitution that we are now tied with. We—in listening to all the arguments pro and con on the various topics under education this morning, I see we-1 understand the entire group is for a very responsive, accountable Department of Education while still providing the safeguards and flexibility. Today we have adopted, up until now, the—and locked in the Constitution a great deal of statutory measure. We have discussed two boards, one board, a chancellor system; and many of us realize that some of these systems have been tried and have not proven workable. If we let this to the Legislature as a statutory measure, if something wasn't workable, then they could handle it. We have no guarantee that what we have done here today will solve the problems for tomorrow. What we need is flexibility that will provide accountability, control, responsibility under the Legislature. Therefore, I ask your consideration in reconsidering and supporting my amendment. Thank YOU.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper, you also had a motion concerning this. Do you want to discuss it?

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes, Mr. Chairman. Mine has been distributed and is on your desks. One-two simple suggestions, really. One is that, instead of labeling Sections 9, 10 and 11 as if they're three separate sections, recognize the fact that they are intertwined and call it all Section 9, with three subsections, subsections 1, 2 and 3, and thus, maybe, by the structure of the article relate these boards a little bit more. I think we've done a good job of thrashing out the duties of these boards, and I would not like to join with Mrs. Bates in seeing us strike all that out. I have one concern that might hit at something of what she and others are getting at, though; and they're concerned that instead of leaving so general the wording in present Section 9 on the so-called "State Board of Education"-that is, the joint meeting of the other two boards-that this be the group that's required-really, this requirement is implied now by the fact that we are asking them to submit a unified budget request through proper channels to the Legislature-that the implication be spelled out a little bit with a sentence as we have it here: "It shall be responsible for long-range planning and evaluation of policies and programs"--I'd like to strike out the words "and administration", because that gets us into a snarl with the particulars too much-responsible for long-range planning and evaluation of policies and programs for the state's educational system. Now, what we mean, simply, is this: somebody needs to take an overall look and see how elementary education, secondary education, vocational education, community colleges, university systems, and all relate in terms of overall planning. As I say, in order to approach a unified budget asking, they would almost have to do this, but I believe it makes that statement about our state overall Board of Education a little bit clearer. And that would be the motion should Section 9 be reconsidered.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the Chair has accepted Mrs. Bates' and will accept Mr. Harper's motions to reconsider. The purpose of Mrs. Bates' motion to reconsider is to insert new language-general language that would replace 9, 10 and 11. The purpose of Mr. Harper's motion is to renumber 9,10 and 11 as 9, sub. 1, sub. 2 and sub. 3, and then to propose a new 9, sub. 1, as you see before you on his distributed sheet. Now, the issue, then, is whether to reconsider Sections 9, 10 and 11 in order to do either of these two things. If the motion to reconsider passes, it would be the Chair's intention to let Mrs. Bates make her motion and let Mr. Harper make his substitute motion, or vice versa, and then we will consider and dispose of them one way or the other.

Mr. Champoux, do you want to discuss the issue of reconsideration?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes, sir. I would rather that you took up both of these reconsiderations at once, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's what I'm doing.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: To react to Mrs. Bates' amendment, this is the same old argument that we've heard—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, I don't want you to argue the issues and whether you should do with her amendment. I want you to argue whether you want to reconsider or not.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I am against reconsideration, simply because we'd be rehashing the whole thing over again. It's a move simply to get the one board in again.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of the motions to reconsider?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: If not, all in favor of Mrs. Bates' and Mr. Harper's—

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Roll call.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -Harper's motions to reconsider will vote Aye on the voting machines; and those opposed, vote No on the voting machines. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, take the ballot.

Mr. Chairman Aye

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 58 delegates voting Aye, 32 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 58 having voted for reconsideration and 32 against it, we will reconsider Sections 9, 10 and 11. Now, the Chair has had typed-but only for the Chair-Section 9 as amended; and I'll read it to you carefully; and you might check your books, because that we did yesterday-you may-m Saturday--and you may have forgotten: "State Board of Education. The Board of Public Education and the Board of Regents of Higher Education, as hereinafter designated, shall together constitute the State Board of Education, which shall meet periodically on matters of mutual concern. The State Board of Education shall submit unified budgets. In case of a tie vote at such meeting, the Governor may cast a tie vote." That's the way it reads at the present time. The two boards shall together constitute the State Board of Education, which shallmeet periodically on matters of mutual concern. The State Board of Education shall submit unified budget requests. In case of a tie vote at such meetings, the Governor may cast a tie vote-or may cast a vote.

Very well, Mrs. Bates, do you wish to make your motion?

DELEGATE BATES: Yes, Mr. Chairman. You have read my motion. I would like to state that this motion would provide the flexibility for a—one or more boards, set by the Legislature, with the powers and duties prescribed andregulated by law. However, I would like to amend that to read "the Superintendent of Public Instruction"--and

I have "Superintendent of Schools", but it should be "Public Instruction".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll consider it so amended.

DELEGATE BATES: Okay, thank you. I think it pretty well states for itself.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair would like to observe that if there are other stylistic or minor changes you might want to make in either this or Mr. Harper's amendment, let's adopt one or the other or reject them first, and then we'll have an opportunity to amend them in detail if we want to.

Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to offer my proposal as a substitute for Mrs. Bates'.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, I guess we don't need to read yours again, do we?

DELEGATE HARPER: I don't think so.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's-the purpose-the substance of Mr. Harper's is that we would renumber 9, 10 and 11, sub. 1, sub. 2 and sub. 3, and then put the language--and I'm sure you all have before you-for sub. 1 in in place of the present sub. 1. And that will be a substitute motion for Mrs. Bates', and we may discuss both of them.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes-if you'll look at present Section 9, it uses, at the end of that first sentence, "which shall meet periodically on matters of mutual concern". Well, that didn't seem like much of a clause to me, and I thought we could put just a period-just state the composition of the board of these-made up of these other two boards; and then, really, the only thing different is this little sentence: "It shall be responsible for long-range planning and evaluation of policies and programs for the state's educational systems''—plural--and then we include the rest of the language as in Section 9 as we adopted it yesterday-or Saturday: "It shall submit unified budget requests"-and then with exactly the same wording about the Governor casting a tie-breaking vote. I don't think I need, really, to speak on it, and I don't want to prolong it. If it's something that the body likes as a way of expressing it, fine; if not, I'm perfectly agreeable to-either way.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I'll speak—may I speak to both of them at once, sir?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Surely.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: All right, very briefly. What we have in Mrs. Bates' amendment here-first of all, it gets rid of all this work we've done-we've been over this whole thing for nearly 2 days-and again we get back to the same old problem where the general control and supervision is going to be established in these boards, the same old problem that we have in the 1889 Constitution, because if you look at the last sentence, it says right here-they give the power, but then they take it away-"whose powers and duties shall be prescribed and regulated bylaw". There it is. It doesn't get at the problems we have mentioned. Now, the question, of course, is why, if the Legislature is so good about solving these problems, why haven't they solved this problem for 82 years? All right, what's going to happen under this is the boards are truly going to become political. You want to get political? Buy this amendment. And what's going to happen if the Legislature doesn't like a board? They're going to pull that board out after maybe 2 years in office and then put it in 3 years later. You're going to have a dance going on here. Who is going to do the appointing? You want to get political? You're going to find out that's going to really be political. Now, insofar as Mr. Harper's amendment is concerned, I am not in disagreement with it at all. I think, perhaps, George, that the first section could be left to Style and Drafting, but I am in favor of his amendment, and I absolutely oppose the Bates amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, would Delegate Harper yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper?

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes, I will.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: I have a little problem with regard to the picture of sort of one board sitting in judgment of the work of another board, when you use the word "evaluation", and I wonder if you don't really mean "to plan and evaluate common programs and common policies", and that-if that were added, I could be very comfortable with it because it would take away that picture of, you know, the Higher Education Board really evaluating what the other board, you know, decided or wanted to do.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman, may I respond?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: I think one way you look at that, the word "common" would do what you're thinking about. On the other hand, it might limit it to the fact that unless a thing were held in common between the elementary school and the higher university system, then you shouldn't discuss it. And what I'm talking about is that some board, our State Board of Education, takes an overall look and says, "Well, okay, we've only got so many resources and we want to get certain total objectives accomplished", as we said we would do in the very first section of this educational article, and somebody ought to take this overview of it. That's all we're trying to write in here.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: Would Mr. Harper yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper?

DELEGATE HARPER: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE BERG: Somehow or another, I am married to the word "coordinate" today, and I was wondering if you might include coordination as well as planning and evaluation of the policies and programs of all systems?

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes, Mr. Berg, I think you're married to a pretty good word in this area here, and your suggestion is for long-range planning-?

DELEGATE BERG: Planning, coordination and evaluation of policies.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman, I would accept that.

DELEGATE BERG: Mr. Chairman, I—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of allowing Mr. Harper to amend by adding the word "coordinate"-"coordinating'-say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, Mr. Harper, "coordinating" is after "planning".

DELEGATE HARPER: Fine. Thank you, Mr. Berg.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Choate.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Chairman, I think that with Mrs. Bates' proposal, we are finally getting down to the thing that we came up here for. There was a lot of mistrust of the Legislature in 1889, but there seems to be a whole lot more now than there was then. This gets down to the basics. I will support it, because I think that we have been just purely legislating all day long and on Saturday.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Mr. President, would Delegate Harper yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper?

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: When he speaks at the end of his first paragraph of making the present Section 11 becoming Section 9, subsection 3, does he mean the present section under the majority report, or is he speaking of Delegate Rollins' amendment this morning which replaced the other one?

DELEGATE HARPER: I'm glad, Mrs. Erdmann, you asked that. I should have said that, in my amending-or substitution for Mrs. Bates' motion, since she dealt with all three of those sections-that I would contemplate this revision of Section 9—our present Section 9—and then contemplate leaving Section 10 and Section 11 exactly as we have passed them, as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: In other words, it's the reopened sections, Mrs. Erdmann, the ones we passed this morning. It would be Mr. Rollins' for Number 11, and it would be Number 10 as amended by a few little interlineations this morning. We put in the word "Commissioner of Higher Education", et cetera.

DELEGATE HARPER: And now I am offering no amendment to those Sections-10 and 11.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Ten would become sub. 2 and 11 would become sub. 3.

Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, I was wondering for a while if the-Delegate Harper still had two boards, but I see now we still have two boards. Everything-all that you've done is going to let these two meet on-together. I think this is all-now, I think this problem-and we've probably debated a long time-1 don't want to take a great length of time, but I think one person has been-one outfit has been left out entirely that we've seen. We have the University System and they have their University presidents. Then we go down and we see the state administration down here, but all of a sudden we forgot these little fellows that run on—I believe it's the first Saturday in April every year-these school board trustees--and we have certainly forgot them in all of our debate today. People that have stood up—they spend nights, they spend days, they get nothing for it, all they do is get complained at every time there's a school board meeting-and these people have certainly been forgot. I wondered if there was no way we would even let this group of dedicated people throughout the State of Montana have some little say somewhere in the educational setup. I'm afraid of this thing now—that we're building a great setup--maybe I'm wrong-but I'm afraid we are building the State of Montana practically into one school district-be run out of a building up here-and that's what's going to happen to this local schools we've discussed. University-university-and I'm glad—they're great people, but we have to get the child up to the university first. This is quite a little thing, getting him up there, and I just hope-1 think with one board looking over the whole situation, subservient to the Legislature-now, I want this understood-I think we should keep this-all the education under the Legislature, whether it's university or wherever it is, and-because if we're going to have statewide mill levies, the Legislature is going to have considerable to say about the appropriations, and I think we should have everything under the Legislature, and so I hope-1 certainly hope Mrs. Bates' amendment prevails.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I'm going to be very happy when you don't have to recognize me any more, believe me. Charley, I think you were out of the room the other day. We passed a section in there concerning the school boards. Were you here when we passed that? All right. So they are included, and they are in control of the local situation. Also, if you will note, the Habedank amendment has them included in terms of getting the money and doing the stuff at the local level, so I think they have been-as a matter of fact, they are probably 200 percent more involved in this Constitution than they ever were in the last, so I believe they are well provided for.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Gysler.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Chairman, I feel that the Harper amendment certainly helps this-these three sections; however, I would just like to point out that this is one of the difficulties when in this Constitution we try to do the legislating. We are-a lot of people fought for two boards; now we're coming back and saying, "Now, this is going to be one board for here, and then they will split", and so on. This just really kind of gets you back to one, except in some respects it does a lot of tying of the hands of the people in government over the next 50 years, if this is adopted by the people. We're trying to legislate this and trying to legislate that; and sitting here today, it seems to me as though a fair amount of this document has been written to satisfy the present State Superintendent of Education. Now, maybe she will be the present Superintendent--or will be the Superintendent for the next 20 years or so, but someday somebody is going to replace her, and maybe they won't like it. I really have to agree with Mr. Davis, this morning, when he said that there are two monstrous bureaucracies, more or less, in the state government. One of them is the Highway Department, which this body did some clipping of feathers on last week, I believe it was, and theotherone is the Education Department. They both spend a whale of a lot of money, and the more we get into legislating in this Education Article on the Board of Education and so on, the more we constitutionalize the bureaucracy that can happen in the Education Department. So, I-like I say, I believe Mr. Harper's amendment is an improvement, but I would certainly go for the Bates amendment-or substitute, because it leaves it free; it isn't tying anything down. People say we want to write a document for the future. How many of you know what the future is in 40 years and what the state will need? I wish, before you vote, you would stop and think about what the future will be and how you're tying things-or how things would be tied down under the present article. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, I think we've discussed this at great length, and I don't want to prolong it, but I would like to thank the Committee of the Whole for the work they have done in clarifying and developing the proposal which the majority brought in of this committee. And I think, with Mr. Harper's cleaning up of some of the concepts that we've struggled to kind of put together here on the floor, that we have a very strong foundation for the foreseeable and long-range future of our children; and I, for one who has some children who may be thinking of a university program in this state, am deeply grateful for the work of the Committee of the Whole and the fact that we are now in a position where we will have two strong boards and then, working together under a State Board of Education, a coordinated effort; and I ask you to support this proposal that Mr. Harper has brought in and that we have developed here in the Committee of the Whole.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins. Pass? No? Okay.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I'll pass.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Mr. President, I think I have a suggestion that may be a compromise and settle this whole thing, and I'll just very briefly-and then if there's any support, then we might go from there. I would like to say this: "There shall be a State Board of Higher Education, who shall meet periodically with the State Highway Commission to determine how all state moneys shall be allocated to all branches and departments of government. The two boards, jointly, shall be responsible for notifying the Legislature of their decision at least 3 days"-and you note we get the 3-day notice in here-"at least 3 days before the deadline date set for such appropriations each year." (Laughter) I think that would probably take care of the whole—

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson, can't you get the Supreme Court in there somewhere? (Laughter)

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: I thought of making this subject to the Supreme Court decisions, but I thought that might complicate the thing a little. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Scanlin, you're still up.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, I only wish to say that the Harper caucus has clarified many of the questions I had concerning the article before. Thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Right now, I'm in a dilemma. I like the Harper amendment; but suppose we vote on that and reject it and go over and vote on Bates' amendment and reject that, then we will have rejected a good suggestion here by Mr. Harper. So I think we should probably go back and vote on Mrs. Bates' amendment first, and see how we stand. I think I know, but if we eliminated that, then we could go back and see how the Harper amendment works into our 9, 10 and 11 sections. So with that, Mr. Chairman, I shall move that we pass consideration of the Harper amendment until after we have voted on the Bates amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, Mr. Aasheim, the Chair observes that it's six of one and a half dozen of the other, depending on who's the first one up, and when we've done that, Mrs. Bates might want a second motion to reconsider and reverse it. I don't see why the body can't decide whether they like one or the other. The Chair thinks you're out of order in making a motion to restructure the order that the people have structured. Now, if you want to challenge that, okay.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman. No, I'm not going to challenge your decision here. I'm just trying to be logical, because, actually, it wouldn't take long to decide on the Bates amendment and—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, the point is, the body will know whether it's for or against the Harper amendment. If it's against the Harper amendment, then we'll give them a chance on the Bates amendment. If it's against the Bates amendment, why, send up an amendment, and we'll start on the Harper amendment all over again, if you want to. But I don't see that it does any good to switch, because as soon as you switch, then maybe one of the ones that made them-You know, I don't choose the order here; they choose it--unless they disagree, then I choose it. And I just don't like to get in the business of starting sorting out on the floor by secondary motions what order things are going to be taken up in. I think the issue is on Mr. Harper's motion, and if we're through discussing it, we'll have a roll call vote on it. All right, the point of Mr. Harper's motion is, first of all, to number the subsections 9, 10—to number Sections 9,10 and 11 as-as 9, sub. 1, sub. 2 and sub. 3-I don't think that's too difficult or important. Secondly, to substitute for Section 9 the language on subsection 1 of Section 9 shown on his amendment, and we've added to that the word "coordinating". Now, does anybody want me to read that or read yesterday's Section 9?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think everybody's got the picture. All right. So many as are in favor of Mr. Harper's amendment, vote Aye; and so many as are opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

Mr. Chairman Aye

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 71 delegates voting Aye, 20 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, 71 having voted Aye and 20 No, you have adopted Mr. Harper's amendment and Section 9 is now styled subsection 1, State Board of Education, with the language-the Harper language as amended. The vote was 71 to 20. Then Section 10 is now styled subsection 2; Section 11 is now styled subsection 3. Now, before we close up the reconsideration of 9, 10 and 11, Mrs. Bates or Mr. Aasheim or anyone else, do you want to take another stab at it?

Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Is my motion still on the floor, or do I have to—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, your mo-tion is, at the moment, wiped out, because his was a substitute motion.

DELEGATE BATES: Well, I shall reinstate it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you want to renew it?

DELEGATE BATES: I move that we delete Sections 9, 10 and 11 for my motion, and you've all heard it. I don't have to reread it, I'm sure. In-I, too, believe, like Mr. Burkhardt, that the majority did a beautiful job with their ideas; and I think if they will present these to the Legislature, they may get what they want. I asked for your consideration on my substitute motion because I feel it will provide the flexibility. When Mr. Champoux mentioned that this could be too political, I can't see that it would be any more political than the Governor appointing any other board or-with the sanction of the Senate, which is done in most cases of boards, and I imagine this is the way the Legislature would structure a Board of Education. At this, I'll so move.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mrs. Bates has renewed her motion as to Sections 9, 10 and 11— or, now, as to Sections 9, sub. 1, sub. 2 and sub. 3. The effect of it would be to replace 9, sub. 1, sub. 2 and sub. 3, that's the Harper amendment, the Rollins' amendment, and Section 2-or Section 10 as it was this morning, and put in place of it the language: "The general control and supervision of the State University and various other state educational institutions shall be vested in the Superintendent of Public Instruction and one or more State Boards of Education, whose powers and duties shall be prescribed and regulated by law."

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President, I rise to resist the substitute-or the new amendment suggested by Mrs. Bates. When I first read this amendment, it appealed to me as taking care of the purists and all those people who want nothing in the Constitution that is legislative in any way whatsoever. However, as I studied it further and as I study what we have done in connection with the majority proposals adopted, it seems to me that the proposal adopts the best ideas of Mr. Gysler, Mr. Driscoll and Mrs. Bates into what we think education should be governed by today. Admittedly, this situation can change in the future, but we are writing a Constitution for today as well as tomorrow. And I would suggest to you that you also consider, in connection with this, that if this does not prove to be satisfactory, you have adopted an amendment procedure whereby the Legislature can submit the Mrs. Bates amendment to the people, and if they don't do that and the people aren't happy, we have adopted Mr. Mahoney's suggestion whereby the people by initiative can submit Mrs. Bates' amendment to the people and correct the situation. I urge you that we take care of today and hope that it takes care of tomorrow.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll have a roll call. Are you all through debating?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall favor Mrs. Bates' motion, which has the effect of substituting one paragraph for 9, 10 and 1 l-or 9, 1, 2 and 3—so many as shall be in favor of that, vote Aye; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, take the ballot.

Mr. Chairman ..... Nay

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 34 delegates voting Aye, 59 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 59 having voted No and 34 having voted Aye, the motion fails and we're back to 9, sub. 1, 2 and 3. Is there any more discussion?

Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman, a point of information. The Harper amendment-did he delete the words "and administration" or-?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes. In what are you talking about? In—

DELEGATE ASK: In sub. 1, there, "policies, programs and administration".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: He deleted the words "and administration"; it says: "It shall be responsible for long-range planning, coordinating and evaluation of policies and programs for the state's educational system."

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman, I move that we put the words "and administration" back in again. I think they're quite important. I like this two boards and this sub. 1, here, "for long-range planning and coordination and evaluation of policies, programs, administration". I think this is part of it. This is probably one of the most important words, I think, in this whole section, and therefore I would like to see it be-those two words be put back in again.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ask has an amendment to Section 9, sub. 1, as presently adopted, to add in the words "administration". I have scratched them out too well here, but I think it says "and administration", doesn't it? What's it say? "-and administration for the state's educational system"-that's four lines from the bottom on Mr. Harper's amendment.

Mr. Ask, do you want to discuss it any further?

DELEGATE ASK: Yes, Mr. Chairman. We now have two boards, which I think is a good idea, but somewhere along the line they're going to have to coordinate all their activities. And we have it in here that they're going to have long-range planning, evaluation of policies and programs, and evaluate the administration, and I think this is an important aspect of it. We can't have the administration for two boards going off in different directions, and I think they should be able to evaluate and do some planning and programming on administration also. I think these are real important words. In other words, we have two boards that are going to go out in their separate fields but they are going to work together very closely in certain areas here, and I think we're—this is what we're after. And I would submit that we should include those words back in again. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion?

Mrs. Blend.

DELEGATE BLEND: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of Mr. Ask's amendment. I have occasion to watch Central Purchasing in the State of Montana from another angle, and I believe that I can say that I do not think that the University System would create any greater cost by accident or misuse of funds than Central Purchasing seems to manage in other areas by the pure massiveness of the system. I think if we are to have a responsive University System, that we should allow them to administer their own departments, and I support the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I think I would like to resist the addition there for two reasons. First of all, when you were talking, Mr. Ask, it seemed to me you were talking about planning, evaluation about administration, and that's quite a different thing than the actual administration of the total system. It seems to me you get into a place where that first board would override--or could override the other two boards rather arbitrarily. In fact, it might even be-and that would be my second reason—that if you took that word literally, it might even be the disappearance of the two boards.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman, maybe I should have explained a little bit more as to why I wanted to delete the words "and administration", and it follows what Mr. Arbanas has just said. In the Rollins amendment, for example, under Section 11, we said that "the government and control of the Montana University System shall be vested in a Board of Entrants-Regents, who shall be selected"-and so forth. "They shall have full power, responsibility and authority to supervise, coordinate, manage, control"—we used similar wordings in-with the other board, and we thought perhaps the words "administration"-we get so many people dabbling with administration that we might get conflicts ofinterest there; whereas, we thought that an overall look at the policy and program, without using the word "administration", would accomplish what we want without running into the possible conflicts between having three different groups delving into specifics of administration.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I rise in opposition to the addition of those two words. It's going to have the effect of taking the true direction of these two boards away from the individual members of the boards in terms of specific area control, and it's going to put it in the hands of this one board combined. And this isn't what we've worked on all this time to do, and maybe Mr. Ask didn't see that as he suggested that. That's the bad point about that, and I oppose the addition.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises on Mr. Ask's motion to add the words "and administration" back into Section 9, sub. 1—

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -so that it reads: "It shall be responsible for long-range coordination, planning"-No, let's see-"planning, coordinating and evaluation of policies and programs and administration for the state's educational system".

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Roll call, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many shall be in favor, vote Aye on the voting machine; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do the rest of you want to vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, take the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 18 delegates voting Aye, 66 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 66 having voted No and 18 Aye, the motion fails. Is there other discussion of Sections 9, 10 and 11, which are now open?

Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Mr. Chairman, in Section 6-I mean, sorry-in Section 10, on line 9, right near the end of the line—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: -we're talking about 6-year overlapping terms for the Board of Public Education. Then, in Section 11, Mr. Rollins' amendment, as we adopted it, we decided to delete the 6-year overlapping terms. Now, I think, in an effort to be consistent, we should delete the 6-year overlapping term phrase in Section 10, and I so move.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think you have an interesting thought-point. Very well, Mrs. Bowman has an amendment to Section 9, sub. 2, to delete the words "6-year", on line 9, page 6-about the middle of sub. 2, if you are on the other page-in order to make it confirm-conform to sub. 3.

Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Did we take a vote on the 6-year terms in the other-to delete?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We took a vote when we—we took a vote on Mr. Rollins' amendment, and the vote was close, but the vote took out the 6-year term. The vote was 46 to 42 to take out the 6-year term and leave it open-leave the term open for the Legislature.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Well, Mr. Chairman, I would just like to say that I really think we ought to have the 6-year terms in there, and the reason that the committee put these in in the first place was so that there would be continuity on these boards from one gubernatorial election on into the next and so that the whole board would not change with the change in administration, and I really think that it ought to be left in there. I think it ought to be put back in the section where we took it out.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair would only like to observe that if you have overlapping terms, it's bound to-the board is bound not to change in an administration regardless of the length of the term, unless it was awful short. But we've left it to the Legislature now, and Mrs. Bowman's motion is to take it out of section—subsection 2.

Mrs. Bowman, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Well, I suppose as long as I made the motion, I maybe ought to say something about it. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Suit yourself, Mrs. Bowman. (Laughter) You have the floor, Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: I do not speak very often. I think that we did the right thing to take it out of Mr. Rollins' amendment; and I think we should take it out here, because I think that, even though the Legislature might indeed decide on a 6-year term, that if this proves to be, for some reason, wrong-either too long or too short-they can change it; and I think it's a mistake to put the term in the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman, in checking on Mr. Rollins' amendment, it does have confirmation by the Senate under regulations provided by law. Now, we don't have this here. I'm not sure whether it's absolutely necessary; but I would guess that, if you're going to have terms set at all, that it would be a good idea that if we deleted the 6-year overlapping term-or the 6 years from the overlapping terms, that we should add "under regulations provided by law"; and I would like to so amend Mrs. Bowman's amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you want to include the deletion of the 6-year term, Mrs. Eck?

DELEGATE ECK: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mrs. Eck has made an amendment to Mrs. Bowman's motion. She will leave in the deletion of the term "6-year", but after the words "overlapping terms", she would put ", subject to confirmation by the Senate under regulations provided by law", the purpose being to make this identical in subsection 2 with the language we've now adopted as Rollins' amendment in subsection 3. Is that correct, Mrs. Eck?

DELEGATE ECK: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the point, then, is if you vote for the Eck amendment, you both wipe out the 6-year term and you add ", subject to confirmation by the Senate under regulations provided by law". Is there further discussion?

Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman, the "under"-the "with"--"of"-"the confirmation of the Senate" is already there. It precedes the "6-year term" now, so that I think that just after "overlapping terms", I would need the "under regulations as provided by law".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Or we could tell Style and Drafting to make them the same. Mr. Style and Drafting is nodding his head. Would you like to withdraw yours, and he says he'll make them the same if we-Mrs. Eck has withdrawn hers. We're back to the issue of deleting the "6-year term". Is there further discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Mrs. Bowman's motion to delete "6-year term", say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's deleted. Are there other amendments to subsections 9-1, -2 and -3?

Mr. Scanlin, do you want to make an amendment?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: No, I just wanted to make an observation.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is it a short observation?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: It sure is.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay, shoot.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, I would trust the Legislature to realize that if there were seven members, they would fix 7-year terms. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 9, as amended, of Education and Public Land Committee Proposal Number 10, it recommend that the same be adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 9, as amended, includes 9, sub. 1, 2 and 3, which is 9, 10 and 11 of the old.

Now, Mr. Heliker, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I rise to propose a further amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Have you got it in writing?

DELEGATE HELIKER: It's only one word.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Let's have it.

DELEGATE HELIKER: It is to the renumbered Section 9, subsection 3, otherwise known as the Rollins amendment. I move to amend the last line of that Rollins amendment, before the word "audit", by adding the word "post".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, since you-1 suppose you know what you are doing. Okay, Mr. Heliker proposes to put the word "post" in in the place of where we used to have "Legislative" and where we have nothing now, so that the sentence reads: "The funds and appropriations under control of the Regents shall be subject to the same post-audit provisions as other funds of the state."

Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, the record of the debate on this is perfectly clear that that's what we meant. I propose simply that we clear up the language also to make it clear that we mean "post-audit".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney, hit a couple more buttons.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: If you used just the word "post-audit" I think you would exclude the word "Legislative Audit" or any other audit. You would be limiting it to one audit. It should be a post-audit.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, that is not my intention. The Legislative Audit is a post-audit. It would not eliminate the Legislative Audit.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: A post-audit, as I understand it-you'd limit it and you could have a post-audit and you might not limit-I think you'd better leave it the way it is with just one--no words in there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Heliker's motion to add the word "post", say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as are opposed, say No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Noes have it and the word "post" is out.

Now, Mr. Murray, you want to renew your motion?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I renew my motion as previously stated.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Now, the motion of Mr. Murray's is to finally adopt 9, sub. 1, 2 and 3, which is the old 9, 10 and 11. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as opposed, vote No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You may show it as a unanimous vote on your ballot, Mr. Champoux. All right, 9 is therefore closed up. Style and Drafting, naturally, will renumber the other sections. Now, are there other amendments?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee rise and finally report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is for the committee to rise and finally report on the Education and Public Lands Committee Proposal Number 10. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.
Mr. Rygg, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE RYGG: I would like to make a committee announcement at this time, if I may.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right.

DELEGATE RYGG: I assume we're going to have a recess rather soon, and I would like to call a meeting of Revenue and Finance immediately upon recess in Room 437.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

(Proceedings moved from Committee of the Whole to Convention, President Graybill in Chair)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read the Committee of the Whole report—title and signature.

CLERK HANSON: "March 13, 1972. Mr. President. We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration report Number 10 of the Committee on Education, recommend as follows: that the committee rise and finally report on the Education Article Number 10. Signed: Leo Graybill, Jr., President."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does anyone care to have the report read in full?

DELEGATES: No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move that the Committee of the Whole report be adopted and that Education and Public Lands Committee Proposal Number 10 be referred to the Committee on Style and Drafting.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, you've heard the motion to adopt and refer this committee proposal to Style and Drafting. All in favor of the motion to adopt it, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, it's assigned to Style and Drafting.
Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move that the Convention recess for 15 minutes, or until 4:45 p.m. this day.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Before we vote on that, the Chair would like to announce that we'll take up Judiciary and perhaps Natural Resources and we'll work at least until 6:00 to try and get as much of those done as possible. The motion is to recess for 15 minutes. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Convention recessed at 4:30 p.m.—reconvened at 4:55 p.m.)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The committee will be in session. The Convention will be in session. Mr. Murray, without objection, the Chair is going to ask that we be on Order of Business Number 3, Communications. Is there any objection?
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, the purpose of going to Order of Business Number 3-I've had placed on your desks a memorandum from me to the delegates, and it merely makes suggestions for two committees and for-it gives you some idea of the thinking, at the moment, on the voter education problem after the Convention adjourns, and unless there's objection, I shall refer this memorandum to Rules, and it says in the memorandum that Rules will hold a hearing-ma meeting at 8 o'clock in the morning to consider this, because we need to prepare a resolution of some nature to accomplish either what's suggested here or whatever else may be suggested. Is there any objection to referring this memorandum to the Rules Committee?
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: If not, all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, Nay.
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Okay. Mr. Murray, this is now referred to you. And is 8 o'clock in the morning a good time? Is that available?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Yeah, Mr. President, 8:00 is a—

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: No?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Excuse me just a minute. I think 8:00 will be fine, and we'll commence. And I may have to withdraw for a few minutes, but I think we'd better call it for 8 o'clock in the morning because I know not what other time we would have.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. President, I would like to bring to the attention of the Chair and the delegates that, 8 o'clock in the morning, the Bill of Rights Committee is going to meet in the Governor's conference room for the purpose of hearing from the press with respect to the controversial right-to-know, and I know a number of delegates are interested in attending. I think that's going to be very important to all of us, and for that reason, I should like to have the Chair keep that particular meeting in mind.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Our only point-this doesn't have to go that fast, perhaps, but it ought to be done promptly so these committees can get to work, and we are shooting for getting them appointed and the resolution adopted on Wednesday. Do you want to have your meeting Tuesday--on adjournment or Tuesday—well, we can't have it Tuesday night-do you want to have it tonight?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I would prefer to meet Tuesday at the noon recess and have lunch in the committee room and take the matter up at that time, since Bill of Rights does have this important meeting for which we have some out-of-town people scheduled.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, let's take this matter up Tuesday on adjournment in the Rules Committee rooms, so if anybody has some suggestions, you can come at that time or you can write them up and give them to Mr. Murray. The things I have put in my memorandum are suggestions only, and we would like to hear your suggestions. On the other hand, we do have to act deliberately and soon on this matter. Very well, that takes care of that.

Now, Mr. Murray, maybe without objection, we can be back on Order of Business Number 10.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Since we are on Order of Business Number 10, Mr. President, I move we resolve-the Convention resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for consideration of business under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to resolve this Convention into Committee of the Whole. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Convention resolved into Committee of the Whole with Mr. Graybill presiding)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Before we take up the Judiciary Style and Drafting report-Mr. Schiltz, is it correct that we put in an amended page 4 and an amended page 11; is that correct?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's correct, Mr. Chairman, and they've been distributedin the last 15 or 20 minutes, so you might-with a lot of other stuff-so you might have to look for them.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You might want to amend your books by striking out your existing page 11 and page 4 so you don't get mixed up. Now, members of the commitee, it might be easier if we followed along on page 7 through the Judiciary Article so that we can see what's been changed. You'll remember that our method is to read the section number only and let the Chairman of Style and Drafting discuss it. Mr. Clerk, do you want to read, beginning on page 7, Section 1 of the Judicial Style and Drafting proposal? Just Section 1 and the title.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 1. Judicial power."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1 of report Number 5, Style and Drafting Committee, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: We have changed "a" to "one" on line 8 to conform to the same language in the Supreme Court, U.S. We've added "justice courts". Otherwise, minor style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 1?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of Style and Drafting's proposal on Section 1 of the Judicial Article, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 1 is adopted. Section 2.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2-Supreme Court Jurisdiction", four subsections. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, the only changes in sub. 1 are style changes. I changed the title. Nothing significant to note.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mr. Chairman, I have a joint motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, there's a motion here from Holland and Berg.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: By Mr. Berg, who is the author of the minority report, and by myself as Chairman of the committee. We move to suspend the rules for the specific and limited purpose of amending Section 2, subdivision 1, line 15, of the Style and Drafting report on Judiciary by adding the following words after the word "corpus": "and such other writs as may be provided by law".

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the motion is to suspend the rules to allow the amendment of Section 2, sub. 1, by adding, at the end of the section, after "habeus corpus", a phrase: "and such other writs as may be provided by law".

Now, on the issue of the suspension of the rules only, Mr. Holland, do you wish to speak?

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Yes. As the Convention may know, the Convention first decided to consider the minority report, and following the extensive debate on Saturday, some of the members of the committee and some of the people who weren't on the committee got together and did a certain amount of rewriting and, under the stress, overlooked that this language would eliminate certain basic writs which are necessary for the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in the orderly conduct of its business. Several of us noted this. As many members of the committee could—got together saw that this had been eliminated just by oversight, and I wish to-and on behalf of Mr. Berg, who is-as I say, had written the minority report-we wish the Convention, for the sole purpose of adding these words, to suspend the rules. Now, I realize that this is an unusual action, but seeing as how a majority of the committee are in favor of this suspension, it would take but a very few minutes and, I expect, very little floor debate. We would ask the Convention to suspend the rules for this limited and specific purpose only.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. For those of you who may want to be refreshed on this, the rule is Rule 74 and it says that one or more rules may be suspended for a specific purpose by an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the delegates present or a majority of all the delegates, whichever is lesser-so it's 51 votes or two-thirds. And the specific purpose has been properly stated by Mr. Berg and Mr. Holland. Is there other discussion of the motion to suspend the rules?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: If not, all in favor of suspending the rules, please indicate by voting Aye on the voting machines; and all opposed, No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, 77 having voted Aye and 2 voting No, the rules are now suspended.

Now, Mr. Holland, do you wish to make a motion to reconsider Section 2, sub. 1?

DELEGATE HOLLAND: The rules having been suspended, we hereby move that the Style and Drafting report, at the place indicated, be amended by adding the following words and sentence which—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Wait a minute, now. You've got to move to reconsider. We've got to go through all the steps, I think. Isn't that right, Mr. Murray?

DELEGATE MURRAY: (Nodding yes)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes. Just say, "I move to reconsider Section 2, sub. 1", and I think we'll do it for you.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: We move to— we'll move to reconsider section—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -2, sub. 1.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: -Section 1, sub.—or Section 2, sub. 1, at this time.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: For the purpose stated.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: For the purpose stated.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of the motion to reconsider, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it. Now, would you state your motion.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Yes. I'll ask that line 15 of page 2-page 1 of the Style and Drafting report, the following words be added after the word "corpus": "and such other writs as may be provided by law period".

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, you'll be allowed an amendment which adds, at line 16, "and such other writs as may be provided by law". Do you care to discuss it?

DELEGATE HOLLAND: I see no need to discuss it, considering what I said earlier, and I'll leave it open for other discussion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg

DELEGATE BERG: Mr. Chairman. I join, of course, in this motion to reconsider. It developed that after we had written the article, Sandra Muckelston, the research analyst, pointed out to us a case in the Montana Supreme Court, known as Naegele versus Kelsey, in which the Supreme Court held that under the old Constitution there was some question, perhaps, as to whether writs—remedial writs-might be issued if it was limited to appellate jurisdiction as we had written it here. It is to correct that possibility that we ask that this amendment be made so as to conform with what the Supreme Court has already determined its jurisdiction to be.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: If not, all in favor of the amendment which would add the words "and such other writs as may be provided by law"-to the Supreme Court's power to determine writs of habeas corpus--all in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 'Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered, and it's amended.

Mr. Holland, do you wish to move that when this committee rises and reports, after having had under consideration Section 2, sub. 1, as amended, that we recommend the same be adopted?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz makes that motion. Very well; all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. it's amended.

Mr. Schiltz, do you want to explain anything further about Section 2, sub. 1, in the Style and Drafting phase?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: No, I had already explained that before the amendment, and there's nothing new by the amendment. Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, there are no changes at all in that subsection.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, now, the Chair may have-1 see what you did, but I don't want to-is everybody agreed that Section 2, sub. 1, is adopted as amended? If anybody had any other amendments that they wanted to offer, I want to know about it. Any other comment, rather, on the style and drafting.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll consider that adopted as amended. Now, on Section 2, sub. 2, no changes. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2, sub 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mostly style. On line 22 we took out the words "approval or" on the assumption that if the Legislature approves, there's no reason for it to act in any way, so it will just read "subject to disapproval by the Legislature". That's all.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of sub. 3?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Sub. 3 is adopted. Sub. 4.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2, sub. 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Section-or subsection 4 was moved from Section 4, sub. 3, where it covered both the Supreme Court and the District Court, and we just put this in here for the Supreme Court alone. That's all.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: In otherwords, you've underlined because you've moved it to a new place?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does everyone understand that? Is thereanydiscussion of sub. 4?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of sub. 4, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Will the clerk please read the title of Section 3.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 3. Supreme Court organization." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's consisting of two subsections.

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 3, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: This increased the number of justices from four to six, but as it was drafted previously, we talked about one chief justice and four justices, so we just changed that to conform to that-so there'll be one chief justice, four justices-and then we can increase the number of justices from four to six, making a court of seven.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 3, sub. 1?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Oh, and we made-now, we made one other change on the next page, page 8. We put "joined in and", for pronouncing the decision. We thought it made no sense if they just pronounced the decision; we wanted them to join in on it. That's all.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: "A majority shall join in and pronounce the decision—decisions".

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: "Joined in and" is new language.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, "joined in" is new language. Any discussion?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 3, sub. 1, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 3, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, there are only very minor style changes in this subsection.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 3, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CLERK HANSON: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Oh, pardon me, Mr. Eskildsen; I didn't see you. Mr. Eskildsen, what have you got to say?

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Well, Mr. Chairman, members of the Convention. I just have this question to ask. It's for disqualification or disability. Somewhere, farther along the line, did we put in there for any other reason?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Are you asking me?

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Yes.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Tell me what you're talking about again.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Well, as this section is, a district judge shall be substituted for the chief justice or a justice in the event of disqualification or disability. Does anyplace else in the section-I can't remember anymore-does anyplace else in the section have other qualifications for a district judge to sit in the place of a Supreme Court justice?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Do you mean what constitutes disqualification or disability, or-

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Well,—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: No, this is the only place there is any mention of when a district judge may sit on the Supreme Court.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Well, what about when they take a vacation? That isn't a disqualification or it isn't a disability. I'm just wondering what we've done here, if we've-

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: If we did any more than we did, we'd be making substantive changes, and we didn't do it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We did not cover the other situations, Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Fine. I just wanted to know if there was-if there is any other place in here where the district judge can be seated on the Supreme Court other than by disqualification or disability. You answered my question. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Section 3, sub. 2?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of 3, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted, Read Section 4, please, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 4. District Court jurisdiction." Contains three subsections. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, we made one change here on line 17, and I referred to it before when I was talking about the Supreme Court-the "process shall extend to all parts of the state". We moved that up from Section 4, sub. 3-you'll see it deleted down there-and added it on at this section--subsection 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAY&ILL: Any discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of 4, sub. 1, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, (Loud sneeze) it recommend the same be adopted—without that last amendment. (Laughter) Well, this is a very slight style arrangement. It had a sub. 3 at that point, and we just struck that.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of 4, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Sub. 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4, sub. 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, we made only style changes until you get to lines 27 and 28, where it said: "Appeals from inferior courts must be tried anew in the District Court. The Supreme Court and District Court process shall extend to all parts of the state." I referred to that before, and they were-that last sentence was replaced. The appeals from inferior courts was deleted in its entirety before conflict with subsection 2, which says that the District Court shall hear appeals from inferior courts as trials anew. That's all the amendments.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, subsection 4 of-subsection 3 of Section 4. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Clerk, read Section 5.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 5. Justices of the Peace." Contains three subsections. Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 5, subsection 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, you will note that this is the Justice of the Peace part of the Judicial system, which was put back in as—or put in as Section 10. We thought it more properly belonged here, after listing the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court and the District Court, so we'd have all the courts in a row, so we renumbered that Section 5. Now, as to subsection 1, there are no changes except style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Subsection 1 of Section 5. Is there any discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration subsection 2 of Section 5, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, this involves only minor style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of subsection 2?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Subsection 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration subsection 3 of Section 5, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, all we did here was delete, on lines 13 and 14, material which was in conflict with Section 1—"or other types of courts below the District Court level as is deemed necessary"—and we covered that in Section 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 1 of this Section 5?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: No, no, Section 1 itself. It says, after "Justice Courts", "and such other courts as may be provided by law". We didn't see there was any reason to put them both in there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 5, sub. 3?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 6, clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 6. Judicial jurisdiction-judicial districts". Contains three subsections. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, only style changes in subsection 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz, you picked up the last sentence from somewhere else?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right, and I was just looking for where it was. Yes, it came out of sub. 2, lines 23 and 24.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, is there any discussion of Section 6, sub. 1?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, style changes, and, as noted, we took out lines 23 and 24 and put them up in subsection 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of sub. 2?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 5-6, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6, sub. 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, in this case we have a possible substantive change which should be backed up by an inquiry that was made on the floor. As it read, it said, "The chief justice may, upon request, assign the district judges"--and we've provided the language "upon request of the district judge assign". Somebody asked on the floor at whose request that was, and the response was that-"the district judge's", so we felt free to do it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of that subsection?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 6, subsection 3, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 7, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 7. Terms and pay." Contains two subsections. Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 7, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, only minor style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of Section 7?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 7, sub. 1 is adopted. Sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 7, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, only minor style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any question on sub. 2?

Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask Mr. Schiltz-Delegate Schiltz-do you-is it necessary to add in there "as provided by law", since we have already set up the term of offices for the various judges?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, Mrs. Bates, it says: "and as provided by law" and that's been-

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: "-for other judges"--"as provided by law for other judges" is what it says.

DELEGATE BATES: Oh.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It says "8 years for Supreme Court, 6 years for District Court, and as provided by law for other judges."

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Right.

DELEGATE BATES: Well, now, in a previous-Mr. Chairman—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: In the previous-I don't remember what section it is-we set up 4 years for JPs. Is this necessary? Are there going to be other judges in addition to these?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: If Mrs. Bates would go back and look at Section 1—or somewhere in that neighborhood, it'll-seeit's left open for intermediate courts of appeal and so on-on line 9: "and such other courts as may be provided by law". This language takes care of such other courts as may be provided by law.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think there is a point, Mr. Schiltz, as to whether or not JPs should be put in there. Perhaps they shouldn't, but they do have a term provided in the Constitution. Perhaps it need not be put there.

Mr. Delaney.

DELEGATE DELANEY: Mr. Chairman, in Section 5, subsection 3, the-Style and Drafting deleted "or other types of courts below the District Court level as is deemed necessary". I thought that was put in there with the idea that the Legislature would--ought to form a Small Claims Court, and I thought this was the other type of court--was the idea of the other type of court we were discussing of-or judges that we were discussing.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And Mr. Schiltz already pointed out that we did provide, in Section 1, for such other courts as may be provided by law. So, Mr. Delaney, the reference to allowing other courts is in Section 1 on page 7; it isn't lost. But your point may be that-that may not be your point.

DELEGATE DELANEY: That was my point.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you find it in Section 1?

DELEGATE DELANEY: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Mr. Schiltz, do you have any comment on why justices of the peace's terms are not with the other terms?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: No. Again, we look at the substantive material that we have and we just didn't pick up the anomaly there, if there is one. I think somebody ought to-1 move that-Mr. Chairman, I move that Style and Drafting Report Number 5, Section 7, subsection 2, be amended by adding "4 years for justices of the peace" after the word--after the words "District Court judges".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, we have now added on-between lines 9 and 10, "4 years for justices of the peace", so it will read: "Terms of office shall be 8 years for Supreme Court justices, 6 years for District Court judges, 4 years for justices of the peace, and as provided by law for other judges".

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of that amendment?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, if we're going to do that, then to keep the whole article consistent, we should delete, on line 2, page 9, the words "for a term of 4 years".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yeah, I'm going to go back and do that. Let's just see if they want to put it in here first. Is there any objection to putting in "4 years for justices of the peace"-in with the other judges' terms?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of that, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, that's adopted. Now we ought to go back and reopen Section 5, sub. 1, and take out the words "for a term of 4 years", that are underlined. Is that what you mean, Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's my motion, yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any objection to opening 5, sub. 1, and taking out "for a term of 4 years", since we have now put it in another place?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay, that's adopted, too. Very well, is there other-are there other amendments to Section 7, sub. 2, about the terms of office of the judges?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: If not, all in favor, say Aye.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz, did you want to say something?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, I was going to move we adopt it as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, the motion is to adopt Section 7, sub. 2, as amended. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it. Do you want a division?

DELEGATES: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBLLL: All right. All in favor, vote Aye on the voting machines; opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegates want to change their votes?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Close the ballot. 68 having voted Aye, 14 No, Section 7, sub. 2, as amended, is adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a moment, Mr. Schiltz. Right. Mrs., Acher says when we took-on Section 5, on page 8 and 9, sub. l-when we took out the words "and for a term of 4 years", we should readopt Section 5 as amended. Very well.
Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 5, subsection 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, we recommend the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted as amended. That's 5, sub. 1. Now, we're back on Section 8.
Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 8. Selection." Contains three subsections. 'Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 8, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, there are rather extensive style changes, but nothing significant that might be considered substantive.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of 8, sub. 1?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of Section 8, sub. 1, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 8, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, this is the amended page. We had one go at it and then had another committee meeting in its connection and decided that we had to go back almost to the original language, but our first problem was occasioned by the fact that, on page 20—on page 10, line 29, we talked about the first primary election, and nowhere in the Constitution is there or will there be any provision for a direct primary. It's a statutory matter and it's very-it's conceivable that we could go to some other system at some time and then leave this section dangling, so-or of no force-or of questionable force. So, our first problem was to delete the word "primary", which we eventually did. Now, the change we made that will be-appear on your amended 11 will be the deletion of, on page 11, line 8—the deletion of the word "primary" and just leaving it read "election". And then we restored most of the language -well, I'm not down there yet. Okay, that's all, except for style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: In other words, they took out the word "primary" so that it doesn't-so that the section would not refer to a system which might be deleted out of the statutes. Is there any discussion?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 8, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.-8, sub. 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 8, sub. 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, now, in this case we restored the language so it reads "if an incumbent judge does not run", and we had-if you'll look at the other one-put in there "requests that his name not be placed on the ballot". We were confused as to just exactly how that would work but are confident that subsection 3, as restored, will work. "There shall be an election for the office"--we took out the word "contested"-"election for the office"-because it appeared to us that if only one man filed, there must still be an election. We can't be assured that two people will file or be nominated in some fashion. Otherwise--well, that's all the change we made.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right. You said you put the word "judge" back in, but you didn't.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: No, that's right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: "Subsection 3. If an incumbent does not run, there shall be an election for the office." Is there discussion?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Mr. Clerk, Section 9.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 9. Qualifications"; containing four subsections, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 9, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, subsection 1 involves only style changes. We rearranged the language rather extensively, but we think it reads better.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 9, sub. 1, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 9, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, we-1 have to look at my notes here for a minute. Oh, you'll notice that we provided that judges shall collect expense money--or we put in the words--or we still have the words "except salary and actual travel expenses"-and deleted "as provided by law". This may be substantive, and I'm calling it to your attention. We deleted those words because we determined it to be the intent, from the debate on the floor, to entitle judges to actual travel expenses; whereas, "as provided by law", might contemplate a per diem that, in fact, is smaller than the actual travel expenses the judges are frequently put to.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of 9, sub. 1—or sub. 2?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of 9, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 9, sub. 3, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, there's no change in this subsection. Well, we deleted some language, but we added it to a new Section 10.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any objection to 9, sub. 3?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of sub. 4?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of sub. 4, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Read Section 10.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 10. Forfeiture of judicial position." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, I just noted this. We moved that language down from the previous subsection and restyled it to some extent.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I take it that this means that he's-he forfeits if he does either of these two things which were contained in two separate paragraphs above; namely, files for another elective office or absents himself for 60 days. Is that right?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there question about that?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 10, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. How about Section 11?

CLERK HANSON: "Section 11. Removal and discipline." Mr.-two subsections, Mr. Chairman-three subsections.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11, Style and Drafting-Section 11, sub. 1. Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, this is only style change and very little of it. We deleted subsection 2 and put it-well, we-no-okay, we're on sub. l-okay, that's all.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion on Y-Section 11, sub. 1?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11, sub. 2, it recommend the same be adopted-Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, you'll see that we rephrased that language completely but kept the same sense. The redraft provides that the Commission shall investigate these various complaints and make rules implementing the section --now this may be substantive-I'll raise it-and keep its proceedings confidential. As it was written above, it sounded as though it shall investigate complaints, subpoena witnesses and documents, and make rules implementing this section and providing for confidentiality of proceedings. We took out the rules for that and interpreted that to mean keep its proceedings confidential.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of 11, sub. 2?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of 11, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11, sub. 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, there are no changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Eleven, sub. 3—all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted; and that includes (a) and (b), does it?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That includes (a) and (b).

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Everyone understand that?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Section 11, sub. 3, (a) and (b), is adopted. Section 12.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 12. Exemption laws." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 12, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, this section and the one following were sections assigned to the Judiciary Committee, and it has been-the-Section 12 has been rephrased slightly, and it will be placed somewhere else in the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any objection to Section 12?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 12, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 13. Perpetuities.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 13, Style and Drafting Report Number 5, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, as I indicated when discussing 12, this was assigned also to us, and this will also be placed somewhere else, and there are no changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: For the record, Section 12 is adopted. Section 13-is there any discussion?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 13, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. President, fellow delegates, having voted on the prevailing side during the course of the debate on the Judicial Article that turned down the section on campaign expenses explicitly for Supreme Court judges, and the vote being so close, I move at this time to suspend the rules for the reconsideration of a new section in the Judicial Article and-are we going to read it or-shall I read it or-

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The clerk can read it.
Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to suspend the rules for reconsideration of a new section in the Judicial Article as follows: 'Section 14. Campaign expenses. The Legislative Assembly shall appropriate funds for the contested general election campaign expenses of candidates for the offices of justices of the Supreme Court and shall enact laws regulating the amount, expenditure and disposition thereof. No candidate for justice of the Supreme Court nor any person or persons on his own or her behalf shall expend money in a campaign for the office in excess of the amount appropriated and authorized by the Legislative Assembly.' Signed: Champoux." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: May I speak very briefly to it, sir?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes. The motion-Mr. Champoux's motion is to suspend the rules so that we can consider whether or not to adopt a Section 14. We did consider that, and it was rejected. He wants to suspend the rules and consider it again.

Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: This is—throughout the course of this Convention, I have in my own mind deliberated on every vote, tried to do the best I could, but there's one vote that really bothers me. There is only one vote that I'm not sure of, and it's this vote; and a last statement of Jack Schiltz's is what keyed this bother in my mind, when he said that "Just remember that if we don't provide the expenses for these judges, somebody else will, and that other group will be, in the main, large companies that come before this court, whether they do it directly or indirectly." Now, I realize that this is a new concept, this idea of providing campaign expenses. It's been approached at the national level, as you well know. And if we're writing a Constitution for the future, maybe this idea is not going to be that unusual in the very near future; so I would like to suspend the rules for reconsideration of something that's bothering me ever since I voted against it; and that's all I have to say. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there other discussion?

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee. I'll speak at this moment very briefly, and I'll speak very briefly if its reconsidered. There have been a couple of new developments in this field since we discussed it the last time, and if we reconsider, I would like to bring those to the attention of the committee.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman, a point of information. What-is this the same as the article that was included in the majority report before, or where do we find this?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'm not sure that it's identically the same. I'll read it to you carefully if we reconsider it. The point is, it's the "campaign expenses for Supreme Court justices only" clause.

Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. President, to be consistent, I resist the motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil. No?

DELEGATE McNEIL: Mr. Chairman, I was just going to clarify that this proposed reconsideration is for Supreme Court justices only, and I believe our original consideration also included district judges.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think that's right.

Mr. Melvin.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Mr. Chairman, I feel that this is an area that is-very, very important that we do reconsider our previous action. This is a life-and-death proposition in the court of justice.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, the issue is on the motion to suspend the rules-Mr. Champoux's motion to suspend therules. You don't need to close, do you?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: No, I just wanted to mention that. If I remember right, we had eliminated the District Court judges through an amendment-

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think your—

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: -before we took the final vote.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -1 think the original language was both, and then we eliminated the District Courts and we defeated that, too. All right, now, the—

Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. President, to me this is strictly legislative, and if you want to start, we should go back and amend the Legislative Article, the Judicial Article, and the Executive Article and all. This is straight legislative proposition. The Legislature can do it if it wants to, and suppose the Legislature only appropriates a thousand dollars to this. Where are they going to be? Now, I think you'd better stop to thinking here a little. They ain't going to have too much money.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the motion is on Mr. Champoux's request to suspend the rules for the purpose of considering a Section 14 on campaign expenses for Supreme Court judges.

Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to ask Delegate Champoux a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAY&ILL: Well, now, I don't want to discuss the merits. Is this on why he should suspend the rules?

DELEGATE BATES: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, ask your question.

DELEGATE BATES: What I'd like to know, didn't-I can't see anything here that we've referred to on the partisan or nonpartisanship of judges; and if this is true, then why should we reconsider, because if they would be on the same as any other partisan candidate.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Her question isn't clear to me. What is your question specifically?

DELEGATE BATES: Well, is it-why should it be necessary to suspend the rules and vote on this proposal when we have given the judges permission to file as a partisan ticket now?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It would seem to me that that's-that might be discussion. I don't think it's pertinent to the issue of discussing-of suspending the rules. I'd like—

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I think it is, because I think there was some confusion the other day about that. Mrs. Babcock raised the question, and I never got a chance to answer it, but in the course of the Judicial Article, we struck out the word "partisan" for the same reason we took out "primary election", that it's a statutory matter-we might be partisan one year and not partisan another is the fact of the matter, We are not running judges either nonpartisan or partisan so far as the Constitution is concerned.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. In other words, it isn't a constitutional matter, it's a statutory matter, Mrs. Bates. Very well, the issue is on Mr. Champoux's motion to reconsider—suspend the rules. This is not a roll call vote, but we have to know whether 51 or two-thirds vote, so please vote Aye if you—

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I want a roll call vote.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You want a roll call vote? Very well, we'll make it a roll call vote. All in favor of suspending the rules, vote Aye; all opposed, vote No-on the voting machine. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Please take the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 58 delegates voting Aye, 27 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 58 delegates having voted Aye, 27 voting No, we'll suspend the rules to consider Section 14. There is no other section to reconsider, so I don't see any point in putting the reconsideration.

Mr. Champoux, are you or Mr. Schiltz going to put the motion? Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section-I guess it's 14, which appears on page 39 of the Judiciary report, that it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, I would like to make clear that this applies only to Supreme Court justices, as I contemplate the motion, and whether we did or did not, I want for the-"and District Court judges" struck.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Schiltz has made a motion for Section 14. It's on page--roughly, the text is on page 39 of the Judicial-the initial-the original Judicial proposal, but I'll read it for you: "Section 14. Campaign expenses. The Legislative Assembly shall appropriate funds for the contested general election campaign expenses of candidates for the offices of justice of the Supreme Court and shall enact laws regulating the amount, expenditure and disposition thereof. No candidate for justice of the Supreme Court nor any person or persons on his or her behalf shall expend money in a campaign for the office in excess of the amount appropriated and authorized by the Legislative Assembly." If the language in the book has "district judges" in it, that's stricken here. It's for the office of justices of the Supreme Court.

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee. I'm not going to burden you at this late hour very long with this matter, but as I said, two or three things have come up that we didn't have under our consideration or in our realm of knowledge at the time. First of all, I call your attention to the International Telephone and Telegraph outfit putting forth $400,000 in the Republican campaign. This is exactly the sort of thing that this particular provision is aimed at. You don't find little people contributing money of this nature and getting favors or alleged favors in return. Now, whether that was dishonest in some way or not remains to be seen, but the fact is that the entire country thinks there was something wrong with it. Now, the second thing that came up, so far as I'm concerned, was Section 16 of the Bill of Rights Committee-or committee report. You'll recall that that was for the express purpose of turning around a decision of the Supreme Court in which the Montana Power Company was involved. Now, I want to emphasize that I do not say that the Supreme Court justices were in any way dishonest in making that Ashcraft decision. What I do say is that because they're people and their adherents and various associated people do contribute to the campaigns of the Supreme Court justices, it looks bad to the people of the State of Montana when such a thing happens. Under this amendment, there would be no possibility of that. The Legislature would appropriate the money. Now, the third thing that cams up was that John Gardiner came here and talked the other night, and I took down one aspect of his speech. He was saying it was time to give government back to the people, and he said, "The most serious obstacle a citizen faces when he sets out to participate is that someone with a lot of money got there first and bought up the public address system. If we wish to diminish the power of money to corrupt the public process, we must pass laws to control campaign financing." Now, I see this as a wave of the future. Now, Charley Mahoney said he watched "60 Minutes" yesterday and one of those commentators commented on the-in the same connection, Charley-that we've got to change this elective process somehow. They're spending hundreds of millions of dollars to elect a President, and the wrong people are spending it. It isn't coming from anybody in this place except in 3- or 4- or 5-dollar dribbles, and you're not going to have any influence with it. This I see as a wave of the future and I see that-if we can enact this for five judges of the Supreme Court, that if it works-and I'm sure it will—that it will be adopted for other offices in the State of Montana. Now, so far as the cost is concerned, Mr. Garlington managed to amend the terms of the Supreme Court justices to 8 years from 6. If we had five judges who all were contested every 8 years, and we appropriated $10,000 for their campaigns-and believe me, that's enough if nobody's spending any more and nobody has to match anybody with more money-it would cost $12,500 a year, and that would cost something like 1.7 cents for every citizen of the State of Montana, and I submit to you, that's cheap. Thank you. That's all I'm going to say on the subject.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a minute, Mr. Habedank. The Chair wishes to make it clear that-1 have discussed this with Mr. Murray, and we think that since there is no Section 14 in here, it's unnecessary to reconsider a defeated motion. A motion was made to suspend the rules for the purpose of offering a 14 and therefore we haven't put the motion on reconsideration. Now, if anybody objects to that, why, we'll put it, but the vote was 58 to 27, and I suppose that if they want to suspend it, they at least want to hear it, so unless I hear from anybody objecting, we're going to assume that they may put the Section 14 as it has been done.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: If we don't reconsider it then-if we don't consider this a reconsideration and this should fail, I don't think we should have to reconsider it again, so I think maybe we should reconsider our action.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. All in favor of reconsidering the defeat of Section 14, which I believe it was styled before-all those in favor of reconsidering that decision, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, now it won't have to be reconsidered if this reconsideration fails.

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Will Mr. Schiltz yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes, I yield.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Schiltz, in connection with this, there was a discussion last time it was up as to whether or not the Legislature would furnish campaign expenses for as many people as-who-as might file for the office of justice in the primary or in the general election, and I don't see anything in here.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Habedank, the language clearly says "for general election campaign expenses".

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Very well, thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee, I'm about to send your motion back to you. I don't understand it. Do you want to make it?

DELEGATE BUGBEE: (No audible response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster. I'll come back to you, Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman, would Delegate Schiltz yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I yield.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Is this made clear-that this money would be made available only in the case of a contested election?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Right-general election campaign contests or whatever.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It says—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: It says "contested general election campaign expenses".

DELEGATE FOSTER: So, in the event it was not contested, this money would not be available then—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right.

DELEGATE FOSTER: He'd just be running against his record without any—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. This is going to sound exceedingly strange, but I would request that every lawyer in this Convention stand and, in as short amount of time as he'd like to spend, state his position on this. I feel the same as my fellow delegate, Mr. Champoux, but I'd really like to have some direction on this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, any lawyers that want to can stand and speak.

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman, I'm not a lawyer, but could I ask Mr. Schiltz a couple questions, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Surely.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Would this preclude private citizens from contributing to a judge's campaign?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes, it would.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: And do you anticipate that in 20 to 50 years the campaign expense will be the same as it is now?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I don't know. It's up to the Legislature, and they can make that adjustment.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Well, I think some TV stations might have something to do with it.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: They very well might.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman, I'm an attorney, and I'm going to arise and give you my thoughts on this. This is the worst kind of legislation in the Constitution, as far as I'm concerned. This is for the Legislature; and if they see fit to pass something like this, let them do it; but if it was wrong, they can change it the next year-and here we got it locked in if it doesn't work. How much they going to give them? Say they only give them $500. You can bet there's a lot of money going to be spent in that primary to get whoever you want-whoever the people want in the primary, so your primary is going to be your big election. And let me give you some examples how this might work. I was county attorney, and the first time I ran, I didn't expect to win. I was new in the community, and I ran-it's the only way you can advertise, I guess-but I happened to win, and if I wanted to go for a state political office, what better way would there be to try to get in the Supreme Court justice and get some free campaign money; and you get your name splashed all over the state; and you run long enough, you might get it-and you might not even be capable or competent to have the job-or you get your name out in the public, you've got a good name, you're going to get elected to some other job. So I think this is the worst kind of thing we could do, and if you want to do it, let's do it for all officers. Look at the money they're spending on the President, how much they spend on the Governor here. If we're going to go to pay campaign expenses, let's do it legislatively and let's go right down the line-Governor, Lieutenant Governor, whatever other office that you have running--and let's get some real control. I agree with you, thereshouldn't be so much money spent on campaigns by individuals, corporations, et cetera, but let's get the whole ball of wax. Let's do it by legislative-by statute, so you have some control over it and if it's wrong, you can correct it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman, it's exactly to what Mr. Ask said that I wanted to add a final sentence saying, "No candidate, upon winning election, may run for any other office for 10 years".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, are you talking about-he can't run for the same office again, Mr. Bugbee?

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Any other office.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I see.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Yes, any other office.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, Mrs. Bugbee, if you want to make that amendment-I don't mean to stop you. I just didn't understand what you wanted to make it to. And it really wasn't in the written form that we require, because it didn't say what it amended. Now, if you want to send it up, I'll put it.

Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I'd like to ask Mr. Schiltz if he'd yield to a question, or maybe two questions.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I yield.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Now, the way this has been written, this section, this would apply only to contested elections. Is it your understanding that this would mean, then, only two candidates, a maximum of two candidates?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right. That's the statute--well, of course, it leaves it to the Legislature, but as the statutes now are, after the primary you're boiled down to two elections—two candidates.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: May I ask another question? In the event, that, say, someone wanted-more than two people ran in the general election on a nonpartisan basis-and I think it wouldn't be necessary to go through a primary, would it, to run for the general election?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, I suppose if-1 think they do have to go through the primary, but I suppose there may be something in the election laws now or there could be something in the future that would allow somebody to get X-thousand number of signatures and be able to appear on the ballot. It happens very seldom.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: This would be my concern-that-I don't see anything in here that limits it just to two persons opposing one another. It seems to me that it would be very possible for three, four, maybe five candidates to get involved in this election race.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, if you're asking me a question, we're talking about the general election, where you're down to two candidates.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Schiltz, I would just point this out-that the statutes may change from time to time and from year to year and maybe Independents will be able to run. Maybe we'll have Republicans and Democrats running for the judge-justice of the Supreme Court--and we might end up with, also, Independent candidates, and we can't say what the statutes are going to be 20 years from now. If we put it in the Constitution, there'll only be two candidates, whatever they are-they might be men and women, we don't know-whatever way you want to class them-but I can see that very possibly we could have a half a dozen candidates all drawing the same amount of money. And I can also see that the underdog in this race doesn't have a chance in the world of winning if they happen to set the amount of money too low. Ifthey offer $500, why-or a thousand dollars, he wouldn't have a chance in the world, especially if the judge has been elected one time for 8 years and he's been in that long. He wouldn't even have to spend his. Suppose they give $10,000. He wouldn't even have to spend his. He could just pocket that and buy a new boat. But the candidate running against him would have to spend it all to try to get elected. Now, another thing that might happen is maybe you must run for the fun of it, just to get the $10,000 and don't even do any campaigning-run around the state a little bit and let it go at that. I don't think this has any place in the Constitution at all-maybe the Legislature, but not the Constitution. If you want to elect-if you want to do it for the judges, they get paid more than any other officer in the state-elected officer--other than the Governor, maybe-but if you're going to do it for them, I think you should do it for the lonely little old legislator that runs, too. I think any person that's running for office-you're not going to get a chance to answer till I'm through, Jack-sorry (Laughter) I'm making a statement, not a question-but if we're going to do it for one, we should do it for all in the Constitution or not do it at all-just forget about it. It should belegislative.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee, do you care to-do you want to amend Section 14?

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Yes, I'd like to ask-add the last sentence: "No candidate, upon winning election, may run for any other office for IO years." Now, my intent here is that they shall not use public money in order to run for Congress or Governor or US. Senate or anything like that. Mr. Drum brought his up the other day, and I thought it was the one legitimate argument against this. If we are going to vote on it, I'd like to have this in.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mrs. Bugbee has proposed an amendment: "No candidate, upon winning election, may run for any other office for 10 years." She wants to add that at the end of Section 14. Is there discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the question arises on Mrs. Bugbee's proposed amendment.

Do you want to speak on it, Mr. Gysler?

DELEGATE GYSLER: Yes, I'd like to ask Mrs. Bugbee a question. Mrs. Bugbee, it kind of appears to me that you aren't getting at what you're trying to get at, because it seems to me as though the person who would probably stand to gain the most from this money spent would be the person who lost and used it-used this means to promote himself. Now, did you intend to leave that one open?

DELEGATE BUGBEE: You're right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President, for Mrs. Bugbee's information, couldn't she just put that in-to limit the amount of money to be given to a person only once?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's not a question, Mrs. Bugbee, that's just a statement, I think, unless you're asking her to yield. Very well, the issue apparently is on Mrs. Bugbee's proposed amendment to add a final sentence to Section 14 to say: "No candidate, upon winning election, may run for any other office for 10 years". All in favor of Mrs. Bugbee's amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, it's defeated. Is there other discussion?

Mr. Melvin.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. If there was anything that came through loud and clear during the Judiciary Committee hearings, it was the fact that a judicial candidate in campaigning for an office-what could he say-"I'11 give you better justice than the other fellow"? Let's stop and think about this now. The further we can remove the "for sale" sign from the courts of justice, the better off we're going to be. Now, we're not comparing courts of justice with the other departments of government. We are talking about that last appeal, that final appeal. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Garlington.

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: Mr. Chairman. I certainly share Mr. Melvin's desire that we get the courts as far removed from politics as we can, because nobody knows whose case is going to come up next or whose politics will be involved, but I have to take issue with the idea that this is the means of removing the courts from politics. On the contrary, no matter how good a record a judge has, he is assured of a free political campaign as soon as his term expires and he comes up again for election; and it seems to me that this is a perfect way tomakecertain thatallofthejudges, allofthe time, will have politics firmly in the front of their conscience and their minds as they go about their work; and I think this would be an unmitigated disaster in the business of attaining a decent administration of justice in Montana. The gentlemen are entirely right. If the time comes that this becomes an abuse, the Legislature is in a complete position to take care of it, and it is the one that has the purse strings, and should it feel that in a certain campaign there is a judge that they don't particularly like, it would be very easy to rig the amount provided for the campaign on that election to effect the purposes of the Legislature and make sure that it would be a kind of a political result that the legislative people in command would like to achieve. Since this is utterly unprecedented in constitutions and we have had many lessons in not putting something in and making it a burden forever, it seems to methat the proper judgment here is to leave this to such time as it may genuinely prove in our own state to be an evil that needs correction, and then our people's representatives, the Legislature, can do so.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, regarding the primary, the Legislaturecould limit the number--amount of funds that could be spent in the primary, so assuming you had 10 lawyers filing for associate justice, which is unlikely but a possibility-it's never happened in the past, to my knowledge-so that takes care of the primary. And, unfortunately, I wasn't here for the debate-1 was ill-it occurred, apparently, right after I strongly urged that we take care of this problem; and we wouldn't really have the problem if we had used the method of-that I proposed, the federal method of appointing the judges. That is the only fair way-the only way that you're going to get a truly independent Judiciary, but we have already decided against that. My proposal, as I recall, had 13 votes. It was the original-part of the original Montana plan. Now that we have opted for elections, which I detest, in the Judiciary-and I think it's ridiculous and absurd to elect judges and have popularity contests for judges. Judges are not supposed to be popular; they're supposed to be just. But now that we have made up our mind to have these elections every so often--every 8 years-for the Supreme Court, then I do not feel that the judge should be tempted. One justice told me that the first time he ran, it took him-for the 6-year term-it was a full 6-year term, as I recall-it took him 3 years to pay off his campaign debts. Then what's he supposed to do? Spend the last 3 years to pay for his-to get ready for the next campaign? How in Heaven's name can you expect to have an independent Judiciary under these circumstances? It's just lucky, as I said before, that we have never had a terrible scandal, as they had in the State of Oklahoma, where two associate justices and a Supreme Court justice, as I recall, were involved in bribetaking from an oil company. Therefore, although I do not like this method of electing judges, I feel the only safe way of putting them beyond reproach and doubt--and our people must never, never have any doubt in their mind that they are going to get justice on the other side of this Capitol building. Therefore, I support Mr. Schiltz's amendment and I urge you most strongly to vote for it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. President, fellow delegates. I heard many years ago that, in England, when a person is running for most any office, that there isn't campaigns like we have here; that they are provided with the same publicity-it's possibly a legal-sized paper, qualifying that person with his qualifications and the reasons why people should vote for that particular person. Now, if the Legislature saw fit, why couldn't the state printing presses put out the qualifications on these men running for the judicial-put out the same amount for each man running, whether it be in the primary and then in the general election-and let the Legislature decide just how much of this material would go out in a very fair and favorable manner. This way they would have complete control of it, and the costs shouldn't have to be prohibitive, and, of course, the judge himself would really not be out on the campaign trail.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman, what I'm wondering here-say there were several young, upcoming lawyers decided they were going to run for judge, and if they made it through the primary, they would receive perhaps $10,000 for the general election. If they were defeated in the primary, they went out and got sufficient number of signatures to run as an Independent-we could be paying several young attorneys to run in the general election and all they were really wanting was to get their name out before the public for some future advances in their own business. And I certainly object to this proposal.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: I can see-sense some problems with this proposal that we cannot yet foresee. But on the other hand, I already know of a lot of problems that we have right now and I can't even guess that problems that will be any bigger than the ones we have now with the present situation, so I think I'll vote for this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President, I sure hesitate to see this Convention write into the Montana Constitution something that the national justices-Supreme Court justices and Congress of the United States are wrestling with at this time, trying to determine what procedure to follow along these lines; and if we should lock this into our Constitution, however noble we think it is, and it doesn't work, then what do we do? I think this is purely a legislative matter and that at such a time that the Supreme Court of the United States decides that this is an issue that should be inaugurated throughout the country, then perhaps Montana should go ahead and adopt it; but at this time, I think we would surely be premature. We don't know the mathematics of how it would work, and we don't know what the Legislature would determine. They could be influenced politically one way or the other, depending on the politics of that body, and it certainly would be an experiment at this time. And I'm firmly against this proposal.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Mr. President, I favor Mr. Schiltz's proposal because it might make our judges like Caesar's wife-above suspicion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim, will you take the Chair?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: May I say a few words first?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Sure.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Members of the assembly, I think Mr. Schiltz has a very worthwhile idea here, but I feel that it doesn't belong in the Constitution, and I wonder, Mr. Chairman, if we could not direct a resolution or direct this to the Legislature--a resolution that the Convention recommend that they give serious consideration to this proposition, rather than making it into the Constitution.

(Delegate Aasheim assumed Chairmanship of Committee of the Whole)

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Graybill.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Furlong asked a moment ago for lawyers to stand and discuss this, and since I discussed it the other day and since I feel strongly on it, I will do what he asks. I'd like to-first of all, I would like to tell you that I'm in favor of it and will vote for it, and now I'd like to discuss some of the points that have been raised. Concerning the number of candidates, the number of candidates almost always has to be only two. It's the general election and the election laws provide that everyone else is eliminated in the primary; and I think it may be possible, through a great effort, to get your name on the ballot through a great--as an Independent. This has never been a very successful method, but conceivably if the money were there and were very much, it might be used more, but it still would be a difficult thing to do and wouldn't raise materially the cost, in my view. One of the-one of you mentioned that if it's such a good-1 think Mr. Ask said-if it's such a good idea, why don't we do it for other offices. The truth of the matter is, we should do it for other offices. The truth of the matter is, probably within the lifetimes of most of us in this room, we will do it for other offices. The question is whether this Convention is going to take the lead in breaking the ice and starting with the Judicial Supreme Court offices in this state. This Convention invited John Gardiner to speak. I didn't know what Mr. Gardiner was going to speak on, except his general reputation for being a person who speaks about better government throughout the country. Only about half of you came. I know why; you were all tired. I don't blame you. I wish you would have all come. You would have felt a little differently about this article at the moment. This man didn't know anything about Montana, but he talked about the national situation, and he pointed out how absolutely impossible it is getting to run campaigns decently and honestly and honorably on the kind of money that must be spent for media and for coverage and for moving about. Now, this is true in the State of Montana and it's true for the office of Supreme Court. This is a big state. The judges for the Supreme Court, under the present circumstances, are forced to compete with several other officers. They have to buy television time, and generally a lot of it-at least they do buy a lot of it. It's a very expensive proposition. All of the arguments that he made for any office being supported financially by the public apply to the Supreme Court justice, and as Mr. Melvin has twice told you this afternoon, there are several additional reasons why it applies especially to the judicial offices-these people who are supposed to decide fairly and evenly between all of us after they get elected. It's one thing to support a senator or a congressman and have him help you out with a bureaucracy; it's another thing to support a judge and have him help you out with a decision. The next thing that was mentioned was maybe these fellows would pocket the money if they were a sure bet. Well, you know, the section provides that this shall all be done by Legislative Assembly appropriation and obviously under the Legislature's eye, and the Legislature is not going to be foolish enough to hand these men the money on June 7th and let them have it. The Legislature is going to pay their bills, and their bills are going to have to be audited, and it's not going to pay anybody any money unless they've spent it on campaign expenditures. Now, I must, at this time, rise in opposition-for one of the rare times in this Convention-with my good brother off the bench, Mr. Garlington. Mr. Garlington stood and said, "Whose case comes up next?" If we knew whose case comes up next-well, I can tell you whose case is coming up next. It isn't the dollar giver; it's the thousand dollar giver whose case is coming up next. And I can tell you quite honestly and straightforwardly that there are law firms in this state who give a thousand dollars to the campaign expenses of one judge for the Supreme Court, and you only have to walk a half a block and check it up yourself if you don't believe me. Now, I don't know if there's any campaign expenditures down there now, because they destroy them after 6 months, but there will be the next time the Supreme Court is up, and there are those who photostated them before and could show them to you. There are law firms that give that much. There are others who give great sums of money, sometimes split among numerous relatives, to Supreme Court judges when they run for office. That's what has to happen now for a Supreme Court judge to get together the kind of money that it takes to put on the kind of campaign that it takes to get reelected--or even to get defeated-and if you want to continue that, as I said a week and a half ago, today's your chance to continue that by voting against this. But if you want to change it, today's your chance to help Montana take a really important new step in how to run campaigns. Then, Mr. Garlington said, "If the time is here that it's an abuse, the Legislature can do something about it." My friends, the time is here when it's in abuse. It's in abuse today. It was in abuse in the last election, and it was in abuse in the election before the last election. And asking the Legislature to do something about it, if it's such a good idea, is only putting off the dirty work of taking the step to somebody else. We're a Constitutional Convention. We only meet once. We can do that job if we have to. It would be very difficult for the Legislature to do it. Mr. Garlington also discussed the subject--well, I don't remember that point. The point-the last point I want to make is that someone said that we might lock it in-1 think Mr. Wilson said we might lock it in and it might not work. First of all, if we lock it in, it will limit the expenditures for Supreme Court judges except as set by the Legislature. If, in fact, some other supraagency comes in that will pay all of these bills, we've caused no problem, because the Legislature can then reduce the amount to zero that would be paid for the campaigns of these judges, but if no one else takes over that burden of supplying campaign money on a national or state basis-statewide basis-then we will have at least cured the problem for the Supreme Court. Of course it's not perfect, and of course it's only a start. We have a chance to start this afternoon.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman, would you read that new section again? I know we had it when the Judiciary was under consideration, but I don't think any of us have it on our desk now.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 14. Campaign expenses. The Legislative Assembly shall appropriate funds for the contested general election campaign expenses of candidates for the office of justices of the Supreme Court and shall enact laws regulating the amount, expenditure and disposition thereof. No candidate for justice of the Supreme Court nor any person or persons on his or her behalf shall expend money in a campaign for the office in excess of the amount appropriated and authorized by the Legislative Assembly."

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Johnson,

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Ladies and gentlemen, I'm in favor of the Legislature setting the amount that is necessary for a campaign. I don't know just what it would be-say, for instance, a thousand dollars-I'd like to take that amount. Could you get your name in the paper, a writeup about you so that you would be-so people could get acquainted with you and what your qualifications are and so on, all over the State of Montana? Then, if each justice would spend a thousand dollars-be allowed by legislative law to spend $1,000 on his campaign, that wouldn't hurt him very much. He wouldn't have to go into this terribly expensive TV programs and travel all around the place, and I think that would equalize it. Then the Legislature itself would not have to raise this money. I really do not believe in the Legislature raising money-taxpayers' money—to pay for campaigns of political officials. Certainly this, in my opinion, is going to set a dangerous precedent if we do it in this manner; but I am in favor of that part where the Legislature regulates the amount that might be spent. I think that's a real good idea and that should extend to all political offices seeking-or candidates seeking office. I think in the future we spend too much money and too much time chasing around. Look at the months and the money and the clubs you have to raise. Only people who benefit from this are advertising agencies and radio and et cetera, et cetera. I think it's ridiculous to spend, oh, great many more times the amount of money than you make as a legislator or a public-officeholder. Your salary wouldn't pay for one week's expenditure for a campaign. I'm against it as it is, but I would be in favor of the Legislature controlling-or setting the amount that's allowable to be spent. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Mr. Chairman, I just wanted to ask a question of the assembly. Is this why this body, when we were discussing the Revenue and Finance Article-is this why we removed the Z-mill property limit, in order to finance all the political aspirations of our lawyers wanting to run for Supreme Court justice or other higher offices?

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: You know, you heard a lot from me in the last few days and I hate to-you know, you keep hearing my voice, but-and I was against this, and I thought it was a lawyer-relief bill. Very frankly, you lawyers, I figured, well, here we go again-we're going to really-you know, all those big salaries, and we're really going to take care of them with this thing, But, you know, I've been impressed. I think there's greatness in this combined body; I really do. Look at the way you worked us over in that Education—and we had a perfect Education bill. (Laughter) But everything we've done here has been better. I am very much impressed with all of you. We have contributed something already. We are the first Constitution in any state in the Union that has ever put in a special clause for the American Indian. First one. Papers haven't caught that one yet. Here's a chance for another great move if we look ahead and think ahead, and I'm going to support this proposal. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Oscar Anderson.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: Just for a point of clarification, I'll ask this from some. one of the experts on legislation. Would the Legislature be forced to appropriate this money? I think I can direct this at Mr. Mahoney-he seems to be the legislative expert. Would you yield, Mr. Mahoney?

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Mahoney, will you yield?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: What is the question, Mr. President?

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: Would the Legislature be forced to-by this constitutional mandate-be forced to appropriate the money?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Yes, $1.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: A further question--would you yield for another question, Mr. Mahoney?

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Will you yield for a question?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I'll try.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: If they didn't appropriate, say, for instance, a dollar, then no one could spend any money at all for these judges? Would that be right? I want some clarification of this point.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I'd agree with that. That's the way-my interpretation of it.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Mr. President, I've listened here with some interest for some time on this, and I certainly agree with Mr. Schiltz that the spirit of this is very commendable. Certainly, in all of our campaigns, if-insofar as we could, it would be very desirable to take all the popularity contest aspect out of them, but I submit for your consideration that the proposal as submitted would not accomplish what it's intended to accomplish. Theincumbent always has the edge—just the fact that he can put out an ad saying "reelect John Jones". And the Supreme Court offices being what they are, they don't get much publicity, so nobody has heard anything bad about the man; they'll tend to reelect him. This means that the person running against him has got to come up with a better campaign. That's the first point you want to keep in mind. Secondly, all the incumbent has to do is to start campaigning ahead of time. He's in office, we must remember. He has all kinds of opportunities to go around and make public speeches. These would not be a part of campaign expenditures, would not be regarded as even a campaign. I would foresee a situation where the other justices on the bench, having been invited to go to Missoula or Great Falls or Havre, Billings, to give a talk, would turn to the incumbent-to-be or the candidate-to-be and say, "Here, Joe, you go down and take this. You're going to be running for office pretty quick, and you could use a little publicity." The net result would be that our incumbent, by this system, would be given a tremendous edge. I would predict that, if it went into effect, the incumbent would win every time, because his opponent would only have the same amount of money that he had. Now, let's consider something else. We're going to have a hard-pressed Legislature on a budget matter every time; they're always hard-pressed. We have a law on the books now that says a candidate for public office is expended-is limited in his expenditures to 5 percent of his income-5 percent. This was passed some time ago-and as was pointed out a little while ago, it was got around by the club concept—but nevertheless it's on the books, and so the Legislative Budget Committee is going to look at that and say, "Well, we have a law on the books that says 5 percent is thelimit, so that's whatwe'll give these judge candidates. His pay is $20,000 a year, so we'll give each of these men $1,000." I don't think a thousand dollars is hardly even enough to cover the state letting the public know who's running. I don't think you could run ads in all the newspapers in the state just by way of announcement-so that the candidate trying to oust the incumbent would be a-have a terrific disadvantage. And I think that, for thesereasons, we should leave it up to the Legislature; and as I say, the aim is very desirable, but I think it's got to be given more thought.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: I've been listening here to all of these talks. I can certainly see a lot of desirable things, but I would like to speak as a member of the minority group. Now, I don't mean politically, I mean the taxpayer. Now, I say minority-we're in the minority today-on June 6th, the taxpayer of this state is not going to be in the minority. Now we've heard time and time and again here the remark, "the old Constitution". I think Delegate Champoux used that a hundred times, probably. I would like to submit to you that this is the old Constitution; it's the present Constitution, and it very well could be the Constitution of the future. I think it's time that we startrealizing a little bit what we put onto the Legislature. Everything that we do directs the Legislature to spend some more money. Now, just where in the world are we going to get it? We haven't been able to fund our institutions properly for many years. We haven't been able to fund our school system. Now, is there some great new tax base that's been discovered that I don't know about? I sure hope it isn't removing that 2-mill levy off my property. I hope that isn't the tax base that's been discovered, but I'm afraid it may be. Now, this thing kind of builds up on you day after day. A little dose at a time doesn't seem to mean much as it comes, but I think it's just like DDT. I think maybe you get enough DDT in the ecology and probably you're going to wreck the whole thing, and I'm wondering if this isn't just about what we're doing here with these little doses, one at a time, and I'm certainly going to have to give this whole document a real good looking over when we get through, because I do think that the taxpayer is going to be in the majority when it comes June 6th. And that's about all I have to say on this subject and I thank you, Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Drum.

DELEGATE DRUM: Thank you, Mr. Chairman, I'd rather be in front of Mr. Dahood than behind him. (Laughter) The-no offense meant. The thought crosses my mind that if each of us here, by statute, were allowed to spend a hundred and twenty dollars in the general and a hundred and eighty dollars in the primary-and I wonder how many stayed within that limit. If you did happen to exceed that limit-I, for one-if you did happen to exceed that limit, the chances were you set up a club mechanism, so the comments I make I would like to address to Mr. Graybill's and Mr. Schiltz's intent, which is a better, more just, more representative Supreme Court. However, unless more restrictions are put on the spending of club money, it would seem to me that, really, we aren't going to accomplish anything by funding the candidates' expenditures, because certainly the club expenditures will continue unless it's prohibited by statute. Excuse me, Mr. Schiltz, would you like to yield to a question--or-The legal profession seems-the times that I have taken an interest in any of these-and I've been a contributor to two of the candidates that ran in the last Supreme Court race; one of them was picked up in a airplane for supposedly carrying a bomb or something and the other's been mad at me ever since we've been here because I didn't support this thing the first go-around (Laughter) but the exposure I've had to the legal fraternity is that they sort of pick, generally--without making a big issue out of it-the fellow that they think is going to make the best judge; and if their law firms support that person financially, it may be a good thing, because you may wind up with the gentleman as a Supreme Court justice who the legal fraternity generally thinks will be the best judge; and we may be excluding quality if we put them both on the same basis. If one fellow has the quality to attract more support, why not allow him to get the support, rather than to-and I'm assuming that most of this-most of the contributions will come from the legal profession, or a good part of them will come from there. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I'm sure that I'm not going to sway any minds. To me the reasons that are opposed to the proposition now before this delegation reveal the same type of frustration that our Bill of Rights Committee has been having with the Montana Press Association with respect to the right to know. No matter how much reason, how much logic we give to the issue, I'm reminded of the placard that was in vogue in offices throughout the country several years back-"My opinion is made up, don't confuse me with the facts". The taxpayer, above all, should have paramount interest in this proposal. He is the one that is affected by the quality of justice, more than anyone else. What cases are presented to the highest tribunal of this state? Cases that involve every facet of Montana society-complicated tax cases, complicated assessment cases, zoning cases-every type of case that involves the tax structure of the State of Montana-and I wonder how many times in the last decade those cases have been decided adverse to the ordinary taxpayer in the State of Montana, in favor of the vested interest, and thus have taken away from the ordinary taxpayer a measure of revenue that is required that taxes be raised with respect to the ordinary taxpayer to make up for that particular deficit. How much is too high a price to pay for real justice? If more than two, by some type of political circumstance, should be in the general election, does that really make that much difference? If the Legislature has to make another appropriation to cover that situation, are we going to measure the quality of justice by how much we have to pay to secure it? What separates civilization from the jungle but law and order? And the quality of law and order has to be tested at the top, and the Judiciary is different than the Executive and is different than the Legislative, because it's the final word; it's the court of last resort. It's the last place to which the citizen can carry his complaint, and there the result had better be correct and it had better be right. Some reasons have been given that are plausible. One, theincumbent would have an advantage; two, we might not appropriate enough to help the challenger; three, the minute you put in an advertisement or on TV "reelect", that is going to give that particular individual an advantage. And all those things may well be true, but in final analysis and logically, when that individual is placed back in his position-reelected, if you will-at least then he owes his office to the people of this state and not to some vested interest. There are problems, I should think, in making this particular proposition work in practical effect, but it's a start in the right direction because it's a start towards the type of justice that the people of this state want, and I'm for it.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. President, I just listened to Mr. Dahood, and I'm sure that he didn't mean that the way I am taking it. I trust the courts of the State of Montana. I think they've been honest. I think they've been fair. I don't think that they're to be challenged here on this floor as acting that they're dishonest. Now, I might be altogether wrong on this, but I feel that here we've got a branch of government, and it would seem to me that they have just been indicted. I just wonder, Mr. Dahood, on this point, that those men-now, I have criticized their opinions, and when I went down, I have decided that they were finally decided on a straight, legal law issue in this state, and I think that the Supreme Court here has done that job as according to law. Now, this is my opinion.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Does anyone else wish to speak on the proposition?
Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I will be very brief. (Laughter) The gentleman from Anaconda spoke about--and I believe someone else before him-spoke about the ability of getting the ad in the paper, "reelect". I know something about political campaigns. I've been in them up to my neck all my life, and I know it costs money; but there is one thing that the challenger could do, and particularly Delegate Mahoney in the judicial arena, and that would be to put a little l-inch reverse ad in, "why reelect?"

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman, I would like to have Delegate Graybill yield to a question.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Will you yield, Mr. Graybill?

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: I will yield.

DELEGATE BATES: If the Legislature in times past-when they set a limit and this hasn't worked, then can you see how they can control clubs and individuals holding to a limit now?

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Well, in the past and under the present circumstances, the clubs have a perfectly legal right to support the candidate with any amount of money they want to and any number of individuals can support them with any amount of money they want to. The sense of this proposal here is that they cannot spend any money, that the money must be appropriated by the Legislature. It would simply be a clear-cut violation of the law, so I think that we ought to at least try making the law tight. Right now there's absolutely no reason why somebody can't spend $50,000 on a judge if they want to.

DELEGATE BATES: Would Mr. Graybill yield to another question?

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Will you yield to another question, Mr. Graybill.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE BATES: You say they-now they can, but can the Legislature control individual and club spending if they wanted to do this, even though there were limits, even though we did enact this appropriation?

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: The Legislature could pass a law that clubs can't spend money, but they never have. The Legislature lets clubs and individuals spend any amount. It limits the amount we spend individually as candidates. Now, about five hands went up here, and the rest of us know we spent more than that on our campaigns, and we got it from our friends. Now, that's exactly what the judges do. The point is the judges are then deciding the cases involving many of the friends as their lawyers or their clients-or the clients.

DELEGATE BATES: Well, I can't see how this would control it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Graybill yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Will you yield, Mr. Graybill?

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: I'll try.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Graybill, I'm very much in favor of some way to elect judges without contributions. Let's assume that you were the candidate and some person or persons--am I on?

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Yes.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: --some per-son or persons on your behalf did spend money. Now, they have violated the law. Are you to-as you look at this proposal, would you be forfeiting the position if this happened?

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: I don't believe you would be, but I believe that the people that violated the law would be subject to going to the— would be subject to criminal prosecution, and I think after the first or second criminal prosecution, you'd have quite a lot less of it.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: But I think we should make this appear very clearly in the record-that the proponents of this and the people who are in favor of this feel that if any person or persons in the State of Montana do spend money on behalf of a candidate, the candidate elected shall not forfeit his office. The prosecution shall be against the person; that would be the intent of this—

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Certainly, I think that's right, Mr. Habedank. Now, if it were proved in a court of law that the candidate himself induced the spending of the money, he, of course, would be a party to the criminal act; and1 suppose then he might lose his office; but if he didn't intend it, I'm sure he wouldn't.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: For what purpose do you arise, Mr. Habedank?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I wish to point out that Mr. Graybill said—

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Are you on-do you want to discuss the proposition?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Yes. Yes.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Oh, all right.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Graybill pointed out that under the law, if the person running for office could be proved to have-should it prove there was collusion between the person running for office and the person spending the money, that then he could lose his office, and I agree with this. But this, to me, is the crux of the matter, and with that in the record, as much as I feel this is legislation, I am going to support the proposal.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. Delegate Mahoney made a point that I think is a fair point, and I think it deserves response. I don't think anyone who speaks in favor of this particular new section indicts the Supreme Court justices. I think they're all gentlemen of integrity. However, I think in a close situation, subconsciously perhaps, as a matter of elementary psychology, you're going to pay greater heed to the arguments and to the presentations and the authority submitted by those who have been responsible for the position that you occupy at that particular point; and I think what we are saying is that we would like to do away with that particular situation and circumstance that does exist; and I venture to say that the Supreme Court justices themselves would like to do away with the present system. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Anyone else want to speak?

Are you going to close, Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes, if I may.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Burkhardt first.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Could I ask a question of Mr. Schiltz, as long as he's on his feet?

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Schiltz, will you yield to a question?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes, indeed.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Jack, do you know what was spent in your campaign, as far as your opponent and yourself-not in dollars, but comparatively? Do you know whether you spent similar amounts? Is that public information, or what?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I can only tell you right now what I spent, and it was in the neighborhood of $11,000, and I declared every dime I got. I'm not sure I added up what my opponent spent. I guess I did, but I don't recall. I know where his money came from, which is very significant, I think.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Another thought that runs through my mind is—does—

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Are you asking another question?

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Well, let me ask it just-let me just raise my own questions as I go, and maybe someone will speak to them-but is the system only corruptible in terms of those who give to campaigns, or don't you get paid off along the way? It seems to me that there are lots of opportunities as time goes on, not simply in terms of your campaign expenses, when friends help each other, and so you've got that to think about. Buying justice is something that you wonder whether the people-we the people have any better chance of buying justice than friends of friends, and these are questions I think we have to sort out and struggle with. Maybe somebody will try to speak to it.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: All right, Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: May I close?

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: You may close.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I want to say that, along with Mr. Dahood, that-and I said it earlier-that nobody is indicting the Supreme Court. We're concerned about how it looks to have the Supreme Court get the money from where it gets it. As Mr. Dahood said, certainly the Supreme Court would probably be the first people who would endorse this sort of an idea. It would save them, as incumbents, from this taint that inevitably falls on them, and I want to say that and make it perfectly clear, as Mr. Nixon says. Secondly, I want to say that this has nothing to do with lawyers. We're talking about our clients, and we're talking about the ordinary person who goes into the court of justice, and he's entitled to think that there's no possible way that that thing is anything but a proper court of justice, and with that, I close.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Roll call, please.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: A roll call vote has been asked for. Do you understand the Section 15 now, as it is proposed'! Any request to have it read?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: If not, a roll call vote has been requested. As many as are in favor of the-of Section 15 as amended, vote Aye; those who are opposed, vote-will vote No. Has everyone voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Does anyone want to change his vote?

Mr. Martin, for what purpose do you arise?

DELEGATE MARTIN: I want to explain my vote. It's because I opposereconsideration during style and drafting.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: The clerk will tally the vote.

Mr. Aasheim, Chairman Nay

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 55 delegates voting Aye, 32 voting No.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: 55 having voted Aye, 32 voting No, the section is adopted.

(Mr. Graybill assumes Chairmanship of Committee of the Whole)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: May the Chair be indulged the privilege of pointing out that I voted from my seat and not as Mr. President. I got in trouble last time when I asked somebody that had a different opinion than me to do that. Very well, Mr. Murray, do you think we've moved that for final consideration? I guess we-is thatright? I guess we have.

Did you make a—I think you made the motion that, when we rise and report, didn't you, Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, yes, I did, and I would ask that it be referred to Style and Drafting for incorporation into the article and report back as we did before.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, then, Section 14 is adopted. Is there other-are there other matters to come before us on the Judicial Style and Drafting Article?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: If not, Mr. Murray, do you want to make a motion?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I move that we pass-by way of rearranging the calendar, I move that we pass consideration of all other matters of business on General Orders until the next sitting of the committee.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is to pass all other matters on General Orders until the next sitting of the committee. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

Mr. Murray, do you want to move that this committee rise and report finally on the Judiciary Article?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Yeah, Mr. Chairman, I move the Committee of the Whole rise and report finally on the Judiciary Article.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the motion is to rise and report finally on Style and Drafting's Judicial Number 5. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Proceedings moved from Committee of the Whole to Convention, President Graybill presiding)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk, will you read the title and signature of the motion.

CLERK HANSON: "March 13th, 1972. Mr. President. We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration report Number 5 of the Committee on Style and Drafting and Transition on Judiciary, recommend as follows: that the committee rise and report finally on Style and Drafting Report Number-on Judiciary, Number 5. Signed: Graybill, Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does anyone want the report read in full?

DELEGATES: No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All in favor of the motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray, we did put the motion, didn't we?

DELEGATE MURRAY: I retroactively move it.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Well, it's written into the committee report, Mr. Murray, so it's there. Very well, we have now adopted Style and Drafting's report on Judiciary, Number 5, and I will move it-1 will assign it to Order of Business Number 5.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Are we on Order of Business Number 11?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: We are on Order of Business Number 10, and now we can go on to Order of Business Number 11.

DELEGATE MURRAY: The Bill of Rights hearing, in the morning, 8 o'clock, in the Governor's reception room, and Rules, at noon recess tomorrow.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I thought we moved this article to Style and Drafting so they could incorporate it.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: I think that's right. I think we-1 probably did the wrong thing.
Mr. Schiltz, do you want this whole thing back to Style and Drafting?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I think it should go back to Style and Drafting. I notice the language is "Legislative Assembly", and we'll want to change that to "Legislature", and that sort of thing.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right, do you need the whole article? I guess you do.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I think we do, yes.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right, we passed-1 think what we did was we passed the Committee of the Whole report, having passed it in the Convention, the President assigned it to Style-to Order of Business Number 5, and without objection, I'll withdraw it from Order of Business Number 5 and assign it to Style and Drafting. Now, I think we've got it straightened out. Anyone object to that?
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, it's assigned to Style and Drafting. One other announcement on Order of Business Number 11, tomorrow night at 8:00 p.m., Miss Jeannette Rankin will be here and address the delegates at a little Distinguished Speakers meeting. That means we will not meet tomorrow night. It's our present intention to start with Natural Resources and Revenue Style and Drafting in the morning and take up Public Health as soon as we get to it tomorrow. Are there other announcements?
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President. I move the Convention adjourn until the hour of 9:00 a.m., March 14, 1972.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to adjourn until 9:00 a.m. tomorrow morning. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Convention adjourned at 7:00 p.m.)

March 14, 1972 Forty-Fifth Day Convention Hall
9:oo a.m. Helena, Montana

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Convention will come to order. If you'll all stand, Delegate Carman Skari will lead us in an invocation this morning.

DELEGATE SKARI: As we begin a new day, may we continue to feel the sense of the importance of what we do. May we be aware of the limitations of our knowledge and the existence of our prejudices. May we be tempered by this self-knowledge, but not intimidated from making the decisions that we-must. May we have confidence in our ability and a proper respect for the opinions of our fellow delegates. And may we not forget that we represent not only those who have sent us, but those who are not yet born. For this purpose, we ask for guidance, for knowledge, for wisdom, but most of all for tolerance and understanding. Amen.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: We'll take the attendance by voting Aye on thevotingmachines.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, may Delegates Davis and Kamhoot beexcused, please?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well.

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Blend, Delegate Brown, Delegate Kelleher, Delegate Reichert.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Who's absent? Call the absentees again. Very well. Take the roll.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. President, fellow delegates. It is my pleasure this morning to introduce the pages for the week. Will all pages come forward please. As I call your name, please stand and remain standing. The first one is Andy Shipp from Saco, Montana; Jim McLean from Brady, Montana; Brian Furlong from Kalispell, Montana-Brian is the son of our fellow delegate, Noel Furlong; Denise Johnson from Anaconda-and Denise is the daughter of our fellow delegate, Peter Lore110 from Anaconda; Roberta Korsmoe from Great Falls; Susan Leaphart from Helena; Debbie Beartusk from Lame Deer; Alberta Harris from Lame Deer; Pattie Robinson, Lame Deer; Chris Fisher, Ashland; and Nancy Klingman, Billings. And one of the pages will step forward and greet the Convention.

PAGE JIM McLEAN: Good morning. As you know, there are 12 pages serving you this week, and each of us are very happy to be here and are anxious to serve you to the best of our ability. I would like to encourage you to use the pages as much as possible, because with 12 pages serving you this week, we have an abundance of help available. Thank you.

(Applause)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: We're very happy to have you pages with us, and your names will appear in today's proceedings, and you'll get a copy to take home. We are certainly looking forward to working with you this week. Thank you. Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I inadvertently forgot oneofthe pages, Chris Tiel, attheend, from Billings. Thank you.

(Applause)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 9, Special Orders.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 10, General Orders.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President. I move the Convention resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for the purpose of handling business under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to move the committee into Committee-move the Convention into Committee of the Whole. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Committee of the Whole)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "March 14th, 1972. The following committee proposals are now on General Orders: Public Health; Local Government; General Government; Style and Drafting Report Number 6, Natural Resources; Style and Drafting Report Number 7, Revenue and Finance." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Ladies and gentlemen, this morning we'll take up Natural Resources and Agriculture Style and Drafting first. And unless we hit trouble, we'll take up Revenue and Finance Style and Drafting second. If you'll all find your Natural Resources books, then we'll get ready here. You should begin on page 3 if you want to follow more easily. Very well. In accordance with our practice, we'll read the section head, and Mr. Schiltz will then describe the Style and Drafting changes. Oh, Mr. Burkhardt's going to do it today. Very well. Mr. Clerk, we'll start with Environment and Natural Resources Article. Will you read Section 1.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 1. Protection and improvement"; containing three subsections. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: When-I move that when this committee shall rise and report, after having had on consideration this Report Number 6, Style and Drafting, and having considered Section 1, approve the same. Mr. Chairman, you'll note that in this section we have changed an "a" before "clean and healthful", deleted the words "the Montana" before "environment" and then added "in Montana" thereafter, in order to preserve the sense of amendments adopted in Committee of the Whole. The other changes in the section do not change substance.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 1, sub. 1, Natural Resources -Environment and Natural Resources Article?

Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. This isn't my wording and I don't know that it makes much difference, but I think that-whether it was Mr. McNeil-or I don't remember who-but the idea of putting "the Montana environment" was meant to refer to the way it was now. And it might be that if you had "a clean and healthful environment of Montana"-1'11 refer to Mr. McNeil, but I'd like to hear his comments, because I think that this was his concern.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: In other words, the language was "a clean"--was "the Montana environment" and now it's "a clean and healthful environment".

DELEGATE ECK: Yes, and I admit that "a clean and healthful environment in Montana" isn't really what we want to say either.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman. Mrs. Eck is correct in that that was the position that was advocated by the committee-that is, the majority of the committee was advocating "maintain and improve the Montana environment". However, that was changed by this Committee of the Whole with the Campbell amendment to read "clean and healthful environment". And as a result of that amendment, I believe Style and Drafting is probably correct, but it does change the-it changes intent and meaning that the majority of our committee wanted. But that is not--Style and Drafting didn't make that change; that change was made by the majority of this body adopting the Campbell amendment to insert "clean and healthful".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is therefurther discussion of that issue, or are we going to let it go the way it is? Do you want to say "the clean"- "the clean and healthful Montana environment for present and future generations"?

Mrs. Cross.

DELEGATE CROSS: Mr. Chairman. A quorum of the committee met yesterday morning at 8 o'clock to go over this, and it was the consensus of that quorum that this is what the Committee of the Whole had agreed upon. SO I'm not sure now just what can be done other than to accept what the Committee of the Whole did.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I'm sure that Style and Drafting would not fight an amendment if someone wished to change words at this point, but we're about to approve it, I guess.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Apparently, nobody does. Dorothy, are you satisfied? Very well. Is there other discussion of Section 1, sub. 1? If not, all in favor of Section 1, sub. 1, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 2.

Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: We're going subsection by subsection. You'll note simply the change of "must" to "shall", which is a style consistency throughout the article. It does not weaken it; it's a mandate still. No substantive change. I move that, when we've had this under consideration, that we approve it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Members of the body, you have before you for your consideration subsection 2 of Section 1 on Mr. Burkhardt's motion that when this committee arises and report, that it recommend the same for adoption. All in favor of subsection 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Mr. Burkhardt, subsection 3.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: In subsection 3, I move that after having had it under consideration, we adopt the same. Again, no substantive change. There's merely some language changes in that one.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Members of the committee, you have before you on the recommendation of Mr. Burkhardt, when this committee does arise and report after having had under consideration subsection 3, that we recommend the same do pass. Is there discussion? Very well. All in favor of subsection 3, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Mr. Clerk, Section 2.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2. Reclamation." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman. I move that after consideration of this Section 2, Reclamation, of the report by Style and Drafting, that the committee approve the same. Mr. Chairman, the only changes in Section 2 are in line 20—simply the change of the word "must" to "shall", which is stylistic, and then the dropping of some repetitious language in the 22nd and 23rd lines.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 2?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I think that second sentence could be reworded and it will sound a little better. Couldn't they say "The Legislature shall provide effective requirements to meet those standards"?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: I think the sentence would be clearer if they said, at the end of it, "and standards for such reclamation", instead of "for the reclamation".

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: One of the facts about the Style Committee is that they don't like the word "such" in that kind of usage, and so it's not been done in that manner. However, if the body wishes to consider it, why, we'reopen to hear it. Someone suggests striking "the" before "reclamation". Would that alter the sense of it, Mr. Schiltz, or anybody, if we were to do that?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: No, I think we need the "the" to refer back to the reclamation we were talking about previously-"lands to be reclaimed". I would resist, as Mr. Burkhardt does, the inclusion of "such". It's bad drafting. I think the sentence is pefectly clean and perfectly clear if you read both sentences together. If you isolate the second sentence, then it may-causes some difficulty. But if you read the two together, it's very clear and very plain.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz. I think Mr. Aasheim's point is it's a little awkward ending with the word "reclamation". What if you said "reclamation of lands disturbed" so that we'd know you're referring to the sentence up above? You see, the word "reclamation" doesn't really appear. It's the word "reclaim" that appears.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I have no problem in doing that. I don't think it's necessary. We're always trying to eliminate words, but if it made it clearer, why, that's fine.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim, do you have any feeling on that matter?
Mrs. Cross.

DELEGATE CROSS: Mr. Chairman. Again, the quorum discussed this yesterday morning, and they felt that the language was all right. In reply to Mr. Aasheim, requirements and standards are not necessarily the same. So I would not be in favor of his suggestion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman. I think this is all right here, but perhaps adding, as Delegate Schiltz suggested, "for all lands disturbed" would certainly make it a little stronger. I wouldn't want to weaken that first section any—that first line that says: "All lands disturbed by the taking of natural resources shall be reclaimed"-and that is the intent of the committee. I wouldn't want to change that any. The second sentence would be all right. I have no objection to it. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that the words "of lands disturbed" be added on line 22.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion of Mr. Schiltz is that we add back in the words "of lands disturbed", so that the last sentence reads: "The Legislature shall provide effective requirements and standards for the reclamation of lands disturbed." Is there discussion of that?
Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Maybe I'm all off base on this, but-in terms of the substantive parts of it-but when we talk about reclamation-by whom?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, we've already-

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I'm afraid that's substantive.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That is substantive. We've passed that problem, and that question was raised, and we left it this way on purpose, I guess. Is there further discussion of Mr. Schiltz's amendment? If not, all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, the Ayes have it, and we'll add it-back in the words "of lands disturbed".

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman. I move, then, that when this committee does arise and report, they approve this Section Number 2, as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. You've heard the motion of Mr. Burkhardt. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 3.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 3. Water rights"; containing four subsections. Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman. I move that when the committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 3 of the report on Environment and Natural Resources from Style and Drafting, that the same be adopted. This—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Subsection 1.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: There has been a bit of reordering and deleting of language, but in-no change in substance in subsection 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of l-subsection 1? All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Subsection 1 is adopted. Subsection 2.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration subsection 2 of Section 3 of this report of Style and Drafting, that the same be adopted. In Section 2-or subsection 2 of this section, there was the attempt on the part of the-well, on page 5-I'm trying to read this language and understand it. Perhaps you're following it there. You'll note an explanation for what the changes are in that section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, Mr. Burkhardt, you either better tell us, or we'll have to stop and read it.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I'll read it. "It should be noted that the substantive committee comments appended to subsection 2 were that Section 15, Article III, of the present Constitution were duplicated verbatim to preserve the substantial number of court decisions interpreting and incorporating the language." But there's been a bit of style cleanup, and we just wanted to call your attention to it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 3, subsection 2?

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I think what the committee should know is that what we're really saying there in our comment on Section 3 is that we don't particularly like the drafting, but we did not disturb the drafting because there were a great many court decisions involving that verbiage, and so we kept it as it is. We're covering our own skirts a little bit.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there any discussion of subsection 2 of Section 3? If not, all in favor—

Mr. Simon.

DELEGATE SIMON: May I ask Mr. Schiltz a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes.

DELEGATE SIMON: Jack, in the storing of water-because there are some things going on in the Red Lodge area where people are building quite good-size ponds-what happens to a pond, as far as public use, if it would be an acre or two? I mean—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I have no idea, but I don't think it's affected in any way here. If it is affected in any way by this, it's substantive. And I haven't studied it substantively, I was just thinking—

DELEGATE SIMON: I just wondered—there's some private fishponds up there-a number of them-like-that have fishing now—that it's being planted in private ponds that-that are-it's becoming a business. And if everybody could go in and use the private ponds for their public fishing-"public use" it says-well, I want to know that private ponds-I'm sure not against anything else, but I'd sure want to know that private ponds would be protected-if a person wants to go in business, which some are doing, that they would not be for public use.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman. It seems to me we're getting into a substantive thing here that I'm not sure, at this moment, we're able to handle. But maybe you're going to rule otherwise.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, I'm not going to rule otherwise. I think it is substantive. I think the point is that any use of water is held to be a public use, Mr. Simon, and therefore you must handle the water in a manner consistent with the public. Now, whether or not that would mean that they'd have access to fish, I don't know; but you can't pollute the water, in other words, I think that is the point. Is there any further discussion of subsection 2?

Mr. Gysler.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Chairman. On this, there's absolutely no intent on the part of the committee to change anything in that respect. I think some people-1 saw a letter to the editor that Mrs. Mansfield gave me yesterday-some people are reading some things in which this really doesn't say. And-if you got a pond, it's the same thing as it always has been. You can—if you have a private fishpond and you start it now, the only thing that would ever change would be if you didn't have any water rights to put the water in the fishpond. This is-but other than that, things are the same as they've always been.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. All in favor of Section 3, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 3, sub. 3.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having considered subsection 3 of Section 3, that the same be adopted. You'll note that there are just style changes here and a verb added to make it clear.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of subsection 3, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Subsection 4.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: In subsection 4, there's very little change. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had it under consideration, that it move the same be adopted. It's pretty apparent. There is a comma that's been added and a word that's been scratched.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of subsection 4? If not, all in favor of subsection 4, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted—Oh, all opposed, say No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, it's adopted. All right, now, Section 4, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 4. Cultural resources." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman. I move that when the committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 4 of this report, that the same be adopted. This is a new one, and there are no changes of substance in it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of Section 4? All in favor of adopting Section 4, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Now, if you'll turn to page 7, the sections on agriculture appear. Mr. Clerk, will you read Section 1.

CLERK HANSON: "Agriculture-Section 1. Department of Agriculture." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, the wording of this Section 1 in the Department of Agriculture--well, let me make those little words first. Let's see-Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1 of this report, that the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, there is in this section a bit of rewording, and there was earlier some question on the part of some who had been present on that committee about the meaning of the changes, but there is no substantive change. In fact, it's a stronger statement legally, evidently, to say "There is a Department of Agriculture", rather than to put it in the future in a kind of false imperative. Therefore, we present this as style here.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Burkhardt, don't you think that "shall" would be a better word than "is"?

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Let me, Mr. Conover, share with you some real legal interpretation. It's a chance to impress the body with some of the adviser capacity that we received from Mr. Gardner Cromwell in our committee, and I think it's a very convincing case that he makes. A draftsman, in using language, frequently uses the word "is" rather than "shall" or "shall not". Evidently, the intent has to do with a legalresult, and you can announce the result simply by the word "is" rather than by using a kind of future tense. And in this case, there's no question but what the department exists and will exist. And there's also a provision for funding in the next section. I'm sure that some lawyer could speak to this in more depth than I, but if you have a question, I would be happy to share his report with you which-I think in other sections of the Constitution, we followed the same style and have used simply the declaratory rather than the imperative tone and said, "it is".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman, I'm not happy with this section. I feel that when you say "there is"-does that guarantee in the future that we'll have a Department of Agriculture? I think "There shall be a Department of Agriculture". Actually, under reorganization, the Department of Agriculture is almost a skeleton, as it exists now.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mrs. Bates, if I may answer—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a moment, Mr. Burkhardt. Are you asking a question?

DELEGATE BATES: No, but I'm-I would be happy to retain the original wording,

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee. This is a basic style thing. If you look at it this way, I think you'll see the wisdom of it, or the reason for it. If you say "there shall be", we're talking about sitting here and drafting a constitution. But, once this constitution is adopted, for the rest of our lives and while that constitution is alive, we're continuing to say "there shall be" when the fact of the matter is that, once the vote is taken and this is approved, then there is a Department of Agriculture and we're no longer saying there shall be one in the future. We're saying what the situation is now, and we've done that consistently throughout. In the Judicial Article, if you still have it around, we say "the Supreme Court of the"-well, let me see, "the judicial power of the State of Montana is vested in the Supreme Court". We don't say "shall be" because it will be a fait accompli at that time.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz and Mr. Burkhardt, the Chair does not wish to nitpick the section, but I see a substantive change. The old language said that the Legislative Assembly must provide for the Department of Agriculture. The new language you put in says "The Legislature shall provide appropriations for agriculture", but it doesn't say you have to provide for the State Department of Agriculture. Now, I wonder if you don't want to say, "The Legislature shall enact laws and provide appropriations for the said department and to protect and enhance", In other words, the body did pass language that said that the Legislature shall provide for-now, maybe "provide" means nothing but set up, but maybe it means more. I don't know, that's the question I raise. It looks to me like you've appropriated money for agriculture but you haven't forced the Legislature to appropriate money for the department, which, I think, was the point of the argument anyway.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: (Inaudible) Mr. Schiltz on that one, I'm sure.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz, you've been yielded to.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I'm working on it,

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Maybe I'm— maybe the words "provide for the Department of Agriculture" means nothing but set it up, but maybe it meant more than that. I don't know.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, I can see your point. I don't think we considered it quite that way. I'm not prepared this fast to make an amendment, but somebody else might be.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well if-was it the sense of the body when you debated agriculture that the-that you wanted a Department of Agriculture funded by the Legislature? If that's the point, then it's easy to say so by saying "and provide appropriations for the said department and to protect and enhance".

Mr. Delaney.

DELEGATE DELANEY: I would like to see the original language as passed by the body here returned, or pretty close to it-that "The Legislature must provide"--or "shall provide".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Mr. Chairman. The way it reads right now, Jack, is that the state could pay for our hail insurance, which would be fine, but I don't think we want it quite that way.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a minute. Mr. Burkhardt-wait a minute, now. Mr. Burkhardt, you have the floor.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Jack would say this better than I, but I don't think the committee wants to stand here and defend its language. I think we'd like to put the right thing in. And-Do you concur, Jack, on that?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz, do you want the floor?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes, I would like to get this done as rapidly as possible and still maintain what we want. But, if we read "the Legislative Assembly"—I guess we could go back to the original language without harming the style any.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Can you say "The Legislature must provide"? You like that word better than "Legislative Assembly".

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, that's uniform throughout, yes. "The Legislature must provide for a Department of Agriculture and enact laws"-we'll take "The Legislature shall" out—"and enact laws and provide appropriations to protect and enhance". We could still leave out "of the state". So I move, Mr. Chairman, that we amend Section 1 by making the necessary additions and deletions so that it will read as follows: "Section 1. Department of Agriculture. The Legislature shall provide"-instead of "must provide"-"shall provide for a Department of Agriculture and enact laws and provide appropriations to protect, enhance and develop all agriculture period". I move that amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. The first sentence would now read, then: "The Legislature shall provide for a Department of Agriculture and enact laws and provide appropriations to protect, enhance and develop all agriculture." Is there any discussion of that language? Very well, all in—

Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Mr. Chairman. As long as-at the beginning, we have now gone back and said that the Legislature should provide for the department. Could we now strike out the word "provide appropriations" and just say that they shall enact laws to protect, enhance and develop all agriculture? That would remove any fear people would have about passing appropriations for any particular phase of agriculture.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It looks to me that that might be substantive, Mrs. Erdmann. It seems to me, Mrs. Erdmann, that this body directed, when it passed this section initially, that appropriations could be made, if necessary, to protect, enhance and develop agriculture. And "providing for" may or may not mean appropriations, so if you take out "appropriations", I think you've substantively changed it now. If anyone has a different idea, I'd like them to speak to it, but— Very well. "The Legislature shall provide for a Department of Agriculture and enact laws and provide appropriations to protect, enhance and develop all agriculture." Further discussion? Mr. Burkhardt, I take it you don't want to discuss; you're just standing. Okay. So many as shall be in favor of the new language, as amended, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted as amended. Section 2, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2. Special levies." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Would you start over again?

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2 of this article, the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, in this section, the only real change was in making plural the word "levies", rather than "levy", because the series of things for which money could be raised indicated that this might be called for. Otherwise, no substantive change.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of Section 2? All in favor, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 2 is adopted. Very well. I think we've completed our adoption of Natural Resources and Agriculture, and rather than rise and report, let's lay it on the side and take up Revenue and Finance. And if you'll turn to page 4, you can follow most easily—page 4 of the Revenue and Finance Style and Drafting proposal.

Mr. Clerk, would you read the title and Section 1.

CLERK HANSON: "Revenue and Finance. Section 1. Tax purposes." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 7, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: We've changed the title only, in Section 1. It did read "Public purposes", and we didn't think that was descriptive. We changed it to "Tax purposes".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 1? All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 2.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2. Tax power inalienable." Mr. Chairman, Section 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2, title-Style and Drafting Report Number 7, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, again we changed the title as not being descriptive of thematerial. Insteadof "Surrender&use", we said "Tax power inalienable". Otherwise, a minor style change.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 2? Very well. Section 2—all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 2 is adopted. Section 3.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 3. Property tax administration." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 7, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: In this case, we had problem-we restyled the whole first sentence because, as it read before the restyling, property would be equalized, and that gave us a problem because we didn't know how you could equalize property. So we rewrote it to say: "The state shall appraise, assess and equalize the valuation of all property." Otherwise, only style.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion of Section 3?

Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: There's a clause in here where you cannot tax certain property. Would they be able to appraise, assess and determine the valuation on the property that was not subject to taxation according to law, like exempt property?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Is Mr. Anderson asking me a question?

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: Yes.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, if it is, it's substantive-we-it's somewhere else if it's there; and if it isn't there, it isn't there. We only took what we got from the floor.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Anderson, I don't quite understand you. It says here, "appraise, assess and equalize the valuation of all property which is to be taxed". So it wouldn't apply to exempt property. Maybe I don't understand you, but I don't think the clause applies to exempt property. Is there other discussion?

Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: My point was this. Is-if they should decide to say that all the people over 65 years of age should be subject to an exemption, would the state then have the right to come in and value that property and find out-or appraise it-or find out anything about it for tax purposes, to find out how much they were lacking or-in that manner?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I don't-I'm not too clear, but if Mr. Anderson would look at page 5, on line 4, where they have exemptions, you'll see that listed as "(c) or any other classes of property". I suppose that could be within that other class of property if the state ever decided to exempt it, or the Legislature could exempt it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Will Mr. Schiltz yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Schiltz, as this was devised by the Revenue and Finance Committee and passed by the Committee of the Whole, the words "to be taxed" were in the original measure as shown on line 17. Will you explain why you dropped the words "to be taxed"?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: We didn't drop them. We still have them. I'm looking at line 14, page 4. Well, we're not on that section yet, Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Okay, that answers the problem.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion of Section 3? All in favor of Section 3, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's adopted. Section 4.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 4. Equal valuation." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4, Style and Drafting Report Number 7, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, you'll note, on line 19, that we took out "county purposes". We did that. It would have read, "established by the-or for state and county purposes". We took "county purposes" out so the Section 4 would be consistent with Section 3, which provides that the state shall do all assessing and equalizing, et cetera. And "county purposes" would serve no purpose there except to confuse the problem. Now, as to the question Mr. Habedank asked me, why we dropped "to be taxed" on line 17, well, we dropped it because, if it isn't going to be taxed, why, it won't be subject to this section. But-all taxing jurisdictions shall use the assessed valuation of property. And when you say "taxing jurisdictions", you're saying the same thing as you are when you're talking about "to be taxed".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there any other discussion of Section 4?

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Why did we put in "county purposes", then, in the first place?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Eskildsen, I had a problem with you last night when I didn't know whether you were asking a question or not. Are you asking one now?

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Yes, I'm asking you why we put it in there.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I don't know. You'd have to ask the committee; but, Joe, if you'll look at Section 3, when you put "county purposes" in, you just weaken Section 3. And-because all— under Section 3, the state is doing all of this assessing and equalizing and evaluating and appraising. Then if you come down here and say, "for state and county purposes", it seemed to the committee, at least-and maybe they were wrong, and I point it out to you for that reason-that it destroyed the intent of Section 3.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Well, "state and county purposes" was used originally because that's the wording of the present section of our Constitution relative to this article. It requires all property to be assessed the same for all tax purposes. I don't think, actually, Style and Drafting has done any major changes or done any substantive changes to Section 4.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Section 4? Very well. So many as shall be in favor of Section 4, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 5.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 5. Property tax exemptions"; containing two subsections. Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 5, Style and Drafting Report Number 7, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, you will notice that all of this subsection has been extensively redone. It was done with the concurrence of the substantive committee in charge. There are no substantive changes, although it has been rather extensively changed. We call attention, in the comments, that though property of the United States is listed there, you can't-nobody should draw the inference that in any way the State of Montana can, in fact, tax property of the United States. We just noted that for the sake of noting it, however. That's all, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I take it that the "A" and the "B"-you've segregated it into classifications. Is that what you've done?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right. We listed--we said the Legislature may exempt from taxation, and then we said what-the A, B and C-what could be exempt, and we made a series of them. We think it's more intelligible that way, instead of running them all together, and the committee concurred with us.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion--any further discussion of subsection 1-A and -B of Section 5? If not, all in—
Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Does this include C?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -A, B and C.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Is C a complete sentence there, or what is it related to?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Harbaugh, none of them is a complete sentence. They're a complete sentence when taken together with "The Legislature may exempt from taxation colon".

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I see. Okay. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. All in favor of subsection l-A, -B, and -C of Section 5, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Subsection 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 5, subsection 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 7, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, we made only style changes there, nothing significant that needs to be noted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of section-subsection 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Now, Mr. Clerk, will you hand out the sheets of paper placed on our desks here about anti-diversion. The committee will be in order. Will the clerk read Section 6.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 6. Highway revenue diversion-Highway revenue nondiversion"; two subsections. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6, Style and Drafting Report Number 7, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I can see what's coming here, so I would like to make a comment or two. I think, in view of the debate that is coming, that if we can adopt the stylistic changes on Section 6 as it came from the floor, that then we could work on this proposal that will be coming up from the standpoint of the stylistic changes we made. Now, we went in-there are no substantive changes, but we went into this in considerable detail with the substantive committee that was in charge of Revenue and Finance, and they're agreed and we're agreed that this is a much more intelligible section than it was in the old statute. Everybody had difficulty reading that old-or the old Constitution; everybody had difficulty reading that, So you'll know, we thought "highway earmark" was kind of an inelegant term. We debated quite a while trying to find the right words that were descriptive for the section. We arrived at "highway revenue nondiversion". We're not too happy with that, but it's the best we could come up with, With that, Mr. Chairman--otherwise, everything was style. All the substance is there that was there before, and there's no change in substance.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair intends to consider the matter of the anti-diversion proposals at the time-at this present time while we're considering Section 6, but the Chair agrees with Mr. Schiltz that we should first direct our attention to the style changes that Style and Drafting has made. Is there any discussion of those?

Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: I'm just wondering, Mr. Chairman, if "highway revenue diversion" is not actually a better title for the entire section than "highway revenue nondiversion". I realize that it speaks to both subjects, but the details of it are about the diverted tax.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well-we took the position-we thought of that, Mr. Harper, and we took the position that the basic purpose of that constitutional amendment was that highway revenues should not be diverted. And we considered what this three-fifths of the Legislative Assembly would do to it, and we decided that that would be the only exception to their nondiversions. So that's-it's just a semantic thing.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of the language used by the committee in Style and Drafting?

Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman. I know probably this is different than Style and Drafting, but I'd like to ask a question of Mr. Schiltz, please.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I yield.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Now, would this stop the Governor from vetoing a diversion?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The question is out of order. Very well. Is there any other discussion of the language-of the Style and Drafting language here? If not, all in favor of Style and Drafting's language and sectioning here of Section 6, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, it's adopted. Now, who wants the floor?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, we have a subsection 2; do you want me to move that, too?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Oh, all right. Let's move subsection 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6, subsection 2, Style and Drafting Report

Number 7, it recommend the same be adopted. Only style changes, as I previously explained.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any questions? All in favor of subsection 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And it's adopted.

All right, now, Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman, I would like now to move to suspend the rules and be heard on the same.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Have you an amendment-have you a motion to send to the Chair? I have this sheet, but I haven't your motion. The-Rule Number 74 requires--and I'll wait while you prepare one-but it requires that the reason for suspending the rules be specifically stated. Mr. Brown makes a motion to suspend the rules to reconsider allowing reconsideration of antidiversion provision to be put on the ballot as an alternative. So the purpose is to allow the reconsideration of an antidiversion provision to be put on the ballot as an alternative.

Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman. At the time Section 6 was adopted, I was on the prevailing side and still believe that the present Section 6 from Style and Drafting should be part of the Constitution. However, we also had a motion, at that time, by Mrs. Babcock to place an alternate provision on the ballot. I won't go into the merits of it. It's similar to the old nondiversion. It prohibits the three-fifths diversion and puts language in allowing expenditures for pollution, drivers' education, highway patrol, et cetera. At that time, I voted against Mrs. Babcock's motion. It was my understanding that it was premature and that Style and Drafting would bring back a recommendation to the floor as to whatmatters would go on the ballot. For that reason, many of us voted against Mrs. Babcock's motion. Now, I feel that there's a large segment of our society and voters, various contractors, the Triple A, and various groups, who are vitally interested in this highway diversion. There's also a large group of labor and employees of these people who are vitally interested in the antidiversion measure. If they have an alternate, I believe they will take an interest in this Constitution and go out and work for it. They think it's vitally important to a large segment of the state, and I think it's vital that they have a chance to have their alternate placed on the ballot. We'll only have two alternates, as I understand it-death penalty and unicameral and possibly gambling, but I doubt that. So I think we have to look to these people and we have to look to the 1956 vote, which everyone says was a long time ago, but it was still a three-to-four-to-one majority. And as far as constitutions go, it isn't too long. So I think that we should be allowed to suspend the rules and place this alternate an the ballot. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. Last night I voted to suspend the rules, to reopen on the Judicial Article-I voted that way. I sat here for, I think, two and a half hours and listened to a long debate, and I made up my mind I was-1 voted for suspending the rules for something like that for the last time. This matter has been before the Convention once-or before the committee once. It's been decided. We're going to reopen this now, we're going to leave ourselves open for another 3 or 4 hours debate. We're going to throw ourselves all off of our time schedule, and sure as I-sure as we do, if we'll open on this one, we're going to open on another one tomorrow and another one the next day and another one the next day and we're not going to be out of here on the time schedule. This matter was fully debated at one time-taken-and if we vote on this reconsideration, we're just going to open it up to where we're never going to get out of here in time. And I sincerely ask this body to vote this reconsideration down, and let's get on with our next order of business on the report of the Public Health Committee, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right-let's stick on the issue of whether to suspend the rules.

Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman. I would like to support the suspension of the rules. Would Mr. Brown yield to a couple of questions'?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brown?

DELEGATE BROWN: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Brown, did you give consideration to simply putting the three-fifths majority of the Legislature as a side issue on the ballot?

DELEGATE BROWN: Either way the Convention would want to do it would be agreeable with me.

DELEGATE TOOLE: In what significant respect does your Section 6 on your sheet differ from the old Section I-B?

DELEGATE BROWN: This allows diversion or expenditures for abatement of pollution caused by auto-motor vehicles, drivers' education, enforcement of highway safety, tourist promotion, and also brings into it state fines and forfeitures for the reason that the patrol now uses that money for the retirement fund. Otherwise, it is similar.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Thank you, Mr. Brown. I support the motion to reconsider.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Mr. President. I also support the motion to suspend therules, and I would add to what Delegate Brown—Bruce—has just said. There is another very vital, important issue that you have added here along with fines and forfeitures. The action of the committee the other day deleted the registration fees from this amendment. And this is vitally important to local government, because we're just talking about fine-about license plates now. And their effort was to refer it all to the Legislature in order to equalize, I think, motor vehicle tax, which is worthy. But license plates have always been used for the county and city roads-the $10.50 item is what I'm talking about; it's an equal sum all over the state. And this, I think, would be jeopardizing our local and city financing to have this thrown. It's nothing at the expense of the Highway Department. By taking it out, you have just sort of endangered the safety of this item which-the counties and the cities split this license money on a mileage basis. Therefore, I do support this new proposed suspension of rules.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Erdmann. The Chair would point out to you that the purpose of the motion so far is to consider an alternative only. And if you expect to reach any of the language, substantively, of Section 6 in the majority report here, you have got to broaden. I understand it's in that, but if it goes on as an alternative, you'll have it in one and out of the other. Now, I'm merely pointing out to you that if you expect to reach the language substantively, you will have to broaden the motion to suspend the rules.

Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. I believe that this is the question I have, and I think I would ask the Chair just how narrow this is. Now, is it possible, under the motion we have, to consider Mr. Toole's suggestion, for instance? And is it possible at all to reconsider any of the language that is already in Section 6?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, it's the Chair's present understanding that it would allow reconsideration of antidiversion provision to be put on the ballot as an alternative. So I think that the one before you is only one possibility that could be put on the ballot. And I'm positive that if the thing prevails, there'll be others-other proposals. But I think it does not yet allow us to reach the language of Section 6 which we have just adopted in Style and Drafting, because it speaks only to an alternative on the ballot.

DELEGATE ECK: So that in this case if, in reconsidering, we decided to go with the—whether or not to keep the three-fifths provision, which to me would-seems a much more understandable issue to take to the voters than two issues which state, in very different terms, then, Mrs. Erdmann's concern for the license fees that go to the city-that we could not reconsider that at all. Is that right?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You could put it in the new one, but you-the one that was on the side-but you couldn't put it-you can't change it in the body unless you broaden the motion to suspend the rules.

DELEGATE ECK: I think you should add it. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman. I just want to say that the majority of the committee still feels that what we have is adequate. But, of course, if the body thinks it should be on the ballot, that's another question. But the committee does feel that what we have is adequate and it's all right the way it is. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Choate.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Chairman. I realize it's important for us to maintain a schedule and finish our work on time, but I think it's more important that we make wise decisions. And sometimes it is necessary to reconsider our actions, and I surely support the motion to suspend the rules to reconsider.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman. Normally, I'm not in favor of suspending the rules nor I-am I in this instance, because I do not consider this a suspension of the rules for the same subject. When we discussed this matter the other day, we were discussing the antidiversion amendment which is in our present Constitution and the substitution which has been made. In this instance, we are asking the suspension of the rules so that the matter may be discussed with the idea in mind of placing the two proposals as alternates on the ballot, which is quite a different matter. Now, I remember, the other day, that there was a lot of talk concerning the way the bureaucracy over across the street operates, and many people have been offended by it, and I have felt that way myself. However, we've got to look at this in a long-range view. In the present Constitution of the State of Montana, Section 1—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney, I want to know how this affects the motion to suspend the rules.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I think if the Chair permits me to continue—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, I-just explain to me how it applies. What's your point? What are you driving at?

DELEGATE ROMNEY: The argument has been that the people, when they voted on this matter in 1956—that it has been a long time. I wish to, by analogy, demolish that argument in order to provide reason for a suspension of the rules.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It seems to me that you are arguing the issue of whether or not an alternative should be put on there. We're arguing the issue of whether or not the rules should be suspended. Once the rule-once they are suspended, then we have the-still have the choice of whether or not to put something on the ballot. And I don't want substantive argument on the issue of what to put on or why we should put it on; I only want to hear what you have to say about suspending the rules.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Very well. I feel that we've got to-we have a right and it's for the best interests of the State of Montana to have this matter placed upon the ballot so that the people can make a decision.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President, I just rise in support of Delegate Brown's motion to suspend the rules.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Felt.

DELEGATE FELT: I, too, rise in support of the motion to suspend the rules. I have had the experience, as have many others, of finding that the Highway Department is not very responsive to the Legislature, but I nevertheless feel this is of such importance, and I want to hear all that Delegate Romney and others have to say when we get the opportunity to debate the merits of the question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. President. I oppose the suggestion to suspend the rules. I was real proud of the committee when we followed the recommendation of the Revenue and Finance Committee in this antidiversion section. And I would hope that the body remains on that decision and votes down the reconsideration.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the suspension of rules on the basis that what's sauce for the Judiciary ought to be sauce for the Revenue and Finance.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on whether or not to suspend the rules. Do you want a roll call vote? All right, you want a roll call vote. So many as shall be in favor of suspending the rules, vote Aye; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Take the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 54 delegates voting Aye, 37 voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 54 delegates having voted Aye and 37 having voted NO, we'll suspend the rules. Is Mr. Etchart in the room? Would a page go and check the lobby for Mr. Etchart. He was here a minute ago.

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President. I rise for a point of order.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: As I read Rule 74--and I'm in favor of reconsideration of this-but it says, "The rules may be suspended for a specified purpose by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the delegates present or a majority of all of the delegates of the Convention, whichever constitutes the lesser number." Does that mean-shouldn't that mean that it takes two-thirds?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, whichever constitutes the lesser number. The lesser number would be 51, so it passed. Mr. Nutting, would you like to take the Chair?

(Committee of the Whole chairmanship assumed by Mr. Nutting)

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: The delegate, Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman. Having voted on the prevailing side, I now move that there be placed on the ballot an alternate, in the form to be provided for by Style and Drafting, in the words of Section 6, alternate, which you now have on your desks.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: This alternate-in speaking for it, I do not want to speak against the present Section 6. I believe they should both be given to the voters to decide which provision they would like. The present Section 6 allows a diversion by acts of the Legislature. The alternate would not allow any diversion by the Legislature. The other differences-and I'll be brief because I've gone over them briefly--would include the fines and forfeitures by the state. This would not include county or city fines and forfeitures, of course. It would include them, because they are now included for Highway retirement funds, and we now pay the Highway Patrol out of these funds. This would also allow diversion from the present section where pollution abatement caused by motor vehicles, your driver education, et cetera. Mr. Romney is going to speak on the fact that this was put in by the people in recent years, so I won't go into that. But there is a tremendous segment of our society that is concerned about this, and I'm just positive that if this is on the ballot, it'll create interest, bring out the voters, and it will take a large segment that will support this Constitution. So I can't see where it will do any harm. We only have two matters on the ballot now. This would probably be the third and final matter, and those people who are for diversion by the Highway Department--or by the Legislature-it will still give the people a choice. And we don't want this Constitution to go down by any segment of society. So, I say, "Let's give everybody a chance and put this on as an alternate." Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: The delegate, Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. I would like to make a substitute amendment. I haven't written it out, but I think that it's so simple—

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mrs. Eck, the motion is a motion to reconsider at the present time.

DELEGATE ECK: Oh, excuse me. 1'11 wait.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Is there any further discussion?

The delegate, Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: It's already passed to reconsider by 54 to 39.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: That was the motion to suspend the rules, Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: I beg your pardon.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Is there any further discussion?

Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Mr. President, what are we reconsidering, then? I thought this was a new article to go on. I didn't realize we were reconsidering anything. It was opening it to consider a new article to go in the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: The motion is now to reconsider Section 6 with the purpose, as Mr. Brown stated, to put an alternate on the ballot, Is there any further discussion? No further discussion?

The delegate, Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mrs. Eck, do you have a motion before the-are you going to submit an amendment to this proposal?

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Toole, yes, I am. The amendment I wish to-or the substitute motion I wish to put in when we get to that point is that, in one form on the ballot, the last sentence, with the three-fifths, is included and in another form, it is not included. My thinking on this is that in looking through these two alternates, I think that it took me-and I think it'll take any voter—too long a time to determine what the difference is between one and the other. And, you know, they'll probably end up not voting or maybe voting not the way they really intended to vote, because in the voting booth, it's too difficult to tell the difference. But I think that the main point ofcontention here is whether the Legislature shall be able, by a three-fifths vote, to use this money for other purposes. Therefore, if we had an alternate in the ballot-one form which was to leave the three-fifths provision in, one to take it out-1 believe that this would simplify the issue and make it much more understandable. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: The delegate, Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman. I take it that, at this time, while we're working on reconsideration, there's no opportunity to speak on the merits.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: If you-if the presentation is the motion to reconsider, there should be at least some discussion as to why you wanted to reconsider. As I understand it, Mr. Brown's decision is to-the reason he wants to reconsider is that it would be a substitution to place Section 6—or the substitute Section 6. Mrs. Eck states that if it is reconsidered, she would want to amend it in a different way. But they both have reasons for wanting to reconsider it. But if the only decision is that-to put an alternative, I would say the discussion at this time should be on that particular point.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Very well.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: If there is no further discussion, the question now arises on the motion by Mr. Brown that we reconsider our action and-in passing Section Number 6. As many as are in favor, signify by saying Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Those opposed, NO.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: The Chair is not certain. We'll have a division. Has every delegate voted?

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Something happened to the machine and a bunch of lights went out. We'd better--everybody check his button.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: 48 havingvoted Aye, 34 voting No, the motion carries. We are now reconsidering Article Number 6.

The delegate, Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman. I now move that Section 6, as prepared by Style and Drafting, and the Section 6 now on your desks be placed on the ballot in such form as Style and Drafting may determine. And I think I've given you all my reasons for saying this should be on the ballot, so I will now close on that part. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Brown. Could I ask a question? What you're suggesting is, then, that Section Number 6 as in the Style and Drafting and your Section 6, which is the bottom of this sheet, would be placed as alternatives on the ballot? Is that correct?

DELEGATE BROWN: That is correct, Mr. Chairman. And I believe, as far as Mrs. Eck's motion is concerned, I'd have no objection to that, but I would like Mr. Schiltz to yield to a question.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Schiltz, will you yield?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I yield.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Schiltz, if my motion would prevail, then, would not Style and Drafting prepare the form of ballot? Would that take care of Mrs. Eck's motion to—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, we-yes, we will prepare the ballot, and it can either be accepted or rejected by the Committee of the Whole.

DELEGATE BROWN: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Graybill.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Will Mr. Brown yield to a question? Mr. Brown, will you yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Brown, will you yield to a question?

DELEGATE BROWN: I'll yield.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: I understand your motion to be to place these on the ballot in the alternative. Are you, by that motion, attempting to tell Style and Drafting the form of the ballot that they should use in placing these matters before the public on the ballot?

DELEGATE BROWN: No, Mr. Graybill, I think that would be a matter for the Convention to decide, or Style and Drafting would bring their recommendations to us and then we would vote at that time.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Mr. Chairman, may I ask another question?

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Brown, will you yield?

DELEGATE BROWN: I'll yield.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Under that, could Style and Drafting place the committee's proposal in the Constitution as a whole and place the language you're attempting to put in here as an alternative on the side?

DELEGATE BROWN: I think that will be up to the Convention itself, probably, to tell Style and Drafting how they want it.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Graybill.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: In otherwords, you're not trying to establish that pattern at this time?

DELEGATE BROWN: No, all I want to establish is that the people would have the chance to vote on one or the other.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Very well.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, is a substitute motion in order?

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Yes, we only have one motion.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: I move, Mr. Chairman, that-as a substitute motion for the alternative on the ballot, to delete Section 2—subsection Z-of Section 6.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Do you have that written out, Mr. Scanlin? I can't—

DELEGATE SCANLIN: It's just a matter of deletion, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Delete subsection 2?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Right-of the present Section 6.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Scanlin. I—am I right? You're amending-I'm afraid I don't quite understand what you're doing here. On the alternative, you're-you want the same, with the deletion of Section 2, is that correct?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: My substitute motion would eliminate it from the ballot. Mr. Chairman, is my intent clear on this?

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Yes, Mr. Scanlin. I think, at this time, you're out of order, because we're on-the reconsideration was for the suspension of the rules--rather, was for the purpose of establishing-of putting on the alternative. And if you are amending the original Section 2, then I would say you're out of order at this time.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. I thought Mr. Scanlin was making the samemotion I intended to make, but if not, and if you can understand my amendment, would you read it.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: It's "A substitute motion to put as an alternative on the ballot omitting Section 2 of Section 6, page 6, line 10. Signed: Eck."

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: My intention here is pretty much what I just explained. It's to have, as an alternative on the ballot, Section 6 as it now reads minus the subsection 2. Now, I think that probably the easiest way for Style and Drafting to do this is to put, as an alternative on the ballot, whether-you know, a Yes or a No--whether you're going to include subsection 2 or not. I think that we can leave this to them-you know, how they're going to frame it. My thinking behind this-and I'll repeat what I said before-is that I think that this is where the real issue is and that the voters can very simply decide whether they want to allow the Legislature to control these funds in this way or whether they don't want to allow them to. I think that if we have two entire sections, it will create a great deal of confusion. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman, I beg your pardon.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman, I rise to support Mrs. Eck's proposal. The three-fifths vote of the Legislature is the heart of this matter. It's a simple proposition and easy for the voter to understand, and I think it is the most feasible way to put it on the ballot. However, if hers does not prevail, I will still support the alternative proposal of Mr. Brown. But I do want to express my firm support of Mrs. Eck, which-as being the most feasible, the most simple, and the most understandable way to place this issue on the ballot.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I would like to say to Mr. Toole and Mrs. Eck that these two provisions aren't exactly parallel. There's one source of taxation that's in one and out of the other, and I don't know that you could do that unless you amend one or the other of them.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Chairman, I would assume that the-1 would take Mrs. Eck's motion to mean that she is taking Sections 1, 2, 3 and 4-Section 1 plus--without Section 2 as her alternative, which means that we have-she is using the original as it appears in the Revenue and Finance Article for one alternative, and the other alternative would be merely Section 1. That was the reason for my ruling.

Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Mr. Chairman. I think we're going at this a little backwards. I think what-we decided to suspend the rules to reconsider Section 6 for the purpose of an alternative, then we moved and passed the motion to reconsider for that purpose. I think what we should first vote on is to-whether or not we should have an alternative on the ballot. And then, when we get done with that vote, then we should decide as-the wording of that alternative on the ballot. Now, Mrs. Eck, by making this motion, makes it mandatory; you either have to pick one or the other-two of these wordings to put on the ballot. We really haven't made it as an independent issue yet, as to whether or not to put any alternative on the ballot, if I remember correctly. And I would appreciate it if you could restate Mr. Brown's motion so that exactly-we'd know exactly what it says.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: The question—the motion by Mr. Brown was to reconsider our action for the purpose of placing an alternative on the ballot.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: On behalf of the Revenue and Finance Committee, I'd like to ask Mrs. Eck to withdraw her motion so we can decide whether or not to put an alternative on the ballot.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: That motion was passed. Now we have a motion by Mr. Brown, so we have already passed that motion. That was Mr. Brown's first motion was to reconsider for that purpose, which was passed-1 can't remember; I don't have the exact figures now, but it was passed on a division. The next motion by Mr. Brown was to substitute Section 6, as it appears on your-m the sheet that was passed out to you, as an alternative-the lower one. Then Mrs. Eck amended that so that it would now be merely a change in Section 2. So that is Mrs. Eck's motion now, but both are alternatives to the original proposal.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. Maybe I'm just confused, but I think I'd have to challenge the ruling of the Chair on that. I don't think that, by the fact that we passed the motion to reconsider, means that we have adopted the idea that we are going to have an alternative.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Harbaugh, the Chair would welcome the challenge; however, that was the motion. Am I correct in that? The motion was to reconsider for the purpose of placing on the ballot an alternative on this issue; and that was on a division vote.

Mr. Felt.

DELEGATE FELT: I'm rising, first as a point of parliamentary inquiry, to further deal with this question and possibly will offer a substitute motion for all motions pending, to clarify. Because, I feel-1 believe that the Chair has ruled correctly but that there's a little question in the minds of many of us, including myself, as to just what the exact effect of the Chair's ruling may be. The last-the motion made by Mr. Brown, as I understood it, was a specific motion calling for the inclusion of all the material that was distributed to us-the first section being as it was originally adopted by us from the committee report and that has been revised in Style and Drafting so that we have slightly different phraseology and numbering on the sheet that was distributed to us compared with the Style and Drafting report, which, I think, has led to some confusion-but that he does specifically call for the language in the lower part of this sheet as the alternative to be placed on the ballot. While Mrs. Eck's motion, which I think was properly ruled to be in order, calls for different wording--some wording to be taken out of the previous adopted Section 6, being called subsection 2 in our Style and Drafting report, and to place that on the ballot as an alternative to what is referred to as "modified 1-B" here in the sheet distributed to us. And that some members now feel that they want, first of all, to clearly vote on simply the proposition of whether something should be placed on the ballot as an alternative, without necessarily preferring the wording proposed by Mrs. Eck or the wording proposed by Mr. Brown. And if the Chair's ruling is that the bare vote on the motion to reconsider does also constitute a motion to place something on the ballot, then perhaps my substitute motion would not be necessary; but if the motion to reconsider, which did pass, simply means that we're ready to receive a new motion but does not encompass a decision to place something on the ballot, then I would offer as a substitute motion, if it would be in order--as a substitute for all motions pending-the simple proposition that we do accept the proposition that some alternative-the wording to be later determined--will be placed on the ballot as an alternative and with the methods of placing it also to be determined later, perhaps after recommendations from the Committee on Style and Drafting, if the thing proceeds that far. So I'd appreciate it-if the Chair has anything further to say in clarification and if the Chair feels my motion is in order, I would present it as a substitute motion at this time.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: I would rule that Mrs. Eck's is an amendment and that Mr. Felt's motion is now in order, but we are now at the end of the line here on this as far as motions is concerned.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: What we voted on was a reconsideration by Mr. Brown, and even though he included in what his proposal was, he merely showed us-told us what we're-what he was going to present to us. Now, if he'd make another motion so that we could vote on whether we want to adopt his or not, then if somebody wants to get up and start amending it, we'll be in order, as far as I'm concerned. The way we are right now, we're just kind of in the air; we don't know whether we're really voting on just reconsideration or what. But I think if you would make that, Mr. Brown, so that we could have yours before us, then it would clear everything up. I think Mr. Felt's idea is kind of farfetched, because we're just kind of talking about something that we might be going to do-we might be going to put it on the ballot in some kind of form or other. We can't do it that way; we've got to have words down here. We can't vote on the idea that we think we're going to do something. Let's get it before us before we start doing that.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Eskildsen, we do have such a motion on the floor-made by Mr. Brown-to accept as the decision this-the sheet as it was passed out to us, which is an alternative. Then, we have an amendment by Mrs. Eck which places, as an alternative, the language of Section 2 plus-as an alternative, the language of Section 2 without Section l-Section 6 without Section 2 on it. So we now have those two alternatives before us.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman. The point I'm making is that we merely voted on the reconsideration because he added all the rest to it. That was to inform us what we were reconsidering, what we'd probably do after we reconsidered. Now, we reconsidered and we passed that vote. Now, it's time for Mr. Brown to make a motion that we adopt what he has here before us; and when he does that, then that will be the motion before us. Then, if Mrs. Eck wants to start amending it, we'll be in order.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: He has made that motion, Mr. Eskildsen. And Mrs. Brown has amended it as-or Mrs. Eck has amended it.

Mr. Driscoll.

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: Mr. Chairman, may I ask Mr. Felt a question, please?

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Felt, would you yield?

DELEGATE FELT: Yes, I yield.

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: Mr. Felt, is it the sense of your motion that a Nay vote would indicate that it would be accepted exactly as it is-that there'd be no alternative on the ballot?

DELEGATE FELT: A Nay vote?

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: A Nay vote to your motion.

DELEGATE FELT: Yes.

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: Then there would be no alternative on the ballot if the Nays prevail in your motion?

DELEGATE FELT: That is--would-Yes.

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: Thank you, Mr. Felt.

DELEGATE FELT: If the Nay votes prevailed, we would have determined that we intended to place something on the ballot if we can come to an agreement on some particular wording. And you'd have to still get an Aye vote in favor of some particular wording at a later time. But if there was a Nay majority, it would end the subject.

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of Mr. Felt's motion. It will expedite the work of this Convention. Thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Chairman -Mr. Felt, would you yield to a question from the Chair?

DELEGATE FELT: Yes.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Would you limit that motion to a motion that we could get down here with the secretary?

DELEGATE FELT: Yes. I'm in the process of writing it, and I must-1 might say that, in line with Delegate Driscoll, that this was intended to save time. And I personally do support placing some alternative on the ballot. That-yet, I can see Mr. Eskildsen's point that it's a little unusual, I think, to place before the house for its consideration, as a motion, a simple statement that we will do something. I do feel, under all the circumstances, that it is the proper procedure, myself, and I will present it in writing to the Chair. It should be there within 60 seconds if I don't have any more questions.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: I resist Mr. Felt's motion. I think that a great many of us don't want just any antidiversion alternate on the ballot. And I certainly would not be willing--and I don't think very many others would be willing-to commit myself ahead of time to having something on the ballot without knowing what it was going to be. I think that there are still opportunities for further consideration. I mean, you know, we can-1 think that there are still a couple of more coming up-1 understand that someone would like to put on the ballot leaving the provision that is now in the Constitution-but I think that the only just way to deal with these is one at a time as we go along.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: Mr. Chairman. Am I correct in assuming that this motion to-of Mr. Felt's, if you vote No, that ends the issue completely, so that if Mrs. Eck wants to resist Mr. Felt's motion, she's in effect denying herself an opportunity to present any further motions?

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: I just got the motion here, Mr. Berg, and I'll read it. "A substitute motion that the Convention will debate the question of placing on the ballot an alternative proposal on the matters embraced within Section 6, Revenue and Finance."

Mr. Felt.

DELEGATE FELT: In response to Mrs. Eck's comments, a favorable vote here would not be a commitment to any particular language. It leaves everybody free to endeavor to agree upon what would be the best course of action to follow in selecting the particular thing to be placed on the ballot as the alternative. And I would hope that if this was not the case, then I would oppose my own motion, because I wish to be free to support Mrs. Eck's proposal and I wish to be free to support Mr. Brown's proposal. And I might support some other proposal, because I feel very strongly that we should place this question on the ballot. And I'm extremely proud of the committee for having included in its report this matter of a three-fifths vote, the members of the Legislature being able to set aside the dedication of these funds. But I feel that it's a question that the people will be called upon to express themselves. This will be forced upon us at one time or another. In any event, I think this is the proper time to present it to the people and that we, by adopting this motion, are simply trying to move this along to get to an orderly debate on the exact question that needs to be determined by the assembly.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: The question now is on the motion by Mr. Felt that we debate the question of placing on the ballot an alternative proposal.

Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I would like to speak against Mr. Felt's motion in the sense that I'm contending that there should not be an alternate on the ballot, I would be the first to rise, I think, and say there should be an alternate if the matter could be decided fairly by the people. I sense that that is an impossible situation. We have to face the fact that through these many years with the nondiversion amendment, that the forces that we're talking about have become rather vested, have become financially powerful. Therefore, a campaign that was-went to the people for a decision, I would predict, would be highly funded in opposition—would protect, rather dramatically, those vested interests-and that we would not get a fair vote from the people. I really feel that this is about the only body in Montana that can open that up or not open it up and, if we don't do it, that it'll just be simply impossible for the people to do it even if they wanted to.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. Chairman. If I understand Mr. Felt's motion properly, if I vote Nay on his motion, that there, in fact, will not be an alternative on the ballot. Now, I could be wrong at that.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: That is correct.

DELEGATE MONROE: Okay. I would urge this body to vote Nay on his motion. I think that the other day, on March 3rd or 4th, when we discussed Revenue and Finance Article, that we voted rather significantly to take the antidiversion clause out and by a three-fifths vote, the Legislature could divert funds to other areas. And I think if we're toying with the idea of putting something on the ballot here, I think we're doing a grave injustice to the people of Montana. We, as a body, have come under some criticism as not really doing our job here at the Convention. And if we were to give them an alternativeon the ballot, I think those criticisms would be very justified—that we're, in fact, passing the buck to them. It seems to me if we put many alternatives on the ballot, including this one, we're confusing the hell out of those voters. They're confused enough as it is. We're pretty damn confused right here. So I suggest that we defeat-or vote Nay in regard to Mr. Felt's motion. And on this particular instance, I'm not going to use my little rule, like I did the other day, and make a bet with you that those people who are going to change their votes are over a particular age. I won't put you in those circumstances again, even though I won my bet the other day. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mrs. Warden.

DELEGATE WARDEN: Mr. Chairman. I would just like to say that on-that I think we should leave these things up to Style and Drafting to bring back to us, so that when we're all through considering all of the articles, that they will have the determination of what is vital enough to go on the ballot. And then, we can argue that out. Thank YOU.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Toole-Mr. Romney-Mr. Toole, you were up.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman, I made my lengthy speech a couple of weeks ago on this subject. Everybody knows how I feel about the evils of antidiversion. And we all know that there are powerful and well-financed groups that are involved in this, and they don't scare me a bit. But we have to face the fact of the popularity of this. Poll after poll shows that the people still favor antidiversion of fuel taxes. I don't like Section 1-B a bit-the old section. I have searched over and over again for an alternative. I like Mr. Graybill's alternative that he presented to us 2 weeks ago, but he withdrew it. I'm convinced that to save this Constitution, we must give the people a choice in this very controversial matter which indicates that the people still support antidiversion. Now, they're getting educated; and 2, 3, 4 years from now, they won't support it, because they will perceive the evils involved in it. But at this time in history, we still have to give them a choice. Therefore, under Mr. Felt's amendment-or Mr. Felt's motion-substitute motion, I think we must entertain the discussion and the debate of some sort of an alternative. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Would Mr. Brown yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Brown, will you yield?

DELEGATE BROWN: I yield.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Mr. Brown; is the purpose of putting this on the ballot-is to preclude what you think might be a highway users group voting against the entire Constitution because of our present Section 6?

DELEGATE BROWN: Well, I'm not-Yes. I think many-I'm not talking about largevested interests; I'm talking about many thousands of people that I feel are very strong for antidiversion. And if we give them no alternative, I think there is a danger that there'll be another segment that will vote against the Constitution, and I don't think we should take that chance, by very simply giving them an alternative.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Mr. Chairman. Will Mr. Brown yield to one other question?

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Will you yield, Mr. Brown?

DELEGATE BROWN: Yes, ma'am.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: If that's the case, if there are that many one-issue voters, would not it be true that if, as an alternative, we presented one of these watered-down amendments, they would still-they would vote Yes for the amendment but also vote No for the entire Constitution because of-that's-a watered-down amendment might pass. My point is that they have nothing to gain by voting for the new Constitution because they have what they want in the old one, if there are, in fact, that many one-issue voters.

DELEGATE BROWN: I don't think they're that strong one-issue. I think, they're given an alternative, they like our new Constitution-or I hope they will-and this will, then, give them an alternative to try and have their own plan in it. But if we give them no alternative, they'll have no alternative to vote No. Is that clear? Thank you.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman. I don't know whether this is the appropriate time to discuss this matter, but everybody else is discussing it, so I think that I will, too. There have been fears voiced by delegates in the last few minutes that the people would not have an opportunity to have a fair break in an election. I think thatthatis an insult to the intelligence of the electorate, and I don't concur. There has been voiced a view that if you don't vote the same way you did upon Section 6 the other day, that you'll get a black mark in the little black book, and I don't think that anyone is going to be frightened by such threats. I feel that the people are the only place where we can get an answer to this matter. There have been statements made that the vote taken in 1956 was a long time ago and that times have changed and that perhaps the viewpoint of the people has changed. That may be so, but still, I look back in the present Constitution adopted in 1889, Article III, Section 1. This reads: "All political powers vested in and derived from the people; all governmental rights originates with the people, is founded upon their will only and is instituted solely for the good of the whole." That was 83 years ago. This body, engaged in preparing a new Constitution, has adopted a similar section-Section 1, popular sovereignty-"All political powers vested in and derived from the people; all governmental rights originate with the people, and is founded upon their will only, is instituted solely for the good of the whole." Exactly the same phraseology. We haven't changed much in the last 80 years. We've maintained the same philosophy, and I think it's a good philosophy. And I think all of us have concurred in it, because we voted for it just the other day. It's not so long back to 1956, but the people spoke eloquently upon this subject back in 1956 when they enacted the antidiversion amendment to the Constitution. I have before me the abstract of the vote of that election. The aggregate vote was 160,543 for-160,543 for and 47,615 against, making the majority of Montana people of 112,928 in favor of the proposition. Now, why did that-why was there such a tremendous majority? I'll tell you why. Prior to that time, this nasty Legislature had been putting its sticky fingers onto some of this money. When it took some of that money out over a period of time, people became outraged and a movement was instituted-led by the Montana Automobile Dealers Association, older car dealers, and others-to prohibit such goings-on in the future. So, they enacted an amendment to the Montana Constitution by the vote which I just indicated. Now, how did they vote? Every single county in the State of Montana, without exception, voted in favor of this amendment. There was not a slacker in the bunch. Beaverhead voted 18— I'm going to leave off everything except hundreds here-

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Romney, would you keep your comments as close to possible as the-whether an alternative should be on or not. Thank you.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I will, Mr. Chairman. I don't think that anything could be more poignant than the vote. Beaverhead voted 1,833 to 732; Big Horn, 2,054 to 661; Blaine, 2,117.440; Broadwater, 855 to 85; Carbon, 2,637.917; Carter, 696-289. Cascade, Mr. President, had a vote of 10,219 to 3,726. Going on to Chouteau, the vote was 2,517 to 633. Down in Mr. Brown's bailiwick, it was 2,940 to 1,127. In Daniels, it was 1,188 to 415; Dawson, 2,933.904; Deer Lodge, Mr. Dahood's bailiwick, 4,080.1,441. Down in southeastern Montana, in Fallon County, 1,031 and 373; Flathead—I see the gentleman, Mr. Murray-his county voted 9,347 to 2,966. Fergus, 3,954 and 1,582. My friend, Mr. Roeder's county voted 7,123-I wish he was here so he could hear this-to 1,714. Garfield, 601 to 56; Glacier 2,609.685; Golden Valley, 425-125; Granite, 874-363; Hill, up on the Hi-Line, 4,578. 1,123; Jefferson, 1,128.419; Judith Basin, 1,066. 373. My friend, Mr. McNeil's county, thirty-six sixty-three to one nine. Here's Lewis and Clark county, Mr. Brazier's home country, 8,746 to 2,236. Again, up on the Hi-Line, Liberty had 747 to 202.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Settle down, please.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Lincoln, Mr. James', 3,154.980; Madison, 1,578.640; McCone, 1,046.402; Meagher, 687-214; Mineral, 872-209. Mrs. Robinson's country down here in Missoula, near the beautiful Bitterroot, 11,018 voted for it, 2,839 voted against it; Musselshell, 1,159.325; my fellow journalist, over in Park County, 3,362.1,651; Petroleum, 276-113; Mr. Eskildsen's area, 2,194-510; Pondera, 2,079.596; Powder River, 707-272-I wonder what the boys down there would think about it now; 1,895.661 for Powell; Prairie, 596 to 214; Bitterroot, Ravalli County, Mr. Ward-I'm sorry he's not here right now-3,450.1,278; Richland, 2,821.795, Mr. Habedank; Roosevelt, 2,758. 812; Rosebud, 1,628.495; Sanders, 2,211.638; Sheridan, 1,939.579; Mr. Holland, Silver Bow voted 7,556 to 2,485; Stillwater, 1,745-510; Sweet Grass, 1,049.323; Teton, 2,224.578; Toole, 2,334. 593; Treasure, 368.113; Valley, 3,552.789; Wheatland, 1,020.271; Wibaux, 516-183; and Yellowstone-1 see my friend, Mr. Blaylock, gazing intently-13,788-that's almost as many votes as he got-to 2,341. I think this is a remarkable argument. I don't think all of these people could have-possibly have changed their minds in this time. And if they have, they certainly--we certainly ought to be able-we should have the right--we should have the duty I maintain-to find out, to give them the opportunity. There's nothing dearer than such an opportunity to vote. I have a feeling that never should the Legislature or a convention override an expressed plebiscite where such a tremendous majority was adduced. I thank you, Mr. Chairman, for your patience.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: The question is on whether we shall place on the ballot an alternative proposal. I want to have the discussion as pertinent as possible.

Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President-Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Romney yield to one question which he'll, I hope, answer shortly?

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Romney, will you yield?

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I will endeavor.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. Romney. You went through the list of all the counties and you said what the votes were, and they were all in the majority for putting in the antidiversion amendment. How much money was spent by the Petroleum Association, the Automobile Dealers Association and all of the various interest groups on that campaign for a yes vote?

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Blaylock, I cannot answer that because I do not know. However, I was in the newspaper business at that time, as I am now, and I remember the campaign very well, and I remember the outrage of the people, which engendered such a vote.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. Chairman, I would just like to make a few points.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: I think Mrs. Robinson's point was very good-that if these are one-issue voters, why should they come out and vote for the Constitution if we just put in one of these watered-down versions. I'd like to also remind you people that the Revenue and Finance Committee, which we all had confidence in and which we supported right down through their report, recommended that we go for this proposition, and we supported them. I think, also, that we have to remember Marshall McCluen's statement that the medium is the message, and the medium will be bought up by these interest groups and you will hear nothing but to vote for what they want. Who's going to put up the money for the other side, for the side that, really, the majority supported in this Convention the first time? The money isn't there, because they don't have it. So, I would say to this Convention, at this time, if we want to change our minds, let's not put this thing on the ballot. Let's go ahead and strip this three-fifths out of here, because that's what's going to happen in the final analysis anyhow. We, the—just the plain people, have no chance against these interest groups. So let's stop wasting time, if that's the decision of this Convention: strip it out now and put it into the Constitution minus the three-fifths proposition. So far as people voting for things, I think that, probably, we should remember that Montana voted for prohibition once. We found out we got awfully dry before we changed that. So let's not think that we can't change--we made a mistake before, Miles, and maybe we should change our mind now.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. Chairman. I can't quite remember all of Delegate Romney's figures, but one figure does stick in my mind from our group. We were told that $2 million were expended on the issue of nondiversion of funds in 1956. That might help Mr. Blaylock some--$2 million. I rise in support of Mr. Felt's motion but for different reasons than for which he made it. I hope that we vote a resounding No on his motion and thus kill debate. We don't have one proposal before us. I think we probably have a proposal on every desk; on at least one desk, there are three different proposals. The whole thrust of these proposals are, in effect-they have to do with the three-fifths vote. We have not diverted any money in the majority proposal, which was overwhelmingly accepted a couple of weeks ago; we have permitted diversion on a three-fifths vote of the Legislature. And I would suggest to this body, in spite of what you've been told, that the Legislatures and legislators are a responsible body. They are not going to go out and rape this fund for some other purpose. All of the other proposals that were accepted in the majority report have been, as a matter of fact, accepted in all of the modified proposals. The only real issue here is the three-fifths vote. If the Legislature did, as a matter of fact, divert that money, I assume that most of them would earn themselves a long vacation from these halls, because I don't think the public would stand for it. We have not diverted money. As a matter of fact, I was hoping that, when we first started discussing this, that we'd drop the whole term "diversion" or "nondiversion" and just call it "highway revenue". But I would repeat for the body once again, there has been no diversion. Now, if you want to argue about the $2 million from the very top that we talked about the other day, that has been accepted in every other counterproposal that has been put before this body, and up till now it's been rejected: and I hope that you would continue to reject them today by voting down Mr. Felt's proposal. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Mr. Chairman, I rise to resist Mr. Felt's motion. I have very strong feelings about the appropriateness of the anti-diversion 1-B in the Constitution, and I won't burden you with my feelings. However, I think that if Mr. Felt's motion does prevail and we are then in the position of deciding that we're going to put an alternative on the side for the voters to accept or reject, that we have a great obligation to be sure that the voters have a comparable choice. That is, I don't think that the proposed modified 1-B is a fair choice tomakein the alternative to the Revenue and Finance proposed Section 6. There are many things about them which are not comparable, and I think you put the voter in an impossible position, because he may like part of one and like part of the other, and then what's he going to do? So I urge you, if you do sustain Mr. Felt's motion to put this on the side, that we give a great deal of thought to the way it is presented so that the voter is not put in a-to a disadvantage when it comes time for him to vote. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. I'd like to speak against Mr. Felt's motion. It's a very fine motion, because I think it's going to clear the air for us and we'll get down to the decision of whether or not we're going to put an alternative on the ballot or not. And I hope that we are not going to put an alternative on the ballot, because the amendment-or rather the section that has been presented to us is, itself, a compromise solution to the problem. We've already considered putting two other items on the constitutional ballot at this point, the capital punishment issue and the issue of the two Legislative Assemblies. Are we going, then, to put a third on? And are we then going to put on a fourth, with the lotteries? If we are, I think we ought to put aid to parochial schools on. I think we ought to have about six alternatives on the ballot. If we begin now to set this kind of precedent, we're going to have a ballot that's about a mile wide and a half mile long. This isn't constitution writing, I think, when we get down to this sort of thing. This section, obviously, is a statutory thing in the first place, and I can't see any point in our dodging the issue here. We're here to write a constitution. Let's put it in the form that we want it in, and let's submit it to the voters that way. If we do vote to approve this motion of Mr. Felt's, we're going to have about eight or ten different proposals, because we're going to have to reconcile them all. It's going to take us all day to do that. And I think that we've been through this debate enough that we don't want to go through it again. So let's defeat this motion, and let's get on with the Style and Drafting report.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. This issue is one I've been attempting to follow. I wasn't on the committee, but I've been attempting to follow it right along. I was inclined to go along with one of the delegates on the committee that I talked to that wanted to strike the entire article of diversion out of the Constitution. But the committee, I'm sure, considered the practicality of the politics involved and arrived at what I consider a compromise. That is that if things get so bad with this highway fund that it has to be diverted, that three-fifths of the Legislature can do it. And I submit that would take a very, very compelling circumstance to have the Legislature-three-fifths of the Legislature join together to take it away. What you've done here is to degrade a fund-and it's been growing every year. Now, if I-the figures I have-which I've received from Mr. Furlong--are accurate, it's grown 9 million last year, up to the point whereit's 38 billion-million dollars annually. Now, we can expect it'll continue to grow. Now, when you give all of that sum to one department to use, nobody else can use it, they don't just use the part that is necessary and send it back for the rest of the state to live on. We all know what short resources the rest of the state is being run on. We have one department over there that we all know is pretty fat right now, it's likely to get fatter. And before they send back a dime, they'll have everybody in the organization driving a gold-plated Cadillac, because they don't send money back. That's the history of any organization. Bureaucracy will use all the money it can get. Now, sensibly, the committee has foreseen that it can come to this, where they don't use their money for highways or where the highways will be fully completed to where they don't need it any more, and we'll need this revenue. And the State of Montana is right at the point where we're going to have to get some revenue somewhere. And if we don't have some of this coming back from the Highway when they don't need it, we very likely might find-have put the Legislature in the position where they're going to enact a sales tax. Now, what Reverend Harbaugh said is completely accurate-the more of these side issues we put on the ballot, the greater the chance we have of the Constitution falling under it's own weight. The history that I've heard of the states where they put many side issues on the ballot-every side issue tends to defeat the ballot and, by itself, just having additional side issues can do so. What Mrs. Robinson said is also very true. I many times have risen here to talk about practical politics. Mrs. Robinson and I agreed every time on practical politics, and I'm glad to hear her talking politics. Because what they're doing here is what we call, in Butte, "double-shooting the turn". We're giving them two shots at the Constitution. They're not going to vote for the Constitution if there's a chance they're going to lose their precious revenue; they're going to vote No on the Constitution. And then you put this on the side, thinking you're going to avert this. You're just giving them a second chance to vote No; you're double-shooting the turn". Now, like Mr. Brown says, hundreds and thousands of citizens are worried. Well, Mr. Brown may have heard from hundreds and thousands of citizens, but I haven't heard one word. But I heard a lot from dealers; I heard a lot from truckers; I heard a lot from highway groups. Those are the people that are putting the pressure on. And I say the committee has given them every break. If many of us in this Convention had had our way, there would be nothing in here about any diversion. The tax money would be put in here where it could be used for the welfare, where it could be used for the other things we need revenue on. But they've kept their revenue sacred, and it's going to take three-fifths of the Legislature to take it out. But if we bend further, we give 'em-we fall into two chances-one, this Constitution will fall under its own weight because it's got too many side issues, and the other is they're just going to double-shoot the turn on us and both-vote No both ways. So I suggest that Mr. Felt's amendment should be defeated and we should sustain the committee.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Scanlin, you'll be next, but we have to change the tape up here so if you'll be at ease for a moment.

(Tape changed)

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman, may I make an announcement while they are changing the tape?

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: If we can have your attention, Mr. Campbell will make an announcement while we're at ease.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: As you know, this evening at 8 o'clock, Miss Jeannette Rankin will be speaking to us. One of the things she will be speaking to is a new proposal that Senator Mansfield and Achen have also discussed in the press recently-that is, a national presidential primary. And what she'd like to do, as part of her speech tonight, have us cooperate by filling out our preferences on 10 presidential candidates who are listed on this sheet that will be given to you. And if you could do this before noon and then pass them to the center of the aisle, she will tabulate them and tell you the results of how this would come out if this worked on a national level. So we'd certainly appreciate you taking the time. And on the ballot you have 10 candidates, and then you mark which one you'd rather have as President, all the way down from 1 to 10. Ignore the last one-11-it shouldn't have been on there-somebody lost out in New Hampshire. But if you would do this, we'd certainly appreciate it. Thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: The house will be in order.

Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, a clarification of the issue. If I understood correctly, the Chair just made a statement that what we were voting on in Mr. Felt's amendment was to-whether or not we should place it on the ballot, and, as I understood, Mr. Felt's amendment was that-it was to debate whether or not we were going to put it on the ballot, and that's what we've been doing for the last hour.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: That's correct, Mr. Scanlin. The question is whether we shall debate it, and I think it has been debated pretty well.

Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. As I think most of you know, I have felt very strongly about this highway anti-diversion amendment. I have felt very strongly that it does not belong-in any manner, way, shape or form-in the Constitution, and I think that most people that really look at it carefully agree with this general position. I was perfectly willing to go along with the committee. They heard all the testimony; they heard both sides of the issue. They worked hard on it, and they came up with, indeed, a compromise. When we first discussed the question during the debate, initially—my recollection isn't perfect-but it seems to me there were about 16 people in this body that voted in favor of retention of the present section. And after a good number of hours, we got down to the point that we, in fact, voted that we did not want to place it on the ballot. I really don't know what has transpired in the meantime. There certainly has not been a ground swell of voter concern from the people of the State of Montana. I, like Delegate Holland from Butte, have received no mail from citizens on this question--no one that's concerned because, in fact, we've compromised one way or the other. I think that the people of Montana are satisfied with the position that we've taken, and I certainly see no reason to go back over this ground again and stir up the thing and present an alternative on the ballot on this question which not only doesn't belong on the ballot, but it doesn't belong in the Constitution at all. Delegate Romney went through a very extensive and well-documented course on the voting history. I could present the same course of votes that have been taken on questions such as justice of the peace, questions such as whether there should be three amendments, six amendments to the Constitution, and I think that this is really academic. The question really is whether we're going to present a constitution that the people, after they read it all, are going to be willing to accept. There are going to be things in there that every individual, personally, is not going to be particularly enchanted with-there are things in there that I'm certainly not particularly enchanted with-but I submit that there are going to be things that they know and recognize as major improvements. And this is going to be the question of whether they're going to vote for the Constitution or against it. The voters of the state are going to have to consider all aspects and not just the aspects of what the highway users and Mr. Jack Rehberg say about it. They're going to have to consider the whole question. And I feel it's important that we stick with reason, and I submit that the committee presented a very reasonable proposal. We voted in favor of it. And to submit this complicating issue on the ballot and to get a lot of money being spent to support a particular amendment is only going to confuse the voters. And I have faith in the voters of Montana. I think they're really quite well-informed, and1 think that after we get through in our own districts, they'll be much better informed. The majority of this body does not support antidiversion, and1 don't see any reason why we should submit it to the people for them to have to make a decision on this particular issue in the clouds of campaigns and a lot of money being spent. I submit we have a good proposal at the present time, and let's leave it that way. And let's defeat the motion of my good friend, Delegate Felt, and get on with more important issues. Thank you, Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to Delegate Felt's motion. I think we're missing one point here, though, in all of this argument. I keep hearing the statement that the Legislature has no control over the Highway Department, that it's a creature set out by itself with absolute-it controls itself and does as it pleases. I wonder how many of you have ever stopped to think about the fact that practically all of your highway proposals are presented through some budget system through the Legislature, with-probably as much as 5 years ahead of time-and that the Legislature, in its wisdom, has control entirely by setting the amount of gasoline tax that is put on to pay for the anticipated future highway construction. If the Legislature wants to control the Highway Department, all they have to do is start reducing the gasoline tax and other taxes that support it; they've got absolute control. I heard the argument here on the floor yesterday that the University System could be controlled by the Legislature because it appropriated the funds. Well, the Legislature doesn't exactly appropriate the funds to the Highway Department, but it does set the amount of gasoline tax that you pay in order to provide those funds, so I don't know why they don't have some control.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Felt, do you want to close?

Mr. Drum.

DELEGATE DRUM: Mr. Chairman. Our committee-the Revenue and Finance Committee hasn't said much this morning, but I would like to pass on some of the considerations that we had in placing this section into our article. When you talk about conversation and talk about muscle and talk about phone calls and talk about a lot of things, I'll tell you the committee is really quite familiar with the many feelings of people in transportation, the different motor carriers and motor groups of all kinds. And I think, in defense of the committee, we gave very fair consideration to all of the arguments, but we really felt that what was in the best interests of the people of Montana was to put a line into our section which gives the final responsibility and authority to the Legislature. And this, I think, is what we're debating this morning. Nobody's talking much about it, but we felt, after hearing the abundance of testimony, that the Highway Department would become more responsive to the will and the needs of the people of Montana and to the Legislature if they had this one line added to our-to this particular section. Now, we feel that there is an alternative in this one line. If what the advocates andexponents of eliminating any chance of this money--any diversion of this money, if what they say is true, they have nothing to worry about. The Legislature is going to support them, we feel, in every way that they can. But if the Highway Department, number 1, accumulates a lot of money in the next 20 years-and we're talking about roughly two and a half to three million dollars a year that this fund is growing-instead of talking about $38 million, Mr. Holland, we may be talking about, 20 years from today, $98 million-and if there is no possibility of diverting that money, it may really become cumberson to the legislative body and it may be something that is not in the best interests of the people of Montana. Now we've had phone calls-I've had them early in the morning and late at night-and when I explain the committee's position to these people, it--usually they say, "Fine, we thought-our understanding of this thing is that you weren't going to spend any money on county roads, there was no money going to city streets." And, really, in my mind-and I'm certain in the minds of our committee-more money is going to be available for county roads, more money is going to be available for city streets the way this section is written. As far as the arithmetic on the money, there's very little change as to the relocation of these moneys. As Mr. McDonough said, the license tax money is statutory now and will continue to be so. But from the best interests of the people of Montana, I urge you to defeat Mr. Felt's amendment and to leave this section as it is given to-given as a choice to the people of Montana. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman. I don't think you've heard much from the committee, because I think they-you heard from them a week, 10 days ago, and I don't think there's been much change. I think, if you noticed the votes this morning, we're probably still voting about the same way, at least more than even-the majority of us. So that's why you haven't heard a great deal from the committee.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Rollins.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Mr. Chairman. Somewhere in the far distance, out past one of those tepees on that painting, I anticipate reaching a point where there can be a final vote on this subject. These old, dry bones have come up now for about the seventh time, and each time, I've struck with great valor to try to put them in their final resting place. Now, Mr. Felt gives me another chance, and I appreciate the favor, because this gives me about the eighth blow now. I intend to vote against this measure and hope that the matter can be put to rest.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Skari.

DELEGATE SKARI: Mr. Chairman, I resist the motion in giving a choice on this. I think it's going to be confusing for the voters to make this decision. When they go into the polling booth, they're going to weigh these fractions here regarding a legislative vote, how effective a three-fifths vote is and this sort of thing. I think we really should decide this one way or the other. It seems to me we have several choices, though, other than this. We can leave it the way we have it, we can-1 suppose we could put back in l-B, or possibly we could raise the fraction here. Mr. Romney's remarks are somewhat pertinent. He gave some statistics on the vote in 19-15 years ago. However, we also have to remember, as someone pointed out, that voters do change their minds-that 15,000 people voted, in 1889, for this Constitution and 4,000 against-something like four to one-and 80 years later, we had a two-to-one vote asking that it be revised. It seems to me we want some options left open here in the event that more funds are received, as Mr. Drum said, than are necessary for sensible road construction. We also want some-1 think it's the feeling of this body that we want a certain amount of responsiveness from the Highway Department. However, there are many areas in this state where we do need roads yet. We are-our roads aren't finished out in the eastern part of the state and, I presume, in a lot of parts of the state. I would-1 don't know-1 don't think a substitute motion is in order, but I would suggest that we might consider raising the fraction to two-thirds.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: A substitute motion is not in order at this time, Mr. Skari.

DELEGATE SKARI: Thank you, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. Chairman. I'd just like to announce that I misunderstood Mr. Felt's motion, and I am in favor of it rather than opposed to it.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Graybill.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Mr. Chairman, members of the Convention. I will not-1 rise in opposition to Mr. Felt's motion, and I have only two small points. First of all, as an answer to Mr. Romney, there is a simple solution to Mr. Romney's problem. We have an antidiversion amendment in the present Constitution. The committee has provided us with an antidiversion amendment. It simply has a three-fifths lever on it in case the Highway Department gets out of hand. So, anybody that's for the antidiversion amendment should be for the present committee's proposal. Secondly, I rise in opposition to Mr. Felt's motion because Mr. Felt's motion-if you vote Yes, it requires you to accept the proposition that we'll put something on the ballot, and we haven't any idea of what it's going to be yet. And you can tell by papers rustling here that there are a lot of chances, and I'm sure none of us would agree to all of them. So you're voting for a pig in a poke. I hope you'll defeat the Felt amendment. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Felt, do you want to close?

DELEGATE FELT: Mr. Chairman. I'm delighted to close. I think everyone will be glad to get on with this matter. I do not feel that I can answer all of the different points that have been brought up, but I want to discuss some of them. I feel, first of all, that regardless of how we acted when the committee report came before us, that the votes that we've cast here this morning to suspend the rules and to reconsider the question indicate a general feeling that something, in addition, should be either done or at least seriously considered. But I was not certain that there was enough agreement amongst those of that persuasion that they could immediately agree upon just what that additional matter might be. I want to express, again, my complete support for the committee proposal and to state that if my motion fails and the committee proposal then remains just as it is-intact, I intend to spend most of my time in working on this matter when it comes before the people, trying to support what the committee has proposed. Because I like it very, very much, and I think it took a lot of courage. I know they must have received a great deal of pressure to go either one way or the other, and they adopted a sensible compromise. However, if this compromise that I consider sensible would, in fact, not be found to be quite palatable enough and would cause many people to vote against the entire Constitution, then I feel it is time that we make some further effort to arrive at a compromise program which is even more palatable and which could lead to a successful vote on the entire Constitution and a successful solution to this particular antidiversion problem. The committee's proposal, by-for all the reasons given for-by different delegates-most recently, I think, by Delegate Drum-is very commendable, much improved over the present antidiversion thing that we have in our present Constitution. But I do not feel as discouraged as some delegates-such as Delegate Blaylock felt-that we have no chance of convincing the people to go along with what we and our committee felt was right. I think we do have a chance and that, if there is some organized support for the premise that these funds should not be diverted as they have been in recent years, that we have a chance to succeed even against the bogeymen that have been waved at us—as the people who will either defeat the whole Constitution or they would defeat the proposal-the part of the proposal which would give the Legislature discretionary power to override by a three-fifths vote. I wish that things were simple, many times myself, but they aren't simple, and we have to find our way through a rather confusing maze of influences and counter-influences to arrive at something. I wish to take at least minor exception to the final point raised by Delegate Graybill, too. We are not buying a pig in a poke when-if we vote for this. You're simply saying you're willing to take a look at the pigs and see if they find one that you might like; but we're not buying anything. And if it turns out that we don't find a single one that we like, then, of course, we're back with the present committee proposal and the Convention can go on about its business. But—and, of course, we hate to take the time to go into these alternatives, but for something as important to us as the handling of our highway program and the part that the Legislature can play in that, and just how we're going to handle it-the problems of giving some aid to the cities and counties with their road programs, things that I assure you we have struggled with because we were tied down by this present antidiversion. And we have probably done some things that are of questionable constitutional validity in an effort to circumvent the tightness of the present antidiversion amendment. All of these things do need, I feel, to be considered by all the members of this Convention-and that we can, I hope, find an alternative. For my own personal preference, if there's a favorable vote on my motion, I would then strongly support the alternative offered by Delegate Eck to place this alternative on the ballot. And I could then support the alternative on the ballot, because it would give the Legislature the power, by a three-fifths vote, to override the antidiversion principle. On the other hand, if it turns out-and this is why this thing gets confusing-if it turned out that her proposal failed, I would support the proposal made by Delegate Brown to put that alternative on the ballot. But then, when I went out before the people, I would oppose his alternate proposal and try to convince them that they should stay with the committee report as the best of the two alternatives. So this is kind of hard to follow. But I do believe that we have a chance with the people, as well as in this Convention, that the best possible compromise on this whole matter would be approved by the people and that we would have, then, a flexible constitution dealing with this entire matter and one where we would get very fine results. I thank you.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Mr. Furlong, for what reason do you rise?

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. Chairman. I ask for a roll call vote, and I wonder if the Chair would explain the effect of a Yes on the Felt amendment.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Yes, I'll be happy to. Do we have sufficient seconds for a roll call vote? Sufficient seconds being-we-a roll call been asked. Now, the question arises on the substitute motion by Mr. Felt that the Convention will debate the question of placing on the ballot an alternative proposal on the matters embraced in Section 6, Revenue and Finance. Now, what this means is that a Yes vote means that we will consider different alternatives; a No vote will mean that the matter is closed, because the motion to reconsider was only to offer an alternative. So, therefore, if we vote No on this motion, it will mean that then there will be no more reconsideration on this matter. Is that clear? Are there any questions?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: As many as are in favor of the motion by Mr. Felt, vote Aye; as many as are opposed, vote No. Has everybody voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: Does anyone wish to change their vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: The vote is closed.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: The clerk will announce the vote.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 31 delegates voting Aye, 65 voting No.

CHAIRMAN NUTTING: 31 having voted Aye, 65 voting No, the motion fails and thematter is closed.

(Committee of the Whole chairmanship resumed by Mr. Graybill)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Ladies and gentlemen of the committee, there's a small matter on Section 6 to be completed.

And, Mr. Kelleher, do you want to explain your problem and-?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman. I discussed the matter with the Chairman of the Revenue and Finance Committee and also my own Chairman, Mr. Schiltz. And Mr. Schiltz has agreed to discuss the matter.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee. If you'llrefer to Section 6 as redrafted, you will find, on page 6, line 9—or subsection C, in any case--where we provide—and you have to go back to the beginning and say that "these various funds shall be used solely for"--and then we list A, B and C. Now, under C, as restyled and I think as originally stated, but I could be wrong-in any case, this is substantive if it is this way. As restyled we say that the highway safety, driver education, tourist promotion and administrative collection costs can be spent from these funds if authorized by the Legislature. Now, there's a question whether or not that "authorized by the Legislature" pertains only to subsection C or whether it should pertain to all-A, B and C. From the language we had to work with, the committee decided that "as authorized by the Legislature"-Now, if you look back at the original language that we worked with on pages 21, Z-page 5, lines 21, 2 and 3, you can see why we did as we did. Now, it's a very simple problem--either the Legislature authorizes only that one category or the Legislature must authorize all of those various types of expenditures. And we leave it to the committee to tell us which way. Now, if it's to modify all those various types of expenditures, we can go to page 5-it'll be a little cumbersome, but—on line 30, after the word "used", we can put in there-it'll be two parenthetic&-but anyway, we can put in there "as authorized by the Legislature", after the word "used", and then continue on and then on line 9 strike "authorized by the Legislature". I just pose the problem for you to solve.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Well, the thinking of the committee, at least, was that the payment of county-city-town obligations on streets, roads and bridges was to be authorized by the Legislature. I'm not sure that that first one went in there, so I'll probably have to turn that over to our counsel, McDonough, but I know that our thinking on payment of county-city-town obligations on streets, roads and bridges-We specifically put that in because they were circumventing that now to give that cent [sic], and we wanted to make that legal. And I would ask Mr. McDonough if he would yield to-as-whether or not that section A should be included in the same. I don't know, myself.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: I think to be consistent, Mr. President, it has to be included in-within it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Then, Mr. McDonough, is it your proposal that we should move the term "authorized by the Legislature" back on page 5 to modify all three? Is that your suggestion?

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Yes, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Now, to do that, I think a motion must be made to reconsider Section 6.

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after-No, I move that we reconsider the action taken previously this morning on Section 6. And inasmuch as I didn't vote at all, I can be said to have voted on the prevailing side.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, it was a voice vote, so we'll assume you voted on the prevailing side. A motion has been made by Mr. Schiltz to reconsider Section 6 for the purpose of making this-putting to the Convention this change. So many-is there discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as are in favor of Mr. Schiltz's motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Mr. Schiltz, do you want to make your motion?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that Section 6, sub. 1, be amended by inserting after the word "used", on line 30, page 5, and its comparable line and page in the other material, "as authorized by the Legislature" and that Section 6, sub. 1, sub. C be further amended on line 9, page 6, and its comparable page and line, by striking the words "authorized by the Legislature".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The sense of Mr. Schiltz's amendment, then, is on line 30, page 5, after the word "used comma", put in the phrase "as authorized by the Legislature"; and then strike the words on page 6, line 9, "authorized by the Legislature" and put a period after "costs". That makes Section 1 read: "Revenue from gross vehicle weights, fees, excises and license tax except" so-and so forth, "on gasoline, fuel and other energy sources", and so forth, "shall be used as authorized by the Legislature after deduction of statutory refunds and adjustments solely for A, B and C." Is there discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of that amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. It's adopted as amended.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you want to move the whole section now?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Right. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6, Style and Drafting-sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 7, that it recommend that the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be opposed, say No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. The Ayes have it, and it's adopted as amended. Mr. Schiltz, the Chair thinks that we should stop and get started with Section 7 after lunch.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: We haven't done subsection 2.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Oh, all right. Subsection 2. Do you want to move it?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6, subsection 2, Style and DraftingReportNumber7, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: We simply made a subsection 2 out of this. It was all run together in the material that came from the floor, and we think it reads better.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of subsection 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's adopted. Very well.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman. Before we recess, I'd like to have you recognize Bob Camel for an announcement.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Bob, did you make your announcement?

MR. CAMEL: I'd just like to remind you to fill out the presidential preference things and send them to the center aisle. If you don't participate within the system, there's a real chance Shirley Chisholm might be the next President. So, do write them out, please. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'd like to call the attention to all delegates-of all delegates to the announcement that's been placed on your desks-namely, that the Columbians will perform in the rotunda this noon-and that's one reason I want to stop promptly at noon. So if you want to hear a little band concert, go down there-listen on the rotunda. Other announcements?

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I move we recess until 1:15 this day.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is to recess until 1:15 today. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The committee is in recess.

(Convention recessed at 12:07 p.m.--reconvened at 1:25 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The committee will be in order. Members of the committee, before lunch we had completed Section 6 of Style and Drafting on Revenue and Finance, and we're on Section 7. Will the clerk please read Section 7.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 7. Tax appeals." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report. after having had under consideration Section 7, Style and Drafting Report Number 7, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, we rearranged the language some for style. We struck out "county or local government unit" at the bottom. I think that's all. Instead of-we put in "local government unit"--oh, no, that was already in there. We took out "county or"--we took out "county"--oh, I see-just to comply with other definitions in the rest of the Constitution, using "local government unit", which would include "county".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion of Section 7?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of Section 7, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 8.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 8. State debt." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 8, Style and Drafting Report Number 7, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, some rearrangement for style. No substantive changes; nothing significant that should be called to the attention of the committee.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 8?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of Section 8, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 8 is adopted. Section 9.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 9, Style and Drafting Report Number 7, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, a very minor change-changed "Legislative Assembly" to "Legislature", dropped the words "during any budget period" as not necessary.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 9?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 10.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 10. Local government debt." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10, Style and Drafting Report Number 7, it recommend the same be adopted.
Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: We changed the title slightly. We took this-the changes here-up with the substantive committee and agreed that "subdivisions and districts of the state" did not fit the intent, so we supplied the words "and all other local governmental entities". Now, there's some judicial interpretation, not necessarily in the State of Montana, but other places, that qualifies the term "all other local government entities" for what the committee's intent was. The committee concurred in this change. We-you'll see we would have some trouble with "for subdivisions and districts of the state" as being rather imprecise.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 10?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Oh, there is a word "of' that appears to have been struck in this. When you run into those, if-before you run to me, look back on the clean copy, the unstruck out and amended copy; frequently you will find that we have taken care of it, but this is just a slip here.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Where does the "of' go?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, I don't know. Somebody talked to me about it sometime.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The first "of' in line 2 should be still in there. Is thatyourpoint?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right, and it's okay over on page 3 or 2 or somewhere.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: "The Legislature shall by law-" I don't understand, Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, ifyou'lllook on page 3, Mr. Chairman—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: It reads-on line 4, it reads, "the Legislature shall by law limit debts of counties, cities, towns, and all other local governmental units", and I don't think it quite reads that way on page 7.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, the "s" should be off of "limits".

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, it's struck, but it so nearly approximates the cross on the "s" that—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I see. "The Legislature shall by law limit debts of '--and then we need the "of'.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Then the "of' is in there, right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay. Is there any more discussion of Section IO?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 10, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 11.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 11. Use of loan proceeds." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11, Style and Drafting Report Number 7, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, we again used "all other local governmental entities", and we did that throughout the next two sections—11, 12 and 13—and so I won't call attention to them hereafter. Otherwise, only style.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 11, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 12.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 12. Strict accountability." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 12, Style and Drafting Report Number 7, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, only style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Discussion on Section 12?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 12, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 13.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 13. Investment of public funds." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 13, Style and Drafting Report Number 7, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, only style changes, plus the "local governmental entities" language.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Section 13. Any discussion?
Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President, either I've lost something or missed something in the report of the Revenue and Finance, but we made an amendment to it and included a limitation on the investment of the school trust funds, and so far I haven't been able to find it. It should be on Section 13—under Section 13, I believe, and so far I haven't located it. Maybe I've missed it someplace.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, Mr. Chairman, Mr. Woodmansey just pointed out for me-1 couldn't find it earlier-on line 26 it says, "No public funds shall be invested in private corporate capital stock". Is that the question you have, Mr. Barnard?

DELEGATE BARNARD: No, the question is-we put a limitation on the investment of the trust funds, such as securities of the United States and securities of the various towns and the State of Montana and the school districts-the schools--and it was a little different from the other one. It's a full section in itself.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, Mr. Chairman-

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We added a subsection 2, which you don't seem to have, Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Where is that, Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 13 has a subsection 2, which you don't seem to have.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, either we didn't get it from the journal or we missed it. I—perhaps—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I have it here and could read it to you. It says: "The public school fund shall remain forever inviolate and guaranteed against loss or diversion. The public school funds and the permanent funds of the State University and other university institutions, state institutions of learning shall be safely and conservatively invested in public securities of the state, its subdivisions, and"-something, something, something-"or in bonds of the United States" and so forth. This whole thing was the Barnard amendment, and we made it a subsection 2. So, I think probably what we need to do is refer this particular one back to Style and Drafting to pick up subsection 2 of Section 13.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, if we could approve the-1 don't know if it needs any styling or not. I guess we'd better have it referred; and we'll refer it back, styled under Order of Business Number 5, as we've done previously, to save one printing, I think.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right. Very well. Other than that, you're absolutely right, Mr. Barnard--and other than that, we've adopted this.

Mr. Schiltz, is there any reason that Natural Resources has to go back to you?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Is that Number 6 that we did this morning?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I thinkitdoes. We made some changes in there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, then, I would entertain a motion from you that Style and Drafting Reports Number 6 and 7 be referred to Style and Drafting for presentation— for preparation for Order of Business Number 5, so that you only print them for Order of Business Number 5—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -and then back to the Committee of the Whole for final consideration again. Okay?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's fine. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does everyone understand the motion? We're going to send 6 and 7 back to Style and Drafting for printing for Order of Business Number 5, but they will pick up this Section 13, sub. 2, and any other changes they have. It will come here to the Committee of the Whole again for at least a moment before it goes to Order of Business Number 5. All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered. Very well, that's what we'll do.

Mr. Murray, do we need to rise and report on that? Or is that enough?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I don't think that we need to do it at this time. I think we can--unless you want to get this back to Style so that you could have it on Order of Business Number 5 tomorrow sometime. Do you think that we will complete the work of Public Health, Welfare, today?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, but tomorrow we'll want this on Order of Business Number 5.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Well, then, I think we should rise and finally report on this so that we get it out of here.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: First you'll have to come back to Committee of the Whole in order to include what Mr. Barnard has, so that we can adopt that—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, I—

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: -and then we can go to Order of Business Number 5 with it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And we might have to waive the time.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: That's right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, let's not do that. Members of the body, we will not rise and report this until they come back to us sometime tomorrow. Very well, then, it's the Chair's position that we're ready to go to Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry. Is that correct? Anybody have anything else before that?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Members of the committee, you have before you a proposed order of consideration of proposals in Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry, which we will attempt to follow, starting with nonmunicipal corporations on page 3 to 7, which is Sections 1 to 6, then moving to institutions and assistance, then to the labor majority and minority proposals.

Very well, Mr. Heliker, do you want an opening statement?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Very briefly, Mr. Chairman. The-I'd like to express publicly, to begin with, the appreciation of the committee for the unstinting labors of our research analyst, Dick Spall, who became a research analyst rather late in the game and worked under exceedingly difficult circumstances because he did not have the 6 months or more background that most of the research analysts did. He's done a tremendous job for the committee, and we owe him a great debt of gratitude. I'd also like to express the same general sentiments concerning the work of our interns, Candy Hauf and George Mahoney, and our secretary, Sylvia Kinsey. The separate proposals of the committee will be presented by separate members of the committee and the first one, on nonmunicipal corporations, by Mr. Ward, and I now yield the floor to Mr. Ward.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward— Before we start, will the clerk please read the title of the article and Section 1.

CLERK HANSON: "Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Proposal Number 9, introduced February 19th, 1972; George B. Heliker, Chairman; J. Ward, Vice-chairman. Be it proposed by the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee: that there be a new article on the nonmunicipal corporations, to read as follows: 'Section 1. Grant of power. Corporate charters shall be granted, modified, or dissolved only pursuant to general law.'" Mr. Chairman, Section 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 1 of Proposal 9, that it recommend the same be adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman, the corporation article has been deleted considerable. The old article on corporations had 20 sections, and at present we have it down to 6. During our hearings throughout the committee work, we had no one to testify for or against any particular portion of this article, so we had to start from scratch and through different state agencies, lawyers in the delegation and a few that I contacted in Missoula-I spent considerable time with them— one man has moved here from California-and so this is a basic part of our work. I'd also like to thank Mr. Mahoney and Mrs. Van Buskirk for their work on this article, which we were on the subcommittee of. This Article I is a special grant to charter-for corporate charters granted, modified and dissolved. It replaces Section 2 of the original section on-in the old Constitution, and it gives that general power.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Section 1?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of Section 1 of the Nonmunicipal Corporations Act of the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry proposal-all in favor of that Section 1, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted, Section 2, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2. Protection for citizenry. The Legislative Assembly shall provide for protection and education for the people against harmful and unfair practices by either foreign or domestic corporations, individuals, or associations." Mr. Chairman, Section 2.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 2 of Proposal 9, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: This is a new section; it combines some of the old ones together. It's rather broad, but it was felt by the committee that in the State of Montana we have some foreign corporations that do business here that is almost void from any control and also associations, individuals, that--out of state, that cause problems in Montana once in awhile. We also had two proposals for what we were-consumer protection proposals-and through a number of things, we tried to set up some type of program that the Legislature can direct towards harmful and unfair practices of either foreign or domestic corporations, individuals, or associations. So this can cover a multitude of things, and I think that's all I have to say for the present. I think there's an amendment to it, but I think it should be debated.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President, would Mr. Ward yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward?

DELEGATE WARD: I yield.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. Ward, would you give us a specificexampleof, say, something that's going on now by a foreign corporation which this proposal would protect us against.

DELEGATE WARD: Well, the first thing that comes to my mind, some of the foreign corporations in real estate send out notices to people here and try to get you to buy either a square inch or a square foot of land in some of their area. This is one of the examples that was brought up in committee.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: I was just reading Sections 2, 3, 4 and 5 and 6, and actually, basically all it is is statutory law. I hate to bring that up again, but it is. I can see Section 1, possibly, so that a specific charter isn't granted to a special corporation: but 2, 3, 4 and 5 and 6 are actually statutory law. And we really do have a very good model business code act for profit corporations and another act that covers nonprofit corporations, and practically all of these things are included in those two acts, and I really don't see too much reason to include them in the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Jacobsen, You have an amendment up here. Do you want it moved, or are you waiting?

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: If this is the proper time, Mr. President, I would have the clerk read this amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, it is to this section. Maybe we ought to get it out on the floor, and everybody can think about it. Will the clerk please read Mr. Jacobsen's amendment.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman, I move to amend Section 2, page 3, by making Section 2 read 'Section 2, subsection 1. Protection for citizenry' and adding as a subsection 2 the following: 'Subsection 2. The Legislature shall provide for the State of Montana shall refrain from engaging in any monopolistic business. Any such existing monopoly must be dissolved by the Legislature in the first assembly after the adoption of this Constitution or by December 31, 1974. This section does not prevent the Legislature from regulating or taxing according to law.' Signed: Jacobsen and Johnson." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Johnson has proposed an amendment to add a subsection 2 to Section 2—making the present section subsection l-the substance of which is to provide that the Legislature shall refrain from engaging in any monopolistic business and requiring that the Legislature dissolve any such monopolistic businesses as the state may now be in.

Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. President-

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: First of all, may I ask if this is printed and on the desks?

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Yes, it is.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay.
Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. President, fellow delegates. I should state my own personal interest in this. I have no business, at present; I am retired. I have no interest, really, in the liquor business except that I believe that this type of business does not belong in our State of Montana, and we have this opportunity to get it out. Now, according to the annual Montana Liquor Control Board operating statement of 1969 and 1970, after paying expenses and including county licenses and taxes and other income, the total income was just in excess of $12 million. This includes state and county taxes and licenses on beer. I want to retain that net revenue for the State of Montana. I am not recommending any change in the licenses or beer tax on the-or the state or county liquor license taxes. However, I am recommending that the state get out of the liquor sales business from which, after paying in excess of $2,660,000 for expenses, the net income was $4,930,000. I would get this net income by a stamp tax, which would be collected by the distilleries as sales are made to private enterprise and then remitted to the State of Montana. There are many factors that have to be considered in determining the stamp cost to be collected by distilleries; however, as a simple illustration, let us assume that 10 million one-fifth gallon bottles of bourbon, gin and vodka were sold in Montana in the year 1970. No sales of wine or Scotch or other liquors are considered in this example. To raise the $4,930,000, it would simply be necessary for the distilleries to add 50 cents per bottle on this. This would raise $5 million. With competition among retailers for the sale of liquor, the result should be a lower cost to consumers in Montana. The balance sheet of the Liquor Board, as of June 30, 1970, showed an inventory of more than $4 million was in state retail stores and state warehouses. When the State of Montana is no longer involved in the sale of liquor, this $4 million of inventory would become $4 million in cash to be placed either in our general fund or distributed to the cities and towns of our state. This inventory, if carried by private enterprise, would be taxable under a personal property tax laws, as would the independent warehouses and retail buildings. Right at this moment, I'm going to ask the President if he would allow Torrey Johnson to make other remarks on this issue.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. President, thank you. Ladies and gentlemen, I do believe in a private enterprise-free enterprise in Montana and the right to engage in any competitive business. Now, an examination of a report of the Liquor Control Board was done by the Legislative Auditor for fiscal year ending June 30, 1969. This study disclosed many unbusinesslike activities of this state-controlled monopoly. All liquor stores in the State of Montana are regulated by the Liquor Control Board. This board has control over all sales of the liquor and the collection of the revenue. The law grants broad powers to this board, and its powers involve every aspect of controlling the sale of liquor. It is truly a monopolistic bureau. The duties of the board include both retail business powers, as well as governmental control functions. It stands to reason that a body in charge of prohibiting and deciding the sale of certain types of liquor, and also what types to sell, and hiring and discharging employees should not also be in charge of regulatory duties. Some of these regulatory duties include licensing retail liquor and beer dealers, licensing brewers and wholesalers, appointing inspectors to enforce the law, distributing the portion of the taxes to local government, and making regulations necessary to implement liquor laws. It stands to reason that if an agency sets up procedural rules for a business, that same body should not be allowed to set the governmental controls. Since the liquor business in Montana is a monopoly and prices are set by the Liquor Control Board, a large markup percentage has occurred. Domestic liquor is marked up sixty-five and a half percent and imported liquor is marked up eighty-nine and six-tenths percent. Wines are marked on a different scale, and the less-expensive wines are marked up 75 percent over cost and the more expensive wines are marked up 53 percent over cost. The only restriction on the board concerning markup is that there are no wholesale prices and reductions in price for purchases in quantity. So, you buy 20 cases, you don't get it any cheaper than if you buy one bottle, and that-in private dealers-in other states, why, you can always buy whiskey a little cheaper if you buy it in quantity. Now, the entire volume of liquor sales is handled by the Liquor Control Board, yet this board meets only 2 days, once each month. The net income of the liquor monopoly, including beer licenses and taxes, for the fiscal year 1969 was $10 million, that is. It seems that any group having supervisory and regulatory control over such a large amount of business would find it necessary to put forth much more time in order to adequately perform their duties. There is no procedure established for accurate minutes taken at the board's meetings. This has led to some discrepancy between what has actually occurred at the meetings and what has been reported. For example, inspection tours for board members are noted, as well as travel claims, but not the results of the inspections. One board member mentioned that he traveled to another state, but no mention of that trip was included in the records. In one instance, a board member was listed as being in attendance at a scheduled meeting and was credited for seconding a motion when, in fact, that member was absent from that meeting. The minutes reported that the hours of convening and adjourning were usually 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., when the actual adjournment time was well before 5:00 p.m. But that's all right; if they get their work done, I guess they can go home early, you know. Anyway, in a study of the Legislative Council, it was reported that, by any standards, the official minutes of the board are insufficient for a public agency which collects an annual gross revenue of many millions of dollars. The insufficiency and substandard method of record content of the board meetings were part of the observations in a December 1964 report. It is stipulated in Section 2-11(b) of the Board's rules and regulations that the Administrator shall sign all purchase orders. Several purchase orders were not signed by the Administrator, and in some cases additional items were placed on the order after the Administrator had signed it. All liquor is ordered through the central office in Helena. It's oftentimes difficult for the Purchasing Agent to know what the needs of each individual store happens to be, and the Purchasing Agent does not take into consideration the amount of inventory in stores when determining the quantity of merchandise to be ordered. This is just one example of the inefficiency involved when a central authority takes over functions which could be better handled by a private-on the local level and an independent businessman. Each individual liquor store is aware of its own requirements, naturally, and, if operating privately, could more efficiently allocate its own resources. The representatives of distilleries and wineries meet with these members of the Liquor Control Board during their regular monthly meetings, and this is the only time these representatives are allowed to conductbusinessin the State of Montana. They have to leave right away. I think they're only allowed 24 hours in the state-they're real fly-by-nights, you know. It is also during this time that the Board decides what liquors it will purchase, and some distillery representatives have exerted undue influence on some employees and officials at times which were not appropriate for the transaction of business. The employees of the Liquor Control Board cannot best serve Montana or maintain independence through association with representatives whose financial rewards depend on the purchase of certain liquors. Some liquor-imported liquors can be consigned directly to certain churches for sacramental use, and according to this legislative audit, they find that this privilege has been abused several times, and yet there has been no positive means of control established. One of the major unbusinesslike activities of the board is its policies on unsalable liquor. Approximately 31,000 bottles of liquor were suspended from inventory under the pretense of being unsalable or withdrawn by the distiller representative. The cost of this liquor was $72,482, while the potential retail value would have been a hundred and nineteen thousand, eight seventy-six. This resulted in a loss of $47,000 to the State of Montana in markup excise taxes. This unsalable liquor included unusually large quantities of top-selling brands that went through various credit application processes by the distillers, in which they supposedly withdrew their product and supplied credit instead. Eventually the Board recovered part of the cost of this unsalable liquor, but a number of credit memorandums issued by distillers indicated that they consider the cost of unsalable liquor to be a sales promotion expense. Officials were never able to ascertain whatbecameofthegreatestportion of this unsalable liquor, and the audit states--I quote from page 38: "There is no question in our opinion that liquor was illegally removed from the warehouse inventory"-end of quote. A large quantity of liquor was found near the board members' meeting room. This liquor consisted of537 bottles, most of which was repacked in other boxes. Some of the liquor was in the original distiller box and was addressed to various officials of the Board, including the five board members and the administrator and legal counsel. Section 4-153, R.C.M., 1945, states that no member of the board can receive gifts from distillery representatives and must keep accurate records on samples received. Accordingly, no matter how the liquor was removed from the warehouse inventory and distributed, in the opinion of the Legislative Auditor, one or more provisions of the law were violated. Of the 5,000 cases of liquor withdrawn-or the $5,000 cost of liquor withdrawn for unsalable purposes, $2,690 of that supply was on hand at the time of the Auditor's count. The undistributed liquorwas subsequently impounded by the Attorney General. In addition, the Board has no permanent record of invoices prepared for damaged or defective merchandise. There is no policy for personnel requirements, and no formal procedures have been set up to minimize personal and financial risk to the state liquor stores as a result of robberies or holdups. These and many other inefficiencies involved in the Montana liquor business could be solved if the state is taken out of the monopoly as it is now. Private enterprise can and will create a greater revenue for the State of Montana. Now, bureaucracy has its inefficiencies, we all know that, and this is sort of one of those-growing into it, and I'm against the political patronage that goes along with this deal. The fact still remains that, in our system of free enterprise, it's the profit motive that keeps our quality of business high in this state, through competition and a personal stake in the overall outcome. There are only a few of the-1 mean, these are only a few of the hundreds of unbusinesslike procedures to be found in the report on examination, dated June 30th, 1969, by the office of the Legislative Auditor. It's a hundred and fifty-seven pages in length, and it's available to everybody. Read it; you won't like it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman. Torrey, you didn't happen to bring a couple of shots with you, did you? We're going to need it. In support of Mr. Jacobsen's amendment, I would like to offer a few statistics here that will be very brief. As you may know, Montana is one of the 18 so-called "monopoly states". However, 2 of the 18, Wyoming and Mississippi, operate from the wholesale level only. Alabama wholesales miniature bottles and half-pints at the wholesale level. Retailing in these states is left to the licensees. If Montana markup of 38 percent, excluding present state taxes, were applied to Wyoming's sales, their net return would exceed that of Montana's, due to their being able to operate with a working force of only 25 people out of one warehouse in Cheyenne. The retail price of liquor in Cheyenne is competitive with Colorado, of necessity. For example, a half gallon of Ancient Age bourbon sells at retail for $8.60 in Denver and Cheyenne and $11.80 in Montana, a difference of $3.80. In the remaining 32 states, liquor is marketed and sold under a competitively open, free enterprise system, with all control still in the hands of commissioners or, in most cases, the ACB boards-alcohol control boards--which handle taxes, markups, licensing and inspections. In some cases, these control units are established at the local level, rather than state. In six of the free or licensed states of Arkansas, Connecticut, Kansas, Kentucky, Rhode Island and Tennessee, the ACB board establishes a minimum markup in addition to all state and local taxes. This would tend to prove that under the free enterprise system, Montana would not lose the present net profit of 4.9 million, as shown in their 1970 financial report of the Montana Liquor Control Board, but would, indeed, gain an additional 2.6 million now being expended in the operation of the monopoly system. The cost of operating this system appear to be excessive in comparison to other free enterprise businesses throughout the state, ranging at 35 percent of the gross profit. There has been concern expressed at a potential loss of jobs for the 400-some people presently employed by the state. These people, and many more, would be absorbed in the retailing and wholesaling new businesses that would result on this changeover to a new method of operation. I'm sure the consumption would not decrease; in fact, it continues to increase every year. The first year of this proposed change in method of operation would result in a windfall for the state and cities and counties, since the present inventory in the state stores and warehouses would be liquidated. The inventory is in excess of $4 million, at cost, and, when all taxes and markups are applied, would exceed $6 million to be distributed between state, cities and counties. In addition, the $6 million inventory would become taxable at the local level. Fellow delegates, there can be a source of new revenue in this changeover to assist our financially hard-pressed cities and counties. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman, some of this sounds good if you say it quick, and the only way this can pass this group is for us to vote immediately before anybody else thinks much about it, because just as soon as you start to think about it, some other questions will have to be raised. One thing you'll begin to ask yourself is, "Isn't this the same thing that comes up before every Legislature every time it meets? And you begin to say, "Well, yes, we've been reading our papers, and we're quite familiar." This is the same kind of a proposition that comes up each time. It's been turned down again and again. Then you think back a little farther and you say to yourself, "Did this just happen? Did the Liquor Control Board system in Montana drop out of the sky one day, and all of a sudden, we've been saddled with it by demons? Or was there some reason, originally, for going into the Liquor Control Board system?" And you find yourself repeating several times, as you ask these questions, the word "control". But I notice the word "control" has been left out of these conversations mostly. We've been assured that business would not be injured if we do away with the monopoly-state monopoly on this, and if we leave it to private enterprise, we can actually increase the consumption of alcoholic beverages in Montana. And I have no reason to disagree with people who are far more adequately-adequate and capable of discussing that angle than I am.

(Laughter) I simply would like to emphasize the fact that the board is set up in Montana and named the Liquor Control Board because the word "control" is the key word. Why isn't the state in the business of being a monopoly in competition with other kinds of businesses-farm equipment, automobiles, other things? And the answer is obvious to any person who is an adult, knows anything about how we live together in this society-that liquor happens to be one of those things we have licensed in our midst and allows as a society, but we all do it with fear and trepidation because it happens to have so many attendant socialills that we know that it must be controlled, and we are all a little bit squeamish, usually, about the fact that a society like ours, that's supposed to be civilized, has to have it at all. If someone came here today and proposed selling something that would make one out of every nine cows go crazy, run through the fence and on the highway, or commit suicide, or some way die with what the bovine version of DTs, how far would that get with the rural representation? (Laughter) As long as we're talking only about our own kids, of course, it doesn't make much difference. If every airplane that took off and as you bought your ticket, they made you know that somewhere enroute, say, from here and Chicago, at about 40,000 feet, one out of every nine seats would automatically drop out-we didn't know which ones-there'd be very few takers, and the state probably would be in a sort of a frenzy to control that kind of activity. Well, I don't need to go on with the obvious. Now that you are thinking about it, I think that's all we need to do. Several instances have been raised about the things that ought to be changed in the Liquor Control Board system. One thing is, as Torrey said, a lot of sacramental wine is being used. (Laughter) That really worries me, (Laughter) but it doesn't worry me much when I stop to think that there are very few murders committed in church, (Laughter) and yet every newspaper you pick up has the news of a brawl, a shooting, or something else in a bar and where the wine evidently is not sacramental. (Laughter) I'm not-the point simply is that we're not just simply talking about how we can raise more revenue or have more business by taking away a state monopoly, we're talking about the business of control. You see, actually, if something goes wrong in a public agency and a legislative audit uncovers it, then the public can control its public control agency. Now, I don't presume that Torrey and the others meant to say that all individual businesses handling liquor are perfectly managed and that everybody uses good accounting systems and that there is no dishonesty involved in it or any of the rest. It's just that when it gets out of the public specter [sic], we have no control at all over that kind of thing. Now, businessmen can sell more liquor if we turned them loose; I don't rise to argue about that. I think this is a matter of control. It's been left to our Legislature to handle, and I think that we ought to properly vote against this suggestion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the substitute motion. This argument about the various departments of state government, the irregularities in their operation, it isn't only confined to the State Liquor Board. First, I'd like to tell you that I've gone through some investigations of the State Liquor Board years ago-some pretty rank ones-they were straightened up and—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: A little closer to your mouth.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Not so many years ago, I remember one involved the State Board of Equalization, on gasoline tax refunds. I don't think there's a department of government that you can't go run an audit through, particularly pertaining to methods of operation, and find some irregularities. I've not only seen it in the State of Montana, I've seen it in the U.S. government, and I never saw an audit report that didn't show some irregularities. I think that's something we've got to expect and that's really no excuse to try to do away with the State Liquor Control Board, just because there's irregularities there, and I oppose the motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough—Oh, Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Mr. President, I rise in support of the amendment. We, in the committee, felt that Section 2 was a consumer's protection section in the Constitution, so therefore, I think it's rightfully that the liquor consumer should have some protection also.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, I don't know whether I impeached myself the other day on being able to talk about alcoholism, but I'll stay away from the subject of alcoholism and just talk about money. I don't know what the boys in the-down in the Powder River are doing with all that sacramental wine, but as far as finances are concerned, in fiscal '71, our Liquor Board made $13,114,000, and thus far in fiscal '72, it has made $9,328,010. There are 18 of our 50 states have liquor control boards, and I think the thing that's interesting is to compare the amount of revenue that we receive from the booze as compared to how much we consume. In Montana we consume 1.5 gallons per person, per capita, and per capita we make $15.09; whereas, in a noncontrolled state, they consume 1.96 gallons-or almost 25 percent more liquor is consumed per capita in the state—but the revenue is only $11.99—or about $12 per capita. So, they're drinking more booze in the other states and making less money, and several of the states that are so-called "open states" have been looking at Montana's record, not of drinking but of making money, and have become envious of it, and I understand that the great and sovereign state of North Dakota, which is just a few weeks ahead of us with their Constitution, has now decided to become a closed state, like Montana. The estimate from Joe Shea, the Liquor Board, is that we would lose between $4 and $5 million a year--and this is increasing as we consume more booze and that $4 or $5 million is going to have to come from someplace, and it's going to have to come from property tax, and I think what we ought to do is maybe put an additional tax on cattle or land-or tax the land down in Powder River County, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of the amendment?

Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President, I listened quite closely to Mr. Johnson's statistics on the discrepancies discovered by the legislative post-audit, and I followed those quite closely when those were being brought to light, and I think that this is one of the things that really proved to the people of Montana that our legislative post-audit really was working. But since that legislative post-audit in 1969, those discrepancies have been cleared up, so far as I have been able to find out, and the recommendations of the Legislative Post-Auditor have been carried out by our Liquor Control Board. And I have questioned the legislators returning from the Legislature from Yellowstone County several times about this business, because I thought, along with Mr. Jacobsen, that maybe this was the way to go-that we should get out of the liquor business and let private enterprise handle it-and I thought about all those employees that we wouldn't have to hire and all those liquor stores that we could stop renting or building, but I questioned our legislators, and they told me that they had investigated quite closely-they had investigated California and some of these other states--and they said that from everything they could find out, that our liquor control business here in Montana was run better and we made more money than any of these other states, so I would be very hesitant about taking away our Liquor Control Hoard.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, I rise to resist this amendment on two grounds. One, this was a delegate proposal which was referred to the General Government Committee and was the subject of hearings held by that committee, and if-and was rejected by that committee, and if it is to be brought on the floor as an amendment to a committee report, it seems to me it ought to be an amendment to that committee's report, not to this one. And the second reason that I would oppose it is because of the unnecessarily broad language of the amendment, which is designed to get at one specific thing-namely, the liquor monopoly-and yet is so broad as to cover any business whatsoever so long as it's monopolistic, and as I'm sure you are aware, there is a proposal coming on the floor under the report of this committee which relates to the question of certain monopolistic businesses and proposals, granting power to subdivisions of the State of Montana to engage in those businesses. I would hate to see that subject prejudiced at this point by such a broad proposal directed at such a narrow subject. I would also like to take the opportunity to enlarge upon something that Delegate Harper referred to when he said that one of the advantages of having a liquor monopoly is that any hanky-panky that occurs, being that some of it occurs in a public business, is subjected to the limelight of scrutiny by the legislative audit and by others, by the newspapers. I clipped out of the Great Falls Tribune, today, a long article having to do with a quarrel in the State of Nebraska concerning the construction of a nuclearpowerplant for one of the publicly-owned power districts in that state, and I'd like to read you one pertinent paragraph. This is from a-from the New York Times-it was reprinted in the New York Times. "Similar disputes", the author says, "are settled elsewhere behind the doors of corporate board rooms, but this one is difficult to hide because the powerplant is not being built by a privately owned company but by a public power district with a board of directors elected by the 505,000 people of Omaha and the parts of 13 counties in eastern Nebraska." Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on the amendment by Mr. Jacobsen and Mr. Johnson to take the state out of monopolistic businesses.

Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, I wish to briefly augment the information given by Delegate Kelleher. It is a fact that, outside of the gas tax, which we won't talk about here, the liquor monopoly is one of the biggest suppliers ofrevenue in the State of Montana. If you leave out the individual income tax and the corporation license tax, it is next in order. It is even larger than the severance taxes-take, for example, the metal mines tax; in 1970, the last year, it produced $1,440,000. The coal severance tax produced $50,300; the oil production license tax, 3,038,492; the corporation license tax of 6,102,000; individual income tax, 24,877. We can't afford to neglect this very provident supplier of revenue and establish in its place a private enterprise system which flourished so splendidly that it brought us Prohibition.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Vermillion.

DELEGATE VERMILLION: Mr. Chairman, I oppose this amendment, and I think, as Mr. Heliker pointed out, it does go beyond the liquor business. And I would point out that coming up at the end of this week sometime, we'll be discussing the so-called "lottery and gambling provision", and if this Convention should deem-see fit to change that, there are some who say in the future there might be a lottery in the State of Montana. That remains to be seen, but if this particular amendment were passed, it would outlaw a state lottery any time in the future.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Garlington yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. who?

DELEGATE WARD: Garlington.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Garlington is missing.

DELEGATE WARD: How about the Chair? Would you yield, Mr. President?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, I'll hear your question. (Laughter)

DELEGATE WARD: Well, the article is entitled "Nonmunicipal Corporations", and I'm wondering if the state is a municipal corporation, if this could be defined as such.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You're wondering if the state is a nonmunicipal corporation. I don't think that's quite the right way to put it, but some of these other lawyers might correct me. This doesn't say that-your worried about it being in the wrong place?

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman, this committee had no hearings on any type of this proposal, and I don't believe it belongs in this article, and therefore I oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think probably it got here because of the language in Section 2 about protecting the public against harmful and unfair practices. The Chair would prefer that we vote on it. If we adopt it, Style and Drafting would feel free to move it to another section. We've had quite a debate on it. I'd like to get the sense of the body on it. I think I'll still allow them to have it, Mr. Ward. Is there other discussion on the issue?

Mr. Artz.

DELEGATE ARTZ: Mr. Chairman, the idea of getting the state out of the retail industry has intrigued me. Basically, I've gone along-that I think private industry is always more efficient than government. We all realize that democracy is the best form of government, but we know it costs money; and in many instances, private industry, because of the way they operate, can do it cheaper. I was quite intrigued by the hundred and thirty-eight pages of comment in the 1969 audit. I am sure that a good many of these things have been corrected, as Mr. Blaylock said, but I don't think they can be corrected so you go completely as far as private industry could with constant supervision. There are some things thatreally intrigue me in that-possibly they've been mentioned. I enjoyed the fact that the cash control in one store was a little weak, and the lady was short and she said, "Well, I used that money to buy my groceries, but I do put a check in at the end of the month." Mr. Kelleher has been worrying about we'd lose money. The amendment, as I see it, would permit the State Liquor Board to transfer the profit of 4 million in '69 and 5 in '70 from the operation of the state stores to taxes. I believe somebody said that it would take about 50 cents a bottle to replace that money, but the regulation of the taxation is still around. Mr. Harper is worrying about controls. We have the same problems now of controlling liquor sales, because anybody can go to the local tavern and buy it. It costs a little more money, but the controls are there so that it is handled properly. You'll find a few cases where bars do sell to minors, but you would still have the same control. They could be put out of business. I'm not suggesting, by any means, that the state does not retain the right to control and regulate. I would like to see the word "monopolistic" changed some way so that it would not exclude the possibility of public utility districts that will-coming up later, if those were so desired. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Jacobsen, do you want to close?

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: May I close, sir? I have here, ladies and gentlemen, about 35 or 40 letters. And here-one of them reads: "Glad to see someone is doing something to get the state out of the liquor business. This is the place to do this, and not in the Legislature. As you know, the Legislature has been hit with this every timeforthelast 15 or 20 years." Other letters here are very similar, and so on, but they say, "It is heartening to know that one is being represented at the Constitutional Convention by a person with enough courage to make the proposal you have. For years, thinking people have given lipservice to the fact that a state has no right or need to engage in a retail business. It is entirely out of keeping with our American way of life, yet nothing has been done to change the condition until you now move to do so. I support your proposal and wish you success in your effort." And I have a lot of other letters like that, if any of you would like to see them. Galusha, Higgins and Galusha made a report, February 15th, 1971—and this is concerning the state finance statement and showing what they would lose when this was a bill before-they showed that the state would lose $3,906,000 if they went out of the liquor business; and Galusha, Higgins and Galusha came out and said that, using their figures and taking over the leases and the rents and the whole thing, that the state would gain a hundred seventy-five thousand eight hundred and seventy-six dollars. This is a book here that's been passing around. There's a hundred and fifty-seven pages in it, and there's not one good thing to say about this monopoly liquor business. I mean, it's all finding fault. Now, I'll say just one—a few more words. Our ombudsman that we talked about is here-1 find this out-in the Legislative Auditor. He is our ombudsman, and I think that is one of the great things we have done in this Constitutional Convention. "Americans must reform their governmental institutions and make them work, or their free society may not survive. Most state governments are incompetent. All the evidence indicates that we have failed the system. Corruption runs rampant through the systems. We cannot survive long in a free society unless citizens feel that they, themselves, are in touch with their government. Our system is being corrupted by special interests." Most of you have heard these words before, because they were stated by John Gardiner, Chairman of Common Cause, last Thursday, March the ninth. He also stated that four things were needed to help citizens reform government. They are access, responsiveness, accountability and effectiveness. John Gardiner did not know it, but he was speaking partly about a monster bureau we have right here in the city of Helena. It is the monopoly liquor business, which has not been accountable. It is not effective, because there is too much expense. Underhanded business practices have been allowed, for many years, to grow. We know that private enterprise can and does provide a greater benefit than a bureaucracy ever can. Our great nation was actually created by the pioneers, fearless adventurers seeking freedom and a better way of life. Some of these people became the businessmen, both retail and wholesale, along the trails and railroad rights-of-way. These stops and resting places of the early days became the towns and cities we now know. Independent business has been, and is now, the backbone of every community in this way of life of ours. These businessmen and women are the employers, the Chamber of Commerce, and the many other civic groups in every community. Private enterprise is the golden goose that provides not only most of the employment, but a large share of our taxes and other benefits for our schools, special improvements, and so forth. Let's give private enterprise a break by directing the Legislature to take money—Montana out of the liquor business completely except for the directing and policing as they now do, and I-in my proposal, I didn't-I said that the Legislature should set up the controls for that. The state will then receive a greater dividend in the form of taxes and license fees from liquor. Beer licenses and taxes are no problem, nor are gas taxes and tobacco, so it stands to reason that the state can regulate licenses and taxes on liquor so that, at the very least, receive as much as it ever has with the annual increases. Our state liquor stores are open 5 days per week, 8 hours per day.

Under private enterprise, our stores would be open at least 12 hours per day and 6 days per week, giving tourists a chance to leave more of their cash in our state. Also, did you know that at least—that as of last year, according toliquorstore figures, we are 45th out of 50 states in consumption of liquor? So we don't consume very much in our state as compared to some of them. You have heard a few important reasons why the state liquor monopoly should be removed. They are from the legislative audit of June 30th, 1969. A dozen more of the complete reports, consisting of 157 pages, are being passed around this hall. Quite a few people have read them, I believe. I have never read anything so unbusinesslike in my life, and every one of you delegates must realize that we are--only have this one opportunity to rid our great state of this scandalous bureaucracy that will just continue to be a source of distrust in our government. The Legislature, over the years, has not acted; therefore, it is up to us to direct our Legislature to do so as part of the plan to create trust in our people for elected officials. We must create a good moral feeling for our government, and we must be concerned about our state's future by taking bureaucracy out of it. Let us here and now take the advice of John Gardiner and make our great state responsible, effective and accountable to the people. Private enterprise can take this bureaucratic liquor monopoly out of the state competitive business and, through free enterprise, competitive practices, create new industry, new taxes and a healthy business climate with more employment for more people. I sincerely believe that this will create many more dollars than we-that we desperately need for education and other things. We have been told that the state will save at least $2½ million by eliminating this monopoly-this came out of Revenue and Taxation. The state controls, as I stated before, would still be on, and we can do this great thing if we do this. Now, Mr. President, I would like to remove this amendment from this section, if it will be possible to put it in General Government, where it possibly does belong; but I thought that protection in this section, and it states so-protection for our citizens from these things that have happened-it would be a place to have a hearing on it. Thank you, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, now, Mr. Jacobsen, I don't quite understand you. I am a little loathe to withdraw it at the end of the debate. You certainly could reintroduce it in General Government. I don't see any reason you couldn't. It may be appropriate there, too, but are you saying that you now want to withdraw it?

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Unless you would like to move on it here and then give us an opportunity—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, but Mr. Jacobsen—

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: -if need be, to get it back in General Government.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: —you can't shift that burden to the Chair; it's up to you now. It's your motion, and I'm not going to decide whether to decide it or not. You've put it in, and we have had a debate upon it, and people have heard about it, and I just don't like to waste the debate. But you decide whether you want it voted on or whether you don't. I'm not going to decide that.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Well, let's have a vote on it. I'd like a roll call vote.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You'd like a roll call vote. Very well, we're going to have a roll call vote on this issue. So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Jacobsen's motion to add a subsection 2 to Section 2 of the Nonmunicipal Corporations Article by adding the language before you about getting the state out of monopolistic businesses, please vote Aye on the voting machine; so many as are opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, cast the ballot.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 18 delegates have voted Aye, 72 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 72 having voted No and 18 having voted Aye, the motion fails. We're now back on Section 2 of the Non-municipal Corporations Article. Is there further discussion?

Mrs. Reichert.

that there are so many features of our new Constitution which we've fretted about and worried about because we feel perhaps the voters will go against our Constitution if we include them. I feel that this is one area where inclusion will be very helpful. I think that the people of this state deserve a right for consumer protection; therefore, I whole. heartedly support the majority proposal.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises on Section 2 of the committee report. Members of the committee, you have before you, on the recommendation of Mr. Ward that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2, the Non-municipal Corporations Act, that we recommend this be adopted. So many as are in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as are opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's adopted. Section 3, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 3. Cumulative voting. All elections for directors or trustees of incorporated companies shall provide all stockholders the right to vote by person or proxy the number of shares of stock owned by him for as many directors or trustees as are to be elected or to cumulate the shares and give a candidate as many votes as the number of directors multiplied by the number of his shares or to distribute them in a similar manner among as many candidates as he sees fit." Section 3, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman, there's an amendment. Do you have a copy of the amendment to that section?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, shall we read the amendment'?

DELEGATE WARD: Could I have that read at the same time, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read the amendment, too.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 3, page 3, line 21, of the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee proposal by adding the following: 'This section shall not prevent the lawful creation of classes of nonvoting corporate shares of stock and shall not require that their holders vote in elections for directors or trustees of incorporated companies.' Signed: Ward."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward, the Chair would like to know if this amendment is a majority report amendment.

DELEGATE WARD: Yes, it is, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, if it is, members of the body, you have before you this amendment. Does everyone-is it on the desks? Yes, it's on the desks. It's been our practiceto allow the majority report to come in as they want it. I would like to suggest that we quickly allow them to do this, and then we'll consider the whole Section 3 at one time. Is there any objection to that?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, all in favor of adding the sentence that the majority wants added to their majority report, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, this amendment, Mr. Ward, is incorporated in your report. Now, go ahead.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 3 of Proposal 9, that it recommend the same do-be adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman, this section was retained from the old Constitution as a protection to the minority stockholder. During the committee hearings and in consultation with other people, this amendment was presented and it was accepted by the committee, and basically, it's Statutory-I'll agree with Mr. McDonough— but it was felt by the committee and by many people who I contacted that this should be retained. It's covered in the statutes, but at the same time, if these were repealed or amended, it was felt by the committee that this should be retained in our present Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, I guess I was blended in too much with the wall back here and you didn't see me on that last vote that was taken. But my name appears on this majority report, but according to the instructions in the introduction, I would like to be recorded in opposition to that particular amendment. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Are you talking about the amendment that we just took, adding the sentence to subsection 3?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: That's right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, the journal may show that you're in opposition to that, Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Section 3?
Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Mr. Chairman, as a substitute motion, I move to delete Sections 3, 4 and 5 of the majority report, if that's in order.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, I think we'd better take them one at a time. Let's take 3. You can explain that you will move to delete 4 and 5, if you want to, but I have it-we have to do it section by section, and we haven't moved the other.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Well, I think we can just test the waters on one of them. I think the reasons for deleting one are the same for all of them, and I will not make the motion to delete 4 and 5 if the motion to delete Section 3 then fails.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the motion to delete Section 3 is made, and, Mr. Loendorf-and you may discuss it.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Okay. I think everybody here has recognized this is statutory, and I would just like to test the waters and see how much of this statutory stuff we want to put in the Constitution. I really have no particular feelings about this provision. I support it on its merits. In fact, it's found in our present statutory law. It's one of the 140 sections of the new Business Corporations Act, enacted by Montana here within the last 5 or 6 years; and when I look at one of the statutes in the Constitution, I wonder, and I cannot see the difference, why this particular provision deserves constitutional status and the other 139 sections do not. This provision merely deals with how directors of corporations are elected. Now, if this amendment which has been proposed is needed, then for the last 89 years-or 82 years since our Constitution was first adopted, we've been violating that Constitution, because Section 3 is merely a restatement of Section 10 of Article XV of the former Constitution, so I think you can see one of the problems involved in putting statutory matters in a constitution. We already have to have an amendment, or think that we do, before we even have adopted it on the floor.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion?
Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: I might state at this time that Mr. Ward, in the research on this subject, contacted several members of the Bar that are in our membership, and I believe that he would agree that he placed these for your consideration on the basis of the recommendations he received, It was my own personal opinion that practically the entire section here probably could be deleted—that is, Sections 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, and possibly 6-but that, as a matter of courtesy to the other members of the Bar here-and there's a veryrealpossibility they may have something to add-we thought we would leave these sections in for their discussion on the floor. Thank you, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Garlington.

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: Mr. Chairman, I must confess that I have a part of the responsibility for this, and I am the one who composed the amendment that Dr. Ward has very kindly made a part of the majority report. The reason I did that is that the old law does prevent the creation of nonvoting shares of stock and it does prevent the application of one of those sections of the uniform business corporation law that the Legislature adopted, and it came to my attention, especially because it loused up the plans of a client of ours over in Missoula who was trying to make with his own family corporation for his estate, because, in simple terms, he had a small family motel, some children growing up-one of them would stay with the business, the others wouldn't--and he wanted to give part of his corporation to his kids, but he wanted to retain control, and his accountant said, "Well, why don't you just create a nonvoting class of stock, and you keep the voting stock and the kids can have the other, and this will all work out." Well, it was unconstitutional. This is really palpably ridiculous, because what is said here about this statutory material being in the Constitution is entirely correct. If you were to take this book on the comparison of Montana Constitution with other constitutions, Volume V, and turn to Article XV therein, which is where we have all our corporation law, you would find, on page after page, that in Alaska, Hawaii, Michigan, New Jersey, Puerto Rico, the model constitution, it says "no comparable article", "no comparable article", "no comparable article". So, I guess what we have in our Article XV is simply an archaic carryover of the early days of the Copper Kings and the problems they had in those days with them and their railroads and one thing and another. So I make this explanation, Mr. Chairman, just to show how we got into this situation, but I really think that Mr. Loendorf is entirely correct in that we could well delete this material, consistent with the principle that I think some of us have tried to advocate right along, that this Constitution is to be limited to basic, fundamental structures of government and that we should not try to stick turkey feathersinto the constitutional eagle.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is that one of those eagles we were looking for a few weeks ago? All right, is there other discussion?

Mrs. Van Buskirk.

DELEGATE VAN BUSKIRK: I would like to tell the delegates here thatofall thelawyers that we contacted, it seems that each one of them-that these three sections-that one ofthem was their pet, that they did not want to see it deleted from the Constitution. So we figured that of all the lawyers that we talked to and all the other people that were involved in this-that these were the three major sections that they would not like to see deleted and that, as has been mentioned, that they are statutory, but they would not like to see them removed from the statutes, so they would like to see them in the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, I might state that this committee went to the Secretary of State's office, it went to the Auditor's office, it went to the Attorney General--not an official opinion, but from staff. We discussed this for and back, and here was the reason the committee has put this in: we trust the Legislature, but all of a sudden, we get out here and the Legislature could do things and repeal. If we've got something in the Constitution and relating to these corporations, other than municipal, we can protect the people for the long haul and we can also protect the corporation. I think we have to realize there's got to be protection on both sides. And this is the reason. We've known all this is statutory; we've been told this a number of times. And we have seen it, we have looked it over; but in-the committee, in its wisdom, decided that maybe a little bit ofstatutory for the protection of the public in the Constitution wouldn't hurt anything-protecting the public and the corporations; and if we're going to come out here today and say-after some of the things we've put in this Constitution in the last few days, I think we aren't going to make it up here. And I sure hope this motion does not prevail, because the committee, in its wisdom-and it was not easy, we spent hours on this thing to determine we thought it was the best for the State of Montana as a whole.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes. May I ask Mr. Heliker a question? If he is the person who might have the answer to this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE HELIKER: I yield, reluctantly.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Heliker, a young former Montana citizen, who still considers himself that, I think-a graduate of the University-is now working for the state air pollution agency-control agency in Minnesota, and the other day he called to ask about one or two things-just out of interest-and, as an environmentalists, he was trying to stress to me-and I didn't have this section before me and I hardly knew what he was talking about-this matter of cumulative voting. How would this relate to people who were interested in environment? And I'm really asking this as a matter of information.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Beats me. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: In answer to Mr. Harper's question, I think that that question should be aimed at Section 2 instead of Section 3 and-as far as the environment goes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion?

Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I support the motion of Delegate Loendorf. I think that we have to take this seriously. I think there are two points. One is that, right or wrong, to some degree, we will be measured in the work we do here by the length of the document, and if there is not any real clear mandate to include this in the Constitution, I think that, in fact, we would be well to leave it out; but secondly, and probably more important, is that these matters which are admittedly statutory, something that the Legislature really should handle, change from time to time, and something that might be very good and well to preserve at the present time might not be so good 10, 15, 20 years from now. And I think that, in this particular case, that we would be much better to leave it to the statutes and delete it from the Constitution and then allow-if the situation changes for some reason 20 years from now, allow the Legislature to update the situation as it sees fit at the time that the problem arises. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, this particular section has been in the Constitution for all these many years, since the first one was written, with the exception of the last sentence. Yes, the amendment made by Mr. Ward. Now this particular section was Mr. Mahoney's baby, I believe, and I'd like to ask Mr. Mahoney a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I'll yield, please.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Charley, as I recall when we discussed this in committee-and incidentally, I wasn't consulted on this amendment, therefore I'm in the same class with Mr. Scanlin, I guess, although I don't necessarily oppose it-but I would like to ask you, since it seems to me that you were opposed to such an amendment, whether you now accept it and, if so, just exactly what is your reasoning on that?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Well, Mr. Chairman, I might state this: that in the first place, I was bothered about a number of kinds of stock, and the reason-1 was thinking-I could see mutual funds, I can see a lot of these things that are getting in now to take the people's money; so this is where-now I discussed this with Mr. Ward, and out of deference to Mr. Garlington, this is how's they come that they said they-it wouldn't affect the mutual funds or these out-of-state operators, that I could see happening. And this is why I am supporting that amendment, Mr. Heliker-is that it won't affect mutual funds or those; then we have a different kind of stock. This is my understanding of it.

DELEGATE HELIKER: May I ask further?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Yes, I'll try.

DELEGATE HELIKER: You don't feel that this added sentence subverts the purpose of the old section?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Well, I don't think this works the part of the cumulative voting-this is what-that one of the main things we discussed in this section was the cumulative voting so that minor stockholders could get somebody on the board-this was the main thing, was my reasoning in there-was letting the minor stockholders get somebody on the board and cumulative voting; and I don't think it's hurting it as bad as maybe we-1 may think. Now, Mr. Garlington has explained his idea on it.

DELEGATE HELIKER: May I ask another question?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, isn't the effect of this amendment to keep minority stockholders from getting on the board?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: No, I wouldn't concede that point. I'll see if I can find it right here. I wouldn't say that. I-"The section shall not prevent the lawful creation of classes of nonvoting corporate shares of stock and shall not require their holders vote in elections for directors or trustees of incorporated companies." Now, Mr. Ward went into this much deeper than I would, and than I did, and I'd like to have Mr. Ward answer on this particular section. He went into it much deeper than I did, and he told me it was all right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman, I think Mr. Harper didn't get a very good answer from Mr. Heliker on his question as to how cumulative voting could be used by environmentalists. I think the obvious answer is that a group of environmentalists, under cumulative voting, could acquire a director on the board who would be favorable to their position.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Drum.

DELEGATE DRUM: Mr. Chairman, I would like to bring another point out that I don't believe has been brought out. In the codes, in the statutes we now--under which we now operate, the model business corporation act provides for the wording that we have in Section 3. Now, this model business corporation act is, as I understand it, a uniform law that the American Bar Association has quite a little to do with, and it's sort of a national agreement of the ground rules under which we operate. Say a corporation in Montana were to-say it wanted to go public in the national, or sell stock publically. If sometime during its life the model business corporation act were to change its ground rules, so that the corporation act were to change nationally, but because it is written into our Constitution in Montana, it were prohibited—the corporation that is a Montana resident were prohibited from complying with the national act, then the stock in that company would be much less desirable and maybe difficult to sell in many states around the country. So this-by writing this into our Constitution, we may be precluding the possibility of corporations coming into Montana and setting up with Montana as a home base, or it may encourage Montana corporations which may some-at some point in their life, desire to become a public corporation-they may move to another state because of the lack of compliance. So I would suggest that we leave it in the statutes, where it can be changed by the Legislature at a later time. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on whether or not to delete Section 3, on Mr. Loendorf's motion. Is there other debate? You want a roll call vote? Very well, all in favor of Mr. Loendorf's motion to delete Section 3 in its entirety from the Nonmunicipal Corporations Article, please indicate so by voting Aye on the voting machines; and opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 67 delegates have voted Aye; 25 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 67 delegates having voted Aye, 25 No, Section 3 is deleted. Will the Chair-clerk read Section 4.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 4. Long-short-haul clause. No transportation company shall be allowed to charge, under any penalties which the Legislative Assembly shall prescribe, any greater charge for the transportation of freight or passengers to any place upon its route than it charges for the transportation of the same class of freight or passengers to any more distant place upon its route within this state." Section 4, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 4 of Proposal 9, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: The-this Section 4 is taken from Section 5 of the old Constitution. And during our research, we find that all transportation companies are regulated by ICC regulations-that's interstate transportation companies. This is the only statute on the books to-in the Constitution that we found that regulates intrastate railroads. At this time we have three railroads in the state-intrastate railroads-one from Anaconda to Butte, there's one up in the northeastern part of the state, and then, in the future, we don't know what's going to happen to some of these coalfields in eastern Montana. So it was-the consensus of the committee was to leave this in the Constitution as is.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Roeder.

DELEGATE ROEDER: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to support Mr. Loendorf's motion to delete this. I think we can, by statute, take care of future John D. Rockefellers employing this device—unfair competition-and if this is retained in the Constitution, I'm posting notice that I will submit an amendment to require the Butte-Anaconda-Pacific to retain a passenger ticket agent.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, at the moment we don't have an amendment. Mr. Loendorf, do you want to make one?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I'll so move now, Mr. Chairman, that we delete Section 4 of the majority report. I think it's obviously statutory, and I have just noted that the Legislative Council report-your report Number 6 recommends its repeal and states that none of the other six Constitutions which they studied had a similar provision. The previous constitutional preparatory commission in this state recommended its repeal in report Number 7, and looking at the Constitutions of Illinois, which was just passed, and the proposed Constitution of North Dakota, they handle private corporations with the one sentence, in the case of Illinois, and it took North Dakota two. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion?

Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: We-this is put in here at the suggestion of the Railroad and Public Service Commission. This is not put in here—they said they thought it was necessary, there was no question about it; and they have asked for it. Now if we should decide here that the former Legislative Councils in all these studies know more than the Railroad Commission, then we vote her out.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion?

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President, I would like to ask a question of any member of the committee. Mr. Ward, in connection with this Section 4, if this were out, would there be anything in our Constitution which would prevent the Burlington-Northern from charging a lower rate from Seattle to Minneapolis than they charge for hauling the same amount of goods in Montana, mileagewise, from Butte to Minneapolis?

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Habedank, I think as long as you're crossing state boundaries that this would be regulated by ICC.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: That would be covered entirely by the federal long-short-haul clause, then?

DELEGATE WARD: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue arises on Mr. Loendorf's motion to strike or delete Section 4 in its entirety. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, vote Aye on the voting machines; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 53 delegates voting Aye, 38 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 53 delegates having voted Aye and 38 having voted No, the Section 4 is deleted. Will the clerk read Section 5.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 5. Watered stock provision. No corporation shall issue stocks or bonds except for labor done, services performed, or money or property actually received, and all fictitious increase of stock or indebtedness shall be void. The stock of corporations shall not be increased except in pursuance of general law, nor without consent of those persons holding a majority of the stock first obtained at a meeting held after notice given in pursuance of law." Mr. Chairman, Section 5.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 5, Proposal 9, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: This is another-the same section as Section 3. The same-1 shouldn't have very much to say about this. We retained this section for the same purposes that we did Section 3.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Mr. Chairman, as a substitute motion, I'll move to delete it, again for the same reasons that we deleted subsection 3-m Section 3, rather.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, On Section 5, Mr. Loendorf has a motion to delete Section 5 in it's entirety.

Mr. Loendorf, do you want to discuss it?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I'll discuss it only if I have to close, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue arises on Mr. Loendorfs motion to delete Section 5 in its entirety. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. Will the clerk read Section 6.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 6. Retrospective law prohibition. The Legislative Assembly shall pass no law, retrospective in its operations, which imposes on the people a new liability in respect to transactions or considerations already passed." Mr. Chairman, Section 6.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 6, Proposal 9, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: This is another protective-protection from the Legislature. This comes from Section 13 of the old Constitution, and this is one article that both the council and the commission recommended retaining in the Constitution. They recommended it-passing it to the Legislative Article. The Legislative Committee was contacted, and they looked it over and sent it right back to us. So, we have retained it except for deletion of-we deleted "county and municipal subdivisions of the state". Otherwise, the reading and the intent is the same.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman, would Delegate Ward yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward?

DELEGATE WARD: I yield.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Jack, would you explain to me what the difference is between this Section 6 of yours and the section that we passed in the Bill of Rights, which says that no ex post facto law nor law impairing the obligation of contracts--and goes on-can you explain what the difference is?

DELEGATE WARD: You may have to call on some of the legal counsel, but I was told that the ex post facto law pertained to criminal cases, whereas this law wouldn't. If I'mincorrect, I think maybe we could call on Mr. Berg.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The section in the Bill of Rights is Section 31, if you happen to want to look at it.

Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: That is correct. Ex post facto laws relate only to criminal proceedings. The retrospective laws which are referred to by this section would apply to civil matters, as distinguished from criminal. And insofar as the prohibition against the-1 can't recall offhand— against contracts thatmaynot be-1 can't recall— the wording is my problem offhand. Do you have the wording there in the Bill of Rights? That's what I-I can't recall it, exactly.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Read him the Bill of Rights, Mr. Foster. Section 31.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman. It states: "No ex post facto law nor law impairing the obligation of contracts or making any irrevocable grant of special privileges, franchises or immunity shall be passed by the Legislature." Now it seems to me that that provision covers it, and I would like to ask Delegate Dahood to yield to a question, if—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE FOSTER: It was my understanding, in the discussion of the Bill of Rights, that this provision does go beyond the area of purely criminal cases; now am I mistaken in that? Is this-?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: The Bill of Rights provision?

DELEGATE FOSTER: Yes.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Yes, it does. The Bill of Rights provision, with respect to the other language, Mr.-Delegate Berg, does extend to all matters. That's correct.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think the question these civilians are asking you lawyers is whether Section 6 is necessary in view of the other language in Section 31. Does any other lawyer want to hazard a guess?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman, in order to get this matter off the floor and to get me in my seat, I submit that-it was my understanding that the provision WC had in the Bill of Rights would cover the subject in Section 6, and unless someone shows me to be wrong, I would move to delete that section. But I'll leave that question for the moment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, in comparing the two sections, there is language in present Section 6 which is before the Convention at this time-before this committee-that would perhaps extend a protection beyond what is within the Bill of Rights section. Within the Bill of Rights section, we provide there shall be no law made impairing the obligation of contract. Now this Section 6 is-indicates the Legislative Assembly shall pass no law. It conceivably could be that some law could be passed that would tend to affect a legal situation, as contemplated by 6, thatwould not impair the obligation of contract. Quite frankly, for that reason, I would be inclined to want to leave Section 6 as it is. If there is some doubt as to whether or not the people are receiving full protection, I would much rather resolve that doubt in their favor and leave Section 6, to make sure that all those avenues are covered and protected.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Would Mr. Swanberg yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: I yield.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Could Section 6 in any way be interpreted to prohibit the Legislature from enacting laws protecting the public safety, health and welfare that might override or supersede a contractual right?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Say that again, Mac, will you.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: I don't know; I'm just asking the question. Would Section 6 prevent the Legislature from enacting a law relative to the public's health, safety and morals, such as a sanitation law, which would override a contractual right, a previous contractual right? In other words, if the Legislature wanted to tighten up the sanitation standards and there was a contract that said that they must conform to certain standards, would that prevent the Legislature from doing that?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: I don't think it would prohibit that kind of a statute.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Felt.

DELEGATE FELT: One possible application of this Section 6, I think, would be in connection with taxation. For instance, if we were a legislative body, we could not now impose a tax on a transaction that occurred in the year 1971. And this would make it certain that you could not impose a liability on something that occurred prior to the date of the enactment of the law.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I can't refrain from rating the interesting comment that the preparatory commission made on this section-the preparatory commission that preceded this one. They noted that although the Legislative Council recommended that the present Section 13 of Article XV be deleted, the Judicial Subcommittee recommended that this section be retained and transferred to the Legislative Article. They then say, "This section is probably obsolete and not necessary. It could be revised, the Legislative Assembly shall pass no law retrospective in its operations." Very confusing, I think, of the people who prepared the research.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The Chair understands the issue to be on Section 6, retrospective law prohibition, and the Chair does not have any amendments at the moment.

Mr. Ward, do you want to close?

DELEGATE WARD: Yes, Mr. Chairman, When the committee drew up this new article on the-on this Section 6, at that time we were going by what was in the old Bill of Rights and we didn't have the new Bill of Rights, but I think for the protection of the people and everything else, I'd prefer to retain it if possible. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, Mr. Foster, I don't want any misunderstanding here. The Chair did not-the Chair understood that you did not make a motion, you just suggested a motion; is that right?

DELEGATE FOSTER: Well, in case there's some question, I will move to delete the section. I think that the provision in the Bill of Rights covers it, and I think there might be some question of conflict between the two, and I personally would like to see it deleted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The Chair will allow Mr. Foster's motion to delete Section 6. Now we'll debate it.

Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: I rise to resist the motion to delete. The impairment of a contract provision in the Bill of Rights is not as broad as the retrospective action proposed by this section—and which we have always had-except that it is broadened here. It would, as Mr. Felt suggests, take care of a situation where a tax has been imposed, so that on a retroactive basis that would be prohibited so far as the Legislature is concerned now; and I think that's a very valid reason and purpose for continuing this provision in the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman, I may have missed this along the line, but in case we do decide to retain this-and it seems to me pretty iffy when there is so much hesitation about what the meaning is. In what way has this been broadened from what we have had before, exactly, Mr. Ward?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: As I stated before, Mrs. Eck, the removal of-"county and municipal subdivisions" was deleted from-as stated in the old Constitution. So I presume that it-the wording was changed but the main meaning is still there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

'DELEGATE ECK: Would Mr. Ward yield to another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward?

DELEGATE WARD: I yield.

DELEGATE ECK: In other words, it's really been narrowed so that this just applies to the state, whereas it used to apply to subdivisions also?

DELEGATE WARD: Well, you'd have to have one of the legal minds do this interpretation, but I would say it would apply to any transaction that has a new liability to the people, any place.

DELEGATE ECK: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: I just wish to say that I support Mr. Foster's motion to delete, because of the fact we actually don't all know what it means, and if-does-we don't know what it means, we should delete it out of the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Members of the committee, you have before you Mr. Foster's motion to delete Section 6.

Mr. Foster, do you want a roll call?

DELEGATE FOSTER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of deleting Section 6, vote Aye; so many as shall be opposed to deleting Section 6, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 24 delegates voting Aye, 61 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 61 having voted No and 24 Aye, Mr. Foster's motion fails. We're back on Section 6. Is there further discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Members of the committee, you have before you for your consideration, on the recommendation of Mr. Ward that when this committee does arise and report after having had under consideration Section 6, that we recommend the same be adopted, All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman, I move we stand in recess until 3:45 this day.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is to recess until 3:45. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(The Committee recessed from 3:25 p.m. to 3:45 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The committee will be in session. Ladies and gentlemen of the committee, we had finished the Nonmunicipal Corporations Article. And now, if you will turn, on public health schedule, to page 13, we'll take up Institutions and Assistance. Very well, Mr. Clerk, will you read Section 1, and the-the title and Section 1 of Institutions and Assistance?

CLERK SMITH: "Be it proposed by the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee: that there be a new article on Institutions and Assistance to read as follows: 'Section 1. Institutions. Such institutions as the public good may require shall be established and supported by the state as may be prescribed by law.'" Section 1, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Mr. President, I move that when this Committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1 of the Institutions and Assistance Article of the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry report, do recommend that the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: This section and the old section in the present Constitution, which will be found on page 27 of the yellow book, are practically the same except that our section does not specify the institutions which they can set up. The old section did, and we saw no advantage in this specification. I might also add that the only real problem we had with it was the soldiers' home, and we met some resistance in that area. Some felt that the soldiers' home, I believe it's in Columbia Falls, should have some constitutional mention; the majority of your committee did not see why that should be necessary, and so we stuck with the general enumeration. I might add, also, that the Legislature has plenary power, as it is, to establish these institutions and that if the section were deleted, there would be no loss. The majority of your committee, however, felt that this probably should be a step left to the body as a whole.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Rygg, you have an amendment; do you want it read?

DELEGATE RYGG: Would you read it, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well; the clerk read Mr. Rygg's amendment.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 1, page 13, being lines 8 through 10, by deleting the section in its entirety and inserting in lieu thereof the following language: 'Such institutions, including homes which may be necessary and desirable for the care of veterans, as the public good may require may be established and supported by the state as may be prescribed by law.' Signed: Rygg."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg proposes an amendment which would delete the language of Section 1 in its entirety and substitute therefor this other language that you have before you: "Such institutions, including homes for veterans, as the public good may require", has the effect of including this parenthetical phrase, "including homes which may be necessary and desirable for the care of veterans", into the language of the committee.

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman, this amendment is offered on behalf of a good number of veterans, not only in the Columbia Falls area, but from various parts of the state. They seem to feel that the Veterans' Home is really not an institution because, they say, one has to be committed to an institution. The Veterans' Home is now under the Board of Institutions, and they wanted this wording enlarged to include the understanding that they didn't have to be committed but be could just apply for residency. Now, I suppose I could quote Mr. Nutting, as he said yesterday, and say, "This is rather innocuous and won't take much room and make a lot of people happy", but I think it goes deeper than that and shouldn't be treated that lightly. These veterans want their dignity preserved, and they feel that this is one way of accomplishing that. Now, Isupposemaybe it's proper that I say I am on the advisory board of the Veterans' Home in Columbia Falls, if you think that would make any difference in my thinking, and I did go to the committee chairman and tell him of this amendment, so it isn't exactly a surprise to him. But I do feel that the veterans all over the state would really think that their rights were being protected if we could be allowed to put this in the Constitution. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Mr. President, I resist the proposed amendment, for the reasons which I stated a few moments ago and for the additional reason that Section 35 of the Bill of Rights Article provides the people declare that Montana servicemen and servicewomen and veterans may be given special consideration, determined by the Legislature. I think the real worry that the veterans have is that this home in Columbia Falls, once it's taken out of the Constitution, would probably be abandoned by the Legislature. I think, with-the inclusion in the Bill of Rights of this section saying that veterans shall be given special consideration will prove to be a very good foundation and a very good argument for those who want to see the home retained. And for this reason, I would resist the amendment. As for as providing for the Veterans' Home in the majority article, I would have no objection to the inclusion of the two words "and facilities" after the word "institutions", in line 8 on page 13. The section would then read, "such institutions and facilities as the public good may require". This would take away the stigma of the word "institutions" applied to the veterans who lived in that home and might go a long ways towards solving Mr. Rygg's objections to it. So I would move at this time that Section 1 of the Institutions and assistance Article-yes, article-on page 13-be amended, on page 8, by adding the two words "and facilities" after the word "institutions".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, I'll consider that a substitute motion for Mr. Rygg's motion. And we now have Mr. Swanberg making a substitute motion to add the words "and facilities" after the word "institutions"-"such institutions and facilities as the public good may require shall be established and supported by the state." You may discuss both Mr. Swanberg's and Mr. Rygg's amendment at once, it seems to me.

Mr. Siderius.

DELEGATE SIDERIUS: Mr. Chairman, I support Mr. Rygg's amendment. I've had quite a little-quite a few letters on this issue, and if we don't do anything else but make-satisfy the veterans, I support this amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Rygg yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg?

DELEGATE RYGG: Yes, I'll yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Sterling, does this include private institutions, like here in Helena?

DELEGATE RYGG: No, I'm sure—private institutions?

DELEGATE CONOVER: Like the Crittenton Home.

DELEGATE RYGG: I'm sorry, I didn't hear the question, Mr. Chairman. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Private institutions like the Crittenton Home?

DELEGATE RYGG: Like the Crittenton Home here in Helena? Well, no, this refers only to institutions under the Board of Institutions, as I read this, Mr. Conover.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Melvin.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Will Mr. Rygg yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg?

DELEGATE RYGG: Yes, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Rygg, where is the soldiers' home presently, is it statutory or constitutional?

DELEGATE RYGG: Well, I think its-1 don't know if it's listed in that section or not. I don't know if it is. I thought it was just statutory, but, they tell me it is listed in the Constitution now and it was removed in this-by this committee. Is that correct? So it is in the Constitution now, and it has been removed by the committee.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: I'd like to stand, Mr. President and fellow delegates, in support of Sterling's proposal. Our veterans up there are very, very happy. We have just recently built a new addition to the home. This is a home for them; they're happy there. And some of you are possibly veterans and may one day wish to go there. And it's in a beautiful valley. I think that the least we can do is keep them in our new Constitution as veterans.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Lorello.

DELEGATE LORELLO: Would Mr. Rygg yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg?

DELEGATE RYGG: Yes, I'll try, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE LORELLO: Mr. Rygg, when Mr. Swanberg added these two words over here, does that do what you want to do in your amendment?

DELEGATE RYGG: Well, it doesn't do what the veterans want to do; no.

DELEGATE LORELLO: I will support Mr. Rygg in this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Choate.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of Mr. Rygg's motion, and I do note that under Article X, Section 1, of our present Constitution, it does provide for the soldiers' home, such other institutions as public good may require. So it appears that it is constitutional, and I think it should remain so.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, for to get the benefits straight, I voted against this article, and if you'll look-so that there'll be no question about it-on page 53, I voted NO-SO YOU won't think I'm deserting the committee, I voted No and the very reason-the first thing I said when this came in was that will-this could close the soldiers' home. Now I happen to know they've had some troubles in the past. There's not too many there. But I feel that the veterans of this state have worked; they've got a new building; they've got a lot of things. And I certainly would like to see this maintained in the Constitution, because here's what's bothering me-there's a move underfoot in the last session of the Legislature to limit membership. All of a sudden, they went down here to the school that--out of Twin Bridges and said you can only have so many. Now they are talking of moving the girls' school down to the boys' school at Miles City. And I just like to hold these soldiers pretty solid there, and I think they've done a great thing for this country, and let's leave the soldiers' home in, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker. I'll get back to you in a minute, Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, I have no objection to Mr. Rygg's amendment. We've had a lot of-how shall I say-flak on the subject. I would like to ask Mr. Rygg a question; I hope I'm not repeating one that's already been asked, Sterling.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Is the veterans group aware of this, and do they approve of this particular language?

DELEGATE RYGG: Yes, they are aware of the language that was in there, and they-as far as I know, they approve of it. I have-1 wrote to them several days ago. And actually, the language came from Mr. Kellner, at my request of some way of including it in there.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes, it was my recollection that this language was that suggested by the veterans group. Actually, it doesn't accomplish what they would like to accomplish, which is the guarantee that the soldiers' home be maintained at Columbia Falls. And if I remember correctly-and Mr. Mahoney can correct me if I'm wrong-that the fight in the Legislature was about removing the location of the home. Nevertheless, it always seems to me to be a good buy when you can get something for nothing, and it doesn't seem to me we're giving away anything and we may be avoiding some trouble, because this particular group is very well organized and very adamant about this; and even though they probably aren't accomplishing what they'd like to accomplish, nonetheless, I accept the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, I rise to oppose the amendment and offer a substitute motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, we've got a-let's see. We've got an amendment-we've got a substitute motion, but I'll hear it. Maybe it's an amendment to Mr. Swanberg's motion, and then it could be allowable; if not, you can explain it.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: My substitute motion would be simply to add another sentence to Section 1 saying the soldiers' home at Columbia Falls shall remain inviolate forever. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I don't know that the Chair can effectuate that amendment, but—

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: To answer Mr. Heliker's question, I think that this is exactly what they would want. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. You want to make that amendment; is that right, Mr. Scanlin?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, have you got it in writing? Okay. Very well, Mr. Scanlin has an amendment which we will consider an amendment to Mr. Swanberg's amendment, Mr. Swanberg having put in "such institutions and facilities". So what we'll do with Mr. Scanlin's is-we'll put in Section 1 as it originally was, without the word "and facilities" and add the following sentence thereafter: "So the soldiers' home at Columbia Falls to remain inviolate forever". Now we will discuss Mr. Scanlin's motion. Mr. Scanlin do you care to discuss it further?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'll let Mrs. Speer talk after I know that you're through with your motion, Mr. Scanlin.

(Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, do you accept it? The Chair has to know what to do here. Do you want it changed that way now?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: No, no. (Laughter) Delegate Speer just withdrew.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Mr. Scanlin's amendment?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Scanlin, does this mean that you accept the inevitability of war? Very well, is there any further discussion of Mr. Scanlin's amendment?

Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Well, Mr. President, I would oppose it for the same reasons that were outlined when I gave the majority comments. It was the majority of your committee's belief that every institution should stand on its merits, that it should not receive any artificial infusions or props by way of constitutional recognition. We give no constitutional recognition to any other institution here, and I see no reason why the Veterans' Home in Kalispell—or Columbia Falls should be propped up this way. There may come a time when it's most undesirable to have such a home. I can't really see that happening, but it could occur. Now I'm a veteran. I don't recall any great amount of pressure on me to come over here and support this. I have received some letters, but I don't recall any great amount of pressure. And I thought that we had got over this after the anti-diversion discussions that we had-discussions in other areas of the Constitution; I thought we had recovered from this fear of the numerous pressure groups around the state who were going to sack this Constitution if we didn't give in to them; and I think that's what we're doing here. It's my understanding that almost every time the Legislature meets, it considers this soldiers' home situation. Now these people are not disabled; they're just elderly, and they go up there and live. And I guess it is a pretty good deal for them, and I certainly don't hold it against them-it's fine and dandy. But bear in mind we are using public funds for this. The federal government has long since established institutions of a similar nature for the semi-disabled veteran; and while it may be desirable to recognize our veterans in this way, we must remember that we are considering public money on a very limited basis. I don't know what the capacity is-1 think it's only 40 or 50; if I'm wrong, well, okay, I'm wrong-but it just doesn't seem to me that we should be giving this artificial recognition for this one institution. And so I would resist all of these amendments. But I would recognize the word "facilities", and I also, again, reiterate that Section 35 of the Bill of Rights Article does state that special consideration shall be given to veterans, so I think with those two provisions in there, it would actually be a long, long time before that home was ever abandoned, if ever.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman, I rise and state once again my bias in this case as a member of the League of Women Voters. We did about a 4-year study on state institutions. I think all through this we realized that of all the institutions, the only one which had a group representing and lobbying for them was the Veterans' Home, and they would keep telling us that what they really needed was an alumni association, and somehow the institutions don't ever seem to be able to establish one. But I would think that, if we're going to consider institutions, we ought to consider special consideration for the aged who are in our institutions, the mentally retarded, those who-juvenile delinquents, and some of them who really aren't so delinquent, who are cared for in our institutions. I think each one of the institutions in this state has a hard time presenting its case. There used to be a time when they would each come individually to the Legislature and lobby for their own cause. I think that the Board of Institutions has done a great job, and I would give a lot more credence to this if the request came from the Board of Institutions. I don't think that they would come to us with such a request. And, you know, I thought, to begin with, this was somewhat of a facetious discussion; if it's not, I rise to oppose it. Even if it is, I rise to oppose it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Siderius, you were next.

DELEGATE SIDERIUS: Mr. President, I'd like to read to you a paragraph out of a letter I think maybe more of you have received, but I'll read one paragraph out of there. This is from the Veterans Council of Flathead County, Kalispell, Montana. "We only hope the delegates to the Montana Constitutional Convention understand that the veterans of Montana have never considered our Veterans' Home as an institution. It is a home earned by the veteran, and he makes application to live there. People of all walks of life are committed to an institution. The veteran is not this type of person. There may be some, but they don't reside at the Veterans' Home at Columbia Falls, Montana." Now a copy of this letter was sent to Mike Mansfield, and here's his answer: "This will acknowledge the receipt of the resolution adopted by the Flathead United Veterans Council, petitioning Montana Constitutional Convention to provide for a permanent establishment in-of a Montana Veterans' Home. I am certain that the Constitutional Convention will give this proposal their serious consideration. As you know, it is a matter entirely under the jurisdiction of the Convention, but I certainly will watch their activities in this great interest. With best personal wishes, I am sincerely yours, Mike Mansfield."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: I just wanted to clear up a couple of points. The federal government does contribute something-I think it's about $4 a day-to the veterans, and I think the cost of the home there runs about $8 per person, if I'm not wrong; it's right in there. And I think the-right now, they have about a hundred there. It's a building that was built a few years ago; it's one new building and the drawing board is ready for a 40-bed nursing home. Just so you get a little better picture of what it is there. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Would Mr. Rygg yield to a few questions, please, sir?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg?

DELEGATE RYGG: I'll try.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. Rygg, if we accept your amendment, is it your feeling that the Convention should indicate by this acceptance that no institutions presently established in the state, especially the Veterans' Home at Columbia Falls, not be moved?

DELEGATE RYGG: Well, my particular motion didn't state it should stay in Columbia Falls. I said that's exactly what the veterans wanted. I don't think it means none of them could be moved. Was that your question?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes. It is your feeling that all institutions presently established, should we-if we accept your amendment, should remain as they are?

DELEGATE RYGG: Well, I couldn't truthfully say that; no.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: All right. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Will Mr. Scanlin yield for a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Scanlin?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mr. Scanlin, as I understand your amendment, if we run out of veterans, we still have to keep the Veterans' Home for the rest of the time the Montana Constitution is in effect; is this your intent?

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Holland, I see no way that forever we're going to run out of veterans.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: God love you, I hope you're wrong.

DELEGATE RYGG: I hope so, too.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: I have this observation. There was onedelegateproposal here which I didn't think considered-had enough consideration. That was Delegate McKeon's proposal that all of the various institutions remain where they are. Delegate McKeon living in a districtthat has all of them in them, I didn't, well, blame him. And I'm willing to go along with Mr. Rygg's proposal. I do think that-1 do hope that someday that we will run out of veterans, Dan; but I think Sterling's would be probably more practical.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Scanlin, do you want to close?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, Mrs. Eck has raised a very serious dilemma on my part. I didn't want to insist on a roll call vote on this matter, but I was hoping I could withdraw without being accused of being facetious; I mean I was half serious on this thing. Here we have a special interest being given special attention in the Constitution, and I object to that kind of a tactic; and consequently, I will withdraw my substitute motion and support the committee as amended by Delegate Swanberg and hope that that will satisfy the delegates of this Convention. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Scanlin's amendment is withdrawn. The issue is now on Mr. Swanberg's amendment to add the word "and facilities" to Mr. Rygg's amendment, so that it says "such institutions and facilities as the public good may require". Is there further discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you want to close, Mr. Swanberg?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Just a few more comments, Mr. President. I think a lot ofyou members here are a little worried about the veteran vote, and perhaps a few of you may be thinking about the political aspects of this, but keep in mind, please, that we have a question of priorities here, as brought out by Mrs. Eck. Certainly it's a nice thing for our veterans to have this home-nobody argues that-but it's only for a very few veterans, really. I don't know how many are up there; I said 40 or 50, maybe 200. Out of the thousands of veterans we have here in Montana, only just a few hundred enjoy this home up there in Kalispell. Now, consider we're spending a considerable amount of money up there for this purpose. These people are not ill; they're simply elderly veterans who have received this special consideration. Think how much more desirable it might be used-if this money were used for a small home for the mentally retarded children. Think of the thousand and one real cases of need we have in this state for things of this nature which are not now being used, and then compare that with this home in Kalispell which, desirable though it may be, should not rank as high in order of need as some other needs which we have. And I hope when you consider this, you will vote in favor of this amendment. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Swanberg's amendment to add the word "and facilities" to the first line of Section 1.

Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, I'm sorry that I've-Is Sterling Rygg's thing gone now?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, it's not gone; it's second.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Okay. So all we're doing is adding "facilities" to the present language of the committee?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: He's adding "facilities", and then after that, we'll have to consider what happens. But he substituted that for Mr. Rygg's.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Well, that sounds a little more palatable, yeah.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And then if his passes, we'll have to consider whether Mr. Rygg wants to continue his or redo it.

Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: The motion was made by Rygg to amend, was it not?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion was made by Rygg to amend, and he amended by putting in a sentence in the middle.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman, I think the engine has jumped the tracks; it jumped the roadbeds going up the cowpath. (Laughter) I think that we must consider Rygg's motion first.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, now, Mr. Aasheim, I just take these as they come. And Mr. Swanberg made another amendment, and he made it in the form of a substitute amendment, which struck Rygg's and put back in his original one, with just the word "and facilities" added, as a substitute motion for Mr. Rygg's. Now if you want to reach Mr. Swanberg's, you may reach it either by-it doesn't make much difference whether you oppose or support the one to add "facilities". When we get the word "facilities" either in or out, then you'll be able to support or put in Mr. Rygg's again if you want to; but I have to take them as they come.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman, the motion was to delete. We're deleting the section, and as long as we're deleting, we can't be amending it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. I'll go over it once again with you, as the Chair sees it. The motion was to delete Section 1 and add language, and the Chair has the language and so have you. Now the language happened to be the same as Section 1, with a parenthetical expression in it. All right, then we were considering that. Then Mr. Swanberg came along and made a substitute motion to delete Section 1 as Mr. Rygg had put it in and put his own back with the word "and facilities" in it; so we are on that now. Don't worry, Mr. Aasheim, you'll get a chance to amend it again if you like.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I'm not worried; I'm just trying-I'm just trying to see-to keep Mr. Rygg's in proper perspective. And I think that we are really off the track when we're not considering Rygg's first. That's my point.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, when Mr. Swanberg comes up with an amendment after Mr. Rygg's hits the floor, what is the Chair to do? I can't refuse Mr. Swanberg's amendment. It was in order. Therefore, the issue, my friends, is on Mr. Swanberg's amendment to add the word "and facilities" so that it reads "Such institutions and facilities as the public good may require shall be established and supported by the state as may be prescribed by law." Now, so many as are in favor of Mr. Swanberg's amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as are in favor, vote Aye on the voting machines; and opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate want to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, 65 having voted Aye and 24 having voted No, Mr. Swanberg's motion passes. At the moment the section, then, reads "Such institutions and facilities as the public good may require may be established". At the moment, Mr. Rygg's motion is gone; but, Mr. Rygg, you or Mr. Aasheim have the right to remake it.

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman, I would like to insert the same thing, the parenthetical line in-after "facilities". "Such institutions and facilities, including homes which may be necessary and desirable for the care of veterans".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Rygg's motion is renewed. After the word "facilities", he would then add the phrase "including homes which may be necessary and desirable for the care of veterans". You'll find the language parenthetically in the language he put on your desks. Is there discussion?

Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman, I'm happy with either one. It makes no difference to me, as long as we get the engine back on the track.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It moves about as well over ground as over rails, Mr. Aasheim. (Laughter)

Mrs. Pemberton.

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: Thank you, Mr. President. I would like to go on record as supporting Mr. Rygg's amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. You have before you Mr. Rygg's amendment, which is to add the phrase "including homes which may be necessary and desirable for the care of veterans" after the word "facilities".

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, we've asked for a roll call. It would read "Such institutions and facilities, including homes which may be necessary and desirable for the care of veterans, as the public good may require shall be established and supported by the state as may be prescribed by law." All those in favor, vote Aye; all those opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, take the ballot.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk announce the roll-the ballot.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 71 delegates have voted Aye; 18 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 71 voted Aye and 18 voted No, Mr. Rygg's amendment is passed, and we now have both "facilities" and the phrase "including homes" and so forth in. Is there other material-or other discussion of Section 1?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Members of the body, you have before you, upon the recommendation of Mr. Swanberg that when this body does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 1, as amended, that it recommend the same be adopted. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 1 is adopted as amended. Mr. Clerk, read Section 2, please.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 2. Assistance. It shall be the duty of the Legislative Assembly to provide economic assistance and social and rehabilitative services as may be necessary for those inhabitants who, by reason of age, infirmities or misfortune, may have need for the aid of society." Section 2, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Mr. President, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2 of the Institutions and Assistance Article of the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry report, do recommend that the same be adopted.

Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Now, this section will be found on page 27 of the yellow book, and the old section stated that the several counties of the state shall provide for the care of their indigents. This section, as you see, states that the Legislative Assembly shall provide for their assistance. Beneath this rather innocuous-seeming change will be found a social phenomena and of rather profound significance. And I'd like to take it up at some length here, to give you a little background. When our committee met to consider this, in connection with another proposal, we had a joint meeting with the Bill of Rights Committee, and at that hearing some testimony was taken about the aid to dependent children sector of our Public Welfare Department. I might point out, here at the beginning, that it is this sector-the aid to dependent children--where the vast majority of the public welfare funds go. The other funds--aid to the blind and needy, the lame, and so on-while they're considerable, are not to be compared with the money that's spent for this aid to dependent children. And in the course of this hearing that we had with the Bill of Rights Committee, it became evident that these costs were rising at a rather astonishing rate; and if you will look at the graph that you have on your desks, you will see the extent of this rise. In 1960, for example, the number of families who were receiving this aid was under 2,000, and in 10 years it had risen to 3,000; and then in 1970, from 3,000, to the end of '71, it had almost doubled to 6,000. And some of the witnesses who appeared at that hearing were asked, what was the reason for this phenomena? It was close to 5 o'clock, and so we didn't get an answer to the question, although I'm quite sure that most of the witnesses there knew what the answer was. And so, to get a little perspective on this, I'd like to take you through a little bit of time and then make a few comments when we get through. Let's go back to 1930 and look at the number of births at that time, 200—2,203,000 in 1930. Now, 1930 was on the eve of the Depression, as you all recall, and all during the Depression our birth rate was abnormally low. In 1932, as a matter of fact, in the depth of the Depression, it got down to barely just above 2 million people. In 1935, it was not much better, 2,155,000 people; and even in 1940—the Depression was just kind of getting over-there were still only 2,660,000 people born that year. Then, in 1945, the veterans came back from World War II, and I might state that he was appalled at the sorry state of our birth rate. Now he postponed those dreams he had long had—those week-long fishing trips, those pleasant evenings at the bowling alley, and those cozy hours before the fire with the old stamp collection-and proceeded to do something about the birth rate. (Laughter) The women of our nation responded with magnificence, although I suspect they were somewhat startled, at first, by all the sudden interest in this field; but by 1946, scarcely a year after the war was over, our birth rate had risen to 3,288,000 people; and by 1950, it was up to three and a half million. So we had a rather sudden shift from an abnormally low number of births to, all of a sudden, an abnormally high number of births. By 1955, the veterans were still at it, and the number of births in that year was 4,047,000. Now 4 million births, my friends, is almost double what it was back in 1935 or thereabouts. Now, that's an astonishing increase in people, and it had an astonishing increase-or I should say, an impact on our economy. All of you remember those frantic years when schools had to be built to take care of this sudden onrush of people. What is not so generally well known, although I think many of you do know it-that this had an astonishing impact on business, and companies which were once obscure and unknown suddenly found themselves in the bigtime. We need not go into that in any detail here, but I do want to point out, as reinforcement of a point I wish to make later on, that such companies as those who made baby food suddenly found themselves big corporations. And this phenomena had about it all the certainty of a depot schedule, a train schedule. You could have only looked at what was happening to business to know what was going on in the birth department, because this growth went from baby food to schools, and schools meant bricks and cement and iron and steel-it meant desks, and companies like International Desk Company, International Textbook Company, McGraw-Hill, all of them obscure companies at one time, suddenly found themselves large and flourishing. Then came phonograph records; and we now see that these children are getting into their teens, and we have sporting goods, musical instruments, the Honda-and how we remember the Honda and how it took over the country, just about the time these kids were getting to be 15 and 16 years old. Then about 1965—if you'll take 20 years off 1965, you reach 1945—and we see that is just about when the birth rate, the number of births, began to increase. In 1945, the next thing that this mass of people became involved in was marriage and, as an inevitable consequence, they became involved in divorce. This, then, is the reason, I submit, for this large increase in the number of families who have aid to dependent children, as shown on this graph; and I submit that it will get worse-much, much worse-before it gets better. The city of Great Falls, at this time, is broke in its welfare fund. This situation is going to continue in the months and the years ahead. If you will look at the chart, on the other side of this thing, you will note that in 1966—and I will use Cascade County as an example-there were 933 children in Cascade County receiving welfare support, and just 5 years later, that number had risen to 2,355 children. You will see that, in terms of expense-I'm sorry, the expense is not stated for 1966, but it is stated for the month of September, 1971, for Cascade County-and as you will see, we spent the sum of $139,995 for that month. On a statewide basis, the number of children on aid to dependent children rose from 6,598 in September of 1966 to 14,387 just 5 years later, in 1971. Now, I've got to give you some figures here-and they're only estimates—but in 1971, we're dealing approximately with those children who were born in 1951 and now getting married, and at that time there was a birth of three and a half million people. Let us go ahead to 1982 and go back to 1962, or '61 or thereabouts, and at that time, there were 4,268,000 children born. The point I'm trying to establish here is that we are just now coming into this large increase in births, insofar as marriage and divorce is concerned, and it's going to have its inevitable impact upon the whole welfare philosophy. The money we spent in September of 1971 for aid to dependent children alone, and this is at the rate of $40 per month, was $788,067 on a statewide basis. I leave it to your imaginations to ask yourself how many schools this would have built, or how many institutions this might have built. Cascade County, with this kind of an expenditure, could have built a school and paid cash for it in 1950. It's not the money, though, so much-the money is critical, but it's not entirely the money, because, with 14,000 young kids disenfranchised, if you please-children of broken homes, mostly; getting $40 per month for their care and support, living in sub. standard conditions, mostly with inadequate clothing and inadequate food-the medical care, however, being excellent because it's paid for by the state-1 submit that we have a rather serious wound in the body of our society, and I seriously question whether a bandage made of money is going to solve it. This is too many people to grow up under such conditions. Now, Mr. McCarvel and I were on a subcommittee that considered this, and we had several heart-to-heart talks, you might say, with Mr. Carkulis of the Public Health, Welfare and Labor Department-or-the Public Health Department, I'm sorry-and I might add, at this point, that I have rarely seen a more dedicated man and a more knowledgeable man-and the report which he issues monthly that summarizes the activities of the Public Welfare Department is, in my opinion, a minor masterpiece in statistics. Any of you people here in the body who are interested in this subject owe it to yourself to get a copy of this report and study it. The page which I submitted to you is a part of that report. And Mr. McCarvel and I asked ourselves some very searching questions, and, like most people here in the delegation when they had their committee work before them, we must confess we didn't sleep too well. We thought and thought about what we could put in the Constitution that might go to solve this problem, and, frankly, we didn't come up with anything. We had some ideas. I have an idea. It's not a constitutional idea, but I believe that this Constitutional Convention, in addition to working on a Constitution, should also serve as a forum for the debate and consideration of our more-pressing social problems, and I submit that this is one of them. And the idea that I would like to throw out for just general consideration-1 don't necessarily endorse it, it's a concept that's been in use in England for centuries; again, England has preceded us a little bit, or anticipated us-and that's the doctrine of the boarding school. If I thought we were getting our money's worth—$139,000 worth every month-1 wouldn't feel so bad, but I don't think we are. And I submit that I don't think we can allow 14,000 children in this state to grow up largely unsupervised in substandard conditions, with very little training in citizenship and esthetics and morals and all the rest of it that a solid home should provide. These kids are just not getting it. I submit it's a litter of a sort; it's children that have been—well, it's not abandoned, but almost-by people who, for one reason or another, have decided to forsake their obvious responsibilities. The boarding school concept in England has long been in effect and has long been successful. It would cost hundreds of thousands of dollars to start something here, but a pilot program could get started. And here we'd have a real chance to get something for our money, and those kids would have a real chance to grow up to be useful citizens. They'd get good food; they'd get a good bed; they'd get good supervision from trained sociologists and psychologists. And here again I might say a few kind words for the Welfare Department they do have this kind of personnel, but I suspect that they're largely frustrated by the system under which they have to work--$40 per month per child. Some would say, "Well, this is depriving the mother of her children." I think the mother, once she saw what the child was getting, would be glad to have this happen. She could then put her children in a home where she knew they were going to get some kind of care and go out and get herself straightened around. She could find a job, she could improve herself by going to school, and then go back and get her children and take them back. As it is now, most these kids get a divorce after about age 22; they have no particular skill: they're dazed; the divorce hits them; she goes and gets herself a job as a waitress; she goes and gets a job as something in a hospital; then she hires a babysitter to take care of her children and most of the money that she gets from the Welfare Department goes to pay the babysitter. So; as a consequence, we have these children being raised largely by babysitters and mothers who can't quite provide. Now getting down to the section involved, after these brief remarks; we changed the old Constitution-which stated that the county shall provide-to a provision that states that the Legislature shall provide. We did this because the evidence that we gathered at our hearing showed that these children and their mothers tended to congregate in the larger cities; they did so, I suppose, because of better job opportunities-that would be my guess. In the case of Great Falls, they might also do this because we have a county hospital there which provides pretty good care in this field. And if you'll notice on this sheet again, I circled some of the larger cities in Montana, and if you'll go down those, you'll find your own city and you will find that in the cities I circled, in 1966, they constituted 44 percent of the total. The cities I circled were Great Falls, Kalispell, Bozeman, Helena, Missoula, Butte and Billings. There's a few others I could have added, but I just stopped at that number. And then, if you'll go to 1971, you'll see that the figure is 52 percent of the total, indicating, together with the other evidence which we took, that this migration does occur. Now, the figures alone, I will concede, don't show that. You could conclude from the figures alone that the people in cities were just getting divorced quicker, or more frequently, than the children in the smaller communities. But the evidence which we heard from Mr. Carkulis and the evidence which we heard from Mr. Ed Shubat, who is Cascade County Commissioner, stated that this migration phenomenon did occur. I'll call your attention to Chouteau County, which is Fort Benton, and you will note-it's right under Cascade County-you will note that in 1966 they had 58 children on the ADC program, and in 1971 they had only 48. Now Fort Benton is only 40 miles from Great Falls, and I think what's happening is that the children in Fort Benton and their parents are moving into the larger centers. If you'll take some of the smaller counties, you'll show that—you'll see that that same phenomenon holds true. Teton County, which is Chateau, 56 miles from Great Falls, had 39 children on ADC in 1966, and in 1972 they had only 32 children. You'll find this throughout the report, that in spite of quite a con. siderable increase in the total number of children on ADC, from 6,598 in 1966, to 14,387 in 1971, still there are quite a few counties here, the smaller counties, who show a decrease. And we submit that this is why it's so. Thank you, Mr. President,

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion of Section 2?

Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. President, I rise in support of Section 2, the majority report of the Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee. I think they did a fine job, and I would hope this body supports Section 2.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion?

Mrs. Reichert.

DELEGATE REICHERT: I, too, rise in support of the committee proposal, but I would like to ask Mr. Swanberg to yield to a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE REICHERT: In thecourse of your committee discussion, did you consider the responsibility of the federal government? Since ours is a nation of mobility, what do you-how do you feel the federal government is going to enter into this revenue sharing picture as far as welfare is concerned?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: I'm glad you asked that, Arlyne, because I forgot to cover it in my comments. The federal government is now participating in this program. They contribute two-thirds of all funds going for the aid to dependent children, and of the remaining one-third, the county puts in one-third and the state puts in two-thirds-if you can figure out this arithmetic. It winds up to where the county provides about 10 percent-10 to 11 percent of the total money going into the aid to dependent children program. The welfare levy under the statutes is now a maximum of 17 mills, and once that 17 mills is reached and—excuse me-then that 17-mill basis is used to secure the federal and state participation. I might add, in this connection, that the federal government is also groping with this problem. There's a bill in Congress at the present time to guarantee every family in the United States-a family of four--$200 a month. It's passed the House and it's now being considered by the Senate. For the reasons I have just stated, I don't think that's the solution. It seems, in this welfare field, that the more we try to do, the worse it gets. The easier we make it to get a divorce, the easier we make it to-so that the children will be cared for, the worse the problem becomes. There has to be, in my opinion, some other solution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Mr. President. I think it would be nice if we'd hear from people outside of Cascade County, but I don't want to waste any time in adding my approval. I actually had hoped that the committee would place the entire responsibility for the care of theindigent on the Legislature, simply because of this Supreme Court ruling which has now knocked out the residency requirement for welfare, and we get people not only from other counties but from other states, and they do all seem to flock to Cascade County because of our fine health department and our convalescent hospital, I believe. But it is no longer fair for the taxpayers of a county like Cascade County to assume this staggering burden, when they can come in from anyplace from the outside. And I do believe that the committee is to be congratulated at least in placing this burden instead of on the county, to the discretion of the Legislature so that it becomes a state obligation, largely. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. Chairman, I have a couple of questions. I guess I'd like to direct them to Mr. Swanberg, if I may.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg, will you respond?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Yes, Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: I have to confess my ignorance; I'm not just quite sure how the present state law works. But you mentioned 17 mills, I think, is now the maximum on the state. Do all counties automatically have to levy 17 mills?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: No, they do not. Great Falls levies the full 17; Anaconda levies the full 17; I think Butte does; I think Kalispell does. Many of the smaller counties maybe just levy just a couple of mills, and when they levy that 2 or 3 mills, let's say, that gives them the right to secure matching federal and state funds. Does that answer the question?

DELEGATE FURLONG: May I direct another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Furlong?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE FURLONG: Do I understand you correctly, now, that whether you levy the mandatory 17 mills or not, if you levy any portion of the millage, that you, in fact, then participate equally with the counties who levy the 17 mills for federal and state support?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: You levy to the extent of the money that you levied. In other words, if you levied 3 mills and produced, say, $30,000, the state will kick in on top of that another $20,000, roughly, and then the state-or the government will kick in some more. But after you have exhausted that, you can't get any more federal funds; you've got to then go and make an emergency levy. The county would have to exhaust their 17-mill allowance before they got any more money from the government. Am I clear here?

DELEGATE FURLONG: I'm sure you're clear; I'm not quite.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: If a county, let's say, levied 5 mills for the Welfare Department and then ran out of money-now if they levy the 5, they're going to get matching funds on that 5 mills, on the percentages that I've mentioned-and then if they run out of money, they then have to have an emergency levy in the county, because, you see, they've only been levying 5 mills. They might conceivably have to go on up to the full 17. They have to make that emergency levy, and then that fund will also be matched. Now in the case of a county that's already at the 17-mill maximum, they just get grants from the state to take care of the deficit, because they're already at the maximum and there's nothing else they can do but make a statewide contribution.

DELEGATE FURLONG: I'd like-May I ask another question of Mr. Swanberg? Will you yield?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Yes.

DELEGATE FURLONG: I'll just pick one at random here for my benefit; since I used to live there, I'll pick it at random. I see Liberty County, for example, in 1966, had nine children, three families, and now, in 1971, it's six and two. I have no idea what welfare they actually--or, I'm sorry, what mill levy they actually have in Liberty County. I am aware, however, of the fact that the county has bonded itself for a county hospital for-certainly not for the aid to dependent children, but for the elderly in the county. Now, as I understand what you're suggesting here, it would, in fact, then be a statewide levy which would go into a general fund and then would be distributed on the basis of-well, is it-conceivably, then, the people in Liberty County could be paying a considerable welfare which would actually be funded into such areas as Cascade and Kalispell, Flathead, et cetera?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Make no mistake about it, you residents of the smaller counties, this is going to raise your taxes; there just isn't any shadow of a doubt. To be able to be-We have left it up to the Legislature to fix the levy; now they can do anything they want. They may leave it as it is, but I doubt it. I would, rather, be inclined to think that now that we've removed the 2-mill limitation, they'd put on a statewide levy of we don't know how much-3, 4, 5 mills, perhaps; maybe more—and this will raise the property taxes in the smaller communities to finance this welfare program.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. Chairman. I'm—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: I'm in complete sympathy with the problem. I think my problem is that I'm not in sympathy with the solution. I stand opposed to Section 2-the Assistance. Perhaps I wouldn't if I knew more about it, but as it's been explained to me right now, it looks to me like a statewide levy-many counties are going to begin to pay considerable amounts of money to levy for problems which they might, in fact, not have helped create. I stand opposed to Section 2. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHIER: Will Mr. Swanberg yield, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Yes, Bob.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Bill, if a divorced mother, say with three children, left Conrad and moved down to Great Falls because the—of the Supreme Court removal of the restriction on residency requirements, I understand that she could demand, under present law, immediate ADC aid; is that right?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: That is correct. The-Go ahead.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Now, another question, if I may.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher, go ahead.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: May I, Mr. Chairman? Could your County Attorney in Cascade County sue the County Commissioners under either statutory law--under any Montana statutory law or be under case law and sue the County Commissioners of Pondera County to reimburse Cascade County for the money that you spent supporting those three children?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: That isn't the way it works. Most of the time that woman-that wife or ex-wife with three children-is going to make a permanent move down to Great Falls, and once she's done that, there is no particular residence requirements established; she doesn't have to live there any particular length of time any more—

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Yeah, I know that.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: -she's on welfare right now, and there is no recourse against Pondera County.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: There is none whatsoever—

DELEGATE SWANBERG: No.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: -that Cascade County can recoup that money?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: No.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. President, I think that maybe I could help Mr. Furlong here a little. I might state, for the benefit, last year-and this is 1971-72—Cascade County levied 17 mills, Deer Lodge County levied 17 mills, also Silver Bow County. Now if you want to know what Flathead levied, Flathead County levied 5.56 mills. When you start looking at this book, Mr. Chairman, it's-this is why I have been a little bit bothered about the statewide levy, when I see we go from some counties from-1 believe there's two and a half mills-3 mills is the lowest, that's in Carter County--up to these three. Now, as Mr. Swanberg has stated, you cannot get any funds from the State of Montana until you levy the 17 mills. Now, Cascade County is coming in on the 15th day of next month-this was in the Great Falls Tribune -to start to get some of the state funds to handle over-to carry them over till the next July first. Now this committee up there had this discussion whatever--a long time, and we debated whether we would make it a state responsibility or we would leave it to the Legislature to make the decision-so maybe we ducked, maybe we didn't; but this committee decided we would leave it to the Legislature and take it away because it was-we were getting into trouble in a county responsibility. Now this does not mean that the Legislature has to levy a statewide levy; if we'd of made it a state proposition, then I think we would have had a statewide levy. We thought maybe we would leave some to it. Now what this is going to do to the revenue proposal of-which we have received; with the unlimited statewide levy, this could be quite a thing, Mr. Furlong. That's all I have to say on it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to thank Charley for helping me. When he first started to help me, I was a little bit worried. (Laughter) I would like to direct a question to Mr. Mahoney, if I might.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE FURLONG: I want to be sure I understood you correctly. Since you used Flathead County, I'll use it also. You say they levied five point five-tenths mills. Now did you say that they do not come in for state share?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: They-what we have-and I think what you're missing here—there's a special fund set down here that the state for divide up with the counties if they run out of welfare money; but the first prerequisite says you must levy 17 mills in order to get it. You couldn't get one cent of that. Now here's what happens. This does not affect ADC, aid to dependent children, and that. This is extra welfare money that they get-the state has a fund of-about $250,000 is held back and set off to the side to aid assisting counties; but the first prerequisite, 17 mills. So this limited here. Now-I think there is an error here, but I believe Mineral County has-is also 17 mills. I think that Mineral County--we've had some problems in Mineral. Does that answer your question?

DELEGATE FURLONG: Yes, thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Anderson, you were up.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: I was going to clear up that difficulty Mr. Furlong was having. And Liberty County is levying, currently, 5 mills. But I would like to direct a question to Mr. Swanberg. Will you yield, sir?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Yes.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: Do you feel that this is a mandate for the Legislature to institute a statewide tax for equalization of the welfare total costs?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: No, I do not. I—

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: Would you yield for another question, Mr. Swanberg?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Yes, go ahead.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: Does the Legislature at this time have power and authority so that they could-say, for instance, someone from Richland County, my county, if they moved to Cascade-that they could pass a bill back for Cascade, even in view of the residency requirements that have been declared unconstitutional?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: There is no provision for that at the present time. And that used to be the law, but people move around so much these days-that's the problem-that you can't pin them down.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Anderson—

DELEGATE SWANBERG: As a consequence, the Welfare Department is recommending, and your committee is recommending, that some kind of a statewide financing program be instituted. Now whether part of it's county and part of it's state, or whether it's all state, we don't know.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE McNEIL: Mr. Chairman. I want to point out, for the record, clearly a distinct difference between the majority proposal and our present Constitution. Article X, Section 5, of the present Constitution says, "The several counties of the state shall provide as may be prescribed by law for those inhabitants who, by reason of age, infirmity or misfortune, may have claims upon the sympathy and aid of society." The majority proposal establishes a constitutional right to a claim for the same necessary services, for the same economic assistance and social and rehabilitative. The key to it is, quite obviously, found in the comments on page 14, where they indicate the Legislative Assembly shall decide whether it will be a county levy or a statewide levy. This is legislative in nature and ought not to be in this Constitution. Our present Constitution has a permissive "may", where this is a mandatory. I move to delete Section 2, Assistance, from the article on Institutions and Assistance.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Your motion is to delete it?

DELEGATE MCNEIL: That's correct.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. McNeil has a motion to delete Section 2 in its entirety.

Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman, I'll be brief. It's the same reasons that we deleted the several other paragraphs from this committee report. At page 5 of the comparison of the Montana Constitution with the constitutions of selected other states, no other state with which Montana's Constitution was compared had a comparable section, for the obvious reason that it is legislative. And I'll say nothing further.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Speaking as an individual and not as a member of the committee, I would state that I have no objection to this deletion. I would simply point out, however, that it would remove the present situation, which now calls for this assistance to be instituted on a countywide basis; and since I am in favor of eliminating that, I would have no objection to deleting this whole section and leaving the entire problem up to the Legislature.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. Chairman, as one who might have a special interest in this particular section-as many of you now, I at least have been a social service worker and have some experience in the field of working with indigents—I don't know what to say about the conversations that have gone on here and the dialogue; I think they have gotten somewhat off base. Certainly all of us in the State of Montana recognize that there is a certain segment of our society that is, in some respects, unable-due to infirmities, as they mentioned here, or misfortune, age, or what have you--unable to provide for themselves. And I think maybe the question we are asking ourselves is--we're getting down to a lot of nitty-gritty dollars and cents things; I'm not saying we should neglect that, but I'm not sure we should make that our paramount topic of discussion here. Certainly if their services, social and rehabilitative-if they're going to be provided, they're going to have to be paid for; and we've talked about who was going to be paying for them. What we're suggesting in Article II is that the Legislature provide a system for economic and social and rehabilitative assistance and services. And as we see the migration from the, let's say, rural areas to the urban areas to take advantage of, maybe, some of the benefits that are available in urban areas, such as medical and what have you, it's rather unfair, maybe, that the urban areas would have to take the responsibility on of levying the 17 mills and request the state for further assistance; and maybe a rural county that doesn't have some of these services available, that they would not have to levy the 17 mills. So I guess what I'm saying is that those people who cannot otherwise provide for themselves is the responsibility of society. I don't think any of us would disagree with that. And so, the responsibility should lie with the state; and I would resist any motions to maybe, delete this section. I think the responsibility should be with the state, that we should all share in this problem of society. It's probably not going to get much better. We do have unemployment problems; we have economic problems; but the alternative to not making the state responsible for some of these things and not us taking the responsibility is much grimmer. If people are not offered these services that they need, or inadequate services, then it seems to me we create much larger social problems; and I don't want to face those consequences. So, in view of the fact that more federal aid is going to be coming in this area, hopefully, and, hopefully, we affirm the majority report of this committee to keep this section in, I think this body should take this responsibility, hand it to the state and they be responsible for this social and rehabilitative services. I urge you to keep Section 2, as it is recommended by the majority, in our Constitution. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I must say that I read the thrust of this section quite differently, maybe, than Mr. Swanberg, who I thought was quite quick to be willing to delete it. Here's the point: I have two other articles that we have finished, one on-in the field of education-and remember our original language in all reacting to the work of the Supreme Court. This original language, before we changed it: "It shall be the duty of the Legislature to provide, by taxation and other means, and to distribute in an equitable manner, funds sufficient to insure full funding of the public elementary and secondary school systems." There was a definite trend or philosophy in that article that there was a shift from local responsibility to state responsibility in the field of education. Then, when we got to Revenue and Finance, we talked about, the state respond-the state shall appraise, assess and equalize. What I saw happening in the Convention, in those two articles, was a move away from the local and county dealing with those things, to a state-equalized program. And I would read this article in the Public Health and Welfare as following that same trend and therefore to be considered rather seriously. That's the trend we're setting up, then I would say, by way of consistency, that's the way it would be. And I-if I read the recent Supreme Court decisions, I think taxation, education, welfare are all going in that direction--and that I saw this as a response to that direction; therefore, I would-I'm not saying not to delete it, but I'm saying, "Let's not delete it without some careful consideration of the trend that we're setting up in this whole Constitution." And I think it bears a lot of serious thought here, more than just sort of a casual taking care of it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman, as this rolls on here, I-it becomes more obvious to me that I must support the McNeil amendment, and I have my reasons. I took off of this chart a little bit here that Yellowstone County has 761 families on welfare, Silver Bow has 447, Missoula County has 488, and Cascade has 964. Now I'm representing five counties in eastern Montana, which is over 10 percent of the state; Treasure County has 6 families, Rosebud has 140, Garfield has 4 families, McCone has 4, Prairie has 5. I think perhaps our solution would be to secede from Montana and join North Dakota and let these counties of Cascade, Yellowstone, Silver Bow and Missoula have all their welfare residents and take care of them. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you so move, Mr. Kamhoot? (Laughter)

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: I'm going to hang on just a little while longer, Mr. Chairman; thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Some of us might call your bluff-that's my point.

Mr.—Mrs. Eck, please.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman, I don't have the chart in front of me right now, but I know that, from looking at similar charts, that Gallatin County has been one where the welfare load has been low and our millage has been low for welfare. I also know that people who are in need from Gallatin County-and I would guess from most other counties with low welfare loads in Montana -those who are in need might struggle for a few months, or maybe even a year or two, in Gallatin County, but it won't be long before they realize that things are really better for them in Cascade County. If they have-if they are in need of a special kind of medical attention, if they have special handicaps, if they are in need of job training, all of these things-our county is not equipped to deal with welfare people or people in need of any kinds of special services,and I think that there are very few counties in Montana that are equipped to deal with them. So far as our taxpayers go, it's great that they all move to Cascade, but I think that there are a great number of people who-in Gallatin County who, for a long, long time, have felt a bit guilty about this. I think that by far the best thing for these people to do is to move to Cascade County, but I think that our people should share in the care that these people require, and the best way for us to share is through letting the State Legislature decide how we are going to share in it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, I should be the last one getting up here defending this, because, in looking over my district, we're not so high. But I think we have to realize that we went out here and said, "We want schools financed statewide; we want to go out here and find everything else done"; but when we come to welfare—Now, I'm sure that I can look at some of these with-1 can take a county in eastern Montana—I'd just as well name it, Petroleum County-has no hospital; they have nothing to take care of their people; they have-and they have a very nice, cheap mill levy. Now, in thecounty I came from, in Garfield County, they had a hospital, they tried to do something, and this has cost some extra money. Now, if we're going to turn around here—that is one state-and I know that we have problems, because Butte, Anaconda, Great Falls are in a different line of occupation. Now if we want to close those cities down, that's one thing. But I listened to the County Commissioners from Cascade County, and they came up there. We had Mr. Carkulis, the welfare man, up there. We had a number of people discussing this issue with us. At the time-and I'm sorry to see some of the committee now is changing-at the time we came out, we agreed to this proposition, that we knew welfare was a statewide problem, because the days of going by horseback is over. We've only got a few minutes by automobile to cross the county line. Now, all right, we heard this-and I don't know how much truth about it-that they congregate in Great Falls. They maybe do better. Maybe-It reminds me, and I shouldn't say this, but another little Russell story-and I love the man, he's done a great thing-he told about a restaurant at Shelby. He said this was the greatest place in the whole Northwest. He said all the flies come and wintered there in the winter; it was the best place to winter. Well, I think maybe it is a little better in Cascade County, but let me say this: We have a welfare department; they are selecting these people under law; then the County Commissioners have very little to say about welfare. This has been the Legislature that's done this. Now I think the time has come that-1 know some of these counties-I'm just looking at one here-three mills, Carter County. The next one is Cascade, it's 17. Now, I know, in Carter County-and I love the county; I sure got a lot of friends down there-but is Carter County asking some other county to furnish the hospital? Is Carter County going out here and asking, like Petroleum County, some of the welfare needs? Are we going to find all of our old people having to leave to go out there where they do maintain a hospital? And these cost money. And I think we should realize that this is partly a legislative proposition. We did not say "state"; we said "Legislature shall determine". If we leave this out entirely, I would question-I think we would be doing a disservice. Even in the old Constitution, they recognized there was a point for these people, indigent people, people through no fault of their own-1 think we have this to realize, and I would certainly hesitate to see this section taken out; maybe it could be amended. But please remember this-if we're going to have education statewide, and this seems to be what you agreed on yesterday, I think welfare has the same privilege in this state.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, as a supporting member of the majority report on this particular section, I think the so-called "big counties" have been picked on long enough. Take a look at Big Horn; take a look at Glacier; take a look at Hill; take a look at Lake; take a look at Lincoln County; take a look at Roosevelt; take a look at Rosebud and Valley. Now these are not metropolitan centers, but our problem is their problem, too, and it can only be solved through the adoption of, this Convention, Section 2. And I stand by the majority report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Mr. Chairman, I'm sorry, but I really am lost. And I must know if we're debating the merits of statewide welfare financing versus county and state welfare financing-is that what we are debating?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Are you addressing that question to the Chair?

DELEGATE BOWMAN: To anybody who can answer it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, the committee report in Section 2, says that the Legislative Assembly-which of course, is the state—shall provide economic-such economic assistance as is necessary—

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -and the present Constitution involves the counties. And Mr. Swanberg has made it clear that, while they didn't assign the duty to the state, they're leaving it open under Section 2 to the State Legislature, whether to have it statewide or countywide. I don't think we're determining; we're giving the power to the Legislature. Now if any members ofthecommittee think I have misstated the section, please speak up. But that's what I understand. We aren't moving it from county to state; we're moving it from county-oriented to Legislative, which could go either way. We are liberalizing it.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Well, then, could

I make an observation? Would that be in order?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, if you can squeeze it into any of the narrow concepts of debate that you've heard expressed here today. (Laughter)

DELEGATE BOWMAN: That's what got me confused; they're so narrow it's hard to find a place to talk.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Would you like us to come back to you, Mrs. Bowman?

DELEGATE BOWMAN: No, no. I'll regain my composure; I'm sorry. Okay. Now, the way I read it, it says that the Legislative Assembly is going to provide economic assistance. To me, that means that the state is going to do it. And it seems to me that if you want to let this be a joint effort or let the Legislature decide how it's going to be, then you have to insert the word "for" between the word "provide" and "economic". And I'm probably wrong, and I wish somebody would explain it to me. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Warden.

DELEGATE WARDEN: I have to reveal my vested interests. I am from Cascade County, and I am well aware of the problems that they have had in welfare. And I would just like to say I want to support the majority, and I do not want to delete this section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Being a member of this committee and coming from a county that is neither metropolitan nor otherwise-and no medical facilities--our levage [sic] is 15.4, I think, to date, on welfare. I don't agree with all the welfare programs, in my own mind; but at the same time, I have to support the Section 2 as the committee has written it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Mr. President, I was about ready to suggest a new approach to this. It seems to me if we strike the words, on line 12 of page 14, "Legislative Assembly" and insert therein "Fish and Game Department"-now we haven't gotten the Fish and Game Department in the Constitution yet, and it seems to me like this is somewhat indirectly related to their recreation program anyhow.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Van Buskirk.

DELEGATE VAN BUSKIRK: Being a member of this committee, I would resist the motion to delete this section, because, as has been mentioned by other speakers, I think that welfare should be included in the trend along with the other changing, you might say, needs of the Constitution and, as long as people are moving from county to county, that some counties are shirking their share and by this way, the way the Legislature would provide would probably be equal for everyone.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Mr. President, also being a member of this committee and being on the subcommittee that drafted this, I could make an observation here that the County Commissioner from Cascade County made the appeal for this type of article, due to the fact that he wanted the word "state" stricken from the article in the present Constitution, thereby not being in conflict with any federal funds that would be coming into the state; and that is why we took that out and left it to the Legislature to decide. And I therefore support the majority proposal.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Cross.

DELEGATE CROSS: Mr. Chairman, so far we've been talking about nuts and bolts and dollars and cents, and I think the mere fact that we're considering deleting this article is reprehensible. I think we, as representatives of our people back home, owe something to other members of this state. I don't care what county you live in or what end of the state, I think we have a humanitarian obligation.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if Chairman Heliker would yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I was afraid somebody was going to ask me that.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Heliker, it seems to me that possibly, as Chairman of the committee, you many times demonstrated a facility here on the floor of getting to the heart of an issue and laying it open, and rather than go into great length, would you present your reasons why this is important? I feel it should not be deleted, but I'd like to hear your statement on it.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Is that a question?

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: That's a question.

DELEGATE HELIKER: I think Mr. Swanberg has very thoroughly covered the matter. It seems to me that the issue is perfectly clear.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: How are you going to vote?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I'm going to vote for the majority report.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer—oh, he's not here. Mr. Skari.

DELEGATE SKARI: I see some of the problems the committee faced here. I would like to just question how far do we go with state financing? The problem of fair taxation is who pays for what. Now, how about such things as county roads, for example? These rural counties have problems, too; they're real problems. Maybe their welfare levy is considerably lower. I just took down a few statistics here. I notice that McCone County has a welfare levy of 6.5 mills, but it has a road levy of 20 mills and a bridge levy of 3. Liberty has a road levy of 15 mills, a bridge levy of 3.5, and a poor fund levy of 5—or poor--welfare, rather. Yellowstone, on the other hand, has a road fund of only 3.8, a bridge fund of 1.7 and a poor fund of 7.27. Silver Bow-while it has a poor fund levy of 17, it only has a road fund levy of 6.75; and Missoula, a poor fund levy of 12.9, has a road fund levy of 3.68. I ask you to also consider that in these counties, anyone is certainly welcome to drive on the county roads there. We have, in my rather sparse county of 2,300 people, we have, I think, 1,100 miles of road that we do touch with a blade at one time or another: I think Chouteau has something like 3,000. So I think-I realize these problems that the cities are having because of the mobile society, but we have some problems here, too, that I think are connected. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman. In answer to Delegate Skari's analysis here, it was brought-presented to the committee that it depends on the evaluation of the land in each county how much money each mill levy-each mill will bring in on taxation, and I think this accounts for considerable difference in Yellowstone and Great Falls Counties, because the evaluation of the land and the property is higher in the Yellowstone County. This was presented to us in committee. And here we come right back to the same problem we had on Taxation and Revenue Committee, of equalization of taxes and assessment of evaluation of properties. Does that answer your question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President, is there any room for a substitute motion up there now? Just a motion to delete some language?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We have a motion to delete the whole section. We have-1 have before me two other motions if that one's defeated, all from Mr. McNeil. I don't know what you have in mind. Could we get rid of the one to delete it, and then if it's deleted, why, we'll take yours, Mr. Wilson, and you can put another one in. If you don't delete it, when we've defeated it, you can amend it.

DELEGATE WILSON: Okay. If it's deleted, mine wouldn't fit. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Mr. President, I strongly oppose the motion to delete, simply because the last week or two we have been entrusting our all to the Legislature, every bit of our Taxation and Finance Article. We have to put our complete trust in the Legislature, and I think that it's ridiculous now to start quibbling about the fact that we are just entrusting them with the responsibility for providing for the indigents. And to explain to Mrs. Bowman, if you will read the comments on page 14 and 15, I'm sure that word "for" was inferred. And as I said before, I was disappointed that they didn't make it a state duty, but they didn't; they've left it up to the Legislature; and we have left everything else under the sun to the Legislature, so I fail to see now why we're worried. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Now, the Chair wants to vote on this and some other amendments tonight, so if you have something new to add, fine; otherwise, let's begin to vote.

Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: I just want to make one short comment, Mr. President. A little while ago, I acquiesced in Mr. McNeil's motion to delete, and that was an error. It was based on technical considerations only and did not go to the heart of the matter. I most definitely would like to see the meaning of Section 2 retained, and for that reason, I would now resist the motion to delete. That's good enough.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. McNeil, do you want to close?

DELEGATE McNEIL: Yes, Mr. Chairman. Briefly, all of the comments here, all of the debate, have been oriented toward whether it's going to be a shift from the county to the state. My concern is we're shifting from the Legislature "may" provide economic assistance to a shift to a constitutional mandate that they "shall". We are providing a constitutional right to welfare that is not in our present Constitution. Our present Constitution says the Legislature may provide economic assistance; this says they shall. And my motion does not speak to who pays for it; my-to delete this section would leave no reference in the Constitution to the county, which is in the present one, nor would it leave any reference to the state; it would leave the decision as to who's going to pay for it, whether it's going to be the rural areas or the city, or whomever-would leave that decision to the Legislature; and that, I submit, is where it belongs.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Do you want a roll call vote or not?

(Affirmative response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. All those in favor of deleting Section 2 in its entirety, vote Aye; all those opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate want to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, cast the ballot.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 30 delegates have voted Aye; 59 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 59 having voted No and 39-30 having voted Aye, the motion is defeated.

Mr. McNeil, do you want us to read your Number 1?

DELEGATE McNEIL: Please.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 2, Institutions and Assistance, page 13, at lines 11 and 12, by striking 'It shall be the duty of the Legislative Assembly to' and substitute therefor the following: 'The Legislature may'. Signed: McNeil."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil has an amendment, the purpose of which is to strike from lines 11 and 12 the language "It shall be the duty of the Legislature to" and start that sentence out by saying "The Legislature may provide economic assistance", and so forth, "as may be necessary".

Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE McNEIL: Mr. Chairman, I think the intent of that is obvious; it's to conform to our present Constitution and to avoid establishing a constitutional right to welfare without the requirement of any work. I close.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson, does your amendment apply now?

DELEGATE WILSON: That was my amendment. We just-1 don't know-We had mental telepathy going here, I guess, so—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, I'll strike your name and assume that this satisfies you. Okay.

Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. President. I would resist this amendment or motion to delete those words. I think, as a social change comes about in our society, we see indications of welfare rights, or welfare becoming more of a right than it has in the past. Our committee, in the Bill of Rights, for example, had a section in our treatise in regard to this same question. And I think it's a matter of time before all of us in the United States of America have a constitutional right to assistance. And I strongly resist this motion to delete this. I do believe that all of us have a right to assistance if we cannot provide for ourselves. And I think that's what we're talking about here-is people who cannot provide for themselves, or are in a temporary state where they cannot provide for themselves. And some will never be able to provide for themselves. And I think that is their right and it is our duty, and as they're suggesting here, the Legislative Assembly-it shall be their duty to provide for those people. I definitely believe it is right, and I think we should keep this section as is proposed by the majority.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue arises on Mr. McNeil's motion to take out the words "It shall be the duty of the Legislative" and substitute "The Legislature may".

Mrs. Bugbee-Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: In 1889 the Constitutional Convention used the word "shall". It didn't say "the Legislative Assembly", it said "the several counties of the state shall provide as may be prescribed by law for those inhabitants who, by reason of age, infirmity" and so forth. I don't think we want to step back past there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to Mr. McNeil's motion, mainly on the-well, partly on the grounds of what we did in Natural Resources and Agriculture Article. We said, "The Legislature shall enact laws and provide appropriations to protect, enhance and develop all agriculture." We didn't say anything about working there either. I think we'd better stay with "shall" here.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. This-I hope this is not personal here, it is not intended to be. But Mr. McNeil, in presenting the thing, at the end of his sentence, used the word "welfare without any work". I must say that it touched off something in me, because it told me that behind those words was a real opposition to welfare. I'm not so sure that what we're saying here isn't an attempt, really, to kill this type of responsibility. I get that feeling-I-in that type of words that are used. The appeal that comes to me as we debate this this afternoon is, before the Convention started, someone asked-at one of those sessions where, as a novice politician, you were asked all sorts of questions-what is the requirement to be a member of the Constitutional Convention?-sort of a—one of those personality things you should have. And someone answered it-and it struck me at the time-that we need statesmen and not politicians. I suggest that we're, perhaps, approaching this problem as politicians-dividing up the state, looking across these lists that we're looking at, and the rest of it-and not as statesmen. Seems to me if we were statesmen, we would look at that state responsibility and a clear statement of the state answering that responsibility.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harrington.

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: Mr. Chairman, I rise to support the motion that we keep Section 2 as is and against the amendment by Mr. McNeil. I feel that welfare and other types of assistance are with us, whether we like it or not; I think we have to face up to the problem. I also feel that this does not say a word whether there will be work to receive some of this assistance or not. I don't-and I oppose the motion. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: I want to make something clear here, that I have not supported any of the motions-in any way, shape, manner or form-but I want to be honest with the people that I will contact after we leave this hall, My question was, "Is this a mandate to the Legislature for statewide welfare levies?" And again, in view of Mr. Swanberg's correction to his earlier statement, I would like to know if he would yield for a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Yes, I yield.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: For the record, so I can be honest with the people that contact me or I appear in front of after this Convention is over with, is this a mandate for a statewide welfare property tax levy?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: No, it is not.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: Thank you very much. And I wanted to have that very, very clear in the record.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. McNeil's motion to substitute "The Legislature may" for the words "It shall be the duty of the Legislature-Legislative Assembly to."

Mr. Heliker, do you want to speak before we vote?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I do.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, speak.

DELEGATE HELIKER: I'll speak very briefly. I hope that we will keep the language of the majority report and speak no less strongly on this than the Constitutional Convention of 1889 did, but this is not an issue it seems to me that you should get unnecessarily excited about, and I direct your attention to the language "as may be necessary", which leaves it to the Legislature.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. We'll have a roll call vote. The issue is on whether to substitute the language "The Legislature may provide economic assistance" for the language "It shall be the duty of the Legislature-Legislative Assembly". If you vote Yes, you'll be voting for Mr. McNeil's motion to use the phrase "The Legislature may'.. If you vote No, you will be voting for the present Section 2. Any delegates-Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 27 delegates have voted Aye; 64 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 64 having voted No and 24 Aye, the motion is defeated.

Mr. McNeil, you have another one up here; do you want it in?

DELEGATE McNEIL: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Will the Chair-will the clerk please read that one.

CLERK SMITH: "'Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 2, Institutions and Assistance, at page 13, line 12, after the word 'provide'by adding 'the opportunity to earn'. Signed: McNeil."

CHAIRMAN ,GRAYBILL: May I have it? Very well. Mr. McNeil has proposed an amendment which goes on line 12 in Section 2, on page 13. After the word "provide", he would add "the opportunity to earn", so that the sentence would read: "It shall be the duty of the Legislative Assembly to provide the opportunity to earn economic assistance and social and rehabilitative services as may be necessary for those inhabitants who, by reason of age, infirmities or misfortune may have need for the aid of society."

Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE McNEIL: Mr. Chairman, I think the intent speaks for itself, and I close.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. McNeil yield to a question or two?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil?

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. McNeil, I'm wondering--a person that is aninvalid in the Cascade County Convalescent Home, for example, that is on assistance; would you require them to earn their keep?

DELEGATE McNEIL: Of course not, Mr. Monroe. It says "the Legislature provide the opportunity". If they're incapacitated, they obviously would not have to work. The amendment is intended and directed to those who are physically able and capable of working who do not do so.

DELEGATE MONROE: Will Mr. McNeil yield to another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil?

DELEGATE McNEIL: I yield.

DELEGATE MONROE: Do you think every able-bodied person that is, let's say, even temporarily on assistance should be made to earn that assistance?

DELEGATE McNEIL: Mr. Chairman, the proposed amendment provides that the opportunity to earn should be presented to them, and if the opportunity to earn their economic assistance is made available and they are physically able, I would say "Yes, they ought to before they receive it."

DELEGATE MONROE: Thank you. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: I would oppose this amendment to this particular article. It seems to me we've kind of covered it in our Section 3 of our Bill of Rights. We've suggested there that people have a right to pursue some of the basic necessities, and in that same section we also are suggesting that the people have a duty and responsibility--or corresponding responsibility, there-to take some sort of responsibility-for example, if they are receiving assistance. I don't agree with the idea that people should have to work for, let's say, welfare benefits, and I don't disagree with it either; but I know the problems that exist right now. If we're suggesting that people that are on assistance at this time go out and work for it, I think that's a great idea, and it has happened in many occasions in many of the counties in the State of Montana. The fact is that vou tions, in many cases, because you run into union conflicts; and you would probably run into the same if you require assistance recipients to work for benefits there. It's a beautiful and a great idea, but it's rather impractical to implement. So I resist this particular amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. McNeil's motion that we add the words "the opportunity to earn" after the word "provide", so that it would be the duty of the Legislative Assembly to provide the opportunity to earn.

Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman, I was certainly happy, and I know my constituents will be, when Mrs. Robinson said that we had passed something in our Constitution that the people in agriculture wouldn't have to work anymore. I didn't realize we had done that; and I'm certainly sorry, Mrs. Robinson-I'd have never voted for it if I'd known we'd done that. But I do have a question for Mr. Monroe, and I'll make it short.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: For whom? Mr. Monroe, do you care to yield?

DELEGATE MONROE: I yield.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Delegate Monroe, I notice in your county of Cascade, and I'm sure you're quite knowledgeable on this because you work with these people, the last report here, in '71, on the chart that-was 964 families receiving aid. Do you feel that none of these people were able to work in Cascade County?

DELEGATE MONROE: As those statistics also indicate, there was 2,355 children. Now, that indicates to me that there's a lot of ADC— these statistics are indicating ADC families, you've got 964 families-now, out of that many children, there's a lot of heads of households that are one-member households, let's say it's a female member. Now, if you want her to go out and work for her assistance, well and good, but what you're doing is you're taking her out of the family unit; you're taking her out of the household; maybe you're helping getting her some training or you're having her work somewhere. That's fine, if that's what you want. But I say "Let's keep that family unit stable; let's keep that family together." Those children have rights to grow up with the mother, to grow up with the love-it's a question of where you think that the head of the household should be, and I'm saying that a good number of the heads of those households on those welfare rolls in Cascade County are heads of ADC families, and it's usually women, and I say their place is in the home taking care of that family. If they're able-bodied and they can get out and work, well and good, if they want to. But I would say the better place for them is to get these kids education, get them through school so they can provide for themselves; otherwise, we're creating a cycle where the kids are going to drop out of school and they're going to be on the welfare rolls, too.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman, another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: I didn't expect quite such a long answer, Lyle, so I'll go back to my other question. Are there any of these 964 families that would be capable of working if they wanted to?

DELEGATE MONROE: I'm sure there are. I'm sure there are.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Thank you. That's all Mr. Chairman. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Blend.

DELEGATE BLEND: Mr. Chairman, to enlighten Mr. Kamhoot further, there are men in Great Falls and Cascade County who are capable of work, but we don't have jobs for them. What do they and their families do while they're attempting to get one? And I might also say that the great number of these people who come to the urban areas to find employment are unskilled and uneducated, and they seem to come from the rural areas. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman, I'm in sympathy with Mr. McNeil in some aspects, but if you'll look at delegate proposal 148, this was presented to our committee, and it more or less says the same thing, but the committee rejected it because of a number of problems. First of all, it's not constitutional, but it should be, probably, looked at by the Legislature. Also, it states that the state, more or less, is the employer of last resort; so then we get into a problem with contractors and the unions. But I will have to stay with the committee and oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue arises on Mr. McNeil's motion to add the term "the opportunity to work"--or "opportunity to earn" into the sentence, so that it says: "It shall be the duty of the Legislative Assembly to provide the opportunity to earn economic assistance as may be necessary", et cetera. We'll have a roll call vote. So many as are in favor of that, say Aye—vote Aye; and so many as are opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 19 delegates have voted Aye; 70 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 70 delegates having voted No and 19 Aye, the motion is defeated. The issue is now on Section 2.
Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, may I direct a question to Delegate Swanberg, and then speak on the subject?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Yes, I yield, Miles.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Swanberg, I understand from our conversation that if Section 2 were passed, it is your opinion that the Legislature could, if it so desired, enact legislation and make appropriations which would be similar to what are now in effect?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: That is correct.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Thank you.
Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I'll address myself very briefly to this matter. I never have heard, in this body, a more gripping and thoroughly documented statement than that which was made by Delegate Swanberg. I think he did a splendid job. As the debate progressed, I became somewhat alarmed, because it is another case where we are passing the buck to the Legislature. And in this instance, the county is passing out of the picture and the Legislature is assuming some of the fiscal responsibilities that now are in the hands of the Legislature. As a respresentative of a county, Ravalli, which has a 15.4 mill levy, so we are growing close to the charmed circle where you pay on 17 mills for welfare and then perhaps can get some more if you need it. I, perhaps, should not have been alarmed; but I'm alarmed at the progressing tendency of this body, which was initiated in almost the opening day of the debate and has been growing progressively ever since, to transfer responsibilities to the Legislature, and chiefly they end up as fiscal responsibilities. And one of these days, the request for a fiscal note is going to come into--onto this floor and we're going to have to face this drizzly specter face to face. And whereas, I'm in favor of all these reforms, such as this and the school foundation fund and the rest of these things where we must have--where the state is assuming more and more responsibility, I recognize the fact that, one of these days, we're going to have to pay for them. And I have-this is not a taxing institution, this Convention; we are handing that responsibility over to the Legislature, which will be forced with the responsibility of raising the funds. And whereas, I can support this on the basis of Mr. Swanberg's statement, I am appalled at what the future is likely to unfold.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Members of the Legislature-Members of the committee, I have before me a motion by Mrs. Bowman, which is very simple, and I'd like to put to you since no one else is up. Mrs. Bowman wants to add the word "for" after "provide" on line 12, so that the sentence reads: "Legislative Assembly to provide for economic assistance". Is that correct, Mrs. Bowman?

DELEGATE BOWMAN: "Methods for". I'm sorry, it-doesn't it say "methods for"?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: "-provide methods for", I see, "methods for economic assistance".

DELEGATE BOWMAN: When I read this last night, and it's still unclear to me that this is what we're doing-perhaps the "for" is implied, but it didn't come through that way to me. And it seems to me that what we're all hung up on is that we've given the Legislature sort of a carte blanche check to write the welfare provisions for the entire state. And it seems to me that if we insert those two words, or even the word "for", that we've made it clear that this will not necessarily rest totally with the state. That is all I have to say. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion?
Mr. Aronow.

DELEGATE ARONOW: Mr. Chairman, as I read Section 2, it says, "It shall be the duty of the Legislature to provide economic assistance." That's a clear mandate, and the only way that the Legislature can provide it is by levying a tax to fund it. And I rise in support of Mrs. Bowman's amendment, which gives the Legislature some leeway so that they can say that the counties take up to a certain portion and then the state will fund the rest, as they are doing now, or perhaps the number of mills can be changed; it leaves it flexible. But if we adopt this article the way it is now, there is no leeway left to the Legislature, but it must provide economic assistance and the rest of these things; and the only way it can provideitis to appropriate out of the general fund or levy taxes to fund the cost. But with the amendment, I think we've got—we have the flexibility that we're striving for; that it will give the Legislature an opportunity--say that the counties must levy up to X-number of mills and then after that the state steps in. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President, will Mr. Aronow yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aronow?

DELEGATE ARONOW: I yield-I will.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Cedor, is it possible, then, for counties--under this present state law, can they leave their county levy ridiculously low so that they don't even try for state assistance, and thus run their people out and make them go to Cascade, Yellowstone, Silver Bow and the rest of them?

DELEGATE ARONOW: Well, I don't know the rules and regulations of welfare. I think there are some state standards that are set by the Department of Welfare that they have to pay up to a certain amount, and I think the welfare worker in each county is supposedly trained and guided and instructed by the State Department.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Sullivan, did you want the floor?

DELEGATE SULLIVAN: No, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Speer, do you want the floor?

DELEGATE SPEER: Mr. Chairman, I am sorry. I cannot agree with my friend, Jean Bowman. To me, this section reads specifically that the Legislature is to provide the assistance, and I think that is the obligation. I do think thatthereis a trend in our federal government to make this a national responsibility, and we already—our state and local units are sharing in federal funds; so I would resist this amendment to change it to provide methods.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President, as I interpret this Section 2 as we have worked on it so far, it would seem to me that we've locked in forever into the Constitution the right to welfare, without any requirement that an able-bodied person will be required to earn a living. And I think that this is-1 think we should take a look at this; I think we should provide the Legislature with the necessary flexibility to provide this assistance; and I think in their wisdom they, perhaps, will. We all know that welfare is a gigantic problem and it is going to need the sensible meditation of the Legislature and they are going to need flexibility to be able to provide for this assistance. And I think that we really need to consider this, and I am in support of Mrs. Bowman's amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: I'm opposed to the Bowman amendment. This is a state responsibility; we cannot-1 didn't want to talk, and the hour is late. We can't put any barricades on the highway from Forsyth to Billings; we can't and we won't stop a widow from Forsyth with three kids coming to Billings because we have good medical facilities and because we have jobs in Billings. The whole thing is that, and I'm convinced that if we don't do this, the Supreme Court, through the courts, are going to order us to do this statewide, just the way we handle education. And I submit that if we don't pass this thing the way it was written by the committee, and I'm rather shocked that the committee-I thought the committee would be a little stronger-I realize that, one by one, some of them have gotten up, but I thought they would be a little bit stronger about this matter. And if we don't approve this thing the way it is, we may as well go back-send a gallon of paint to the Statue of Liberty and paint out the words that says "Send me your poor". Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, I resist the amendment. It is unnecessary, superfluous, and besides, it's excess baggage. The language of the majority report is perfectly clear—"the Legislature shall provide", and that leaves it to the Legislature to find the means and the methods and the funds to provide, and they may do it as they see fit.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bowman, do you want to close? You don't have to.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mrs. Bowman's amendment to add the words "methods for" after the word "to provide", so that it would read: "The Legislative-the duty of the Legislative Assembly to provide methods for economic assistance, social and rehabilitative services as may be necessary." A roll call has been called for. All in favor of the motion, say Aye; all opposed say No-vote No. Has every delegate voted?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Who asked for the roll call? Monroe, did you ask for the roll call? Oh, Heliker asked for the roll call. Very well.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 36 delegates have voted Aye; 52 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 52 having voted No, the motion is defeated. Members of the committee, you have before you, on the recommendation of Mr. Swanberg when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2, that we recommend the same for adoption. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it. So ordered.

Mr. Eskildsen, can the committee rise and report progress?

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I-Mr. Chairman, I move the committee rise and report progress and beg leave to sit again.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is the committee rise and report progress. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Members of the committee, may I have your attention. While we're waiting for the report to be typed, I would like to make two announcements, even though it's out of order. First of all, there's-this Convention bought a number of Stenorette tapes; we are unable to locate all the tapes. Some of them were used-we have a number of them that are used and have material on them-but we cannot find all of them. If any of you delegates have put things on tapes and happen to have them yet or are using those tapes, we'd like you to let Mr. Baucus know so we can locate as many of our tapes as possible. Number two: the Chair would like a show of hands-you all understand that Miss Jeannette Rankin will be with us for awhile at 8 o'clock tonight. I'd like a show of hands as to how many are coming so I can decide whether to hold the meeting in here or in the Senate. All right, sufficient members have shown an interest that I think we'd better hold it in here. There was some suggestion that it be in the Senate, but it looks like about two-thirds will be here, and I think we'll hold it right here. So it will be here at 8 o'clock tonight with Miss Rankin. Will the clerk please read the committee report.

CLERK SMITH: "March 14th, 1972. Mr. President. We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration report Number 11—report Number 6 of the Committee on Style and Drafting, Environment and Natural Resources, recommend as follows: that the committee rise and report and beg leave to sit again. Signed: Graybill, Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion—does anyone want the committee report read in full?

DELEGATES: No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right. Then—

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President, I move the adoption of the Committee of the Whole report.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to adopt the Committee of the Whole report that we rise and report progress. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, say NO.

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered. Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President, I move that we adjourn until March 15th, 9:oo a.m., 1972.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to adjourn until 9:00 a.m. tomorrow morning. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Convention adjourned at 6:10 p.m.)

March 15. 1972 Fortv-Sixth Day Convention Hall
9:10 a.m. Helena, Montana

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: If you'll all rise, Delegate Harbaugh will lead us in the invocation this morning.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Let us pray. Eternal God, today we would offer You praise in the words of the psalmist: "Bless the Lord, 0 my soul; and all that is within me, bless his holy name. Bless the Lord, 0 my soul, and forget not all his benefits, who forgives all your iniquity; who heals all your diseases; who redeems your life from the pit; who crowns you with steadfast love and mercy; who satisfies you with good as long as you live, so that your youth is renewed like the eagles." For the mercies granted to each one of us, 0 God, and for the beauty of this day, for the work that You have for us to do, we offer You our praise and our thanksgiving, through Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: We'll take attendance today on the voting machines by voting Aye.

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Berg, Delegate Drum, Delegate Kamhoot, Delegate McKeon, Delegate Reichert, Delegate Roeder. Delegate Berg, Delegate Drum, Delegate Reichert, Delegate Roeder.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, take the attendance.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk, before announcing the attendance, Mr. Roeder and Mr. Berg are present.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 98 delegates present, 2 absent.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, the journal may so show. Order of Business Number 1, Reports of Standing Committees.

CLERK HANSON: "March 15, 1972. Mr. President: We, the Committee on Style, Drafting, Transition and Submission, transmits herewith revisions of the Education Article, Report Number 10, for consideration by the Convention, John M. Schiltz, Chairman; William A. Burkhardt, Vice-chairman." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. The report of Style and Drafting on Education is placed on General Orders and should be on your desks this morning. Order of Business Number 2.

CLERK HANSON: None

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 3, Communications.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 4, Introduction.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 5, Final Consideration.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Members of the body, there are threereports-Judiciary, Natural Resources, and Revenue and Finance-which should be back to us yet today on Order of Business Number 10 in the Committee of the Whole and then, with very minor changes, can be placed on Order of Business Number 5. So that's what we anticipate there. Order of Business Number 6, Adoption.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 7, Motions and Resolutions. There are none now. We anticipate two resolutions before the day is out, to set up those committees, Mrs. Reichert, your presence is noted for the journal. Order of Business Number 8, Unfinished Business.

CLERK HANSON: None, sir.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 9, Special Orders.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 10, General Orders.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President. I move the Convention resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for the purpose of handling business under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. The motion is to resolve the Convention into Committee of the Whole. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Committee of the Whole, Graybill, Chairman)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk,

CLERK HANSON: The Style and Drafting Proposal Number 8, Bill of Rights, having been duplicated and placed on the delegates' desks on the 13th day of March, 1972, at 12:00 a.m. noon, will be in compliance with Rule 23 of the Montana Constitutional Convention as of 12:OO noon, March 15th, 1972. The following committee proposals are now on General Orders: Public Health, Local Government, General Government, Style and Drafting Number 8, Bill of Rights, and Style and Drafting Education. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Since the Bill of Rights has not been on the desks 48 hours, the matter up before us this morning automatically on Order of Business Number 10, General Orders, is to continue with Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee, and we will do that. Members of the committee, we had completed nonmunicipal corporations and institutions and assistance yesterday. Today we're ready to start on the labor proposals. The majority proposal is found on page 8; if you'll turn to page 8 of your booklets. The clerk will please read the title and Section 1 of page 8.

CLERK HANSON: "Be it proposed by the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee that there be a new article on labor to read as follows: Labor. Section 1, Department and commissioner. The Legislative-"

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Sullivan, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE SULLIVAN: Mr. President [Chairman], my Section 3 on the Institutions that we talked about yesterday.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Oh, I see. Mrs. Sullivan did have an amendment up here, and I see now that it is to-for Section 3, for Institutions, and it wasn't in the book. And so, we'll back up a little bit, and the clerk will read Mrs. Sullivan's Proposal Number 3-Section-the proposed Section 3 for the Article on Institutions.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I propose as Section 3-quote: 'Section 3. Restoration of rights. Persons committed to any such institutions shall retain all rights except those necessarily suspended as a condition of commitment. All rights necessarily suspended shall be restored upon termination of the state's responsibility.' Signed: Veronica Sullivan." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mrs. Sullivan has a proposal to add a Section 3 to the Institutions and Assistance section. You have it before you, except the copy you have before you does not have her title in. She'd like the title to be "Section 3, Restoration of rights"; and you should write that in on your copies ahead of the underlined text-Restoration of rights. Mrs. Sullivan, your proposal is accepted for debate, and would you like to explain it, please?

DELEGATE SULLIVAN: Thank you, Mr. President [Chairman]. During the past few weeks, we have been reviewing all facets of government. We have extended the scope of our proposed Constitution to guarantee certain rights to large segments of our people, ranging from the 18-year-old to the restoration of rights of the criminal who has paid his debt to society and has been rehabilitated. There still exists, however, one group that deserves our consideration. It is for this reason that I rise today in defense of the rights of the mentally ill. We are all aware that, down through the years, the mentally ill have been treated largely with fear and suspicion. Our communities have put these unfortunates in hospitals or asylums and have literally forgotten all about them. In this day and age, we can no longer consider the mentally ill as cursed or as incurable. There have been unbelievable advances in medical care and treatment, particularly in the last decade. There has been much emphasis placed on rehabilitation not only of the criminal, but of the retarded, the handicapped, and the mentally ill. I am not concerned with the procedures, purely legislative, by which persons are sent to our various institutions. However, I am concerned that all individuals are treated equally by our Constitution. Since patients committed to Warm Springs State Hospital on standard commitments lose all their civil rights while in the hospital and until such time as the released patient goes through the involved and costly process of petitioning the courts to restore his or her rights, then why isn't this policy applied to all the mentally ill throughout our state? Why is it that individuals who can afford private psychiatric care and treatment or those who are handled by our community mental health clinics on an outpatient basis are not deprived of their rights? Why this double standard? This amendment in no way changes or recommends changes in the present care and treatment of patients in these institutions. It merely returns all rights to these individuals when, in the rehabilitative process of their treatment, they are considered by the professionals to be capable of functioning in society and are therefore discharged from the responsibility of the hospital. These people cannot function as effective members of society unless they have all the same, full rights. To deny these rights and to expect them to act as if rehabilitated is to expect the improbable. Therefore Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I urge you to vote Yes on this amendment. Let us, in Montana, be in the forefront in providing our mentally ill with the opportunities for complete rehabilitation. And I wrote that before I heard Jeannette Rankin last night. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. The amendment that you have just listened to is a very important amendment. The essential quality of any type of system of justice is equal treatment. In the Bill of Rights, in Section 28, this committee approved the following language: "Laws for the punishment of crime shall be founded on the principles of prevention and reformation, and full rights shall be automatically restored upon termination of state supervision for any offense against the state." What happens to the mentally ill, who are ill through no fault of their own whatsoever; one of the tragic consequences of human personality? If an individual becomes mentally ill and has to be committed, he must, by the courts, be judged an incompetent person. When his treatment is completed and he is released, he must hire a lawyer. He must go to court. He must present his petition, evidence in support of it, and ask the court to enter an order restoring him to competency. Isn't this a truly shattering psychotraumatic experience for someone who has undergone a treatment, a hospitalization that has some bearing upon his personality's stability, and then have to walk into a court of law, even though he has been released by his medical attendant as fully competent, and once again announce to the world that he suffered from mental disease? What good reason is there for not allowing these individuals to be automatically restored to capacity upon their release from state supervision? When you're judged an incompetent person, your civil rights are taken away from you. If we can do that for the individual who insults society, who injures society, and who steals from society, we most certainly can do it for someone who is unfortunate enough to suffer from the type of mental disease and defectthatrequires placement in an institution. I commend to you the amendment that is before you. It states the same right for the mentally ill as the right for the convicted: "All rights necessarily suspended shall be restored upon termination of the state's responsibility." What could be more just and more right than that for the mentally ill? Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I would also rise in support of this. I'd like to see us do it 98 to nothing. It seems to me that we live in a time when we recognize that mental illness is [not] something that one should be ashamed of or put down for, but somehow helped to become part of society again. As one who works with people both before and after hospitalization, it's a very difficult thing to come back after a loss of confidence that always goes with the feeling that your perception of the world is somehow not accurate. And it certainly doesn't help, when you're trying to rebuild a fabric of trust in the world around you, to have society take a position that you're no longer trustworthy. And I think it would be a great step forward, and I would like to support it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair will recognize Mr. Drum's presence, and it might possibly be a hundred to nothing, Mr. Burkhardt.

Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman]. I should also like to rise in support of this amendment. I think the most powerful argument that Mrs. Sullivan made to me when we were talking in private, and she reiterated here on this floor, is the fact that if people have the economic wherewithal to go to private hospitals, then they don't suffer the loss of these rights. It's only those that we must commit to our state hospitals to whom we apply this law that they have to go through the courts to have a restoration of their rights. And I believe that, with the rest, that this would be a real step forward for the State of Montana, and I support her amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. Is this the-I'm not sure-1 lost the copy that was put on my desk, and-is this the one that's dated March third?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, I have no objection to the intent, but the language says "persons committed to any such institutions", which refers to the Section 1 that we adopted, which replaces a section in the present Constitution which enumerates a group of institutions including educational institutions and so on. It's certainly not confined to mental institutions. I would suggest, therefore, that Mrs. Sullivan amend this to make it specific.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. I would resist the amendment simply because I think it's necessarily implicit, without any ambiguity at all, that if you're committed to any institution where your rights are jeopardized or suspended or taken away, that upon release from that particular institution, upon release from supervision, that you should have those rights restored to you. I don't see the problem that Delegate Heliker sees in it, and for that reason I would suggest there not be any amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer-or Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman. Would Mr. Dahood yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, I indicated that you may ask him a question.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Was there a proposal, Mr. Dahood, that was submitted to your Committee on Bill of Rights relative to this particular amendment?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: There was a proposal submitted at a point when there was some confusion as to whether or not it should go within the Bill of Rights or within Public Health and Welfare. It was decided that it should go into this particular Public Health section. Our committee, 11 to nothing, was in favor of this particular right.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Will Mr. Dahood yield to another question?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I do yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Dahood, would it be impossible at this point to have it

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I think it would require suspension of the rules, and I don't think it would be impossible to accomplish, Delegate Scanlin. But on the other hand, I think that inasmuch as we do have an article on Institutions and Assistance, I think as a Section 3 it would necessarily, logically fit within the ambit of this particular proposed article.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Well, thank you, Mr. Dahood. As a member of the majority report on this committee, I would resist the amendment and have it referred to the Bill of Rights somehow or other. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. I withdraw my objection, since no one is likely to be committed to any of these other institutions. That's the point, right? That we-okay-1 have no objection.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion?

Mrs. Sullivan, do you want to close?

DELEGATE SULLIVAN: Mr. President [Chairman]. I would just like to add one thing. I would rather it be here with institutions, and I do not mean just Warm Springs, so I'd rather we didn't change it in that. But with all of the excellent help I've had, I close. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue arises on Mrs. Sullivan's motion to add a Section 3 to the article on Institutions and Assistance, the section to be titled "Restoration of rights" and the text to be as you have before you.

Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Roll call.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, we'll have a roll call. "Persons committed to any such institutions shall retain all rights except those necessarily suspended as a condition of commitment. All rights necessarily suspended shall be restored upon termination of the state's responsibility." So many as are in favor of that motion, vote Aye on the voting machine; so many as are opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 95 delegates voting Aye, 1 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, 95 having voted Aye and 1 voting No, the amendment carries and that part will be included in Institutions and Assistance. Now, Mr. Clerk, let's turn to page 8. We're on page 8 now of your booklets on the Labor Article; page 8. Will the clerk please read the title and the Section 1.

CLERK HANSON: "Be it proposed by the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee that there be a new article on labor to read as follows: 'Labor. Section 1, Department and commissioner. The Legislative Assembly shall provide for a Department of Labor and Industry. The department shall be under the control of a Commissioner appointed by the Governor, confirmed by the Legislature.'" Section 1, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel -Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1 of the proposed Labor Article of the Public Health, Education-Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. We have a problem of order here. If the committee will refer to page IO-if you read this over, you'll note that the majority report deletes from the old Constitution all parts of the Labor Article except Section 1, which it revises considerably. Mr. McCarvel has proposed an amendment relative to the old Section 4, which he has numbered Section 3. In order to discuss this subject intelligently, I think it would be desirable if Mr. McCarvel's amendment could be brought in right after Section 1. Are you with me, Mr. Chairman? Mr. McCarvel has before us on the desk and-proposed an amendment to the proposed Labor Article which he has numbered Section 3 and titled "Eight-hour day."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes.

DELEGATE HELIKER: I would like, with Mr. McCarvel's approval, to have that numbered Section 2, so that we can discuss it in connection with the old Labor Article and right after we discuss Section 1. Because its not-it would be out of order to take it after we discuss the merit sys-

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is Mr. McCarvel's Section 3 a committee amendment, or is it just Mr. McCarvel's? The rule is that we adopt new sections at the end, and I only adopted Mrs. Sullivan's when we did because it was the end of that article. And maybe I should have put it off till the end of the discussion, but it's been our practice to adopt new sections after we adopt everything else. But my question is-my preliminary question is, is this Mr. McCarvel's only or does the rest of the committee agree with it?

DELEGATE HELIKER: This is Mr. McCarvel's amendment, with which I concur. There's been no committee action on it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, why don't you-1 think the Chair will rule that you may refer to it, and so forth, and it may be styled anywhere that Style and Drafting wants to put it. But I think in all fairness to the way we've been doing it that it ought not to be a part of the committee's proposal. We'll go through the committee's proposal, and we'll take other new matter later, but you may certainly refer to it and discuss it. Okay.

DELEGATE HELIKER: All right, that's fine. With respect to Section 1, this is an abbreviation of the-of Section 1 of Article XVIII of the present Constitution. The proposal retains a constitutional Department of Labor. You will recall that the old section-or the present section, I should say, creates a Department of Labor and Industry and a Department of Agriculture. We've already readopted the constitutional status of the Department of Agriculture. Section 1 of this proposal would retain constitutional status of the Department of Labor and Industry. However, it deletes the requirement in the present Constitution that the department be located at the Capitol. It retains a constitutional office, but deletes reference to a specific term. It retains the requirement that the Commissioner be confirmed by the Legislature or the Senate. The committee felt that this was as far as we wanted to go in restricting the legislators' discretion with respect to this office. It is our intention that the Legislature may leave the Commissioner subject to removal by the Governor at his pleasure, or may in its discretion provide a definite term of office and/or require that he be removable only for cause. As under the present Constitution, the powers and duties of the Commissioner are left to legislative specification. And from this recommendation with respect to the deletion of a specific term for the Commissioner of Labor. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, would Delegate Heliker yield to a question?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: You probably don't have your-I've been comparing this with the Department of Agriculture Article, which I feel much more satisfied with. It says simply, "There shall be a Department of Agriculture." My reasons would be that the last part is certainly already in the Executive Article, about appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate, in the 20-department section; and secondly, that the Commissioner might well be the model now but not the model 10 years from now. How doyoureact to that idea of just, in the Constitution, authorizing the department and not specifying any further?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, it's not a matter on which I have a great deal of feeling one way or the other. Some of the other committee members may have. I would point out to you that we didn't go nearly as far as the Agricultural Committee did in writing into this mandate to the Legislature to specify duties and provide funds and all that other stuff that we did put in there.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman. I'm not prepared to do this, but I would like to test the idea before the group and to propose an amendment that the final sentence will be deleted from Section 1 of the majority report on Article XVIII.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 1 will be deleted from—

DELEGATE ARBANAS: The final sentence.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The last sentence of Section 1, on page 8?

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Yes, so the article would read: "The Legislative Assembly shall provide for a Department of Labor and Industry, period".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Do you want to make a substitute motion to that effect-or an amendment to that effect? An amendment?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay. Mr. Arbanas has an amendment, the substance of which is to delete the last sentence of Section 1 on page 8 of the Labor Article. Is there further discussion?

Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman, may I ask Mr. Heliker a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker, will you yield?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: George, is this—of the Executive Department of the 20 departments-is this meant to take the place of the 19th department, which is the only one left free?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Just a moment. I'm not sure what the answer to that question is.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Well, I submit that this is really an important question, because when we-when the State of Montana voted for executive reorganization, essentially they were voting to strengthen the Governor's hand, to give him flexibility in the future to move one department; when they were phased out, to be able to move them around, change them at his discretion. I, myself, was very interested in having a Department of Local Government. I felt that if the 19th department was going to be taken up with anything, it should have been the Department of Local Government. But I resisted this on the very basis that I just didn't feel that it's good government to write something in with rigidity in the Consitution when he's going to need that kind of flexibility.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Might I refer this question to Charley Mahoney? He has all these things at his fingertip. Charley, where is that department now?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: It's one of the separate departments that we have. And it's Labor, and they've got the Unemployment Compensation. This is already one of the departments, Mr. Chairman. It's already one of the departments of state government. In the-Labor is one of them, and I think Mr. Smith is some-secondly-1 don't know who-1 think he heads it-1 think he's heading the whole department-Smith's heading the whole department. Unemployment Compensation, everything is under him.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Is it presently called the Department of Labor and Industry?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I can't give you the exact name on it, Mr. Chairman, but it's-isn't Unemployment Compensation-the whole works is in there in one group. But I can't give you the name, but I can look it up for you.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, Mr. Chairman, I think the answer, then, to Mrs. Bugbee's question is this wouldn't really make any change in the number of departments.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman, I disagree. I think by writing it into the Constitution you do write in inflexibility, and this is really not what we're here to do. That department is now being taken care of and being taken care of, I think, quite well. And I don't see why we should tie the hands of the Executive Department by writing this in. And I move to delete it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Now, do I understand that you've made a substitute motion to delete the entire section? Is that right, Mrs. Bugbee?

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Yes, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The situation now is that Mr. Arbanas moved to delete Section-the second sentence. But Mrs. Bugbee has now moved a substitute motion to delete all of Section 1 of the Labor Article. Mrs. Bugbee, are you finished discussing it?

DELEGATE BUGBEE: For the moment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: May I ask Mrs. Bugbee a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes. Mrs. Bugbee?

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Yes.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mrs. Bugbee, when we came to this selfsame article of the present Constitution under the report of the Committee on Natural Resources and Agriculture, why didn't you move to delete the Department of Agriculture?

DELEGATE BUGBEE: I did. We discussed it.

DELEGATE HELIKER: All right then, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: No, I'm talking about the Department of Agriculture. Mr. Gysler and I, we went around in that. And he said no, that that was not intended in any way to be one of the 20 departments. It's simply floating. That's my understanding, right?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee, you're still answering. Are you through?

DELEGATE BUGBEE: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, may I inquire of Mr. Gysler to straighten this out? What is the answer to that?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Gysler, will you yield?

DELEGATE GYSLER: Yes, I'll yield. Mr. Heliker, as Mrs. Bugbee said, we did have a conversation back and forth on this. At that time I explained, as you have just explained, that Agriculture is-the Agriculture Department is presently oneofthe20, justlikeLaborisoneofthe20 at the present time. I'm sure we're both put--wanted these in there for the same reason; that these are two things that, you know, we know are always going to be there and will always be a department.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Thank you, Mr. Gysler. Mr. Chairman, I resist the proposed motion to delete on the grounds just stated by Mr. Gysler-that these are two parallel and important functions of government which have been there by constitutional provision and will be around. We have provided for a constitutional Department of Agriculture. I think we must, in interest of consistency, provide for a constitutional Department of Labor and Industry. It should create no problems that weren't created by the provision for a Department of Agriculture.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Well, Mr. Chairman. I happen to have a chart from the organization of the Executive branch of government here with me, and they have activated the Department of Labor and Industry. And they had a Board of Labor Appeals as a department under the Department of Labor and Industry. But this has been activated according to this chart, if that was the question Mrs. Bugbee wanted to know.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. I'd like first to direct a question to Mr. Aasheim. Would he yield?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I'll yield, but I don't know if I can answer it or not.

DELEGATE ECK: You've got the chart.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I have the chart, yes.

DELEGATE ECK: Is it true thatrightnow the Department of Agriculture is headed by a board rather than-1 mean the Department of Industry and Labor-is headed by a board rather than a department head?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: It just says that the Governor has under his jurisdiction the Department of Labor and Industry. And the Board of Labor Appeals is a separate board under the jurisdiction of the Department of Labor and Industry. That's all I can tell you.

DELEGATE ECK: The Board of Appeals, did you say?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: The Board of Labor Appeals, yes.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. I agree very much with Mrs. Bugbee's point that it is restrictive in a Constitution to include specifications of various departments. However, I think that in light of the fact that we already have named a Department of Agriculture, and I don't think that we're at all likely to go back and reconsider our action, or could, I think that also a Department of Labor and Industry is really required. I think that there's no doubt that any change is likely to occur in the next hundred years, at least, in our state government which would make such departments unwarranted. And, therefore, we're not really hindering state government. I don't think it needs to be in the Constitution, and I would certainly support Mr. Arbanas' suggestion that the last sentence of Section 1 be deleted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harlow.

DELEGATE HARLOW: Mr. Chairman. I rise in opposition to both of the amendments-or the motions-the motion to delete the section and also the motion to delete the last sentence. I am always amazed at the various statements that are made in these halls, and in other halls of discussion and debate, in which it gets up and teams to give the idea that some industry, like agriculture or mining or logging or services, is the greatest industry in Montana; it's the leading industry in Montana. I'm wondering how far any of these industries would get without labor. I have a farm, and I wouldn't do very much without labor. You who run lawyer offices wouldn't do very much without labor; you who aredoctors-any business. I don't need to clutter up the record with naming the various industries or businesses that are dependent upon labor. And I think it is very nearsighted when we start to delete and to degrade the Department of Labor. Style and Drafting tried to make the Agriculture Department a little more understandable by the rearrangement of words, and they were rather emphatically told that they wanted the words just the way the Agricultural put them in the Constitution. And I think the Labor Department wording is not any more than adequate, and it's a cinch we do not want to delete them. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates, you were up.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. President [Chairman], fellow delegates. Just a few days ago, we added a Commissioner of Education. This was not a constitutional-status position before; both the Commissioner of Agriculture and the Commissioner of Labor have been. 1 agreed with the Department of Agriculture being in the Constitution, because I thought it was important. I would have preferred a Commissioner, but we-the general agreement was for a department. I feel this should not be deleted. It is very important, and I oppose the amendment. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman. If

you'll refer to page 43 of the old Constitution, both a Department of Labor and Industry and also Agriculture is in the first section. And it was the consensus of our committee to split these up. They'll remain the same as they've already been in the Executive branch; they've been organized for a number of years. I resist the motion to delete. I will go along with Mr. Arbanas' deletion of the last sentence, as a member of the committee.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Van Buskirk.

DELEGATE VAN BUSKIRK: As a member of the committee, I also resist the motion to delete, because I do feel that Labor is one of our important departments, and I would like to see it in the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Mr. President [Chairman]. As a member of the committee, I also resist the motion to delete.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Speer.

DELEGATE SPEER: Mr. Chairman, thank you. I agree with Mr. Heliker that in-as consistency is concerned, we did approve in this Convention the retention of the Department of Agriculture, and there is just as great reason to retain the Department of Labor and Industry. However, I want to point out that I did not vote to retain the Department of Agriculture in the Constitution, and therefore I feel that I must be consistent; that these are not constitutional matters. They are in the statutes already established, and I think both of these departments are part of the traditions of Montana. I don't think there is any danger that they will be wiped out.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman. I would like to add somelanguage that1 sent to the Chair, at the beginning of the first sentence. But in view of earlier rulings of the Chair and in view of Mrs. Bugbee's motion to delete, is my—would my motion to add language to the present section be in order?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Not until we decide whether we're going to delete it or not.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Well, then, I would like to speak.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: But you may explain it.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: I plan to add, if it is not deleted, the words-quote-% protect the rights of working men and for other purposes" at the beginning, if it is not deleted. I notice that the Agricultural Article-that agriculture is our number one industry in Montana. And I'm in favor of keeping the agricultural provision in, of course. But I do feel that, like Paul Harlow, that labor is also important in Montana. And therefore I am opposed to the motion to delete either the last sentence or the entire article.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Mr. Chairman. I'm sympathetic with the women that want to remove labor, but not in the Constitution. (Laughter) But not in the Constitution. I think it has a place in here. It has for a good many years, and I think in the future it is going to be needed more than ever. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman. I have now been able to get a little dope on what's in the Unemployment. This is all under the Department of Labor, and it's under the Commissioner, Mr. Smith. And this has been-this is also-the Unemployment Compensation, the Industrial Accident Board and some other minor things are under this department at this time. So this is not creating one of the new boards or taking up any board that we had under the 20. Now, if this should be removed, as the Bugbee amendment, then the Labor Department could be shoved anyplace, anywhere that they wished. And once we get this unicameral legislature and we get waves of hysteria, we're going to be in a terrible time. And I think that labor, as important a product as it is in the State of Montana, is certainly entitled to one place in the Constitution. I don't think that we should turn around out here and kick them out. Now, while I'm on my feet, I'm going to tell you why that I did not sign this report. I wanted to go further. I wanted the Commissioner appointed for a definite term, confirmed by the Senate or the unicameral body, whichever one it is, and then we would-they would know he would have the job for 4 years. Otherwise, the Governor might just wake up some morning and say, "I want your resignation." I think it would be unfair to labor. So this is the reason I did not sign it. I did not bring in a minority report, and I thought I would leave it up to the Convention. But I think this section, as good as it is-I'll go along for a while. The Legislature, in its wisdom, might determine a term of 4 years, or 2 years, or something like that, because I think we have a new plan that comes in with the annual session of the Legislature. We might decide that we wanted only Z-year terms instead of 4-year terms. Now, I'm not going to object, but I'd like to see this kept as the committee come in, even if I didn't sign the report. I am behind it 100 percent, and let's don't amend it. I think it's good. Let's don't take them out of the Constitution. And as I see it, I don't see why we can't have this man appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the senate.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: I would just like to finish, and say in response to Mr. Harlow, that1 am in no way against deleting or degrading any Department of Labor. As a matter of fact, I was backed by labor, and I'm all for them. I'm all for what is going on now in executive reorganization. But the very-the fact is that the people of this state did vote for executive reorganization, and implied in thatis a flexibility thatweleaveitto the Legislature to handle, and to the Governor-to the Executive Department. And I voted against the Department of Agriculture, and I was roundly defeated, and perhaps I will be today. But this is a matter of principle, and I want to stand on it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Cross,

DELEGATE CROSS: Mr. Chairman. For the benefit of the delegation, I sent upstairs to our committee room and have brought down the chart that shows executive reorganization. If there's any place to put it up, I'd be happy to do that. The Department of Labor is shown here as one of those departments. So, if anyone would like to see it, it's here.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President [Chairman]. I'm sure glad to seesomanypeoplein the House so concerned about labor. I hope their sentiments will prevail when I get up with mine. But I do want to mention that I want to support the committee. We sure feel this section should be in there, and I support it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. I, like Mr. Mahoney, have gotten ahold of a little dope since this question first came up. First of all, the Department of Labor and Industry is headed by a single Commissioner, Sidney Smith. Secondly, let me read you what is-the duties conferred upon the department are. The department will perform the functions of the existing Department of Labor, Apprenticeship Council, Employment Security Commission, Commission on Status of Women. It also has responsibility for Nurses' Employment Practices Act and the Division of Workmen's Compensation. There is a Labor Appeals Board of three members, created to hold hearings pertaining to the unemployment compensation matters.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion? If not, the issue—

Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Any of you that have read the proceedings of the Constitutional Convention of 1889, the words expressed here this morning are almost identical. Grandpappy—my grandpappy voted for and fought for and led the fight for the Department ofLabor. I gottago along with the old boy. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mrs. Bugbee's motion to delete Section 1 of the Labor Article in its entirety. We'll have a roll call vote. All those in favor, vote Aye; opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate want to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, cast the ballot.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 4 delegates have voted Aye, 87 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 87 having voted No and 4 voting Aye, the motion is defeated. The issue is now Mr. Arbanas' motion to strike the last sentence: "The department shall be under the control of a Commissioner appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Legislature or Senate."

Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. Certainly it was not my intention to in any way cut down the effectiveness of this department. About the only one I know in state government is Mr. Smith, and so I don't have those motivations. But in our Executive Article which we have adopted, we say, "Except as otherwise provided in this Constitution or by law, each department shall be headed by a single executive appointed by the Governor, subject to confirmation by the Senate, to hold office until the end of Governor." Now, consistent with that, it seems to me that this second sentence is both unnecessary and inflexible. And therefore I think it's in tune with executive reorganization not to not allow the department to adjust to changing needs.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion? Very well, the issue is on Mr. Arbanas' motion to delete the last sentence of Section 1 of the Labor Article. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Noes have it, and so ordered. The issue is now back on Section 1.

Mr. Kelleher, do you want to make your amendment?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman. As I have done so many times in the last 2 months, I'm going to adheed [sic] and listen to the advice of my dear friend, Charley Mahoney, and withdraw my motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: How many times? (Laughter) Very well, Mr. Kelleher's proposal is withdrawn. The issue is on Section 1 of the Labor Article. Members of the committee, you have before you for your consideration, upon the recommendation of Mr. Heliker that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1 of the Labor Article, that it recommend the same do pass-No, that it recommend the same be adopted. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Will the clerk read Section 2 of the Labor Article, page 9.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 2, Merit system. The Legislative Assembly shall establish a system under which the merit principle will govern the employment of persons by the state." Section 2, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I don't know which of you gentlemen want to take this; you have me confused.

Mr. McCarvel—Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman. I wish to withdraw my support of this section due to the fact that I don't think I can count on any help from the committee. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McKeon.

DELEGATE McKEON: I'd like to make a motion to pass consideration of this section until after we've dealt with the section concerning the right of public employees to bargain collectively. May I speak to this?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You may.

DELEGATE McKEON: Briefly, I just want to say that a merit system in itself is a very harmful thing to the labor unions and to the working people unless there is a provision for the right to bargain collectively. So for this reason, Mr. Chairman, I would request that we would pass consideration on this until we have dealt with the collective bargaining proposal.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair thinks the rule-the motion is to defer-to pass, not indefinitely but to a specific time, and we'll make it till 1:30 p.m. And if that doesn't suffice, we'll adjust it at that time. Now, I will allow Mr. McKeon's motion. Is there debate?

Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: I just have a question to ask of the Chair. I have an additional section to add to the Labor Department. Would I be foresworn here or prevented from adding that at that time, at 1:30?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, you'll never be prevented from adding anything if you can get the votes, but let's take it up later, okay?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: That's all I want to know. Thanks.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Am I lost here? I mean, did I get lost? I thought we had Mr. McCarvel's amendment come up, and now Mr. McKeon is talking about merit system, which is another section. And I didn't think this would affect Mr. McCarvel's amendment. I thought we would—maybe could complete the Labor. And this is not another section; this is another article. Am I lost here?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I don't think you're lost. It's another article-no, it's the same article. It's the Section 2 of the Labor Article. And the situation, Mr. Mahoney, is that when we came to it, Mr. McKeon moved to pass consideration until 1:30, and we're debating that motion.

Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Mahoney is probably right that this should have been put in as a separate article, but it wasn't; it was put in as a section. And we-to be logical, we should be considering Mr. McCarvel's amendment at this time. And I certainly have no objection, if Mr. Scanlin doesn't, to passing consideration of the merit system question until after we have disposed of these things having to do with the Labor Department and labor relations matters.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Let's find the sense of the body on this. So many as are in favor of passing, until 1:30, Section 2 of the Labor Article, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's passed. Very well. Now, the Chair is somewhat confused. There's a minority report to the Labor Article. We have now dealt with Section 1; we've passed Section 2; there is no Section 3 except the new section, which should be considered last. Mr. Studer, are you ready? Or is this the time for Mr. Studer?

Mr. Heliker, do you have a view?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I guess I do.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, we'll hear it.

DELEGATE HELIKER: My view is that we ought to discuss the 8-hour-day question first and, if necessary to get to it, suspend the rules. Since it was a part of the old Labor Article and that's where we started, I think we ought to stick with it until we finish it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer, do you object to taking up the amendment for a new section on the 8-hour law first? Mr. Studer?

DELEGATE STUDER: No objection.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right. Well, the usual procedure is to complete the work on the majority and minority reports. But having the permission of both the majority and the minority here and being at the end of the Labor Article until we--until 1:30, the Chair will now entertain Mr. McCarvel's motion. Mr. McCarvel, do you want it read?

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Yes, Mr. Chairman. I'd like to have it read.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read Mr. McCarvel's addition of Section 3 to the Labor Article.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend the Labor Article by adding a new section to read as follows: 'Section 3, Eight-hour day. A period of 8 hours shall be-shall constitute a day's work in all industries, occupations, undertakings, and employments, except farming and stockraising, and except when an employee voluntarily agrees to work longer than the prescribed 8 hours; provided, however, that the Legislative Assembly may by law reduce the number of hours constituting a day's work whenever, in its opinion, a reduction will better promote the general welfare.'" Section 3, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 3, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Under the present Constitution, Section 4, it's stated that "a period of 8 hours shall constitute a day's work in all industries, occupations, undertakings and employment, except farming and stockraising; provided, however, that the Legislative Assembly may by law reduce the number of hours constituting a day's work whenever it is-in its opinion, a reduction would be--would better promote the general welfare, but it shall have no authority to increase the number of hours constituting a day's work beyond that herein provided." The thing that made that law ineffective was that if a man worked over 8 hours, it was in violation of it; and if he was required to work over 8 hours, it was in violation of it. That is why this amendment to this article reads that an employee voluntarily agrees to work longer. I think this will take care of this article, and I hope that the delegates will treat it favorably.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. I concur in Mr. McCarvel's amendment, and I'd like to direct your attention to the discussion of this issue on page 11. We had hearings on this article, of course, and we became aware, as we went through the article and heard the witnesses, that there were certain problems with this section as it had been previously written. These are set forth on this page. However, I think the committee was generally of the feeling that if acceptable language could be found that would solve those problems, we were not adverse to keeping the section. We were not persuaded, in the course of hearings and committee discussion that we had found that language. I refer you particularly to the sentence in the middle of the page. That language is the language which Mr. McCarvel now suggests; and it would remove practically all protection for workers in nonunion situations, whereas it may be argued that the worker under union management contract needs no such protection. Well, we have found since-I've had a lot of correspondence and a lot of phone calls on this-that that statement simply isn't true; that, as a matter of fact, the provision as it is in the old Constitution has been used by certain unions and individuals to protect members of weak unions, in some cases, and in other cases, members of strong unions who do not have any contractual protection, against compulsory overtime. Now, the fact is, of course, that for most employees this is no great problem. Most employees-or the great majority, I suppose—want all the overtime they can get. But there are certain employees, for certain reasons-all kinds of reasons, and many of them very good reasons—who resist compulsory overtime beyond 8 hours a day. And this provision in the old Constitution has, as a matter of fact, been used. I have a couple letters right here in front of me-one from Hotel and Restaurant Employees Union--where they cite specific examples of using this provision to set an employer right who was working a girl washing dishes for 15 hours a day; and in another case, where workers in a sawmill resisted compulsory overtime and used this provision to combat it. I have a whole sheaf of grievance forms from the Anaconda Smelter in Anaconda, where the company disciplined employees, or threatened discipline, for refusing overtime. And these grievances were settled by the union on the basis that the disciplinary action was withdrawn when the union called the company's attention to this constitutional provision. So it has developed since we held our hearings, and since we wrote this provision out of the Constitution, or recommended so, that as a matter of fact, it has been an important matter to a certain number of employees. And I think that even with the language--which is necessary-"and except when an employee voluntarily agrees to work longer than the prescribed 8 hours", because, as Mr. McCarvel explained, under the present Constitution, the employee who voluntarily works longer than 8 hours is violating the Constitution as much as the employer. This language is therefore necessary to cure that problem. And it will, of course, mean that I suppose most employees in nonunion situations who are asked to work overtime will voluntarily agree to do so. But there are a significant number of situations where, despite that clause, the provision can be used to protect employees who wish to avoid compulsory overtime.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Mr. President [Chairman], would Mr. Heliker yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: George, in your hearings, did you have any testimony that had to do with the new trend of a 4-day—four 10-hour day or 4-day, 40-hour week? I was wondering what effect this might have.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes, we-and that was one ofthereasons why we-1 think that's mentioned somewhere here-why we voted to remove it. However, with this clause in, "except when an employee voluntarily agrees to work longer than the prescribed 8 hours", that would take care of that problem. There wouldn't be any problem.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Would Mr. Heliker yield to another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Assuming then, George, you hired a new employee, would you have to get his agreement at that time? I suppose then that he would be willing to work these different hours than R-hour day.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes. That would do it.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman. This had a lot of discussion in the committee. And this is one of the things we discussed originally, was the new trend that's coming. We may get down here to the 40 hours by working 4 days. Then, this will be IO-hour day. I see in the future, maybe not too far down the line, that we develop into 3 10-hour days plus 1 5-hour day. In order to have 3 days off, this can be done. Industry can then operate around the clock. I think this is something that we have to look down the road to. I was just talking to one of the labor men this morning—Highway Department. It may be in maintenance men that we come to the point of letting--using this equipment for the full week, and come out to something like this. This is why that I feel very keenly on the flexibility that this is going to allow. We've got problems of-maybe we don't have to—we'll have two crews instead of one on overtime, partly. This is the thing that we were thinking of, and I'm sure Mr. McCarvel and I discussed this yesterday. And this was our main thing, was leaving some flexibility; not to hurt anybody, but to turn around we've got-we're-recreation. I'm not going to use the word "alarm", but we've got a lot of it. And these people now want 3 days off. I can see this coming. Now if we can do this and have the 10-hour day which gives 3 days off, I think it'll be a great flexibility. And that's why I support the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Cate.

DELEGATE CATE: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I would have to rise in opposition to Mr. McCarvel's amendment. The phrase "and except when an employee voluntarily agrees to work longer than the prescribed 8 hours" is exceptionally dangerous to labor. This would mean that when a man comes and applies for a job, his employer could require him to work any period of time-12 hours, 10 hours, 14 hours-and the guy that's looking for a job is going to have to sign that agreement and not going to have any choice. The Constitution makes it permissible-the Legislature could not prohibit it. So you're creating the exact opposite here of what you want to create. You want to protect labor, but you're not protecting labor by this clause, because, in effect, you're eliminating the 8-hour provision and you're making it constitutionally legal for any employer to require any employee to work any period of time. And I submit the man that's looking for a job doesn't have any choice; he's got to sign that agreement. And this is doing the opposite of what it's intended to do. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. I have to rise in opposition to the section as proposed by Delegate McCarvel. I'm extremely concerned that the bees in the bee industry might not consent to working more than 8 hours, and that's a personal interest of mine. But more important is the fact that I think that by putting this in the Constitution, we can do two things: one, we can lock it in and make it difficult for flexibility in the future in the area of a three-and-a-half-day week or a 4-day week, or whatever might come about in the future; and secondly, I think that the provision is something that the Legislature, in changing times, can much better handle. And I think that we have to have confidence in them in this area. And to specify an 8-hour day clearly has its dangers, and to allow for the exceptions has its dangers. And I feel that we're better without this section. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. In responding to Mr. Cate's comments, this problem that I spoke of and is spoken of on page 11 was recognized by labor, by the representatives of labor, by the unions; and, as a matter of fact, they are all, as far as I know, in agreement with the language suggested by Mr. McCarvel. There's just no way of coping with the problems except to put in that clause. As to Mr. Foster's comment that we're putting this into the Constitution, I would remind you that this is the result of a long tradition in Montana constitutional law. This was put in in 1903 as an amendment originally applying to underground mines and state employees and then was then strengthened in 1935 in a referendum adopted by the people applying it to all classes of employees. I think we should keep it, eliminating what problems have grown up around it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aronow.

DELEGATE ARONOW: Mr. Chairman. I rise in support of the McCarvel amendment. As Mr. Heliker stated, it's been a long tradition in Montana. The R-hour day, the problems have been taken care of, and I think a large number of people in Montana would feel real aggrieved and hurt and disappointed if we had no reference to the R-hour day in the Constitution. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Payne.

DELEGATE PAYNE: May I ask Mr. Heliker a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker, will you yield?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I yield.

DELEGATE PAYNE: Mr. Heliker, I'm interested in women being able to work a 4-hour day. You know, some of us who have family responsibilities are not able to work a full 8-hour shift. And now with--and particularly in the nursing profession with this, hospitals don't want nurses working a half-day shift. Is there any remedy for that in this?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I'm not sure I undertand what the problem is.

DELEGATE PAYNE: Well, you see there are a lot of women who could work half days, who could work 4 hours a day. We would not want to be limited with this B-hour business.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, you wouldn't be. Under McCarvel's proposal, it's strictly voluntary.

DELEGATE PAYNE: Well, it seems to me that it is restrictive, that you have to work 8 hours.

DELEGATE HELIKER: That you have to work 8 hours? No—

DELEGATE PAYNE: Well, if you're going to work-it takes away the flexibility of being able to work half days.

DELEGATE HELIKER: No, I don't think there's any such intention. I don't see it in the language either.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Payne.

DELEGATE PAYNE: Well, is there any way in which this could be made clearer? Excuse me.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: I didn't hear the last question. Hold your mike a little closer.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any way this could be made clearer, Mr. Heliker?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, can I see that copy? What you're saying is that the provision says "a period of 8 hours shall constitute a day's work". That's the—

DELEGATE PAYNE: Right, that's what you said.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, this has always been understood to mean that no more than a period of 8 hours--as a limit, in other words. I'm sure you're the first person who has ever thought of interpreting it as requiring 8 hours.

DELEGATE PAYNE: Well, now-Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Payne.

DELEGATE PAYNE: This is a problem in the nursing profession particularly, because some of us would like to work half-day shifts, and sometimes hospitals don't want that. And so it seems to me that this is somewhat restrictive. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Heliker or Mr. McCarvel yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker or Mr. McCarvel, will you yield? Mr. Heliker?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Okay.

DELEGATE FURLONG: What effect, if any, would this R-hour-day law have on the "in lieu of' clauses. For example, the mileage clause used by the railroad unions--a hundred mile or A-hour day.

DELEGATE HELIKER: None at all. That's covered by federal law.

DELEGATE FURLONG: What about such things as-oh, time differential?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Time differential?

DELEGATE FURLONG: Yes. For example, if you're working a different shift, say a graveyard shift, and you get a time differential. Would it have any effect?

DELEGATE HELIKER: It could have an effect if theresult was an employee was required to work more than 8 hours in one day. If he objected to that, he could use this.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Mr. President [Chairman]. As Mr. Heliker's just told you, the members of the committee would liked to have something-or would have liked to have had something in the Constitution about the 8-hour day. And it was not our intention, in deleting it, to be unmindful of the desires of labor in this respect. But you've all listened now to the various problems that arise in connection with this proposal. Mrs. Payne, I think, made a very good observation. It doesn't provide for those situations where there's less than an 8-hour day provided for. Mr. Cate has made a very good observation that those in nonunion employment may be victimized under certain circumstances. And these are the very things that Mr. Heliker and I tried to consider. And we tried to come up with a short sentence that would cover all these situations and, frankly, we weren't able to do so. Now, let's consider the 1889 provision. When that was passed, it was thought, on the face of it, that it was simple and workable in its terms. And yet, within a very short time, Workmens' Compensation was established, and lo and behold, anybody that was working beyond the 8-hour day, voluntarily or otherwise, was outside the terms of the Constitution and couldn't collect his workmen's compensation if the injury occurred during that period. And so, as a matter of fact, everybody had to start lying. They had to say that the injury occurred, not beyond the A-hour period, but at the seven-and-a-half-hour times. And this is not a good situation. And I submit that if we try to put something in here that will cover the situations which we now foresee, in a very short time something else will come up and this thing will be unworkable. I think the whole thing is statutory, and there are many, many statutes on the books covering this. There's a provision for [illegible] provision for carpenters; there's a provision for plumbers, and on down the line. I think that each of these different trades and occupations have different working conditions to contend with. And if we try to put something fixed and inflexible into the Constitution, I think we'll not be helping labor, but defeating the aims that we're trying to establish.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel. Oh, wait a minute-if you're not ready to close, I don't mean to cut you off.

Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman]. Will Mrs. Payne yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Payne?

DELEGATE PAYNE: I'll be glad to.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mrs. Payne, under your objections to this, you spoke about the nursing profession. Are you saying that a number of nurses have not been able to work because the prospective employer said, "Well, it's in the Constitution-you have to work 8 hours"?

DELEGATE PAYNE: I don't know that that's the reason. I do know that at one time I was turned down employment because I did not want to work an 8-hour shift. I only wanted to work half days.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: But they didn't cite the Constitution as the reason?

DELEGATE PAYNE: No, but I think now that we have aired this, I think they could use this now.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Reichert.

DELEGATE REICHERT: Would Mr. McCarvel yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel?

DELEGATE McCARVEL: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE REICHERT: In view of Mrs. Payne's statements and her concern about part-time workers, would it help if your amendment included the word "full day's work"? It would read: "A period of 8 hours shall constitute a full day's work in all industries". And therefore part-

DELEGATE McCARVEL: No, I can see where that would not change it any, either a full day or a legal day's work. Full day would be all right.

DELEGATE REICHERT: Mr. Chairman, is an amendment in order to add the word "full" before "day's work"?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It is, Mrs. Reich&, but-and you can make it if you want to. I might suggest that if we pass this, it can be amended.

DELEGATE REICHERT: Fine.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: If we make several amendments to it now and don't pass it—

DELEGATE REICHERT: Mr. Chairman. May I speak momentarily in support of the amendment?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes.

DELEGATE REICHERT: I do want to say that it is an important provision in our Constitution. I know there's some employees in this state who are fully capable of doing a competent job for 8 hours, but they just can't stand the physical strain for longer periods in some heavy industries. Some employers either force employees to quit or they fire them, if they refuse to work over 8 hours. This usually happens to an employee when he's at an age when it is hard to get another job. If most of the people would adhere to an 8-hour day, the unemployment rate in our state, I feel, would not be so great. Therefore, I support this amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President [Chairman]. I wish to add a few comments on things that we discussed in our committee on this deal, especially on this back-to-back week and the IO-hour days that they're working on, and starting to work so much in industry, especially in offices today. They're getting these 40-hour weeks in, and this was discussed very thoroughly, and this 10-hour law wouldn't help that a bit. Forty hours at 10 hours a day isn't a bad wrinkle, and it's coming to the front quite fast. In many industries in the East, it's been adopted, and they seem to like it. I was in a committee hearing one night-a subcommittee hearing-in which Mr. McCarvel and Heliker, and the aid of two business agents-you can't call that really a stacked committee, I don't suppose-but we decided then and there that the 8-hour law was not necessary, and we came out of that committee deciding against it. So I don't see why it should be brought up here.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman]. I'm very happy to be able to support Jerry Cate after 46 days. (Laughter) It seems that this, to me, is a statutory matter to be worked out between labor and management. I think when you put the clause in as it now appears in this matter, "except when employee voluntarily agrees to work longer than prescribed 8 hours", it really takes it out. If he doesn't agree, then he's out. And so it seems to me that the majority proposal that's considered all these matters is very proper. And it seems to me that this could do more harm than good to the very people you're trying to benefit; I mean, to the employees and to the laborers. We're trying to put something in that will please them, and I think in the long run, it could be very detrimental to them. This thing is pretty well covered by statutory law. You'll remember there's a judgment came out of Madison County for the people that worked for the Children's Center that just collected four-hundred-and-some thousand dollars in a court action for working overtime, the housekeepers, around the clock. So there's a lot of federal law on this thing, and I think the majority has thought this thing out. And I think it's more flexible. I don't think voting against it's voting against labor in any sense of the word. I think you're giving them more flexibility, and I think the majority is the soundest measure in this regard.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman. I would like the journal to show that my vote on this issue will be strictly symbolic. The old man led the fight for this in 1889, and I'm not going to desert him 82 years later.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We may have a hundred and one delegates here. (Laughter)

Mr. Harrington.

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: Mr. Chairman. I rise to support Mr. McCarvel's motion. I feel that labor itself feels that this is important that this is--remains in the Constitution as it is Section 4 in the old-in the present Constitution. I think we should maintain this. I think this has been used in many cases where there has been a dispute over the working over the 8 hours. And thus, I think if this Constitutional Convention turns around and takes this out, it may cause us a little problem. And I do say that labor favors maintaining this. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McKeon.

DELEGATE McKEON: I would like to reiterate what Mr. Harrington said. Labor very much wants this in the Constitution. Also I might say that until a few weeks ago, I thought the battle for the 8-hour day had been fought and won by labor. But apparently, after reviewing the grievance reports that Mr. Heliker spoke about later-a few minutes ago, I find that the battle is still being fought; and I find that the Anaconda Company, in particular, is fighting the battle. They are, many, many times coercing employees to work longer than 8 hours in conditions which are terribly unhealthy to the employee. And I think that a constitutional mandate for an 8-hour day is important. I think we have to retain it. I think that thestatutes right now which provide for the 8-hour day are only written because we have the constitutional provision, and I fear what might happen to these statutes if we remove from the Constitution the mandate for an 8-hour day. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman. Could I ask Mr. McCarvel a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel?

DELEGATE McCARVEL: I yield, Mr—

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Does this mean 8 hours on the same job, or can they hold more than one job? I have lots of employees that hold more than one job in a day.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: This would be 8 hours on one job.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Then, they could be a waitress for 8 hours and a cook for 8 hours if they wanted to?

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Yes. Well—

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Then, how does it help?

DELEGATE McCARVEL: That would be up to a bargaining agreement, I would say. That would come under-if you hit them in the same area there where you were-split labor—

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Well, are you going to prevent them from holding down two jobs? What if you have one a secretary for 8 hours and one a cocktail waitress for 8 hours?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Well, that would-8 hours on a-would constitute a day's work. And if they want to work 16, I guess this would not relieve them of that responsibility.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Well, therefore, I oppose Mr. McCarvel's amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Drum.

DELEGATE DRUM: Mr. Chairman. I would rise to oppose Mr. McCarvel's amendment. It would--and I-hate to question the wisdom of our labor friends, but going back to the time that the Constitution under which we now are living was written, I would presume that an 11-, 12- or 16-hour day was logical. And maybe 50 years from now, a 4- or 5- or 6-hour day may be something that is very commonplace. And it would appear to me that to put an 8-hour day into the Constitution would certainly limit the ability of the leaders in the labor movement to create better working conditions for laborers of 40 or 50 years away from now. And it also would eliminate some of the latitude of movement that it would appear labor could operate in in negotiating the 4-hour—or the 4-day, 10-hour; or maybe at some point in the future, maybe 4 4-hour days. As our society becomes more affluent, all reports that you read indicate that 50 or a hundred years from now, people may only have to work 2 hours a day to make a living and feed their families and to sustain life. And for us to lock something into the Constitution which could become very cumbersome to the labor movement down the road certainly looks like we lack wisdom in making that judgment at this time.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Pemberton.

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: Mr. President [Chairman]. I have served several years on the Status of Women Commission in the State of Montana, which is a commission endorsed nationally. And at different times, we have discussed the possibility of women working for half days instead of the full 8 hours. And that is the reason that Mrs. Payne brought this up on her own behalf, and my support of her question. I feel very much that the amendment for 8 hours or longer is great, but by reducing the number of hours by Legislative-by the Legislature seems to me to limit it very much in reduction. I should like to hear, possibly, Mr. McCarvel talk about this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Mr. Chairman. There's nothing in here that does not allow less than 8 hours; 8 hours just constitutes a full day-as Mrs. Reichert asked if I would be-if I would condescend to do that. Eight hours is just the full day; and then, if you were forced to work over it, like they have done in the industry of my hometown-they have forced these men to work over 8 hours or be subject to discipline. Now, this is what we want to get away from. Eight hours is a full day, and some men can work more than 8 hours and some can't. And when they are asked to work, then it should be up to their discretion whether they want to work overtime or not and not be subject to discipline by working, which might be injurious to their own health. No one knows from day to day how you will feel, whether you feel like working more than 8 hours or not, and that is why the voluntary provision is put in here.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Pemberton.

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: Mr. President [Chairman], may I ask Mr. McCarvel a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: I yield.

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: Mr. McCarvel, that part of it isn't what I'm interested in. It's after the semicolon, "provided, however, that the Legislative Assembly may by law reduce the number of hours constituting a day's work whenever, in its opinion, a reduction will better promote the general welfare."

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Yes, that we could go to a lower than a R-hour day, that we go to a 6-hour day.

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: By legislation?

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Yes.

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: Thank you

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Would Mr. Swanberg yield to a question, please?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: I yield, Bob.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Bill, if industry in Montana did go, say, to 4-day, IO-hour workday, would they have to pay--under this proposal, would they have to pay time-and-a-half for those last 2 hours of each of those 4 days each week, in your opinion.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Well, this is one of those questions that would undoubtedly come up. The constitutional provision as written says "8 hours a day shall constitute a day's work". It doesn't say that there'll be overtime or no overtime for those extra 2 hours. It's just one of those ambiguities that a court would have to thrash out. It's not our intent that overtime be paid for those extra 2 hours on any one day, but we don't say that in here. And this, again, is another reason for leaving this whole thing to the Legislature. You'd have to write a book to put this thing in the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher. The Chair would observe that they could work at straight time under the section, but not under the existing federal and state law.

Mr. Cate.

DELEGATE CATE: I'm going to move to amend Mr. McCarvel's proposition. And if you have before you the Committee of the Whole amendment, I would move to add, after the word "a" in the first sentence, between "a period", "a maximum period"; so that it reads "a maximum period of 8 hours", which would meet the-I believe, the question that Mrs. Payne had. And then on the fourth line, after "employee", to— would insert "or employees' association"-or "employees' representative"; so it reads "when an employee or employees' representative voluntarily agrees." And on line 3, after the word "except", "and except as provided by law"-"as provided by law" would be added in there. So that the entire section would read: "Eight-hour day. A maximum period of 8 hours shall constitute a day's work in all industries, occupations, undertakings and employments, except farming and stockraising, and except as provided by law, when an employee or employee's representative voluntarily agrees to work longer than the prescribed 8 hours; provided, however, that the Legislative Assembly may by law reduce the number of hours constituting a day's work whenever, in its opinion, a reduction would better promote the general welfare." Then, I would further move to amend the section by adding the following language after "general welfare"-striking the period and putting in a colon-"and provided further that the Legislature shall fix an overtime rate of pay in the absence of negotiated contractual provisions covering same between the employer and employee." I'll read that again: "and provided further that the Legislature shall fix an overtime rate of pay in the absence of negotiated contractual provisions covering same between the employer and employee." And that would protect the employee who is working for a nonunion type situation from being abused in the overtime situation.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Cate, the Chair has made notes of your amendments. The trouble is that if we amend this before we get the sense of the body, we're going to have to have this printed up. I don't think we should be adopting this kind of technical language without all the delegates having it on their table to look at. Therefore we're either going to have to print it up now, or we're going to have to pass the motion and deal with the 8-hour day. And if we pass it, then we'll print it up. But I just can't accept that kind of a long motion without it being printed up and put on the desks. So—

DELEGATE CATE: I recognize the problem.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: --so, why don't you go out and print it up.

DELEGATE CATE: Right. I'd like to move that we pass consideration of this until 1:00 p.m. this afternoon.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you want to make that 1:45, so it's obviously after the other one? Mr. Cate, is that okay?

DELEGATE CATE: Yes, that's fine.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Mr. Cate moves to pass consideration of this section until 1:45 today. All in favor, say Aye.

Oh, excuse me, Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: I wonder if we couldn't first determine whether they want the 8-hour day in the Constitution. If we could vote on that and then make a determination-if they do, amendments. If it's the sense of the body they don't want it in, then we're wasting a lot of time and passing up a lot of stuff, when we could get on with our work. Now, that's just a thought. In other words, if they want an R-hour day in the Constitution, we could meet that issue right now. If they don't, we'd have it settled. And if they do, then we could go on for amendments. Would that he agreeable, Jerry?

DELEGATE CATE: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Cate. I'll have you withdraw both your motions.

DELEGATE CATE: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, Mr. McCarvel, is it agreeable with you that we vote on your section with the understanding that if it passes, we will have it open for further amendment at 1:45 today?

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Yes, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And if we vote-so that everybody understands, if it's voted against, then we will have finished it; and if it's voted to put it in, it can still be amended. Is that correct?

DELEGATE McCARVEL: That's correct.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, now, let's do it that way, and then we'll know whether we need to do this or not. Is there further discussion before we vote on the principle of the 8-hour day? We'll have a roll call, hut let's-is there any further discussion on the principle of the 8-hour day?

Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. President [Chairman] and fellow delegates. I feel since this was in the present Constitution, and it is a protection, and since slavery went out a long time ago, or should have if it hasn't, and this is a basic human right, I feel it is a protection, and I also support it in the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman. We took considerable time in the committee of trying to get something worked out for this R-hour day. And from the things that have been said here, I don't want to vote against labor, hut I think this law to put in the Constitution. So therefore I oppose amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Skari.

DELEGATE SKARI: Mr. President [Chairman]. It seems to me this was a very necessary protection back in 1889, and I suspect that's why they put it in then, because there was a real need for this R-hour day. It was not universally accepted at that time. Now, it seems to me, this is covered by statutes by both the federal and state; also by tradition; that it seems to me that it is statutory now. It appears that it will limit the goals of labor rather than really give them any adequate protection, because there's several people, as Mr. Mahoney brought out here-the change is around the corner, and in leisure time and this sort of thing. And for this reason, I would favor deleting it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker, are you going to close, or is Mr. McCarvel?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, Mr. McCarvel can close, but I'd like to speak.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay.

DELEGATE HELIKER: A number of things have been brought up which I think are throwing sand in the machinery here. Mr. Swanberg said that under the original clause, we got involved in workers failing to receive workmen's compensation. It's my understanding that that never was a problem. Mr. Davis speaks of the majority report, and how he wants to support it. The fact is the majority, Mr. Davis, has fallen apart. And as a matter of fact, the majority was never very certain of itself on this, and we agreed to delete the thing because we, at that point, had reached the opinion that it wasn't useful to anyone. But we have found since, at least Mr. McCarvel and I, and I think Mr. Mahoney agrees, that as a matter of fact, to a certain number of people, it is highly useful and that we ought to keep it. And as I say the same thing to Mr. Skari, not everyone is covered by these laws that you speak of. And as a matter of fact, this constitutional provision is being used to protect some people at the present time. Now, as to Mr. Drum and his reference to 1889, this amendment was adopted in 1935. It's not quite all that ancient. As to it becoming cumbersome down the road and preventing labor from accomplishing what it wants to, and so forth, I don't think this is any problem either. Written as it is now written, with Mr. McCarvel's amendment, it's quite flexible. I would, however, like to see us vote on an amendment which would cure the, I think, purely hypothetical problem-but perhaps it's a real problem that Mrs. Payne brought up, by introducing after the first word the word "maximum", so it would read: "a maximum period". And I so move as an amendment, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James, do you want to speak on that? The Chair hasn't decided whether to allow it, yet. No, you don't have the floor. Mr. Heliker, I have an agreement with the author of this committee that we're going to decide whether we're going to vote on the 8-hour day or not, and then we can amend it if it passes. Now, you've explained your amendment, and I'm going to rule your motion out of order. Is there other discussion of whether or not-a general discussion of the 8-hour day only. And my personal view is that everybody's discussed it rather thoroughly, but if anybody cares to rise and complete the education of the body, here's your chance.

Mr. Gysler.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Chairman. I am certainly sympathetic with the H-hour day and everything, but as the small employer who has been thinking about, particularly part of the year, for the benefit of the employees, going to this 4-day and-or 4-day workweek for the 40 hours, which, of course, has been covered for about 12, 13 years under the Federal Wage and Hour Law, and that allows me to do it. But, I've always kind of looked at this provision and wondered what would happen if I had 90 percent of my people want to do this and the other 10 percent don't. It's always bothered me as to just whatwould happen here. So I'm going to vote for deletion of it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President [Chairman]. The reason I wanted to speak again is that I was asked to explain this back-to-back week. Apparently, some of them didn't understand it, And we did use this quite a long while ago, and it may come up again under these welfare programs that are being talked about. It's entirely possible that they'll put welfare out on WPA projects again. And it was the custom that they'd start on Thursday, Friday--or Friday, Saturday-Thursday, Friday, Saturday of one week, skip Sunday and work Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. And that was a full week; that was a 60-hour week back-to-back, and workers would then start again on the next week, they'd have a week off and a week on.

And they would work on this back-to-back week, 10 hours a day. Well, now, this could hurt quite a bit, especially if welfare workers got into this; it hurt quite a bit. The way welfare workers get into it-they don't have the equipment or the machinery or the superintendents to get along on some of these projects that welfare workers may be assigned to, and it's entirely possible that something like this could come up again. I think it would be a good thing. And if they did, why, here you'd have an 8-hour law making a short work week out of it. Thereason the IO-hour law would be better-naturally, I'm looking after the contractor's interests, are very selfish interests in being here. And a big contractor's lobby put me in here, of course, and just like some of these other outfits that have a few men in here and—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Stay on the subject, Mr. Studer. (Laughter)

DELEGATE STUDER: Okay. But then, on Heliker's-just reminded that there were some workers that weren't covered. Well, it's entirely possible that there's workers that don't want to be covered under this 8-hour law. I can imagine a lot of small businessmen, or filling station operators, or somebody that's out there working and they got a man working for them. And they got a—whatever they're doing-a couple hours left to work, they'd just as soon work; they're getting a good hourly wage. They don't have to be worrying about their time. They usually work sort of on a day basis, but they get a little extra if they work over; but they do work on hourly wages a lot of places. They're not covered by union laws. They're mostly covered by federal laws that-on this stuff anyway, but where they only have less than eight men, in a lot of cases they aren't. And if they want to work, let them work. I don't see harm in it; they want to. They're getting a good wage, and they don't always have to be protected. With a law like this, some lawyer get ahold of a fellow that happened to work 10, 12 hours a day, a big husky guy that didn't object to it at all, and come back and show him a couple years later you got a cause against this man. Don't you remember when you worked a couple hours over there? It could cause a lot of trouble. I don't see any reason for it being in there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel -just a minute. Mrs. Babcock, he's going to close. Do you want to speak?

add one thing. Housewives aren't protected. Would this limit their work to 8 hours?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's either farming or stockraising, Mrs. Babcock. (Laughter)

Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman. I take it Constitutional Convention delegates aren't covered either by this. But I would consider that—I'll make my remarks short so maybe we can get in an 8-hour day. I do think that to remove this would be a step backwards, though, and I'm all for Joe's section here.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Mr. Chairman. I'd like to make a few comments on some of the statements that were made and-like Mrs. Babcock's, Maybe the housewife comes under the terms of recreation; or also stockraising might be raising pigs instead of children; I don't know. I've often said that to my own children. I would have been further ahead. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Stick to the subject, Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Well, as for Don here, he says that his bees might complain about working overtime, and I don't know why they'd complain. They got a honey of a job. (Laughter) So I see nothing wrong in here. It leaves it up to the employee to voluntarily agree whether he wants to work over 8 hours. That fear that you're going to limit it to just 8 hours-that's up to the employee whether he wants to work over the 8 hours. And the fear of less than 8 hours, well, the Legislature can take care of that and they can reduce the number when they see fit to promote the general welfare. And I don't see the fear. There's not as much wrong with this one, I would say, as in the present Constitution where it's locked in that you are in violation if you work over 8 hours and you're in violation if you have somebody work over 8 hours. So, with that, I close, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. McCarvel's amendment to add a new Section 3 to the Labor Article. The new section is to be an 8-hour day. And I won't read the exact terms of it, because the understanding is that if it passes, it may be amended further. The vote is really on whether or not you favor an R-hour day in the Constitution, or whether you want it out those in favor of an 8-hour day section in the Constitution, vote Aye; and those opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, take the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 65 delegates voting Aye, 27 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 65 having voted Aye and 27 having voted No, the section passes.

Now, Mr. Cate, do you want to make your motion to pass consideration till 1:45?

DELEGATE CATE: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Cate has made a motion to pass consideration until 1:45. Is there discussion?

Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: What time did we set for the merit proposal?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 1:30.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, this really ought to come before the merit change, for the same reasons I gave before.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Let's set it for 1:30 or 1:29. We'll take it up ahead of the other one, if that's what you want. I'm not too firm on those times anyway, as you all know. The motion is to defer consideration of this until 1:29. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. Very well. If you'll all turn to page 16-Mr. Kelleher, we're not going to take yours next. We're going to finish the majority-minority report. I guess I'm on the wrong page. You should be on page 36-all right, 32. I've got a sheet up here that tells me where to go, but it's not very clear. (Laughter) With the help of Mr. Heliker, I'm going to get there. (Laughter) We're now on page 32, considering the Labor Article on right of organization and collective bargaining.

Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration— what article-the Labor Article on the rights of organize collectively, after having under consideration that the proposal-that it recommend that the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel, I put you in a bad position there. I should have had the clerk read it first. And, Mr. Clerk, will you denominate it Section 4, the right to work one being denominated Section 3. Will the clerk please read it.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 4, Right of organization and collective bargaining. Employees in private or public employment shall have the right to self-organization, to form, join, or assist labor organizations; to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing; and to engage in other—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -concerted.

CLERK HANSON: -concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid and protection." Mr. Chairman, Section 4.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, Mr. McCarvel, I'll consider that you've moved this for adoption by the committee. Do you want to discuss it?

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Yes, Mr. Chairman. This proposal is taken verbatim from Section 7 of the National Labor Relations Act except for the addition, "in private or public employment". Its intent is to give constitutional recognition to the right first accorded employees covered by the NLRA in 1935 and to extend them to all employees, including public employees. It does no more than confer the dignity of constitutional recognition upon the long-since well-protected rights of most private employees. It does, however, extend to public employees a clarification of their rights to organize and collective bargaining, with Benson versus School District No. 1, Silver Bow County, 139 Montana Statutes 77; and Zadarek versus Silver Bow County, 154 Montana 118, 1969. On the other hand, it does not establish the right to strike, nor in any manner restrict the power of the Legislature to regulate collective bargaining within the area not preempted by federal law; to regulate or prohibit the use of the strike or other aspects of the process of collective bargaining; or to regulate the internal affairs of unions. The Legislature is not mandated to implement the stated rights, although its power to do so is unrestricted. As respect to public employees particularly, the Legislature is given no mandate, although it is intended that the rights established would, of necessity, be recognized in any legislation providing for merit or civil service systems for state employees. The minority believes that it is time to give the rights of organization and collective bargaining the constitutional standing eventually accorded every basic right of free men. The history of constitution-making is that rights are accorded constitutional status after long decades or centuries of struggle for which they've been largely won in law and in fact. The rights recognized by the founding fathers in our federal Bill of Rights has already been won by countless brave and dedicated men who, for century, really gave their liberties, their lives, and their property to secure them. The Constitution merely reflects the success of the long struggle. The same long struggleextendsin America over a century and a half. It was necessary to secure the rights to form unions, free from the repression of government and the coercion of powerful and ruthless agglomeration of private capital. The same unselfish sacrifice of liberty, life, and property by brave and dedicated men occurred as the never-ending battle to keep and strengthen the civil rights and liberties of the free people go unabated 2 centuries after our Bill of Rights was conceived; so will the striving to bring into employer and employee relationship in all sectors of the economy the principles of fair play, contravailing [sic] power-The majority rule has been recognized in law and fact for nearly two generations, bat now is the time to a contest, to create and preserve the rights will be unending, to elevate them in general principle to the dignity of constitutional law. Mr. Chairman, I may reiterate a little bit, in that a number of our public employee relationships with the state at this time, and other segments of our state, city and county, all have the no-strike clause within their bargaining agreement. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Mr. President [Chairman]. The majority of your committee considered this collective bargaining proposal, and it's the majority of the committee's opinion that it's a legislative item rather than a statutory item-1 mean a legislative item rather than a constitutional item. Our comments are found on page 35, the principal one being paragraph 3, which states that the right of public employees to collectively bargain would be an aspect of any merit system established. We believe that both of these are legislative matters and should be considered only by the Legislature. As I see the problem, a collective bargaining provision in the Constitution could be inconsistent with any merit system that was established. And by the same token, a merit system provision in the Constitution could be inconsistent with any right of collective bargaining in the statute. The two should work together, and they should work together at the legislative level. I might state, for the benefit of the members of the body, that a Senate subcommittee of our Legislature now has this whole problem under study-the merit system, that is-and whether it should not be established in the State of Montana. In view of the fact that there is this study underway and in view of the fact that collective bargaining could be repugnant to the merit system and, by the same token, in view of the fact tha the merit system could berepugnant to collective bargaining, it's my position that neither of these statutes--neither of these provisions, I beg your pardon, should be in the Constitution. I believe this is the feeling of the majority of the committee, and we would resist the motion of the minority.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President [Chairman]. At this time, I wish to amend this article.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Your amendment is on what page? Is it in the book?

DELEGATE STUDER: It's in the book, on page 32-is the article we're talking about. And my amendment will read: "Publicemployees shall not have the right to strike."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. So you want to amend Section 4. What line do you want that on, at the end?

DELEGATE STUDER: Well, add it at the end of the article, at line 14.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Studer has proposed an amendment to be added on line 14. Add the phrase "Public employees shall not have the right to strike".

Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President [Chairman]. Mr. McCarvel, in his talk on his item--or-Section 4 just now-in closing-in the last sentence, I think he mentioned that the bargaining rights at this time do keep out the right to strike, and they have used this as their argument and, I suppose, in their bargaining. They don't have-they don't want the right to strike at this time, so I don't imagine they would oppose this, because there are so many ways that the striking privilege could hurt, and it's been demonstrated time and again that this is an unfair advantage. It's an illegal act. I don't see how they can ask a legislative group, a town or a city council, to delegate legislative rights to someone else for the body that follows. I don't see how they can make a collective bargaining agreement that could stand up. I don't know all the ramifications of the legal angles, but it certainly doesn't seem that they could be able to do this. They do have the right, however, to tie up the public to where it could actually cause a great inconvenience, even a loss of life. Fire departments, police departments would have the right to go. And if we use the experience of public employees to go along with what private organizations have done, they strike at the crucial times. I mean, they don't wait until everything is hunky-dory and it wouldn't hurt if you shut down for a while; their strike comes when your notes are due next month and when labor conditions are such that you got to use them right now. They weren't born yesterday: and this right to strike is used as a club. And I really believe that it's a very bad thing to-1 don't mind giving the public the right to bargain; I have it in my own proposal. But I do think that giving the right to strike is something that certainly should not be allowed.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion on this matter?

Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. I move to strike the-well, let's see-he offered an amendment. That's the question, isn't it, before the house?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right. His amendment is to-"Public employees shall not have the right to strike".

Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. I would oppose the amendment, not that I don't think the Legislature should have full authority to prohibit strikes or regulate strikes of public employees. I do. I think, however, that if the Legislature restricts the right of strike, it should consider very carefully putting something-some viable substitute in its place. And it probably isn't necessary either that the right to strike on the part of public employees be prohibited across the who can be allowed the right to strike without serious-any more inconvenience to the public than is the case with private employees. This is a very complex matter, and not one, I think, which we can handle here. And that's the reason why the language that is included in this proposal was chosen carefully, to provide language under which all kinds of regulation have been imposed by law, including regulation of the right to strike—extensive regulation of the right to strike of private employees, and regulation of unions and their internal affairs. There is nothing in this language whatsoever which inhibits the Legislature from regulating any aspect of labor relations, private or public, which is not preempted by federal law. And I think it would be very inadvisable to enact such a blanket amendment as Mr. Studer proposes. At the same time, I think it should be left-the Legislature should be left absolutely uninhibited in its power to do so.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. I move as a substitute motion that this section of the majority report be deleted in its entirety-of the minority report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Joyce has made a substitute motion to delete Section 4 in its entirety.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. Fools rush in where angels—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a minute Mr. Joyce. I want to make it clear to everybody on the floor that the effect of Mr. Joyce's motion would be to wipe out the section which Mr. Studer proposes to amend. I don't want any misunderstanding that Mr. Studer's amendment would be left if you adopt the motion to delete. They will both be wiped out if you adopt the motion to delete. Now, you may certainly, then, make all the other amendments you want to, but I just want it clear so we don't get mixed up on what this does. Mr. Studer's was a motion to amend by adding, and if we wipe out 4, we have-wipe out what he's adding, too.

Very well, now, you may discuss it, Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. As I say, fools rush in where angels dare [fear] to tread. But my position, I think the position that this Convention should take, is that we should take—that we should not provide in the Constitution for opposed to the minority report for the same reason that I'm going to be opposed to Mr. Studer's amendment which is coming on, in that I submit that this is clearly a legislative matter, that the matter should not be spoken of in the Constitution, and that labor's right to organize should be left to the Legislature. They ought to fight those battles another day. It seems to me-1 take the policy position of the AFL-CIO, which endorsed me for this Convention, at its face value. As I recall it, they stated that they thought the Constitution should be neutral, that they would give up any special legislation that favored them if other people would do the same. It seems to me that other people should and have done the same; that to include this in the Constitution as a constitutional right will cause great controversy around the state; that labor does not need this. It seems to me that they can-that the right of public employees to bargain with state agencies has to be given some fluidity in the future. They have to be able to be regulated by law, because in the nature of things, bargaining collectively with the government is different than bargaining collectively with private individuals. And it seems to me further that the Legislature should have the power to regulate this activity in the public interest. It doesn't follow that-necessarily that labor cannot get the right to bargain collectively with public employees; seems to me that the Legislature can authorize them to do so. But to write this into the Constitution as a constitutional right seems to me, as I keep saying, would be the height of imprudence and that this is clearly a legislative matter, just as the subject of the right to work is a legislative matter. I'm willing to have labor and management fight those battles another day, and I don't believe that either should be written into the Constitution. And, therefore, that is why I've moved to delete the section in its entirety.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Are we speaking just on the Joyce deletion thing, or can we speak to Mr. Studer?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, you may speak to the issue.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: One of the strongest points in any collective bargaining procedure is the threat of the right to strike. And I think the reason perhaps why-well, to put this sort of amendment in will simply gut the whole collective bargaining process, as I see it. If we put it in, it freezes it forever. Later-the concept of the public employees striking is not acceptable to many people today, but in the future it may be acceptable under certain conditions. And if you do this, you might-if you accept the Studer amendment, you might as well throw this whole section out, because it's going to be worthless without the implied right to strike. Now, this sort of thinking—the Studer amendment sort of thinking is involved in a nationwide movement. There's a lot of this going on all over the country, not only in terms of denying the right to strike to public employees, but also attempts are being made to deny the right to strike to all of organized labor. There's a nationwide movement on, then, to take away this right to strike. It is, in essence, as I see it, an indirect attack on the right of collective bargaining itself. And if it is successful, then it means the death of the organized labor movement in this country. This proposal, then-1 stand in support of the minority proposal, against the Studer amendment, and against Mr. Joyce's motion to delete. For I feel that this proposal without the amendment is a step forward; with the amendment, it is a step backward, coupled with other nationwide efforts that could lead us on a dark road that eventually could lead back to utter exploitation of labor. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Mr. President [Chairman]. I rise to support the Joyce amendment. All through the campaign in Cascade County, I declared that I believed that neither collective bargaining nor the right to work had any place in a constitution; they are both strictly statutory; and therefore I support the Joyce amendment to delete.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I rise in opposition to the Joyce motion to delete in spite of the fact he's my close friend, associate, and fellow delegate from District 20. The matter of collective bargaining between employees of the government and the government itself was considered very closely in Zadarek versus Silver Bow County, 154 Montana 118, 1969 case. And I don't know how many of my fellow attorneys are familiar with the case, but the original opinion as written came close to saying that the-a public employee had no right to bargain, had no right to enter into a binding contract with a county or city organization. It was-the original opinion, as I remember, was written and then withdrawn before issued, and an opinion still quite restrictive but not so restrictive as to say there is no right to bargain was eventually passed. I think it is extremely important that the right of labor working for government to join into an organization and to bargain collectively be guaranteed by this Constitution, because I say, as late as 1969, there nearly was a declaration by the Montana Supreme Court that there was no such right. Now, particularly if this-the minority report had in here the option of Mr. Studer's proposal that these organizations have a right to strike, then I would not support such a thing. I also am opposed to Mr. Studer's right to-or amendment that they have no right to strike because the employees in the county, city, and state organizations fall into entirely different classes. When I worked for the State of Montana back in the long, long time ago in 1942, the-some of the employees, the teamsters in the-on the state department, went out and striked for a month, and I don't think the public was greatly inconvenienced. They arrived at a bargaining contract, and everything was fine. However, if your house was on fire and the-and your fire department was out on strike, it would be bone-chilling to think of such a circumstance. I think what Mr. Heliker has said, and I think what Mr. McCarvel has said--we-you don't want to give them the absolute right to strike; you don't want to give them any absolutes except the absolute right to do what everyone else can do, to join together and to bargain. Now, the Legislature can deal with this problem in the field of street repair, teamsters, things like that-a strike is no great concern to the public, assuming it doesn't go on any too long. But when you come to firemen, policemen organizations, entirely different approaches can be made. And I'm not suggesting these should be made by the Legislature, but there can be a system of state arbitration put in, binding arbitration in which the-in which if the parties couldn't agree, an arbitrator would be called in. He'd hear the-both sides; issue an opinion which would be binding; there'd be no right to strike. There's also been many years' talk of labor courts in which the issue would be settled that way. I particularly want to point out that all this does is just say these people have the same rights that you and I have to get together, form an organization, and go talk to our employer and see if we can't work out the differences between us. It doesn't give them the right to strike. And corremotion to say "thou shalt not strike", because then these people would be forever barred from going to these intermediate reliefs or, in appropriate circumstances, striking. And I don't want you to think that I think doctors or nurses or policemen or firemen can—we can ever reach a situation where they are allowed to close down those things we need for governmental protection. But I suggest that in view of the past history of the Montana Supreme Court, unless we adopt this measure, the public employees will sometime in the future be denied the right to enter into a contract with the state, county, or city. And it is one in which labor isn't looking for any special privilege. All they want is the right to go in and talk to their employer collectively and arrive at a satisfactory contract.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman. I must rise to support Delegate Joyce. Right at the outset, to delay any thoughts that perhaps, due to the seating arrangement, that there's been any influence on Delegate Joyce, I want to lay those at rest. Delegate Johnson and myself have not been able to influence him in one single matter. I think the CIO should be commended for selecting a delegate that has not only the guts, but has the common sense to stand up here and talk the way that Delegate Joyce does on things that should not be in the Constitution. And I certainly want to support him and his amendment here. And he has used a lot of common sense at many times, even when I didn't vote with him. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We will be at ease one moment while the tape is changed. Very well, the committee will be in session.

Mr. Harrington.

time, whether we put this in the Constitution. I believe it does belong in the Constitution. As someone has just mentioned a minute ago, the veterans are in the Constitution, the farmers are in the Constitution; well, I believethatlaborshould be in the Constitution. I think it does have an important part to do with the Constitution, the basic right of a man to work for a living wage. And I think that it should be supported by this Convention. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Blend.

DELEGATE BLEND: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of Mr. Joyce's comments. It occurs to me that this Convention is being maneuvered into considering three items that should not be included in the Constitution. Because the-what is it called-employment right section has been included, I think, it was only then mandatory that collective bargaining be included. I don't believe that either one should be considered on this floor. Collective bargaining is well established by federal and by state law and will continue to be so. I think that the amendment that we are spending our time on is denouement to the entire situation. And I would ask this Convention to consider whether we should be spending our time on any of the three of these, because they are legislative and certainly not constitutional material. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: I rise to support Mr. Joyce's motion. In 1880, actually, after the Debs cases, a lot of states got together in their constitutions and put in antilabor provisions in their constitution. Labor yelled against these for 50 years, and they're still in some of the more conservative states. And that's actually what we might be doing here; I'm not so sure whether this is for or against labor, but it's purely legislative, what we're trying to do right now. It has no business in the Constitution. And I might say for those proponents of it that a very conservative court who would construe a constitutional provision, and not so much the Legislature, might narrowly restrict the rights supposedly granted by these provisions because of the thought we're giving to them right now. I've noticed some employees scribbling amendments to these sections without any thought as to the understanding and ramifications of these sections. And it's very easy that a Supreme Court could actually, narrowly restrict labor's right if you pass these things without that consideration. Now, the R-hour day thing that just passed, which I think was poorly drawn and it could actually restrict the state. Not that I might agree with what they might want to do on it, but the state might be in a position, because of social reasons, to restrict it to a 6- or a 4-hour day, to pass around the work in the event of a great depression. Now, here it's got your clause in it that the employee can voluntarily agree with the employer and extend it over that 8 hours. And actually, because of this constitutional provision, the state might not be able to pass the work around. And the farther we get into it and the faster we write amendments, I think it's-the worse it's going to be. And I think the Supreme Court could very well, on a very conservative day, narrowly restrict labor's rights much less than whatthey were now. They worked 50 years and 60 years to get these provisions out of constitutions, and they finally have out of a lot of them-to get it in a legislative field so as times change, they can change the rules so that there would be equality between employer and employee in bargaining. But if you start sticking things in here and you start letting the court interpret it, then you might not be able to get the equality between the two of them that you need to have free and collective bargaining. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the gentlemen standing in the back take your seats or move somewhere else? I can't see who's up.

Mr. Berg, are you up?

DELEGATE BERG: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE BERG: Will Mr. Helikeryield to a question?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I yield.

DELEGATE BERG: Mr. Heliker. I call your attention to the words "and to engage in other concerted activities". And I want to also call your attention to Mr. Champoux's remarks that this collective bargaining provision necessarily implies the right to strike. I want to know if the words "and to engage in other concerted activities" specifically includes the right to strike.

DELEGATE HELIKER: In my opinion, it does not. I disagree with Mr. Champoux that there is any implication of the right to strike or of the Legislature's right to regulate strikes by public employees or by private employees who are—would be covered by the section that is not already covered by federal law.

DELEGATE BERG: Would you yield to another question?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

DELEGATE BERG: If, however, those words were interpreted broadly by the Supreme Court, they could include the right of public employees to strike by virtue of this provision?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, there is no, as far as I know, any statute in Montana prohibiting rights-or public employees to strike at the present time. But I-again, I disagree with Mr. Champoux when he said the strike, on the part of public employees, may become more acceptable in the future. I would expect the trend will be the reverse, as a matter of fact, and that we will have regulation. And I would want to preserve the right of the Legislature to enact those regulations.

DELEGATE BERG: Would you yield to one more question? Do you find in this section any right reserved to the Legislature to regulate strikes or collective bargaining?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, this proposal is the language of the National Labor Relations Act, Section 7, under which the Congress of the United States has extensively regulated the right to strike and all other aspects of the collective bargaining relationship.

DELEGATE BERG: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: I rise in support of the Joyce Amendment. I think if you properly read this Section 4, in spite of the comment that it does not include the right to strike, it is certainly broad enough to include it under the words "and to engage in other concerted activities". I don't believe that this Convention, at this time, desires to recognize the right of public employees to strike. I don't believe that the section, as it's proposed, would permit the Legislature to distinguish between, for example, police departments and street crews. I think that if you adopt the section, you will be in effect adopting an unquestioned right to strike by any public employee regardless of the nature of his position. I, therefore, agree with Mr. Joyce; this is a legislative matter and should be left to the Legislature, where it can be, as CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg, are you up? Very well.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: I'm up, Mr. President; I'm not sure that I'm awake. I would simply like to state that the Joyce amendment is in complete consonance with the majority report here on this collective bargaining matter. And I am in total agreement with the comments just made by Delegate Berg. And for this reason, I would support the Joyce amendment to delete.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Speer.

DELEGATE SPEER: I-Mr. Chairman. It has been said in comments just recently that this right of collective bargaining is taken for granted now. But I would point out that the Legislature, at least in the last two sessions, has refused to grant the right of collective bargainingto public employees. I think this is a fundamental right of the worker, and the worker has a right to participate in determining the conditions of his labor. The labor is all that the worker has to contribute in our economic system, and I think he should share in the regulating-in determining the various matters that concern laboring conditions.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, the Chair wants that corner cleared over there. Young man, you're standing there; I can't see Mrs. Speer; I can't see the other people. The Chair has asked a dozen times to keep the back row cleared. If we have to station a page, we'll do it. Secondly, I apologize for the fact that Mr. Cate's amendment-it's not his fault-but I apologize for the fact that it's put out in the middle of debate. It's not supposed to be. It can be put out at noon. I'm trying to keep this debate clear so we can understand each other. Now, if all the pages and everybody else will sit down, we'll go ahead.

Mr. McKeon.

DELEGATE McKEON: Mr. Chairman. I rise in opposition to Mr. Joyce's motion to delete. Mr. Chairman, the right of employees, whether in the public or private sector, to band together to bargain collectively is indigenous to a free society. Until we give them this right in the Constitution, they are second-class citizens. They're second-class to their brethren in the public sector. Mr. Chairman, I think that-until we give them this right, they remain second-class citizens. They remain unable to seek the opportunity-the economic benefits that their brethren in industry tant constitutional matter that we give them this right that their others-that their brethren have, to band together to bargain collectively with their employer, whether he be the state or a private individual. For that reason, Mr. Chairman, I will oppose Mr. Joyce's amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Choate.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Chairman. I think that after all these days of debate on some of these issues, that we ought to leave something up to the Legislature, and this looks like a good one for them to bite on. And I support Mr. Joyce's amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President [Chairman]. I rise in support of Mr. Joyce's amendment. I've noticed over the years that whenever there's a public job comes up for-or is open for employment, that we have all kinds of applications. So they apparently must agree that these positions are pretty good. The next thing is that most all public employment is set by a physical [sic] budget and you have to live within these budgets. And if there is a move to strike or form a collective bargaining system, then you have to adjust these budgets to fit this. And the very fact that people seem to regard most of these public positions, with their public employment retirement systems and all the benefits that goes with them, it seems that these arehighly regarded positions, and I question if it is in public interest to have collective bargaining or the right to strike. I sincerely approve of Mr. Joyce's amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Unless-if there are further people who wish to debate this, we'll adjourn. If not, we'll vote. Mr. Heliker, are you going to debate? Are you going to debate, Mr. Heliker?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes, I will.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Eskildsen, let's have a motion to adjourn. Mr. Eskildsen, let's have a motion to recess until 1:25.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman. I move the Convention stand in recess until 1:25 this day.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is to recess until 1:25. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

(Convention recessed at 11:49 a.m.—reconvened at 1:40 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Committee will be in order. Ladies and gentlemen, before the noon recess we were discussing Section 4, and the situation was-Section 4 of the Labor Article, on page 32—and the situation was that Mr. Studer had moved an amendment that public employees should not have the right to strike and Mr. Joyce had moved a substitute motion to delete Section 4 in its entirety. Now, we were debating the Joyce motion. Now, I know we have these other two things laid over, but I want to finish Section 4; then we'll go back to the two things that were laid over. And I think Mr. Heliker had the floor, if he wants it.

Mr. Heliker, you have the floor, if you want it, on the motion to delete Section 4.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee. I wanted to respond to some of the things that various people have said. With regard to Mrs. Blend's comment that collective bargaining is well established by federal and state law, this is true as a general proposition; but there are still quite a few people left out in the cold, and it's those that we are trying to get to here, and put them on the same footing with the majority. Now, I oppose Mr. Joyce's motion to delete. He argues that it's legislative. This, of course, is the argument that everyone makes against anything that they oppose. He argues also that it's somehow related to the Studer proposal. I cannot see this at all. I think they're entirely different matters. We're asking here that you provide a general, broadly stated protection of simply the right of organization and collective bargaining. Mr. Studer is asking for a very specific regulation on collective bargaining, which is, in my opinion, no way similar. This problem of collective bargaining by public employees, which worries Mr. Wilson somewhat, is a problem that is already with us. Collective bargaining, organization of public employees into unions, and the demand for collective bargaining is increasing by leaps and bounds. And, as Mr. Holland pointed out, the status of collective bargaining in the law of Montana is at the present time uncertain. We are asking that this uncertainty be cleared up and that the public employees, along with those private employees not covered by federal law, be given clear right to organization and collective bargaining. Now, it may be probably obvious that I am primarily concerned with the public employees, and I just ask you, why should the public employees be the orphans of the labor force? Why shouldn't they have the recognition of the right to organize and bargain collectively that most private employees have? Now, there's another aspect of this matter that I want to bring to your attention and that concerns me very much, and that is the relationship of this proposition to the proposal which we will be considering shortly concerning a merit system for state employees. I feel very strongly that we need a merit system. A lot of people feel this very strongly. The Legislature has wrestled with the problem several times-as a matter of fact for a very long time--without successfully passing a law. We have a proposal which would give them a little nudge in the direction of passing such a law, but the basic problem that's confronted the Legislature here is that we do not have a clear recognition of the right of public employees' unions to a significant role in the merit system, whatever it may be. And I think these two things should be considered together and that we should-1 think we should pass a mandate to the Legislature to enact a merit system law, and I think we should, along with it, pass a recognition of the right of organization and collective bargaining of public employees, so that the Legislature can get over this hump and write into its merit system law a provision for a clear role for collective bargaining. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Will Mr. Heliker yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I yield.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: In addition to Hawaii, how many states have in their constitutions the right for public employees to bargain collectively?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I couldn't tell YOU.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: How many states have the right recognized in statutes of public employees to bargain collectively?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I couldn't tell you that, offhand, either.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: All right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: May I close?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce, you may close.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee. I suppose that the issue now before the house is one of philosophy as to what a constitution should contain, and of course George Heliker and I are philosophically opposed to what should be in a constitution. And he uses the argument that if you're opposed to it, it's legislation, and if you aren't, it's constitutional. And I submit that that is not my position at all. I'm not opposed to the public employees having the right to bargain, but it seems to me that you don't have to write everything into the Constitution in order to give that. And in reply to my distinguished colleague from Silver Bow, who is a good friend of mine and with whom I visit all the time; have lunch with very frequently. And we violently disagree about everything, perhaps, but still we're good friends because we realize that this is a free country and everybody can think as they so desire. And he may be right and I may be right, and maybe both of us are wrong most of the time, but that's the way it goes. At any rate, I'm not opposed to the public employees having the right to bargain, but it seems to me that it is perfectly apparent that it does make a difference when you are bargaining with the public, because even Franklin Roosevelt didn't believe in the right of public employees to strike against the government of the United States. And every time a case comes up, why, they always quote President Roosevelt in that connection. And so it seems to me that the public employees ought to have the right to bargain and they ought to have the right to bargain in accordance with procedures that are established by law. And it seems to me, further, that if the Legislature won't pass such an act, it's because labor doesn't have the muscle to get it through the Legislature; and so what they've got to do is get more muscle. But at any rate, that's where all of the battles are fought is in the legislative halls, and sometimes you win and sometimes you lose. And I'm perfectly willing to let future generations of Montana battle this out in the Legislature. I see no particular reason why this should be granted in the Constitution. It may do more harm than good; and it seems, further, to me that it will damage the Constitution. The more legislation we write into the Constitution, the more opportunity we're giving those who are opposed to any change in the Constitution to defeat it. And I've spent 2 months over here and I haven't won all my points, but I'm still for the Constitution that we've written. I think that we've made some great strides. We have opened up the Legislative Article so that the Legislature can, in fact, legislate and solve Montana's future-problems in the future. We've opened up their right to tax, and I've opposed any restriction on that. I have made everybody in the room mad at me, I suppose, from one time or another. I believe they ought to have the right to tax so that we can solve our problems as we go along in the future, and that's all that a Constitution should be. It should be politically neutral. It shouldn't favor labor; it shouldn't favor management. It shouldn't favor the school teachers; it shouldn't favor the farmers. It shouldn't favor the agricultural people; it shouldn't favor the city people. It ought to be neutral so that when and if, as future generations come along, they can fight these battles another day, as I keep saying. And after all, I don't have all the wisdom of the world, egotistical that I am; I really can't solve all the problems of the world here in this Convention. And I submit that if any—each of you look into your hearts, you might very humbly say that there may be one or two that you can't solve either. Some people want to solve them all right here and now. And frequently, however, when you set about to solve all the problems of the world, you create more problems than you intend, because you write certain language that seems to solve them all now and then a situation comes up that you didn't think about and, of course, instead of solving the problem you've just created new ones. And so, in closing, while I may have made a political mistake in my hometown-I really don't think so-but even if I have, it's like Harry Truman says, "If you can't stand the heat, you ought to stay out of the kitchen." And further than that, I say that I have resolved-I have assuaged my conscience in his connection in that I have taken to heart the words of Kipling, that if you can keep your head when all about you arelosing theirs and blaming it on you, yours is the world and everything that's in it; and which is more, you'll be a man, my son. Thank you. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Joyce's substitute motion that we delete Section 4, on page 32, in its entirety. Do you want a roll call vote?

DELEGATES: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of deleting Section 4 on page 32 in its entirety, vote Aye; so many as are opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 63 delegates voting Aye, 29 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 63 delegates having voted Aye and 29 having voted No, Section 4 is deleted in its entirety. As I explained at the beginning of this debate, with it goes Mr. Studer's amendment; and I think that takes care of Section 4.

Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Is a substitute motion in order?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes.

DELEGATE HELIKER: I move, as a substitute motion for the motion just deleted, the language of the original proposal plus the following language. Eliminate the period at the end of the last sentence and add: "subject to reasonable regulation as provided by law".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Heliker has a substitute motion for the right to organize and collectively bargain, which shall consist of the language on page 32, lines 9 through 14, with a comma at the end, plus the language "subject to reasonable regulation as provided by law".

Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: A number of delegates expressed the fear that the last clause of this proposal would guarantee the right to strike. I wish by this amendment or change to lay that fear at rest by making it explicitly clear that the Legislature may regulate.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there—

Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. President [Chairman], this is just a kind of little back-doorway coming in there, it looks like to me. They'll still retain in the Constitution the right of public employees to bargain collectively, and I think this is the main thing. And all you've did now is just turn around and said the Legislature can write a little rules. I think the intent's exactly the same as

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President, I think Mr. Heliker has now confirmed what Mr. Joyce contended by the last vote-that it's statutory. You just added that fact to it, so I think it should be defeated.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Heliker's motion-substitute motion-that we add a Section 4, Right to organize and collectively bargain, consisting of lines 9 through 14, which wasthemajority-theminority proposal, together with the phrase at the end, "subject to reasonable regulation as prescribed by law", so it says: "and to engage in other concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid and protection, subject to reasonable regulations provided by law". Do you want a roll call?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, so many as are in favor of that motion, vote Aye; so many as are opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

Mr. Chairman Nay

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 29 delegates voting Aye, 66 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 66 delegates having voted No and only 29 having voted Aye, the motion is defeated and Section 4 is again out. Now, ladies and gentlemen, we agreed to take up, at 1:29, Section 3, which was the language on the B-hour law on page-what? Oh, it's Mr. McCarvel's amendment.

Mr. McCarvel, are you prepared on Section 3, your B-hour law?

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Mr. Chairman, I was hoping to have from the printing a substitute for--amendment for my amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, Mr. McCarvel, let's find out if the printer has got it up yet. And send-let's send a page and find out.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: All right, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Cate, the—my point is that Mr. McCarvel wants to substitute other language for his, and we can start with his. I realize you have an amendment here, but he was the moving party this morning.

(Pause in Proceedings)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the committee be in order. Members of the committee, this morning we postponed consideration of Section 3 after we'd adopted it, so that it could be worked over during the lunch hour. And we are now ready to consider Section 3, and I understand that Mr. McCarvel has some new language to propose. And the material being passed out to you should be styled-you should put a "Section 3" at the top of it so you know what it is-Section 3, under the Labor Article. Very well, Mr. McCarvel, do you want this read from the rostrum?

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Yes, Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, will the clerk please read the proposed language.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 3, Eight-hour day. A maximum period of 8 hours shall constitute a regular day's work in all industries and employment, except in agriculture and stockraising. The Legislature may, however, change this maximum whenever, in its opinion, the change will better promote the general welfare. Signed: McCarvel."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel, are you proposing this as a substitute for the language you had this morning?

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Yes, Mr. Chairman. I had pointed out to me some flaws that was in the original proposal that I made, especially in the voluntary agreeing to work, which may entail a new employee being employed may be coerced, actually, by an employer to agree to work 10 hours in order to secure employment. So I think that the languagein this amendmentto that article should clarify that and take care of the situation. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the Chair will allow the language that's been placed before you as Mr. McCarvel's substitute motion for the language that we passed this morning, and the issue is open for discussion.

Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. Since I opposed the original wording of Delegate McCarvel, I would like to say at this time that this is-seems perfectly acceptable to me, and also the bees in central Montana. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion?

Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman], I would like to say that I also support this. It gets rid of some of the problems that was in the original language, and I think that this is one of the things that our laboring people have wanted and have fought for for years. And I think it is a safety factor for our laboring people to have this 8-hour proposal written into our Constitution, and I support it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. McCarvel's substitute motion to substitute this language for that that he proposed and that we tentatively passed this morning. Do you want a roll call vote?

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of the new language for Section 8 that you have-or for Section 3, H-hour day, that you have before you, vote Aye on the voting machines; all opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, cast the ballot.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 74 delegates have voted Aye, 13 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. McCarvel, will you move that when the members of this committee do arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 3 of the Labor Article, as amended, that we recommend the same be adopted.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: I do so move, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You've heard the motion. All those in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 3 is adopted. Now, this morning we had before us Section 2 on the merit system. It's on page 9. We deferred it until 1:30. Mr. Heliker, are you prepared on that at this time? Oh, I guess this is Mr. Scanlin's. Is Mr. Scanlin-do you care to take it now, Mr. Scanlin?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, I repeat what I said this morning. I wish to withdraw my support of this section. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Heliker—or Mr. McKeon.

DELEGATE McKEON: Mr. Chairman, if the section is before us, I would like to make a motion that it be deleted in its entirety. Is the section before us?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker, will you place the section before us?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 2 of the Labor Article recommended by the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee, that it recommend the same be adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McKeon.

DELEGATE McKEON: Mr. Chairman, I move that the section be deleted in its entirety. Mr. Chairman, it's statutory. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the motion is to delete Section 2 in its entirety. Is there discussion?

Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: I'd just like to point out, Mr. Chairman, this does not saythatwe establish a merit system in the strict sense of the word. It says that we establish a system under which the merit principle will govern the employment of persons by the state. We have a choice, I suppose, in the state of using the spoils system, or using some kind of lottery approach to gaining employees, or establishing some kind of a workable system where merit in employment does count. And it seems to me this article as written, or Section 2, tries to speak to that issue. And I just simply rose to keep it alive a little bit longer here, so-call your attention to the fact that we're voting on this and not a merit system, per se.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Mr. Chairman, I arise to oppose the substitute motion. I'm going to make-attempt to make some distinctions to why this is not statutory, but I'll admit initially that it borders on it. I think it is not, for these reasons. First, it merely sets forth a concept; it doesn't even contain any major details as to how that system would be carried out. Secondly, I think it's not statutory because I think it sets forth the concept that we could support for the next 80 years. To me, all it says is that people will be hired by the state government on the basis of what they can do, rather than what they know, and I think this has been a real problem in state government in the past. And to illustrate that, I would like to talk a little bit about the Attorney General's office, since this is the only field I know anything about. The Attorney General's office is an elective office, you know, and the Attorney General is elected every 4 years, so the attorneys employed in that office never know if they can work there for more than 4 years. And as a consequence, they always have the young attorneys fresh from law school there, and I think it was our present Governor who made the statement--and I hate to admit it, being a young lawyer-but that an old lawyer can do more in 2 hours than a young lawyer can do in 2 weeks. I hope all the potential clients here don't run to Mr. Habedank and Mr. Davis and Mr. Kelleher and my other older brothers. (Laughter) But that is—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Thank you, Mr. Loendorf. (Laughter)

DELEGATE LOENDORF: And Mr. Graybill. (Laughter) There's a lot of truth in that though. When you--when a young lawyer gets out of law school, he doesn't even know his way to the courthouse. 1 wouldn't even know where it was in Missoula, except we were required to go up there at one time during the 3 years I was there. But a merit system, as I understand it, would allow a person to plan on having a career in government and that attorneys--and I assume we have the same problem in other fields-if they chose to go to work in the Attorney General's office, could plan on staying there if they liked that type of work. Now, they work there for, I would guess, a rough average of about 2 years. The present Attorney General, I know, has had at least a hundred percent turnover since he's been there. I know he employs no more than six or seven men; and1 havelisted the names here of two, five, seven who I can remember that have left there in the last three and a half years, and I think probably there may have been more. So I think a merit system could do a lot for the state in the way of allowing experienced employees to work there. As the situation is now, the state is deprived, I think, of the benefit of a lot of expertise. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Mr. President [Chairman], I understand that the 25,000 members of the Montana Public Employees Association have requested that our group help them in giving constitutional authority to some systems of merit employment system. Their organization contacted 30 other states to find out if they had any system of civil service or merit system existing, and out of those they contacted, only Montana and North Dakota had the old spoils system; the other 28 states all had professional personnel agencies which recruited, examined, tested, and qualified applicants for public employment. It's a matter of fact that only 13 other states do have constitutional enabling authority for merit system today. The truth of it is that most of our constitutions in this country were enacted long before they had this system, and there have been very few constitutional conventions since. I think that it's extremely important that we protect our 25,000 employees in Montana in public agencies by listening to their request for a merit system. Thank you, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman. As a member of this committee, during our hearings there was several different testimonies for, and the one that I think most of the committee went by was from Senator Bertsche from Great Falls, who explained that this system had been introduced, worked on for the last 6 years, and the proposal—the merit system as a whole-had gone to the House and the Senate last year, and that he expressed his concern that if we put this into the Constitution, it might enhance-or might hinder any chances of it being passed in the next Legislature. So for this reason, I will go along with Senator-or Delegate McKeon with his motion for deletion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Mr. Chairman, could I ask Mr. Loendorf a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf!

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I yield.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Mr. Loendorf, would it be your feeling that merit system should include schoolteachers in the public school system, and possibly University people, also?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: The Legislature can establish it, and that's up to them to determine the scope of it.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Could I ask you one more question, please?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Yes, I yield.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: You-all right—

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I'm on my feet anyway.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: The other question I'd like to ask is, do you personally feel that it should include those two areas?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I think—that's the thing I want to avoid in the Constitution, is getting into this specific detail. I think we have to leave that to the wisdom of the Legislature.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Okay, thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas was up next.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: I-Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Loendorf yield for a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf, will you yield?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I yield.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: During the early part of the Convention, I had many side-aisle fights on the merit system. I was going along with it very much, and every time it came up people argued against me, said that, well, when it's all said and done, it's a way of keeping from firing the incompetents. Now, how do you-in other words, it's a way of keeping employees who are incompetent on their jobs. And I think that's the way it comes off to about 80 percent of the delegates. Do you have an answer to that?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Yes. I think merit is just the opposite. It's a system that is based on competence.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: That's what I thought, too.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: When we met with the Department of Administration in the Executive Article--or Executive Committee, he made the statement which impressed me very much, that "When all is said and done, the chief problem in state government is the people problem-the employees who work for the state." And I think that we have a real choice of continuing a spoils system or a merit principle. I like the article because it doesn't talk about a merit system; it talks about a merit principle; and many, many forms can be tried and worked toward that goal. But I think we do have a choice, and I think it's not a small problem in state government.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harrington.

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I think by adopting this merit system, it would be a step backwards, now actually, from [for] many public employees. And I would oppose this quite heartily. Now, one of the big things that you'll find here is that there is collective bargaining in certain areas. Should this be put into the Constitution? Should it be used as the law of the land? Then I think we're going to run into a problem in these areas where we do have collective bargaining, and I do think it's a step backwards. We've already turned down collective bargaining because we've called this statutory. I think that this is much more statutory, and I think it would and will step on-in certain areas. And I think where public employees have the right to bargain collectively that this would be very harsh and could be interpreted whatever way you—whatever way the courts want to afterwards, as to whether they should have the right to bargain collectively. And I ask that this Convention turn this down. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: As a member of the committee in consideration, I was one of the members of the minority thatresisted this motion, and I would like to point out again Senator Bertsche's testimony. The Senate now has under consideration a merit principle for consideration at the next Legislative Assembly, under which the merit system will be presented. And I think we can all agree that things such as enthusiasm have to do with merit; and I think we all can agree that things such as industry on the part of the employee have to do with merit; and I think we can all agree that the ability of that particular individual to cooperate and get along with his fellow employees has to do with merit. We have here a provision that states that the merit principleshall be used. Now, suppose that the bill that's presented does not include any provisions for testing enthusiasm; does not include any provisions for testing the man's industry; and does not include any provisions for testing the man's cooperation. That bill would provide every legislator with a good opportunity to vote against it. They would say, "It does not meet the constitutional requirements of a merit principle"; and this is the thing that Senator Bertsche was getting at. He said, "This bill is going to be hard to pass if we submit it and you put something in the Constitution that some of the legislators can hang their hat on to vote against, they'll do it." And I think if we put it in, that's just what we'll do; and that's the reason we resisted it in committee-that is, the minority.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland,

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Will Mr. Loendorf yield for a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I yield.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: When I look at this merit system, I can't help but think of civil service. What are the differences?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Between merit and civil service? I don't know that there's a distinction. Merit simply means, to me, employment based on merit. I haven't attempted to define civil service, but I would doubt that there's a distinction.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: This is one thing I came over here determined not to do, and that's create a new bureaucracy. One of the most upsetting things in the government of the United States, in my estimation, is the federal bureaucracy. And if we're going to create a system-1 have no objection to hiring someone on merit, but when they're going to be retained just because they have seniority, I have a serious objection, One of my heroes, Senator-or President Kennedy, took office and he wanted to make certain changes. He'd issue an order and nothing would happen, just because of the entrenched bureaucracy. And I don't think we should have an entrenched bureaucracy at the state level, and we surely shouldn't make it mandatory. And I point out to the Convention this is mandatory--"shall create a system of merit". We're mandating the Legislature to create a state bureaucracy. And I certainly would support Mr. McKeon in entirety in striking this from the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of Delegate McKeon's motion. It seems to me that the section as written really doesn't say anything anyway. It establishes a principle. It's purely legislative. It's up to the Legislature to decide what sort of a merit system they will put in, if they decide to do so, and in which departments. It seems to me it runs contrary to the whole principle of the executive reorganization, in that we provided in there that the heads of these departments will be appointed by the Governor, subject to the confirmation by the Senate, and serve at his pleasure. And that's-the very point is, the difference between the spoils system and the merit system, I suppose, depends on your point of view. When the Republicans come into power, us Democrats-and fire all the Democrats, us Democrats think that that's the spoils system. And conversely, when the Republicans come-the Democrats come in and fire all the Republicans, then the Republicans say it's the spoils system. But the fact of the matter is, I think, that the intelligent people in both parties know that that's not the situation. In the testimony before our committee, Governor Babcock conceded the right of Governor Anderson to remove his key employees. Governor Anderson, it's-when he testified before our committee, thought that it was inherent that the Governor ought to be able to bring his own people in and shape the policy of government. Presumably the people-when they do vote for a change, they're voting for a new direction, and it seems that to write a merit system into the Constitution would be foolhardy. The Legislature can, if they wish and in their wisdom, establish some sort of a merit system in various departments whereby people would retain their clerical positions, but I don't see that we should require them to do so in the Constitution. And further than that, I agree now with Delegate Holland that any employee who works for the state government who gives a full 8 hours for the government is, in fact, retained. There are many people who have worked for the State of Montana through one administration and the other without being discharged, and that it seems to me that that is as it should be. But any time the employee feels that he should be able to subvert the policy of the elected officials, why, then I think that he should not have that right and should go out. And so, therefore, I'm back, I hope, in the good graces with my friends in that I support striking this because it's clearly a legislative matter.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman, will Mr. Swanberg yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg?

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Yes.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: I found it very interesting what you said about Senator Bertsche because he, certainly more than anyone else in the state, has been behind getting a good merit system. He's been working on this for several sessions, and the fact that he does not want this article in this Constitution-the question I want to ask you is, does he feel that this will be passed in the next Legislature? Does he feel encouraged about the way things are going with his merit system plans? Did he talk—

DELEGATE SWANBERG: I couldn't answer that with any certainty, Mrs. Bugbee. I do know that he appeared before our committee when we considered this, stated that the whole problem of the merit system is under study by his Senate study group; and he strongly advised us against putting anything in the Constitution, for the reasons that I have stated.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: I find it hard to believe that including a directive in the Constitution for the Legislative Assembly to establish a system under which the merit principle will govern the employment of persons by the state will hurt the chances of a merit system. That logic really totally escapes me. I actually am not really coming down hard on either side of this. It's just that, in the halls and around today, I've seen this thing washed back and forth. "If collective bargaining goes in", the labor support people said, "then we'll support the merit system"; and I guess the hackles rose a little bit on the back of my neck to think that we're trading back and forth on constitutional principle. Mr. Joyce awhile ago was against something-collective bargaining—because it's legislative. He redeemed himself a little bit at the end of his speech, but he started out by saying, "Well, this only states a principle", and I found that a little hard to say. Now-but I'm glad that everybody's back in each--everybody else's good graces. Now that the thing has been aired, though, and we see what it actually says, maybe we can vote on it. As a person who lives here in Helena and just watches as sometimes good people are shunted in and out of jobs for no other reason other than the political climate changes, I find myself, as a citizen, saying, "Why can't we establish some kind of a system in our government where a person's merit on the job will have something to do about his staying on the job?" Now, I never have been greatly enamored of the spoils system. Mr. Joyce says that if you're a Democrat and the Republicans push you out, it's a spoils system; but if you're a Democrat and the Democrats push you out, it's not. I'm speaking as an Independent. Looks to me like it's the spoils system working both ways. We see it wash over this community and over the state offices here about every 4 years when there's a change in the executive government, and I just don't think it's a good way to run a railroad.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Van Buskirk.

DELEGATE VAN BUSKIRK: I would like to answer Mrs. Bugbee. I personally also think that this should not be in the Constitution, but I did sign the majority report because I knew there was enough interest among the delegates and it should come on the floor for debate. But when I was talking to the senator, he said that they had been working on it for the last two sessions and at presently the report had been up to 96 pages and there were still a lot of bugs that had to be ironed out. And he said, "Whatever you do, don't force our hands, because we are working on it, and eventually they will come up with something." But I would like to tell-the last time I was home, I had a meeting with the city, county, and educational people, and one of the college professors was telling me that the state that he came from, he took a test for civil defense and out of the hundred and fifty questions, there were only 15 that related to civil defense. And an accountant came out with the high score; and when they went in for a personal interview, he went out talking to the other men that were asked to be there for an interview, and his first question is, "What is civil defense?"

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, may I direct an inquiry to Delegate Harper?

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Friend Harper, can you tell me what the percentage of turnover in this Capitol building and in the Capitol complex has been in employees in the last 10 years?

DELEGATE HARPER: No, I can't.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: May I ask another question, Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Harper, in view of that, why so much consternation concerning the spoils system in this edifice?

DELEGATE HARPER: Because I know there have been some, and I don't know-1 never have checked up-1 don't know how many employees we have, and I just couldn't answer your question as to what the percentage is.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, it has been my observation from hanging around this place for a number of years that most of the faces have become very familiar. I think that they've been here for a long, long time. I don't think the spoils system is operating as efficiently as it should be. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. President [Chairman]-sorry to disrupt the proceedings because I dropped all my papers. You know, we've had a merit system in Montana for a long time, and I can confess to being present at the birth of the system. In 1937—some of the people around here will laugh when I say this-1 was a labor leader in Great Falls, a member of the executive board of the Cascade County Trades and Labor Assembly, and I came down to Helena to protest the manner in which welfare was being distributed in the State of Montana. And there1 met one of the greatest public servants that we had in the State of Montana. I.M. Branjord, who many of you will remember-the old-timers, at least-was on the State Land Board for many years and then became Director of the Welfare-Public Welfare in Montana. And as I came down and protested the manner in which political patronage was used instead of-in-as a spoils system in the selection of people to distribute welfare, Mr. Branjord said, "you're just one of the men thatwe'relookingfor". And he said, "We're going to put you on a merit examining committee to start a welfare program—a merit service program in the Welfare Department." As a result of that, people in welfare are selected on the basis of their educational qualifications; they must take certain training; and I think we've had less and less trouble. Prior to that time, it was a constant state of affairs. The-as a result of that, and very particularly-I suppose it's federal interference--we now have a Merit Examining Board in the state which handles the Department of Public Welfare, the Board of Health, the Unemployment Compensation, and several other agencies. We have something going. It's been in process. We don't need to put it into the Constitution. And to indicate that we can do something about it, back in the 1953 Legislature, the Legislature adopted a personnel commission program and set up money for a personnel commission and a study that was made. And it was thrown out, but the tools are still available. We can make it. And I just want to make one other observation. When I went into the Governor's office with the Governor, as his Executive Secretary, in 1953, would you believe it that the only place where there were any spoils that we could satisfy the county political committees was in the Liquor Board, and that was the appointments at the various liquor stores. You've got pretty near a merit system presently operating in the State of Montana, and I think it would be better, and I certainly would agree with Senator Bill Bertsche-another great public servant-that we should leave it to the Legislature. And I favor Senator McKeon's—or McKeon's motion (Laughter) that we delete. I just promoted you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Not too fast there, Mr. Martin. (Laughter) Mrs. Babcock-Mr. Martin would like one more word, Mrs. Babcock.

Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: As a native of Butte, I wanted to get back into the good graces of the Butte delegation. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That may be hard to do, Mr. Martin. (Laughter)

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman, I'd just like to point out that there's one employee for the state that has been in their employ for over 20 years. She's worked for five Governors, two of them Democrat and two of them Republican, and I think everybody in town knows the merits of Elsie Jones, the cook.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McKeon, do you want to close?

DELEGATE McKEON: Mr. Chairman, I didn't mean to be flippant when I made my opening remark that it was statutory and sat down. I thought that that comment alone would suffice. I appreciate the comments made by Senator Bertsche that-who was an ardent supporter of the merit system, that it shouldn't be locked into the Constitution. I would agree in principle with the merit system; however, locking it into the Constitution without providing for bilateral participation, that being participation with the employers and the employees, I think is a dreadful mistake. I think that when we have a merit system, we have to reach a delicate balance. I think the employer has to participate, and I think the employee has to participate. So I would hope that we would leave this matter to the Legislature. And I know that the Legislature will be working and has been working very hard on this matter, and I'm certain they will come up with that balance that we cannot create within the Constitution. May I have a roll call, Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. McKeon's motion to delete Section 2 under Labor, the merit system. A roll call vote has been called for. All in favor of deleting, vote Aye; all opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 75 delegates have voted Aye, 15 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 75 delegates having voted Aye and 15 No, Section 2 is deleted.

Mr. Kelleher, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, I have a substitute for Section 2. It was an addition, and the Chair did not recognize me when Mr. McKeon spoke. And I'd like to substitute it now that the section has been deleted. It's the underlined words, "The state and local governmental units shall pay appointed employees an amount no smaller than that paid to employees of the United States doing comparable work". It's the last sentence-it's the underlined sentence of my amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher-

DELEGATE KELLEHER: On page 9.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher, the Chair does not have it. Would you send it up? I have a new section and an amendment to—

DELEGATE KELLEHER: It's on the merit system, Section 2.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes. I don't have it. You withdrew it, Mr. Kelleher, I thought. Is that wrong:'

DELEGATE KELLEHER: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's not wrong?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Sir?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yeah, you withdrew that this morning. Do you want to renew it now?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: No, that was not the one I withdrew.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, you want your Section 2 read. Very well, will the clerk please read Section 2, as proposed by Mr. Kelleher?

CLERK SMITH: "The state and local government units shall pay appointed employees an amount no smaller than that paid to employees of the United States doing comparable work. Signed: Kelleher."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, read the whole section. He has to put in the whole section now. Read the whole section.

CLERK SMITH: "The Legislative Assembly shall establish a system under which the merit principle will govern the employment of persons by the state. The state and local government units shall pay appointed employees an amount no smaller than that paid to employees of the United States doing comparable work. Signed: Kelleher."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Kelleher has an amendment to put language in for Section 2, which we're dealing with, on page 9, the substance of which is to take the first sentence of the original Section 2 and add to it the language that the state and local governmental units shall pay appointed employees an amount no smaller than that paid employees of the United States for doing comparable work.

Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, it was my intention to delete that first section that you have before you, because we just voted it out, and just to substitute in its stead the last portion, the underlined portion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is that what you want to do?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Yes, sir, that's what I want to do.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Therefore, Mr. Kelleher does not intend the deleted Section 2 to be in. He only intends the underlined language-I think you all have it before you-he only intends the underlined language to be his amendment. That would be Section 2.

Okay, Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman. There is a great deal of difference between federal and state salaries, but there is-for doing the same type of work here in the State of Montana. And it is not fair to pay state employees-it is unjust discrimination to pay state employees a lesser sum than we are paying federal employees for doing comparable work, and there is really no rhyme or reason, even in the present system under the state. For instance, the Department of Revenue, a clerk-typist I receives $4,200; a clerk typist II receives $5,300; and for some strange reason, a clerk-typist III goes back down to $4,800. The comparable federal salary is $7,854. In the Department of Administration for the State of Montana, a clerk-typist I receives $4,300, whereas the average salary for a federal typist is sixty-nine and the low is 5,100 for the federal and 4,200 for the state. The overall general difference between the two is between $1,200 and $2,600 per year. That's all I'm going to say on the matter, Mr. Chairman. Could I have a roll call vote? Could I have five seconds, please? (Seconds stood)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: I would just like to say for the benefit of the body that this was a delegate proposal that was considered by our committee. We discussed this with Mr. Kelleher for perhaps an hour, and it was the, I think, unanimous view of our committee that this delegate proposal should not pass because-for reasons which-I can't really remember them all now. But at any rate, we felt it was unworkable.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Kelleher's proposed Section 2: "The state and local government units shall pay appointed employees an amount no smaller than that paid the United States for doing comparable work." Are you ready to vote on that? I would hope—

Mr. Wilson, do you want to talk?

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President [Chairman], I'd just like to point out that the federal government is several billion dollars in the red; Montana is in the black. If you adopt this proposal, why, you're going to put Montana in the red. I worked in-had an administrative office in the state, and we just couldn't possibly keep up with the federal government in the pay raises that they required. There was no way that our budget could match the federal budget.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of Mr. Kelleher's motion that we substitute this language for Section 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: No-a roll call.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Oh, you want a roll call vote? All in favor, vote Aye; all opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate want to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, please take the ballot.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 4 delegates have voted Aye, 88 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Cate, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE CATE: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Kelleher, one thing about it, you make some of us other losers feel real good. Thank you, (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher, I'll give you 30 seconds.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Wait till I ask for reconsideration on my legalized prostitution measure. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, if you'll all turn with me to page 36. My memoranda says that the next man up is Mr. Studer. Will the clerk please read the minority proposal on Section-on page 36, and style it Section 5.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 5, Employment rights. The right of persons to work shall not be denied or abridged on account of membership or nonmembership in any labor union or labor organization. The right of employees, by and through a labor organization, to bargain collectively shall not be denied or abridged. Public employees shall not have the right to strike." Section 5, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer, I understand you want to amend this before you debate it or discuss it. Is that correct?

DELEGATE STUDER: That's right, Mr. President [Chairman]. I think I'd probably do so at this time, before I make this motion to strike all but the first sentence.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: In other words, you want to strike the right of employees, by and through labor organizations, to bargain collectively?

DELEGATE STUDER: I do.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And you want to strike the last one about public employees shall have the right to strike?

DELEGATE STUDER: Not have the right to strike.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Shall not have the right to strike.

DELEGATE STUDER: We don't have any public employees bill in now, do we?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Studer has moved to strike lines 13 to 16, except the word "organization", so that only the first sentence appears in his proposal. In keeping with our rule that we let people put in their motion--or their proposal in any form that they like, I would like to have the sense of the body. All those in favor of allowing him to so amend, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Studer, you now have just the first sentence of Section 5.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section--would this be 5?

DELEGATES: Five.

DELEGATE STUDER: -5, that it recommend the same be adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. Chairman. First of all I want to say, in the debate here awhile ago, I also-1 heard Delegate Champoux, I think it was, refer to some group or power behind the people that were making proposals in this right-to-strike debate in which I moved to eliminate--or to-1 amended it to not give the right to strike to public employees. And I want to say here and now, before I start, that at no time any-did anyone come forward or ask me to put these bills in. I got into this trouble all by myself. (Laughter) I had no help from anyone that I didn't call on to either talk for me or help me. The right to work people at no time contacted me. I contacted them to get some information after I was in here. So I don't want anybody to start out with the idea that I had some power behind me in any way, shape, or form. I'm on my own; and that's the way I'm going to die, I guess. (Laughter) Mr. President [Chairman] and fellow delegates. I am very, very proud to be able to plead for this bill of rights for labor with you, and I'm just scared to death that I may not prevail when I have such a wealth of facts at my disposal and such a preponderance of rights on my side. Before I go into the history of unionism as it pertains to features that affect the bill of rights for workers, I will make a few comments relating to talks that we have had here in this Convention, which may help a little. The other night, John Gardiner appeared and he spoke, oh, a few evenings ago. And he said, and I quote: "It's time to open the doors and windows and give this country back to the people." Now, you know he was applauded heartily, and he could have been speaking just as sincerely about giving the worker's rights back to the worker. He also said, and I quote approximately, that "money talks louder and longer and drowns out others." And I think he could have been referring just as well to the terrific clout of the labor unions that we have here, and for the bill of rights for the workers. The Montana Standard the other day said Wade Dahood hit the nail on the head when he was discussing a right nearly-not nearly as important as the right of association, the right of privacy, and I quote: "He said as government functions and controls expand, it is necessary to expand the rights of the individual." Now, the Montana Standard gave Wade credit; said he hit the nail right on the head. He was discussing a right, and it was a right, and he had the right idea, and I certainly think it is no time to contract or reduce the rights of any individuals, or even to take them away entirely. Think about this a minute. Now, Supreme Court Justice Douglas, certainly not a conservative, said in 1950 in a court decision-and I quote: "The right to work, I had assumed, was the most precious liberty that man possesses. Man has indeed as much right to work as he has to live, to be free, and to own property. It does man little good to stay alive and to be free and propertied if they cannot work. To work means to eat. To eat means to live." Well, that's the end of the quote. (Laughter) There's more-there's more, but that's all that pertains to this, and that's his feelings on this subject. Oh yes, and Delegate Dahood, in pleading for a unanimous verdict the other day-I get a kick out of this-he won a unanimous verdict the other day to convict for a misdemeanor, and he won his case. I just wish he was here in my boots now. With all the facts and figures that I've got here, he could win this thing hands down. Hell, it'd look like that last roll call. (Laughter) Now, I ask you-he did ask for this conviction by a unanimous verdict for a misdemeanor. Now, I ask you, is that consistent with what labor is doing to the minority. A minority-just think of it-a minority of labor can go into industry, an establishment, and come out with a 49 percent of the vote, and they've given their rights to bargain to 51 percent. And from then on that 51 percent can convict the rest of that bunch for life for paying 10, 15 dollars a month, whatever the dues are. And they've got a 49 percent minority, but they're convicted for life for a fine and they haven't done anything except give up some rights. They got maybe a fine of a hundred dollars or more right off the bat to join the union. Think about that, fellow delegates. The minority are only guilty of having decided to use an inalienable right of association, and they're fined 10 bucks a month for life, and probably deprived of the right to life, too, if they don't have a job and can't eat. Now, I'll talk about the majority having the rights to collective bargaining for all. This is a little more-goes back to 1935, when the Wagner Act, which is the National Labor Relations Act, was enacted. They-since then they have had the right to enforce a closed shop. But by that-by 1947, a little feeling had been built up in Congress to restrict their abuse of this right and other powers, and among the restrictions that were imposed then, in the Taft-Hartley law, was the clause saying in effect that compulsory unionism could not be enforced in any state which had laws preventing it. This is 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley law. I'll not go into the many battles fought by organized labor to repeal, but many of you should remember when Senator Dirksen of Illinois almost singlehandedly, in 1965, shortly before his death, rallied enough strength from the multitude of letters and wires and the voices of the people to soundly beat this terrific power of the union bosses that they-the mass to repeal this bill. And I remind you that Senator Mansfield was the loser on the-was the big gun on the losing side. When this law, 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley, came into effect, I think 11 states had the bill of rights for labor laws, and since then, 8 morestates have adopted them. And I think there's either 8 or 9 with constitutions that have the Bill of Rights in their Constitutions-Bill of Rights for labor—sometimes called the right-to-work law. Let me quote you some of the opinions of some of the Senators and Governors of the state, in direct contradiction of what we've been hearing from the union bosses around here. And this is a pretty late bunch of quotations, but in Wyoming: "The right-to-work law is designed to restore full freedom of choice to the working man and woman of Wyoming. Also, it guarantees one of the most important hallmarks of American liberty and citizenship—the right of individual decisionmaking."—Clifford Hanson, U.S. Senator and former Governor. In Virginia: "The opposition to repeal of the right-to-work law is neither antilabor or antiunion. In this state, both industry and unions have expanded and prospered." In Tennessee-I only got a couple of these: "As I see it, we have had pretty good labor-management relations in this state. We have gained new industries because of our right-to-work laws. Industry knows that both management and labor will get fair play." In Nebraska-Oh, this was by Buford Ellington, the Governor of Tennessee. In Nebraska: "The most important function of our right to work is to safeguard individual freedom. Not surprisingly, how. ever, it has also had a beneficial effect on Nebraska's economy."-Senator Curtis, U.S. Senator. Well, I can go on here for quite awhile, but I'll finish with Utah: "Under our right to work, Utah's economy has prospered as never before. There are more jobs at higher wages than ever before."-Wallace Bennett. I can also go back to Wyoming and cite you something that came up in our committee. Unfortunately, I lost the letter I had here to back it up, but I made the statement that since we'd worked in Wyoming since 1963 in the right-to-work law-came in there at that time-we heard argument after argument and thousands of dollars were spent down there by the labor bosses to try to keep that thing from going through the-to be enacted as a law in Wyoming—and they prophesied all the things that you're hearing here. And let me tell you, since they went in in 1963, the Wyoming union scales for the comparative classifications-in Wyoming, our neighboring state to the south, they have increased their union scale I think it's 7 percent faster than they have here in Montana, since 1963. And that's where the prophets of doom were really going to town. Of course, they had a Right-to-Work Committee going down there, too, I guess, and they put out a lot more stuff. But don't tell me they haven't been working against me here a little bit. Anyway, what I've just told you here from these Governors and Senators, from these various facts, doesn't jibe with the facts and the figures that the labor people have been trying to tell you, I'm sure. Better go where I can start again. Now, since I've been at this Convention, I've learned a lot, and I've missed a lot more, about taxation and education, environment, general government, and stuff like that. And I know that I certainly was not as educated on those things as I should have been, and I'm just taking it for granted that from here on in, a lot of you people are not educated in labor deals as much as I've been. So I'm assuming that, anyway. And do you know-1 don't think a lot of you know a lot more about these labor problems than I did when I came in here. Just like one of my younger brothers-I've got to bring a story up here. We weren't too bright in our family, but this wasn't one of the brightest one of us, either, but— (Laughter) I remember-well, I'll go back into another story as long as you think that one was— (Laughter) We did have a—we had a pretty good family. I think there were nine brothers-I can't remember that far—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just keep it relevant, Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: There was nine brothers and one sister, and we were all sitting around the table, and we had a fellow come in for dinner, and he remarked to my Dad what a wonderful family we had, and this and that. And my Dad told him, "Well, yes, it's a remarkable family all right-look real good. But, sad thing, one of them is a little off." And of course the fellow said, "Well, that's sure too bad, Ed. I feel sorry for you." He says, "Well, that isn't the worst part", he says, "We can't tell which one it is." (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Ralph-we might help him a little, Ralph. (Laughter)

DELEGATE STUDER: Well, that was a kind of a dirty one. (Laughter) Well, really, that isn't the story I was going to tell. (Laughter) This kid brother of mine-I'll get this all over with and then I'll get serious. This young brother did go in-he went in with this load of hides to sell. This was during those old dust bowl days. And she was really tough; and so he sent him into town with this load of hides, and then he gave him half a dozen chickens. He says, "Take them in, too", you know, "and get a little groceries. Flour and salt; you know, the staples-and sugar and stuff— whiskey and things that we needed."-(Laughter) And when he went in there, why, he was gone quite awhile, and when he came back, why, Dad went over and looked in the grocery box and there was nothing in there. He said, "Say, I thought— what's the matter here? You had some chickens and stuff there and you was going to sell those hides. What happened to the groceries you were supposed to buy?" Well, he says, "You know, I got in there and Joe says, 'You know the price of hides has gone down again, and by the time I pay the fellow for cleaning these up and taking them over to the station and shippingthem to St. Louis, why, paying the freight', he says, 'I think you'll be about a dollar and a half short.' Well," he said— "so I gave him the other three chickens to pay for that. I gave him three, and then I gave him three and told him we'd bring him in another load of hides tomorrow." (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'm about to go to the Rules Committee, Mr. Studer. (Laughter)

DELEGATE STUDER: Well, our standard of living is much higher now than it was then, and wages and prices for things are 5 and 10 times as high. But I have a sinking feeling that our country and our economy and our working man, among other, other than a relatively few which are in the higher priced areas, and their relatively secure government jobs and the like, are in a very precarious position economically. And I place the blame for the great share of it at the door of the ruthless, power-hungry, avaricious, and short-sighted labor bosses who are at the top echelons of our unions. When union bosses for organized labor begin to flourish and expand and while our production lines are growing-were growing by uses of finer machinery and technology and new products and so forth were coming on the market, wage increases were only keeping pace with the increased sales and production and inflation was very little, except for the periods of war and shortage of labor. That's when our labor increases-all the fringe benefits and the like that were started— were added to a rapidly expanding economy, due to this technology and this stuff that I mentioned. And they didn't necessarily increase our inflation at all, because a fellow produces twice as much, why, you can afford to give him twice as much. There's no reason to pass on any costs to our society at all. To make a long story short, I will skip a little here and quote from the Congressional Record some stuff I just found out. They have introduced a bill there on this, and in one of the talks, Mr. Steiger of Arizona quoted-171 skip some of that: Do you think union demands for higher wages and benefits will cause higher prices and more inflation, or can companies meet union demands without raising prices? This was a question asked by an opinion poll of the Research Corporation of Princeton, New Jersey. "Mr. Speaker, 63 percent"-well, he was talking to the House there-"63 percent of the union families in the country say that these demands do indeed cause higher prices and more inflation. These families instinctively know, as does the general public, that unrestrained union power is a key factor in bringing our nation to the brink of economic disaster, Most respected economists agree on this point. As Henry Hazlett noted, the government has been turned into a union organizing agency and virtually compels employers to make substantial concessions to union demands, no matter how unreasonable." This is all a quote of Mr. Steiger. "This resulted in the union wage freeze that is now melting into phase two of our new economic policy. Unfortunately, the new economic policy treats the symptoms of the problem, rather than the disease, and that is compulsory unionism, and that is one of the reasons why I am sponsoring a national right-to-work legislation." This has all been taking place while we're here. Writer John Davenport recently noted: "What ails the economy is not the free price and profit system as such, but the fact that it has afflicted in a single sector by a powerful and pervasive monopoly element. I refer, of course, to the power of the labor unions to force up wages and costs year after year, without regard to general productivity advance. The effective and courageous way to deal with union monopoly is a large-scale revision of our present permissive labor laws and their administration. This is the missing ingredient from the President's program; and had it been undertaken in good time, we might never have arrived at our present impasse. Americans everywhere are keenly aware that the nation's economy has entered a vital period. Action taken by us in the next few months will have a profound influence on the future of this country. Surely, excessive union power has steered the American ship of state to the brink of disaster, and this makes sound economic sense. It does make sound economic sense to eliminate the root, because of this unhealthy concentration of power, and that root is compulsory union membership. Anything else, to paraphrase a comment made by a nationally syndicated columnist during one of the recurring railroad crises a few years ago, would amount to be-putting a band-aid on a compound fracture. At the bottom of this whole thing," he noted, "is the vice of compulsory unionism." Well, he goes on with quite a bit of that stuff, but you won't be listening to me in about a minute. The facts are as presented to you here and by the paper I placed on your desk either yesterday or day before, that had a lot of quotes and a lot of facts and figures. I don't know if you all read them. I am not going to take the trouble to read them to you here now, because I know the longer I go, the-well, I won't be making any votes, I don't think. So there's no reason that we wouldn't prosper as these other states have, according to the figures on this sheet that I placed on your desk-all 19 of these right-to-work states have progressed faster economically than any statistic you can put in here that Montana has today in a compulsory unionism state. Now, that ought to show something to you. That ought to be argument enough right here, right now. If 19 states can do more economically for their society than we have done here without the use of this bill of rights for labor, why don't we get smart and adopt it? You know why? We've got that clout over our heads right now, and that is really one of the troubles. If we could just come in here and have the facts explained to us about a new deal, and I was bringing it up without having had it heard one way or another about this thing, and I was trying to sell you something, and I had all the facts that I have here as to where it had worked and how good it had worked previously in a hundred percent of the places I had sold it, I think you'd buy it. I don't know why you don't just go ahead and buy it from me now and raise your hands and say, "I'll go with you," and I could stop right here. The Bill of Rights for workers does not wreck unions; it stabilizes them. Justice Brandeis, a famous labor lawyer, said in part in a decision: "The unions attain a success when it reaches the ideal condition, and the ideal condition for a union is to be strong and stable, and yet to have in the trade outside its own ranks an appreciable number of men who are non-unionist." Now, this is from Justice Brandeis, who is a very famous old-time labor leader—lawyer—around 1905 or something--and he was quoted in this opinion here by Justice Frankfurter when he ruled that the Arizona right-to-work law was legal, in 1945. Now, Justice Brandeis also said a nucleus of unorganized labor will check oppression by the union, just as a union checks oppression by the employer. Now, nothing could be said much more simple than that. I don't understand why a fellow would want to even think that you can take the rights away from a minority of a group that have voted to give their collective bargaining rights to the employer and then from that day on say that that minority cannot work. It just seems so unreasonable to me that that's really why I brought up this right-to-work law here--what I got in here. I heard a-rights to do danged near anything-you've got the right, the inalienable right, you got all these rights, but you don't have the right to work. And the right to work is the right to eat, and it's the right to live. My God, if you don't eat, you can't hardly live. We can't all go on welfare. I think we should talk about the bill of rights for labor as it concerns us here in this Constitution. Some of you will come up with the old dodge that this is legislative. (Laughter) I got something written here on that. (Laughter) It's a red sheet here someplace. Well, anyway it's legislative all right, and I'll agree to it. But we also had a deal put through here that was legislative the other day, and I didn't like it a bit, and I'm looking right at the guy that put it through-Dahood, over there. (Laughter) And you know, he did. He got a law pushed through here, and he starts right out telling you that he knows it's legislative but he had a little grievance there. Well, I got a big grievance here. (Laughter) I don't see why, if we can sit right here and, with our great amount of judgment, go along and vote against something that is as important to the economic growth of this state—and I'm serious now-1 don't see how we can possibly do it. It is just impossible in my reasoning to think that we could even think of doing such a thing when we've got all the facts and all the figures and all the reasons for going along with my proposal on my side. I don't know of anything that's been said against this right-to-work law, except that it's an awful thing. It just--what's an awful thing about it? The right to work? It isn't too bad. A lot of us got out of the habit, and we're getting the hell. (Laughter) This is a very important measure, and the fact that you're going to try to say it's legislative, I just hope you don't, because it's too important for the state at this time. And for anybody to come up here and try to oppose that, you're just--well, you're just sneaking out, that's what you're doing. (Laughter) You got-you aren't taking the issue at heart, and if you do such a thing-you can clobber it, probably. But it is not—it is legislative, but it's got no chance in the world of getting through this legislative body-the bodies that we're setting up, and if it's a unicameral system, it probably will have a little less because this clout is here. There's a fellow made a statement here a little while ago in his talk, Delegate Joyce, in which he mentioned he was endorsed by labor. Well, hell, an endorsement doesn't mean selling your life and your conscience and your--all of your thinking from now on, does it? If it does, I'd just as well sit down. I'm trying to convince the ones of you that feel like you've got to give your vote to labor. If you really want to give your vote to labor and not to the labor bosses, you'll go along with me. Because labor is who I'm fighting for. I have been for labor all my life. I started out when I got out of college-hell, I'm going to throw my speech away. (Laughter) I got out of college and I worked for labor. That was the first place I ever got on the labor group was—that's when my Dad was accused of having us morons--when I got on that labor group. I was appointed by the Governor to be on the—Associated Contractors at that time had quite a wrestle with labor. I think we were getting a couple of bucks a day and board, or 40 cents an hour. Those were the wages in those days. I thought that was pretty rough to live in over the winter. We had transient help, you might say. We fire them in the fall and hire them in the spring, and that was the common practice. So I thought, well, we should have just a little more justice in our dealings with labor. We should give them a fair enough wage so that they could live through the winter without having to borrow money from the boss to start the spring. By the time you got the boss paid back, well, he was pretty near where he was before-fall was in there and he didn't have any money again. So we did pass labor laws. We got the first 40 cents an hour law, I think, in the State of Montana-or the State of Minnesota at that time, which was around, oh, I don't know probably 1926 or '25, something in there. Later on, I got away from there and got out of the area. But 1935, of course, labor unions got started, and they didn't have any help. They were progressing very fairly and I have no objection. I worked with them, we got along fine with them. But all at once we come up here to where their wage-their asking was faster than their production. They asked for a wage increase rather--or whether or not they got any extra production or not, even with the increased production of machinery, the efficiency of machinery. They didn't care about that, and you could see what was happening then. They did not care about labor. Somewhere along the line-well, it had something to do-there's a lot of pretty rough people got into the labor movement. I don't say they're all in there now, but there was a lot of labor organizations that were fought by the big shots when the CIO and the AF of L merged. And some of these unions could not get into this merger, mainly because they were riddled with Communists, and there were a lot of pretty big unions that had to rid themselves of Communists. And, you know, they went so far and they got so strong later on, and the big shots in there had forgotten about labor. I'm sure of that, because these prices, after they had gone past the productivity angle to where they related their wage increases with the increases in production, that's when our trouble started. You have to pass the cost on to somebody. Whenever you have raised the costs, the boss doesn't take that raise. If he does, he goes broke. So contractors like myself could care less about these wage increases. We're not hurt. You'd think I was arguing like a lot of these letters say that we're getting from these people. I got a lot of them. They're set-and you know, it's just like the school teacher tells you-"You write a letter to Aunt Lucy; she's got a lot of money and she isn't feeling so good; and you'd better all write her a letter tomorrow." Well, you're getting them. They're dictated. They're regimented. They come 20-15, 20 in a pack from different towns, sort of. I can pretty near trace the way the business agent was traveling. (Laughter) Well, anyway, after we got into this mess, that's when I became worried. I really thoughtthatsomething should be done about this right-to-work law, and it's been brought into this state several times and tried to be passed here in the Legislature. People have started to bring it up. I don't think it's ever got out of committee. They had an initiative here a short time ago and-well, 1958, I think it was-in which they went around and made a concerted effort to get an initiative, because they could feel that the Legislature was never going to get it because of this clout. Believe me, these union bosses have got to have this clout. They're not interested in this labor. I was going to show you where labor is hurt. We could move five or six times the amount of dirt in our business or lay twice as much oil or twice as much gravel as we ever used to, with halfthelabor that we used to, because they forced us to do it. And price doesn't mean anything. They try to tell you that we're trying to bring the price down, that we're going to take-make a lot of money. I've got a letter here-"Stupid bugger, you," I mean, "what are you trying to do? You're trying to lower the wages? You're trying to make a slave state out of this state?" Well, nothing could be further from the truth. When we bid on work, we use a prevailing wage. Nearly every building going up today, nearly every construction job of any size whatsoever has got some federal money in it someplace, and as soon as that federal money enters that picture, you pay that prevailing wage. And that prevailing wage is set fairly close to the union standards, whatever they are, and so the fact that they come out here and tell you you're trying to make a slave state out of this, that's for the birds. It just isn't. There's no such thing. We pay the prevailing wage. We do, however, have the opportunity of paying a lower wage if that right-to-work law is here, and that is where an increase in the use of labor will come in. That's why a lot of these states prosper that have got the right-to-work law, because on some of this other stuff-If I want to make a deal here with Blend, there, or Torrey, there, or somebody to go out and build him something, I can go out and build it. I can go out and build something for a fellow, and instead of having to use these union restrictions, this featherbedding stuff doesn't apply. That only applies when you have a contract that goes out on this work where your union restrictions, your compulsory union, is in effect. But in a Right-to-Work law, you could have the right to go out and go to work and work, and if they didn't like it, they could take the chance that maybe you'll quit that union, or you may go nonunion. So they tried to make a little more stable laws. I can go out and make a deal with you fellows, and I can build your feedlot or whatever you might want, or your driveway, and instead of having a roller operator there for 2 hours and having to pay him until noon, I can take him and put him on a shovel or on the truck or something else, without having to pay him sitting, and I can't use him. All these featherbedding deals, they hurt. And you know who they hurt? The laboring man. Hell, you just go out and find something bigger and better to do the job and replace two or three of those fellows so that you can avoid having all these fellows around and having to worry about what they're going to do next. You get a few men and do four, five times as much work, and 10 or 12 fellows sit on the side. It's just that simple. I maintain, somewhere along the line, and I think probably it was in a Romney hearing, that it's much better--and think of this now, fellows, think of it. It's just a lot better if we had 10 men getting $4 an hour, we'll say, than 4 men getting $10 an hour. That just makes sense. Those $4-an-hour men will be getting quite a bit more than our minimum wage law is today, and are the labor people very interested in this low class of labor? Hell, no; there's no money in that. They just aren't. They aren't going out where it's hard to organize, and they aren't interested in labor as a whole. They're interested in dues. If the dues don't come in fast enough to more than pay for their organizing, they aren't interested.

They're interested in dues, and I'm telling you that's why they want compulsory unionism, is dues. They're driving men out-time after time, driving them out of work, and they could careless. You don't pay our dues, you don't work. They're glad to sign up another man that's got money in his pocket that'11 take out a card, and I can prove it. Well, anyway, I'm certainly not antiunion, like I've been accused of out of these letters. I'm for the-I'm not antilabor, I mean. I'm certainly anti-union-boss. Now, I got off my subject, I guess, or off my speech.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer, will you do what you can to complete?

DELEGATE STUDER: I'm going to finish right now.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's good.

DELEGATE STUDER: I want to bring in this fact about welfare. You know, the welfare people have a bill of rights. We were listening to their stuff, and they have a bill. You have a right to welfare. Now, that's about the most ridiculous thing I've ever heard. Not that I'm against welfare. If you're poor and you've had a lot of bad luck, I say that you should get welfare, but you don't have a right as it's-as I'm applying it. This right was given to us to work, and they're taking it away from us. Now, how ridiculous that sounds, when they bring up the fact that you have a bill of rights for welfare-which they have, a printed bill of rights for welfare-and we just go along here and can't even go to work so that we can get off of welfare. How ridiculous that is. You've got a right to get on welfare, but you haven't got a right to get on work to get off welfare. What kind of a corner are we getting into? In closing, I have a 60-second editorial here from--well, I'm not going to read it. Labor's very existence is at stake. It is as sick as our economy is sick. Why not give it the help it needs? My bill of rights for labor has worked in 19 states as the medicine that has worked. It will work here. Why not give it a try? Does the doctor with the medicine that will cure a patient withhold it from him because he objects to its taste? The real issue here is the right that a working man has that he has unjustly lost. I'll not belabor this, but it is the only right that we've debated here that really affects us all in a very earthy, practical and easy-to-see manner. It hits our lives daily. It is the right to work and to eat and to live. It's ironical, isn't it, that we've had a large delegation here before our committee, testifying very emotionally about their right-and this right that I just talked about, this right to welfare-and we don't even have this right to work to get off of it. There's not one of us here who can, in good conscience, vote against the bill of rights for labor, if you know it should be done. Even though you've-honestly want to honor a commitment that asks you to do differently. That is why we must, should, or can with honor place this measure on the ballot so that can be voted on at once and for always by we, the people. By giving the people this alternative on the ballot-and that's what I'm going to talk about now-you have helped the Constitution to pass and you can rest assured that you voted for the best interests of the thousands who must live with this Constitution in the years to come. Let's give the real working man back his rights to work that is his, and that can be again. Now, this alternative is a very important deal. You've all heard it. You know it. We've tried to keep it off, we've tried to put it on; but this is one that says right in my bill that it's an alternate. It's an alternative that will be put on the ballot; you shall either vote for it, or you shall vote against it. I hope it's on there. I didn't remember--okay, it's on there--and it's not to be voted into the Constitution. I did not want it in this Constitution. That sounds funny, but I certainly did not want it in the Constitution. And the first time we met to talk about it, I brought it up, and that's-it had to be put in as a proposal: and when I put it in in the committee, it was-the alternative was put in, and that alternative gives people the right to vote on this important issue. It's been a very, very controversial issue in the state, and it will bring out a lot of people to vote. And believe me, all the people that will come out to vote for this thing are certainly going to put an "X" on top to go for the Constitution. They might vote against it or they might vote for it, but they're going to vote on-the ones that want the right to work in, they're certainly going to vote for the Constitution. And as has been shown by labor-and this is very important-in the ballot that they took on whether they wanted to stabilize or to go on phase two, and labor leaders all said "No, we won't go along with you. We're going to have to have our own way here. We're not going to go along." They took a ballot of labor, and 63percent oflaborvoted that they would go along with this wage stabilization as against their union leaders. That goes to show you how they can vote when they've got a ballot that they don't have to put their names on. Now, if that is put on and even half of labor comes out and even wants to vote against this right-to-work law-even if all of those people voted against the Constitution, it wouldn't hurt it. Half of them, you see-because half of them will vote for it. Half of the labor leaders. There's people right in here, labor union people working right in here, that have told me that they would be glad to speak for me if they could just do it and not lose their jobs tomorrow morning. Now, I want you to know that this is a serious proposition, this alternative, and that is the key to the whole thing. If you're not willing to put it on the ballot as an alternative, you're voting against the will of the people and there's going to be a lot of people against it. I don't say it's threatening the Constitution's passing in any way, but I'll say we could help the Constitution in passing by bringing out this big vote for this bill and for-and they would certainly vote for the Constitution. There was a time when a man once said: "Is life so dear or peace so sweet so as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery?" It may be, delegates, that we have become unworthy of such a heritage. I'll now close with this thought: that there are no extraordinary men, there are only ordinary men that do extraordinary things. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Studer is correct that his motion on page 36 does include the idea that is to be submitted as a separate issue to the people. That issue is now open for debate. Mr. Lorello, you did have a motion that you want to make. Do you want to make your motion now?

DELEGATE LORELLO: Mr. Chairman, I do. I read this section and it reads "employment rights". I don't believe it's-here comes the dodge, Ralph-I don't believe it's a constitutional item, and this is what we're going to be telling people if we vote on this thing. I read just the section that gives the employment rights part, and I don't think that we can vote on both issues at once. We don't know whether this is going to go on the ballot or not. I'd like to discuss the thing or have the body discuss it and get a vote on it and then, if it has merit, perhaps be put on as a separate item. But I don't think we can vote both issues at once.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Are you going to make the motion?

DELEGATE LORELLO: Is that correct? Yes, you have my motion there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes. Mr. Lorello's motion is he moves to delete Section 36-or Section 5 on page 36. So his motion to delete will be allowed, and we'll debate that, and it's the same thing either way. And you may debate either issue. Mr. Lorello.

DELEGATE LORELLO: Mr. Chairman, exactly what I said before-1 don't believe that this is a constitutional issue. We've talked about this all day. I'd like to have some other talk on it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Lorello and I had the same thought on this. We, this morning, voted down a right to organization and collective bargaining. I think that we should be consistent and vote down this employment right. I've had some experience with employment rights back in the '30's. I joined an organization, and I was working for William Randolph Hearst, a bleeding heart for the rights of labor. And I saw some heads busted and a lot of people gassed so that the scabs could have their employment rights. They were peacefully picketing. I don't think this thing is concerned with employment rights, but the right to break unions and lower wages. I, along with Mr. Lorello, would like to see this thing gotten rid of. Let's be consistent. If we can't have bargaining rights, let's not put in employment rights.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman, I'm sure going to catch it now. You know, when I came up here, I didn't think anything about there'd be a right to work or anything come up. 1 came up here to see what I could do to help write a better fundamental law for the State of Montana. Since I have come here, of course, I have learned a good deal. As Mr. Studer said, he certainly has been very short in knowledge of many of these things, and I have, too. And I suppose I am in-as far as labor goes. Now, when I was elected in November by the people of District 6, I know there was a good many union people that voted for me. I suppose that some of those, perhaps, after I speak here, may wish they had not have voted for me. However, I do feel that the wives of many of these union men are probably pretty glad that they did vote for me about now, because I'm sure that they would rather have paychecks coming in than some kind of a big promise of something that they're going to have after they strike 6 or 8 months and it's questionable whether they will get it or not. Now, along these lines of whether I speak for this or against it, Delegate Wilson and I were instructed to bring up another subject here. You could call it a right to work or whatever you want to. Many people in our district didn't think the legal profession was treating them quite as they should, so we brought up a proposal. Wediscussed it very thoroughly here, and I think many of the legal profession realize that these things are going on. And I'm sure that they are going to do something about this on their own accord, and that's the way it should be. I don't think we ever hoped to put any position in the Constitution that would force this, but we did get it aired. I think this is one of the things that we should talk about this-let's open it up and look at it and see what Mr. Studer has here. Now, quoting Delegate McKeon here the other day--we're talking about the death penalty. He said it was 14 states had abolished it. This meant that it should be abolished. Well, there's 19 states have the right-to-work laws, so by that same measurement, what's the matter with right-to-work laws? Good or bad, 19 states have it. Now here's something to think about when we're considering this whole thing. Let's just look out here in the parking lot. How many foreign cars do you see? How many delegates here drive them? Why? You know why. Because they're a good car and they're cheaper. They're building them somewhere else. What about your television sets, your tape decks, your radios? Why? You know why. Cameras? Are there any being made in the United States any more? I think not. They're all farmed out-some foreign country. What about our timber products? Ship them to Japan, make plywood, bring it back, sell it on our market. What happens to the laboring man when this happens? He isn't making that plywood. How about that? What about the iron ore? Shipped to Japan; shipped to West Germany; prefabricated; comes back and we buy it. Is the laboring man of the United States doing any good with that? Why, certainly not. What about the pipeline that's going to be laid from the north slope to Valdez some of these days, when they get the thing settled to where they won't destroy the ecology? That pipe was all made in Japan; it's laying up there, millions and millions of dollars worth of it. What about the loading platform out on Cook Inlet, a hundred miles from Anchorage? I've seen it. I've landed on it with a helicopter. It's the only way you can get there. They load these oceangoing vessels with oil out there. They can-they have 60 feet of water at the shallowest tide. That whole thing was built in Japan, was towed to Cook Inlet by tugboats from Japan. Why? Why didn't they build it in the United States? You know why. I'm like Mr. Studer here; we've got to move to another page. What about the SST, the supersonic transport? Where is it being built? It's being built in Japan; they bought the plans. We couldn't afford to build it here; it cost too much. Go into any store downtown, look at the labels on all these goods; look where they were made. Why were they made there? You know why they were made there. What about the Montana wheat? All piled up in Montana because it can't be shipped to where we battled and battled to get markets. Our Wheat Commission worked. They took labor leaders over there, showed them the markets they had. Look what's happened to it. They were very sympathetic. They come right back and called another dock strike. That's how sympathetic they were. Now, I don't think that all this is caused because the price of labor is too high. Certainly not. As Mr. Studer says, it isn't the price you pay, it's the production you get and it's the work rules. They won't let them work. They won't let them produce. Now, somebody is going to get up here and—probably and say, "Well, yes, but the American worker produces so much more per hour." Well, he does not produce any more per hour. The figures show that the Japanese worker will produce a ton of steel for a little over 5-hours man-5 hours—man-hours. What's the United States steel worker's record? Seven plus hours. How come so many American ships are sailing under foreign flags? On account of the work rules they have to abide by. Now, this isn't providing any work. Now, yesterday we had a great big discussion here on the welfare rights of people-that they were entitled to this and entitled to the other. We had a chart here-the statistics of the counties that—how many they had. Lyle here has worked with them; he knows this. Isn't it a little bit odd that these same counties are where they have the closed-shop unions, the very same ones now have the big welfare problems? Mr. Monroe stated right here many of these people had to be on welfare only because they couldn't get a job. In some cases the union wouldn't let them work. Well, how about it? These are just some of the things. Now, Delegate Pete over here-my good friend, Delegate George, too-they want to delete this. Let's not talk about it any more. Well, I was down to my good friend Delegate Harper's church Sunday, and he told a little story, and I'm going to tell it at this time. The Arab was sitting in his tent. It was dark and he lighted a candle, and he reached over and he's got this bag of dates, and he sat down and he was going to eat. He took out the first date and he opened it by the light of the candle, and it had a worm in it. He threw it aside. He reached back, he got another date and he opened it, and it had a worm in it, and he threw it aside. He reached in and he got another one, and he opened it by the light of the candle, and it had a worm in it, and he threw it aside. Do you know what he did? He blew out the candle and he ate the fourth date. Now, I submit to you that that's what this amendment-my good friend, Pete, over here is suggesting-is we just blow out the candle and continue to eat the dates. Just one more little story here. Do you know what the people in our good sister State of North Dakota are doing, where they have the right-to-work law-what they're doing while we Montanans are telling North Dakota stories? They're building highways. And if you don't believe it, just go down there and look at the roads you have to drive on. I thank you, Mr. Chairman, and I certainly will support Mr. Studer's position.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The Chair wishes to announce that Rule 28 provides that the rules of the Convention shall be observed in the Committee of the Whole as-so far as they may be applicable thereto. Rule 17 provides "No delegate shall speak longer than 10 minutes at any one time." Rule 17 goes on to say: "This restriction imposed by this rule shall not beapplicable to Chairmen or Vice-chairmen of commission when they're presenting a report of their committee to the Committee of the Whole. The same exception from this requirement shall be applicable in the case of the chief spokesman for a minority report." Now, the Chair is not certain that he has always cut people off after 10 minutes, but I know that—and I know that most of the long speeches have been by majority leaders or minority leaders presenting reports, which is fully within the rule. But the Chair wishes to announce now that from now on out, the Chair is going to enforce the 10-minute rule, and if it gets too bad, we'll enforce a lot more strict one.

Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman]. I rise to support Mr. Lorello's motion to delete this, and I would like to answer a few of the things-points that have been put forth here. I'd like to say, first of all, that I think that Mr. Studer is an entirely engaging man and I think he's utterly sincere in his feeling about this right to work; that he thinks this will solve a lot of things. And presumably he also believes that he is a friend of the workingman. I'd like to say that I have worked for both union contractors and nonunion contractors; and when I was working for the union contractors, I, from my own point of view, I always received a better deal. I was paid better. If I worked overtime, I got paid for that overtime, It was not so with the nonunion. I attended the Romney hearings here in this room, and I listened to the parade of witnesses that came up here to this rostrum. There wasn't a single laboring man in that group--up there pleading for the rights of the workingman. It was all contractors-pleading for the rights of the workingman. And I think that's a little strange. And when I worked for these nonunion contractors--and I have been forced to do things if I wanted to keep my job, such as working overtime at straight pay, or any of the other things that I found perfectly disagreeable-I never once, in all that time I ever worked for nonunion contractors, ever had another contractor come along and say, "Chet, your rights are being violated and I'm going to do something about it." It's always only on this right-to-work provision that they say, "I've got to protect this poor working man." Now, so far as this business of what happens within the union itself on the voting, Mr. Studer makes the point that if 51 percent vote to have a union, the other 49 percent are forced into that for life. Not so. They can have another election any time that you want to get a certain number of signers on a petition, or wait for the next time to come around, and if they can get 51 or 55 or 60 percent to vote out that union, it can be voted out. There's nothing in that for life. Now, I don't know where some of these facts and figures come from that they were quoting how great it was in these right-to-work states. They always go to percentages when they want to sometimes kid us. Any time you're a workingman, though, you're interested in what your hourly pay rate is. That's where the real important thing comes in. And looking at these right-to-work states; for instance, Wyoming ranks 25th. The average pay down there is $3.36 an hour. In North Dakota it's $2.93 an hour, which ranks 37th. And Montana is paying $3.70 an hour, and it ranks 11th. There's only one nonright-right-to-work state, Iowa, that ranks along with Montana. And there's only one right-to-work state that ranks above it, and that's Nevada. Now, there's a lot of-a lot of people always say about unions that certain things go wrong within unions, and that's true; but I think that could be said of almost any organization you want to take a look at. Something certainly went wrong with the Penn Central Railraod. They had to reorganize that thing completely. Something certainly went wrong with the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, because we had to put up $450 million of government money to keep that thing going, or as a guarantee. So it isn't just unions that have their problems. Anti I don't know, I guess I resent a little bit this business of calling union leaders goons and avaricious people and dirty and all these things, because there's a number of labor leaders in this state that are my friends. The head of the AFL-CIO, Jim Murry, is from my hometown, Laurel. And while Jim isn't the greatest man in the world, I suppose, neither am I; and neither are any of the rest of us in here. He makes his mistakes, I make mine; but I certainly would wait a long time before I called him a goon or avaricious or any of those things. I find him a good man who works hard for the AFL-CIO, the labor movement of Montana; who is utterly dedicated to that and works 18 hours a day for the laboring people of this state. And I find this true of most of the laboring people that I know in Billings. They have a tough job. The head of the waitresses' unions in these different towns-1 know some of them, and they are utterly dedicated. It's difficult, and I don't find them those kind of people the way they've been described. Now, insofar as this business of saying that because we have unions that that's why there's lots of Volkswagens in this country, and Toyotas and all the other different products that come in; it's true. These things come in at a cheaper rate because we've let down the barriers on our tariffs, and they do. They don't have well-organized unions in those countries, so they can sell it cheaper over here. But I really don't think that this is a very good argument for the ranchers and farmers in the State of Montana to be used--use against laboring people. How about if we start bringing in Argentine beef? You know, we can bring that in awfully cheap, too. We can bring it in by the ton, and you could drive every Montana cattleman out of business. Let's start bringing in New Zealand wool-take the tariffs off of that. You'll bring every Montana sheepman to his knees; they're out of business. Why is that? Because we're so inefficient? I don't think so. They can do it cheaper in those countries. Now, on the matter of Japan and its steel. That's quite true. You know why? Because Japan has the most modern steelmaking processes in the world, and you know who built them? We did. With our money. That's why they can produce more cheaply than we can-at least one of the reasons. So, again, I don't think that's any argument. I don't believe this belongs in the Constitution; I don't believe it belongs as a side issue on the ballot; and I support Mr. Lorello.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The Chair wants to apprise this body of the situation we are in. And we are going to continue to debate this; but, ladies and gentlemen, there's only a few of you debating and there are a lot of you listening. Now, the Chair has before it two more minority reports to discuss on this particular issue. One of them has 11 amendments to it on my desk. In addition to that, there are two-there are three proposals for new sections. So there are fourteen matters besides the two reports on my desk on Public Health, which we should finish this afternoon. In addition to that, the Bill of Rights Style and Drafting is up before us today; and in addition to that, Judiciary, Natural Resources, and Revenue and Finance are ready for final approval on Order of Business Number 5. Now, I've been asking among you, and I've found out that some of you would rather work through till at least 7 o'clock than have an evening session. But we may not be able to get it done by 7 o'clock, or even part of it done. So you go right ahead and talk. But I want you to know that if we don't finish a good deal of this work today, Style and Drafting-or, I mean, Rules will bring in a rule for a very stringent restriction on debate tomorrow. I don't mind debating an issue, but when an issue has been debated and the sense of this body is clearly determined. I think the rest of you should then be brief and should let the body vote. It's quite obvious that we're-that some of the issues we're debating that end up 90 to 4 and 95 to 1 do not need an hour and a half of debate. Who wants to be next?

Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Thank you, Mr. President [Chairman], for telling me how long I should talk. I don't propose to talk—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson, I haven't told you how long to talk, and I want everybody to understand that. The Chair wants to be ruthlessly fair here. But I think there are 99 other people besides the man speaking that have had so far the patience to listen, and I don't want their patience to wear out, nor mine. You may speak as long as you want up to 10 minutes under the rules, Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Thank you, Mr. President [Chairman]. I don't think the issue here is against labor unions. I'm not against labor unions, and I think they should stand the light of day. I think placing the issue on the ballot just gives the people the right to exercise their option, and if they want to go a hundred percent in favor of retaining unionism and being against the right-to-work-the law, then I think this would clear the air. Every time that this has ever been brought up to any prospective legislator or politician, he shies away from it. It's taboo. So by putting it on the ballot, it just gives the people the right to exercise their opinion. Do we want it, or do we not want it? And if I were the labor people and the labor union people, I think I would welcome this, because then they can say, "here's the merits", and they can go out and tell the people why they should have this right to work or not have it-not have the right to work. Now, I belong to several cattle associations-the Montana Cattle Stockgrowers' Association, the American National Cattlemen's Association-and we think that all the cattle producers and livestock producers in the state, in the United States, benefit from these organizations. But should we compel every livestock producer to belong to these associations? Should we say to every person that-who raises cattle and livestock in the State of Montana that you must belong to the Montana Stockgrowers' Association? I suppose we'd like to do that, but should we do it? Should we go out across the United States and say every livestock producer must belong to the American National Cattlemen's Association or the American National Woolgrowers' Association? I don't think we want to do that. We're proud of our associations, and we're proud of the independence of it. And I think the people should be proud to vote whether they want to belong to a union or not, and I think the unions should be proud to have them exercise that option. Thank you, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. President [Chairman], fellow delegates. Mr. Studer's and Mr. Wilson's remarks are very well-founded. Mr. Studer's remarks especially are not a laughing matter. I think they're a very serious thing at this time, and a serious situation. Like Mr. Wilson said, the people should have a right to vote on this on the ballot. I'm not against unions. I've been a union man in Butte as a young man, and during the second World War at Great Falls I worked on Gore Hill for 5 months as a carpenter, and I did go to my union meetings. I was an employer for many years, having employed five to six clerks in my stores-two stores in Butte. I belonged to the employers' association during these years and sat in negotiations with union leaders. I insisted that my employees go, too, and take an active part in their union. I believe in unions. They have been very important in the past, helping us to build the greatest economy the world has ever seen. But I believe they must be cleaned up at the top. Labor unions have been-become too powerful. I do not blame this on the labor union leaders, because they're only human. Give some people a little power and they'll take all they can get. I blame it on the union members themselves, who do not take an active part in their unions. Good, hard-working men really need no union; they would get along fine. But they have allowed the powerful labor bosses to become unreasonable in their demands against the golden goose, the small and large employers throughout this country, and especially this state. We have buried a lot of businesses here through labor unions, and the ones that are unreasonable. Any time the employer has to increase salaries and wages unreasonably, the price of that commodity necessarily goes up. I agree with Studer on the facts he has submitted to us. Labor unions must clean up their own house, and they would-there would be no question about people wanting to join for the benefits a larger group can negotiate and get for them. Get labor union leaders-let labor union leaders lose their salaries, and a lot of the union employees-as do the union employees during a strike, and the strikes would not be prolonged as we have seen them. I saw Butte go down from a very progressive, fine city to a shambles. Prolonged labor union strikes have put many businesses out of business. I, myself, sold--or, I should say, gave away--one of my retail stores just to get out of Butte because of these strikes every year. A clerks' union strike cost me $13,000 in 3 weeks and forced me to close it out. They were unfair to me because I was a hometown boy making good. Give the people a chance to clean up the unions; they will be stronger. And encourage people to want to be a member. Union members themselves can do this, but they have been apathetic. Why can't Montana induce more industry into our state? We cannot compete. And I would hope we can eventually get labor and employers working together, not selfishly, but for the benefit of our entire economy. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harrington.

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. I didn't intend to speak on this, because I really didn't think there was really that much necessary-it would be that necessary, actually, for this much floor debate. But I would like to take issue with Mr. Jacobsenin stating that Butte is down to shambles. I feel it's far from that, but I would just like to make that point clear. But I would also like to say that the workingman has come a long way, and if this Convention feels in its wisdom that it can go ahead and pass a bill which the Montana Chamber of Commerce feels very highly that they can write about and-in letters to the editors in the Montana Standard, as they spoke today, that this is what they want. Well, I think that everyone can realize exactly what the Montana Chamber of Commerce wants. So I hope that this is turned down quite soundly. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman. We, today, have decided that the right to collective bargaining did not belong in the Constitution; we decided also that we didn't-the merit system did not belong in the Constitution; and I don't think this belongs in the Constitution. And I'm afraid if this was put on the ballot and this would be-this Constitutional Convention-it's question of constitution-because we would be submitting it. And this is why I opposed it in the committee. I'm still opposed to it. I think this has no place. If they want to go to the next session of the Legislature, which will start next year in January. I-yes, it will be in January, because the new law will not be in effect at that time-they have plenty of time then to go out and do it. And I certainly hope that this Convention will continue to leave this kind of stuff out of the Constitution. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Gysler.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Chairman, I've been told at home by a person that if I ever wanted to run for political office again, I'd better not vote for this. But not being very politically inclined and not being much of a politician anyway, it didn't have too much effect on me. Over the years, this has been bantered back and forth so much, and personally I'm for putting it out to the Great Legislature, and that's the people. There is no way that I would vote to include this to go in the Constitution to be put out with the rest of it, but I would like to see it handled by the people and decided by the people. And we either have it or we don't have it, and it's done and, hopefully, buried one way or the other then for quite awhile. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, I'll speak very briefly for the minority-or for the majority. I wrote the majority comments which you will find on page 41, and I won't repeat them here. I think they are reasoned. I would hope the Convention will vote this proposal down on its merits, which I think are very small. I would like to say that I am a lifelong student oflaboreconomics and labor relations. I have read almost all, I think, of the literature on this subject. All of the arguments that have been brought up here today of an economic nature in support of a right-to-work law can be fully answered and have been fully answered in the literature, and I'm not going to take the time to repeat that here. I would like to say one thing. I echo Mr. Blaylock-I-comments on his feeling of insult to his friends. They are also my friends. I know a great many labor leaders in this state. They are not the nasty characters that they have been pictured here. They are decent men, and they work hard for their people. And I'd particularly like to respond to one comment which Mr. Studer made, which I think is totally baseless, and that is the statement that labor unions don't try to help workers unless they're sure of being paid for in dues. I know from my own personal experience and observation of countless instances in which unions have attempted to organize workers, and are today attempting to organize workers, where they have very little or no hope that they will ever be repaid in dues for their efforts; and this is simply a false charge. I hope you will vote this down.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Artz.

DELEGATE ARTZ: Mr. Chairman, the Montana cattlemen were very adamant that a special levy on livestock be provided for in the Constitution. They did not want it as a side issue on the ballot. We provided for that with a special levy under the Revenue and Finance report. Now, we are being asked to prohibit labor from providing for mandatory membership by contract. Equity and fairness demand that we give labor the same consideration that we gave the cattlemen. I am opposed to Delegate Studer's minority report. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is—

Mr. Studer, do you want to close?

DELEGATE STUDER: (Inaudible)-vote on this amendment. Mr. President [Chairman], I—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Let's see, I guess it isn't a matter of closing; it's-Mr. Lore110 is up.

DELEGATE STUDER: Yes, I wanted to talk on the subject, though, before it goes to that, or I might be—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, I'll let you talk-1 hope briefly.

DELEGATE STUDER: Yes, very briefly. Mr. Blaylock showed that the figures on the right-to-work laws in Montana-I just wanted to show why that is. There's-Montana's compulsory unionism, and they have most of their labor working under that basis and they have a higher rate-I was going to show Mr. Blend, some of these people--I just picked them out as a person-that I could do work for other people and I wouldn't have all these other clauses in there. I can go out and get a crew together and do work once in awhile without paying six or seven or eight or ten dollars an hour. I can do it on a four, five dollar an hour basis. I don't think we've even hurt labor doing it, but it does increase the amount of money going to labor; but it necessarily would bring the cost per hour down a little bit. Calling union men avaricious people I don't think was too bad. I really mean the fact that they have been that way in this feather-bedding deal that I passed around here the other day. It actually shows it. I mean, the fact that you demand to pay a man, and for sitting there watching a fellow welder work all day just so you can go ahead and do some plumbing a half an hour afterwords isn't anything but asking for money for nothing. And if that isn't avaricious, I don't know what it is. It's asking for it maybe for the laboring man, but just the same the union bosses have got that in mind. They're certainly not looking for you to hire more people. That isn't the answer for that, because you raise the cost out of-way out of proportion. And naturally people are looking for the labor-saving devices to buy, and that's been proven. I didn't take that all in. I skipped it in-on account of brevity. And as far as shipping to Japan and back, who is getting hurt in the whole deal? The differences in the cost of labor-if we didn't have such a high labor scale, how could we afford to ship our stuff over there, manufacture it with their labor, ship it back here, distribute it, and market it again, and still make a profit when we could have just as well have done the whole thing in this country? The difference is in labor here as against there. We put their men to work; we haven't put ours to work. Ours are out. It's quite a serious thing. That's one of the causes of our terrific unemployment problem here today. And as far as Lorello's motion, it's exactly what I said. It's just a slippery method of evading the issue. Are we afraid to take this thing to the people? We're not talking about putting it in the Constitution, and I'm not talking about putting it in the Constitution. I'm talking about the people putting it into the Constitution. Why should we hide behind the thing? If you're afraid of that clout, that's exactly what I'm talking about-that you are afraid of this clout. You don't want to be up there on a roll call against them, and I claim it's just evading the issue because it's strictly-do we want to let the people vote on this, or do we not let the people vote on this? I think that we, the people, is what this thing was brought up about. Mrs. Spr's book, "We, The People," was the first book we got when we got started here as delegates, and we were indoctrinated on the thought that we should be here representing the people. How are we going to do it on certain issues that are special issues, and put them in the Constitution? And here's an issue that's controversial-they want to vote on it. I have a tentative ballot. I didn't try to hurt the Constitution by putting it in there, and you try to evade it by deleting it. That is slippery, and I claim it's damned cheap, and I think it's showing who you owe your allegiance to. I hope you can live with your conscience. I'm sure that I couldn't if I voted a slippery little measure like this out when you've got a chance to give something to the people-1 don't think I could rest good. This thing is going on for years and years, and I'm sure if you in your own conscience think that this is a good measure, you should vote for it; and if you think that in all my presentation here I have failed completely and that the unions are a hundred percent right and they're a growing organization and they're very healthy and they're working for the laboring man, that is a good reason to vote for. But then I'd certainly let the people decide that, because between now and June 6th, there's going to be an awful lot of people brought out for and against this thing and I-like I say, I think they'll help the Constitution a lot. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Lorello's motion to delete Section 5 as proposed by Mr. Studer. A roll call vote has been demanded.

Mr. Romney, are you going to speak on it or not?

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I would like to, but I don't know.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You may speak.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, I have never belonged to a labor union. I've operated a business for about 40 years. The fact that I didn't-that labor has improved its status during that period until now it has really a standing in the American community which it did not have many years ago when I first became an employer, has, I believe, aided the American economy immeasurably. The farmers are organized in numerous organizations like the Grange, the Farmers Union, national organizations, the Farm Bureau. The stockgrowers are organized, the doctors are organized, lawyers are organized--nearly every form of activity in the economy is organized; and labor is organized. When the birds go south or north in their migrations, they're organized. They normally go in large flocks, and the ones that don't go in flocks benefit by the flight patterns of the flocks. And I say that the people who are unorganized in the Montana and American labor movement are benefiting by the efforts and the sacrifices that are made by the labor movement. It's true that sometimes things go amiss, like when Mr. Hoffa and Mr. Beck carry on peccadillos and get into jail, but that happens in big business. It happens even among our friends. And that does not place a stigma upon the entire movement. I think that we would be very foolhardy if we embraced this so-called right-to-work issue, and I support Mr. Lorello's motion to delete.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Lorello.

DELEGATE LORELLO: May I close, Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You can close unless someone wants to stand and say that they want to speak. (No response) Very well, you may close, Mr. Lorello.

DELEGATE LORELLO: I'm an employer also, and I also workforindustry. And1 think that we could really get into a lot of debate about these things and find out the nasty little things that labor done to industry and that industry done to labor. Yesterday, Mr. Garlington was searching for eagles, and today, I think Mr. Studer was looking for some pigeons. I sincerely hope that you'll give the right to work the indecent burial that it so rightly deserves. And I guess we asked for a roll call. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of Mr. Lorello's motion to delete Section 5, as proposed by Mr. Studer, vote Aye; and opposed, No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate want to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 79 delegates voting Aye, 16 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 79 having voted Aye, 16 voted No, that section is dead. Mr. Kelleher, you have an amendment to the Labor Article. Do you want it read? It concerns compulsory arbitration. Will the clerk read it. Here it is, John.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend the majority proposal of the Labor Article of the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee, page 8, line 13, by adding thereto the following new section: Section-"

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It'll be Section 6.

CLERK HANSON: "-6. Section 6. The Legislature shall provide for a system of compulsory arbitration." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher has made a motion that we put in, as Section 6, the language: "The Legislature shall provide for a system of compulsory arbitration."

Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, I'll be brief. In the last half of the last century we saw the rise of big capitalism, and the first half of this century we saw the rise of big unionism. And big labor and big management have long ago decided in their arbitration-in their bargaining agreements that there's a big fat cat out there, there's no use putting the shaft to each other—there's a big fat cat out there, and that big fat cat is the public; and this proposal would protect the public. The unions would have the right to strike under this proposal, but the Legislature could set up such machinery--say a Montana Labor Relations Board-as they saw fit, that would allow them to strike for only a certain time and then they would have to submit to the jurisdiction of the agency. And whatever provisions or whatever arbitration decision the agency finally came up with would be enforceable in the courts, and this would mean an end to the long, costly strikes that we have known in the United States and in the State of Montana for such a long, lengthy time. Now, I know I'm known as a liberal; I've walked a picket line; but I think the day has come to take a different tack in the field of labor-management relationships, and that the long-drawn-out strike is simply a luxury that we can no longer afford in the United States, and particularly in the State of Montana. And, Mr. Chairman, I would like to have five seconds for a roll call vote on this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You may have a roll call vote. Is there discussion?

Mr. McKeon.

DELEGATE McKEON: Mr. Chairman, may I speak? I'll be very brief. Two objections: one, I think this is very definitely statutory; secondly, on the merits, I think the compulsory arbitration deprives the union of perhaps its most potent and only right, that being the right to strike. And it's my feeling that it's tantamount to slavery, so I will oppose the motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, I feel the same. This is statutory. I don't want this in the Constitution. If the Legislature in its wisdom wants to pass one, I'm certainly going to let them do it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Kelleher's motion to put in a section—

Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: May I close? This is not statutory. It is merely directive to the Legislature to set up such legislation.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Kelleher's proposal that we add a Section 6, the terms of which would be: "The Legislature shall provide for a system of compulsory arbitration." So many as shall be in favor of that, vote Aye; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate want to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Take the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 70 delegates voting Aye-7 delegates voting Aye; 80 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 80 having voted No and only 7 having voted Aye, the motion is defeated. Mr. Kelleher, you have another here that I'll style Section 7. Do you want it presented?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the clerk read proposed Section 7.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 7. Mr. Chairman. I move to amend the article on Labor of the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee Report, page 9, by adding a new section to read as follows: 'Section 7. No retail or wholesale business, except for those necessary services and amusement places exempted by law, may be open for business from such hour approximating sundown on Saturday until such approximating sunrise on Monday, as shall be provided by law.' Signed: Kelleher."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman. The last one, Section 6, is for the future. Our state and the country's going to come forth-come to it in the future. Section 7, the one we're talking about now, is for now; and I'm real serious about this one. It would guarantee'emancipation of our working people, of those in nonessential industries-like hospitals, police, fire departments, and so on-that they would be guaranteed at least one day a week with their families at home. And many of the clerks at Buttreys and Albertson's and the stores down in Billings have urged me to put in this proposal, and I have more written support for this than I do for the guns and the right to work together, many times over. Even this Convention has-allows us-as hard a taskmaster as you are, Mr. Chairman, you even, thus far anyway, have allowed us to go home on Sunday. The Legislature—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'll make a note of that, Mr. Kelleher. (Laughter)

DELEGATE KELLEHER: The Legislature would decide what the exact hour would be. The Legislature could change it from the summertime to the wintertime. There's no set hour and there's no set business that would be closed or allowed to be open on the weekend. It is very common for this-this is very common in Europe-in Switzerland, in Germany, in France, in Holland. They just shut her down about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon so people can have a weekend by themselves. You'll note that it is not a blue law-and I repeat, it is not a blue law-because, in addition to necessary services such as gasoline stations, hospitals, police departments, fire departments, and so on, and apothecaries-selected apothecaries—drug stores in an area that are allowed to stay open, places of amusement are allowed to stay open, such as ski lifts, movie theaters, and that sort of thing; and if you'd passed my other resolution--my other proposal, something else might have been allowed to be-stay open, but you-McNeil killed that. (Laughter) McNeil's against fun. (Laughter) In my own town of Billings there is a very large department store. The manager, around Christmastime, is required to keep it open on Sunday. He doesn't want it open on Sunday; his employees do not want it open on Sunday; but some vice-president back in Chicago, who's probably out playing golf on Sunday, has decided that his store in Billings, Montana, must be left open on Sunday. And the employees are told that if you want to work in this establishment, you must work on Sunday. And this, I say, is involuntary servitude. There is a large store in Bozeman where the management has his orders to tell his department heads that you will work on Sunday, or else. Now, this does not require you to go to listen to George Harper on Sunday, though I highly recommend that. It merely says that on Sunday you must not work in a retail or wholesale business as-that business as determined by the Legislature. This matter is not legislative, because it is the right of people to have at least this one day with their family. And it is a directive to the Legislature, and the Legislature is given very wide latitude as to what types of establishments will be closed on the weekend and which type of establishments will be allowed to stay open, and also the time that they are allowed to stay open. It would not affect motels and that sort-or hotels, or any type of necessary service or place of amusement. And I would like to have five seconds for a roll call. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We'll have a roll call. Is there anybody on the other side of this?

Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman], I think that we should have something in on the other side of this, because this is a blue law. And although I am not a Seventh Day Adventist, this is a great infringement on the rights of-the religious thinking of people who do worship on a different day than Sunday. And I do suggest that it's probably a violation of Section 3 of the Bill of Rights, which provides all people are born free and have certain inalienable rights, which include the right of pursuing life's basic necessities. So I think this should be defeated. It's not the type of thing-it's an infringement on the rights of any Seventh Day Adventist who take their day off on Saturday, and if they wish to work on Sunday, they have that right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Kelleher's motion that we have a Section 7.

Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman, I would like to amend this to put in Friday and including-Friday evening sundown till Monday morning.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Send it to the Chair in writing, Mrs. Bates. Is there any other discussion? Now, you'll have to hurry. Very well, you can close, Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: I just wanted to say that I did consider the possibility that the Jewish Sabbath actually starts on Friday evening, and I would like to have that long weekend, but it would be asking too much. And I know the Seventh Day Adventists worship on Saturday, Sabbath, but if the Legislature wants to set it earlier in the afternoon, they could still have their time off for evening services. But I want to repeat, this is not-is not a religious blue law. It is to guarantee the workingman and the workingwoman one day a week that they can spend with their families.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the Chair will now have to put Mrs. Bates' amendment, which is to amend it to read from Friday sundown until Sunday-"the hours approximately sundown on Friday", on line 4, "to sunrise on Monday".

Mrs. Bates, you want to discuss that?

DELEGATE BATES: Yes, I would like to discuss it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay.

DELEGATE BATES: This is what they do in Australia, and I've heard several people say maybe we should go to Australia. And they enjoy a long weekend there, and if we really want to do something about a weekend, let's make a long one. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you want a roll call on that, Mrs. Bates?

DELEGATE BATES: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is whether Mrs. Bates' motion, which is to make 7—Section 7 read: "No retail or wholesale business, except for those necessary services and amusement places exempt by law, may be open for business from such hours approximating sundown on Friday until such approximating sunrise on Monday, as shall be provided by law." So many as are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair is in doubt. Use the voting machines. So many as are in favor, vote Aye; so many as are opposed, vote No.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, I asked earlier for a roll call.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We're not on your motion, Mr. Kelleher. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate want to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 7 having opted for Australia and 72 for America, the thing is defeated. (Laughter) Now we're back on Mr. Kelleher's motion.

Do you want to close, Mr. Kelleher?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: l-no, I didn't, Paul-I, like you, and I think most the lawyers here, probably work 6, 7, 8 days a week. You lay people may not believe that, but we do. In Spain they sleep from 1 to 3 hours-l to 3 in the afternoon-and I think that if we had something like this, men of our age might live a little bit longer and might not have so many ulcers and might not have our coronaries so quickly. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor, vote Aye on the voting machines; and all opposed, vote No.

For what purpose do you rise, Mrs. Bates?

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to explain my vote.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Go ahead.

DELEGATE BATES: The kids have to be fed and the cows need to be milked. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Have all the delegates voted?

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 20 delegates voting Aye, 68 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 68 having voted No and 20 Aye, the motion is defeated. Are there other amendments to the Labor Article? (No response) Very well. Members of the body, the Chair would like to point out that my obvious displeasure at the length it takes to do this is caused by the fact that I think we are here on very serious business and we are dealing with an article which has some very important material in it and I'm perfectly willing it be debated. But I think you should realize that it costs us and the taxpayers something like eight or nine thousand dollars a day to sit here, and we are about to lose our schedule of finishing next week. The Chair feels this is very serious. Now, if you have serious amendments to make and serious arguments to make, I'm the first one that wants to give you that chance. But I don't think that a few of us should trifle with the rest of us with things which really haven't a chance, and I think we should exercise some discretion as to what we attempt to put into this Constitution as we get into these final days. And I don't think that we have been exercising that discretion, and I don't think we're going to finish this job unless you force me to be terribly harsh on you and put on-put in time limits and make you work hours which will make some of us ill. And I don't think that's fair, so I'm asking you to-you know, we have committees, the committees have thought, the committees have got their proposals. These are not minority proposals; these are delegate proposals, of which there are thousands of them if we want to start going through them. And I really think that those of you who have done these things ought to think carefully about it before you do it again, because you're really trifling with the patience of, obviously, 85 delegates who consistently vote against this sort of thing. Now, the Chair will entertain a motion to recess for 10 minutes, and the recess will be only 10 minutes.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I so move.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the motion is to recess for 10 minutes. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

(Committee in recess from 4:30 p.m. to 4:50 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The committee will be in order. The Convention will be in order. Members of the committee, we're on the minority report, on page 16. Will the clerk please read the title and the first section of page 16.

CLERK HANSON: "Minority Report. Be it proposed by the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee that there be a new article on regulation of public utilities to read as follows: Article. Regulation of Public Utilities. Section 1, Public Utilities Commissioner. A Public Utilities Commissioner shall be appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Legislature (Senate) after public hearings, for a term of 4 years, which shall coincide with the Governor's term of office. A vacancy shall be filled for the remainder of the unexpired term in the same manner. The Governor may at any time remove the Commissioner for any cause deemed by him sufficient, after such public hearings as may be provided by law." Mr. Chairman, Section 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1 of the minority proposal on regulation of public utilities of the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, members of the Committee. I should perhaps open this discussion by observing that Mr. McCarvel and I do not hate the Montana Power Company, the Montana-Dakota Utilities Company, the Pacific Power and Light Company, nor Mountain Bell. As for the railroads, I am positively sympathetic to their problems. Not only do I not hate the Montana Power Company, I must even admit to a certain grudging admiration of its efficiency. After all, I am an economist, and economists are notorious for their reverence for efficiency. The efficiency to which I refer, though, is not primarily economic efficiency. In truth, I am not at all sure how efficient Montana Power is as an economic institution. One of the unfortunate aspects of regulated industries is that we never have any sure means of determining whether they are economically efficient. I am sure, however, that the company is an efficient political institution. Historically, the company usually has had its way, even though there are some signs its grip may be loosening. They will, of course, fight the new Constitution, and whether we adopt the proposals of Mr. McCarvel and myself will not influence that issue in the least. In fact, by adopting those proposals, we could go a long way toward neutralizing the company's opposition. The electorate would then expect it, recognize it as self-serving, and discount it appropriately. May we also observe that we do not think our proposal is in any respect a panacea. Quite the contrary. They represent merely a first step in a process of reform. However, in addition to the reforms included in the proposals, their adoption by the Convention would force the Legislature to reopen the whole subject of regulatory law and write a new law. Moreover, these reforms, together with the legislative reforms that would necessarily follow, should have a salutary effect on the Supreme Court's approach to regulatory law. Now, let me take a couple of minutes to state the economic philosophy underlying these proposals. Mr. McCarvel and I believe in a free market, competitive, private enterprise system. We believe in such a system because, to the extent that it is really free and competitive, it is the best economic system for the consumer. It is productive and technically efficient because it contains incentives to keep output high and costs low. It is fair to the consumer because it contains a built-in control system-namely, competition-that keeps prices and profits down and assures that the consumer gets what he wants when he wants it. On the other hand, we dislike socialism, because any kind of socialism fails in some degree to provide either the incentives or the controls to insure that the system serves the consumer. The worst kind of socialism is private socialism, otherwise known as private enterprise monopoly. The brand of socialism we most often think of is government enterprise monopoly, which is bad enough but at least has the virtue of being responsive to some degree to democratic political institutions. Privateenterprise monopoly -private socialism-is intolerable unless government intervenes effectively to protect the consumer. We would be best served if we could avoid socialism of any kind, because it lacks the incentive for efficiency and the controls for equity that free, competitive, private enterprise provides. But sometimes-usually because of the technological requirements of some industries-free, competitive, private enterprise is impossible and we are stuck, like it or not, with some form of socialism. We can take our choice between private socialism and governmental socialism, but either way we have to find means of supplying the missing ingredients-incentives for efficiency and controls for fairness. Traditionally, we have elected in Montana to accept private socialism in the industries generally known as public utilities, and we try to supply the missing ingredients through a process called regulation. The evidence that we have not been successful is a matter of common knowledge. The proposal you have before you is an attempt to begin putting some effective control on Montana's socialist enterprises. Mr. Chairman, with that by way of introduction and with your indulgence, I would like to go over the entire proposal, beginning on page 18, briefly, before the committee considers each section separately, in order to give you an overview of the interrelation of the proposed sections.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE HELIKER: The first section provides for the abolition of the existing elected Public Service Commission and the substitution therefor of a single Utility Commissioner to be appointed by the Governor for a definite term. The second section provides for the powers of the Commissioner, and its main point is that it eliminates the so-called fair value rule under which regulation has for-since about 1913 taken place in the State of Montana. The third section provides for a mandate to the Legislature to supply an adequate staff to the Commissioner and provides for the impartiality of that staff. The fourth section sets forth clearly the duty of the Commissioner to represent the customers of public utilities and the public. The fifth section requires that regulatory power be concentrated in the office of the Commissioner. Now, Mr. Chairman, I will revert to Section 1, which is under consideration.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Section 1 replaces the existing statutory three-man, elected Railroad and Public Service Commission, which goes back to 1907 and 1913, with a single appointed Commissioner. The proposed reform is modeled on the system used since 1932 in the State of Oregon with generally recognized success from the standpoint of both the regulated companies and the public. And I remind you of Mr. O'Scanlin, the current Public Utility Commissioner of Oregon's, appearance before this Convention, and I have had placed on your desks within the last day or so a copy of his speech for-to refresh your recollection. It is also influenced-that is, this recommendation of a single Commissioner-by the findings and recommendations of the President's Advisory Council on Executive Organization, otherwise known as the Ash Council, a copy of the pertinent chapter of which I have also had placed on our desks. It is entitled "A New Regulatory Framework Report on Selected Independent Regulatory Agencies". This was a commission appointed by President Nixon, and it reported-the report was released on February 11, 1971. The members of that council were Roy L. Ash, President of Litton Industries; George P. Baker, former Dean of Harvard University, who did not participate; John B. Connally, the present Secretary of the Treasury; Frederick R. Kappel, former Chairman of the Board of Directors of AT&T, who dissented; Richard M. Paget, President of Cresap, McCormick and Paget, Incorporated, a management consulting firm; and Walter N. Thayer, President of Whitney Communication Corporation. Now, this council studied federal regulatory agencies—seven of them-the Civil Aeronautics Board, the Federal Communications Commission, the Federal Maritime Commission, the Federal Power Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the Securities and Exchange Commission. The council recommended a number of things, butpertinentto the present discussion, it recommended restructuring and combining the seven agencies into five, four of which would be headed by a single commissioner. This single commissioner would be appointed by the President to serve at the pleasure of the President, which is, of course, different from the proposal before you, which provides for a definite term; provides for confirmation by the Senate. The recommendation of the council was based on the finding that single administrators would enable the agencies to attract and retain highly qualified personnel and increase accountability to both the President and the Congress and enhance the efficiency of administration. In most states, as in Montana, the multimember regulatory commissions, whether appointed or elected, have proved ineffective at best. This is generally recognized by students of the problem. I may say, parenthetically, that up until the time that I received my Ph.D. degree in Economics at the University of Michigan, one of my fields was the public control of industries. Since that time, since I have come to Montana, I've taught a course in public utilities only one quarter, in 1955; and since 1955 I have been inactive in the field. I do not hold myself forth as an expert in the details of regulatory law or economics, but one does not need, as I have previously stated, to be an expert in this field to recognize the need for reform in Montana. The attempt to insulate regulation from politics has resulted in freeing the regulators from accountability to the public whose interest they are charged with protecting, but it has not insulated them from overwhelming pressures of the powerful corporations whose rates and service they supposedly supervise. In fact, it is axiomatic among professional students of utility regulation that the regulators have long since become the regulated. Now, this is not peculiar to Montana, This is generally the story across the country with these state regulatory commissions, and the more they are insulated from politics in the sense in which Montana is insulated, the worse a job they tend to do. The minority of this committee is convinced, after hearing testimony from highly placed officials and counsel of almost all of the important regulated monopolies in Montana, and many, I might say, of the unimportant ones, that their customers would be as well off as they are now if regulation were to be abolished altogether. We are persuaded that the existing regulatory process is but an elaborate sham battle, a sort of Roman bread-and-circus game in which the monopolies get the bread and the consumer pays for the circus. The upshot of the whole sorry spectacle is that the corporations secure the imprimatur of the state for rates no higher than they would set entirely on their own initiative. In dreary near-unanimity, witnesses for the monopolies agreed that in the procedures, regulations, structure, method of selection, and the law under which the Montana commission came into existence way back in 1913 and operates, all is for the best in the best of possible worlds. They admit one exception to the rule. They agree it would be better if the taxpayers would ante up more money for a larger commission staff so that their rate applications could be approved with less delay. Incidentally, I have before me the report of the Montana Legislative Council's-the subcommittee which looked into this matter and reported in December 1970, and I find their experience coincided with ours. On page 8, they say: "All of the public utilities in the state were invited to attend a subcommittee meeting to provide the subcommittee with information which might be helpful in its study. The meeting was well attended. Many statements were offered and many questions were propounded. In general, the utility people were satisfied with the services of the commission and staff and did not feel that any legislation was required. The only adverse comments made were: one, failure of the commission to allow the increases requested-that's a strange one; two, delay in rendering a decision after a hearing; and three, that the commission had an excellent and qualified staff, but there is need for additional commission personnel to handle the workload." We heard the same story, except I don't recall that we heard any criticism of the commission for failure to approve their rate increases. The minority is convinced that the Montana ratepayer will never get fair treatment of the present multimember elected Commission, because it is literally impossible for the election process to attract and select more than an occasional qualified, competent and dedicated Commissioner. The electorate simply does not have the opportunity to acquaint itself with the qualifications, of the Commission candidate running as one among a crowd of candidates for various and sundry state, city and county offices. The result is that not only does the average voter know little or nothing of the Commissioners' qualifications-he frequently votes on the basis of name association, as you well know-but also not 1 in 10,000 even know the Commissioners' names. The minority believes now is the time to put an end to this disgraceful charade. At the same time, the minority was persuaded by the testimony, and perhaps by other recent events, that it would be unwise not to give the Commissioner a substantial measure of independence of the Governor. In this respect, our proposal is also modeled on the Oregon experience, but we have added the requirement of legislative confirmation, We believe there is a clear movement toward greater accountability of regulatory agencies—particularly as shown by the Ash Commission's—Ash Council's report-accountability to the people through the chief executive and toward focusing attention and responsibility on one man. We believe Montana should be a leader in this movement. I may say, those of you who supported the principle in this Convention of a shorter ballot and of greater accountability through the chief executive, that this is an opportunity to further that principle and this is an area in which that principle needs to be furthered.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, having been on the committee on the majority side of this, I move that when this committee arise and report, they delete this section. I forget the number of it, but it's the section we have before us.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 1 of the article on Regulation?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Yes. That's right. Now, Mr. Chairman—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a minute, Mr. Mahoney. Mr. Mahoney shall have a motion to delete Section 1 of the article on Regulation of Public Utilities. Very well.

Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, your committee heard a lot of testimony, and I think every time we were told that this should be legislative. The present Constitution-the present Railroad Commission are not in the Constitution. These are straightly by a legislative article, and the Legislature, if it wishes, could change it at any time it wishes. It could put in a one-man Commissioner, a five-man commission; it could be districts or any number of things. Now, the Legislative Council is studying this. We had the Chairman of the committee who is studying it, Senator Bollinger from down in Valley County at Glasgow—came in and asked the organization-the committee-to not put this in the Constitution, that they thought they could come up with a very good idea at the next session of the Legislature. And I have the absolute confidence of Mr. Bollinger. He has never at any time-he has never been, I'm sure, on any relation to the Montana Power Company. He's a groceryman down there, and he's been very tough, so I think he's a very honorable man. Now, the-if we had this in the Constitution, this one-man Commission-now, this is the question of Oregon's, We met Mr. O'Scanlin. He's a mightly personable young man. He had been in, I believe, about 9 months if-1 think it's been a very short time. He was in the Attorney General's office, and immediately then he went to became the expert on rates. Now, I know he has staff, and he has lots of staff and Montana could have, but the funny part-the biggest operation that he has is operation of motor vehicles-he told us this—because they have a weight-distance tax out there, and it takes a lot to supervise that in the State of Oregon. Now, Mr.-the Chairman of this committee has stated that he wants it picked by appointment of the Governor. He thinks this will make the Governor more responsive-has all the problems. If everybody's going to have the Governor responsive, he's going to be in an awful thing, because he's got 20 big appointments to make on boards, and not all of them-there's most of them will be appointed. He has a lot of other appointments, and I don't think we can hold him responsible on this one appointment. I know he's got it, and I want to say this: first, it was not going to be confirmed by the Senate for a definite term, and I think he did a nice job of putting that in for a definite term. But I am quite a man to think that-let the electorate make their own mistakes. I know that a lot of you don't like the Commission. They happen to be all very good friends of mine-Mr. Steel, Mr. Boedecker, and Mr. Langley-and I want you to know I could name them. This, to me, are men-if-they got the most votes, and they were put on. Now, if we had-we've done this-maybe if you go out here, we would-1 think the people can select their own Railroad Commissioners, and I'm sorry to use that word "railroad", because it's a very small-1 certainly agree that the railroads are in the tough shape, but there's very little regulation of them, because they're regulated by other—the Interstate Commerce Commission. So I'm in hopes that Mr.-the Chairman-the minority report will not prevail. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Mr. Chairman, I rise in resistance of deleting this article from the Constitution. I think perhaps this is one way that the consumer can protect itself against some of the regulation that is being done by some of our public utilities. When Senator Mansfield spoke before our committee, he told that our own Montana Power last year took in more than a million and a half dollars more than they did in 1970, but paid less in taxes, maintaining a national record of two-22 and 6 cents net profit for every revenue dollar. Now, I think something has to be done to regulate that kind of profit, and I think a one-man-as Mr. O'Scanlin says in his statement before the committee, perhaps I have chosen the only practical approach to a single Commissioner to quickly spot and work directly with selected staff members, including legal counsel that I can trust, and can grasp the regulatory direction I am pursuing and that I can help-and that can help me draw the kind of staff support I need. So I think this has merit, and I think that it is time that we, the people of Montana, take care of the consumers of Montana. And I don't think they have been taken care of by the Legislature.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Reichert.

DELEGATE REICHERT: Mr. Chairman, will Mr. Mahoney yield to a question, please?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I'll try.

DELEGATE REICHERT: Well, first, Charley, I want to say you've ruined the poll I was conducting among the delegates. I was asking them to name the three Commissioners, and although some of them could name two, most of them on the third—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I don't think that's material, Arlyne.

DELEGATE REICHERT: All right. Well, my question is this: could you tell me if it is true that the Commissioner who is up for election is the one who usually votes on the side of the public?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: No, I don't think that's true. I don't think it's true at all. I think that these people vote their convictions. Now, this is-1 honestly do.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Mr. President [Chairman]. I do not wish to talk on the issue, because I think Mr. Heliker has explained it very well. I merely say that I oppose the motion to delete it and support Mr. Heliker.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman, I support the motion to delete, not simply on the grounds that this is legislative. Trying to legislate in this Constitution is not new to me, because I attempted to do that with the water section in our Natural Resources, and the learned wisdom of this body threw it out. The motives behind this-the proper regulation of rate utilities-are of the highest, and I am sure that our next Legislature will take a close look at this. But I do oppose this because, in my opinion, this is badlegislation. The first section replaces what is now a statutory three-man elected Commission-and I emphasize the word "elected"-and replaces it with a single appointee. Delegate Heliker referred to the efficient political institution of the utilities he is seeking to regulate. If they are sufficiently efficient to influence the election of three elected officials, I submit that they would be equally or more efficient in being able to influence a single appointee as well as the appointor. The comments that I will make concerning the Section 2, 3, 4, 5, which are not before this body at this time but are intimately interwoven with 1, relate directly to testimony which both our General Government and Local Government Committees have heard me give before, and that relates to our separation of powers. This bad legislation destroys the fundamental concept of our American democracy, and that is, having separate branches of government-Executive, Legislative and Judicial-all accountable to the people. This combines constitutionally all three of those powers into a single appointed official, accountable to no one except the person who appoints him. This is fundamentally wrong. Not only does Section 2 say the Legislature may confer Legislative, Executive and Judicial powers upon this single appointee, it goes much further and specifically says one of these powers shall be the determination of rates and tariffs. I submit this is presently accomplished by our Legislature. This is done through the Public Service Commission, which is a creature of the Legislature. They can abolish him, expand it, give them whatever powers they want, but it right now is in the hands of our Legislature. This would take that away and give it to one appointed man. Further on, in Section 2: "such rates and tariffs shall be just and reasonable". The Commissioner shall determine the weight and credibility of any evidence. We're giving the one appointed man the full powers of our courts to sit there as judge and jury in one appointee. Section 4: "this single appointee shall make use of the powers of his office to protect the customers". This is the enforcement-here comes the Executive power. And all three ofthese powers now merged into one man who's appointed. Delegate McCarvel referred to the consumer and how important it is that we have someone represent him. Under our present system, the consumer can vote the scoundrel out of office who ignores the appeals of the consumer. We can vote him out of office. There's no way you could get rid of this appointed Commissioner. Finally, this Section 5, upon ratification of this proposal-if this were in our Constitution and ratified by the people, as of that moment we would have taken away from the Legislature--we would have taken away from the people except by constitutional amendment any right, any power to regulate rates. Look at that section. "No power to regulate any public utility in respect of rates"-skipping down-"shall be conferred on any other official or agency". Forever locked into this Constitution, one man. We've taken away from the Legislature even the right to abolish the Public Service Commission or set rates or do anything else, upon ratification of this provision. One man would forever, until amended in this Constitution, have the exclusive power to set rates. In conclusion, I will simply repeat that I do not oppose this on the grounds that it's legislative, but that it is bad legislation and violative of the very principles of our separation of powers. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I think Charley Mahoney knows just as well as I do that this particular provision or anything roughly similar to it will never-1 repeat, never-get past the Legislature in the State of Montana. I'm going to speak only once on this thing. I think it is a good idea because it's responsive-it will be responsive to the people in that, if that man's wrong, he's going right down the drain and so is the Governor that appointed him. And finally, certainly things can't be any worse than they are now and we need to do something new. I support Mr. Heliker's minority report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Cross.

DELEGATE CROSS: Mr. Chairman. I was happy to see this proposal in the report of this committee, because it was one thing that was brought up during our campaign. I didn't realize it was going to be in here, but I'm glad that it is. There were two committees which were greatly spoken about by the voters of our district. This was one of the committees. The people are completely disaffected by their actions, and they're completely dissatisfied. I recall at least two meetings where this was discussed at great length, and if I remember correctly, all four of the delegates from District 3 were there at the time. I hope that it will be discussed quite fully here on the floor, and it is my own opinion that I would support Mr. Heliker.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Mr. President [Chairman]. As a member of this committee, I rise in support of Mr. Mahoney's motion to delete. I'll make my remarks brief. I think Delegate McNeil has covered them very admirably, along with Mr. Mahoney. I'd simply like to point out one or two additional items. The first is, only one state in the Union has this system in operation and no state in the Union has it in their Constitution. This is in an Oregon statute; it's not in their Constitution. Secondly, only one other state has tried this. That was Rhode Island in 1967. Rhode Island abandoned it after 3 years, for what reason we do not know, but went back to a three-man Commission. We can only say for Rhode Island that it was fortunate for Rhode Island that it was in their statutes and not in their Constitution, so when they found it didn't work for them, they could abandon it without great difficulty. We had many people come to testify before our committee. I don't recall a single person that was in favor of this proposal. If any of the members of our committee think otherwise, they, of course, will correct me. We had one acknowledged expert in the field of utilities appear before our committee, and that's Senator Lee Metcalf. Everyone knows that he's long been active in this field, and he appeared before our committee and stated flatly unequivocally that this was a statutory matter and not a constitutional matter. Finally, we have the testimony of Mr. O'Scanlin himself, and he made one or two very revealing comments-one which surprised me; I wonder if the rest of the committee caught it. He said, "Of course, I could only last 5 or 6 years in this job." And immediately our ears pricked up, andwesaid, "Why?" Hesays, "Nobody could stand it any longer." Now, here we have a situation-a young man in the prime of his life, appointed to a job, and he could only hack it for 5 or 6 years. What happens then? He retires from the job, having been trained at state expense to be an extremely capable utility expert, and where does he go? He goes out into private industry and represents private industry in their rate applications before the State of Oregon. So, what Oregon actually has is a training ground for rate experts who will appear before them and against them. He stated also-this was not testimony, it was just conversation-I believe that there'd been five or six-pardon me, I think he stated that the longest term that any of these Commissioners lasted in Oregon was 5 or 6 years. Now, whether it was political or whether it was what he stated as being exhaustion, I'll leave it up to you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman]. I, too, was concerned about this, as I know everyone is here, and as the approach to try to solve these problems. But the leader in this field has long been Senator Metcalf. When everyone else-when a lot of people here weren't even born, he was carrying the fight on the utilities. And when he stood up in front of this committee as an invitee and said this doesn't belong in the statute, I was inclined to believe him. And here again we have the big dispute that we've gone back and forth with now for 46 days. The elected officials are responsible to the people on Tuesdays. Now we are on Wednesdays; now we're going to have one appointed person that's going to solve all that problem. On Mondays-or on-maybe we'd better make it Saturdays-we have the good legislative body that we're going to give the unlimited taxing power to, state welfare program, no ceilings, no limits. Now here today we have the bad Legislature that we can't trust to solve these problems—the people that represent the people. Then someone says they are the people, and the next day they vote against the Legislature having control to do anything. It's the highest degree of inconsistency to amend a statute by constitutional provision. The situation is bad, but you can't remedy a bad situation by writing in the Constitution. The people are going to have to remedy it from the grassroots up. Therefore, I support the motion to delete this and the rest of the section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to Mr. Mahoney's motion to delete. I'm particularly limiting my discussion to Section 1, which his motion is to. There are some of the remaining paragraphs here that I have some disagreement. I have spoken before this body until I'm sure they're sick of hearing me talk about elected officials, and I'm now going to say that we should not have elected officials. In my-I've been born and raised in Montana, and during my majority the problem of the Montana rates-the Montana Power rates, Montana-Dakota rates, and the other rates-But many, many times there's a good deal of testimony as to how high these are, and I submit that they're-the testimony is they're among the-as high as there are in the nation. Now, the argument has been made that elected officials will take care of this, and I don't know how many elections there's been since I've been voting-I'd say in some 24 years or longer-each 2 years a Railroad Commissioner comes up. We've never gotten a Railroad Commissioner devoted to serve the people in during that time. I think the problem is insoluble. The rate applications don't come up that often. The public is angry at the time of the rate increase; they're indignant, they've got a situation that is impossible. Like everyone else's memory-one of those Commissioners is probably up about 6 years and then another Commissioner 4 years, and another Commissioner will come up in 2 years. And as Mrs. Reichert pointed out, very often that Commissioner is the sole Commissioner who votes against the rate increase, and even if he doesn't, there are so many people mad at him. I can remember one time when a very severe rate increase went through, and something like 10 filed against the incumbent. And if anybody knows anything about politics, they'll know that that man, with a very, very small plurality slipped through-probably got lapped by the rest of his ticket five or six times. The situation is impossible to solve. The Legislature won't solve it. They've had it since what, 1913? Nothing is going to be done unless this body does it, and the fact that it's legislative is immaterial. The fact that the Legislature some day might solve it, when they haven't solved it in the length of time it's been before us, is a good example why, if it's going to be solved, it must be solved by this body. Now, when I came into this body, I took the attitude that we should make certain improvements, maybe 10 percent. If we started making a lot of improvements we'd build up a lot of enemies, and while I think we've got an excellent Constitution that I'm going to support and vote for, I think we've made our enemies as we've gone along. And I think we've got to start doing something for the people, something that we can go out and, when the people say to us, "We're wondering why we should vote for your Constitution", we have a reason. We'll only have not one reason, but many reasons. Like Mr. Heliker, I think we long ago have taken on the Montana Power as an enemy. Whether we pass this, we pass the next one, which I call the PUD, doesn't make any difference. These people are going to vote and going to work and going to try to beat this Constitution, so we're not going to take on one additional enemy by accepting this measure. Now, the question is, are we going to have a better government? Now, the magic in numbers is whether we have three Commissioners, seven Commissioners, one Commissioner-makes little or no difference to me. But what the magic is, can we have a Commissioner who is responsive to the people? Under the elective system, I submit they are not responsive to the people. Mr. Heliker's figures in his speech covers that far better than I can do, but it's obvious we haven't been able to beat any of these Commissioners after they've voted in the wage increase. What is the one office-the one office that is always under the gun, the one office that people look to for responsibility when the state government is failing to function? The answer is obvious. It's the office of Governor. Many times Governors have been defeated, in the past, when they didn't have the power that they'd been given under the-this present Constitution and the amendments just prior, but now the Governor has the power to run this state. If there are mistakes, it's set up so that he will be exposed as an incompetent and can be defeated at the polls. If he's doing a good job, we should go in and retain the man. Now, what does Section 1 do? It says the Governor shall appoint this man, who shall be confirmed by either the--whatever the Legislature -it's one body or the other thing-for a term of 4 years which will coincide with the Governor's term of office. In other words, he doesn't take the last administration man unless he was doing a good job. He comes in, he's going to do a job, he takes a man that he's got confidence in, who will act fairly both for the power company and for the consumer, puts him in there, gives him full responsibility and says, "Let's go". And what happens? If the man doesn't perform either in his fairness to the utility or in his fairness to the consumer, the Governor may at any time remove the Commissioner for any cause deemed by him sufficient. In other words, if he's not performing, the Governor says "out he goes". And what advantage is this? The advantage is this: if the Governor appoints a man who doesn't do a fair job, doesn't do a good job, then he should fire him. If he doesn't fire him, then we-at the end of that Governor's 4 years, then we, the people, know who to look to for the responsibility, And under the elective system, we haven't been able to assess responsibility; we haven't been able to fight the interests. And I submit if we're ever going to be able to fight the interests on equal terms, it's going to be in that one office-of Governor. And I submit that this body is at a turning point. We can adopt something here that we can go back to the voters, and they want to know whether we should adopt this Constitution, we say, "Yes, there's one reason you should adopt it. We'll now have someone setting your rates who will be responsible to you, because if you don't like the job he's doing, if he's not doing the right job, then vote the Governor out." And you can be-better be sure that the Governor is going to be careful who he puts in. And I submit that if we are going to have a document we're going to go back and sell to the people, let's vote for this section; let's put it in here. Let's go back to the people and say, "We have an improved Constitution; support us."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman, I believe in the chancellor system for the University. I believe in one man instead of a State Board of Equalization. I believe in one man for this Commission. I like to be able to point my finger at that one man who's sitting in a fishbowl, and, surprisingly enough, I'm in favor of this minority report. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker, do you want to—

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman, could I ask Mr. Holland a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland?

DELEGATE HOLLAND: It's a pleasure, Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: If two truckers are applying for an MRC permit, do you think it's right that they appear before one man to get that permit?

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mrs. Babcock, I may have misread this-and I don't really know about this. I take this as referring to public utilities, not—

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Well, the Railroad and Public Service Commission also establishes rates for truckers, and they hear hearings in regard to whether they will have a permit to haul gas. And I don't think that that should be very right to have them have to appear before one man.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mrs. Babcock, what I'm pointing out to you, this applies to utilities and not to truckers. The Railroad and Public Commission isn't abolished by this, but theutility function of the Railroad and Public Commission will be put over to this department. The Railroad and Public Commissioners, I presume, unless the Legislature changes it, will handle the trucking problems, and not this man.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Doesn't the Public and Railroad Service Commission handle the trucking now?

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Yes, and they would continue to do so, is my understanding. The only thing this takes is the utilities. This is the Montana Power, the gas rates, the water rates, the public-those are public utilities, you understand. A trucking concern is-hauls on public service and necessity. I see nothing in here-and maybe Mr. Heliker can direct me-but I see nothing in here where this Commissioner will take over anything but utility functions. It won't take over the trucking. Do you understand?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman, may I ask Mr. Mahoney a question? Is that right, Mr. Mahoney?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I might state that the undertanding that I had in the discussion, everything that's under the Railroad and Public Service Commission would be left under it. Now, Oregon, this commission-this one-man commissioner handles all the trucks in Oregon, and he stated that. He has over 200 employees.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker, can you answer that question before you—

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes, I'd like to clear that up. It is the intention that all of the functions of the Public Service Commission and the Railroad Commission would be conferred upon the Commissioner. There is no reason whatsoever why he cannot perform those functions as well as a three-man Commission. It is done in Oregon. It is done by-through a staff, with hearing officers. The Commissioner makes the final decision. He's the man-he's the place where the buck stops.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, I wish to oppose the Mahoney motion. I favor the one-man Commissioner. Normally I am in favor of people electing all policymaking public officers. This is not a normal situation. Ever since the Public Service and Railroad Commission was established, it has been going from bad to worse. I cannot concur with Delegate Mahoney's judgment on the manner in which the Railroad Commissioner whose term is expiring votes on rate cases. Normally, I think he votes for the people, while the other two vote for the utility. Now, this is not to say that the utilities are always wrong, but there are cases or-that I have been following for many years, and I have attended many hearings-1 don't think the public gets a squareshake. I think that Delegate Holland put his finger on a very important spot when he said that the Governor, in appointing a single Commissioner, would place himself in a position where he would have to appoint a very competent and reliable individual, because if the man failed to produce results and provide a fair and effective administration of the office, the Governor would be held responsible. And the Governors normally are seeking reelection or advancement to the United States Senate or some other post in the public, and I don't think that they would very likely keep an incompetent person upon the post. I know that this is probably statutory in essence, but I think that there are times when things that are statutory by their very nat 're become constitutional. We observed that the Auditor, which could have been, and many people thought should be, statutory, all of a sudden became very constitutional in this body during this Convention. I don't think that you're going to get fair, equitable rate--utility rate administration unless you do something like this, and so I am going to vote against the Mahoney surrender and I'm going to vote for the minority report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises on Mr. Mahoney's motion to delete Section 1 under the Regulation of Public Utilities Article.

Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to speak to some of the points that have been raised. Mr. Davis agrees the situation is bad; Mr. Mahoney and McNeil don't speak to that question; but they all think that the next Legislature will act or that something will happen. I have here the transmittal letter from Senator Frank W. Hazelbaker, Chairman of the Montana Legislative Council, in which this report of the subcommittee that I spoke of previously was transmitted to the Forty-second Legislative Assembly, and I'd like to read you one paragraph in that transmittal letter. "The responsibilities of the Railroad and Public Service Committee-Commission are many and varied, making an in-depth examination difficult at best. You will note from the enclosed report that the subcommittee narrowed its field of interest principally to the sensitive area of the regulation of powergeneratingutilities. The fact that it is 'sensitive'-and the word 'sensitive' is put in quotation marks-"and controversial area accounts for the fact that little unanimity of thought existed in the subcommitee, and the Legislative Council felt obliged to submit the subcommittee report to you"-quote-"without recommendation"-end quote. The quote marks are in the original. Now, I submit to you that there is absolutely no evidence whatsoever that the Legislature of Montana is about to act on this problem in any-in the foreseeable future. On the contrary, all of the evidence is in the opposite direction. This question has come before Legislature after Legislature after Legislature. In fact, every session there's been some bill to attack this problem, and they have gone down to defeat with very little consideration. Now, this has been attacked-although I am happy to see that Mr. McNeil is willing to fight it on the grounds of whether it's good or bad-but it's been attacked, naturally, on the grounds that it is legislative and that it shouldn't be in the Constitution and it isn't generally in constitutions. Well, I want to say, first of all, that there is precedents for this in the-in constitutions. It does appear in at least three constitutions that I have found, and in great detail in the constitution of the State of California. It appears in the North Dakota Constitution, where they set up a three-man commission, as you recently read. It appears in the Virginia Constitution. Now this proposal, with the five sections that I am proposing, which can be printed easily, double spaced, on two pages-less than two pages-is no public utility regulation act. Here is the laws of the State of Oregon administered by the Public Service Commission. This is a public utility act. What I am proposing is nothing like that at all. It is simply certain directions to the Legislature and an effort which will force-if adopted, will force the Legislature to open the Montana law and rewrite it for the sake of the people of Montana. Now, I'd like to speak also to the question of the cost of the single Commissioner, his expertise; the fact that he only lasts for a limited term; that he becomes trained by the state and then goes on to work for private industry. When I first began digging into this question before this Convention met, I met with some attorneys who were familiar with the problem, and I said to one, "If we were to adopt a single-Commissioner system, what would we have to pay such a man in order to get a qualified man who would do the job for the people of Montana?" And he said, "Well, I think you would have to pay around 30, 35 thousand dollars a year." Now, we held hearings on this subject at great length, and I and other members of the committee made a point of asking what we would have to pay the Commissioners, the three present Commissioners, in order to get good commissioners, and they said 30, 35 thousand dollars a year. So I was very interested when Mr. O'Scanlin, whom I think impressed all of you favorably, appeared here. And I asked him, "What do they pay you, Mr. O'Scanlin, over in Oregon", because I had said to my lawyer friend before, when I was first digging into this matter, I said, "I don't agree with that. I think that you could probably get some young lawyer-smart young lawyer who would take this over for a few years, between 20 and 25 thousand. Mr. O'Scanlin is paid $23,500. Now, I submit to you that we don't need to pay a hundred and five thousand dollars a year for a three-man Commission. We can hire a more capable single Commissioner for a small fraction of that amount. And if you want to ask--answer the question that has been asked on this floor several times-"Where are we going to get the money to pay for some of these things we've been adopting?"-here's one place you could get it. Now, this bright young man, like Mr. O'Scanlin—and there are lots of them around in the bushes; they're not so hard to find—this bright young man becomes an expert very rapidly if he has an effective staff. That's the key to the problem. You do have to have an effective staff. Everybody testified before our committee said our Commission doesn't have it; they ought to have it. I agree with that. We have five men at the present time in the Public Utility portion of the Montana Public Service Commission, which is a bit ridiculous, and they do not have, incidentally, merit system-merit principle protection. And I wonder how independent they are without that protection. Now, as to the fact that the single Commissioner, like Mr. O'Scanlin in Oregon, will last for only 5 or 6 years, this is certainly true-5 or 6 years, or at the most two Governor's terms, 8 years-and then go into private industry. There is, of course, no guarantee that he's going to be hired by some utility company. But it is a fact, in the federal commissions and in the other commissions, that when you get experts trained by—either in the staff or on the commissions-by the state at low salaries, that they do have a habit of—eventually of going to work for some private firm in the industry. This is just a part of our system. This is the way it works, and we might as well accept it. And if Oregon has a training ground, I would say Montana would be well advised to institute a similar training ground and take advantage of the training that we do. At the present time we do not have a training ground. Our Public Service Commissioners do not go out and get jobs with private-with public utilities; they don't become that well trained. Now, as to the objection that this is bad legislation, I am happy to meet the issue on this ground. If this is badlegislation-thatis, having the Commissioner appointed by the Governor and violating, as Mr. McNeil says, the separation of powers doctrine-then all of the federal commissions are bad legislation also, because they are appointed by the President of the United States; confirmed by the Senate. And the recommendations of the Ash Council--and I remind you that these recommendations are not by wild-eyed radicals, but are by such people as Roy L. Ash, the President of Litton Industries, and by John B. Connally, who has never been accused of being a great liberal-they are certainly violating this principle, also. The fact is that these federal commissions are generally recognized as more effective than the state commissions, and here comes along the Ash Council and says they can be made more effective by appointing single Commissioners. Now, we did have witnesses in favor of the single-Commission form. I forget all of them at the moment, but Clyde Jarvis of the Farmers Union was one, and I have just had a letter from the 20,000.member Graingrowers' Association, endorsing the proposal-this specific section of the proposal, also. Now, as to Senator Metcalf s role in this matter. It is true, as I'm sure all of you know, that Senator Metcalf came before the committee. And although he agreed with me in every respect concerning what the problem is, the nature of the problem, what needs to be done about it, he did not agree that we should write it into the Constitution. That very same day, Senator Metcalf went before the Natural Resources Committee in this Convention in a hearing and advocated writing into the Constitution matter exactly parallel and fully as legislative as what you have before you at the present time. So the senator is not exactly consistent. I don't know the reason for his position; I haven't asked him, and I don't intend to. Now, one final comment that was made was "utilities are not always wrong". This is certainly true. In inflationary times it is inevitable that utility companies like Montana Power Company will, upon occasion, need-have good case for rate increases. But I want to point out to you that the Montana Power Company is very well provided for. It is not in a position of going begging. It is not an applicant for welfare. I have here in my hand a report of the percent return on common equity of 200 public utility companies, gas-class A and B electric utility companies in the United States, which shows the Montana Power Company with a rate of return to-on it's common equity, right at the top of the list. Now, you can argue about the way in which the particular percentage-and I haven't even bothered to mention it-is computed, but you can't argue about the comparability of these figures. The Montana Power is at the top of the list. It is one of the most profitable utility companies in the country, so that, although it has not always been wrong, I'm sure, when it has come before the Commission, it has received treatment which is beyond that that should be accorded it in liberality in the consumers' interest. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman and delegates. After 4, 5, 6 days of hearings on public utilities, as Vicechairman of this committee, I have to support Delegate Mahoney's motion from this standpoint: that I believe this area is too complex for this committee to take under consideration as a whole. And I am not going to say whether we need an appointed Commissioner or a three-man elected one, but I think it's-should be left to the Legislature, to be more flexible. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises—

Mr. Mahoney, do you want to speak again?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I would. I'ts my motion. I can-can I close, Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, if you want to.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: If there's nobody else-1 don't want to cut anybody off.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, go ahead.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, I've listened to all the discussion and I get a bang-elected officials, I feel, are responsible to the people. I think they have a great thing. They go out before them, and I do think they are responsible. Now, I know here, the last election, when a man run for the Public Service Commission and defeated a man who'd been on the Commission for years-in the Democratic primary, and you all remember it-so the people did know who they were voting about. Mr. Smith was defeated, and the new man went in. Now, he was defeated in the general election, I will admit, but the people did speak and they are-they have a right. Now, I just wonder right here, is only the Governor responsible? This is what bothers me. He makes the appointments, then are they-is he going to make the appointment? Only he is responsible. I think that this is a misconception. I wonder what this would be when the Governor gets ready for re-election. Boy, I'm telling you, campaign funds can really be got. This is something that I think the Governor could really use is-is there? Now, we've heard about the next Legislature. The next Legislature is going to be elected from the same districts and in the same manner as this group here was elected. I am sure-1 don't think-I don't know how the Constitution is going to handle it. If it's a unicameral body, whether it will be in the next session of the Legislature or not; or we may have to wait for a year on this. But at the present time, as1 see it, you're going to be elected from these same districts, the same people are going to do the electing that they have elected you. Now, if the—maybe this next Legislature, which has been re-districting-if you want responsive, this is the time to get it. I think the last Legislature has studied-and I want to say this: Senator Gordon Bollinger is making a study, as I've stated before, and he came before our committee, and he said, "We are studying this." Now, on the legislative thing that was mentioned by Mr. Heliker, this report-it's too bad that it was ever written that way by Mr. Hazelbaker. It's too bad, because he cut the limb right out from under a committee that he had appointed. Now, number three-and I'm not going to take much time-the Legislature has never appropriated enough money for staff over here, and I think we've got to blame the Legislature for that. I blame the Commission some, because I don't think maybe they've pushed it hard enough, but I believe that we have got this—they can have the staff if they want it. Now, if we come out here and the Legislature will not appropriate the money for the one-man staff, we haven't gained a thing. Now, I was surprised very much when Mr. Heliker said Senator Metcalf is not consistent. This bothered me. Lee Metcalf has been so consistent in that United States Senate, fighting power companies for years-he's stood out against terrific odds. Senator Metcalf did not quibble when he stated that this, he felt, was not—belong in the Constitution; this was legislative. Now, if he decided to go to another committee—and I don't know what the issue was-1 heard him talk, and I thought he gave a good talk before both committees. Now, Senator Thiessen-this is another man that stood right down there and said, "I agree one"—"I support the stand of Senator Metcalf." Now, he's another Democrat, and he's very much in this power, so you're going out here. Here's three-one United States Senator, one state Senator-says this is not constitutional, and we have Mr.-Senator Bollinger, who is another senator, said this is legislative. And none of these men are-belong in anything in the conservative group. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well—

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -the issue arises on Mr. Mahoney's motion to delete Section 1 of the article on Regulation of Public Utilities. A roll call vote has been called for. All in favor of Mr. Mahoney's motion to delete, vote Aye; all opposed, vote No.

Mrs. Babcock, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE BABCOCK: To explain my vote.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: I'd just like to note-like the record to show that in voting for Mr. Mahoney, I am not supporting Mr. Metcalf. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Toole, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman, to explain my vote--under Rule 20, conflict of interest.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: I pushed the wrong button.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, the record may show Mrs. Bates pushed the wrong button.

CLERK HANSON: She's voting No, then?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, she can't change it. She just has to explain it. It doesn't change the vote.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 58 delegates voting Aye, 37 voting No, 5 not voting.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Sullivan, for what purpose do your rise?

DELEGATE SULLIVAN: Mr. President [Chairman]. I'm sorry, I pushed the wrong button. I'd like to be on record as being on the other one.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Anybody else push the wrong button?

Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, I didn't push the wrong button—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: For what purpose do you arise?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: -but I certainly want to thank the members of this Convention for supporting the majority. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, 58 having voted Aye, 37 having voted No, the Section 1 of the Public-the Regulation of Public Utilities Article is deleted.

Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you want us to read Number 1 of your amend-of your substitute motion?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the Chair read-will the clerk please read Number 1 of Mr. Heliker's substitute motion. Is it passed out, Mr. Heliker?

DELEGATE HELIKER: It's being passed out now.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, pass it out. Go ahead and read it. Pass it out, yes, please.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 1, page 16, by substituting the following: 'Section 1, Regulatory authority. The Legislature shall provide by law for a regulatory authority, which may consist of one or more Commissioners, who shall be appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Legislature (Senate) after public hearings, for terms which shall be provided by law. The Governor may at any time remove a Commissioner for any cause deemed by him sufficient, after such public hearings as may be provided by law.' Signed: Heliker." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: May I see it, Mr. Clerk? Lines 8 through 16 having been deleted, your motion is slightly different-should be slightly different, but in any event the Chair understands it to be your purpose to insert this in place of Section 1 deleted. It is substantially different. The Chair will allow you this change, Mr. Heliker. Do you want to speak to it?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, if a substantial number of delegates voted against the idea of a single Commissioner, I would like to give them the opportunity to vote for a reform of the process of regulation by retaining-by allowing the Legislature to determine how many Commissioners there will be, but by retaining the central idea of the original proposal that they be appointed by the Governor.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker's motion is to-simply to substitute another Section 1, the purpose of which is to say that the Legislature shall provide by law for a regulatory authority, which may consist of one or more Commissioners. In other words, it gives the Legislature the right to have as many Commissioners as they want, instead of one; and a few other changes that you can see in what's been passed out. Is there discussion?

Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I-we're still getting back to the appointive concept of this; and I am just as much opposed to this amendment as I was the last one, because we're going straightly to appointive Commissioners and was no-that's so little different from the other one, I certainly oppose the motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, now, the issue is appointive and the issue is more than one. Does anyone else care to speak to it? Do you want a roll call vote, Mr. Heliker? Do you want to close? Mr. Heliker, do you want a roll call vote, or do you want to close?

DELEGATE HELIKER: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, he wants a roll call vote. Mr. Heliker's motion is to substitute for Section 1 of the regulation of public utilities the material placed before you, which has the effect of having an appointed Commission-or giving the Legislature the right to supply an appointed Commission of more than one member. All in favor of that, vote Aye; and opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 36 voting Aye, 56 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 56 delegates having voted No and 36 delegates having voted Aye, the substitute section is defeated.

Mr. Heliker, what's your pleasure about Section 2?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I move the substitute motion that you have up there, entitled "Powers of a Public Service Commission".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you know which number it is?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I don't have a number on mine. It's Section 1, Powers of Public Service Commission.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, do you wish to move that?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk, will you read this one. What's the number?

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move as substitute language for deleted Section 1 the following language-quote: 'Section 1, Powers of Public Service Commission. The existing Railroad and Public Service Commission, or any successive agency provided by law, shall have such jurisdiction and such Legislative, Executive and Judicial powers as are conferred upon it by the Legislature and this Constitution, which are cognate and germane to the regulation of public utilities as defined by law. In exercise of such powers, one of which shall be of the determination of rates and tariffs of the utilities over which it may be given jurisdiction, the Commission shall not be required in considering evidence presented before it to consider any particular theories or methods for determining such rates and tariffs, and such rates and tariffs shall be just and reasonable. The Commission shall determine the weight and credibility of any evidence that is introduced. The manner and scope of review, if any, of the Commission's actions in a court of record shall be provided by law.' Signed: Heliker." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Heliker has proposed the second substitute section for Section 1, which provides that the existing Railroad and Public Service Commission or any successive agency shall have jurisdiction that the Legislature provides, but it goes on to explain some of the other features of that Public Service Commission.

Mr. Heliker, would you care to explain it?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, this is actually a substitute for Section 2 of the proposal, renumbered Section 1 since Section 1 has been knocked out. There is one typographical error on line 2. The word "successive" should read "successor".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: "Successor"? Very well, the Chair now understands that Mr. Heliker's position is that Section 1 about a Public Utility Commissioner, having been knocked out, Section 2 talks about powers of Commissioners. That would not be appropriate, and you're now suggesting a section on powers of Public Service Commissioners, which would be in place of Section 2 in the book. Is that correct?

DELEGATE HELIKER: That is correct.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Do we all understand that the proposed language that has been handed out to you is in place of Section 2 in the books? And are you withdrawing Section 2 in the book?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 2 in the book is withdrawn, and we'll now consider Section 2—or Section 1 restyled, on powers of Public Service Commission.

Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: If the committee would refer to page 21, the wording of this substitute that you have before you is identical with that contained on page 21 except that it now applies to the existing Public Service Commission rather than to the proposed Commissioner or regulatory authority. Now, this is really quite a separate issue, and this section standingaloneis extremely important to the reform of regulatory law in Montana and the effectiveness of the present Public Service Commission. In my opinion, as I have expressed it adequately, I think, the present Public Service Commission, until it is reformed, will not be anything to be proud of. But the fact is-and we had testimony in great detail before the committee-that the present Public Service Commission or any regulatory authority established by the Legislature without change in the existing statute is bound by a law established--written by the Supreme Court of Montana which is obsolete, outmoded, and prevents the Commission from effective regulation. I can go over this with you; it's not very long. The history of regulatory law is too lengthy and complex to be set forth adequately in any space less than a large book, and I'm not kidding about that. There are many large books written on this subject, and I've read several of them. We can only say here that the Montana utility regulation has muddled along under the burden of law labeled obsolete by the United States Supreme Court more than a generation ago. The leading Montana case, which is the present ruling case-Tobacco River Company versus Public Service Commission, decided in 1940—was an accurate statement of the law as enunciated by the United States Supreme Court up until that time. But only 2 years later, that court handed down the first of a series of decisions generally known as the natural gas cases-in Natural Gas Pipeline versus Federal Power Commission, 1942—which revolutionized regulatory law as interpreted by that court. The court went further, and further emphasized the change in 1944 in FPC versus Hope Natural Gas, which is now generally regarded as the leading case in federal law. Many other state Supreme Courts followed the lead of the federal court-as did, for example, The Utah Supreme Court in Utah Power and Light versus Public Service Commission, 1944—and freed their state regulatory bodies from the shackles of the arcane fair value rule. The Montana Supreme Court, however, chose, in State versus Public Service Commission in 1957, to keep the Montana Commission in the dark ages of regulatory law; and testimony before this committee was virtually unanimous that the Montana Commission is, in fact, bound to the fair value rule until the law is changed by the Supreme Court, by the Legislature, or by this Convention. It is the minority's belief that the first two are not likely to act. It is the minority's belief that this Convention should act for the people by freeing the Public Service Commission from the fair value rule. The specific language of the proposed section is designed to free the Public Service Commission to exercise its best judgment, to weigh the evidence subject to no court-imposed theories, save only that the result be just and reasonable; which is, incidentally, the language in the present act and the standard imposed by the United States Supreme Court, to which he would be held by that court-which, I should say, it would be held by that court-in any case. Otherwise, the section preserves the Legislature's full discretionary power to define the Commission's powers and jurisdiction and define the meaning of "public utility". The last two sentences of the section are designed to prevent the court from substituting their judgment for the Commissioners', so long as they find the result of its deliberations just and reasonable and arrived in it-at in a manner not contrary to procedural due process of law, and to empower the Legislature to restrict Judicial review of the commission's actions if it so chooses. Those last two sentences, by the way, are taken from the language proposed by the California Constitutional Revision Commission. Now, I think I should take a few moments to explain the so-called fair value rule and what it does to utility regulation in Montana. This dates back to 1898, when the United States Supreme Court, in the case of Smythe versus Ames, listed about 15 different things which it said regulatory commissions must consider in determining a rate base. Now, a rate base is simply the valuation placed upon the property used by the utility for the public's benefit, and the theory is that in conjunction with such a rate base and a so-called fair rate of return, one then arrives at an amount in dollars which would be called a fair return-that is, the amount which the utility is allowed to collect from theratepayers to pay the cost of capital to the firm-that is, to pay the-a reasonable return on its investment. Smythe versus Ames included all sorts of nonsensical things, including the market value of the stock which, of course, is determined by the rates allowed through the utility and, thus, circular reasoning. They also threw in some things, including a strange animal called reproduction cost. Now, it would take a much longer lecture than I have time to deliver to tell you about all the intricacies of reproduction cost, but it is a totally unworkable, a totally fictional value which the courts-the federal court-the United States Supreme Court, up until 1942, imposed upon the state and the federal commissions. But in 1942 and 1944 in the natural gas cases, the federal court finally decided that this formula was unworkable and said that it would no longer inquire as to the method of valuation used by the Commission, provided that the result was just and reasonable. And that is now the standard applied by the United States Supreme Court. The Montana Supreme Court, on the other hand, decided-contrary to the decisions of other states' Supreme Courts which followed the Hope natural gas case, decided that the old Smythe versus Ames rule, as modified over the years in many, many cases and as set forth in Montana in the Tobacco River case, must still be applied by the Montana Public Service Commission. Now, the statute does not specify any such formula; this was written into the law by the Supreme Court. There have been people who have said that the Public Service Commission has the power, if it only would assert it, to free itself from the fair value rule; and we inquired carefully in our hearings as to the truth ofthattheory and, I think, established beyond a shadow of a doubt that the Public Service Commission does not have the power to free itself from the fair value rule—that if it failed to consider reproduction costs, that the Montana Supreme Court would strike down its order. It has also been suggested that the Commission in Montana could achievethe same results by simply varying the rate ofreturn. You multiply the rate base or valuation found by this strange mixture called fair value by a rate of return, and so your final result is a compound of the two things: the value and the rate of return. And it is said all the Commission has to do is simply to reduce the rate of return and you'll arrive at the same result. So we asked in a—we asked-1 asked practically every witness that came before the committee who was qualified to answer the question if this would work. We asked Mr. Langley and Mr. Johnson of the Commission staff if this was possible, and they answered, no, it was not possible; if we reduced the rate of return, the Montana Supreme Court would regard it as circumvention of the rule, and they simply wouldn't get away with it. And I think there is no question that that is true, so that we are at the present time stuck with this system whereby we throw into a pot a whole series of things. And let me list them for you: reproduction cost-that's reproduction cost new, reproduction cost new depreciated, original cost new, original cost depreciated, assessed value, and cost of capital. Now, what assessed value, which is evaluation for tax purposes, has to do with it, no one has ever explained. And every witness who was questioned on this subject said it doesn'thave anything to do with it, but it nevertheless is required by the Montana Supreme Court to be considered by the Commission. All of these things are thrown into a pot, stirred up, and the staff of the Commission comes up with some kind of an answer called a fair value of the corporation's investment. Now, the way-the result of this is that the Commissioners can decide among themselves what rate of increase they want to give to the applicant utility company and they can tell the staff, "That's what we want to give them." And the staff then can, with this mixed-up formula, come up with a justification for any answer that the Commission wants whatsoever, which means that regulation is the opposite of scientific. It has nothing to do with real numbers; it has to do simply with figures which the Commission pulls out of its hat. Now, the way in which most of the Commissions in the country and the federal commissions go about this is to use a straightforward, honest, easily ascertained value, which is the original cost to the corporation, depreciated according to some accepted formula, to arrive at an accounting value which can be attained very easily from the books of the corporation. And you don't need a lot of engineers employing phony formulas to arrive at something called reproduction cost new, which, as I say, no matter how carefully done and how much money they spend on it-and sometimes they spend as much as $3 million on it-is strictly fictional. And that is presumably what the Commission would, under this section, adopt, because it is the logical and sensible and the easy thing for the Commission-the workable thing for the Commission to do. This section, however, does not require them to adopt such a method. They could, as a matter of fact, readopt the present method, which simply says they do not have to—they cannot be required to use any particular theories or methods for determining rates or tariffs in considering the evidence which is presented to them. They are freed from the handcuffs which the Supreme Court has imposed upon them. And that is the purpose-the main purpose of this section. Now, the last two sentences, as I've explained, are devised for the purpose, and are taken directly from the California Constitution, to insure the independence of the Commission from meddling by the courts. If you go back over the history of public utility regulation in this country, you find that the great curse-the thing which has made it ineffective-has been the substitution by the courts of their relatively uninformed judgment for the supposedly expert judgment of the Commission; and this would prevent that in Montana. It would, however, allow the courts to review the decisions of the-and the orders of the Commission to determine whether they are just and reasonable; but if it found evidence that they were just and reasonable in the record, then it would have to uphold them. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Heliker does not like the method of fixing rates by reproduction cost new, and he wants original cost less depreciation. I have been in these rate hearings, and they're extremely complicated field, and I doubt if practically anyone in this room could be an expert on rates. Maybe one or two are, but it's a technical field. The very evil that Mr. Heliker is trying to avoid he has written into this Constitution, because he says that this Commission may adopt any theory whatever that they want. So we're precluding the Legislature or the courts or anyone else from changing an unfair ratemaking base and we're just getting into a field we're not competent in. And we cannot write a rate theory into the Constitution; therefore, I request that this section, as amended, be not adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, I might state that this section-it's all statutory—and the Tobacco River case was decided on a statute. And they agreed at that time-and I want to say and I want to be fair to this Convention—Associate Justice Erickson was on the board, and nobody can say that he is any friend of the power company-of the-1 was on the court at the time the Tobacco River case was in. Now, to go-this is what-1 agree with Mr. Brown that this is a very touchy situation, to write law like this and have to make a decision here. Now, this takes a lot and I, maybe-1 don't know. You get into the law, and I have an awful time to decide just what is correct and what isn't correct. Now, personally, I would like to see the next Legislature go out and do this that the people are going to elect, and I am sure after Mr. Bollinger talked like he talked, they're going into this quite deeply. And I'd just like to see us now not put a piece of law into this Convention. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman, just briefly; even though this is a substitute section, it still contains a constitutional provision giving one governmental commission, even though it's elective-giving one commission Legislative, Executive and Judicial powers. We don't give that power to the Governor; we don't give that power to the Supreme Court; we don't give that power to any legislator; and it ought not to be anywhere in this Constitution. In addition, it is an attempt to set up, as Delegate Mahoney said, in the Constitution a method for rate determination. Let me warn you what can happen if this is adopted. And if the Supreme Court of this state were to give a very narrow construction to that, the only way it could be changed would be by constitutional amendment or to get that court to change. Now, the system that Delegate Heliker is concerned about evolved legislatively and can be changed legislatively, and if the court has given the wrong interpretation to that legislatively established rate determination-if the court makes a wrong decision, you can go to the Legislature and correct it. If we put this in the Constitution and the court makes a decision we don't like, you've got to get that court to change its mind or have a constitutional amendment, and we can't do it through our elected representatives in the Legislature. I urge that for the same reasons we oppose this section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker, do you want to close?

DELEGATE HELIKER: No, Mr. Chairman, I do not want to close. I want to ask Mr. Mahoney a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I'll try.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Mahoney, I have in my hand a copy of an article—news report which appeared in the Billings Gazette January 29, 1970, in which one Charles Mahoney is quoted as saying-I'll read it: "Mr. Charles Mahoney, former Executive Director of the Montana Legislative Council, claims he was forced out of his job by the Montana Power Company. He resigned last week. Mahoney was in Billings Wednesday to address County Extension Clubs. 'They didn't do it directly,' Mahoney says, 'it was done strictly by their man Hazelbaker.' Montana Power-quoting now-'Montana Power is sitting behind the scenes. You can't blame them. They have quite a little thing going for them up there, and they want to keep it', Mahoney says. 'The pressure came from the Montana Power. A lot of fellows would have taken it; I wouldn't', the one-time Montana state Republican majority leader said."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker, the Chair has listened carefully and you haven't said anything in there about the Tobacco River case or this section. And I think it's out of order—

DELEGATE HELIKER: I was coming to it, Mr.—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -so I'll rule it out of order.

DELEGATE HELIKER: -Chairman, it's right down the line here, just about two words.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, I think it's unfortunate you read the rest of it then. I think it's out of order, and I'm going to rule you out of order. Do you have anything else to discuss on Section l-the substitute Section 1? Anyone else want the floor?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I have something else I'd like to say, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Mr. Mahoney, do you have anything to say on Section 1?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, all this proves is that I'm not working for the Montana Power Company. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Heliker, you may speak now.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Mahoney said in that-on that occasion that they used replacement cost less depreciation. Some of these things have been depreciated out twice and are going into their third depreciation. And what I wanted to ask Mr. Mahoney is what he meant by that.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'm not trying to stop you from asking him about concepts, but I think the letter was far beyond the scope of this, and I'm going to hold you people to what you're talking about now. Now, you've explained rather well what reproduction cost new is and what the— what the fair value is, and you're going to have to take your chances with the body-so am I-as to what they think. So let's get on with it.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, if Mr. Mahoney doesn't want to answer, I'll go on.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, you haven't asked him a question. You want to ask him a theoretical question, okay; but I don't think you should have read the letter and I ruled you out of order. If you want to ask him a question about some concept, you go right ahead.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, will he yield?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'm sure he will.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I'll try, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE HELIKER: I want to know, Charley, what you meant by that when you said that-"he's the one behind looking at the original base less depreciation as a method to fix electrical rates for Montana Power Company". But that's not what is used. They use replacement cost, less depreciation. Some of these things have been depreciated out twice and they're going into their third depreciation. What did you have in mind?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Some of these dams have been constructed for approximately, I guess, probably 60 years, and they have been depreciated out. And I do not agree with the question of original cost-or new depreciation-new reproduction cost—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Reproduction cost new.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: -depreciated. I do not agree with that, and I think that this is the point, but I was discussing the Tobacco River case in this case here, which is statutory and this is what you have here. And you aren't changing a thing on this, if you—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay, Charley, you've answered. Now, if you've got another question—

DELEGATE HELIKER: Will Delegate Mahoney yield to another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay, another question.

DELEGATE HELIKER: You say the Tobacco River case is statutory. What do you mean by that?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: That the statute-the section-the Tobacco River case was decided on one section in the statutes. And that's-you know that just as well as I do, and it's there. It's not in any constitution or anything.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: I know of no such thing. The Tobacco River case was decided as a matter of fact-1 have a copy of it here right beside me-was decided on the basis of the whole history of the law up to that time. And I have said that the Tobacco River case was an accurate statement of the law at that time; and the fact that Mr. Erickson was on the court and voted for the court's decision proves nothing at all, because it was an accurate statement of the law at that time. Two years later, the United States Supreme Court reversed that law, changed it entirely, and the Montana Supreme Court has never gone along with the United States Supreme Court. Now, I want to reply to Mr. O'Neill's statement that we are attempting here to set up a method for rate determination. No such thing. We are simply trying to free the Public Service Commission to adopt a rational method of rate determination. We are not trying to impose upon them any method. Now, this-Mr. O'Neill, I believe it was, said-McNeil, excuse me-said also that the system has evolved legislatively. This system was established in 1913, and it has not evolved since. The only evolution has been by court interpretation, by the decisions of the Montana Supreme Court, which has, since 1940, refused to evolve at all. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Heliker's substitute motion for Section 1, Powers of Public Service Commission. You all have it before you. So many as shall be in favor of it, vote Aye; so many as shall be opposed to it, vote No. It allows the existing Public Service Commission to exist, but it does require that-it does state that the Commission shall not be required, in considering evidence, to consider any particular theories. That's the gist of it. Now, all in favor of it, vote Aye; and all opposed to it, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 35 delegates voting Aye, 52 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 52 delegates having voted No and only 35 Aye, the motion is defeated. Section 2 has been withdrawn.

Mr. Heliker, I don't see another Section 2 here. Do you want to move on to Section 3, or what's your pleasure?

DELEGATE HELIKER: That was Section 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, that was a Section 2 restyled Section 1, right?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes, we have a substitute motion for Section 3, restyled Section—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: What about Section 3? Are you withdrawing the existing Section 3?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes, and substituting therefor the one you have.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The one that starts, "Impartiality of staff'?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the pages may put it out and the clerk will read the section. It's styledSection3. We won't worry about its styling; that's what it replaces.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 3, page 17, by deleting its entirety and substituting the following language: 'Section 3, Impartiality of staff. In the determination of rates and tariffs, the authority shall be provided with staff personnel and help in such determination and recommendations of the staff shall be regarded as impartial as opposed to the partiality of the applicant or the protestant."' Mr. Chairman, Section 3-"Signed: Heliker."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: May I see it, Mr. Clerk? Now, the clerk-the Chair will allow Mr. Heliker's amendment to substitute this language for present Section 3. The Chair will observe that the word "the authority" appears therein. If the motion-if the section shall pass after we have considered it, then the Chair will consider other amendments to change the word "authority" to "Public Service Commission", which I presume you would mean, Mr. Heliker, in the event it passed. Is that right?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I thought that it said "Commission", but I didn't keep a copy.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You need a copy of it? Will one of the pages give Mr. Heliker a copy. Oh, well-very well, the Chair had another one in hand. Very well, the one that Mr. Heliker wants considered at this time, apparently, is Section-is styled Section Z-we'll ignore the styling. It does say "in the determination of rates and tariffs, the Commission shall be provided"-so it's all right and I'll withdraw the other one, Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes, Mr. Chairman, this applies to the present Commission and simply says that in the determination of rates and tariffs, the Commission shall be provided with staff personnel and help. The help is there for provision for consultants, outside consultants, and that they-the recommendations of staff shall be regarded as impartial as opposed to the partiality of the applicant or the protestant. Now, the point here is that the Commission should be representing the public interest, the staff should be representing the public interest as the employees of the commission, and their reports should be impartial and should have the standing as the recommendations of impartial persons, as opposed to the partiality of the material, evidence, presented to-and conclusions presented to the Commission by either the applicant or any persons or organizations who may be protesting the application.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes. Will Mr. Heliker yield to a question or two?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

DELEGATE HARPER: It is my understanding that the Railroad and Public Service—Public Utilities Commission-is at present statutory instead of constitutional. Is that correct?

DELEGATE HELIKER: That's correct.

DELEGATE HARPER: And is it also correct that nowhere, so far, in our new Constitution have we mentioned that Commission?

DELEGATE HELIKER: That is correct.

DELEGATE HARPER: And are you proposing now that we just have this thing that starts off, "In the determination of rates and tariffs, the Commission shall be provided"--and yet such Commission has not been named yet?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, Mr. Harper, I expect that if this were passed, Style and Drafting would take care of that and where it would go in the Constitution. I don't know, but the "Commission" obviously would say "Public Service Commission".

DELEGATE HARPER: Now, may I ask one more question, Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Then, do I understand that you want to write into the Constitution the present Railway and Public Service Commission?

DELEGATE HELIKER: No. I think that's a good point, Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes. Mr. Chairman, I've been right with Mr. Heliker all along this afternoon, and I understood him not to want to write the present Commission into the Constitution, is the reason I'm raising this question. I'm not badgering the witness.

DELEGATE HELIKER: That's all right; I don't mind a little badgering. No, the-Mr. Harper does have a very good point, Mr. Chairman, and this should read "the Public Service Commission or successor agency", just as the recently killed Section 1 would have read.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, the Chair will rule that you may discuss the matter. If it passes, we will then consider making the language "the Commission" more artful. I understand that you have a way of amending it so that it can cover the present Commission or any other substitute Commission thatthelaw mightprovide for, and let's take that up after we've had the vote on whether or not the Convention is interested in putting the impartiality of staff in the Convention, Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes, there really are two issues here in addition to the one I've already mentioned. There is the fact that the people who testified before the committee were unanimous in their statement that the Commission is understaffed, that it should have more adequate staff. So the first part of this is a-in effect a direction to the Legislature to provide that staff. The second part is--would establish a standing for the staff which it does not have now.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I, along with Delegate Harper, am a bit puzzled about this. I went along with Delegate Heliker on his proposals, but they were obviously beaten, so I believe that 3, 4 and 5 no longer apply and should be deleted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, he has withdrawn 3, and this is a substitute for 3.

DELEGATE ARONOW: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aronow.

DELEGATE ARONOW: I might be able to shed a little light on this proposition. I've been involved with some rather lengthy hearings before the Federal Power Commission in Washington, D.C., and they have a like provision where they have a staff that makes an independent investigation and comes up with costs. My case happened to be under the Natural Gas Act. It makes an independent study of natural gas, reserves, cost of pipelines, and all that type of thing. And that investigation and their conclusions may well differ from those of the applicant and those of the protestant, but their conclusions are supposedly made on an impartial basis, with no interest in the outcome of the case, whatever it may be, and that is taken into consideration by whether it be the examiner or the full-the Commission. And I thought this explanation might be helpful to this body. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, it would seem to me this would look kind of funny in the Constitution now, after all this has been taken out, and I am sure that this has to be the Legislature can handle it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises on Mr. Heliker's motion to substitute the language styled Section 2, Impartiality of staff, for withdrawn Section 3. Do you want a roll call vote?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll have a roll call vote. So many as are in favor of that, please vote Aye; so many as opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, take the ballot.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 31 delegates have voted Aye, 56 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 56 having voted No and only 31 Aye, that motion is defeated.

Mr. Heliker, what's your pleasure on Section 4? Do you want to withdraw the written Section 4?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes, and substitute therefor the one you have before you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, we'll withdraw Section 4, and you want to substitute the one that says, "Duty to represent customers. The Commission-"?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes, but I want to change those words again.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, it would be the "Public Service Commission or other appropriate agency"?

DELEGATE HELIKER: "—or its successor agency", or something of that sort.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, will the clerk read it, and the clerk may read it "the Public Service Commission or other successor agency" this time. We'll clear that all up. We'll allow Mr. Heliker to do that. Will the clerk read proposed Section 3, Duty to represent customers.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 3, Duty to represent customers. The Public Service Commission or successor agency shall represent the customers of any public utility and the public generally in all controversies respecting rates, valuations, service and all matters over which it may be given jurisdiction, and it shall make use of its jurisdiction and powers to protect such customers, and the public generally, from unjust and unreasonable exactions and practices and to obtain for them adequate service at just and reasonable rates. Signed: Heliker."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, this section by itself is worth adopting. It is the language of the Oregon statute. It establishes a much more--much stronger position for the Public Service Commission to represent the consumer and the public generally.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman, I hope I'm expressing the feeling of a good many people who maybe have been voting against the others—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper, excuse me. Has that been passed out? All right, pass it out. Let's hold everything up till we see it. Let's get two or three more pages working on it and get it out quickly.

DELEGATE HARPER: It really is Section 4, just as it is, with a few minor changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's styled Section 3; it's like Section 4.

DELEGATE HARPER: I'm not going to make a speech on it; I'm just going to say I'm going to support it. I think Mr. Heliker is right. This paragraph can stand by its own, does have meaning, and as he says, this is a section in the Oregon Constitution. And it seems to me the kind of thing that ought properly to be in a constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. Chairman, I rise to support this substitute section-motion by Mr. Heliker. I've sat here this afternoon and watched some of the big boys, evidently, win the case, and out in the lobby I see them smiling. I think it's about time maybe we get a Public Service Commission that is responsible to the people and that represents us instead of them.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman. Again, this seems it's an Oregon statute, as I understand it, and I'm sure that we can be sure and get this over to the next session of the Legislature and they can study it and probably can adopt something on it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman. This amendment, Section 3, I think could beinterpreted very well with the Section 2 of the Corporation Article that was passed yesterday. Therefore, I oppose it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any further discussion?

Mrs. Reichert.

DELEGATE REICHERT: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this amendment. I think it varies enough from Section 2 regarding consumer protection, because this deals specifically with the public utilities.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Mr. President [Chairman]. I resist the substituted Section 3 for a very good reason-that it doesn't mention the utility involved, and any Public Service Commission in their rate hearings have got to represent both sides. If we have a provision in our Constitution which simply says that the Public Service Commission shall represent the utility-1 mean, the customer-and at that-and stayed with that at all times, you would very soon have rates that were favorable to the customer but not the utility. And over the long period of time, that would be a very serious detriment to the public, because they would probably cut the rate so low they could not provide for replacements of needed equipment, and as a result the service would diminish. Now, I know all of you have in mind Montana Power, but there were other smaller companies that appeared before our committee. We had two very small telephone companies-one in Project and one at Hysham. They are very small concerns, and it seems to me that we should protect those people, too. And if you want to put something like this in here, it seems to me there should be something in there that said to respresent both sides, the customer and the utility.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Cross.

DELEGATE CROSS: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Swanberg, I hope I live to see that day.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, the final clause of the proposed section says, "to obtain for them adequate service at just and reasonable rates". And as Mr. Swanberg well knows, no rates established by the Commission would stand in the courts unless they were indked just and reasonable to the corporations.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aronow.

DELEGATE ARONOW: Mr. Chairman, may I remind this delegation that yesterday or the day before, we took out of the article on Corporations the right to vote your stock (indistinguishable word), which is a great protection to minority stockholders. We took out the provision preventing the watering of stock-the corporate stock—we-and I admit I voted against the ombudsman proposition that came up here, and we have no place in this Constitution to do anything for the protection of the public or the consumer. We have an innocuous article in-we do have one article that the consumer shall be protected, but no way is it spelled out or specified. And in the average rate hearing I've been involved in-some rate hearings around the State of Montana-the consumer has no staff, he has no method, no way to prepare his case. He usually is-or whoever he hires-is dependent on contributions from a group of people; you never have adequate money to get the job done. And at least one place in the Constitution, we should have some provision for some protection for the consumer from rates that are unfair and unjust and unreasonable. I rise in support of Mr. Heliker's amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Heliker's proposed amendment, styled Section 3 to replace Section 4, the first line of which is: "The Public Service Commission or other successor agency shall-". Is there further discussion?

Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President [Chairman], Mr. Heliker just said that they could be assured that the utilities would get just and reasonable rates. I would like to think that that meant just and reasonable to both sides.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion?

Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Mr. Chairman, for all the delegates that want to leave this to the-these articles to the Legislature, maybe I should remind them that some of the testimony that we received in our committee hearing-that the Public Service Commission takes in around about $900,000 and their budget only runs $300,000. So I don't think the Legislature is taking care of the public utilities, and maybe this will be able to get them moving and get something to them.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer-or Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, I just ask the members of this Convention to please stand fast for the majority report. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Heliker's motion to substitute Section-what's styled Section 3, Duty to represent customers, for withdrawn Section 4. The first line should read: "The Public Service Commission or other successor agency shall represent customers", et cetera. Do you want a roll call vote? All in favor vote Aye; all opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, I'm going to cast the ballot. Cast the ballot.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 43 delegates have voted Aye, 44 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 44 having voted No and 43 having voted Aye, that motion fails.

Mr. Heliker, what is your pleasure on Section 5? Do you want to withdraw the one in the book?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I will withdraw the Section 5, and I do not wish to introduce a substitute. I do wish to introduce a new section, if it's in order at this time. Do you have it up there?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, I have it up here and I see no other motions in the regulation of Public Utilities District--or the Public Utility Article that matter, or should be ahead of it, and therefore I'll allow you to present what we'll style Section 6, so that we keep it separate. Will the clerk please read styled Section 6. And-just a moment. Has it been passed out? Yes; it's on Consumer Counsel. Has it been passed out? Please pass it out. Clerk will read it.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 6, Consumer Counsel. The Legislature shall provide by law for an Office of Consumer Counsel, which shall have the duty of representing consumer interests in hearings before the Public Service Commission. The Legislature shall provide by law for the funding of the Office of Consumer Counsel by a special tax on the net income or gross revenues of regulated companies. Signed: Heliker." Section 6, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Heliker has an amendment--or has a new section, which we styled Section 6, to offer under the Regulation of Public Utilities Article, styled Consumer Counsel.

Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Can I wait until they're on the desks?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does everybody have one?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Since the last proposal was lost, the consumers have no one to represent them, and the object of this proposal is to mandate the Legislature to establish an Office of Consumer Counsel which would have the duty of representing consumer interests in hearings before the Public Service Commission, and to provide for the funding thereof by a special tax on the net income or gross revenues of the regulated companies. As you, I'm sure, are aware, in the past we have had ad hoc consumer organizations which have collected small amounts of money, something in the order, I think, of a maximum of $15,000 in one case. Where is it? May I have your indulgence while I see if I can find that Legislative Council report. It seems to have disappeared. I refer again to the December 1970 report of the subcommittee of the Legislative Council, which pointed out that in 1968, in one case, testimony submitted showed that a power company had spent $82,000 to pursue one of its rate cases, which would be more than one-third of the Commission's budget for that year. In another case the power company apparently spent $300,000 in preparation of one rate case, which was more than the entire yearly budget of the Railroad Commission. In the latter case, a Consumers' Council was organized-this was privately organized-set a hearing and was able to raise about $15,000 to pay three lawyers and an expert consultant to contest the request to increase the rates of the power company-$15,000 against $300,000 collected from you and me in our rates by the power company.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion?

Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Would you accept the additional wording after "Public Service Commission", at the end of the first sentence, "or a successor agency", or need I make a move to have an amendment to that effect? Mr. Heliker says he accepts it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker, do I understand that you would like that-like Section 6 to be put in in that fashion, with the words "or any successor agency" added after "Public Service Commission" on the fourth line?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of allowing Mr. Heliker to amend this section in that manner before he presents it, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Will Mr. Heliker yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward—Mr. Heliker?

DELEGATE WARD: Delegate Heliker-

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

DELEGATE WARD: On the last line, on the special tax on the net or gross revenues of regulated companies, who do you think will eventually pay that tax, the company or the consumer?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I suppose the consumer will pay it, Mr. Ward, but he's paying it anyway-through the nose.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman], I should like to rise in support of this amendment by Mr. Heliker. Over and over again this afternoon we've heard about these rate cases before the Public Service Commission, how extremely difficult and complicated they are, and when groups of people appear before the Commission they are never adequately prepared. We don't have anyone really protecting the consumer, and so I think if we have this Consumer Counsel to speak for the people, and even if this were passed on to the people as far as the cost is concerned, I'd be perfectly willing to pay it, to at least hear-have my side-that is, the public's side-adequately presented to the Public Service Commission. I support this amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Sullivan.

DELEGATE SULLIVAN: Mr. President [Chairman], would I be in order to offer an amendment? I want to strike—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, I'll certainly hear it.

DELEGATE SULLIVAN: -1 want to strike a line.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Which line do you want to strike'?

DELEGATE SULLIVAN: To put a period after "Counsel" in the second line from the bottom and strike the rest of that sentence, so it would read: "The Legislature shall provide by law for the funding of the Office of Consumer Counsel."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Sullivan has an amendment which strikes the last half of the last sentence, so that she strikes the words: "by a special tax on the net income or gross revenues of regulated companies". She would put a period in there after "Consumer Council", so it says: "The Legislature shall provide by law for the funding of the Office of Consumer Counsel". We're discussing Mrs. Sullivan's amendment.

Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, I resist the amendment for the reason that we are more likely to get adequate funding by this method and for the reason that this is the method used in the State of Oregon successfully for 40 years to finance this regulatory agency.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: I rise at 7 o'clock to protest what I did at 9 o'clock this morning. I hate to see these amendments come in out of the walls and ceiling, not having been considered by our committee. They're just coming out of nowhere, and I don't think it's fair to a committee that was appointed by this Convention to have to suffer through an ordeal such as this. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to respond to Mr. Scanlin. I think that the substitute amendments that have been offered here--and sections-throughout the afternoon have been rather responsible and they've been well thought out. And I guess my impression or observation has been that they have been more responsible, really, than probably the majority of the committee. I think maybe the majority report is the one that's backward, and these motions have been the forward-looking and the more responsible courses of action to take.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any other discussion of the Sullivan amendment? Except Mr.—

All right, Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. President [Chairman], I reside-rise to maybe answer to the delegate from Cascade. Is he impugning our integrity that we don't know what we're doing? Is—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney, I'm sure that he meant the committee-that this is a minority report too. He didn't mean the Committee of the Whole, he meant the Public Health Committee.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: This is what I wondered, if he meant the majority of the Public Health Committee—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, I see—okay—

DELEGATE MAHONEY: -didn't know what they were doing—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -1 see; just so we have it straight.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: -1 mean, this is what I wondered. I'm not going to get into—indulge in those kind of things. I never have, and I'm not going to do it now. I-this thing here-this committee-this study never-this one that we're voting on never came before the Committee of Public Health and Welfare. The first time I saw any of this was now, and I think that the Chairman--and he was presiding-should have presented this to the committee for our things. Now, personally I'm not opposed to a Consumer Counsel, but I want him into everything instead of just into utilities. I want him into everything if we're going to have that, and I think this is hastily drawn. And this, to me-it should be if there-if we're going to have Consumer—and if you want to put it in the Constitution, which I oppose, I think it should-this is straight legislative, and so I will have to oppose the Heliker amendment even with your-1 think you have helped a lot, Mrs. Sullivan, but I still oppose it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: I just want to keep the record straight, Mr. Chairman. Everything that has been presented to you this afternoon was discussed by the committee, except this last Consumer Counsel proposal, and that was discussed before the committee in hearing by Senator Metcalf, who recommended it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mrs. Sullivan's amendment. All those in favor of Mrs. Sullivan's amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Noes have it, and Mrs. Sullivan's amendment is defeated. Now the issue is on Mr. Heliker's proposal to add a Section 6 entitled "Consumer Counsel". It says—you have it before you--with the last sentence in except it does say "Public Service Commission or any successor agency". Do you want a roll call vote?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: A roll call vote is called for. All those in favor of it, vote Aye; all those opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, take the ballot.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 49 delegates have voted Aye, 38 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 49 delegates having voted Aye and only 38 voting No, Section 6, as amended, is adopted.

Mr. Heliker, do I understand that you move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6 of the Regulation of Public Utilities Article, that we recommend the same be adopted? You so move?

DELEGATE HELIKER: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's adopted. Now, ladies and gentlemen, if you'll turn to page 29, the clerk will please read the proposal on page 29, the minority report on public utility corporations.

CLERK HANSON: "Any county or municipal subdivision of the state has the power and authority to establish public corporations for the maintenance and operation of utilities, subject to regulations prescribed by law." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Van Buskirk.

DELEGATE VAN BUSKIRK: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration section on public utility corporations on Proposal Number 9, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Van Buskirk.

DELEGATE VAN BUSKIRK: I am on page 30. The minority believes that the people should have the right to choose the type of utility, publicly or privately owned, from which they will obtain the necessary services commonly called utilities. As Senator Metcalf pointed out in his testimony before this committee, Montana is the only mainland state without a single municipal electric system. The other state is Hawaii. This right is especially important in our state, where consumer protection against unreasonable and unjust exactions of privately owned monopoly utility corporations is inadequate, and where the Legislature has historically displayed no disposition to improve it. In our Revised Codes of Montana there is authorization for cities or towns for municipal utilities, and this is for water and gas only, but for electricity it is not clearly defined. Thirty-one local publicly owned electric systems have been created by voters in 14 states since 1960. Twenty-eight of them are municipal systems, two are bulk power systems, one is a county-owned retail electric utility. The reasons for this change-over were: first, lower rates; second, revenue from electric systems could be used to finance other city operations. Just as a community has the right to create a new local municipal owned utility, it has the right to do away with it and to contract with another utility to serve its people. At the present time, doubt exists as to the status of county and municipal ownership of utilities in the State of Montana. Constitutional provision is needed to clear this doubt, so there is a need for this general law. People have a right to select who should provide the services and should also have the right to establish their own publicly owned utility companies. As this is Delegate Proposal Number 121 by Paul Harlow, I would like to have him answer all the technical questions.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McKeon, you have an amendment on this on the desk here. Do you want us to read your amendment?

DELEGATE McKEON: Yes, would you read it, please, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, will the clerk please read Mr. McKeon's amendment.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman. I move as a substitute motion, to delete the section on page 29 and to substitute in lieu thereof the following: 'There shall be'-'The Legislature shall provide for the organization and financing of public corporations for the maintenance and operation of utilities by municipal, county, or other geographical or political subdivisions.' Signed: McKeon."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Members of the body, so everyone keeps straight, the Chair has styled Mrs. Van Buskirk's section, Section 7. We haven't used that number yet. And Style and Drafting can renumber it, but style it Section 7. And this is an amendment to Section 7 by replacing it with the language Mr. McKeon has just had read. Does everyone have it before them?

Mr. McKeon.

DELEGATE McKEON: Mr. Chairman, thank you. My proposal differs from the minority proposal in that I call for public utility districts; the minority proposal limits it to municipal and county districts. Mr. Chairman, I have done this for one salient reason. I think the people of the State of Montana deserve the right to choose how they will be serviced. I think it's been a long time coming, Mr. Chairman, and I think we can point our finger at just one company who has monopolized this state for so many years, and that's the Montana Power Company. The Montana Power Company, in my mind, has been totally irresponsible to anything that is good for the State of Montana; they've been totally selfish. I think, Mr. Chairman, that it's about time the Montana Power Company is afforded the opportunity to have some competition, and I submit that my proposal will give them that competition. Mr. Chairman, I'm sure every member of the Board of Directors of the Montana Power Company would argue that we need free enterprise. If they can argue that, Mr. Chairman, then I'm sure they can readily accept the concept of the public utility district as honest competition in their field. For this reason, Mr. Chairman, I had planned to discuss the merits of the PUD. Simply, I would say, I resent paying rates for my electricity when the Montana Power Company would use it to support the sales tax, would use it to support judges that I think are totally irresponsible to the wishes of the people, and support-And also, Mr. Chairman, I resent paying these fees when the Montana Power Company is so irresponsible as to buy such ridiculous luxuries as Learjets at the expense of the people of the State of Montana. Also, Mr. Chairman, I would-1 should say that we have the irrigation districts, we have mosquito districts, water districts, and sewer districts; why can't we have electricity districts? I know of only one reason why we can't, and that's because the long arm of the Montana Power Company has stretched wide around this state and has coerced so many for so long in our Legislature into opposing any type of public utility district. The Montana Power Company used to use the argument that it's socialism. This was in the hysterical fifties; I assume they've abandoned that argument since. I might add that Saco is the only city in the stats with a municipal gas supply, and I don't think they're carrying the thoughts and works of Chairman Mao around. Senator Metcalf made the point that Montana is the only state in mainland America that does not have municipal electrics. I think that it's about time we do have municipal electrics. I think it's about time the Montana Power Company had some competition. I think, most importantly, that the people of the State of Montana should be given the right to choose. And for this reason, Mr. Chairman, I would urge everyone at this Convention to support this proposal. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. McKeon's amendment is allowed and is open for discussion.

Mr. Harlow.

DELEGATE HARLOW: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, along sometime today I had placed on your desks this little letter from me with some charts underneath it. I think they are very enlightening. This chart, as it's been indicated down before, is a relatively brand-new chart and was revised on the first of last year, in '71. And before I go into the full discussion of the embezzlement of the people of Montana in their utilities and their natural resources, I want to draw your attention to what has happened in electric rates in states where we have competition, in states where we have free enterprise. The chart is self-explanatory--on the bottom of it; the little round circles that are sort of grey-colored are privately owned utility areas; the ones that are black and round are publicly owned; and the diamond-shaped ones are cooperatives or your REAs. The first page deals with residential affairs and the second one with commercial service, so those of you who are in business can see how much money it's costing you to stay in business in Montana. I realize it is late, but you've-we've all endured the same amount, and this is very important to you, your business, and the keeping of people in Montana. Just a slight comparison, Missoula has $18.45 for a thousand kilowatts. You drop to Spokane, Washington, which uses Montana water power, it costs you eleven and a half for a thousand kilowatts of electricity. And you can move it around if you want to get where it's real cheap; go to Seattle, where you have a municipally owned utility, and you get your thousand kilowatts of electricity for $8.15. That's quite a little less than the $18.45 that you pay for this hundred kilowatts-or thousand kilowatts of electricity in all-in any of the cities served by Montana Power.

Now, the interesting facts here, also, is that up in Whitefish and Kalispell, an area that is served by the Pacific Power and Light, which has competition over in the other areas and realizes that they are making good money over in Idaho and Washington, they just haven't got the stamina—they just can't afford to-1 mean, they just can't stand to charge the Montana residents in Whitefish and Kalispell $12.85. Now, theonelittlegroup that is quite interesting here, the one area which has public power-and I'm sure some of the residents-the delegates from that area will be up and talk rather strongly against public power—that it's socialism and so forth-the city of Polson, which is served by a public utility-or not-1 mean, a public power area, buys their electricity for $7.00—or for $12.00; whereas Missoula and the rest of the Montana cities pay $18.45. Now some of you are going to-1 will not go through that little chart any more, because it is self-explanatory; it shows you how much you are being charged in excess for what the cost of electricity is in other states in the Northwest. But I want to tell you a little of how the-our resources here in Montana have been embezzled. Not too many years ago, the government--or the Bureau of Reclamation—built Canyon Ferry Dam out here. It was built by your money, and the power companies maneuvered that so the city of Helena could not become a municipally owned utility and enjoy the cheap electricity available there. They also made it so it could not be transported by publicly owned transmission lines. So they cornered all that electricity at Canyon Ferry and bought it for a dump-rate price and are selling it to all of you-you in business, you on your residence-for anywhere from a thousand to ten thousand times more than what they paid for it. And some of you will say that this is legislation. I'll recall to you again that little remark I made here earlier, how we had the water in Montana protected by legislation in 1921 so that we thought we would have some protection for our water in Montana; but in 1951 they repealed that law, and we in Montana now are storing water without any compensation to be used by utilities in Idaho. They made the promise-I'll carry a little further on that-they made the promise to the local County Commissioners in Sanders County that they would pay taxes on the land that they were flooding at the same assessed valuation that they paid for it. That lasted 1 year, and now that land that they flooded and paid a fair price for is being taxed at a price—at a taxable valuation of wasteland, sort of industrial land-a very small fraction of what they paid for it. Then, a few years-or right after that dam was built in Cabinet, Idaho, theutilities, Washington Water Power, came in and built the Noxon Dam. They strongly opposed that dam being built by the Army Engineers or the Reclamation project. That dam at Noxon produces almost as much electricity as all the other hydroelectric dams in Montana. All of that electricity goes out of Montana. It all goes into Idaho and Washington, and it goes into Washington and is sold in Spokane for eleven dollars and a half for a thousand kilowatts; whereas the other hydroelectric power developed in Montana sells at Missoula, Great Falls and Billings for $18.45. We had a law, and do have a law, on the books which is supposed to tax the electricity generated in Montana. It has the little catch on that law that this electricity will be taxed only if it is sold in Montana. Well, this electricity is not sold in Montana, so that 400,000 kilowatt capacity at the Noxon Rapids Dam goes out of the state and all that Montana receives for it is a little bit of property tax that is paid into Sanders County. The state itself receives only the two-mill levy that's levied down there occasionally off of that giant hydroelectric plant there at Noxon Rapids Dam. We may use the argument that this public utility district type of thing is socialism; it's not right. I would merely bring to the attention of all of you the various places in Montana--out of Billings, out of Lewistown, out of Great Falls, out of Missoula-where the Montana Power Company came into the REAs, the people's cooperatives, which they had a little load that was growing in their territory which was going to be used to sort of support them and make them progress and make them so they had a little money-the Montana Power moved in and took it away from them.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You have 1 minute left on your 10 minutes.

DELEGATE HARLOW: Thank you. So in this 1 minute that I have left, I want to bring to your attention again that unless you put some kind of a thing in the Constitution that the Legislature can't repeal, you, the people of Montana, who are paying all of this extra money into Montana Power's coffers, then going to New York, will continue to pay this exorbitant price. Think about it before you vote. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. McKeon's substitute motion to put his language in Section 7 in place of Section 7 as proposed in the minority report.

Mr. Gysler.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to-1 wonder if Mr. McKeon would yield.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McKeon?

DELEGATE McKEON: I yield.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mike, don't the cities vote every so often on giving a contract to a utility for a certain number of years?

DELEGATE McKEON: Electric utilities?

DELEGATE GYSLER: Right.

DELEGATE McKEON: I'll yield to Mr. Harlow on this question.

DELEGATE HARLOW: Yes, they do. They have no other alternative. They are given a charter to serve the city with electricity, but they can't take it over themselves because they've got—the law won't allow it.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Davis, would you like to answer that question, too?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis?

DELEGATE DAVIS: As I understand the law, under our present statutory law the cities don't have any choice. You can't-the REAs can't serve within the city; they can't even serve residential within the city unless it's over-what, 3500?—if it's under 3500 people.

DELEGATE GYSLER: The point I wanted to bring out is that I believe we had one of these elections in Fort Benton just a few years ago-and some of you people can correct me if you want to-but I believe that term is for 50 years. Now, I'm sure that there's probably at least 40 years to run on that, so I just wanted to make that point that passing something like this isn't, right off the bat, isn't going to open up every city in the town-in the state to this type of a district. Another thing that I would like to point out is that with this Consumer Counsel that was just established, there will probably be a whale of a lot better ratemaking system, because there is going to be a lot more rate feed-in, if anything can possibly do it, The third point that I wanted to bring out, and I think we all should recognize, is that if we make a public utility district, then we have taken away a pretty fair tax base. Now, sure, we pay that tax through our utility rate, but I just want this body to remember that when you remove the utility and you think about a lower rate, you've also removed the tax structure that goes along with it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROBERT HANSON: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to speak in opposition to Mr. McKeon's substitute motion. I happen to live up in Lake County, and Montana Power doesn't sell any electrical energy up there to the residents. And they-1 think in the last year they paid over $535,000 in property tax for our schools and the operation of the county government, which is about one-third of all the taxes paid by all the people in Lake County. And if we would lose this $535—or $535,000, I'm sure that we would all have to pay about twice as much individual property tax, so therefore I resist this amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Mr. President [Chairman], can I talk after Mr. Hanson? I would like to just have one of the attorneys correct, I think, the wrong impression that may have been given to answer-in answer to Mr. Gysler's question. I believe that in Montana the cities grant the use of the roads and alleys and this type of thing for utilities for a period of time, and I don't believe 50 years. I think it's about 20 or-and this, I believe, is only for gas and perhaps water. But I'm quite sure that in Montana-and I wish some attorney that knows this law would correct me if I'm wrong-but I believe in Montana there isn't any such thing required for electric utilities--not to my knowledge. Now, I might say that I hadn't intended to get up and speak on this issue because I probably do have a special interest, being a manager of a rural electric cooperative. But I would like to have that clear.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, the franchises are granted by the city councils, and they are for various terms of years according to the way they're negotiated. I know that's the way it is in Hamilton.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Members of the body, I don't see any attorneys rising. It's my understanding that all franchises of this nature in Montana are nonexclusive.

Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, I think Mr. Gysler hit on a terrific point. We have just passed, in this body-now that we're going to statewide property tax, we're going to have statewide levies, we're going to have big bonded indebtedness. Now, if one community or one county should go a PUD-and I think that's probably what they would have-then not the loan but the state would lose--under the schools and that. Now, Mr. Gysler said they would have cheaper electricity, but what about thecounty taxes? What about the school tax? What about the other-we're going to statewide levies. We would just give the groups that organized this a beautiful subsidy. They would have no problem of paying any taxes unless we changed it. Maybe the Legislature would, but this could be a very tough thing. Now, I think, furthermore, I certainly agree with Mr. Harlow. I'm one ofthefourin the Senate of the State of Montana that voted against the Cabinet Gorge bill, I want that understood. There was only four of us; all the rest of them went. It's the only place in the journal, in any journal, where the Governor has sent a message to the Legislature telling them why he signed the bill. And this was Governor Bonner, so I want that-there's no other place in any other journal that the Governor has ever sent a message and said why he signed a bill. The vetoes have always made it, but this was done. Now, let's go out here a little bit further. This is going to be a little difficult. First, you've got to have power, if it's going to be electricity; you're going to have to have natural gas, if it's going to be natural gas. Now, Saco was mentioned. They're right in the middle of a gasfield; this is thereason. 'This is a very small-and only part of the town is in-handled by this municipal. I have no objections. Get this a little further; in 1953, I think it was, there was a bill put-introduced and passed both houses of the Legislature, of which I fought very hard against, which was repealing the right to issue revenue bonds for to have electrical and natural gas. I opposed that. And those cities came in-nobody came in to help me at all. I knew what it was doing, and I opposed it, and it was-the bill passed and was signed by the Governor—Aronson, at the time. The scheme was, at that time, that says, "we've just got a wasted law here, and if we're going to remove from the books a law that is no good'-now, this-if this law was reenacted, you could then pass revenue bonds to go into municipal systems and you wouldn't have a property tax or a utility tax on all property. If we go under this system of public utility districts, this is where we will probably go countywide. This will mean that they should--and maybe they won't—will buy out whatever utility is operating within that county. Montana Power Company, Pacific Power and Light, or Montana-Dakota Utilities. Those are the three that operate in this state. Now, providing they bought-and I look here, right out here-then they're going to have to buy powerplants. Now, if they buy powerplants, what's going to happen to the other county alongside where this powerplant is not in that county? Now, if this body wants to go to public utility districts, I think-and I might be wrong-that the only way we can go is in this big integrated system; is to go to the Nebraska system, that we purchase the whole area of the Montana Power Company or to purchase the whole part of the Montana-Dakota Utilities in their area, or Pacific Power and Light. We'll take, for instance at Billings-we'll just use Billings-they would now, if they purchased the steamplants, they would be fine there. But what would some of the othersurroundingcounties that are there-now are they going to then be at the mercy of a power organization in Yellowstone County, where there is no power? Now, I think, furthermore-that I think you've got to realize that every bit of the power in the Bonneville system is allocated until there is-that is, firm power--until there is new dams get on the line. Maybe you could get some out of Libby. Now, in eastern Montana, the cooperatives are all going to North Dakota, because there is no more power available on firm basis. Now, in answer to Mr. Harlow out here-in regard to this dam out here, and I've been just as disgusted with it and just as mad as anybody. This power has now all been allocated, Mr. Harlow, after they closed the bus at Fort Peck. Now, this power can flow all down into the State of Nebraska, the State of Iowa, the State of Minnesota, and North and South Dakota. There's no power available in firm power, and that's the only thing rural electric cooperatives—the only thing PUDs can purchase, because firm power is every hour of the clock you have to have it. Now, this is what1 think you're getting into is to this thing here now. When you say "The Legislature shall provide", I want you to realize that we can't let one county go, because then he's going to get out of taxes on schools under the new things—statewide levies-and I would hesitate to see then some other counties placed in that. So it's going to have to be in large areas, and the one thing is to come out and put the State of Montana to take over all the power of the Montana Power Company or all the natural gas of them, because distribution is the problem, and getting it there. And I hope you know-take it-and Mr. Chairman, I therefore oppose the resolution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: I just might want to point out one thing about this thing. It says that "The Legislature shall provide for the organization and financing of the public corporations." Now, it really doesn't mean a thing, and we're back to legislation again that gives our intent that doesn't do any good. Actually, the Legislature, in the financing of such a public corporation, could set up the financing structure so it would be impossible to do a proper financing job so that a corporation could even get off the ground. And, therefore, it's still legislation. I can give you another example of that on banks in Montana. We have a statute on various banks in Montana as to how they're set up. We have a Morris plan bank that isn't practical in this time, so nobody sets one up. We have a savings bank that nobody sets one up because it just isn't practical, and the Legislature can very well set up the financing of a public utility district that would be practically impractical. They could say that the bonds would have to be paid off in 5 years if they want to. Therefore, this is purely legislation, and I again would resist the amendment and ask you to vote it down.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, Mr. Swanberg's still up. Mr. Harper is coming up.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Mr. Chairman, as a member of the majority of the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee, I stand to oppose both of these proposals. I might say at the beginning-and I'll have to speak just a few minutes here-we have here another very complex subject, and your committee gave very little time to it. It somehow sort of tagged along with the Public Utility Proposal as a whole, and there just wasn't time to get to it. I would like to-briefly just to go to the heart of the matter here and submit for your consideration that the record of public utility districts in Montana, and I should say the United States, has not been too impressive in recent years. Very quickly, I'll take you back to 1920, and at that time there were 3,046 public utility districts in the United States. This number, from that point on, shrank. And we must remember that in 1920 electricity was not all that generally available. Small communities throughout the United States did not have electric power—the larger utilities had not got out to them-and the public utility district concept at that time was a valid idea. Small towns could buy whatever the equipment was needed, set up their electric plant and have electric lights. But from that point on—1920, there were 3000 districts. In 1925, only 5 years later, there were only 2000; and then from that point on-in 1935, there were a hundred and sixty-seven districts created, 59 abandoned; 1940, a hundred and nineteen created and 40 abandoned; and then in 1945, there was only 54 districts created and 96 were abandoned; in 1950, 26 were created and 45 abandoned; in 1955, 10 were created and 42 were abandoned; and so on down the line-1 won't give you every year. The point is clear. In 1964, only 3 districts were created and 5 were abandoned; in 1969, only 2 were created and 8 were abandoned. And at the present time there are 1,923 districts still operating in this country. Who are these districts sold to? Let me briefly go down the list-1 won't bore you with too many details here-but they were sold to the very people, the very kind of people that now run our public utility system in Montana. Hayworth, Illinois, was sold out to Central Illinois Electric Gas Company; Crowdersville, Indiana-Public Service Company of Indiana; Grimes, Iowa-Iowa Power and Light; Williams, Arizona-Arizona Public Service Company; Hoped&, Illinois-Central Illinois Light Company; Milo, Iowa-Iowa Power and Light; and so on. In other words, it would appear from this record that the customers of these small public utility districts, for one reason or another, found that it was to their advantage to sell out their public utility district and join with a private utility. I'm not through yet, Miles. We also have on the books, fellow delegates, three statutes that deal with the establishment of public utility districts. We have, of course, a statute allowing cities and towns to set up water supplies, and that is a public utility district. We have a statute on the books that allows cities and towns to set up lighting plants; that would be a public utility district. And finally, we have a statute, quite detailed, that allows cities and towns to set up gasworks and gas supplies, and I will read that statute to you just briefly. It says the city or town council has the power to contract an indebtedness of a city or town upon the credit thereof, of borrowing money and so on, for the purpose of purchasing or developing an adequate supply of natural gas, and to construct or purchase a system of gaslines for the distribution thereof to the inhabitants of said city or town or vicinity. Now, I bring that up because there is a public utility district statute right now on the books in Montana. It's not being used. We have cities and towns in this state, situated right in the middle of gasfields, and they're not taking advantage of this statute. Why isn't Shelby using this? Why isn't Cut Bank using this? Why is only one town in the State of Montana, Saco, which is half public and half private? There must be a reason for this. The matter of taxation has already been covered. I wish to remind you that if the private property of a public utility like Montana Power is taken over by a public utility district, the property goes off the tax rolls and your private taxes are correspondingly increased. The comparison I want to make again is not too germane here, but it does have a point. Now, we have 40 private water companies in the State of Montana, and 122 municipal companies. The records of the Public Service Commission will show that the 212 municipal companies have been before the Public Service Commission an average of 1.73 times since 1945 to ask for rate increases and the 40 private companies have been before the Public Service Commission an average of .57 times, which would indicate to some extent that the privately operated water companies of this state are far more efficient than the publicly owned utilities. Now, one more point now. You have a chart before you which has to do with public utility districts in the State of Washington and Oregon and your-it has been suggested to you to compare the rates between these two places. Let me remind you, fellow delegates, that the density of population in Washington and Oregon is far greater than it is in Montana. The density of the population of Oregon is 18 per square mile. The density of the population of Washington is 42 per square mile. The density of Montana for population is 6 per square mile. And it shouldn't take too much guesswork to realize that this has a very big bearing on the amount of power cost you're going to pay. It costs the same to string a mile of wire whether you serve 50 customers or whether you serve 1, and this is one of the reasons that the rates in those areas are somewhat lower than they are here. Point two: heating is used extensively in these two states for heating homes-they use electricity extensively for heating, and since they have all this extra power demand at their disposal, they can charge a lower rate. We don't use heating-we don't use electricity for heating in Montana, and that makes a difference. Now, these are just a few of the things to point out to you how technical this subject is. I think that it's statutory, and I certainly would not recommend a snap judgment in putting it into this Constitution. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We'll stand at ease while the tape is changed. The Committee will be in session.

Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Well now, friends, I think some of us little citizens could just get talked right out of here, and we can. I don't have a brief, as apparently some people came prepared to discuss this, all right, but just as a citizen, I'm kind of interested that this-evidently this thing hits a nerve somewhere, it gets such a reaction. I read it, and I don't see why it should get all that reaction. It must be possible to have public utilities, although the last few speeches have just about convinced me that it's absolutely impossible to do it. And yet every other state in the Union has it, except the State of Montana. I grew up in a place where they had public utility, and they still have public utility there. Now, it's true it's a larger town, but I have in the back of my mind, as we write this Constitution, that the towns and cities in Montana are going to grow someday. This—there's nothing in this thing, as I see it, in this new Section 7, that says any of this is mandatory. There's no-no town is going to be forced, no county, no agency is going to be forced to run in a public utility district, and if the profits don't exceed the taxes-1 want to make this point because several people have risen to say that the taxes that we get from Montana Power, for example, and from other companies probably will far exceed any profits that could be made on it. To me, just as a layman who knows very little about it, it's a very poor business they're running if their profits don't exceed the taxes they're paying. Now, I have an idea that if the city of Helena were going to consider setting up a public utility system sometime and if, in preparing for it, we discovered that it would not be profitable, that we'd lose more in taxes than we'd gain in profits, I doubt if our City Council and the people here would ever vote to do it. It's been suggested that there really is no power left, that it's all been allocated. And my reaction to that is, if there's no power left, then we couldn't possibly run a public utility. So I really don't see what the big deal is. This makes it possible at some time in the future for this to be done; and if it is not possible, and if nobody ever finds it profitable, and if we're getting better service otherwise, I don't see how it could be any threat to anybody. So I'm not quite sure. I guess I just don't understand, maybe, everything that's down and under here. I don't quite see how this hit the nerve that apparently it did.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Well, I, too, am just a little bit-1 just can't quite understand this. I was born in the country, and I still live in the country; I probably will die there. I wonder if Mr. Mahoney will yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney, would you yield to a question?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I'll try, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Well, Mr. Mahoney, now, when I turn the spigot on and I get some water in this city of Helena, I understand that the city of Helena owns that water system, and it seems to be operating pretty efficiently. Why is it so bad to have an electric plant-or to sell electricity at the same time?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Only thing that I've got to say in answer to that is, you've got-they've got to have-they went out here to get the water and gradually, over a long time, they bought the water. And right now they just passed a whole bunch of bonds last year again for the water, and this is what you'll have with the electricity. Now, here's what you're doing. Don't forget the taxes. This is what you're doing. You're going out here-if you're going to the statewide property tax, this became much more serious. That's all I have.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Will he yield—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Will he yield to one more question?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I'll try.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I'm still from the country, and I just don't quite understand this, Now, is somebody losing money furnishing electricity to this town?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Absolutely not.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Will you yield to another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Another question, Mr. Mahoney?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I'll try, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Well, if the present utility is making money, would it be possible for the city to make some money on this electricity?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Why, certainly. Certainly. I'm not saying they wouldn't.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Thank you, Mr. Mahoney. I'm still confused, and I suppose it's getting late-that's probably one of the reasons—but I just can't quite—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim, it's not late yet. Don't worry. (Laughter)

DELEGATE AASHEIM: But I think that's the reason for my confusion. But I have driven through Iowa, and Iowa is something like Nebraska-it's kind of conservative--and yet I see smoke coming up in these towns in Iowa, with little rings around, you know, and I inquire what's going on here; how come these plants are operating here in Iowa? And they tell me the city owns the powerplant. Now, I can't understand why it's good in Iowa, why it's so bad in Montana. Mr. McKeon, will he yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McKeon.

DELEGATE McKEON: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I think you have a good plan here, but will you tell me again, what is better about yours than over the original?

DELEGATE McKEON: I-the original one submitted by Mrs. Van Buskirk just provides for counties or cities, as I understand it. Mine provides for districts, so that perhaps one county could band together with another county for a public utility district, instead of just that one county having the district.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Thank you, Mr. McKeon. Needless to say that, in all this confusion, in my fuzziness, I still think either plan sounds pretty good.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney, you've been up for a long time. Would you like to speak?

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Yes, sir. Mr. Chairman, I want to support either the McKeon or the minority plan. I think they're both good. We'll talk first a little bit about the McKeon plan. It is based on public utility districts in Washington and Oregon, which have proved singularly successful. However, there's a lot of talk about financing them. Well, out in Washington they organize these districts, they sell bonds, and just like the Montana Power Company or the Montana-Dakota Utilities or any other private utility does. They sell bonds, and then they-by rates they eventually pay those bonds off. And in Washington and Oregon they pay tax-pay funds in lieu of taxes, and so that's taken care of. And the city of Seattle, where they have city light, they do the same thing. There's no magic in this that the power companies-private power utilities have that the PUDs or the cities cannot also use, and they have used them in other places and they are using them in other places, and they gradually are paying these things off. As I believe Delegate Mahoney spoke about Nebraska, they have statewide power in Nebraska. Two, 3 years ago the province of British Columbia bought out all of the private utilities, I think, in the province of British Columbia and is running them at a profit and gradually will pay them off; have the whole thing and gradually will be able to use the funds derived from the sale of the property-the electrical energy-for building sewers, parks, whatever—zoos, whatever you want. And there's no magic in this. There's no reason why it can't be done in Montana. There probably is some validity in Delegate Mahoney's argument that we might have to take over large districts in order to do it, but it would be a pretty good thing. Talking about the bonds, I recall in a hearing that I attended in Billings of the Montana-Dakota Utilities when they were seeking rate increases, the chief thing that they were asking rate increases for, if my recollection is right and I'm sure it is, was the excessive rate of interest that they were having to pay on new bond issues they were floating to pay off bond issues which were maturing. That's the history all over. That's the history of it in the Montana Power case. They are in the grips of this inflationary movement and they're having to pay more-a higher rate of interest on the new bonds that they're floating in order to take up for the old ones as they come due. And the same thing would happen in the operation and-of PUDs or municipalities if they should happen to be brought into being in the Treasure State. Now, I wish to also address myself to the nationwide recapitulation made by the delegate from Cascade, showing a decrease in the number of public utility districts. My friends, those are not public utility districts. Those were municipal operations. The only PUDs are been-practically are out in Oregon and Washington, and they have not been decreasing in number.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Siderius.

DELEGATE SIDERIUS: Mr. Chairman, I think this would be a great thing for the State of Montana. Look at all the money we would save here instead of sending it back to New Jersey to the stockholders of the Montana Power Company. I think this is tremendous.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Mr. Chairman, maybe I could elaborate a little bit on George's-Mr. Harper's statement that he hit a nerve. I, too, hit a nerve, George, when Mr. O'Connor appeared before our committee. He stated that the Montana Power Company paid a total of $10,474,000 in taxes to these entities, meaning the state. The revenue would be lost forever if that system was taken over. This revenue will have to be made up by some other source, and there is only one other source and that's the taxpayer. Now, how can you tell me that you wouldn't make money on this, like you? And I asked him that, And he said-he hit the nerve on me, too-he said, "Well, Mr. McCarvel, how would you like to pay double school taxes". I says, "I already am. My children all go lo private schools, so," I says, "I have no problem there, Mr. O'Connor." But he got mad at me, and he did send a little apology for the way he treated me.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Skari.

DELEGATE SKARI: Mr. President, would Mr. McKeon yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McKeon?

DELEGATE McKEON: I yield.

DELEGATE SKARI: Mike, in your motion here, is this a mandate to the Legislature to do this, or does this leave an option open for each municipality or district?

DELEGATE McKEON: The intent of this section was to leave the option open to the district; however, this does provide the skeleton for the machinery which should-could be implemented if the option is accepted by the district.

DELEGATE SKARI: May I ask another question, Mr. President [Chairman]?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Skari.

DELEGATE SKARI: Then each, any, or no district, if it chose, or any municipality could refuse to do this? It would be up to them?

DELEGATE McKEON: Certainly. It's a matter of the right to choose. I think that's the essence of the proposal that's before us now. It just gives the district the right to choose. And we're not mandating or compelling anyone to have a public utility district, and perhaps no one will have it; but if somebody does want it, it's there for this district to have.

DELEGATE SKARI: Thank you. Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Skari.

DELEGATE SKARI: I think that local public power systems are alive and well in this country, and they are big business. I think the assets presently exceed $10 billion in public power. I think there are a great many benefits. For example, there are no stockholders. Every dollar of revenue over cost remains in the community, either in lower rates or to offset the increased taxes. I would also submit that the decisions remain at home, too. I think it's a trend away from big business, and I think that's something the country is looking at. And the cost has also proven to be lower. In public power, the average user, residential consumer, in this country used 8,546 kilowatt hours in 1969, at a total cost of a hundred and twenty-three dollars and ninety cents. In private power, each residential consumer used on an average 6,246 kilowatts at a cost of a hundred and thirty-nine dollars and seventy-seven cents. In other words, about a third more power at about eleven and a half percent less cost. The public power cost a dollar and forty-five cents per kilowatt hour; private, two-point-two-one. These are Federal Power Commission statistics. Now, we could ask, why are they lower? For one reason, they are nonprofit-no dividends or federal income tax is paid on this. Public power systems do pay as much in state and local taxes, however, as private power. Now, I would throw this out if someone would question this. This is according to my research. Revenue bonds to finance capital expansion in public power are tax-free, and therefore the interest rates are lower. And it has been shown that these public power systems, local systems, are more efficient in their management. They handle their accounting, their collections, promotion, advertising, administrative and general managerial expenses more economically than the larger private power companies. There are many local contributions from these, too. The lower rates help to offset other costs of government. Often, street lighting is provided at no cost to the city treasury. They often light athletic fields, parks, and other public facilities. I point out that Jacksonville, Florida, has invested $50 million in a new coliseum, auditorium, city hall and street and sewer improvements, and most of this money has been paid for out of the profit from their electric system. Hamilton and Norwalk, Ohio, recently built new city halls; most of the cost paid for by electric company earnings--municipal power. Has the cost of service going-gone up? No. As I indicated, in almost every case these benefits have been provided while the electric rates continued to be lower than those of neighboring private utilities. There is also local industry, local payroll, the purchases are made locally; and here again, we have local control. I think there's tremendous pride in ownership in these cities. I would also mention, too, that when you have this local control, you can pay very careful attention to environmental control in the areas, too. Many of these cities are putting these systems underground because local-because of the local response to this. I think we should allow the option here. Montana is the only-Montana and Hawaii are the only states without this option. I don't know if it would be widely used, but I would like to see it available. I think it also would probably be a fair yardstick at the cost of power distribution in this state. Thank you, Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ward.

DELEGATE WARD: Mr. Chairman. I rise in opposition to this amendment, and I'm going to stay with the majority proposal. I lived in Washington for about 4 years, and I might relate that we had a property tax. I owned a house while going to school there. We had some trouble with the public utility districts, and I might state that they have about a five and a half to six percent sales tax at the present time.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President [Chairman], I'd have to agree with Mr. Aasheim. I'm from the boondocks, too; I'm getting a little fuzzy. But I can remember when we had a public utility in thelittle town that I lived in, and we had a l-horse diesel engine, and we had the one light bulb hanging from the ceiling. And I'm just afraid if you keep monkeying around here, we might go back to that. And also, if you try to buy out Montana Power or some of these others, you're probably going to tax my ranch so much that I can't afford to own it. Thank you, Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to give the committee just one small hint as to why it might be profitable for the people to organize their own power company if they're in the territory of the Montana Power Company. My research analyst and I have been doing a little quick figuring. You know, when the Montana Power Company was organized in 1913, there was incorporated into its capitalization about $20 million in water, and this went into the rate base and was so found in 1944 by the Federal Power Commission and for federal purpose was ordered out of the rate base, but the Montana Public Service Commission kept it. Well, now, the little figuring we did was, what is the present value of that income stream-$1.2 million a year that the Montana Power rate payers have been paying in overcharge for 59 years? It figures out to $679 million. In other words, if the rate payers could have kept that $1.2 million every year and invested it at 6 percent, they could have bought the Montana Power Company in 1972 twice over.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Drum.

DELEGATE DRUM: Mr. Chairman. It's late, and I'm kind of a country boy myself, but I knew this was coming up and I called and got some figures on the thing, and I'm delighted that Mr. Heliker-Delegate Heliker-has brought this situation up. I got a note from Mae Nan a little bit ago, and she said, "How about hearing from a capitalist?" Well, I hope I am not looked upon as being one of those, but I do know something about publicly held companies, Dr. Heliker, and if it's that good a deal, I think we all better go buy some stock. Rut I asked a broker what the Montana Power Company stock was selling for, oh, 5, 6 years ago. It was selling for about $45.38 a share at its high mark. And in today's paper it's about twenty-nine and a half, if you've checked it. And I think the high for this year was $34, and the low was something like 26. Now, for those of you who may not understand the private enterprisesystem here in America, everyone has the opportunity to buy stock in a publicly held company. A publicly held company is regulated pretty much by the SEC, the Security Exchange Commission.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Drum, I don't want to be picking on you, but I really don't see how an explanation of the capital structure of a privately held company has-what that has to do with whether or not we should also have the other. Now, I don't want to be too tough, but I think you really ought to stay on the subject, which is whether or not we should have the language that he puts in Section 7.

DELEGATE DRUM: Don't get-thank you, Mr. Chairman, for the reminder. It reminds me of the story that Ralph Studer might tell—fiddle with the bull and you get a horn in the fanny. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Consider yourself gored, Mr. Drum. (Laughter)

DELEGATE DRUM: Surprise. My point, Mr. Chairman, I would like to come to is that I--really, I don't own any stock in the power company. The only thing I ever hear from them is I get a bill once a month from them. I do an awful lot of business with a bunch of cooperatives. I've got a bunch of feedlots around, and we buy a lot of power, and we get along fine. I get along fine with the power company. I'm not one of their guys, but I do recognize that their position in private enterprise has become a whipping-dog for many who would like to run for office-one who holds an office in Washington. We've heard from many politicians, and the facts are not really clearly presented to you delegates here. You hear these twenty-three and a half percent return on power sales, and this and that and the other. What I am saying is that if this is true, the investors in America would be out here in droves buying that stock. They would come from New Jersey, they would come from everywhere else, to buy Montana Power stock. I submit to you that it's not that big a deal. I don't think they're making as much money as has been presented here on the floor today. I don't think it is as good a deal as a lot of people seem to think it is for a community to get into the power business. Now, not too long ago-and I would like to deviate a little bit, if you will permit me, Mr. Chairman—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'll watch you. Go ahead.

DELEGATE DRUM: I was one of the ones who promoted—or foisted on thecitizens of Yellowstone County a community center, a la Jacksonville, Florida. Now, the power company, I will admit, was not one of our supporters. They didn't bump it, but they sure as the devil didn't support it. But now that it has passed the electorate, I'll tell you, they're going to support it to the extent of about 9 percent of the cost of that thing, because they pay about 9 percent of the taxes in Yellowstone County. They support the schools 9 percent; they support the courthouse 9 percent. And in our county, we have 10 percent of the taxes come from agriculture, 40 percent come from the homeowners, and 50 percent from industry. Almost 10 percent of that is coming from the power company. So when you say that this-all profit is going to New Jersey, it is supporting things like community centers and schools in our county. Now, I asked for some details on the taxes that were paid in various counties. Yellowstone, we get about $900,000 out of them down there; Cascade, you get about a million three hundred; Missoula, about $643,000; in Lewis and Clark it's something like 748,000; Gallatin and Lake Counties are around 500,000. Well, when you talk very loosely about let's go set up a public utility, you are talking about leaving a cavity or a gap in your capital structure of your community. You may foul up your bond schedule, and you may lay some taxes on someone else who are the taxpayers in the area. So what I'm saying is-not that I am a big power company man and I'm not a PUD man, but let's get the record straight here. It may not be as good a deal as you have heard today from some of the bumpers of private enterprise. It is a consideration that should, I think, be in the hands of the Legislature. I think if it is as good a deal as it has been portrayed as being, I think the Legislature at some point will open their arms, put it in the statutes, and go from there. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. McKeon's motion that we substitute a Section 7 that says: "The Legislature shall provide for the organization and financing of public corporations for the maintenance and operation of utilities by municipal, county, or other geographical or political subdivisions".

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATES: Question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, I'm not interested in question, but I wish those that aren't intending to speak would sit down so I can find out who's up.

Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to explain my vote. In the interests of fair play, I signed the minority report, but I'm not voting that way.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, all of you that are up now have been up before. Is there anyone that hasn't been up that would like to get into the act?

Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman, I was glad to hear Mr. Drum come out with a talk like that. I think I can add just a little bit here. We all point our finger at these people and we point how much they're making, and we have politicians in Washington that get in the act. I saw this happen with the sugar farmers down in Big Horn Valley. They were mad at the sugar companies. The sugar companies were robbing them. They was going to build a plant of their own. They was going to do all these things. They had their Congressman working for them. Sugar company shut the plant down, and boy, what I mean, they've been scrambling ever since, too. Their Congressman has been scrambling. He can't do anything. Farmers haven't got any plant now, but they sure do miss that tax base and that sugar check every fall, I'll tell you. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President [Chairman], just one brief statement or question, or however you want to call it. I wonder who really pays the taxes Montana boasts about? Isn't it the people that use the electricity down in the towns and little communities all over? I think that's who pays the taxes that you see advertised in the papers that Montana Power pays, and MDU pays, and so on. It's just the users themselves; it isn't the company.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Siderius.

DELEGATE SIDERIUS: He answered my question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Mr. President [Chairman], it was stated a few moments ago that we had touched a sensitive nerve here, and I don't know whether it was meant for Mr. Mahoney or for myself. We've been the principal speakers on this on behalf of the majority report, but I would like to state for the record, and it might have some effect on the vote, that I do not represent any public utility. I am not in their employ. I have never represented a public utility as a lawyer. I've never appeared before the Public Service Commission in a private capacity, although I have for the city of Great Falls. And I appear here as a delegate to the Constitutional Convention. My sole interest is to write as good a constitution as, in my opinion, we can; and it's my opinion that this matter is legislative. It's my opinion that it is dangerous. And I respectfully urge all of you to very carefully consider the fact that you're dealing with a very technical subject on very inadequate consideration, and I respectfully urge that you delete both of these proposals.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I am receiving electric service from a private utility, and I am very well satisfied with it, and I hope to continue receiving service from this private utility. But I feel that it is the right of any community to make its choice of service. I would like to retract a statement I made awhile ago. I prefer the terminology in the minority report. Consequently, I shall move to delete the McKeon recommendation and in favor of Section 7 as it's in the minority report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You're moving to strike-Mr. McKeon's got an amendment to Mrs. Sullivan's, if I remember correctly.

Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: (Inaudible)—error there. His motion was to delete in the first place, so I'm in error.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: So, I'll have to withdraw my motion; it's incorrect. And I would like to say, then, I would recommend that we vote against the McKeon substitution, in favor of the original.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's actually not Mrs. Sullivan's; it's Mrs. Van Buskirk's; and that's what confused me. The situation is that Mrs. Van Buskirk moved Section 7 on page 29. Mr. McKeon moved to delete it and put his language for Section 7 in place of it. If you want to amend Mr. McKeon's, you can, but I don't think you can amend it by going right back where he started from. So the issue is still on Mr. McKeon's motion. Now, is there anybody who want to talk before Mr. McKeon closes? Mr. McKeon, you may close.

DELEGATE McKEON: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Chairman, I think the real issue here is whether or not we are going to give the people the right to choose. We have heard some speak in favor of the PUDs; we have heard those who are opposed. I think that it is incumbent upon us just to give the people the right to make their own choice, and with that, I close. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you want a roll call vote? Mr. McKeon? Mr. Harper does. All right, we'll have a roll call vote. All in favor of Mr. McKeon's substituted Section 7, vote Aye; and those opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, take the ballot.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 32 delegates have voted Aye, 54 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 54 voting No and 32 Aye, the motion is defeated. The issue is now on Mrs. Van Buskirk's Section 7.

Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I move to amend Section 7 by-on line 31—or page 31, line 2, after "subdivision", to add the words "or other political subdivision"-"or other political subdivision", so that the paragraph will read: "Any county or municipal subdivision or other political subdivision of the state has the power and authority to establish public corporations for the maintenance and operation of utilities, subject to regulations prescribed by law".

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim, I take it your motion is to add, after the first line, "Any county or municipal subdivision or other political subdivision"-so that it's broader than municipal or county subdivisions, is that right?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: That's right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Aasheim's amendment is before the body.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I'm not going to speak very long on this. This is permissive legislation, and there's nothing in here that authorizes a-or dictates to a political subdivision to go ahead. I feel that this is a democracy, and if the people want to try something of this nature, I think that they should have this prerogative. I certainly believe that we should maintain the competitive system in America. I have been a strong supporter of the rural electric co-ops, but I certainly would not want to see the rural electric co-ops have a monopoly in my area, because I think it's to the best interest of all of us that we maintain competition. And I think that if we have a municipality who feels that they can operate their own powerplant or buy electricity from some other source, that they should have this right to do so as any other state in America has that right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any other discussion? Mr. Aasheim, do you want a roll call?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I would like a roll call.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of Mr. Aasheim's amendment, which would add the phrase "or other political subdivision", on line 6, page 29, to Section 7, vote Aye on the voting machines; those that are opposed, vote No on the voting machines. Has every delegate voted?

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 47 delegates have voted Aye, 37 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the amendment prevails and Section 7 now reads: "Any county or municipal subdivision or other political subdivision of the state" et cetera. The issue is on Mrs. Van Buskirk's Section 7.

Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Mr. President [Chairman], I wish to restate my objection to the former one of Mr. McKeon's. This really doesn't mean anything. It's subject to regulations as prescribed by law. The Legislature now has the right to create these districts and give the power to the cities. You adopt this, you clutter up the Constitution. And unless the Legislature wants to make reasonable regulations, it's going to be a dead letter within 2 or 3 years. I resist inserting this into the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harlow.

DELEGATE HARLOW: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. I merely want to state some corrections that may have been made here. The statement was made that there was no prime power available for any municipality that wanted to start a municipality now. That is not correct. Over in the Bonneville area, over west of the Continental Divide, there is prime power available for any municipality that wishes to start any municipal operation. I say that not from hearsay, but from fact. I'm a member of the Bonneville Power Advisory Commission, and I've talked directly with the economist in charge of distributing power-or in charge of seeing that power is available for anyone, so those are not true statements. The tax structure has not collapsed in Idaho, Washington, Oregon or all of the other 48 states that have public utility or municipal districts. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises on Mrs. Van Buskirk's proposed Section 7, on page 29. It would set up-it would authorize county and municipal subdivisions or other political subdivisions of the state to establish public corporations for the maintenance and operation of utilities, subject to regulations prescribed by law. I presume a roll call is desired. All in favor, vote Aye; opposed, No. Has every delegate voted?

Mr. Chairman ..... Aye

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 41 delegates have voted Aye, 43 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 43 delegates having voted No, 41 delegates having vote Aye, the section fails. The Chair has no other proposals for Section 7 before it. The Chair has no other minority reports before it. Mr. Romney, you have a matter before the Chair that you may want reconsidered. Do you want to reconsider Section 1, on page 16 of the Regulation of Public Utilities Article? If so, say so.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, I move to reconsider Section 1. The Chair has the proposal. It has not been printed. It is an effort to compose some of the matters that-Mr. Chairman, I can't seem to find that. Could it be read?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney-if Mr. Romney is allowed to reconsider Section 1, he would put in an amendment that says: "Section 1, Regulatory authority. The Legislature shall provide for a regulatory authority which shall consist of three commissioners who will be elected by the people and whose terms shall be provided by law, but must coincide".

Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: It's a matter to compose the differences between the delegates on this matter. It isn't what I wanted, but it might clear up a difficulty that has recurred over the years. It would-instead of having overlapping terms of whatever the Legislature might fix, it would have a term of whatever years the Legislature might fix and they would be concurrent. That's all I have to say.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Romney's motion to reconsider. Is there discussion?

Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: I'll be brief, Mr. Chairman, but if you put that in, you forever lock it in, so Mr. Heliker's one-man Commissioner or any other type of plan for fixing utility rates would be out the window. So I oppose the motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: I oppose this motion also. A few minutes ago we passed a Consumer Counsel law here, and it said by a special tax on a net income or gross revenue of regulated companies. Now, every municipal water plant in the State of Montana is a regulated company. I think that we ought to use more care, or realize exactly what we are doing, when we pass these hurried-up proposals.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of the motion to reconsider?

Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE McNEIL: Mr. Chairman, briefly, we just voted by roll call vote, 58 to 37, to delete Section 1. Then when a substitute came in; we voted 52 to 35 to delete it. It's still legislative, and I oppose the motion to reconsider.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Romney's motion to reconsider Section 1 of the Regulation of Public Utilities Article. Mr. Romney, I hesitateto put this orally unless I know you don't care.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I'll ask for a roll call and seconds.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of reconsidering Section 1 of the Regulation of Public Utilities, vote Aye; and all opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate want to change his vote?

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 15 delegates have voted Aye, 67 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 67 delegates having voted No and 15 having voted Aye, the motion to reconsider is killed. The Chair has no other motions before it. Mr. Eskildsen, just a moment.

Mrs. Van Buskirk.

DELEGATE VAN BUSKIRK: Before we close, Mr. Chairman, I'd like to say that I pushed the wrong button on R. J. Studer's right-to-work bill.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the record may so show.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman, I want you all to note that I haven't had a thing to say all day. I just listened intently and enjoyed every moment of it, clear up till 8:30. (Laughter) At this time, I would like to move that we pass all other business on Order of Business until the next sitting.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 10. The motion is to pass all other matters on Order of Business Number 10. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman, I move the Committee of the Whole rise and finally report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is that the Committee of the Whole rise and finally report, but I'd like you to stay till we do it. All those in favor of rising and finally reporting on the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry committee proposal, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, if you will stand at ease a moment while we do it.

(Proceedings moved from Committee of the Whole to Convention, President Graybill in Chair)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Members of the Committee, the Chair would like to point out to you that we failed to cover Style and Drafting on Bill of Rights. We failed to cover Judiciary, Natural Resources, Revenue and Finance on Order of Business Number 10—reconsideration of the minor matters in them. We'll take those up in the morning and hope to get them covered on Order of Business Number 5 in the morning, so that they can be worked on by the rest of the staff. We are now at least another day behind, so we'll expect to be here bright and early and working hard in the morning. Will the clerk please read the title and the signature of the committee report.

CLERK SMITH: "March 15th, 1972. Mr. President. We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration Report Number 9 of the Committee on Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee, recommend as follows: that the committee rise and finally report. Signed: Graybill, Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Now, is there anyone that would like the report read in full?

DELEGATES: No.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I move the adoption of the Committeeofthe Wholereport and that Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry proposal be referred to the Committee on Style and Drafting.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to adopt the committee report and refer the Public Health report to Style and Drafting. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered. Mr. Eskildsen-just a moment.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Just a moment.

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: For those of the hard-working Style and Drafting Committee who are still here, and most of them are, we will not meet in the morning.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: But you'll meet all night, so relax. (Laughter)

Mrs. Bates, for what purpose do you arise?

DELEGATE BATES: I just wanted to be off the record. I wanted to thank the group, whoever is responsible, for the collection for Grace Bates' ticket to Australia, leaving immediately. And if you really want me to go, you're going to have to do a lot more, boys. Thank you.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: You're welcome, Grace! (Laughter)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Here, Grace— All right, the motion is to adjourn-have you made the motion? All right, make the motion, please, Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President, I move we adjourn until Thursday, March 16th, 9:00 a.m., 1972.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to adjourn until 9:00 a.m., tomorrow morning. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: And so ordered.

(Convention adjourned at 8:40 p.m.)

March 16, 1972 Forty-Seventh Day Convention Hall
9:10 a.m. Helena, Montana

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Convention will come to order. Reverend Harper has asked Reverend Martin Bauman of the First Lutheran Church of Helena, Montana, to say our invocation for us this morning. Will you all please rise.

REVEREND BAUMAN: Help us, Almighty God, at all times to do the things we ought to do. To that end, give us clear sight that we may know what to do, courage to embark upon it, skill to find a way through all its problems, perseverance to bring it to its appointed end, strength to resist all the temptations which would seek to lure us aside. So help us to begin, to continue, and to end all things in You, our God and Father. May the peace of God which passes all understanding keep our hearts and minds in the knowledge and love of God and of his Son, Jesus Christ, our Lord, and the blessing of Almighty God, the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit be among us and remain with us always. Amen.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Well, the Chair wants to express its thanks to all of you for working so hard and late last night. And I'm glad to see you all up this morning in such good shape. We'll take attendance, to see who isn't here, by voting Aye on the voting machines.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, may Delegates Bates, Conover and Warden beexcused, please?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: They may. Someone put up some extra money and Grace left last night. (Laughter)

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Heliker.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Take the attendance.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 96 delegates present, 3 excused, 1 absent. Mr. Heliker has just walked in.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The journal may show your presence, Mr. Heliker.

CLERK HANSON: 97 delegates present.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. The journal may so show. Order of Business Number 1, Reports of Standing Committees.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. President. We, the Committee on Style, Drafting, Transition and Submission, transmits the Judiciary and Revenue and Finance Articles for further consideration to Order of Business Number 10. Signed: Schiltz, Chairman." "We, the Committee on Style and Drafting, Transition and Submission, transmits the Natural Resources Article to Order of Business Number 5 for final consideration. Signed: Schiltz, Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Natural-let's see-Judiciary and Revenue and Finance to go to 10; Natural Resources is assigned to 5. So that we'll all understand what we're doing here, on Judiciary and Revenue and Finance, the Style and Drafting Committee asked to have them back. On one of them we found an extra half section, and on the other one they wanted to look at it. We will, in a few minutes here, proceed to Order of Business Number 10 and clean up those two on Order of Business Number 10 and refer them back to 5. And then, we hope to cover first this morning, or maybe I should say second, Judiciary, Natural Resources, and Revenue and Finance on Order of Business Number 5, Final Adoption, this morning. Mr. Clerk, how about the other?

CLERK HANSON: "Montana Constitutional Convention, 1971-1972. Committee on Style and Drafting, Transition and Submission Proposal Number 13, reported March 16, 1972. The Committee on Style, Drafting, Transition and Submission submits a unanimous proposal entitled 'Compact with United States'. Signed: John M. Schiltz, Chairman." Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: This has been placed on your desks this morning. This is Style and Drafting's report on the ordinances. It'll be placed on Order of Business Number 10, to remain there for 48 hours. Very well. Order of Business Number 2, Reports of Select Committees.

CLERK HANSON: None, sir.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 3, Communications.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 4, Introduction and Reference of Delegate Proposals.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 5. Without objection, we'll pass Order of Business Number 5 until we have cleaned up the Judiciary and Revenue and Finance Articles on 10 in a few moments. Is there objection? Very well. We'll pass Order of Business Number 5. Order of Business Number 6, Adoption.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 7, Motions and Resolutions. We have two resolutions this morning.

Mr. Murray, do you want the Chair to read 13?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Yes, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read Resolution Number 13.

CLERK HANSON: "Montana Constitutional Convention, 1971-72. Resolution Number 13, introduced March 15th, 1972. Be it resolved by the Constitutional Convention of the State of Montana that a select committee composed of delegates hereinafter named be appointed by the President for the purpose of preparing for and arranging of appropriate final ceremonies to be held upon the conclusion of this Convention. Delegates to serve are J.C. Garlington, Chairman; Paul K. Harlow, Clark E. Simon, Lucile Speer, Veronica Sullivan. Introduced by Committee on Rules and Resolutions, Marshall Murray, Chairman."

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President. I'm sure that all the delegates have reviewed the memorandum of March 13, 1972, to them from you. It was placed on the desks a day or two ago. There have been newspaper stories as the result of the public hearing which the Rules and Resolutions Committee held on this matter. We have, this morning, Resolutions 13 and 14 from the Rules Committee, and they were recommended unanimously by the committees. In accordance with your memorandum, this particular resolution—Resolution Number 13-is simply for the purpose of appointing, through you, a select committee to prepare for and arrange appropriate final ceremonies to be held upon the conclusion of this Convention, which it would appear now to be sometime between Wednesday and Friday, depending upon who you talk to and whether or not it's Mr. Schiltz or the President. But sometime next week, and hopefully not later than Friday, we anticipate a motion adjournment sine die. We would like to have some type of an appropriate ceremony, and the resolution is simply for that purpose. I believe it needs no further explanation, and I would move at this time that Resolution Number 13 be adopted.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Is there discussion of Resolution Number 13? Very well. All in favor of Resolution Number 13, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered, Resolution Number 13 is adopted. Will the clerk please read Resolution Number 14.

CLERK HANSON: "Montana Constitutional Convention, 1971-1972. Resolution Number 14, introduced March 15th, 1972. Whereas the Montana Constitutional Convention has nearly completed its substantive activities and is making arrangements for adjournment sine die in order to meet its election date commitment of June 6, 1972; and whereas prior to adjournment sine die the Convention will be able to complete its procedural, administrative and voter education affairs, all of which must be concluded in orderly and reasonable manner; and whereas the Convention anticipates that it will need to establish an appropriate committee to manage and conclude all of its procedural, administrative and voter education affairs after adjournment sine die. Now, therefore, it is resolved by the Constitutional Convention of the State of Montana as follows: One, the Convention hereby creates a committee to act with the President of the Convention on its behalf after adjournment sine die, delegating to it full authority to manage and conclude all the Convention's procedural, administrative and voter education affairs and to spend the Convention's funds therefor, but only within the limits of its appropriation and such funds as the Convention may have. Number two, the Convention hereby appoints to said committee the President, Leo Graybill, Jr., who shall act as its Chairman, and the following delegates: John Toole, Dorothy Eck, Bruce Brown, Jean Bowman, Margaret Warden, Fred Martin, Robert Vermillion, Katie Payne, Betty Babcock, Marshall Murray, Catherine Pemberton, John Schiltz, Tom Joyce, George Harper, Bill Burkhardt, Jerome Loendorf, Oscar Anderson and Gene Harbaugh. Number three, no delegate may serve on the committee who speak-shall seek public office in the primary election to be held on June 6th, 1972. The President, as Chairman of the committee, shall have authority to substitute other Convention delegates for any committee member named herein who may decide to seek public office. Number four, the Convention hereby delegates the authority to the committee to receive, disburse, and account for all federal funds which the Convention may receive. Number five, the Convention also delegates authority to the committee to supervise and edit any and all voter education material prepared on behalf of the Convention or by other persons related-relative to the work of the Convention. Number six, the committee shall terminate its work at such time as all the Convention procedural, administrative and educational affairs have been completed and all requirements of the Enabling Act have been met. Introduced by Committee on Rules and Resolutions, Marshall Murray, Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move the adoption of Resolution Number 14.

Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: By way of explanation, let me say that this is again the result of your memorandum of March 13th, 1972, to all of the delegates. This matter was referred to the Rules Committee. A public hearing was held. Those interested in the matter did appear, and we did discuss this situation in detail. It does-and the Rules Committee unanimously recommended that this resolution be adopted. It appears quite clearly at this stage of the Convention that we will not be able to complete all of our procedural and administrative affairs, although we will have, at the time of adjournment sine die, completed the Constitution. Because of these details, it appears necessary to establish some-an appropriate committee, as we call it in the resolution--whatever title we decide we should give to it-to handle these matters after the adjournment. Now, let me explain, with respect to the voter information pamphlet, a problem that we have. At 10 o'clock this morning, we will be receiving bids for the printing of this particular document. At this state of the Convention, we do not have all of the work connected with that document completed. It is anticipated we may not have all of the arrangements with respect to that document completed by adjournment sine die. We have the report from the Convention to the people; we have the explanation of the various sections; and these particular matters concern us as to whether or not we will be able to achieve their completion by the date of adjournment. And we have certain other matters relative to the election itself, which we have decided should be on June 6, 1972, which somebody has to oversee, from this Convention. We think that the matter should be handled by a committee delegated the appropriate power to do so. We also know that we will be the recipient of approximately $30,000 in federal funds which we have not received. If we do not receive and disburse these funds and account for them prior to adjournment sine die, it is doubtful that the federal authorities would give us the money unless we have created a body that could handle this and which would have delegated by this Convention the authority to receive and disburse it and account for it. And that's another reason we think we need it. We also know that in the handling of whatever voter educational affairs that this Convention might undertake, that we will not be able to get to those until after adjournment sine die. We know that there is great interest amongst the delegates to have this work done in an informational and educationalmanner only, and not for the purpose of selling it nor to put anything out to the public which might be slanted in any way, but hopefully for the purpose merely of explanation. We want to make sure that we have somebody charged with the authority to edit and handle these matters so that that educational program will be conducted in the fair, impartial manner that this body has indicated it would like to have it handled. We feel that this committee is composed of delegates who have the best interests of this Convention at heart and would do this job. Now, let me say that, first of all, as you read down the list of names, you will see that all of the elected officers are listed-all of the elected officers. We have then named four delegates from Helena, because we feel that they will be here-most available to the President and to the Vice-president, both of whom will be working two or three days a week until the election, without expenses or charge to us. And we feel that they need a nucleus of this particular committee to work with from day to day; the Helena people will be available for that purpose. Then there are others who have been either connected with the Public Information Committee, who are skilled with the media—Margaret Warden, of course, who is the Chairman of that committee; Fred Martin, from a newspaper standpoint; Robert Vermillion from the other media, particularly radio; and a few of us who are concerned about making sure that this be handled in a proper matter. And we feel that the committee is representative of the political makeup of this Convention; that it is neither liberal nor conservative if you cross party lines in that fashion; and that it certainly should not be made up of anybody who is willing to-or at this time or may prior to the time of this election or prior to April 17th—I think is the date-intend to file for public office in this state, because we do not think it would be in the best interests of the Convention for somebody to be serving on an interim committee, an ad hoc committee such as this might be, with this authority and also attempt to further their own personal political interests. And so, paragraph 3 provides the necessary power in the President to substitute some other Convention delegate for anybody who may choose-who is named on this committee who may choose to seek public office after their appointment to the committee. Now we-with reference to paragraph 4, we specifically delegate authority to the committee to receive, disburse and account for federal funds, because we think that if we do not mention this specifically, we may have a problem in the receipt of those funds. We do not desire to have any problem in that respect. Now, the last part is, the Convention also delegates authority to the committee to supervise and edit any and all voter educational materials prepared on behalf of the Convention. I'm talking about those materials which will not be prepared and which you will not have seen prior to adjournment sine die. And for the reasons that I have previously stated, I think this committee will have the interest of this Convention at heart, and also the interest of the citizens of the State of Montana, so that this work will be done in an informational and educational manner and will not be of a selling-type proposition. Also, we think in paragraph 6 we should provide for the termination of this committee, but not at such time until the requirements of the Enabling Act have been met. Now, the Enabling Act requires us to do some things with certain documents-the journal, the verbatim transcripts of this Convention-and somebody should be authorized to make sure that these matters are concluded in reasonable fashion. Now, all of this, in addition to what I have said, requires the retention of some staff. And we will-we anticipate that we will need one stenographer-this is after Style has completed its work if they haven't completed all of it-but we will need one stenographer. We probably will need one or two other people who will be helping us in various manners, and at such time, of course, as their work is completed they would be terminated. With respect to the federal funds, we know that we will need some type of coordinator and bookkeeper for that purpose, and we anticipate that we will have to keep somebody working on the payroll until that job is completed. Now, of course, when you have staff you have to pay their bills, and that's another thing that the committee would undertake. And I think, as briefly as I can, that does explain the reason for the appointment of a committee. The Rules Committee did not believe that the President should appoint this particular committee as we sort of authorized in Resolution Number 13, but that it should be a Convention committee. And I'm available to answer any questions at this time. Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Before the questions, may the President address himself simply to Number 3 for a moment? The list of people that I suggested there, Mr. Murray has explained. But I would like to make it clear that I don't mean to leave anybody out, but we can't all be on the committee unless we all want to stay. And there will be many opportunities for the rest of us to still serve in the educational capacity, particularly if the plans for the television panels go on. We'll certainly use as many of you as we can there, and there will be plenty of other opportunities for you to work in your committee. And we certainly expect and need all of you to help as you can, and I don't want anyone to feel left out. We did put all the officers, we put all the active committee heads of the Public Information Committee, we put, as he said, several from Helena here so there'd be a nucleus, and then we balanced it out with a few people from corners of the state which were not otherwise very well covered. But I certainly don't want anyone to be offended by the fact that they got left off the committee. The only other point I'd like to make is that-and Mr. Murray explained-that the HUD people and the planning board do insist we have somebody to give this money to. The problem is there isn't any possibility of getting the money now. The money-the federal funds-can't be pipelined in time to get here before we adjourn, so we have to have the committee that has a kind of a continuing existence so that when the funds get here, they can be disbursed. Now let's discuss it.

Mr. Mahoney, I saw you up.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman [President]. In line 27 in Section 1, would-could somebody answer what you mean by "limits of its appropriations and such other funds as the Convention may have".

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Do you want me to do that, Mr. Murray, or you?

DELEGATE MURRAY: No, go ahead.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: We do-the appropriation is 499 plus a thousand dollars. We do have other funds. We have made about $3,000 selling reports and selling things through the concession out here, and that means that that money could be spent. And third, it applies to the federal funds. In other words, "such other funds" would include the federal funds if we got them. So the total sources of funds that we have are the $499,000 appropriation, the potential 30,000 in federal funds, and something in the nature of $3,000 that we've made-earned during the Convention for selling the total packets-we made about 3,000 selling the total Convention reports like the Legislature does-and then we've made about four or five hundred dollars selling, at a quarter a page and 10 cents a sheet, on the mimeograph. So that just is a line to include the rest of those funds, Charley.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: All I'd like to do is I don't want any donations coming in from the outside into this. I think this-if we're going to have this Convention, I don't want to see pressure groups--and if they want, let them have it. I don't want it mixed with this. This is all I'm trying to do is to get it in the record.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Right. Anything of that nature, you certainly would be advised of. And you do know, of course-it's been in all the literature-that we have the—Bozeman has a grant and is putting out this one tabloid with the grant money that the University has. Other than that, everything's been explained before. And there are no-nobody's come forward with any other money, and if they did, we certainly would have the committee advise this body. We don't want this body accepting money from people that they don't know about.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Well, Mr. Chairman [President], the only thing I have-and this became a new radical procedure 2 years ago, or at the time of the adoption of this Constitutional Convention and the 20 boards. This is the first time in the history of the State of Montana that we had ever taken public funds to sell something. And I still question that. Now, if this here Convention goes out-and I'm sure you're going to present this in a fair and honest, logical way-but I always think that maybe his majesty's loyal opposition maybe should be taken into consideration at the time of the selling of things; that maybe there is another side, than maybe this Convention's side, or-and that-this is what's bothering me, is this new procedure that we have now developed in the last 3 years to come out here and now taking state funds. And this acts to me that we're taking funds to sell something to the public, and I wonder at times. Now, I have no objection to this. I think it's been fine. I certainly have no objection to the committee and that, but I just want to get this in the record that I'm not too strong to take public funds-1 don't care whether federal or state or where they came from-to sell something to the people when maybe—

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney. The Chair would like to point out that I purposely put the author of the motion, Mr. Schiltz, on this committee, and I expect to have lots of trouble.

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman [President]. I just want to suggest that the committee, when they put out the printing for bids, I think they should be very careful of the bidders, just to make sure they don't have a conflict of interest. (Laughter)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Well, we've already scratched Romney's and Martin's bids.

Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. President. Would you or Mr. Murray explain the last sentence-or last portion of the sentence of paragraph 5 on lines 17 and 18, "or by other persons relative to the work of the Convention". This has to do with the editing and supervision.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Right. There's a-right now, for example, we have some staff members working on material that will go in—that will be part of the public information of the Convention. For example, Mrs. Dowling is now working on the explanation for the voter information pamphlet of each section. And this means that someone on behalf of the committee will edit that. So in other words, we have staff people that are doing that. Secondly, it is very likely that in order to put this thing together, we're going to need agency help in terms of getting time and—media time and media layout ready. If we do any media layout, for example for an advertisement, the point is that it would have to be proofed by this committee or some subcommittee of the committee before it could be put out. It cannot be put out by an agency or an artist without our having approved it.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: May I further explain, too, that there may be people who want to do some work with respect to what we have done here by way of information, that would come to some of us and would say, "Is this done fairly, or is it done accurately"? And this committee, I think, should have the authority to judge that matter and to edit it and to make sure that it is. Now, I think of-one thing in this respect particularly is the Montana State University project and the tabloid that they're going to put out. Now, if we should, in any way supplement this, then I think we should have the right to edit it, and this gives the authority to the committee for that purpose.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: This isn't particularly a concern, but I can foresee that it could conceivably happen. While this committee is working-and I think it's a great idea-1 presume in all of the areas of the state there will be other kinds of information in which delegates will be invited to participate, in radio, TV, et cetera, and my only concern was here that you may find a conflict of opinion between individual delegates on some of these programs as compared to the activity of this committee. And I wanted to be sure that this is in the record and that there were no possible conflict here; that, conceivably, you will find some conflict between now and the time the thing is ratified or killed.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Furlong, your discussion raises a horrible thought in the President's mind. We certainly don't intend to tell any of you what to say when you get back home. Perish the thought! Is thereotherdiscussion of the resolution?

Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman [President]. You are aware, of course, that I had a resolution that I was trying to present. And I wondered if this wouldn't—

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: It's coming up next, and it will be referred. And of course, it may override all of this; I'm not saying it wouldn't. But it's the next item on the business, Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Thank you.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. All in favor of this resolution, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right, this resolution is adopted. Will the clerk read Mr. Johnson's resolution.

CLERK HANSON: "Montana Constitutional Convention, 1971-1972, Delegate Resolution Number 15, introduced March 15th, 1972. The resolution of the Constitutional Convention of the State of Montana for the members torecessforthe purpose of evaluating the entire document."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: They haven't been read in their entirety, but I think it ought to be read in its entirety. Yeah, please read it.

CLERK HANSON: "Whereas this Constitutional Convention has cost the State of Montana $700,000 in money and has cost its delegates about 8 months of their lives devoted to study and research in the field of constitutional government; and whereas we certainly do not want to waste the effort, money or time involved. Therefore, I move this Convention consider the following: The Montana Constitutional Convention shall, after completing debate on the proposed new Constitution, recess for 5 months to August 15th, 1972, and then convene and reconsider our new proposed Constitution in its entirety. After this interim, used for knowledgeable consideration and observation, we will complete a superior document more worthy of this dedicated group of delegates and more worthy of Montana. Introduced by Torrey B. Johnson." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. You've heard Mr. Johnson's resolution. Mr. Johnson's resolution, under the rules-Mr. Johnson, I'm going to refer that to the Rules Committee, under the rules, and the Rules Committee should hold a hearing or a meeting on it. And I hope that you can announce before we adjourn today when your meeting will be, and we'll bring it back as fast as we can. Can you tell us now?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President. The Rules Committee will meet on that resolution at 8:15 tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: 8:15 tomorrow morning. So, anybody that has any viewpoint on that or wants to discuss that with the Rules Committee, see them at 8:15 tomorrow morning,

And thereafter, the Rules Committee will bring Mr. Johnson's resolution back to this body for discussion. Is that satisfactory, Mr. Johnson?

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Yes.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. All right, are there other rules or resolutions?

CLERK HANSON: None, sir.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 8, Unfinished Business.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 9, Special Orders of the Day.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 10, General Orders of the Day.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I move the Convention resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for the purpose of handling business under General Orders. Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to resolve this Convention into Committee of the Whole.

Mrs. Pemberton, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: Mr. President. I didn't know where this came in the order of business. Mrs. Warden left a memorandum with me last night concerning the pictures of the Convention. It is still possible to order a few more. I have the blanks here on my desk, but they must go in almost immediately to Miss Harrison's office. Thank you.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen. The Chair suddenly remembers something else we didn't do. I wonder if we might revert to Order of Business Number 3, without objection, Communications. It has been our practice to put a note in the journal about our distinguished speaker series. And I would like the journal to show that on Tuesday night, this Convention had as the final speaker on its distinguished speaker series, Miss Jeannette Rankin, who addressed delegates here in Convention Hall, answered questions, and provided the delegates with an entertaining evening. I'd like that note to show in the journal, and I'm sorry I missed it yesterday. Does everyone understand Mrs. Pemberton's announcement? Other pictures are available. See her if you haven't taken care of your pictures. Mrs. Pemberton, did that mean other pictures or the same pictures'

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: Mr. President. These are the same pictures of the committees and the Convention. And they have-they will take orders now. You also have to put 50 cents additional charges with them for mailing, because the shop can't get them out in time before the Convention. Thank you.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. It's the same pictures, but if you missed the deadline, here's your chance again. All right. Now may we be back on Order of Business Number 10, without objection.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President. I move the Convention resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for the purpose of handling business under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to resolve ourselves into Committee of the Whole. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Committee of the Whole, Delegate Graybill, Chairman)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The business before us on Committee of the Whole this morning is, first, consideration of the Judiciary Article. Mr. Schiltz, do you want to explain what part of the Judiciary Article, Order of Business Number 5?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Before you do that, let's point out to everybody that we're talking about the white paper with no cover, styled Order of Business Number 5, and then Final Consideration, Style and Drafting Judiciary Number 5. And you will need, shortly, the one on Revenue and Finance and, shortly, the one on Natural Resources, so you might start looking.

Now, Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. We're concerned, on the Judiciary, only with Section 14, which you will recall was added in the Committee of the Whole debate the other day. And that necessitated that Section 14 go to Style and Drafting for style and drafting. It's on the back of the papers you have.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Page 6.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Right. Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14, Order of Business Number 5, of Style and Drafting Judiciary Article, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. We just made this conform to the other language in the article and in other articles, changed "Legislative Assembly" to "Legislature", and made "Chief Justices" and "Justices" to conform with Section 3.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of the Style and Drafting changes on Section 14? Very well. All in favor—

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President [Chairman]. I would like Mr. Schiltz to explain for the record the meaning of the last sentence of Section 14 where he-where it's stated that no candidates shall extend (expend] money in a campaign in excess of the amount appropriated and authorized by the Legislature. Would that mean that no money can be spent in either the general or the primary campaign unless it's authorized by the Legislature, or does that refer only to the general campaign?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, so far as I'm concerned, Mr. Habedank, it means only for the general election campaign which is referred to above.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman. I've talked to a number of Legislators about this in the last few days. They seem to be of the unanimous opinion they will appropriate $1. I don't want to bring this whole thing up again, but what happens then?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I think we're-

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right. I think that's out of order. It's not style and drafting. Are there other questions about the style or drafting?

Mr. Nutting.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Mr. Chairman. Would Mr. Schiltz yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE NUTTING: Did you place the word "acting" in? It's underlined.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Oh, yes, that's put in. That's new material, right.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Would he yield to another question?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Would that-the way it's worded, would that be-say if I do it on behalf of myself, would I—could I then contribute? I'm not acting on his behalf.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, I-not so far as I'm concerned. I wouldn't think that's—

DELEGATE NUTTING: You wouldn't interpret it that way?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: No.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Okay.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there any other consideration or discussion of Section 14, Style and Drafting? Very well. All in favor of Section 14 as reported by Style and Drafting, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Mr. Schiltz, do you want to move the Judiciary Article to Order of Business Number 5?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes. I move that the Judiciary Article go to Order of Business Number 5.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. You have before you for your consideration the Judiciary Article as reported back from Style and Drafting after we've changed-or after we've reconsidered-or after we've considered Section 14, having previously considered all the other sections, and Mr. Schiltz's recommendation that it now be referred to Order of Business Number 5. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Schiltz-

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I don't think we adopted the language either. That was my first motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, you made a motion.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I made the motion, but I don't think you voted it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You're talking about Section 14?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes. Did we vote on that?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We sure did.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Oh, okay.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I wrote it down.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Now we're ready for Revenue and Finance.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You get those lapses, Mr. Schiltz. I have them myself.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: After 6 hours' sleep, I have them all the time.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I had mine—more of them yesterday than usual. All right, now, if you'll take, for style and drafting purposes, the—Order of Business Number 5, Revenue and Finance Number 7, in hand. Mr. Schiltz, Order of Business Number 5, Revenue and Finance Number 7, was referred back to the committee.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Right. Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 13 of the Revenue and Finance Article, that it recommend the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. If the delegates will refer to page 3, Section 13—we lost Section 2 somewhere and found it again and restyled it. These are just minorstylechanges; "by the state", on line 23, is added.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz, let's take it one at a time. Section 13, sub. 1, you've put in a sub. 1, is that right?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: We've put in a sub. 1, that's right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 13, sub. 1, as amended, with the sub. 1 added, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted, Now—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Now, we're on sub. 2. And I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 13, sub. 2, that it recommend the same be adopted as amended. Minor style changes throughout.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, sub. 2 does consist of itself plus A, B, and C—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: A, B and C.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -which we don't consider subs. Is there any question about the style and drafting in sub. 2? Very well. All in favor of adopting Section 13, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that Style and Drafting report concerning Revenue and Finance be referred to Order of Business Number 10.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The motion is to refer the Style and Drafting Revenue and Finance Report Number 7 back to Order of Business Number 10—5. Mr. Schiltz, may I?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I'm sorry—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right--refer it to Order of Business Number 5, Final Adoption. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered. Mr. Eskildsen, I move-I'd like to have the committee rise and finally report.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman. I move the committee rise and finally report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of rising and finally reporting on these two items, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Proceedings moved from Committee of the Whole to Convention, President Graybill in Chair)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read the committee reports.

CLERK HANSON: "March 16, 1972. Mr. President. We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration business under General Orders, recommend as follows: that the committee rise and finally report. Signed: Gray bill, Chairman."

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Just a minute. Does anyone want the report read in full? Very well. Mr.-

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I move the adoption of the Committee of the Whole report.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to adopt the Committee of the Whole report. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed.
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Now, without objection, we are on Order of Business Number 10. Without objection, I'd like to revert to Order of Business Number 5 to take on final consideration of these three matters. Is there objection? Very well, we're on Order of Business Number 5. And the first one up is the Judiciary Article, the same thing we just worked on. Order of Business Number 5, Final Consideration, Style and Drafting, Judiciary Number 5. And now is the time for final adoption. These are all roll call votes. You'll recall that our style is that I ask for the clerk to read the section. He reads the title only. We then call for the vote; we then take it on the voting machines and see what happens. Very well. Mr. Clerk, will you read the title of the report and Section 1 of the Judiciary Article.

CLERK HANSON: "Order of Business Number 5, Final Consideration, Style and Drafting, Judiciary Number 5. Article, the Judiciary. Section 1, Judicial powers." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Section 1 of the Judiciary Article, vote Aye on the voting machines; opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Any delegate wish to change his vote?
(No response)

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 91 delegates voting Aye, no delegates voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Section 6 is adopted. Section 7.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman [President].

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: I had a lapse or something. I meant to vote Aye, and I was gazing off at the Indians. (Laughter)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. James. The record may show thatyouvoted-that you wanted to vote Aye on Section 6.

Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: I was meandering and didn't vote. I vote Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right. Let's record Mr. James and Mr. Martin as Aye on that last one. That makes it Section 6, 93. I don't want to disturb you people-(Laughter)-but if you want to vote, now is the time. Okay. Section 7.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 7, Terms and pay", containing two subsections. Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Section 7, vote Aye on the voting machines; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does any delegate want to change his vote?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, take the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 49 delegates voting Aye, 46 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: 49 having voted Aye, 46 having voted No, I think it's failed. Is that right? Where is the roll? "The Convention shall finally consider individual articles on Order of Business Number 5, section by section, by a majority of elected delegates and refer the said articles to the Committee on Style." No-"by a majority of the elected delegates", so it's failed.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman [President].

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I would call for a call of the Convention, please.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Five-how many-four, five, six, seven-how many did we have absent today? The motion is for a call of the Convention. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right. Notify the Sergeant-at-Arms.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I think we've already taken this vote. Unless we at some other time reconsider, why, this vote has all gone by.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Right, we have, and we'll give these people the same chance as the others had the other day. If they want to, they may move to suspend and get everybody to vote on it. And then, if it fails, it fails; if it passes, it passes. Will everyone indicate their presence by voting Aye on the voting machines. Who's absent, Mr. Clerk? Cate?—

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Murray and Delegate Rebal.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right. Murray is around and Rebal is around. Let's just send the Sergeant for Murray. He may be down at the-is Murray in the Rules Committee?

Mr. Dahood, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. President, Mr. Murray was on our committee; notified me that he could be found at printing.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Let's have the Sergeant check for Mr. Murray in printing. I think he's at-I'll tell you where he is. Check the Secretary of State's office for-he's taking bids. (Long pause in proceedings) The Convention will be in order.

Mr. Eskildsen, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Progress having been shown, I move we dispense with the call of the house-call of the Convention.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, the Chair would like to-before we do that, the Chair would like to-now, would you please indicate your presence on the voting machines again, please. Please vote Aye on the voting machines if you're present. All right, who's not present that isn't excused?

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Babcock. She's here now. That's it.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right, now there's three excused? Very well. All are here. The motion is to stop the call of the house. Is that it? What's the word you want?

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Progress having been shown, I move that the call of the house be dispensed with.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to dispense with the call of the house, progress having been shown. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Now, the Chair sees the situation as similarto one we had the other day, and I simply want to give everybody a third chance. What we did the other day at this point was have a motion to suspend the rules. If that passes, then we have a motion to reconsider. If that passes, then we vote on Section 14 again, and it either passes or fails. Anyone care to make a motion to suspend the rules?

Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman [President]. I make a motion to suspend the rules.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: For the purpose of—

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: --reconsidering the last ballot.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: --on Section 14 of the Judicial Article, Mr. Campbell?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: That is correct.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. The motion is to suspend the rules by-to reconsider Section 14 of the Judicial Article again. So many as shall be in favor of that, vote Aye on the voting machines; so many shall be opposed, vote No. This is not a roll call, but it's a tally. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, 58 having voted in favor of suspending the rules and 37 having voted against it, that motion prevails; it needing only a majority. Very well. Is there a motion to reconsider?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman [President].

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I move to reconsider to vote on Section 14 of the Judicial Article.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell, did you vote on the prevailing side or not?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Now, the prevailing side was those who voted-the Chair will rule--was those who voted with the-what was my vote?

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President. It would be those that had voted No, if you're going to rule the same way as you ruled-did the other day.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Yes, it would be those who voted No, and that was the 46. Mr.— All right, it would be those who voted Yes. No, 49 voted Yes and 46 voted No. Now, just a minute. I'll think it out. (Laughter) It's those who voted Yes, because they did not prevail. Those who voted No so far have prevailed. Those who voted Yes-So, anybody that voted Yes-and I suppose, Mr. Campbell, you voted Yes?

Mr. Eskildsen, I'll hear you.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President. When we went through this yesterday or the day before, it was the side that lost was the-or the side that voted No that was the prevailing side. The side that voted 46.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: That's right, but the situation was different than it is today. Today—

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: No, it isn't, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Now, will you listen to me, and I'll listen to you?

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: All right.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Today-the other day, the people that were against it were in the majority. No? Well, I ruled the other day that the people who had wanted the section passed had not prevailed. Now, the people who want this section passed are the 49, and they did not prevail; so they're the ones that lost. That's really the substance of my vote the other day. Now we can solve this in two manners: you can either challenge my ruling, or is there somebody on the other side that will make a motion to reconsider?

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: (Inaudible)— and I think it should be-1 think we should be consistent. We had the same vote. The reason it lost is because we did not have 51 votes. It lost for that reason.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Right.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: And this is the reason you give the day before yesterday or whenever it was-that the side that needed the 51 votes lost even though they had the most votes, so the other side were the ones that had to redo there-considering. So it would be the people who-that voted red that would have to reconsider this.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Oh, that's right. I think you're right, Mr. Eskildsen. The Chair has now seen the error of his ways.

Mr. Driscoll.

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: Mr. Chairman [President]. Having voted on the prevailing side in voting Nay, and going to continue to vote Nay, I offer a motion to reconsider.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Driscoll has moved to reconsider Section 14 of the Judicial Article. So many as shall be in favor of voting-of reconsidering, vote Aye on the voting machine for a nonrecorded tally vote; and so many as shall not be in favor, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well; 56 have voted to reconsider and 41 have voted not to reconsider.

Now, Mr. Campbell, do you want to make a motion? Or-let's see-yes, we need a motion for the adoption of Section 14.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I make a motion for the adoption of Section 14 of the Judicial Article.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Campbell has moved to adopt Section 14 of the Judicial Article, entitled "Campaign expenses". This will be a roll call vote. So many as in favor of adopting it, vote Aye; so many as opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll take the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 49 voting Aye, 48 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: 49 having voted Aye and 48 having voted No, under Rule—what's the number of the rule, John? Under Rule 51, which requires that a majority of the delegates favor a section on final adoption--under Rule 51, Section 14 fails, and it will be deleted from the Judicial Article. Very well. That wasn't so hard, now, was it?

Mr. Murray, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I rise for two purposes. One, to apologize to the Convention for not being here and-at the time of a crucial situation; and secondly, for the record so that it will show that I was not here unintentionally. I ask to be forgiven for purpose of the record, because I was in the Purchasing Department assisting with the opening of bids on the voter information pamphlet.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. You may be reexcused, Mr. Murray, if you need to. Very well, we've passed the Judicial Article, all except Section 14. Sections 1 through 13 of the Judicial Article have passed, and we'll send it to Style and Drafting--refer it to Style and Drafting for inclusion in the final document. Now, if you'll take your Order of Business Number 5, Environment and Natural Resources Number 6. Very well, we'll consider on final adoption, section by section, the Environmental and Natural Resources Article. I don't know about your copy, but my copy, on line 5, says Section 5, "Protection". That-you want to watch that-correct that "r" there; it looks like "pp" to me, but we'll correct it. Very well, will the clerk please read the title and Section 1 of the article.

CLERK HANSON: "Order of Business Number 5, Final Consideration, Style and Drafting Environment and Natural Resources Number 6. Article, Environment and Natural Resources. Section 1, Protection and improvement", containing three subsections. Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Section 1 and the three subsections, please vote Aye on the voting machines; so many as are opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

Mrs. Cross, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE CROSS: Mr. Chairman [President]. I'd like to explain my vote.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: You may.

DELEGATE CROSS: Since half a loaf is better than none, I'm voting Aye. (Laughter)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Pretty big loaf, Mrs. Cross. Close the ballot and take the vote.

Mr. McNeil, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman [President], I rise to explain my vote.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: You may explain it.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman [President]. I supported the Eskildsen amendment to keep in the Board of Equalization. I supported the Swanberg amendment to keep some limitation on state debt. I supported the Aasheim amendment to keep the maximum 2-mill levy for the imposition of a-for the support of state government by a mill levy on property taxes. There is no way I can support a Revenue and Finance Article in which the only limitation on spending is the imagination of the Legislature-Dagwood, in the comic strip-and I agree that's like giving a monkey his own banana plantation.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Have all the delegates voted?

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, Joyce voting Aye; 76 delegates voting Aye, 16 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: 76 having voted Aye and 16 No, Section 13 is adopted. You've now adopted all thirteen articles of the Revenue and Finance-thirteen sections of the Revenue and Finance Article. The Chair will refer it to Style and Drafting for inclusion in the final document. Very well. We've finished with the items on Order of Business Number 5 that we had to deal with today. Without objection, we'll proceed back to Order of Business Number 7. Is there objection? I mean Number 10—Number 10, excuse me.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President. I move the Convention resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the purpose of handling business under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to resolve this Convention into Committee of the Whole. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Committee of the Whole)

CLERK HANSON: "March 16th, 1972. The following committee proposals are now on General Orders: Local Government, General Government, Style and Drafting Report Number 8 of Education, and Style and Drafting Number 10, Education." Eight is Bill of Rights.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Members of the committee, the only Style and Drafting report that's been on General Orders 48 hours is Bill of Rights. Education will be up tomorrow; that is, its 48 hours will be up tomorrow. If you'll all take your Bill of Rights Style and Drafting report and turn therein to page 9—use page 9 if you want to see the changes the committee made. You'll recall that the manner in which we do this is to read the title, turn it over to the Chairman, the Chairman explains it. We take a voice vote unless a roll call is called for. Will the clerk please read the title and Preamble of the Bill of Rights Proposal Number 8.

CLERK HANSON: "Montana Constitution Convention, 1971-1972. Report of Committee on Style, Drafting, Transition and Submission on Bill of Rights Number 8, reported March 13, 1972. Schiltz: Chairman. Be it proposed by the Bill of Rights Committee that there be a new article on the Bill of Rights to read as follows. 'Preamble.'" Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Style and Drafting Report Number 8 and the Preamble thereof, it recommend the same be adopted. There are no changes in the Preamble.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of the Preamble? On page 9, Style and Drafting report. Very well. All in favor of the Preamble, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Mr. Chairman-Mr. Clerk, Section 1 of the Declaration of Rights.

CLERK HANSON: "Declaration of Rights. Section 1, Popular sovereignty." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. We've made two sentences out of one rather long sentence. Otherwise, no changes. I might say in connection with the entire Bill of Rights that, in our first comment, we recognized that there is a lot of personal effort in here, and because it wasn't constitutionally substantive, in many cases we had a light hand in editing the Bill of Rights.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there any discussion of Section 1? All in favor of Section 1, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 2.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2, Self-government." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2 of Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, minor style changes in Section 2. Deleted the words "of the state" as not being necessary and substituted the word "the" for the possessive pronoun on line 23. That's all.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 2? All in favor of Section 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 3.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 3, Inalienable rights." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, minor style changes. I have a note I want to check, though. Oh, you'll notice on page 10, line 2, we changed "the people" to "all persons", for the reason that they are doing some relating one to another and it's pretty hard for the people to relate. So we changed it to "All persons—recognize corresponding responsibilities".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 3? All in favor of Section 3, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 4.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 4, Individual dignity." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4 of Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, style changes. We put the statement in the positive as opposed to the negative and would-on the supposition that's what a Bill of Rights should do.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of Section 4?

Mr. Cate.

DELEGATE CATE: Mr. Schiltz, for the record, I take it you did not intend to eliminate cities or towns or counties from this prohibition?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, oh, I should have noted that; I have a mark on it. Agencies and subdivisions are included; we've used that-Let me see, where am I?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You've used the state only.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Oh, I see, yeah, agencies and subdivisions by definition are part of the state and they're included in the state, so for that reason we took them out.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of Section 4, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 5.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 5. Freedom of religion." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 5, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. We just struck "of Montana" so it reads "the state".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of Section 5? All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 6.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 6, Freedom of assembly." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6 of Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. You will recall that we had some little difficulty the other day on the right peaceably to assemble, and so on, and it was a little cumbersome. Now, as restyled, this states one right to assemble for two purposes; one to petition-one of the purposes being to petition for redress; and the other, to protest against government action.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of Section 6?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. McNeil has a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman. Will Delegate Schiltz yield to a question?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I yield.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Just for the record, Jack, I want to be perfectly clear that taking out the second "peaceably" that I had put in does not express an intent for nonpeaceable protest of governmental action.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I would think not.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz, will you yield to a question from the Chair?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Did it used to read, "The people shall have the right peaceably to assemble, petition for redress or peaceably protest government actions"?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes. Right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I don't see—was there another "to" in there? My question is—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, that was added on the floor, I think by Mr. McNeil.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, my problem is this, Mr. Schiltz. You've said that the people shall have the right peaceably to assemble for two purposes. I'm wondering if the initial language didn't say that they had the right to peaceably assemble, whatever the purpose might be.

Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: I believe it did, and I think that it also would grant them the privilege of petitioning without assembling, as it was written. I don't really object to the way this was written, but the meaning is slightly different.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Can someone find--are you looking up the language we used to have, Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: No, I don't have that, except as its—

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: What Style and Drafting did here: in the original section, there were three particular, I think, provisions the Chair mentioned. But this was in conflict with the committee's comment, and we restyled it to bring the section into compliance with the comment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz, what color is your book on-Mr. Dahood, what color is your book?-Section 6 used to say "Freedom of assembly. The people shall have the right peaceably to assemble-comma-petition for redress or peaceably protest governmental action." Mr. Schiltz, the Chair thinks you've made a substantive change by allowing them only to assemble for two purposes. Now, I don't know-1 just want to call that to everybody's attention.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I don't think we did, because we followed the comment on page 19 of the substantive committee, where they said the basic right to assemble for redress of grievances by petition or remonstrance remains unchanged. The wording was typed up a little, in the phrase "protest government action" was substituted for the phrasing "apply to those invested with the powers of government for redress of grievances by remonstrances." In doing so, the committee notes the paramount position of the right and the invaluable function. In any case, we attempted to interpret those comments, and with the interpretation of those comments, we came up with it. I flagged it and pointed it out just exactly what we had done for this very purpose, you see-if somebody wanted to go back to something else.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I don't like to argue from the Chair, but I don't think this is a terribly deep argument. But it seems to me that the committee comments could very well have listed some of the reasons that they could've-that people can peaceably assemble. But I can conceive of a lot of times that people might peaceably assemble for other purposes than to petition or have anything to do with the government. And I think that they ought to have that right to peaceably assemble if it's to hold a fair, or if it's to do something else. And I think we have taken it away from them in the language-in the change between the language we originally had and the language we have now.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, this is one of those things we do up there, and if the people want to go back-if the Convention wants to go back to the original language, we have no problem.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I got the Chairman up now, let's hear from him; then we'll come to you, Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. I've listened to the reasons from the Style Committee. I do not think the reasons are valid; I think they have changed the intent and purpose of it. We intended to stand with original Section 26 of the current Constitution, which reads, "The people shall have the right peacefully to assemble for the common good and to apply to those invested with the powers of government for redress of grievances by petition or remonstrance." And I move at this time that Style and Drafting be directed to return to the original language as proposed by the Bill of Rights Committee and adopted by this Committee of the Whole.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Did you move that?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I did move it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay. Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: In the Committee of the Whole, I think we left it this way: That "people shall have the right peaceably to assemble, petition for redress or", and then we included "peaceably protest governmental action".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: That's the way we left it. However, at that time I was trying to correct this grammatical misconstruction to say that we should have the right to assemble peaceably and I don't think that it would be necessary to peaceably petition for redress; I don't think a petition could be anything but peaceable. So then we included "peaceably protest governmental action". So I would like to see the Style and Drafting, if they're going to make any changes, to adopt what we did in the Committee of the Whole but to make this grammatical correction, to say that "the right to assemble peaceably", because I don't think that would change the meaning at all.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Now, some of you may not have your salmon-colored books before you, and the language used to be "The people shall have the right peaceably to assemble, petition for redress or peaceably protest governmental action." You do have the new language before you, "The people shall have the right to assemble peaceably in order to petition for redress or grievance or protest governmental action." The motion at the moment is Mr. Dahood's motion to return to the Convention's language that I just read to you, that we adopted the other day, the non-Style-and-Drafting-change language.

Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman. I concur with the motion of Chairman Dahood to return to the original language, and I think part of the problem lies in the caption. Now our present Constitution just has a section number and no title. The title, which was put on by the committee and retained by Style and Drafting, speaks of freedom of assembly. I think there are three separate, distinct freedoms stated in that one paragraph: the right to peaceably assemble; a separate distinct right topetitionforredress, and that need not be by an assembly; and a separate, distinct right peaceably to protest governmental action, which might be by an individual and does not necessarily refer to the right of assembly. So I think we've got three distinct rights there, and I think the original language of the committee ought to be retained, with my extra "peaceably" snuck in there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Mr. Dahood's motion to restore the language that the Convention adopted in Committee of the Whole? Mr. Lorello, are you up? Okay.

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman. Would there be any possibility of putting those in three sections? I might be for one of them but against some of them.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: There would be the very real problem that it would mess up the automatic typewriters, I will say that.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Babcock, you can move to amend one of them out of there. No, you can't either-no, you can't-not now, not unless we suspend the rules.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman, may I ask another question? For instance, could I ask this of Mr. Dahood, please, Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: If a teacher at a college, for instance, decides to protest and leaves the classroom and then a student that's going to that college wants to participate in the class but the teacher is out protesting, I believe you're denying the student the right of going to that class.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Well, I would think the teacher would have violated the contractual obligation. I think that, Delegate Babcock, that's a situation removed from what we're talking about here.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Okay, thank you, sir.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: And may I recommend to the Committee of the Whole that the language that we drafted and submitted to this Committee of the Whole retains the current protection under our Bill of Rights and we take the position that no basic change should be made in the substance of it, and I renew the motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there other discussion of the motion to return to the language that the Committee of the Whole adopted?

Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. I'd like to direct a question to Mr. Schiltz.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Schiltz. I can remember during our discussion of this, we considered whether to add "of grievances" which we didn't have. Now do you think that that would be-what was your thinking in adding this?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, you're talking substance, and I'm not going to take any position on substance. We had a reason for putting it in there. I think Mr. McNeil really hit it on the head. When we called it freedom of assembly, we decided it was a single thing. It's been 5 days since we went over these and I can't remember all the details of the discussion, but I think that that's just about what happened and that's how it got restyled this way. We don't care in Style and Drafting, but if you want to take "grievances" out of there-1 think we picked that up from the comment-I don't care one way or another.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. I was just really indicating that I thought that maybe "of grievances" was a good addition here, but I don't feel strongly one way or the other.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The—

Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Dahood, do you yield to a question?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I hate to be nit-picky about this thing, but would you object to-to having-to read "to assemble peaceably"; would that make a difference to your interpretation?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: It would make no difference as far as I'm concerned, Mags. I'm concerned in maintaining the substance that we presented to the Committee of the Whole.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Yeah. Mr. Chairman, I would like to instruct the—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Why don't you make a motion to amend it.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Well, if that's in order, I will do so.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It is—

DELEGATE AASHEIM: But the-just for a matter of having it in the right order, I'd say the-that the word "peaceably" follow "to assemble".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Aasheim has proposed an amendment to Mr. Dahood's motion that when we return to the original language, it should--we should put the word "peaceably" after "assemble". So it would say, "The people shall have the right to peaceably assemble"-no, "to assemble peaceably". "The people shall have the right to assemble peaceably, petition for redress"-all he's done is make it "assemble peaceably" instead of "peaceably to assemble"-"assemble peaceably".

Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman]. I don't know whether we need to get that nit-picky. The First Amendment to the United States Constitution provides the people-the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petititon the government for redress of grievances. So-and our Constitution has had that in all the time, and I think the committee properly considered this and brought it out, and I think we should leave it that way. I don't think we are going to improve on the United States Constitution—that's repetition of that anyway. I think we should leave it the same.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. The issue is on Mr. Aasheim's amendment, now, to make it "assemble peaceably", instead of "peaceably to assemble".

Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: In reply to Mr. Davis, I want to remind him that the people who drew up the original Constitution either walked or came on horseback.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, now, we're going to decide this. Everybody ready? So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Aasheim's amendment to make it "assemble peaceably", vote Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'll start over— wait a minute, I'll start over again. So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Aasheim's amendment which is to make it say "assemble peaceably" instead of "peaceably to assemble", say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair is in doubt. Vote on the machines. If you want to change it to say "peaceably-"assemble peaceably", vote Aye; if you want to do it the other way, vote No. Now here's a real controversy. We better have a call of the house. All right, has everybody voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'm going to close the ballot; anybody want to change their vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 28 having voted to change it to "assemble peaceably" and 55 sticking with the founding fathers in the original Constitution, the motion fails, Mr. Aasheim. All right. Now we are back on Mr. Dahood's motion.

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, as you read that, I'm not sure that you got Mr. McNeil's second "peaceably" in there, which is in the—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, it's in there.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Is it? Where is it? Because I want to be able to tell the committee.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. If you adopt Mr. Dahood's motion, the section will read, "Freedom of assembly. The people shall have the right peaceably to assemble, petition for redress or peaceably protest governmental action". That's what we did the other day. Now, so many as shall be in favor of Mr. Dahood's motion to use the language of the Committee of the Whole, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay, we're back to the original language.

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, as amended, that it recommend the same be adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of Section 6 as amended, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted, as amended by going back to the original Committee of the Whole language. Mr. Clerk, Section 7.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 7, Freedom of speech, expression and press." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 7, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted. I shouldn't have any problems with this one, Mr. Chairman. We didn't change anything.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion? All in favor of Section 7, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 8.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 8, Right of participation." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 8, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Only very minor style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I might call attention to the fact that on line 30 you will see possibly the only "such" that will be in the entire Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And that one's unnecessary. All in favor of Section 8, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, narrowly. It's adopted. Section 9.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 9, Right to know." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 9, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. There are no changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood, I know for what purpose you rise. You want-you're going to-let's adopt the Style and Drafting thing, and then we'll open it up at this point for a motion. All those in favor of Section 9, Style and Drafting report, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Now, Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. On behalf of the Bill of Rights Committee, I move at this time that the Committee of the Whole vote to suspend the rules for the purpose of reconsidering Section 9.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Dahood has made a motion to suspend the rules for the purpose of reconsidering Section 9. Is there a discussion on just the issue of suspending the rules? We'll have a roll call vote.

Mrs. Eck, did you want to discuss it?

DELEGATE ECK: I just wanted to be sure that people knew why we were suspending the rules. We have met and have come up with an amendment to this section which appears to be satisfactory to the press. And the committee feels not only it's satisfactory to us, but in reality strengthens the section. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll have a roll call vote. So many as shall be in favor of suspending the rules, vote Aye; and so many shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, take the ballot.

Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: I'd like to explain my vote. I am very much in accord with the motion to reconsider, but I must be consistent.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 64 delegates voting Aye, 22 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 64 having voted Aye and 22 having voted No, the motion to reconsider is adopted. Now, somebody want-a motion to suspend the rules is adopted, pardon me. Now, somebody want to make a motion to reconsider? We've suspended the rules; now in order to reconsider Section 9, we have to have a motion.

Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. I move that the Committee of the Whole reconsider Section 9 for the purpose of adding the following language-I refer the Committee of the Whole to page 6, line 3—after the word "the", by inserting the following words and punctuation: "Legislature, subject to court interpretation, shall have determined that the". The pages have passed to all of the delegates "Right to know", typed with that language inserted. That language is underlined.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood has-Mr. Dahood, I presume you voted on the prevailing side?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I did.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Now, I'll allow your motion to reconsider. For those of you that might be following in your Style and Drafting books, it's on page 11, line 6, before the last word in the line, "demand", is where you pot in the little phrase.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: If this committee should favor the motion to reconsider on behalf of the Bill of Rights Committee, with two dissenting votes, I will then move to amend Section 9 in the particulars already stated. The Bill of Rights Committee held a hearing at which the protestants of the press were invited to attend. The committee then called a committee meeting and decided that the Right to know, Section 9, should be amended and that comments be added to the Bill of Rights proposal so that there can be no mistake as to the intent behind the amendment. I respectfully request the members of the Committee of the Whole to grant us the right to reconsider--approve the motion so that we may move for that amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion on the motion to reconsider? Very well, all in favor of the motion to reconsider, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman and members of the Committee, I move to amend Section 9 in the particulars already stated, adding the words, "the Legislature, subject to court interpretation, shall have determined that", so that Section 9 will then read in these terms: "Section 9. Right to know. No person shall be deprived of the right to examine documents, or to observe the deliberations of all public bodies or agencies of state government and its subdivisions, except in cases in which the Legislature, subject to court interpretation, shall have determined that the demands of individual privacy exceed the merits of public disclosure." Along with it, joined in that motion, is a request that the comments supporting that section, which appear at pages 21, 22 and 23 of the Bill of Rights Committee Proposal Number 8, be amended by adding, at page 23 in the salmon-colored committee proposal, which you have, after the paragraph ending on line 18 on page 23, the following words which willconstitute, on behalf of the Bill of Rights Committee and on behalf of its Chairman, our reasons for asking that this amendment be adopted. The comment to be added would read in these terms, the wording: "except in cases in which the Legislature, subject to court interpretation, shall have determined that the demands of individual privacy exceed the merits of public disclosure" is incorporated to require that any administrative decision or regulation adopted pursuant to this section be based either on a legislative enactment or the case law which develops under this provision. The thrust of this effort is similar to the design of the federal Freedom of Information Act, to insure that exceptions be carefully enough defined to reduce the potential for abuse of discretion by those who decide to withhold a document or close a meeting. In denying access, the agency would have to indicate some basis for its decision. The committee notes that the highest court in Montana has in several decisions recognized a broad right of privacy, citing cases. The committee in no way intends to overturn these decisions which establish so important a right. The right of individual privacy announced in this section, intentionally limited to individual privacy so as to preclude a government agency or corporation claiming the right, is intended to curtail disclosure insofar as it is established by the Legislature and/or the courts that the demands of such privacy clearly exceed the merits of public disclosure. The intent of the phrase "subject to court interpretation" is to avoid the situation of a recent sovereign immunity decision in which the State Supreme Court refused to weigh the merits of the doctrine of sovereign immunity, saying the Legislature has spoken, citing that particular decision. It is intended that any legislative exemption under this section be subject to court interpretation and review. This seemingly obvious point is made to emphasize that the courts have a role in balancing the two important rights in themanner specified in this section. My opinion, as Chairman of the Bill of Rights Committee, is that by this amendment we reach that point of compromise that satisfies the press of the State of Montana. We have not taken away any of the substance incorporated in Section 9, Right to know, as adopted by this Committee of the Whole. For reasons that are well known to all of us, we think this particular amendment should be accepted and adopted. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman]. For the first time I rise in opposition to my Chairman. And I hate to do it, because I like him and I respect him and I have worked together with him very closely through these weeks and I don't think we've ever had a serious disagreement. But like the one man said-he said, "Any time two guys are always together and they're always agreeing, one of them isn't doing any thinking". Now, I just take a couple of moments here to point out a few things. First of all, the language that we adopted in this committee was very carefully worked out in the Bill of Rights Committee. We all agreed to it, and then it was presented to this Committee of the Whole, where it was debated very thoroughly. We have many legal people in this room, and they-and we adopted it. Then, after we-shortly before this came before this Committee of the Whole and after its adoption, came the deluge of criticism saying that we just simply had to change this thing. And one of the things that disturbs me is then that we begin to have some ad hoc committees meeting-and so far as I can find out, not authorized by anyone-and we were presented the other day with a fait accompli in as far as the change of language was concerned. Now, Torrey, a fait accompli is what we boys down in Yellowstone mean when-we use when we've been had. Now, (Laughter) I believe that the language which was originally adopted by this Committee of the Whole and by the Bill of Rights is good language. I believe that we should leave it alone. I would not object to putting into our comments what is meant insofar as giving the Legislature power to lay out those very special cases where we feel that the right-the demands of individual privacy exceed the merits of public disclosure as interpreted by the court. I think this could be put into the comments, but I resist changing this language under pressure. This group held fast in two other instances that I'm very aware of, where great pressure was put on, and I think we should hold fast here.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman]. Where do we stand now? Has Mr. Dahood made a motion to adopt this new amendment?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes.

DELEGATE DAVIS: I would like at this time to make a substitute motion to delete this section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, just a minute. Mr. Dahood has made a motion to substitute the new language, and your motion will be in order. This is another motion before me, but even if yours prevailed, it's not jeopardized since it was going to start by deleting. Mr. Davis, do you want to delete Section 9 in its entirety?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Yes, Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE FOSTER: A point of order. Was the original motion to suspend the rules pursuant upon considering thesection as amended, or what's the ruling on that?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Once you open it, it's open for all purposes, isn't it, Mr. President [Chairman]?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBELL: Well, the original order was to suspend the rules to reconsider Section 9, the way I took it. I think it's that broad. Mr. Dahood, you made the motion. Wasn't it to reconsider Section 9?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Yes, Mr. Chairman. And I conferred with the Chairman of the Rules Committee, and he indicated to me that when I moved that the rules be suspended for the specific purpose of reconsidering Section 9, that that opened Section 9 up to the type of motion that Delegate Davis has attempted to place before this committee.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think we— Mr. Foster, I think we have the whole ball of wax before us. And-is that a good phrase, Mr. Foster?

DELEGATE FOSTER: Well, my only point has been that in the past when we have made moves to suspend the rules that, in fact, we've limited it to very narrow interpretation. And I don't want to argue with the Chair, but it does seem that in this case maybe we've taken an exception to the reason-to the way that we've suspended the rules in the past. But I won't—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster, the Chair would say that it doesn't necessarily try to limit it; the Chair tries to make it specific. And in this case, I wrote down that Mr. Dahood had said "for the purpose of reconsidering Section 9". Now that's what he said. He didn't-then he went ahead and told what he would do later on, on the motion to reconsider; he told what he'd do if that was done. But on the motion to suspend the rules, he just said "for the purpose of reconsidering Section 9". I believe that's correct. Isn't that correct, Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. I think perhaps Delegate Foster is correct in this respect, that although the motion to suspend the rules was carried for that specific purpose, the Chair ruled that the Chairman of Style and Drafting should nevertheless move that that particular section be adopted. That was done, and then I moved to amend the section as it was adopted, so I should think that that's beyond-reconsideration is beyond deletion and only open for the purpose of amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, the Chair is going to rule that Section 9 is open for any purpose. Now, if we want to challenge that, I'll be happy to—

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: I challenge that.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. The challenge is whether Section 9 is open for any purpose. Who is making the challenge?

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: I will.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the Chair has been challenged, and I think the language is that you must vote to sustain a challenge and the Chair gets to explain its position. And I think I have explained the position that I think Mr. Dahood moved to suspend the rules to-with reference to Section 9, and I think Section 9 is now open for rediscussion. But if you wish to sustain Mr. Blaylock's motion that it is not open for rediscussion in the sense that it-what you're really saying, then, is that it is not open for deletion; it's only open for the purposes of Mr. Blaylock's-of Mr. Dahood's motion. And it seems to me that we then have to adopt or not adopt Mr. Dahood's motion only, and having adopted or not adopted his motion only, we'd be dead unless we went back and widened the suspension of the rules. So the Chair rules that it's wide open; and Mr. Blaylock says it's not, it's only open for Mr. Dahood's language. And the motion must be put, do you sustain Mr. Blaylock's objection? So on the voting machines for recorded vote, vote Yes if you vote with Mr. Blaylock and vote No if you vote to sustain the Chair-but Yes to sustain the objection. So many as shall be-or let's say, have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, I'm going to close the ballot. Take the ballot.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: (Inaudible)—that we didn't get this wrong. Actually-the probably-now the Noes are voting in your favor—should have been that you-the Chair-the question is, shall the Chair be sustained? That's probably the proper way to put the motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, I don't think it is. We're off the tape, so when we get on the tape I'll explain it, Mr. Mahoney.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, Mr. Mahoney, would you restate your position so it's on the tape?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Well, Mr. Chairman, all I was trying to state that actually—in my understanding of old, maybe not in this body, but ordinarily on an appeal from the decision of the Chair, it is ordinarily placed-the question is, "shall the Chair be sustained?" And this is a normal parliamentary procedure, and I don't know what we operate under here.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right. Now, the Chair would like to explain that we did it backwards here, and we did it backwards here because of Rule 75 which says: "On all appeals from decisions of the Chair, the question shall be, 'Shall the appeal be sustained?'" And this came up before and I-this was pointed out to me and I did explain it clearly that if you voted red, naturally you voted with me since I voted red; and if you voted green, you voted with Mr. Blaylack. So I don't think anyone was confused; but unfortunately, our rules are opposite of Robert's on that issue, and that's why I had to explain that. Mr. Clerk will you read the vote.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 23 delegates voting Aye, 67 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 67 having voted No, the appeal is not sustained and the Chair is right. Now, before we go on, the Chair would like to explain that one of the reasons I did this is not that I am trying to get into the business here, but I have had other requests from other delegates and I have a pile of papers here for other people that want other amendments. And I know that they wanted to do this, and I was not in a position, unless Mr. Dahood more strictly limited it to freeze them out, and so that's why I did it, Now, we're back on Mr. Davis' motion to delete Section 9 entirely, and I think I've got you the floor, Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman] and fellow delegates. I think this is a rather critical situation we've found ourselves in here. This Bill of Rights Committee gave a lot of study and in all good faith made an effort to have disclosure and examination of documents. The press, as I understand their testimony when we're on the floor, had appeared before them; and apparently it was overlooked that the press, of course, was anxious to see what all documents and all records in any office are. And so was the committee, but the committee was also anxious to protect the individual and-it says, "The right of privacy is essential to well-being". Is that the one?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right. Number 9, that's Number 10.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Thank you. In other words, it said they will have the right to examine, and everyone says "except in cases in which the demands of individual privacy clearly exceeds the merits of public disclosure". Well now, that would seem to be about as fair as you could put it. In other words, we recognize all through the Bill of Rights we're trying to protect individual rights, and everyone was all for that, And in this we sound like we're all for it, except after it was in and adopted and Mr. Dahood made a very stirring talk on this floor about it, Mr. Martin got up and had the brashness to suggest we delete it then; it was going to cause problems. But we didn't pay much attention to him, so we voted him down 14 to 76, because Mr. Martin's only been in the newspaper business about 50 years and, of course, this is a newspaper and we're all-have been come--90-day wonders we called them in World War II when we got our commission right quick. So in all these things—now we've got a situation where the press has publicly attacked the Convention to the extent of taking front page editorials in the Billings Gazette, saying they couldn't support this Constitution. Well now, what if we put something else in here today and maybe next week, like they did this time, they'll find it not quite suitable or something else? It's the type of thing-and it's the very proof, and it's wonderful that it happened-to show what can happen when you try to writesomething you don't know all about in a Constitution, and two weeks later someone discovers it really is not going to fit their picture like they wanted it, and let's amend it. Well, we're down to the last stage; we can't do much more changing. So let's delouse some of these things we're trying to put in here that aren't going to work forever, and leave it up to the Legislature. The Legislature has an act on the right to know now. The press can go to those legislators and expand on this to whatever degree they want. They can go to the court, and so can the individuals. Let's not try to foster a battle with the press; on the other hand, let's not be intimidated when they say, "We don't like this"; let's not back up. All the words that we said on this floor last week and have a complete compromise--and then the next day we'll hear how we sold out to the Montana Power or someone else by the same story. So let's be consistent; let's delete this whole section and get on with the rest of it and let them work out something that will be acceptable and flexible. The inflexibility of these things is dramatized by what has transpired here; and we can turn around and create just as bad a situation by trying to reach a compromise that we haven't all had time to sit on. We haven't all been involved in this; it's been kind of a private treaty. And I have all the respect in the world for the committee, but under our open rule theory, we should have done 'er all on the floor; we should have had the debates, and we weren't able to. So I think we should, at this point then, delete this and leave it to the Legislature. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Belcher.

DELEGATE BELCHER: Just one point. I think it ought to be noted that Grace Bates missed the vote, and she's back here and I think we ought to have her vote.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Grace, your presence is noted for the journal, and you may vote from now on.

Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. This has been my proposal, and I still stand by it. I think that, really, the right to know is one of the provisions that is rather symbolic of our whole Convention, and I would really protest having it struck at this time. I think probably more than any other body-official body, anyway-which has ever met in Montana, we have stood up for the public's right to know. I think that there have been times when it's caused us a lot of discomfort, it's times when it's been frustrating, but I think that practically all of us agree that, all in all, it has been a very wise principle under which to operate. Now, so far as our present disagreements, as has been said before we came up with the wording which we presented to the Convention after a great deal of deliberating. And we came up with it satisfied-but satisfied because we had considered a lot of other possibilities of ways that we could really put the burden of stating privacy on the agency-in other words, some way whereby the agency would be the one which would have to prove the burden--or to bear the burden of proof so far as privacy goes. This is very difficult to do. As the amendment came onto the floor--or as the provision came onto the floor for debate, Section 9, we were considering at that time-a number of people had considered, and, in fact, Delegate Cate proposed, an amendment which would have provided--which would have included a "provided by law". I think it might have been given more serious consideration if the hour hadn't been so late and if-1 think there was a bit of confusion as to whether the "provided by law" would refer to the right to know section or to the exception. I'm sure that Delegate Cate intended it to apply to the exception. And I-at that time I had spoken with quite a number of people from our committee who agreed that this wouldn't really make any difference. I'd also talked with a number of attorneys, and the attorneys' viewpoint was that it neither strengthened nor weakened it by putting this "as provided by law" in, which, you know, would have read, "except in such cases as provided by law". However, the press would have been satisfied with this. Now, this isn't entirely a press amendment, although at that time it was obvious to us that that was all that they seemed to want, was an assurance that the Legislature would outline those cases in which the demands of individual privacy were really clearly and-note "clearly"; "clearly" wasn't used in some of the comments this morning, and I think on this little sheet it's not included, but that's an oversight. The difficulty here is, as is-was noted by Mr. Dahood this morning, that there have been some court cases in which where you say "provided by law", the court refuses to rule on it. They say, "Well, the Legislature has already ruled". We also didn't want to get that kind of a situation because it's quite possible that a Legislature would, in times to come, determine that a-that privacy was of very-a broad construction and would apply to a lot of situations where the merits of public disclosure really would be greater. So for that reason we felt that it was really important to assure that we would have some court interpretation here. I think that this whole situation has-it's been regrettable. I'm not sure in my own mind that the amendment we have presented to you is really necessary, but I am sure that not only for the press but for a good many individuals who areconcerned about what's going on in agencies, that this will truly clarify things for them. In other words, they can go to an agency and they can say, you know, "Show us the legislative restriction that prevents us from going to this meeting, or prevents us from seeing these documents in your files, or show us some court cases which prevent it". And if those cannot be pointed to, that means that they are entitled to go to that meeting and they are entitled to look at those documents. So probably for the operation of a right to know, these words are really helpful; and I do hope that you will vote against Mr. Davis' motion to delete and vote for our amendment to the article. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. On behalf of the committee, I want all the delegates to fully understand that the section, Right to know, was fully discussed and fully debated in our committee. We did not have any misapprehension about it, any doubt about its effect. I think any constitutional lawyer would look at Section 9 and put a grade of "A plus" upon it. It's stated in a broad principle form. It's the type of constitutional right that must necessarily be expressed in general terms; the specific guidelines that perhaps some of the critics would like cannot be stated within that particular section if it's to fall within the framework of a true constitutional principle, It's a principle that must endure for the decades and the ages. It still provides that the Legislature can set guidelines within this particular doctrine; the court shall interpret within this particular doctrine. That is not the problem. The problem is the one that's obvious to all of us; and I don't like to stand here and say that I have withdrawn from the committee's original position because of pressure, but I think I have a higher responsibility than my own personal satisfaction, perhaps, in prevailing in a situation such as this, where I know we are right; and that is to give this constitutional document, when it's finally executed by all of us, its best chance for passage when it's presented in the public form. I submit that this right is important, and I think we should consider it; but on the other hand, sometimes it's the hallmark of good judgment to compromise. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman,

fellow delegates. I'd like to recall for you-first of all, I'm speaking against the move to delete. I recall for you when we first discussed the article that came from the Bill of Rights, the article said, very simply, "except in cases in which the demand of individual privacy exceeds the merits of public disclosure". We immediately saw that there was a problem about who was going to make that judgment, and so we added by amendment the word "clearly". And all that it seems to me that the people who are in that field are trying to tell us is that we need to define it just a little bit more. There is fear here of intimidation, power play. I personally don't feel it, I feel that I can listen to someone who is experienced as the result of an article and tells us reasonably what-how that should be further defined. So I think all we're doing is accepting a further delineation of that word "clearly", which we saw ourselves and we all accepted; it needed to be in there. So I don't think this action of accepting this new wording is at all contrary to our original move at all.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman. It grieves me sore to be required to reject the motion of the gentleman from Beaverhead County, but I must. I do not think it's a good idea to remove this Right to know section, and I will briefly tell you why. Let us take a not-so-hypothetical case of an adult and three juveniles in the dead of night breaking into a service station and filching the bankroll; they're apprehended. The newspaper, seeking to carry the news, has a reporter call at the Clerk of the Court's office or Sheriffs office, secure information upon which to base an article. If you can get the name of the adult but you can't get the name of the juvenile and if you print the name of the juvenile you are apt to find yourselfin the clink for contempt of court, you print the adult's name and not the juvenile's name, and there's a gross misapplication of justice. Newspapers are supposed to print all of the facts, not part of them. It's almost every week, and even in small operations like mine, something of this character is encountered; and I feel that the right to know must be protected. And I think that the Lee papers, in bringing this case to the public, were very remiss in not doing it earlier, but I think it was necessary even though it did cause this regrettable dislocation of our operation. I think personally that the original section was satisfactory, and I think that the present contemplated section is satisfactory, except the day might come when the Legislature or court might impose some restrictions that the press will not like nearly as much as they have right now. So they may inherit the whirlwind, but for the moment I must oppose Delegate Davis' motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The issue is on Mr. Davis' motion to delete Section 9 in its entirety.

Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. If the intent of this section was solely to benefit the press and news media of this state, I think I probably would be inclined to go along with Mr. Davis' motion; but the intent of this section is not solely designed for the press and news media. The press and the news media have power; they have money; they have ways of getting information; and quite frankly I'm not particularly concerned about the press and news media getting the news. They will get the news one way or another. That's their business; that's their talent; that's why they're there. But I'm concerned about the average citizen; the citizen that has some particular interest in a meeting of government, something that's particularly involved that affects him personally as a citizen. And the intent of this section was to broaden the protection of the average citizen, and, in fact, that's what the original section as written did. I would like to speak further on the-as relates to the amendment, but at this time I strongly protest the move of Delegate Davis to delete in its entirety this section. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman], I resist the motion to delete. I agree with Chairman Dahood insofar as we have worked on this; I think this is an important right to keep in our Constitution, in our Bill of Rights. I believe that the language, as I said before, is adequate and is good in our original adoption, but whichever way this Convention goes or decides to do, I would hope that we'd take one or the other, and not throw the whole thing out.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The motion is on Mr. Davis'—or the issue is on Mr. Davis' motion to delete in its entirety.

Mr. Martin, do you wish to speak before Mr. Davis closes?

DELEGATE MARTIN: If I may, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. President [Chairman]. It's odd to find oneself in a dilemma. I knew that when I voted, the first person who would be around to check on me would be Jack Schiltz; and he was there because of the fact that1 had said that I would oppose reconsideration. I next got a note from Delegate Burkhardt that said, "The dinosaur was consistent, too." And then my seatmate ahead of me turned around and gave me a quotation from Emerson: "The love of consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds." (Laughter) So I am properly in my place; but I would say that my decision for, I hope, consistency with regard to reconsideration was to put an end to the repetitious diarrhea of words that we've been experiencing by reason of the fact that we have continuous reconsiderations. As a newspaper man for, as Delegate Davis says, half a century, I think that we do and should retain the right to know, and I think that it's been demonstrated over the last 15 or 16 years that we have developed a freer and freer press in Montana. And I think the interest that the press has and the Press Association has in this matter is primarily to insure the right of a free press and the protection of people. Mr. Dahood has over there, on his desk, a clipping from the Billings Gazette which shows a picture of a reporter being evicted from a County Commissioners' welfare meeting. The purpose of that meeting was a group of protesters seeking consideration of the food stamps; and those people, the County Commissioners, to evict the press, said it was a private meeting. And that is just a sample of some of the things that we find as we try to get news. The Bill of Rights does have a protection guaranteeing the freedom of the press. I think that the people who had this conviction, and maybe I'm not altogether in sympathy with some of the tactics that they had, I think that they were dedicated and sincere in their efforts to try to do what was best for the people. I think that's about all I say; I leave it to you. I have stated my position on reconsideration. That's my story.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: May I close, sir?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think so.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Is that all right with everybody?

DELEGATES: Yes.

DELEGATE DAVIS: All right. I would like to reply to a couple of things if I can, Mr. President [Chairman]. The first thing, we all want to write something that's appealing to everyone in this Constitution. So now here's what our right to know is going to say: "No person shall be deprived of the right to examine documents or to observe the deliberations of all public bodies or agencies of state government and its subdivisions", now, "except in cases in which the Legislature, subject to court interpretation-" Now, that's the consitutional provision that I would defy Mrs. Eck to find in any constitution in the world. You are going to put it in, "subject to"-"except in cases which the Legislature, subject to court interpretation-" Now that might help the press, but as far as the poor little individual that's going to come, armed with his legislative and court interpretations, down to find out which documents he can examine, the whole thing has to be done by the Legislature. The first article was all right; it would still have to be interpreted anyway, but we're just—writing it in is a strict appeasement situation. I'm all for the right to know, but I'm all for the rights of the individual. In 20 years as County Attorney, there were many, many things that came up in my office that I'm sure it wasn't the best for everybody to know about at that time, until after there's some decision been made. And the press in our area was very discreetful and very understanding and didn't create any problem. But as far as writing in a constitutional platform like this, I think it's completely unreasonable. Now I don't think it's a question of whether you are going to alienate the press or not. The Legislature, you know-that same Legislature that last week you gave-took off all debt limits on and you took off all-gave complete power to tax, that's the same Legislature that's going to elect the legislators that are going to go up there to make the rules. They have an open meeting thing now, and those same voters that are very intelligent-elected you and I-are going to elect those legislators that are going up that are going to make this law. And whether you put this in the Constitution or whether you don't, it's left up to the Legislature. It's probably-if Mr. Dahood says this is going to be an "A plus" provision in the Constitution, it's going to be an "A plus" because there's no constitution in the world that has one like it and there never will be one that has one like it, and so it'll stand only because of its peculiarity in that regard. Now, the right to know is a very important right-it's a fundamental right and a constitutional right-but if we can't put it in any better than this, then we should leave it out entirely. There's no question but the press brought about this complete turnaround-this complete turnaround on our committee. I'm grateful to them; I think they should be thanked. I think they overreacted a little bit, but then they do on everything; I mean, that's to be expected. But they brought this about--and, of course, the press is a pressure group; they are lobbying for their own interest in this regard--and I think the thing should be completely removed and let them go and lobby the Legislature on how they want this done. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. We'll have a roll call vote. All in favor of deleting Section 9 in its entirety, vote Aye; all against it, vote No.

Has every delegate voted?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right; hustle, fellows. What you're doing out in the hall while Mr. Davis is closing, I don't know. All those in favor of deleting Section 9, vote Aye; all those opposed, vote No.

Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate want to change his vote?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk announce the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 33 delegates have voted Aye, 56 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 56 have voted No, the motion fails. We're now discussing Mr. Dahood's motion to put in the new language: "the Legislature, subject to court interpretation, shall have determined that the"-to-in other words, we write in the extra exception.

Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. Chairman. I was one of the dissenters in our Bill of Rights Committee for the amendment to this particular section. A representative of the news media came before our committee, and we met with this person, and I felt that some of his reasoning was unfounded. And he didn't present, in my estimation, a very good argument for amending our present Section 9 on the Right to know. I think we've been subjected to some maybe undue pressure; and I think our original section as it was stated is quite adequate, and I don't want to weaken it by amending it with the present wording. So I oppose the amendment to Section 9, and I urge this body to retain the original Section 9 on the Right to know as adopted by this committee. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I don't really know why it has to be in there, "subject to court interpretation", because that's what they'regoing to do anyway, whether you have it in there or not. It's really very immaterial. But for the record, the Legislature is going to have to write some new codes. I'm sure, on this. And for the record, I'd like it very plain that when they're-when the Senate, if we do have one, or the Legislature as a body—that it be very plain that they have the right to—when they're confirming appointments by the Governor, that they have the right to hear the person being confirmed in privacy. I think that the various political parties, and particularly the Democratic and the Republican parties-the legislators that are elected-have the right to caucus privately; that the County Commissioners, in particular, have the right to interview welfare personnel privately. I think this is the right of the individual that's being interviewed. I went along with Mr. Davis on this to delete the whole thing, but I can see that if we are going to pass this amendment, that the Legislature will have a stack of codes very high; that the courts and case will be many. I think to delete the amendment would be the best thing right now. I think when it says: "except in cases in which demands of the individual privacy exceeds the merits of public disclosure", is good in just the way it is, and by adding the Legislature we only compound any good decisions we might have and that we will end up with many codes and many court decisions on each single item that they bring forward.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. Chairman. I thought of the idea perhaps you ought to try to eliminate freedom of the press and worry about the people, but I resisted that temptation. This doesn't have a blessed thing to do with the right of the free press; it's already guaranteed and there's already a body of law having to do with the free press. This has to do with the right of the people, the little guy, to find out what's going on, and I resist the motion to be stampeded into changing this thing. I would rather stick with the original. I think it has nothing whatsoever to do with the press, but the people. The press will take care of itself; lets us take care of the people.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman. I have listened with a great deal of interest to Delegate Eskildsen, and I think there's got to be a few more things in the record so that the Convention knows this; and I'm just putting this on the record. Impeachment proceedings; when they're deliberating, I think they have certainly got to be able to have secrecy. I think of investigating committees of the Legislature. I have seen times when people would not testify except behind-so that they know-we made testimony of it later. I'm just trying to get into the record that we think these provisions should remain inviolate for that, and this is what's bothering me more about the Legislature. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Mr. President [Chairman]. I rise, too, to oppose the amendment because I can think of many situations that would come up; for instance, in city hall in which the occasion is an emergency and it couldn't possibly fall under any particular vague guideline that the Legislature might have setup. And you can't call a special session of Legislature into session while they're waiting to get a decision. And I strongly oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. First, I would like to speak to the problem that the committee brought before this body. I know that the members of the committee or--would have been much happier to have said, "Okay, we presented our article and the body has approved it and everything is well and good". But I think the course of this Convention will show that, in fact, most committees are subject to at least one reconsideration; and I submit that our committee is subject to at least one reconsideration, and this is it. Second, I'd like to point out that, in my opinion, with the information that we had available at the time we presented the article to this body, we did, in fact, present the best section on Right to know that we could present with the information we had available. But I think that you will all have to admit that there is additional information brought out in the course of debate when the article is presented for Committee of the Whole. There is additional information which comes to the attention of the committee after this has met the scrutiny of public opinion. And I think you will all have to recall that in many cases we have reacted to the scrutiny of public opinion, and this, in fact, is what we are doing in this case. Now, as for the section itself, it is the feeling of the committee, and it's my particular feeling, that we have in no way weakened the section as far as the right to know of the citizen; we have only attempted to clarify it. Now, granted, the Legislature is going to have to pass laws for any article in this Constitution, for the most part; and when we say "the Legislature", we are only drawing to the attention of anyone that would read this what is already the case. But after, that phrase is more than just subject to court interpretation-the phrase continues, it does not end at that point: "subject to court interpretation, shall have determined that the demands of individual privacy exceed the merits of public disclosure". And this latter phrase is which-is where the committee felt additional clarification was necessary, because we have, in fact, stated a principle which must be defined. It was the original feeling of the committee that this, in fact, meant that the Legislature would pass laws that would clarify it and the court would have interpretations of those laws which would clarify it. Some people interpreted this to mean that the individual who had the information could determine whether, in fact, it exceeded the merits of public disclosure. This is the sole reason for adding the additional language; to clarify the point that, in fact, the individual who has the information or is in charge of the meeting being held is not really capable of saying at that time and point, "This meeting is closed; this information is private on the basis of it exceeding the merits of public disclosure". So we felt, as a committee, that it was necessary to clarify this instance where an individual comes to a meeting and is told that, in fact, this meeting is closed. There was really no other reason for putting this wording in here, and I think that if you will read it carefully you will see that, in fact, all we have done is clarified it. And that was the intent of the committee, and I think that they have been correct in that intent. I strongly support the amendment. I feel that it will be the best of reasonable worlds, and I submit that it will still be an extremely strong--as strong as it was before-provision. Thank you, Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: May I direct two short inquiries to Delegate Dahood?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Dahood, in your opinion, would not the Legislature be likely to implement the Section 9 as it is in the book anyway, with legislation?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Yes, I think that's correct.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: And the second question is, would not the court at some time or other cover the legislation that was so enacted?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I don't think there's any question about it. I think that if we Look into any Bill of Rights for any state or for the federal government, we are going to find hundreds and thousands of cases that have become necessary over a period of time to define precisely the guidelines for those particular rights.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Now, the third question and final. The sentence which is placed in here as an amendment then is just spelling out what would be done anyway?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: That's my judgment.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I think the wording proposed in the amendment is probably more important than we might think at first sight. I tried to work it out in my own mind what it might really mean, and I came up with an example, for what it's worth. Take the question of gambling; let's say we had a law that says there shall be no clear gambling. Now, what would that mean? That would mean only when it was out in the open, and it's quite different than saying there shall be no gambling except as allowed by the Legislature. It seems to me that that's kind of the same wording we have here, when you say there shall be no clearly difference between the two, that you'll leave it actually unsaid. And so this opens up all cases; in other words, we have the blanket opening of all cases except as restricted. And I think that's very important.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: I wish to speak in opposition to the amendment. And I think the thing that we're not addressing ourselves to is this change. The fundamental change gives the individual the right to privacy unless public disclosure compels it to or--unless-there has to be public disclosure. This means that the right to know exceeds the right to privacy unless you can go to the Legislature and get a bill passed or a court—and a court interpretation. And so you've turned the thing completely around. In other words, you've given the people who want the right to know to say, "We've got the right to know unless you've got legislation on the books". And if they don't meet or you don't get your bill passed for 2 years-and there are many, many things that come up in public bodies. And I think it's ill-conceived, and I think it's ill-considered, and I don't-and illegally written. And I think if we're going to have one on there the same at all, let's take the one that was thought out the first time. It's not that serious with the press. They're going to have the right to know just like they always have, whether there was anything in the Constitution or not, and the Legislature is going to have to implement it, so I oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President [Chairman]. I also rise to oppose the amendment. I worked for about 6 years in areas where this question of the right of privacy was quite a subject. I saw so many, many cases where, if the newspaper had got hold of some of the material that I had, that the many, many individuals who were completely innocent of any wrongdoing whatever would have had their names spread all over the front page of the papers, and perhaps their reputation ruined for life. So I certainly hope that this doesn't pass.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Mansfield.

DELEGATE MANSFIELD: Mr. Chairman. As a member of the committee, I agreed with this the other day; but as more people talked about it, it has caused a question in my mind; and I might have to use a woman's prerogative and vote against this amendment. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Mr. Chairman. I would like to speak in opposition to the amendment for two reasons. It's unclear in my mind as who wrote this amendment. I do not-I'm not sure that it was the committee who wrote it. I really don't think it makes any difference, when you get right down to it, whether we have the amendment in the Constitution or whether we accept the original committee report. I thinkultimately, ofcourse, the court is going to interpret what we're going to be able to do. Primarily though, I object to the way this whole thing was handled. I got a letter-I'm sure other people from Yellowstone County got a letter, from the publisher of the Billings Gazette, who until now has been, I felt, very strongly in support of what we were doing here. I didn't appreciate the way he handled it. I would agree with Mr. Foster that we have reacted to public opinion before, but we have not acquiesced to public opinion before, and it occurs to me that this is what we're just about to do. Lots of public pressure has been brought on lots of issues and we've discussed them, but we really have never acquiesced; and I am afraid that if we accept this amendment, while it really won't, I don't think, change anything, we will have admitted that we have acquiesced to the public pressure of the newspaper.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, may I close?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, before you close there are some other speakers.

Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: Mr. Chairman. I want it very clearly understood that1 want to see a right to know written into this Constitution. I think it is an absolute right of every citizen to know what's going on in the government that he elects. But I rise in opposition to this proposed amendment. I think it is just so much gobbledygook. I can't really believe that it's been written by anyone who understands the nature and function of government. Let me read it to you and explain my reasons. It says: "the Legislature, subject to court interpretation, shall have determined". Now, to start off with, the Legislature enacts laws, or the Legislature repeals laws, or the Legislature appropriates money. In all of my experience, I have never yet seen the words, "the Legislature determines". I really don't know what that means, and I don't think anyone here in this body can clearly, explicitly explain it. We should write this Right to know; if it has exceptions, we should put them in clearly. Now, I also am a great advocate of the right to privacy and the right of dignity in an individual, and I don't want to see this Convention do anything that is going to interfere with those two rights. When we talk about the right to know as compared to the right of individual privacy, we are talking, to a certain extent, about two conflicting theories; and basically, that's what our problem is here today. I submit to you that this proposed language does not cure anything. What does it really mean? It says this, that if there is a conflict, if a problem arises, the Legislature is going to determine, apparently, the individual problems, perhaps even as they arise. That's not an unreasonable interpretation of the language as it is contained under this proposed amendment. Further, it says that even though the Legislature makes that determination, if it should do it—and I submit to you it does not determine things, it enacts, it repeals, it appropriates; that's all it does-nevertheless it's going to be subject to court interpretation. How in the world is this going to be a workable provision at all? Now, I submit to you that if you turn this down, as I think you should—this particular amendment-I submit that really what should be said here is: "The Legislature shall enact laws to protect individual privacy and dignity". Sure-not that the courts--of course, the courts may-a problem may arise, an individual may have a problem, two individuals may disagree, the courts are the forum for the decision on that matter, not the Legislature. For these reasons, I hope you will turn this particular hodgepodge of an amendment down.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim, do you want to take the Chair?

(Delegate Aasheim takes the Chair)

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Graybill.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Mr. Chairman, members of the body. I rise with some hesitation to oppose the Chairman of the committee on this matter, but I do so partly because I notice that he rises with some reluctance himself to change this language. I've listened carefully to debate and I agree with many of the people that have spoken, but there are some things that I think should be pointed out. First of all, a Bill of Rights is the document of the Constitutional Convention and of the Constitution, and that's what we're on, Bill of Rights. It is our statement of the rights of the people, as Mr. Furlong says, and this language says that we'll give it to the Legislature. Now, I don't-I'm not against giving lots of things to the Legislature, and we've done our share and I think it's been fine, but we should not push on the Legislature the duty of determining what the rights of the people are in this state. Their right to know is our job to protect, and we're pushing it on the Legislature with this language. Now then, when we've done that, I'm concerned because I understand the newspaper's lawyer had something to do with this. When we've done that, what have we done here? Suppose the Legislature says nothing's secret, is the newspaper going to be happy? Yes, but what about the people? Suppose the Legislature repeals its present statute some week or some year, and they say everything's secret. Have we protected the rights of the press and of the people to know? We're giving up the right of the people to have us determine this matter right here. Now, secondly, it says "subject to court interpretation", so obviously the argument that the courts are going to have to look at it is out the window, because the courts are supposed to look at it under the new language as well as under the old. But, Mr. Foster, I'd like to take a shot at getting you back in the fold, because I think you made an interesting argument, and one which-I'd like to even protect the press, if I may, from itself. You know, before the courts interpret this language, somebody else is going to interpret it. What's going to happen is the Legislature's going to pass a statute of some kind, that's going to list all of the incidences that it thinks should be secret. Now if you know the Legislature as I do, they're not going to do that in one line; there's going to be a lot of different things that are secret. They're going to have the same trouble we're going to have, or we're having. They're going to put a lot of words in that statute. And when somebody comes to the agency and wants to know-let's say it's the reporter, or let's say it's a person-when they come to the agency and want to know, or when they try to get into the agency meeting, who's the first person that's going to interpret the Legislature's language? It ain't going to be the courts, it's going to be the agency. So the more language you give that agency to work with, the less to know there's going to be left, because they'll be able to interpret it right out of the window. So if the press really wants to lock this state up, just let them have the Legislature pass a nice, long-as-your-arm statute about what's secret; and everything will be secret by the time the agency, or the agency head, or the agency lawyer gets his hands on it and advises whether the people can come to the meeting or whether the papers can be shown to the press. I don't think the press has yet thought this thing through. The press has to go and demand what it wants, and if an agency makes an unreasonable determination, the press has to take them to court and whip them; that's the only way this thing's going to work. But the way the committee originally drew it, at least the little guy's got something to say to that agency man when he goes to the door; he's got the Constitution. But he hasn't got anything when we get through amending it. So I think, Mr. Foster, you could do the press a big favor, and I'm sure we could all help Mr. Furlong protect the people, if they'll just let us write the Constitution and they'll write the articles.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Any further discussion? (No response)

Mr. Dahood, do you want to close?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I do, Mr. Chairman, and I close. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: What's the question? The question then arises on the motion of Mr. Dahood to insert the following language: "the Legislature, subject to court interpretation, shall have determined that the", in the body of the original Right to know, Section 9. Any question about the meaning of the amendment? If not, those who are in favor will vote Aye; those who are opposed will vote No.

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: (Inaudible)-in favor of inserting the language, the amendment, you vote Aye-or NO?

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Of Mr. Dahood, yes. If you are in favor of that language, you vote Aye; if you oppose this amendment, you vote No. And you-are you clear? Has everyone voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Does anyone want to change his vote?

Mr. Romney, for what purpose do you arise?

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, I want to explain my vote. I do have a personal interest, but I think that the public interest is paramount, and I am voting.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: The clerk will tally the vote.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman. 18 delegates have voted Aye, 70 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: 18 having voted Aye, 70 voting No, the amendment is lost.

(Delegate Graybill assumes the Chair)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Schiltz, I think you should re-move Section 9 as is. And we'll—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I did move it and it was adopted, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So I guess we don't need to do anything.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE BERG: I did have a proposed amendment in another portion that I wanted to have considered.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, we're not through with Style and Drafting on this at all. I'm just trying to finish up Section 9.

DELEGATE BERG: You have-may I propose the amendment? It eliminates two words.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: In Section 9?

DELEGATE BERG: In Section 9.

CHAIRMANGRAYBILL: Youdon'thave it up here.

DELEGATE BERG: I do not have it there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, while Section 9 is open then, Mr. Berg, what's your proposal?

DELEGATE BERG: I move to delete the word "bodies" and the word "or", following the word "public" and before the word "agency".

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: I have been concerned as a lawyer about the use of the word "public bodies", particularly as it relates to the verb-or the noun really-"deliberations" or "deliberate". When I think of a public body deliberating, I think first of a jury; that's a deliberative public body. I think not only of an ordinary jury sitting in a civil or criminal case, I think also of grand juries, of which we have had some operating in both Gallatin and Park Counties. Those deliberations ought not to be open and available for observation by any member of the public or any participant in the litigation or any person who's under suspect before the grand jury. For that reason I think we should strike the words "bodies or", because I think with that terminology in there it is clearly broad enough to include the deliberations of a public body; to wit: a jury. Similarly, and of course my mind does run, I admit, along judicial lines, but take the deliberations of the Supreme Court. That's a public body. Is it to be understood that Mr. Davis, or Mr. Dahood, or myself, if we're on opposite sides of the case, having finished the argument, may then go into chambers with the court and observe their deliberations in the judgment of the case we just argued? I submit to you, under the language as it is, those things would be possible. I don't think you intend it. If you strike the words "bodies or", you leave it to the agencies of state government. Now I want to see all agencies, in particular, opened up to the public. I want their documents examined; I want their deliberations open. I am particularly interested in the operations of the city councils and boards of county commissioners, as well as all other agencies and commissions and forms of government. I want their deliberations open; I want their documents available for inspection. But I do not think that the term "public bodies" adds anything, and it may create problems which we do not otherwise envisage. I therefore submit for your consideration the deletion of those two words "bodies or".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman. I have a hard time thinking of the Constitutional Convention as an agency, or the Legislature as an agency, and I-my mind is not fast enough, maybe, to turn to some others. I don't know what other word to use for groups like this, other than public bodies. It seems to me like-1 tried to listen carefully as he went through the list, maybe not in every case, but in many of the things Mr. Berg described, the phrase that takes exception, that says "clearly exceeds the merits of public disclosure", certainly would be applied to a grand jury. I just can't picture this not applying there. I think I would oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, the Chair would like to know how many people expect to speak on this. If we're going to debate it, we're going to recess; and I'm perfectly happy that you do so.

All right, Mr. Dahood, we'll take one more shot at it.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Well, Mr. Chairman. I think probably I should rise in view of the fact that some question has been raised. If the language of Delegate Berg can be accepted, then of course I think his concern is one that should concern us all. And I think the interpretation that he has given could possibly be laid against this section, but I am very reluctant to rise in opposition to Delegate Berg on this issue because I'm certainly in accord with everything that he says, except I'm not satisfied in my mind and judgment that a court could conceivably give thatinterpretation to "bodies". We are referring there to public bodies; perhaps city councils, perhaps some bureaucratic groups or some bureau that may have been established perhaps for some particular special public purpose that may not fall within the term of "agencies". But then again, "agencies", I suppose, is a generic term. We are involved, I suppose, in semantics here. I think our comments clearly indicate that we are not trying to upset any traditional rule of procedure with respect to anything within the judiciary. I think our comments certainly indicate we're not trying to upset any particular privacy that's required in the matters referred to by Delegate Mahoney. I just do not think that that problem would arise. And with those comments in the record and in the journal, I would stand with the present language.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair sees others that want to debate it. I think we'll debate it after lunch; we're all pretty hungry.

Mr. Eskildsen. For what purpose do you rise, Mrs. Eck?

DELEGATE ECK: I have an announcement.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Pardon?

DELEGATE ECK: I have an announcement.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'll come to that.

DELEGATE ECK: Oh, okay.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman. I move that the Committee of the Whole stand in recess until 2 o'clock this day.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. We're going to recess until 2 o'clock if you vote for it, but I must announce that there will be a Style and Drafting meeting during lunch.

And Mrs. Eck, do you want to make your announcement, or do you want me to?

DELEGATE ECK: Why don't you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: There is to be an Administration Committee meeting in the Rules Committee room at a quarter of 2:OO; that'11 be 15 minutes before we come in. Very well, all in favor of recessing until 2 o'clock, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Convention recessed at 12:46 p.m.--reconvened at 2:14 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The committee will be in order. Members of the committee, before lunch we were discussing Section 9 still. And the situation was that Mr. Berg had an amendment to Section 9, as it's shown on page 11 of the Style and Drafting report, that we were working in. His motion was on line 5 to delete the words "bodies of'-line 4?-"bodies" or-all right- "bodies or"--excuse me, line 5, so that it would read: "or to observe the deliberations of all public agencies" instead of "public bodies or agencies". And it was Mr. Wilson's turn to talk.

Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President [Chairman]. Would Mr. Berg yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg?

DELEGATE BERG: I yield.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. Berg, as this provision is now written, would this pertain to all Police department files, Sheriffs office files, Attorney General's files, County Attorney's files, in respect to investigative matters?

DELEGATE BERG: Well, I wouldn't want to be the one to pass judgment on that, but I would call your attention to the last portion which reads that: "unless the demands of individual privacy clearly exceed the merits of public disclosure". And I would suspect that there will be problems arise in the interpretation of it that only the courts will decide. I could not give you a firm answer, yes or no.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President [Chairman]. Will Mr. Berg yield to another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg?

DELEGATE BERG: I yield.

DELEGATE WILSON: Who, in your opinion, would determine whether this would be public or not?

DELEGATE BERG: I anticipate that there would be court cases develop and, out of that, decisions rendered as in any other statutory or constitutional interpretation problem.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. Berg yield to another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg?

DELEGATE BERG: I yield.

DELEGATE WILSON: Would you foresee a lot of litigation, separate litigations on these particular issues?

DELEGATE BERG: No, I foresee that there will be litigation. I foresee that there will be interpretations, and that final decisions will be achieved through the courts.

DELEGATE WILSON: Thank you, Mr. Berg.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion? Very well, members of the committee, you have before you the motion of Mr. Berg that we delete the words "bodies or", so that Section 9 reads: "or to observe the deliberations of all public agencies" instead of "public bodies or agencies". Roll call?

DELEGATE BERG: May I close now?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, close.

DELEGATE BERG: I only want to remark that during the noon recess I asked our research analyst to look up definitions of "public bodies". She was unable to find any court decisions actually interpreting the word "public bodies". So I assume that we are now inserting, if we leave it in the Constitution, words that do not have any interpretation and, to this date, have no fixed meaning. I would like to remark, for the purpose of the record, that my purpose in asking to delete the word "bodies or" is to eliminate the potential interpretation that it might include juries, grand juries, Supreme Court deliberations.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Berg's motion to delete the words "bodies or". So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be opposed, say No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Noes have it, and the motion fails. No, I think that was pretty clear. Now we're still debating Section 9; is there any further discussion?

Mr. Schiltz, is it your opinion that we don't need to readopt Section 9?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Graybill, it's much stronger than an opinion; I did it and it has been adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So that if we're all through reconsidering it, we just leave it alone?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Is Mr. Scanlin's motion to amend Section 9 going to come before us?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, Mr. Scanlin, what do you want to do, withdraw it or leave it?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, I wish to withdraw it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's withdrawn. Very well, unless the Chair hears differently, we will consider the matter of reconsideration of Section 9 closed. Mr. Clerk, will you read Section 10.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 10, Right of privacy." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, there are no changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion? As many as shall be in favor of Section 10, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 11.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 11, Search and seizure." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, we made one or two minor style changes, nothing significant.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of Section 11? All in favor of Section 11, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and so ordered--or it's adopted. Section 12.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 12, Right to bear arms." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 12, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, there are no changes in Section 12.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 12, is there any discussion? So many as shall be in favor of Section 12, say Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's adopted. Section 13.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 13, Right of suffrage." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this Committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 13, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, we changed the title of "Right to suffrage" to "Right of suffrage" to confirm with what was said on line 28. And besides, that sounds better.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of Section 13? All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's adopted. Section 14.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 14, Adult rights." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, we changed the word "eighteen" to figures "18" for drafting purposes. And then we struck "or older", because anybody 18 years of age is an adult and we didn't think that was necessary.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It looks to me like you put "or older" in.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Or, I mean—that's what I mean to say; we put "or older" in, because otherwise it sounded as though we only had 18-year-olds who were adults. I'm sorry.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We've got to watch you, don't we, Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: This is a bad day, all the way around.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Is there any discussion on Section 14? All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 15.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 15, Rights of persons not adults." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 15, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, we made this conform with Section 14 by style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of Section 15? All in favor of Section 15, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 16.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 16, The administration of justice." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 16, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, one or two minor style changes, nothing else.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 16. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 17.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 17, Due process of law." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 17, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

We had to restrain the committee quite a bit, Mr. Chairman, to leave this one alone, but it was just like the U.S. Constitution, so we decided to leave it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion? Is that all right, Mr. Davis? (Laughter) All in favor of Section 17, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 18.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 18, State subject to suit." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 18, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, we made some changes here- we changed "Nonimmunity from" to "State subject to suit". Nonimmunity sounds like two negatives, which we didn't like, and I think this is better. We used the words "local governmental entities" to conform to the language we used in the Revenue and Finance Article, which will be used throughout the Constitution. We made a substantive change on line 27; where it had "June first", we put in "July first", for the reason that most insurance is going to be purchased probably after the first of July and not-or effective the middle of the year and also statutes become effective on the first of July unless some earlier date is specified. And we checked this with the committee, and the committee had no problem.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. The committee does agree, and I am compelled to concede to Style and Drafting that they have improved the language.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion? All in favor of Section 18, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. 19.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 19, Habeas corpus." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 19, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, no changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Johnson, oh-All in favor of Section 19, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. 20.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 20, Initiation of proceedings." Mr. Chairman. Containing two subsections.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, we made style changes; nothing very significant.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion? All in favor of Section 20, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 20, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, again style changes; nothing significant.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, are you on 21 or 20?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I am on 20, sub. 2.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, we take these whole things at a time, Mr. Schiltz, don't we?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Oh, we don't, I beg your pardon. That's on the other half of the melon. Okay, 20, sub. 2. Is there any objection?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I'm watching you pretty close, Mr. Chairman. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of 20, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered— it's adopted. A fellow could get confused at this game if you played it long enough. Section 21.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 21, Bail." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 21, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, no change.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 21? All in favor of 21, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. 22.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 22, Excessive sanctions." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 22, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, no changes; it's the old section from the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 22, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. 23.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 23, Detention." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 23, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, we only made a change on line 26 to be consistent-"provided by law" as opposed to "prescribed by law"-and that's all.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 23, say Aye.

Oh, Mr. Joyce, were you up?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Yes, Mr. Chairman. I'm going to move at this time to suspend the rules.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: On 23?

DELEGATE JOYCE: On Section 23. And if I am successful, I would propose to strike the last sentence, because as I understand it, the United States Supreme Court has held that a deposition may not be received as evidence at the trial if the witness is dead or absent from the state; and it just seems to me that we really shouldn't pass something that's contrary to the federal Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the Chair understands Mr. Joyce's motion to be to suspend the rules to-so that we could reconsider Section 23. And he has also further said that if that happened, he would make a motion to reconsider and would be interested in the last sentence; but notice that the whole section will be open. Is there any discussion of the motion to suspend the rules? All in favor of suspending the rules on Section 23, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair is in doubt. All in favor, vote Aye; and all opposed, vote No. Every delegate voted?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate want to change his vote? Very well, 64 having voted in favor and 16 against, the motion to suspend the rules is adopted.

Now Mr. Joyce, do you want to make a motion to reconsider?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. I move to reconsider the section-the action of the Convention on Section 23, and if that motion passes I would have a motion to delete the last sentence.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion on the motion to reconsider? All in favor of the motion to reconsider, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Now, Mr. Joyce, do you want to state your-Mr. Joyce, you did vote on the prevailing side when we adopted this, didn't you? To the best of your recollection? (Laughter)

DELEGATE JOYCE: Let me say I think so.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, what's your motion?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. I move to delete the last sentence of Section 23, on line 29, at page 13—that's where I'm reading-the following words, beginning with "Any": "Any deposition authorized by this section may be received as evidence on the trial if the witness shall be dead or absent from the state."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce. Your motion is to delete the last sentence in its entirety, is that correct?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. You may have a motion deleting the last sentence beginning with the word "Any" in line 29: "Any deposition authorized by this section may be received as evidence on the trial if the witness shall be dead or absent from the state."

Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. It's my—as I understand it, the United States Supreme Court has held that you cannot use a deposition in a criminal trial against a defendant in that, if the person-the witness is dead, he must-his evidence is gone forever. And if he's absent from the state, you can't use the deposition against him because the federal Constitution, which guarantees that a person will beconfronted by-has the right to be confronted by his accusers-that on the trial of the case, the jury has the right to see the accuser to test his credibility and witness on the stand and if he isn't there the evidence just can't be admissible. And any constitution or statutes that authorize it violate the federal Constitution. And since the Supreme Court has so held, it seems to me that adopting a Constitution thereafter, that we really shouldn't fly in the face of the United States Supreme Court.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. There is some question as to whether or not this particular provision would conflict with that particular decision, because there areinstances where the testimony that is so preserved may be in favor of defendant. But in any event, the Criminal Code of the State of Montana, which was recently enacted, does provide for the particular procedure involved in these matters. And because of that concern that's been expressed by Delegate Joyce and several other lawyers who are members of the Convention, the committee would have no objection to deleting that sentence. It does not take away from the substance of that particular Section 23.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Joyce's motion to delete the last sentence of Section 23, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's deleted. Are there other amendments to Section 23?
Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 23, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is to adopt Section 23 as amended. Is there discussion? All in favor of adopting Section 23 as amended, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted as amended. Section 24.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 24, Rights of accused." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 24, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, there are no changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 24? All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, Nay. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 25.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 25, Self-incrimination and double jeopardy." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 25, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, we made style changes; nothing significant. We said "No person shall be again put in jeopardy for the same offense", as opposed to "twice put in jeopardy".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 25. Any discussion? All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 26.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 26, Trial by jury." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 26, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, we made style changes, with no substantive changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 26. All in favor of Section 26, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, say NO.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 26 is adopted. Section 27.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 27, Imprisonment for debt." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 27, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, minor style change.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 27. Is there any discussion? All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 28.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 28, Rights of the convicted." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 28, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, in this case we struck out "and full rights shall be automatically restored", and reinserted, on lines 10 and 11, "shall restore all civil and political rights". Now I understand that Mr. Campbell has some problem with that, but in defense of the committee, if you'll look at-well, you don't have it, but on page 41 of the committee report, it was their express intent that any such person should be entitled to the restoration of all civil and political rights; so we used those words on the theory that "full rights" really had no legal significance and wasn't anything measurable or definable. So we used two terms that were definable.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I would rise to amend the changes made by Style and Drafting. I'm afraid in this case, just as in Section 6, they inadvertently changed the substantive nature of the section, and that is in this way. We intended full rights be restored as in the report we had on page 41. We felt that when a person has paid the debt and there's no longer state supervision, all of the rights should be restored. We said specifically in that writeup that he has the opportunity to become a full member of the community and it's required that he be restored to the same rights, privileges and immunities as other citizens. That's why we put in "full rights", to cover these other areas also. Now, in changing this, Style and Drafting excluded our "full rights" and put "civil and political". I feel, in talking to members of the committee, that this would not cover such things as occupational rights, and certainly it was not our intent to exclude those. We feel-1 feel that the Supreme Court could very likely say that an occupational right is not a civil right, it's a privilege, and as a result would not give full meaning to our phrase "full rights". And for this reason, I would accept the changes they made with the addition "and privileges" at the end, so there would be no question that this is to be part of the section. This was the original intent, and to prevent any substantive change I would recommend this be added to their report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, the Chair does not understand that you've made a motion yet, Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I make a motion that the words "and privileges" be added after "rights". I will withdraw to our Chairman, Mr. Dahood.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. Delegate Campbell speaks on behalf of the committee. We think he is correct, and I would like to move-and this, as I understand it, would be a substitute motion-that the original language of Section 28 be adopted by Style and Drafting and inserted within this particular article. Since it is our considered judgment that there is some question as to whether or not certain privileges are excluded by the adoption of the language submitted to this committee, I so move, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. The Chair doesn't understand it to be substitute, it's just your motion to restore. I didn't accept Mr. Campbell's motion.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Yes, it is our motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right. All right, Mr. Dahood has made a motion that the original language passed by the Convention--or by the Committee of the Whole be restored and that Style and Drafting use it in place of what they've put in here. Is there discussion?

Mr. Burkhart.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if Bob Campbell intended to insert "and privileges", or whether that's simply to be noted in the journal.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It is not inserted in the original language. And Mr. Campbell has referred to it as having come from the comment, but it is not part of the original language. Does everybody-I think it's pretty easy to make out what the original language was there.

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I would like to urge on Mr. Dahood that for the sake of Style and Drafting, not mine but his, that he accept our change and put in his "full rights" down there at the end, because as written it says, "full right shall be automatically restored". We have a real problem, and I think Mr. Dahood will recognize it just as soon as he starts to-parts the sentence: "restored" by whom?-and "automatically". Both those words bugged all of the committee and I just think are bad draftsmanship, and I think you would agree.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I don't see where the language of Style and Drafting is any more self-executing than the language that our committee submitted to the Committee of the Whole and which was adopted. I'm certainly quite willing to accept any suggestion that's going to improve the effect of the language, but unfortunately, at this moment I'm unable to see that that particular benefit is to be gained by accepting the language of Style and Drafting. They indicate in the language that they have suggested that termination of state supervision shall restore all civil and political rights. We say in the original language, "full rights shall be automatically restored upon termination of state supervision". And I must confess, if there is a difference I fail to perceive it at this time.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: So far as we're concerned, the reading would be that the termination-the act of termination, whenever that happens, constitutes a restoration of all civil and political rights--or full rights if you-if that's the wording you want. Whereas, as it's written, "full rights shall be"-and that indicates to us that somebody shall do it. And then "automatically"-1 don't like the word "automatically" because it doesn't seem to me "automatically" has any place in the Bill of Rights. "Full rights shall be restored", that means to me that somebody must do it. I realize you have "upon termination", but it still indicates to me that somebody must take some action, and I don't think that's what you want.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. Will Mr. Schiltz yield to a question?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Schiltz. It states in the original language that full rights shall be automatically restored upon termination of state supervision. It clearly indicates when that particular event shall happen. Perhaps this language would be an improvement, and perhaps be acceptable to your committee, to read, "full rights are restored upon termination of state supervision." Would that be more satisfactory to the committee?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That would be better. Or if you used "by" instead of "upon", it seems to me it would be better. Do you see what I am getting at? I don't--we're really debate-I don't think it's all that important.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: We have no objection to substituting the word "by" for "upon".

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: All right.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Perhaps Mr. Schiltz now will read that section with that particular change. And if Mr. Schiltz thinks the word "automatically" should be stricken, I think it's superfluous; it serves no particularly useful purpose. But on the other hand, sometimes the use of words, even though perhaps not necessary from the standpoint of strict English composition, do emphasize a particular point or a particular right, and that was the reason for using the word "automatically".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood and Mr. Schiltz. The Chair has listened carefully to you. I understand, Mr. Dahood, that you might withdraw your motion and make a motion that the sentence read, "and full rights shall be"-striking the word "automatically"-"restored"-and then change--and strike "upon" and put in the word "by"-"termination of state supervision for any offense against the state".

DELEGATE DAHOOD: That is correct, Mr. Chairman, and thank you for your assistance.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Dahood has changed his original motion, and it now is to change the language so that it reads: "Rights of the convicted. Laws for the punishment of crime shall be founded on the principles of prevention and reformation". -can we leave that period there, Mr. Dahood? And strike the "and" and say: "Full rights shall be restored by termination of state supervision for any offense against the state".

DELEGATE DAHOOD: That is correct, except there was one suggested change made. In line 23, instead of using the words "shall be", use the-in place thereof "are", so that it will read: "Full rights are restored by termination of state supervision".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, "Full rights are-" All right, now, ladies and gentlemen, the first sentence will remain as it appears in the Style and Drafting report. The second sentence will read, if you want to interlineate: "Full rights are restored by"--small "t"--"termination of state supervision for any offense against the state"-period-striking the rest of the underlined material-Now, as I understand it, that's agreeable with the committee. Is that agreeable with Style and Drafting? Are there others who care to discuss this matter? Very well, all in favor of Section 28—let's say, all in favor of the changes that have been proposed by Mr. Dahood, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Now, Mr. Schiltz, restate the section as amended.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 28, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All those in favor of adopting Section 28 as amended, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered; it's adopted. Section 29.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 29, Eminent domain." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I recommend--I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 29, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, a slight change in style on line 18; nothing else.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 29, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 30.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 30, Treason and descent of estates." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 30, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, a minor change to "Legislature" on line 25.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 30, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 31.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 31, Ex post facto, obligation of contracts and irrevocable privileges." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 31, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, no changes except for a comma, I guess, on line 29 and "Legislature" on line 4 of page 16.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 31, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 32.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 32, Civilian control of military." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 32, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, minor style change on line 9.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 32, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 33.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 33, Importation of armed persons." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 33, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, again, minor changes for "Legislature" on lines 14 and 15.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 33. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 34.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 34, Unenumerated rights." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 34, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, no changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 34, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 35.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 35, Servicemen, servicewomen and veterans." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 35, Style and Drafting Report Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, minor style changes for-on lines 21 and 23.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 35, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 35 is adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I should note in this-in connection with this particular article, that the death penalty provision is not reported here; it goes on the ballot.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: In other words, there is that item to go on the ballot that's not in the book here.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That'11 be part of the ballot. All right. Ladies and gentlemen of the committee, you have adopted the 35 articles, the Bill of Rights.

Mr. Murray, do we need to rise and report to refer this to—

Mr. Eskildsen, will you rise and report?

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman. I move we rise and final report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is to rise and report on the Style and Drafting proposal on the Bill of Rights. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered. Mr. Clerk, will you read the report.

CLERK HANSON: "March 16th, 1972. Mr. President. We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration Report Number 8 of the Committee on Style, Drafting of the Bill of Rights recommend as follows: that the committee rise and finally report on the Style and Drafting proposal on Bill of Rights. Signed: Leo Graybill, Chairman."

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I move the adoption of the Committee of the Whole report and that Bill of Rights Proposal Number 8 be referred to Order of Business Number 5.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is that the Committee report be adopted and referred to Order of Business Number 5.

Mr. Schiltz, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I was going to suggest that you go to Style and Drafting for engrossing of the amendments and then back to Order of Business Number 5.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Well, if we do that, can you put it straight to Order of Business Number 5?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Right.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. We'll send it to Style and Drafting for making the changes, and then we'll send it straight to Order of Business Number 5, without going back to Order of Business Number 10. All in favor of the motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I move the committee resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the purpose of handling business under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to resolve ourselves back into a Committee of the Whole. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk, before you read, just a minute, here. Mr. Murray, are you ready? Members of the committee, we're going to let Mr. Murray take the start of Local Government this afternoon. So Mr. Murray, welcome.

(Committee of the Whole Chairmanship assumed by Mr. Murray.) (Long pause in proceedings)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The committee will be in order. I understand that there have been distributed to the desk of the delegates a 2-page report from the Local Government Committee, and on the second page there are some amendments. And if you have these before you--which I assume that you do; I see many of you holding them-we will consider that these amendments are committee amendments, and unless there is objection, they will be deemed to be such and will be included in the committee's report as we proceed. The clerk will read the history and titleofthe General Government Proposal.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. Montana Constitutional Convention, 1971-72. Local Government Committee Proposal Number 11. Introduced February 19th, 1972. Oscar L. Anderson, Chairman; Virginia H. Blend, Vice-chairman. Majority proposal. Be it proposed by the Local Government Committee: that there be a new article on Local Government to read as follows: Article, Local Government. Section 1."

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: At this time we'll call on Mr. Anderson. No, before we read Section 1, Mr. Clerk, we'll have the committee Chairman, Mr. Anderson, give an introduction.

DELEGATE 0. ANDERSON: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. You have just been distributed a-two folders here; if you'll turn to the second one, there's a correction to make. We are not going to use the sub. 1 and sub. 2 and sub. 3. You will take your report, on either page 4, and insert where it says "the following", between lines 26 and 27—or if you are using the section where comments are, it would be on page 23, between lines 7 and 8. Strike that-after the-following the 2 in parentheses: "If the Legislature does not provide such procedures by July Ist, 1975, they may be established by election either-colon-(a) initiated by petition in the local government unit or combination of units-semicolon--or (b) called by the governing body of the local government unit or a combination of units". And then please disregard all of this below that; where it says Section 5, below "self-government charters", disregard that completely. You all got that straight, we'll start.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: You may proceed, Mr. Anderson, with the introduction.

DELEGATE 0. ANDERSON: Fellow delegates. The Local Government Committee submits herewith its unanimous proposal for a new Local Government Article. The proposal is intended to replace in their entirety the present Article XVI, Counties, Municipal Corporations and Offices; and Article XIX, Section 6, dealing with county offices. The committee was in general agreement that a new Local Government Article should provide flexibility, but was divided on how best to attain this goal. This proposal tends to work with the existing local government structure of cities, towns and counties and seeks to achieve improvement by encouraging experimentation in local government powers and form. Strong minority support originally was voiced in thecommittee for a proposal by Delegate Franklin Arness to replace the existing city, town, county and school district structure with a new one-level district structure. Eventually each of the 11 committee members voted for the adoption of this proposal. In signing this report, however, a committee member does not necessarily endorse each and every statement in it. This proposal was adopted after consideration was given to nearly 3,000 citizen suggestions and 19 delegate proposals. We wish to express our thanks to the citizens for their interest and to the delegates who submitted the proposals, the intent of which influenced the final proposal to a great degree. The committee utilized the services of the following people in addition to its members: Mrs. William L. Romine, committee secretary; Mrs. Pat-Miss Pat Chvatal, a Carroll College senior, intern; and Jerry Halloron, committee research analyst. I wish at this time to give special recognition and thanks to these people. And a little later Mrs. Blend will give further thanks to Jerry for his work. This committee believes this proposal provides a much improved constitutional framework for local government in Montana and urges its adoption by the Constitutional Convention. At this time-I'm going to stop here and say no more, but Virginia Blend will continue.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Blend.

DELEGATE BLEND: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. Flexibility and accountability best describe the goals embodied in the proposal of the Local Government Article. The proposal aims at creating the widest possible array of local government forms so that local structure may be tailored to local needs. It provides for new self-government powers that may be exercised on the local level and gives a constitutional boost to local efforts to eliminate costly and inefficient duplication of services and functions. At the same time, the proposal requires accountability from local government units. Each new form of government authorized under the proposal would require the approval of local voters before it could be implemented. Local government could exercise self-government powers only with the approval of local residents. County boundaries could be exchanged only if a majority of the affected residents could be-pardon me, only if a majority of the affected residents agree. The people would be guaranteed the powers of initiative, referendum, and recall on the local level. Although the proposal would not force Montanans to change their local governments, it would force them to closely examine the local units, with an eye toward improving them. This examination is provided for in the unique voter review of local government, which at the least should pay huge dividends in terms of increased voter awareness in and concern for local government. The length of the present local government provisions is more than cut in half by this proposal. Statutory material concerning indebtedness of new counties, county commissioner districts, and county officer location is deleted. The form of county government now in effect in 55 counties is mentioned, but only as one of what will hopefully be several optional forms of county government. But the real news in the proposal is its incorporation of new devices to make local governments more responsive and more responsible. Totally new provisions are added allowing local citizens to design their own form of local government, to increase local authority and responsibility, and to the-end needless duplication of local services. The Local Government Committee did not set out to replace the thinking of 1889 with that of 1972; rather, it attempted to replace the thinking of 1889 with a broad framework that would allow implementation of the thinking of 1990, 2010 and 2072, as well as that of 1972. The committee believes this proposal creates that framework. Now, please don't grab your pens and start writing amendments to each of the sections as we cover them until you have cross-referenced each, as we have indicated in the Local Government Committee material distributed to you earlier this day. We have been told that our article is one which has an invisible continuity and clarity of purpose when time is taken to read and study it. We have written it as a whole piece of cloth. The success of local government under this Constitution depends on this completeness. We call your attention that Sections 1 and 2 are basic to all local government units and to the article. Remember Section 3 should be related to Sections 5 and 6, which are for the hale and the hearty. Section 4 is common to Sections 3, 5, 6 and 7; and Section 11, the final one, is what ties up the package for all. It is important for you to know, we think, the complement of our committee which has brought expertise-it included political science majors; experience from former county attorneys, county commissioners, mayors, aldermen and women; and considerable knowledge on the part of public-spirited, civic-minded members who have actively participated in local government to improve it under the present Constitution, and to have known the frustrations. Our article has the full support of every local government organization and citizen groups involved. We have not had objections from any citizen or individual city or county official. We were delighted this morning to receive, from the National Municipal League, a letter from Mr. Cassella, who spoke to us a number of weeks ago, and I quote you in part from his letter: "I have read with great interest and care the Local Government Committee proposal. I can say that it would appear that your committee has developed a most imaginative and forward-looking Local Government Article, which certainly provides a most appropriate framework for achieving the goals of flexibility and accountability which your committee has endorsed. I certainly agree with these goals." As you all know, there is very little research about local government, much less success stories. We have been privileged to have made available to us the very fine text on Montana local government prepared by our research analyst, Jerry Holloron. We feel his contribution, Local Government Number 16, without which we would have been seriously handicapped, will be the basis upon which future authors will rely upon to update this subject. It has the greatest possibilities for Montana schools and hopefully will be the bible for local government units in making the transition into better government. As we in this Convention have researched the constitutions of other states, we think there will be requests for it as other states reach revision in the future. In closing, we ask you to bear in mind that we have reviewed six proposals containing complete government-Local Government Articles. After review: we chose two. These were prepared by Delegate Tom Ask and Delegate Lucile Speer, both members of our committee, which we felt had the broadest face from which to accomplish our goal. We have conceived our goal to be to provide options of self-determination by local government, whether in a town of 25 people or a city of 80,000, whether in a county of under 500 or a county of eighty or ninety thousand. We feel we have accomplished this. True democracy and true freedom only exist when we have the freedom of choice. We received a total of 19 delegate proposals; and we refer you to pages 34 and 35 of our report to learn our disposition of them. This article will be presented by the members of our committee. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Thank you, Mrs. Blend. The clerk will read Section 1.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 1, Definition.

The term "Local government units" includes but is not limited to, counties and incorporated cities and towns. Other local government units may be established by law." Mr. Chairman, Section 1.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Rollins.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1 of Proposal Number 11, it recommends that the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Rollins.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: The present Montana Constitution creates considerable confusion in the scatter-gun use of terminology concerning local government. Such imprecise constitutional terminology has resulted in confusion and court litigation. In an attempt to avoid this problem, Section 1 adopts local government units as a generic term and specifies that counties and incorporated cities and towns fall within its meaning. However, the section specifically authorizes the Legislature to create other local government units, thus providing freedom for the Legislature to meet future needs that cannot be met by the traditional city or county structures. Certain special districts, for example, might be appropriately designed-designated as "local government units" by the Legislature. The committee believes that Section 1 will discourage litigation and avoid confusion concerning the rest of the Local Government Article; it also recommends that terminology corresponding to that used in this section be incorporated in other articles of the new Constitution when local government units are discussed. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Discussion?

Mr. Gysler.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Will Mr. Rollins yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Rollins, do you yield?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I yield.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Just a point of information. Do you consider a school board a local government unit?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: No, because that's covered under the Education provision.

DELEGATE GYSLER: In other words, then-one more question, please.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Another question, do you yield, Mr. Rollins?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I yield.

DELEGATE GYSLER: You do not consider any of the school organizations a local government unit?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: No, sir.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Nutting.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Would Mr. Rollins yield to a question?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I yield.

DELEGATE NUTTING: "-but is not limited to", do you consider that that takes care of say, fire districts, cemetery districts, and so forth; that is considered—

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Special districts of many kinds.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The question now arises, on the motion of Mr. Rollins that when this committee does rise and report after having had under consideration Section 1 of the Local Government Proposal Number 11, that it recommend the same be adopted. As many as are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. The clerk will read Section 2.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2, Counties. The counties of the State of Montana as they exist at the adoption of this Constitution are the counties of the state. County boundaries shall not be changed or county seats transferred until approved by a majority of those voting on the question in each county affected." Mr. Chairman, Section 2.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE 0. ANDERSON: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2 of Proposal Number 11, it recommends that the same be adopted.

Section 2, admittedly controversial, provides that the present county boundaries and county seats will be retained unless changed by a majority of those voting on the question in each county affected. County A could be consolidated with County B only if a majority of those voting on the question in each county approves. Thus, a large county could not swallow a small county without the latter's permission. The proposed section combines Sections 1, 2 and 8 of Article XVI of the present Constitution. Other than deletion of statutory material, the basic intent of those sections is retained, with one exception. The present language, Sections 2 and 8, requires approval of a majority of the qualified electors of the county affected before a county boundary can be changed or a county seat transferred; the proposed Section 2 would require approval of a majority of those voting on the question. This difference can be quickly seen. Under the present provision, for example, if a county to be consolidated had 5,000 qualified electors but only 3,000 of them vote on the consolidation question, amajority of the 5,000, or 2,501, rather than a majority of the 3,000, or 1,501, apparently would have to favor consolidation to meet the constitutional restriction. Under the proposed language, on the other hand, a majority of those voting-or 1,501—would be required. In substituting the less stringent but more common majority requirement, the committee endorses the reasoning that persons who do not vote on an issue should not be able to thwart the will of those who do; let the proponents and opponents of county consolidation or county seat transfer go to the polls, and let the majority rule. County boundaries: calls for county consolidation, both nationwide and statewide, have gone unanswered despite their frequency during the 20th Century. Indeed, the number of counties nationwide has remained almost constant in the last 40 years, despite frequent complaints that many counties lack the population and economic base to be viable units of local government. If judged by national standards, certainly many of Montana's 56 counties are too sparsely populated to meet the tests of viability. But who should be the final judge of whether a county is too large or too small, and of whether it should be consolidated with another? The Local Government Committee believes this choice must be left to the voters of the counties affected. Therefore, Section 2 allows changes in county boundaries only if approved by a majority of those voting on the question in each county affected. The committee considered leaving the matter of county boundaries entirely to the Legislature, but decided that the authority would be more appropriately lodged in the people of the affected counties. After all, if sparsely populated counties are as inefficient and uneconomical as some of their critics claim, certainly the residents of those counties soon will be clamoring for county consolidation because of high tax bills and insufficient local government services. It should be stressed that the proposed Section 2 does not prevent county consolidation. It simply requires that any such boundary change must be approved by the persons most directly affected, the residents of the counties concerned. It should also be noted that the proposed Local Government Article allows ways short of total consolidation in which counties with dwindling population and tax base can be aided. Under Sections 3 and 5, a widerange of structural options can be provided, including one or more directed toward those counties that do not need the full range of county offices and services. Indeed, Petroleum County, the county with the smallest population in the state, already makes successful use of a county manager form of government. In addition, the broad language of Section 7 should encourage counties to band together and to join with cities and towns within their boundaries to provide more efficient, economical government services. Provisions in the present Constitution, Article XVI, Section 3, concerning the division of debt when new counties are formed were deleted from this proposal on the basis that they can be provided by legislation if they are ever needed. County seats: constitutional provisions protecting county seats from being changed by legislative action are common among the 50 states. Section 2 simply substitutes a concise statement of the protection now found in Article XVI, Section 2, and Article V, Section 26. The present Constitution's requirement that county offices must be kept at the county seat, Article XIX, Section 6, was deleted from the proposal. Such a requirement might prevent counties from sharing officers and setting up branch county offices. To the extent that such a requirement is needed, it can be provided for by law. Now, I'd like to close with this one note. Almost every state has almost these same provisions about county seats and county boundaries. We looked in the North Dakota one; they took three sections and 120 words. We assigned the task of cutting this down to Jerry Holloron. He did this in 50 words and said it better. And I say that anything-this proves that anything they can do in North Dakota, we can do it better here.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Discussion on Section 2? The question now arises on the motion of Mr. Anderson that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Committee Proposal Number 11, Section 2, of Local Government, that the same be adopted. As many are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say Nay.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. Section 3.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 3, Forms of government. The Legislature shall provide by law for the government of local government units and for procedures of incorporating, classifying, merging, consolidating and dissolving such units and of altering their boundaries. The Legislature shall provide by law for optional or alternative forms of government for each unit or combination of units to enable a unit of combination of units to adopt, amend or abandon an optional or alternative form by a majority of those voting on the question. One optional form of county government includes but is not limited to the election of three county commissioners, a clerk and recorder, a clerk of district court, a county attorney, a sheriff, a treasurer, a surveyor, a county superintendent of schools, an assessor, a coroner, and a public administrator, whose terms, qualifications, duties and compensation shall be prescribed by law. The Board of County Commissioners may consolidate two or more offices. The Board of County Commissioners of two or more counties may provide for a joint office and for election of one official to perform the duties of that office in the respective counties." Mr. Chairman, Section 3.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having under consideration Section 3, Proposal Number 11, it recommends that the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: I hope this section gets by as easy as the other two. (Laughter) I'm going to cover the comments in two separate stages here, because there are two separate paragraphs and basically two different ideas. If you'll follow me on page 13 of the comments, I will read that. Section 3-that's the first paragraph, now-aims at allowing the Legislature to provide the broadest possible range of forms of local government for counties, cities, towns and other local government units, including consolidated forms. Virtually every national and state authority on local government urges such flexibility, and even our old Section 7 of the Constitution of Article XVI, gives the Legislature broad powers to provide any plan, kind, manner or form of local government. The intent of Section 3 is to offer just as broad freedom to the Legislature to provide various forms of local government as is allowed under the present Section 7. Because of that intent, the committee considered retaining the present language of Section 7. This idea eventually was rejected because the present wording is unclear and confusing. It is hoped that Section 3's straightforward direction to the Legislature to provide optional and alternative forms of government will result in a greatly expanded offering to the local government units in Montana. The possibilities that could be provided under Section 3 are great. At present only three forms of city government--and that would be-the mayor council, would be one; the commission form; and the commission-manager-two forms of county government, the traditional form and then the county manager form, and one general form of city-county consolidation are authorized by statute in Montana at the present time. Other states offer considerably more alternatives; New Jersey, for example, employs what has been called the cafeteria-style form of local government options, under which a local unit may choose different alternatives within a form of government offered by the Legislature. This Section 3 was drafted to allow such a flexible cafeteria style in Montana, too. Thus, the Legislature could offer the mayor-council form of government but leave to the locality the question of whether to elect or appoint a city treasurer, a police judge, or other city officers. In this regard, it should be noted that Section 3 specifically directs the Legislature to provide forms of government which can be amended as well as adopted and abandoned by a vote of the local residents. Section 3 provides the Legislature with authority to meettherapidly shifting governmental needs of vastly different units of local government. For example, the Legislature, under Section 3, could provide streamlined forms of county government specifically-or specially suited for areas in which the population is dwindling, and a variety of forms of consolidated government for areas where virtually all of a county's population is urban. Section 3 clearly states that any optional or alternative plan will go into effect on a local level only after it has been approved by the voters. The Legislature is directed to offer choices of government structure for local government units. The voters of these units have the final control over what type of structure they select. So you will note the main point of this first section, then, is that it's going to-up to the local residents if they want to change their present form of government or adopt a new one. It's up to them; they have to vote on it. Now, we haven't outlined any specific forms, and this will be up to the Legislature, but I thought maybe I could give you ideas that the Legislature possibly could adopt for various optional or alternative forms of government. You have thecitymanagerform, whichisineffect, I think, in Bozeman and Helena; this is one form we have on the books that could stay as that form. Then we have the city commission form; and you elect a commission, and each commissioner also heads one of the major departments of the city; this could be another form. And there's the mayor-council; this seems to be the most popular city government-there's 124 cities and towns in Montana have this form; this could remain as one of the various officials in the government; you could variations of this mayor-council or commissioner form. It's unlimited as to what you could do with the various officials in the government; you could have an appointed executive or an elected-like you have elected mayor-or you could have all different types. As to counties, there are only three forms now. Fifty-five of the counties have the traditional county form of the three commissioners and the various officials that are elected. And one county, Petroleum, has a county manager form, which has the board of-three county commissioners are elected and they appoint a manager, and the only other official in the county that's elected is the county attorney. And then you could also have a county executive form of government, which some other states have and which we don't have now. And you could have an elected commission which serves as a legislative body and elect an executive, or whatever you wanted to call him, or you could make him appointed or elected. Then you could have what other officers you wanted in the county to be elective or appointive; it would be up to the people. And you could have a county administrator form of government, which California has; and this includes appointment by commissioners of an administrative officer who lacks the power of a county manager; and this plan is kind of a compromise between the no executive arrangement, and the traditional in other counties, and the strong manager system. And neither one of these, of course, are authorized, but the Legislature could authorize this form. And, of course, variations of the traditional form that we have now, three commissioners and various officers-you could have all kinds of variations of that. And you will note in this section we've also covered consolidated governments. Now, we visualize this would be a consolidated government between a city and a county, or city and towns and counties; you'd have one government for the area and even two counties if they so wished. And, in other words, under this consolidated form, you'd have-could have a commission-mayor form, and the commissioners were elected and the mayor could be elected or appointed. And you could have the commission-manager form, where you have commissioners elected from this particular area, and you could have the manager appointed by these commissioners. And then, under this program, you could have a sheriff or you could have a law department; you could have them appointed or elected. In other words, there's many, many varieties of different types of consolidated governments that you could have; but again I want to stress that the main point of this is that—this section is that the people of the area are going to be the ones to decide what kind of government they want. Now, you might say, "Well, how would this go about? How would they do this?" Well, I would visualize the Legislature would set up these various optional or alternative forms, and they would provide in there that the city or county, if they desired to change their government, could have a three-man commission appointed to make a study of it and have hearings, say, for 6 months, where people could be invited in to see what they thought of their government and what changes could be made. And then, at the end of this, this commission would propose the best plan that they thought for the county or the city or the town, which would be voted on by the people at the next election. And this is what I visualize would happen. Course, like I say, the Legislature has to implement this entire program; but I think it certainly gives the flexibility. You can dream of all types of local government that-to fit our needs. We decide upon this particular paragraph because we have a city-or small towns of 30 to 40 people in Montana, on up to urban areas of 85 and 90,000 people, so it's pretty hard to find one form of government that's going to fit all these various types of cities and towns and counties. Now, the second paragraph in this particular article is-if you remember the clerk reading it, or you can read it-is what we call the present, traditional form of county government; elect three county commissioners and the clerk and recorder, clerk of the district court, et cetera. You recall when we were on the Judicial Article, they moved the clerk of court and the county attorney over to local government, which we accepted. We did this so all your county officials would be under one section, and if you'll note, they're under the jurisdiction of the county commissioners, and they can join two offices together or county commissioners of two or more counties can make one official serve all or be elected in two or three counties. And this gives complete freedom to the county commissioners to, in other words, update their county government to fit the needs of the particular area. Some of your larger counties, I'm sure, will need all of these officers and possibly more, so I'm sure they wouldn't do anything; but I'm sure some of the smaller, intermediate counties would want to join some of these offices like clerk and recorder, clerk of the district court. And there's a tremendous savings here to the counties. Now, many of you may say, "Well, why do you even mention it in the Constitution?" This-we had quite a discussion in our committee on this, and we did it for a number of reasons. Number one, as you'll note, we had 3,000 citizen suggestions on this very point. Of course a lot of them may have come from county officials, They're concerned, and the people of the state are concerned, that they're going to lose their elected county government. So we're putting this one form in there as an alternative; they can always say, "We have one constitutional form of county government that they can't take away from us." And maybe this is an assurance to the people we're not going to do away with county government. And if you'll note that this is just one alternative and if the people don't want it and they want some other form of government, they can vote on it and adopt any type ofgovernment that they want; but at least they'll have one that they-can never be taken away from them. I think this factor is also important in our Constitution. YOU know, everything we do here, you either lose a few votes or gain a few votes, and I would rather go out of this Convention with this paragraph in here, with this traditional form of county government that the people can know that their-can have if they so desire. And we'll get all the help and support of all the county officials and all the people that are concerned that they're going to lose their local government; and I'd rather have them on our side than against us, believe me. And another factor is, we had many witnesses before the committee that said, "What's wrong with our county government? We like ours, we don't want to change." And I think this feeling is throughout the state. So if it is working good, has worked good for many years, why take it out of the Constitution? It was in the old one, why not leave it in there? And a third factor is that I think that we've been very fortunate over the years to have the type of people for these various county officers; and I think they've been dedicated people, they're dedicated now, and I think they'll probably continue to be dedicated people. And certainly we're not locking in only one form of county government; this is just one alternative. And I think with those considerations, the committee finally voted that this optional form of county government, as it is today, would be left in here. And the last point that I-thing that I want to point out on this optional form of county government is the fact that the big saving of money that can be-say, for example, the peopledidn't want to change their government and they kept the old style under the old Constitution. Well, not near as much could be done by the county to improve it. We have put another sentence in here, allowing an officer to serve in more than one county, beelected in more than one county. And to the committee—in reviewing this, this is going to be a great savings to many counties throughout the state, and particularly now where you're getting to where you need so many experts. I visualize that assessment is going to be more and more difficult over the years, that you're going to have to have an expert. Why should you have to have one in every county? You could have a good man, an expert that could serve two or three counties, or maybe four or five. They could share the expense-it would be quite a saving-and they still have the competence of a technical appraiser. With that, I would submit that this Section 3 is a good section; it'll give all the flexibility and protection that we need; and it's actually up to the Legislature and the people what type of government they want. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Thank you, Mr. Ask.

Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman, I'd have a question of Mr. Ask.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask, will you yield?

DELEGATE ASK: I'll yield.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Yes, Tom, as you know, of course, I'm going to have to answer about five different county governments of just what happened up here. And in my own mind, I think this is clear; but I did want to put the question to you: now, these county commissioners can abolish an office if they wish, like the clerk of the court when they don't need one, county superintendent of schools if they don't even have a country school any more? They can just abolish these on their own, can't they?

DELEGATE ASK: Yes, under this section they can, if they retain this type of government. Of course, they can choose another type if they want to, in a year or two, you know, whenever it comes to them. They wouldn't even have these officials in there if they didn't want to. But under this present form, they can abolish an office or join it, yes.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: This is— another question?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask, will you yield to more questions?

DELEGATE ASK: I'll yield.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Yes, Tom— well, unless they vote to change the type of government we now have, let's say that they don't do anything; we just go home and we still have our setup like we had it, then the county commissioners could abolish the clerk of the court or something where they didn't need one?

DELEGATE ASK: Yes, that's true.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Yes, well, thank you, Tom. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Yes, would Mr. Ask yield?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask, will you yield to a question?

DELEGATE ASK: Yes, Mr. Chairman, I'll yield.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Tom, I think you meant to say in answer to Mr. Kamhoot's question that the county commissioners can abolish-or they cannot abolish the office, but they may consolidate the offices; is that right?

DELEGATE ASK: They can consolidate, yes.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: So the office itself is not abolished, is that right?

DELEGATE ASK: No, they can consolidate two or more offices. Excuse me, I guess I didn't answer that question right. I mean—

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Yes, another question?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Will you yield, Mr. Ask? Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE ASK: Yes, all right, I yield.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Well, I'll go back to the other question then again. First, I want to clarify this. I had one clerk of the court came up to me in one of the counties and says, "Whatever you do up there, get rid of these clerk of the court jobs." She said, "I'm elected to it, I'm being paid for it, and I'm ashamed of myself every day I'm here because they don't need me," she said, "and I'd just like to have it so that this county could say, 'we don't need a clerk of the court, so let's abolish this position and quit spending the money on it.'"

DELEGATE ASK: Could I answer that, Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Yes. You may answer the question.

DELEGATE ASK: What I meant was, you can do away with it, but it doesn't say that; you consolidate, you put them together. So, you're always going to have to have some type of clerk of court, but it could be joined with the clerk and recorder or some other office, superintendent of the schools. In the county, by doing that, you've done away with one of the offices, but you still have the services of that person being performed by someone else.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Well, another question?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Yes, Mr. Kamhoot. Mr. Ask, will you yield?

DELEGATE ASK: Yes, I'll yield.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Take the county superintendent of schools; now some of our counties have country schools, some do not. If there was no need of a county superintendent of schools and the county superintendent didn't run again for reelection, so the office would be vacant, there'd be no need for it, they could go along this way; but if someone came along with the qualifications for this job and ran for it, would they be forced to let her occupy this office and pay this salary even with nothing to do?

DELEGATE ASK: Yes, they would. But what they'd have to do there is consolidate with another office, which some of them-1 think there are one or two counties have done that already, consolidated with another office. But if you will note, Mr. Kamhoot, in this we have left the qualifications and-terms, qualifications, duties and compensation all provided by law, so this qualification is a-would be a separate item under Legislature. But if you didn't need a county superintendent of schools in one county, you'd just assign the duties of that office to some other office and you'd accomplish the same thing.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: It's not in the Constitution, then it's up to Legislature to-? Yeah. Thank you.

DELEGATE ASK: Yes-well, for that particular facet.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Yeah, thank you, Tom.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I didn't think you would call on me. Could I ask Mr. Ask a question, please?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: If Mr. Ask will yield.

DELEGATE ASK: I yield.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: You may have answered this question, and if you did, I apologize. But I'm concerned about the machinery for getting this change going. Is it entirely dependent on the leadership of the various units which wish to change, or can it be instigated by citizen initiative?

DELEGATE ASK: I'll be happy to answer that. If you'll notice, here's where you havetotieit all together. Section 11 is going to provide for that-how it gets done if the people don't doit. But when-we also have initiative and referendum in here on local government, where they-the people can initiate it themselves. But I would assume the Legislature is going to set up a standard procedure that says any government that wants to change can appoint a commission of three men, say, or five, to study the government and then they'll come up with a proposal to be on the ballot the next election. And if your local government units do this, why, you'll have a standard procedure to follow; and if they don't do it, why, Section 11 will take care of it, and initiative and referendum will also take care of it. The people have this right themselves.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Just a comment, Mr. Chairman, in regard to Mr. Kamhoot's question. Already the Constitution, the present Constitution, gives this power to consolidate these offices. And if you'll note on page 147 of the Local Government book, it specifies some of these counties that have already done this; and I know that some very interesting-note some very interesting combinations. The office of the treasurer and the superintendent of schools in one county, in Treasure County, is combined; in Roosevelt County, in my county, the office of the clerk and recorder and surveyor is combined in one office. So apparently the thing that you're suggesting here is not anything new, it's just a restating of the old principle.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: Why, that is true, Mr. Harbaugh, that the consolidating offices is in the old Constitution; but we've added the new sentence on there, the commissioners of two or more counties can consolidate the duties of one officer. And we particularly heard witnesses that-from superintendents of schools-that they could handle maybe two or three counties, so they could be elected in these three counties. This is the first provision that you have that they could even do that; and I think on your superintendent of schools, where you need special qualifications, these are the kind of offices that should serve more than one county. And I think this probably answers the question; for a qualified person for these duties where there are not enough work in one county, but four or five-two or threecounties, they could do that.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE McNEIL: Mr. Chairman, will Delegate Ask yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Will Delegate Ask yield?

DELEGATE ASK: I will yield.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Go ahead.

DELEGATE McNEIL: Tom, I just want to ask what I think is basically a style and drafting concern that I have; but for the record, in the second paragraph, where it says, "the election of three county commissioners", is it thecommittee's intent that the word "the election" also applies to all of the other listed county offices?

DELEGATE ASK: Yes, that-they apply to all those other county officers.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Is there further discussion on Section 3?

Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. Local Government is my committee, too, and Mr. Ask has done a wonderful job of presenting it to you. I had a proposal in for the increasing of county commissioners if it was needed. Now, some of our counties are growing pretty big; some of our cities are growing pretty big; and it's just possible under this program that we could, if the need arises, and upon an election of the people, to have four or five or up to seven county commissioners if that time comes along. And it's important, I think, that the flexibility in this is passed by this group. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Members of the—

Mr. Garlington.

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: I would like to testify a little in support of this Section 3. I came over here with the idea that we probably ought to have a judicial district clerk of court instead of county clerks of court, because I felt that in a great many counties this office was not particularly busy, like Mr. Kamhoot says. And for the information of all hands, I think it would be worthwhile to pass on what I learned about the fruitful financial saving for the taxpayers that can be developed by utilizing fully the flexibility that is in this paragraph 3. In Montana we have 18 judicial districts where there is one or more judges residing at one place. This means that the other three or four counties, I guess it is, do not have a resident judge but they have a resident clerk of court. Now if there were a district clerk of court instead of a county clerk of court, there would be many, many less clerks of court. And I found that in the year 1970, there was expended by the taxpayers for the clerks of court in the counties where no judge resides and where there is very little work to do usually, five hundred and twenty-seven thousand-some-odd dollars. And I suggest that if there is a pool of a half a million dollars or more to be effected as a savings for the taxpayers in just one small example, that there is a lot of relief for the taxpayers in the Local Government Article; and I think also that one of the ways that we can persuade the voters that this new Constitution is better than the old one is to point out to them the potential for dollar savings in tax expense of government by utilizing this sort of thing which this document will make available. I had hoped that that pool of a half a million dollars would be an easy way to improve the status of the justice of peace courts, and indeed, it would make available presently consumed tax moneys for a new and better purpose. And all this simply illustrates that, really, there is much improvement that can be made in our government through more flexibility, and here's a fine example of it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Members of the committee, the question now arises on the motion of Mr. Ask that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 3 of Proposal Number 11 on Local Government, that the same be adopted. As many as are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. The clerk will read Section 4 in its entirety, please.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 4, General powers. Local government units not exercising self-government powers under Section 5 and 6 shall have the following general powers: Subsection 1. Incorporated cities and towns shall have the powers of a municipal corporation and such legislative, administrative and other powers as provided or implied by law. Subsection 2. Counties shall have such legislative, administrative and other powers as provided or implied by law. Subsection 3. The powers of incorporated cities and towns and counties shall beliberally construed. Subsection 4. Other local government units shall have such powers as provided by law." Section 4, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Arness, I'll ask at this time that you move the entire section, even though there are subsections here, because the Chair has no amendments before it.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4 of Proposal Number 11, it recommends that the same be adopted.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman, I think the Chairman of the committee wanted me to talk on this one because it gives me a chance to talk about Mr. Dillon's rule. I'll tell ya, Lyle, I'll start right there. Well, the Dillon rule, which has no relation to the "Gunsmoke" show, I'm told, is named after-or takes its name from a judge who enunciated this rule, so far as it applies to cities and counties and other municipal corporations as we know them and as we know them here in Montana. The rule, simply stated, is that-oh, and this does appear on the-in the gloss that you have on the comments on this Section Number 4. So far as it relates to towns, it provides that the municipality has only those powers which are expressly granted to it by the Legislature or which may necessarily be derived or implied from the grant from the Legislature. And that is the rule in Montana; the Dillon rule is the rule for the cities in our state. The rule that is proposed in this section, which is subsection 1 in Section 4, is a restatement of the Dillon rule. Under the proposed Section 4, sub. 1, then, the cities and towns of the state will have such powers as the Legislature grants to them and such other powers as may necessarily be implied from that grant. This Section 4, sub. 1, is a restatement of the existing law. The only possible modification that could be considered to have occurred so far as that rule is concerned would appear in subsection 3 of sub-Section 4. Subsection 3 provides that the courts will liberally construe these powers, and to the extent that that is operative, that would be a modification of our existing situation. I think that it is fair to state that the section at that point, then, is simply a restatement of our existing law. The Dillon rule, as it applies so far as our counties are concerned, is even more stringent. The situation where the counties are concerned, as far as their powers, is that the county has only those powers which are conferred upon it by the Legislature. In the case of counties, they don't get the benefit of any implication that might derive from the grants of power, and it is the situation in Montana, by court decision, that counties are an administrative arm of the state. The courts have uniformly held, and the only authority on this proposition is what we get from the courts, that counties are part of the executive branch of the government and they are part— and they are an administrative branch of that government. So they are part of the executive; they are administrative; and as the court said in one of the cases which is cited in the gloss that you have before you, a county must derive its powers by express, direct grant from the Legislature, such as we held proper in the case of City Missoula against Missoula; and that is the rule. Now that rule is treated in Section 4 in subsection 2, and this is the other modification of the powers, if it can be considered to be a modification, that appears in this section. Under this section, then, counties will now have legislative powers, provided that the Legislature gives them such powers. To the extent that that section has any operation, the decisions of the Montana court-1 think three of the decisions of the Montana court--are controlling. Those decisions are cited to you in the gloss; they are, beginning first of all, a case of Baucus against Lake County; and then, continuing, Plath against Hi-Ball Contractors; and the last case that I think is significant is the Missoula against Missoula County case that I mentioned to you earlier. Basically these cases hold this: in Baucus against Lake County, I think that it is fair to say that the court summed up a long line of its own decisions, and there are lots of decisions about what counties and cities can do in this state; I have been unfortunate enough to have participated in some of them. The court said that first of all, it's well settled that the county is simply a part of the executive branch of government. It is not judicial; it is not legislative; and it's clearly part of the executive. And moreover, it's an administrative branch of the executive; it's there to do what the state tells it that it ought to do in carrying out the laws of the state. Then the court went on in that case-now this case involved an attempt by a county-or several counties to set up a health district. And the court went on in that case to consider whether the counties had gone beyond what they could do as administrative arms of the executive branch of government; and they considered whether the rule against the separation of the powers had been violated or not; and they laid down a guideline for deciding whether the county had overstepped itself or not. The court there said that when the Legislature confers authority on an administrative agency-in other words, the county-it must lay down the policy or reasons behind the statute and also prescribe standards and guides for the grant of power which had—which has been made to the administrative agency. The rule has been stated as follows: The lawmaking power may not be granted to an administrative agency to be exercised under the guise of administrative discretion. Now, there is the crux of the problem where the counties have been concerned. When are they exercising administrative discretion and when are they exercising legislative authority? Well, in the Plath case-this was a zoning case which came from Billings-the court examined a zoning statute and struck it down and said that in this case the counties have been given by the Legislature a grant which violates the separation of powers principle. The court then went on and said, not only does it do that, but by allowing the counties, in combination with the cities, to set up a city-county planning board, what you've really done is violated Section 7 of the existing Constitution, which was the section that authorized consolidation of cities and counties. So the court said, "What you've done, you've allowed these counties and cities to consolidate without telling anybody. And not only did you let them legislate by zoning, but you let them combine by giving them the power to control areas around the cities by zoning and by land-use planning." At the same term of court, the court decided another case, Missoula against Missoula County. This was a suit that also involved a zoning ordinance, and in that case the court found that the zoning ordinance was constitutional. The-it's a little hard at this point to decide what is-when is the county legislating by enacting zoning laws and when is it acting as an administrative agency; because I think, in fairness, it's really difficult to say that there was much difference between the statute that the court struck down in the Plath case and the statute that the court upheld in the Missoula case. It is true, however, that in the case involving the City of Missoula, that there was no super-agency or no agency formed as a result of a combination of two existing municipalities, and possibly that is a basis for distinction between the two cases. Also, the statute under the-in the Missoula case is-was a good deal more cumbersome to operate under than the statute had been in the case of the Billings agency. But the courts have laid down this rule clearly: that in Montana, at any rate, the distinction between the three branches of government is an important distinction so far as counties are concerned. The court will allow the Legislature to delegate to the counties what it decides are administrative discretionary acts, but it will not allow the Legislature to delegate to counties what it determines to be primarily legislative functions; the difference between a legislative function and an administrative discretion will be decided by the court. The court has said that there are certain guidelines that it will follow, and generally speaking, it describes the reason and the rationale for this rule as this: they say that the tests go to the question as to whether or not sufficient standards have been provided in the delegation of power and whether or not sufficient safeguards have been established with regard to the procedure for carrying out the power. So when you view the proposed section in the light of the existing case law, what we have, I think, is this: I think that it is the opinion of the majority of the committee that the court should be encouraged to look with liberality upon attempts by counties to zone and to otherwise function in the areas of zoning and planning. The provision that we have in Section 4, subsection 2, is very cautious, and I do not think that it amounts to more than a restatement of the existing Montana law. The general tone and tenor of Section 4 is, however, directed to this end: that where possible, the Legislature-the court, in construing situations that come before it, should construe them with liberality; again, the same situation that we had so far as the cities are concerned. In summing, then, the powers that are granted under this section, I think that it's fair to say that they are a restatement of what we presently have and that the two points of departure are: one, the statement that the Legislature may delegate certain legislative powers to counties-obviously, the Legislature is the one to do it, and the delegation, I think, would be a delegation that would be in conformity to those standards that have already been determined judicially; and second, an invitation to the courts, I suppose-or an instruction to the court to liberally construe the powers of the cities and, too, the counties. There are other constitutions that have this language in them, so far as liberal construction is concerned. Massachusetts says that-in its Constitution that its courts should liberally construe questions arising as to cities and towns. Alaska says the same thing. Illinois says it; and Michigan says it. So far as the provision relating to the counties and the ordinance-making or legislative powers of the counties, there are other states that do allow some measure of power to counties. Most of them that do that go considerably farther than the article that has been proposed here. There are some-and these are states who, what we call allocate powers; that is, they give certain definite powers to counties-such as Washington-that allow counties to make ordinances regulating traffic and make ordinances regarding police matters. There are other areas that go farther. And there are some states, even, that do appear to give to the counties powers that would be almost identical to those that the cities have. I think, however, in a great many of those, that that power is largely illusory. But at any rate, there are a numberofotherstates, California and Hawaii and Washington being a few, that do allow counties some ordinance-making powers, and that would go beyond what we have done here. And there may be-it is possible that one of the states may go to the extent of allowing the counties what are called residual powers; that is, that giving them a situation which would be the opposite of the Dillon rule, where they would have the powers that were not denied to them, rather than what we have in Montana where they have only such powers as are granted to them. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The committee will be in order, please. And we now have before us Section 4, open for discussion. Is there any discussion on Section 4? The question now arises on the motion of Mr. Arness that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4 of Committee Proposal Number 11 on Local Government, it recommend the same be adopted. As many as are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. The clerk will read it with the committee amendments included, please.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 5. Self-government charters. The Legislature shall prescribe procedures and may set limits under which a local government unit or combination of units may frame, adopt, amend, revise or abandon a self-government charter with the approval of a majority of those voting on the question. The prescribed procedures, however, shall not require approval of a charter by a legislative body. If the Legislature does not provide such procedures by July 1, 1975, they may be established by election, either: sub. (a) initiated by petition in the local government unit or combination of units; or sub. (b), called by the governing body of the local government unit or combination of units. Charter provisions with respect to a local government unit's executive, legislative and adminstrative structure and organization shall be superior to statutory provisions." Section 5, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Spew

DELEGATE SPEER: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having considered Section 5, as amended by the committee, that it be adopted.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Miss Speer.

DELEGATE SPEER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to make a few preparatory remarks to Section 5 and 6 before I speak to Section 5 specifically. There are two important elements in a local government charter-the structure or form of government, and the powers of local government-and these two elements are closely related; in fact, they are almost inseparable. The Committee for Economic Development has said that local government structures must first be modernized before they are capable of exercising broad powers. In Sections 5 and 6, the Local Government Committee believes that it has given the maximum amount of flexibility to local government in both the forms available and in the structures; and we believe that it provides a flexibility and representativeness and accountability for the present and for a long future. Mr. Chairman, I wish to speak first to Section 5. Section 5 directs the Legislature to provide procedures for local governments-for this Legislature to set up procedures by which local governments may frame their own charters. Delegate Ask spoke to the optional forms of charters which the Legislature might provide. As he very well described, it seems that the Legislature might provide an ample array of selections for local governments-both cities, counties and towns-to adopt. But this Section 5 carries the flexibility a bit further, and it authorizes the Legislature to prescribe limits and procedures by which local governments may frame and adopt their own charters. Today more than half of the state constitutions-or states have a charter writing powers for their cities and towns. There's a lesser number of counties that have this power; there are only 17. The section here, Section 5, in directing the Legislature to provide procedures and limitations under which local government units or combinations of units-for example, a county and a city or a county, city and towns within the county -can design their own form of government, provides for two major safeguards. First, the Legislature must set the limits and the procedures under which the charters may be designed or drafted. For example, they might-the Legislature might determine that only those units or combinations of units with more than 10,000 population should have charter-writing power. In fact, this is a frequent limitation placed upon self-writing charters. Or the Legislature could specify the number of members of the charter-writing commission and how they are to be selected, whether elected or appointed, and so on. There's a second safeguard provided here, that no charter or charter amendment could become effective until it is approved by a majority of the local voters. In other words, this leaves it up to the people affected to decide exactly what-whether they want the charter that has been framed by their elected representatives. This section also places certain limitation on the power of the Legislature. It prescribes the procedures that are to be used-or it authorizes the Legislature to provide the procedures that are to be used in adopting and framing a new charter, and it specifically states that the Legislature and the local governing body cannot deny or veto a locally drafted charter once it has been framed and if it has been framed in accordance with procedures that have been approved by the Legislature. Charter provisions on a local government's executive, legislative and administrative structure will supersede statutory and administrative measures. Well, this simply means that if a local unit chooses to appoint or elect a treasurer or select it in a different way from what the Legislature says, it may do so. (Clearing throat)—I'm sorry-I've got to get a cough drop.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: You're doing very well, don't hurry.

DELEGATE SPEER: Just a minute. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: If you're going to tell jokes back there, we want to hear them at the Chair. The Chair wants to know whether you're trying to compete with Studer. (Laughter)

DELEGATE SPEER: No, I told him I-no jokes, so that mine would be brief. I don't want to compete with Ralph.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Okay, you may proceed, please.

DELEGATE SPEER: The section that has been added says that if the Legislature does not provide such procedures by July lst, 1975, they may be established by election, either through initiative, by petition in the local government or combination of units, or they may be called by the governing body of the local government unit. In other words, if the Legislature fails to enact certain procedures for framing local charters, then the local government could proceed under provisions which it has framed for itself, with the approval of the citizens. The committee believes that this charter-framing power offers the greatest range of forms that can be made available to local governments, and it allows them to tailor governments to their own needs and their own interests. And Montana does have a great variety in the size and the interests and the needs of its communities, from rural-small rural communities to large; from very small counties and to larger counties with greater wealth. And this would give them the opportunity to, as I say, frame their charters to meet their own needs. According to the testimony which our committee received, there was not a great deal of interest in charter-framing; however, there are some communities that expressed an interest, and we believe that it would be desirable to give this opportunity to them so that they would not need to wait for the Legislature to provide the additional optional forms which Mr. Ask has suggested. The committee feels that this would open the door for local government to design a form of government that is best suited to their needs and will express their own interests. We do urge the support of this Section 5. Thank you. There is to be a vote now, isn't there, or questions and a vote, rather than continuing with Section 6?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: We will open this for discussion on Section 5 and vote, and then proceed to Section 6.

Miss Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman, may I ask Miss Speer to yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Miss Speer, will you yield to a question, please?

DELEGATE SPEER: Yes, I yield.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Lucile, I think this is just a beautiful article, but there's just one thing that I'd like to ask. You know, in connection with the interlocal cooperation commissions in both Missoula and Great Falls, it seems to me that one of the problems when people get together to look into their local government-and drafting a local charter is a very difficult proposition-that it's very-it seems to me that it's almost impossible for ordinary citizens to do it; that this is one area in which government really needs staff. Did you consider at all putting in there that the Legislature--even thesuggestion that the Legislature may fund? I mean, I don't think it even occurs to the Legislature the problems of doing something like this and how these people, a local community, does need some money to get some kind of technical staff to do their-the basic work on that.

DELEGATE SPEER: Well, we didn't consider funding. There are various procedures that are-well, there are several-there are some that are rather standard; and some constitutions--oh, not a great number-have what are called the self-executing, and tells just the steps that they go about in forming a charter-framing commission, and so on. First of all, they decide on the method of creating the commission and the number of members, and how it's to be elected, and then what length of time it would have to prepare a charter, and then how long before it would be voted on and when, then, if adopted, the provisions for adoption, and then when it would go into effect. This could be included, the procedure, in the Constitution, The only one I-well, I think I've read two—South Dakota was one that gave all of the steps to be taken in framing-in going about the framing of the charter. But I don't know that that answers your question, Daphne. Just what they-we did not consider funding of any state--urban affairs agency, no. That really would be an agency of the state rather than of local government.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman, may I ask another question?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Miss Speer, will you yield to another question?

DELEGATE SPEER: Yes.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Lucile, that isn't what I meant. I'm not talking about a local-I'm not talking about the executive or local government committee, but about giving some direction to the Legislature; some admission that this-if you don't have self-executing powers and you go it alone, that the community needs some help. And if we're going to come into a new era, which I certainly hope we are, I just wondered if you gave it any thought of you-just putting in that one word?

DELEGATE SPEER: Pardon-Mr. Chairman, may I-ask-what was the one word? I didn't get that.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Well, I'm not going to put it in now; I'm going to wait till the whole article is over. But I wanted to know if you'd talked about this at all.

DELEGATE SPEER: Well-Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Miss Speer, you may answer.

DELEGATE SPEER: I wish to restate that the committee did consider this matter, putting in what we called the self-executing provisions in the Constitution. But we felt it was better to leave that open for change in the future rather than to add a long-or rather, probably two pages-of procedural matters, when it might be that in 10 years there would be some more desirable way open. And I don't think that that information is so difficult to secure. We have talked-we did talk of leaving with the Legislative Council information as to these things which they might get to the Legislature in the coming sessions.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE 0. ANDERSON: In answer to Mrs. Bugbee, I have this red book here, and I'm reminded of the story that years ago, when Miss Speer was just starting out, the class was studying about moths, especially about Cecropia moths. And they came in to Miss Spew, and a student asked where they could get some information about butterflies and moths, and Miss Speer took a book out about three times this size and gave it to him. A few days later he brought it back and he said, "Miss Speer, there's sure a whole lot more about butterflies in this book than I really need or care to know." But there are a lot of cities with—that have gone through this chartering, and I discussed this with the Mr. Mizner of the League of Cities and Towns, and he said help would be available in this area in many areas. Now, we did discuss a self-executing charter, and since constitutional space is limited and constitutional language is very inflexible, it was thought better that we would leave this to the Legislature to develop; but there is some historical precedent. The State of Pennsylvania, I believe, had a law like this for 27 years and didn't enact self-executing charters; so this addition to Section 5 was put in so if the Legislature did not implement the chartering route, you could do it on your own. Does that help you out, Mrs. Bugbee?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask, did you wish to speak on this matter? You were up.

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman, I would like to answer Mrs. Bugbee on the question. When we talked about a Department of Local Government for the state, we thought, well, we're just adding another tier on; we'll leave that up to the Legislature if they want to do it. As far as funding goes, we feel that this is a local matter, and if there's a lot of interest in it, they possibly will do some funding themselves. And we have the League of Cities and Towns and the County Commissioners Association that are quite active and interested in this, and they indicated they would set up-they have offices to facilitate a lot of this study. And I think it's going to take a period of time to cover it, and we just didn't want to get into funding of it or who does-the city and town does it, the county, or whether the state does it. And we're just going to leave this up to the Legislature, but I'm sure they will get it done if there's any interest in any of the localities.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Melvin.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Mr. Chairman, perhaps one of the committee could straighten me out. On page 23, on line 5, in Section 5, it says, "a majority of those voting"; and then on the next page, in the comments, on line 10, it says "by a majority of the local voters". I would assume that the comments were meant to conform with the section by stating "a majority of those voting", Would somebody care to answer?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask?

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman, I'll answer that question. That was the intent of the committee, that it be the majority of those voting; and for the record, why, we can say it would be the majority of those voting on the question.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Cross.

DELEGATE CROSS: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if Mr. Ask could clarify something for me.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask, will you yield to a question?

DELEGATE ASK: Yes, I will yield.

DELEGATE CROSS: Your comments here on how this will be done and so forth are fairly clear, but the question that comes to my mind is, you've mentioned the Legislature and you've mentioned the county officers as possibly initiating this. Are those the only two means that you are anticipating for initiating this type of local government, or is there some way the people can get involved in the initiation of it? Or does that come later?

DELEGATE ASK: Mrs. Cross, they-this will be-if the Legislature will set up the procedures and how to go about doing it, and I would assume it would provide for a three- or five-man commission, and the local government would do—but if they don't do it, we have provisions for initiative and referendum so that the people can force the counties or cities to take a look at their government and have a self-government charter. And we feel that it can come from the top or come from the bottom, either way; and I think they can accomplish what they want to do.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Choate.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Ask yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask, will you yield?

DELEGATE ASK: Yes, I will yield.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Tom, I understand from reading this, it doesn't specify whether or not any particular slate of elected or appointed local officials is required. I assume they could adopt whatever offices they want to under charter, is that right?

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Choate, under a charter, all the Legislature is going to do is set the limits, like you have to be a population of x-thousand people before you can do it. And they'll set out the procedure of how you have a self. government charter, and then the people-and then set limits; and I assume one of the limits will be taxation. They're probably not going to give them unlimited taxation, these charters, and they can limit them to keep them out of the felony criminal field. No, they can't pass an ordinance on felonies, but probably on a misdemeanor. They'll set the limits, and then these people that form the charter will draw their own charter, just like the articles of incorporation of a corporation--will have a President, a Vice-president and a Counsel, and will have so many elected officers or appointed officers-you go right down the line. It'll probably be quite a lengthy document. You know-how they'll pass ordinances; what they have to do to run their government so that the people know what's going on; notice to the public; and how they're going to hold their elections, et cetera. In other words, it'll be all-inclusive, what they can do themselves. And then the people, of course, get the right to vote on that. But they'll-if they want five elected officials, they'll set out what their terms are, commissioners or managers or mayors or whatever they are, and then they will go right on down the line, powers and duties for each officer-treasurer. And once that's adopted, why, that's their form of government and they can operate within that and they don't have to follow any of the other statutes, except for taxation or wherever they're limited. Thank you very much.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Thank you, Tom.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Choate, do you wish to speak now on this matter?

DELEGATE CHOATE: Well, I thought I had the floor. I posed a question to him.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Do you want to ask another question?

DELEGATE CHOATE: No. I just want to say that I support it. I think it makes good common sense. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I have a question in my mind. I don't know whether this is the place to ask it or not, but I wonder if Miss Speer would yield?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Miss Speer, will you yield, please?

DELEGATE SPEER: Yes.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: We passed a section the other day, and I don't even remember where it is, but it was a section in regard to sovereign immunity, which we abolished. And my question is, how will this apply to units of local governments, such as a city, which are under a self-government charter? Will they lose that sovereign immunity which they might have as a result of being a subdivision of the state?

DELEGATE SPEER: Well, Mr. Harbaugh, perhaps I could ask—

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Miss Spew, would it be better if Mr. Ask responded to that question?

DELEGATE SPEER: -well, he is an attorney; but my understanding that a city or town or incorporated one exercising charter powers, does it have immunity? Now a county did, because it was an arm of the state, but since the state sovereignty is abolished, then the county no longer has any.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Perhaps the Chair can answer that question. As the language was adopted today by the Committee of the Whole in the Style and Drafting report, sovereign immunity for municipalities was abolished; and the fact that they were self-governing or not would not make any difference in the-in my opinion. That doctrine is now dead if this Constitution is enacted.

Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: That's the opinion of the committee, too.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: There being no further discussion, the question now arises on the motion of Delegate Spew that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 5 of Committee Proposal 11 on Local Government, that the same be adopted with the committee amendments. As many as are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. The clerk will read Section 6.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 6, Self-government powers. Local government units adopting self-government charters may exercise all powers not prohibited by this Constitution, by law, or by charter. This grant of self-government power may be extended to other local government units through optical forms-optional forms of government provided for in Section 3." Mr. Chair. man, Section 6.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Miss Spew.

DELEGATE SPEER: I move that when this committee does arise and report on the local— that it adopt Section 6 of the Local Government Article. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: I think your mike is on now. Yes, if you'll speak right into it, Miss Spew.

DELEGATE SPEER: In the beginning remarks, I spoke of the interrelatedness of Section 5 and Section 6, which dealt with the two things, the power-the structure of local government and then the power. Now we extend the powers of local government beyond the general powers that were described by Franklin [sic] Ask in Section 4 and carry them to a rather broad extent. However, we do limit or hinge the exercise of these broad powers to the framing of a local charger. Now, we said local government units now have only those powers that are delegated to them by the Legislature, but under Section 6 this would give local governments, in effect, all the powers that are not denied to them by the Constitution, or by law, or by their charters. This, however, does have certain limitations. Section 6 is intended to authorize certain limits; local units to have considerably more freedom to determine their local affairs, but they are limited on the one hand to the fact that they could exercise these broad powers only if they had framed and adopted charters, and then they are also limited by the fact that they would have to be approved by the voters. This is a new concept in local government powers. We have talked of delegated powers of local government, and we are now talking of the concept of shared powers. The functions performed by local government have been extended far beyond local boundary levels, and therefore local governments cannot properly exercise the functions that they are called upon to do when limited to only local powers. Therefore, we want to give them, in this Section 6, power to share with the state government the power to serve certain-to provide certain services that are needed. For instance, air pollution is a problem that is not limited to a local area. The local area, however, has aresponsibility there and must perform a function, but it is also a state and an area, a regional function; and so it's a question of the local government sharing power with the state. It is not a delegation of powerwhich limits the local government. The local government is free to act in any function so long as the state has not exercised this function. Now this may sound as though it were giving a great deal of power to local government; but as I said, in the first place we limited only to those local governments that have framed their own charter, and the second limitation we put upon it is that the Legislature can at any time enact a law to restrict local government power or preempt that area if the local government has exercised power that is not within its proper area. Now the question is usually raised to what should be the powers of local government in the area of taxation and local debt? Well, so far, I think in the new Constitution we havelimited the local government power. We've given the Legislature the power to regulate, set limits on local debt; and it may be that the Legislature probably will set limits upon the taxing power of local governments; and in the exercise of various judicial functions, the Legislature will probably limit the powers of local government. So it is not a give-away of the state of these broad powers; it simply means that local governments are free to act to perform any service or function unless the area of service has been preempted by the state government. We feel that this is a needed power for local government in order to serve the expanding and the developing needs that are common to local communities, both urban and rural. Our local governments have changed greatly from 1889, when the Constitution was framed; in fact, the Constitution, as I think we have pointed out here, makes no reference to local powers. And we want to "pen this, with Section 6, so that local governments can exercise a broad range of new powers to perform services that we do not even imagine at the present time. It does give the Legislature plenty of control over local government, as I pointed out, in the fact that the Legislature can step in and limit that power or preempt the power by the exercise-by legislation. I urge the adoption of this Section 6, in conjunction with Section 5, which I believe will "pen local government to opportunities for service functions for our present time and for many, many years to come. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Is there any discussion on this section?

Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. Chairman, will Miss Speer yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Miss Speer, will you yield to a question?

DELEGATE SPEER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: She will yield.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Lucile, you speak of these powers that can be given, and if they're not necessarily-if they're not absolutely precluded by the State Legislature, then the local government has the power if they set up these charters, is that right?

DELEGATE SPEER: Yes, if the state government has not used that power—

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: May I ask you another question?

DELEGATE SPEER: -and that is-that means that it has not been expressed as a state function.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: You may ask another question, Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Does this mean, then, that if the Legislaturedoesnot stateit as a negative, that a local city government could enact a sales tax and enact a right-to-work law?

DELEGATE SPEER: Yes, it does, unless the Legislature prohibited it; unless the Legislature had said that the local government cannot pass any such tax.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Are you done, Miss Speer?

Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman, maybe I could clarify that for Mr. Blaylock. Chet, when you have a self-government charter, the people can restrict the powers right in their charter; we won't have any right-to-work law or whatever you want to put in there; you can't tax beyond a certain mill or you can't have above a certain indebtedness. So the charter itself can be restrictive that the people vote on, and I assume there would be some restrictions in a self-government charter to protect the people; I mean, they don't want to give them unlimited power. But if the Legislature doesn't deny the power, if the charter doesn't deny the power, why, then they would, of course, have the power to do it, probably. Does that explain your question more, that the-?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Miss Speer.

DELEGATE SPEER: I wanted to say that this power, Mr. Blaylock, to-the sales tax, you see, could not be exercised unless the local government approved it; the people. And I wanted to read to you the last paragraph of a letter which our committee, Mr. Anderson, Chairman, received from Jim Murry, the Executive Secretary of the state AFL-CIO. "We have carefully analyzed your committee's majority report, as amended, and we believe the fears of our Convention"-which I think Mr. Blaylock was referring, perhaps, to; some of the reports in the paper last summer-"are satisfactorily resolved. We especially approve of the revised wording of the first sentence in Section 5, which now reads: 'The Legislature shall prescribe procedures and may set limits under which a local government unit or combination of units may frame, adopt, amend, revise or abandon a self-government charter with the approval of a majority of those voting on the question.'"

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Yes, I think I should maybe expand on that just a little bit. In answer to your question, Chet, what we've done here is really establish two classes of powers that cities and towns and municipalities can exercise. The first class is the class that1 spoke to you about in paragraph 4. That's the situation that we have now; that's what we call the Dillon's rule. In other words, there's nothing that the Legislature—except what the Legislature gives. Now, that's the first-that's paragraph-that's Section 4; that's the one that I talked to you about. Now, the second class of power is the one-is contained in the two sections Miss Speer talks to you about. First of all, it should be observed that these do not execute themselves; the Legislature has to act. So really, it's not what it appears to be. Miss Speer was assuming that the Legislature-in her answers—that the Legislature had acted and had set up the charters. That hasn't happened, but it is possible for the Legislature to do that. However, it does require an affirmation act by the Legislature to bring this second class of power into play. The—it's contemplated that if the second class, then, is ever created-in other words, a situation where Dillon's rule is not applied but where you have a unit of government that has more than just the minimal power that might be given to it by the Legislature-if that class is ever created, that the Legislature will classify it. So it's going to set down a rule, cities of a population of 100,000 or more may adopt charters; the charters they may adopt are as follows. The-it's not at all a situation where cities, and counties, municipalities could write themselves a charter form of government, vote it in, and then start going. We won't have a situation of little city-states under the proposal that we have here. This, as they say in the Powder River country, this is not a situation where imperium in-imperial could develop. We won't have a government within a government unless the Legislature should set up a class of that kind. It's extremely unlikely that these areas would be taxing entities, such as you've suggested, or anything of the sort; but there is a second class of power here that could be called into being by the Legislature. It's obviously not suitable for small localities. It is something that would probably require a fairly large population; to me, it would seem something like 100,000 would bereasonable. When we-when the committee was talking about this, we talked about putting a figure in here, saying that if a city had 50,000 people or 25,000 people, that it could be classified this way by the Legislature; but we were-the committee was not able to agree upon a definite population figure. But this is not a situation-this is not something that's self-executing at all; this requires the Legislature to do it. So, really, it's not a situation that brings into play what has been called residual powers. These places, if they exist, do not have residual powers. They really have to go to the Legislature first; then and only then could they exercise more powerthan what they have now. Have I stated the proposition fairly, Tom and the other members of the committee?

DELEGATE ASK: Yes.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: May I ask Mr. Arness a question?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Will you yield, Mr. Arness?

DELEGATE ARNESS: I yield.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: When I first asked this question, several-I think it was Oscar-gave me a letter here signed by Jim Murry, and evidently he had analyzed this. But I think Jim made a public confession one day, in the committee meeting up here, that he had learned most of his law in Sonny O'Day's bar; so I don't want to take too much credence in whether the legal interpretation is great or not. So what I'd like to ask you, Frank, is, if I followed you correctly, when the Legislature gives the power in granting these charters, they could say in—when they set this up, cities of, say, fifty or a hundred thousand in the State of Montana shall have the power to enact a general sales tax. The Legislature or-and they could go on and say they shall have the power, if they so decide, to enact a right-to-work law. Could the Legislature-the Legislature could do that?

DELEGATE ARNESS: Conceivably it could; it's possible that they might. I can't say, of course, what the Legislature would do, but I think it would be within their power to do that, yes.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Would Delegate Ask yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Will you yield, Mr. Ask?

DELEGATE ASK: Yes.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Tom, now, assuming that at some time one of these charters is created and assuming that there are certain listed powers that that city has under that charter, would it be possible for the Legislature to take those powers away once the charter is established, or not?

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Foster, I feel that the Legislature would always keep some control over this, and I think they could take a certain area-but they just couldn't say, "Billings, you can't have the power of that"; they'd have to do it all the way across the state-cities with charters cannot do thus and so, see? But they can't specify one particular place; it would have to be a general law-we're taking away all taxing power; the state's going to do it; and I think they could take it away that way. Yes, I think they'd have authority to do that.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Would Mr. Ask yield to another question?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Will you yield?

DELEGATE ASK: Yes, I yield.

DELEGATE FOSTER: After the power was granted, after the charter was established, after it was in function, the Legislature could still come back and in a general law say that you no longer have that power, is that right?

DELEGATE ASK: Yes, in a general area. This is my understanding of it. I mean you-1 mean, after all, the Legislature is the supreme legislative body of the state. I think they-if something ever got out of hand, I think they have the right to do it; but they can't pinpoint special areas; it would be-have to be a general statute.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Thank you, Mr. Ask. It would seem to me that if the charter was established and the city was operating under it, that at least under one provision, that the charter would take precedence over the Legislature; but I won't belabor the point. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Blend.

DELEGATE BLEND: Mr. Chairman, I would like to add that, actually, there isn't any reason right now why the Legislature couldn't say that cities could enact a sales tax or cities could enact a right-to-work law. These things are available now; if that's the context one thinks of in connection with charter. But remember, the Legislature is to deal with general law for the state and not with special laws. And I just can't-I've never heard of any concept in connection with charters that hasn't dealt with general law, and not with nitty-gritty-type things of that sort. They would give general taxing powers of certain kinds, et cetera, to make them conform with the state revenue and taxing prerogatives.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: And, Miss Speer, did you have something further to say?

DELEGATE SPEER: Mrs. Blend said what I was going to say.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Okay, Mrs. Blend covered that point.

Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman, maybe I could answer Mr. Foster's question a little more thoroughly. I think you're thinking of Section 5, where-in the second paragraph, where it says: "Charter provisions with respect to a local government unit's executive, legislative and administrative structure and organization shall be superior to statutory provision". In other words, that's their executive, legislative and administrative; they would have their own for that; and I think that's what you were talking about, their powers, what they could do in taxation or misdemeanors. I think they could change that, but probably not the structure.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: I would yield to a question, if that was a question. When I first read this provision you refer to here, the end of Section 5, "shall be superior to statutory provisions"—when I read "statutory provisions", I was thinking of legislative state statutes. But your intent here, then, is that those are city statutory provisions?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask?

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Foster, that means that with this charter they'll have an executive—set up some type of an executive, and their legislative powers will be set forth in there. How they-what-they going to have a council or a commission-that would be their legislative power. And then their administrative structure, like they're going to have a sheriff, a treasurer, et cetera. In other words, when this-this is superior to the statutory law, because they are choosing their own type of government. And whatever the other statutes say-that you have to have a treasurer, auditor, or something like that-they don't have to abide by that because they have their own officers. So, so far as that's concerned, they're superior to statutory law; but then, when you get out into taxation and criminal law, fields like that, then the Legislature has power. Because that is—it doesn't say that; it just says "executive, legislative and administrative"-they would have complete authority over that. In other words, the Legislature couldn't pass a statute, say, we do away with all commission forms of government and self-government charters; they couldn't do that because they've adopted their own.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman, if1 have the floor, I would just make one observation: that if, in fact, this statutory provision is a limited statutory provision, at least I interpret it wrong and there's a possibility that others might interpret it wrong. I suppose Style and Drafting can probably clarify that point. But I was a little-it seemed to me when it says that it's superior to statutory provisions, I immediately r~ad into it that once the charter was established and functioning, that, in fact, they retained those powers without control by the Legislature; and if that's not the intent, it would be my opinion that it should be made clear at least. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Further discussion? Members of the committee—

Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask a couple questions of Delegate Arness.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Arness, will you yield to a couple of questions from Mr. Romney?

DELEGATE ARNESS: I yield.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: My friend, I was a little agitated by the replies you gave to Delegate Blaylock. To continue that a little bit farther, we'll say that the city of Opportunity sets up a charter, and they can enact right-to-work laws and sales taxes; permit wide-open gambling, prostitution, drug sales, and one thing or another of that character; and become a little Las Vegas-and maybe not so little. What's to stop them?

DELEGATE ARNESS: What you're asking me is what's to stop the Legislature, really. I think the people that we're worried about-that worried about the right-to-work law and other things felt that they could fight their battles out in the Legislature; but that's the answer, of course. It would have to be dealt with at the Legislature-or at the legislative level, probably, rather than city by city or town by town. Surely, if we had the charters for these villages of a thousand, or ten thousand people, it would be too much for any organization or group of organizations to handle, fighting the things they didn't like. I think that the Legislature is the battleground for these things. But certainly that possibility, I suppose, is opened up here, although it seems to me that it's a very vague possibility. Did I answer you?

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Then-yes, it does. Then what-we have to depend entirely upon the restrictions which the Legislature imposes?

DELEGATE ARNESS: Yes, that's right. Not only-it goes a step further than that, because, first of all, assuming that this section is adopted, then there are no restrictions, there are no procedures, and there is no second class of power as far as the cities or the municipalities are concerned. It's up to the Legislature to create this second class in the first place; and then, having created that class, cities who found themselves eligible, or areas that found themselves eligible, could apply to the Legislature. But it would require, really, two steps: first of all, for the Legislature to act at all to create these classes; and once having created it, then, of course, the second step, the actual charter itself.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: The next question is in this Number 2, "If the Legislature does not provide such procedures by July 1, 1975, they may be established by election", and so on, so forth. That means, if the Legislature doesn't act, Opportunity could grasp the opportunity and go ahead by itself?

DELEGATE ARNESS: It would appear that does say that, and I believe that-it's my opinion that you've stated this correctly.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: And then, as I understood Delegate Ask, once a charter is granted, the Legislature cannot take it away?

DELEGATE ARNESS: No, I don't think that he meant that; I don't think that he said that. There's nothing in the provision of this article that would prevent the Legislature from restricting a charter once it had been granted. This is not a situation where the charter-there are some places, I understand, that do have language that give charter provisions that kind of status once they've been set up. But as I understand it here, that's not the case. And the Legislature could limit charters, having granted them. The language that Mr. Ask was talking about refers to the intent to allow the area, once it has elected to enjoy this city-state status, to determine the form of its city-state, So if it wants to have an emperor and a court, I suppose then that it could decree that and we couldn't do anything about that; but if the emperor decided that he had to have a right-to-work law, the Legislature could put an end to that, but not to his status as emperor. I think that's clearly intended by that, that the area can decide what form of government it wants, but it can't decide the substance of any of the substantive laws. I believe that's theintention of the majority of the committee. You understand that I am answering for the majority.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: And if that—then nothing would preclude the establishment of a parliamentary government?

DELEGATE ARNESS: No, I think that's right; in fact, I think that's what all the cities in Montana have right now, isn't it? Excuse me, I'm sorry; I shouldn't have asked you a question.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I think that's a little aside.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Possibly we could refer that to our parliamentary expert.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Let's keep our dialogue in point, now.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Finally, I would like to know if, having aldermanic plan available and the city commissioner plan and the city manager plan available, was there any hue and cry and clamor on the part of the populace of Montana for a charter situation?

DELEGATE ARNESS: So far as I know, there was only one witness that appeared before our committee who was even vaguely interested in this; and as I interpreted it, his interest was-there was some interest, that's right-that was the mayor of Missoula, and that's the only one that talked about it.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Any further discussion?

Mr. Simon.

DELEGATE SIMON: May I, Mr. Chairman, ask if Mr. Romney would yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Romney, will you yield to a question by Mr. Simon?

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Yes, sir. I yield.

DELEGATE SIMON: Mr. Romney, in the area that we aretalking about, I wonder if many of the things that you are worried about are not going to be covered in the Constitution; and I don't think the Legislature could usurp the things and put them in a charter that is prohibited in the Constitution, am I right?

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Yes. The whole thing has such fascinating possibilities that are offered, that I couldn't-I wanted to find out what was available.

DELEGATE SIMON: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Miss Speer.

DELEGATE SPEER: Mr. Chairman, I wanted to remind Mr. Romney that in the early history of our counties and states, that local governments did possess these powers. It was only in later years that they were curbed by Legislatures. That was a-the Dillon rule was a much later interpretation. So this return to some degree of self-government, which is hinged upon the desire, the initiative, the will of the people to frame their own charter, is probably not going to be exercised widely; but it was done in the early days of our country. And I think the old town meeting was supposed to be the most democratic form of local government, was it not, Mr. Romney?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Members of the committee, the question now arises on the motion of Delegate Speer that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6 of Committee Proposal Number 11 on Local Government, that it recommend the same be adopted. As many as are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: I move the committee be in recess for 10 minutes.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Motion has been made by Mr. Rygg that the committee be in recess for 10 minutes. As many as are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Ayes have it.

(Convention recessed at 4:50 p.m.--reconvened at 5:10 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The committee will be in order. The committee will come to order. The clerk will read Section 7.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 7, Intergovernmental cooperation. A local government unit, by act of its governing body, may or, upon being required by initiative or referendum, shall cooperate, consolidate or agree in the exercise of any function, power or responsibility with, or share the service of an officer, or transfer or delegate any function, power or responsibility or duties of an officer to one or more other local government units, school districts, the state of the United States, unless prohibited by law or charter." Mr. Chairman, Section 7.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Blend.

DELEGATE BLEND: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 7 of Proposal Number 11, it recommends that the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Blend.

DELEGATE BLEND: The Intergovernmental Cooperation Act has been on the statutes since the Twenties. This revised section which we offer in our article would provide cooperation, coordination, agreement or consolidation in the exercise of any function, power or responsibility of a local governmental unit. It would provide again for the sharing of the services of a public officer. It could provide the transferring or the delegating of functions, powers or responsibilities or-and duties of an officer. And, of course, all local government units, cities, towns, counties, and any mix and match arrangement thereof-school districts-can enter into interlocal government cooperation agreements. And we have added in ours, which is not in the statute, that local government units can also have agreements with the State of Montana or the United States. Regardless of the form of government that local government units might have-whether they are joint units, single units; whether they have retained the status quo with the form of government they currently have; or if they change-they canenterinto intergovernment cooperation agreements very easily. It is an opportunity for entities of government to get together with their neighbors down the road, or with their county officials, to decide on things which may not require a change or a form in government, but only to provide a function that may bring on economy. Some of the things that one thinks about is the mutual purchase of a snowplow, of county equipment for repair of roads; for the use of any utility functions where it might be feasible to arrange an agreement. Another feature of our revised intergovernmental cooperation agreement is that it is functioning if it is agreeable and signed by the entities of local government; it does not have to be approved by the attorney of state, which is the provision in the prevailing statutes now. We feel that this should be in the Constitutional Article to make a full, complete framework of local government at this time, which lack of framework in the present Constitution and the piecemeal fashion in which it has been developed over the years makes it very difficult for people on the local level to coherently know what is available to them. Recent state Constitutions have included it in their Constitutions; such as Alaska, Hawaii, Illinois, Michigan, the State of Virginia, and Pennsylvania, of course. The proposed North Dakota Constitution also included such a section. Local government units no longer would have to wait for specific legislation authorizing them to cooperate and share services. This section, as proposed, directly gives local units the authorities to cooperate and share. In other words, ultimate legislative authority is retained in setting up the provision, but local government is free to act under their provisions established in advance. This would give the people an opportunity, perhaps preliminarily, to review their government to learn how cooperative action can take place between a city and a county or cities, which could lead to an understanding of consolidation or chartering or another form of government. The section specifically makes it clear that the people, through an initiative and referendum measure, may force their local government to cooperate if government itself does not take it upon itself to arrive at these conclusions. I think that most of the delegates are familiar with interlocal commission; it was established somewhere back in the twenties, but it was not until 1967, when it was revised in the Legislature, that the local government units in the state really became aware of it. Several towns-cities in the state have experienced interlocal government commission arrangement. They are so very valuable from the standpoint of citizenry getting together to talk over their problems, if nothing else. I think that it is worthwhile to retain it in the Legislature-in the Constitution. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Members—
Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: Would Mrs. Blend yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Blend, will you yield?

DELEGATE BLEND: I yield, Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: Under this provision, would it permit a city and a school district to cooperate and coordinate their functions in the construction, for example, of a swimming pool?

DELEGATE BLEND: Yes, that could be accomplished.

DELEGATE BERG: Well, I can't find anywhere in the article where it refers to the cooperation or the agreement with regards to facilities. I see it so far as the services of an officer are concerned, and the exercise of functions, but I don't see it insofar as the use or management of a facility or the ownership of a facility is concerned.

DELEGATE BLEND: Power--well, really, it does provide for ownership because examples of it have been that local government can purchase equipment together; they can use a computer together, either on a lease basis or whatever arrangement they decide upon. I don't believe that the Interlocal Cooperation Act particularly has to mention ownership. The basis of the coordination, cooperation, or consolidation indicates that whatever agreements or terms the local governmental entities come to and they make the formal contract, arranging for the payments, et cetera, et cetera, will make it a bona fide agreement.

DELEGATE BERG: Would you yield—would Mrs. Blend yield to another question?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Will you yield to another question, Mrs. Blend?

DELEGATE BLEND: I yield.

DELEGATE BERG: If at-I'm looking at page 28—if you added the word, after "officer", at the end of that line, "or facilities"-comma, would that clarify the situation that I have in mind and which is a problem in our community?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Now, the committee's been noisy all afternoon and I wish you wouldn't be, please. Show a little respect to these people-besides that, I can't hear. Now, go ahead, Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: I'm only suggesting that you might add the word "or facilities", which I think might clarify the situation.

DELEGATE BLEND: I think that perhaps it would, and I would have no objection and I don't believe that the committee would, because we want this agreement to be inclusive and expansive. That would be agreeable.

DELEGATE BERG: Mr. Chairman, then I move to amend Section 7, on page 28, line 18, at the end thereof, by striking the comma and adding the words "or facilities, comma".

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: All right. Now, I'm working from a different page than you are. Give me that again, please.

DELEGATE BERG: I was on page 28, and on line 18, where it says "or share the services of an officer", I would strike the comma and add the words "or facilities, comma".

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: "Or facilities, comma"; is that right?

DELEGATE BERG: Yes.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Do you wish to speak to that, Mr. Berg?

DELEGATE BERG: No, I think the questions I've asked and the answers given are explanatory enough.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Okay. Mr. Berg has offered an amendment to strike the comma after the word "officer" and add the words "or facilities" and then place the comma. As many as are in favor of his amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. Further discussion? (No response) The question now arises on the motion of Delegate Blend that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 7 of Committee Proposal Number 11 on Local Government, that it be adopted as amended. As many as are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. The clerk'11 read Section 8.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 8, Revenue sharing. Nothing in this Constitution shall prohibit the state from sharing revenue with local government units, or the units from participating in revenue sharing with the state or the United States." Mr. Chairman, Section 8.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 8 of Proposal Number 11, it recommends that the same be adopted.

Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Article XII, Section 4, of the present Constitution of Montana has been interpreted as limiting the state aid that can be provided for local government. The result has been a tightening of the local fiscal squeeze, increased reliance on the property tax, subterfuge to get around the constitutional limitation, and the resulting fact that Montana ranks 46th in the nation in state per capita aid to city and county governments. As a matter of fact, in the tabulation for the year 1969, the-on a per capita basis, Montana distributed $6 to its people in local-and I mean-when I say "local", I mean county and city-$6 on a per capita basis, as compared to the national average of $49. At this time, since we adopted the Taxation and Revenue Committee report, this restriction has been removed-deleted from the Constitution; however, the committee believes it is highly desirable to affirmatively provide that the state may share revenue with the local units and that the local units may participate in revenue sharing with the state and with the United States. Such a provision will not assure such state or federal assistance, it will only assure that the Constitution will not stand in the way of statutory provisions for such aid. Mr. Chairman, because I believe there's been a little bit of confusion about this revenue sharing, may I continue further a moment?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Yes, you may, Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Section 8 actually does two things: it states that nothing in the Constitution shall prohibit the state from giving aid to the local units, and it states that nothing in the Constitution should prohibit the local units from accepting that aid from the state or national governments. The committee felt that the present programs of state aid are such a tangle of subterfuge that it will take a direct statement that state aid is permissible, such as Section 8, to straighten out the general mess. For example, at present, taxes are disguised as license fees so that they may be given to local governments; and the purpose of state aid has been claimed to be for the purpose of the state rather than of the locality, to get around the present Constitution. No one knows for sure what form federal aid to local governments is going to take in the future. Will it be direct grants to the units locally, or will the money be channeled through the state? Will it be based on population, or will it be based on need? What will the county and the city governments have to do to comply to get the money? No one knows the answers to these questions now. Section 8 simply assures that the State Constitution will not stand in the way of local governments accepting such aid, and thus relieving their local property taxes. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Gysler, you have an amendment. Would you like the clerk to read it at this time?

DELEGATE GYSLER: Please.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 8 of the Local Government Committee Proposal Number 11, on page 5, line 17, by adding the following between the words 'revenue' and 'with'-quote: 'except revenue from real estate and personal property taxes'-comma. Signed: Gysler."

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Gysler.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I've been on this floor a time or two before, as you will recall, on removing the mill levy on property taxes and so on. In talking to members of this committee-and I have done this over a period of quite awhile-their intent, they tell me, is not to share any real estate and personal property taxes: their intent is to allow federal revenue sharing, the liquor taxes, the gas taxes, and to make all of these things legal, which I am certainly in agreement with them. However, as long as this is their intent, I decided to write this amendment. Now, if you-if the committee will recall, when we were on Section 1, I asked Mr. Rollins whether any of these governmental units that were being talked about in this section applied to school districts or school boards or anything like that, and Mr. Rollins answered no. Now this was the reason given to us in the Revenue and Finance Article that we could not put any mill levy limit on there, so now we have that restriction removed. I think as long as this is the committee's desire, as stated to me by several of them, that federal-or property taxes not be used for this revenue sharing, that we add the eight words to the Constitution and say that it won't be. As I have said on this floor before, I live 40 miles from a town who is in a financial mess. When the Revenue and Finance Committee had their hearing here and Mrs. Erdmann asked the Revenue and Finance Committee about revenue sharing with cities and so on, none of them did; but if you will recall, at that time I stood up and said that I would have some reservations about it. After that the mayor of Great Falls sat over there and tried to stare a hole at me-or through me for about 20 minutes. But this is the real concern; and it really is a concern to those of us who live close to that-to Great Falls. If you buy the Great Falls Tribune, you see on the front page this morning in a big headline, "City in Money Mess". They had-1 believe they had some auditors up there awhile ago; now they have seven state auditors in there trying to figure out what's going on. But I think-I know that this is a real concern, whether you're in Shelby where Mr. Aronow lives, or where I live; and so I sincerely ask you to adopt this.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Mr. President [Chairman], I would like to have Mr. McDonough—I don't believe he's in the room, but he'll probably be here presently-respond to this, because I would imagine it's in violation of the statewide assessing and the property tax paragraph in his report. However, I can't help but observe the anxiety that Mr. Gysler has always expressed, as a resident of Fort Benton, against my hometown. I think it goes back to the days when we dumped all our sewage in his river, probably. (Laughter) But I do say that I would like to hear from Tom Ask until the attorney for the Taxation and Revenue Committee would be in the room. But the paragraph that we have put in here, I'm sure Mr. Gysler understands, is simply to protect his county and our cities so that they are-it safeguards them so they're in a position to share revenue. His anxiety I certainly share, but I believe the time to have fought this was during the time that we were having the Taxation and Finance Article. I believe it was folly to lift the 2-mill statewide property tax, but I don't believe that you can fight that battle in this section; and I share, and I'll repeat again, I'm concerned about the loss of the earmarking. When we removed the auto license earmarking from the antidiversion section of the highway section, we automatically put that $5 million that heretofore has been earmarked for roads for county and city purposes and we have given it to the Legislature to their general fund. The Taxation and Finance Committee keep assuring me that the Legislature now has statutes giving this money back to the counties and the cities and that there's no reason to think they won't do it in the future. They don't have to do it in the future; and I see they're going to be in a desperate situation with all the extra costs that this commission is going to throw back on them after the adoption of the new Constitution. They're going to have to have a great deal more money to take care of welfare and education, and I would feel much, much more relaxed if we had continued to keep the $5 million license plate money earmarked for local-for county and cities. But we didn't do it. And I maintain that his problem should have been settled under Taxation and Finance. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Will Mr. Gysler yield?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Gysler, will you yield to a question, please?

DELEGATE GYSLER: Certainly.

DELEGATE ARNESS: If I got this amendment right, now, Erv-I wrote it down here--what you want to do is to prohibit sharing from personal real property taxes between the state and units of the state. That's what you said, "personal real property taxes"?

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Arness—

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The amendment reads, "except revenue from real estate and personal property taxes".

DELEGATE ARNESS: Oh, okay, I've got it--"except revenue from real estate and personal property taxes". May I ask, what is the purpose of the amendment? I'm not sure that I understand it.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Gysler, he asked you what the purpose of the amendment was.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Arness, the purpose of the amendment is to try to keep down the property taxes in the state. Now the reason that I did just those two taxes is your committee members-I don't believe I talked to you on it, but the committee members that I did talk to said that they had no intent to use any of these kind of funds. This, then, does not restrict the gas taxes or any of the other taxes or the federal funding from going to the states; just this, because this was such a great concern while I was campaigning last fall.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Thank you. That's all I had.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE 0. ANDERSON: Would Mr. Gysler yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Gysler, you will yield-I guess.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Certainly.

DELEGATE 0. ANDERSON: Mr. Gysler, what would happen if a city-county library in, perhaps, your county should want to combine with the local school library? Eventually there should be a statewide levy for schools, and that money would come back from the state to the schools and they would attempt to cut expenses in your county and wouldn't be able to do so because the courts might hold that this would be a distribution of real estate or property taxes.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Well, Mr. Anderson, I think the first thing that would happen would be a taxpayer revolt in my county and quite a few others if they started financing that way.

DELEGATE 0. ANDERSON: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE 0. ANDERSON: I would like to rise and resist this amendment, because I can see the implications. The whole intent and purpose of the Local Government Article was to allow flexibility so we could bring about two things in local government; one of them is economy. The maximum economy could be used in every area of local government by utilizing and combining their resources and flexibility. Now, there is no intent-you know, I'm a hick from Hicksville, right down in Sidney, Montana, and I don't want to see any property taxes on either real or personal property pulled into state and redistributed to the cities; and that's the furthest thing from our minds. But I certainly do resist the—anything that could come into the future, such as the utilization of a school library and a city-county library that could effect savings for a-in the local government area and the school area both, and something coming along like this to prohibit it. And I resist the amendment.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment. If you read this section as proposed, it's not directing the Legislature to share revenue, it's just saying that nothing in this Constitution prohibits the sharing of revenue. And I look for the day, maybe many years from now, that possibly a school district could be classified as a local government unit, to give it some more power; it would be a larger district maybe and elected trustees; it could be-they say, "Well, we'll give you the powers of a local government unit." And then here we lock in these words; and if you have a statewide levy of some type for schools, how would you ever get the money to the school districts then? And I don't see your problem, Mr. Gysler. We're not intending to take money from your county to pay in some other county here. We're just saying that we're not prohibiting revenue sharing. But I wouldn't like to see these words locked into our Constitution and prohibit something in the future-future years if you happen to call a school district a local government unit, which they might want to do some day. And by this you'd say, "Well, we can't do it then; you'll just have to go on your own like we are right now."

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Blend.

DELEGATE BLEND: Would Mr. Gysler yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Gysler, will you yield to a question?

DELEGATE GYSLER: Certainly.

DELEGATE BLEND: Mr. Gysler, if I read the section which we passed under Environment and Natural Resources--now, money to be collected on cattle, et cetera, would be personal property tax, wouldn't it? Well, that goes into the state coffers. Now, if you restrict a sharing of money from personal and real property tax, how could any of that come back to Chouteau County, the same as the educational funds?

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mrs. Blend, if you will read that article on levies and read the comments along with it, that is a tax on a special commodity that is produced to be used, not in the local community particularly, that is to be used for the good of agriculture in that particular commodity all over. This money will be gone out-taken care of with a state agency; and here we are talking about local government; and I don't really foresee any problems with the mill levy situation at all.

DELEGATE BLEND: Mr. Chairman, may I reply?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Blend, you may speak.

DELEGATE BLEND: Well, Mr. Gysler, in a-to restrict an article of finance in a general article such as local government is-1 think there possibly could be an interpretation of that kind, because you're unrestrictedly saying "real and personal property". If it is your thought--and I really can't believe it is-that the real and personal property tax that you would collect in Fort Benton, Montana, could in any way be redistributed up and back through the state down to Great Falls, Montana, I can't possibly envision anything like that. Is that, if I may ask, what you have in mind?

DELEGATE GYSLER: That is to me a very real possibility after reading your Great Falls Tribune for the last year and seeing what your city council says; they will be out of the financial troubles if the new Constitution, if it's approved, will just approve revenue sharing.

DELEGATE BLEND: Mr. Chairman, may I reply?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Blend, I don't know who's asking who questions, but you may speak. (Laughter)

DELEGATE BLEND: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: And if you don't ask him a question without asking me, then I'll know who is asking who a question. (Laughter)

DELEGATE BLEND: Thank you. Well, I cannot believe that Mr. Gysler believes everything that he reads in the paper; (Laughter) because if we have ever had a good course in that, it's been at this Constitutional Convention. The particular problems that Great Falls has, I hope that other communities can benefit from: and I assure him that it has never occurred to anyone, nor is it possible under the law, for us to look to other communities to help pay our bills, because if we had, we have towns in our county that we perhaps would have looked to. I do not think that Mr. Gysler's fears are anything but fears in this connection. And he would restrict the flow of funds that it would be possible to get from the state, which certainly would be on a pro rata basis exactly as the ones that we have now. And I resist his amendment for not being valid. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE ARONOW: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Aronow.

DELEGATE ARONOW: I rise in support of Mr. Gysler's amendment; and let me tell you that Mr. Gysler's fears are not imagined, they're real. And during the campaign in District 15, that was one of the things that our cowboys-excuse me, Torrey, we have some that are not from Powder River County; they are from Glacier, Teton, Toole and Pondera; and we have a lot of wheat farmers also-they were highly concerned; and that's one of the things that I pledged-that I would not come down to this Convention and do anything that would authorize a levy of a tax by the State of Montana on the rural and agricultural lands and other assets of this state in order to be funneled through the State of Montana back to the urban areas. Sure we have towns; we have cities, small in population. And the amount that we would get in our area and along the entire Hi-Line of northern Montana would be a drop in the bucket-it'd be pennies to the dollars that urban areas would receive. The rural people of Montana contribute a great deal to the merchants, the business places of every city; they support them; and without that rural population, the cities cannot exist under their own momentum. And this is a dangerous thing in this Constitution. It is something, I think, that will defeat this Constitution, because people are not going to buy this type of thing. And those fears are not imagined; I tell you they are real. They are one of the fears that a majority of the people of this state have, and no matter how many words you use here on the floor of this Convention, it is not going to convince the people of Montana. And I rise in support of Mr. Gysler's amendment, the language may need to be dressed up a little bit. And at the moment I can't—Style and Drafting might take care of it. We hope. And if you want to defeat this Constitution, this is just the exact thing that will do it. And I'll be forced-1 can tell you this: that I'll be forced to go home and campaign against it, because it's a promise I made to my people, that I will nevervote for anything of this sort. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Mahoney, will you wait just a moment, please, before talking, because we want to change the tape up here again. Thank you. Mahoney, we're now ready for you. We're quick up here.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, first we come in with a tax thing, and that was very good, very able; and they let us have statewide levies unlimited, no troubles at all. Then here the other day we helped-and I helped-put the welfare over to the Legislature, so this is now statewide. We aren't going to have anything. Now we come along with this one, and we're going to now put the cities out here under the-getting part of the statewide levies. Now, in answer to Mr. Gysler, I don't think your amendment is worth a dime. And this looks at me kind of funny-but it ain't, because once you get the money in the funds down here, it ceases to be earmarked; it ceases to be anything. Now, if you don't-if you could go out here and say, "We're going to put this money out to the cities"-but you just turn around and take another fund and you send out to the schools, and you shut-cut that down and you put this money out; and so you're evading your law. I can see how that could be evaded; it isn't the question. The question is, right here, we're going back to the next session of this Legislature, and it's becoming very difficult when this body, unicameralor bicameral, to decide on the next tax proposition after the defeat of the sales tax. Now we're taking off all strings on property tax. We done this in the Revenue Committee, and this became an unlimited-bonds, unlimited levies-and we also turned around and decided to exempt certain classes of property. Now, if this goes-and Mr. Aronow is so correct-this is going to come out and have property tax, then we will have the cities going. Now we're already started; this is nothing new. I don't know how they're doing it. We have the sewer bonds-that were sewer-millions; I believe it's 3 million was appropriated last time to take care of the sewers in stricken sewerage treatment plants. Helena's right in there getting; so is Billings; there's a lot of the other cities. I don't know if Great Falls is or not; maybe if they'd get that they wouldn't be in the trouble they're in. But this is what you are actually doing under this, once we go to revenue sharing. Now revenue sharing may be fine. This might be-I'm going to say this: this might be an idea; it's not obligated to the Legislature; I don't think you're doing that, except it's here. And if you don't think these cities ain't just as smart as the-anybody else-they're a lot smarter than us fellows-Well, I didn't come from Powder River-but they're just as smart-they're going to be in here grabbing and saying, "Now, the Constitution says this; we can get it; they meant for us to get it; and you--we want the appropriation". And we will see the pressure that will come on either that unicameral or that bicameral bodies of the next session of the Legislature. And I think this whole section should be defeated because this is there. Now, if you have no provision in the Constitution that says you can't revenue share at all, that I don't think you have; but the other one has been quite explicit. Maybe we don't need any section in here. I'm not going to make that motion; I'm going to let some of the more learned gentlemen make it.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Mu. President [Chairman], with some reluctance I rise to support the comments of Charley Mahoney. Two of my very good friends from Great Falls are on this committee, Mrs. Blend and Mrs. Erdmann. I have a very high regard for both of them. And in my own opinion, what they have here in Section 8 is not the intent of what's been stated. I think what they had in mind was a situation where the Legislature passed the liquor tax, for example, and perhaps part of it was retained by the state and the rest of it went to the cities for the maintenance of their streets. We're doing that now, and it's working very well; and the people of the larger communities in this state are really appreciative of the action taken by the Legislature in the past to give us this much-needed money. And yet I must confess that this is a dangerous section. I would agree with the comments of Mr. Aronow and I would agree with the comments of Mr. Gysler that the small towns would look at this with alarm when it came up for passage. Speaking as a resident of a larger community in the state, I can tell you that the residents of those cities do not particularly want state aid. They want to run their cities by their own property tax, and to the best of their ability, they want to stay within it. But there are situations in taxation, such as the gas tax, where the money is used for the maintenance of the city streets; and justly so, because much of the gas is burned on city streets, in county, and of the large— in the large and small towns both, so that these sharing situations are fair enough. Now I would like to direct a question to the committee as a whole that's on this. We have revenue sharing now, in effect; we share lots of money with the state and the cities; and if we deleted this, what would prevent this process from continuing? I know of nothing in the Finance Article which we have passed that would prohibit it, and why don't we just delete it and keep the situation as it is? Perhaps Mrs. Erdmann would answer that for me.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: I am perfectly willing to move to delete it if it is necessary. I certainly don't want to get all of the rural areas upset over this. It was our intention to just be sure that we were in line to share federal revenue, and we wanted to reaffirm our ability legally to do what we've been doing illegally with the gasoline and the beer tax and all the rest for years. But I see your apprehension; it's well founded. But I would like to hear from Mr. McDonough before I make that motion. I think he should speak to the amendment as made.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The learned Mr. McDonough, now being present, is called upon. All of the ladies have been running around this hall and asking for you (Laughter); some have been over visiting with you; and now with all the suspension [suspense] ended, we seek your advice.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Well, I certainly appreciate it.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: You're welcome.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: I don't really think it makes any difference whether this section's in here or not. If there's any-and I've sat and talked to Tom Ask about it-If there's any apprehension about this section, we can delete it. And I then-therefore move, as a substitute motion for all motions, that Section 8 of this article be deleted.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Do you wish to speak further to it, Mr. McDonough? Or is—

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: I think it pretty well covers it, unless there's some other argument. There's-it's somewhat repetitious, and I don't think it's really needed. If it's going to create that type of problem, we can delete it.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE 0. ANDERSON: Mr. Chairman, may I speak on the motion?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Yes.

DELEGATE 0. ANDERSON: I have here before me a sheet detailing statistics in the revenue sharing that's been going on in regard to gasoline tax revenue. And the necessity for the back-door method of sharing this gas tax revenue came through a court interpretation that I think was wrongly arrived at; but I have here, Chouteau County gets $32,784 a year in revenue sharing, but they have to kind of come in through the back door-you all know how they split this gas tax money-Fort Benton gets $10,260 a year revenue sharing on gas tax. It was the intention of the committee-I'm sorry, I don't have the figures on the beer tax, but I'd be glad to show them to Mr. Gysler as soon as I get them-It was the intention of the committee to make certain that some court interpretation coming out of no place, or out of the woodwork, like this one in regard to gas tax, come-came forth and would deny the cities and counties the right to share in revenue sharing developed some way or another. There was absolutely no thought that there would be any real or personal property tax taken into the state and then reallocated to the cities. We do not resist the amendment.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Now, excuse me, Mr. Anderson, but you have now confused the Chairman. You do not resist the motion to delete?

DELEGATE 0. ANDERSON: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman, as a member of the Local Government Committee, I don't resist the motion to delete. If it's going to create this kind of furor, let's get it out of there, because it really doesn't say that the Legislature should share revenue; it just says nothing prohibits it. If it's going to create any fears in the voters, as far as I'm concerned-I think the-probably the majority of the committee feel that way-let's just delete it and get it out of there, because I think they can do it under the other sections of Revenue and Finance anyway, so let's not put any more in here than we have to.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Okay, are you sure?

Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Will Mr. McDonough rise for a few questions, please, sir?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Who?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. McDonough.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. McDonough, will you yield?

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Yes.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. McDonough, as a lawyer and a learned person in terms of local government units and so forth, does the phrase, in your mind, "local government unit"-or could it-include also school districts?

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Well, not under the definition of Section 1 of this article, it could not.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes, I remember that. All right. Is a school district considered to be a local political subdivision?

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Well, it's a body politic incorporate. I suppose the Legislature, if it so wanted to, could make it a political subdivision.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: All right, what's the difference between a local political subdivision, then, and a local governmental unit, sir, in your mind?

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Well, the local governmental unit is what is defined under this article, which is defined very broadly. A subdivision is something like a county, which is actually a subdivision of the state to carry out the administrative function of the state without having what you might call legislative or other types of powers of that type, more administrative than legislative or judicial.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Thank you, sir. Mr. Chairman, may I speak to this now?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Champoux, you may speak.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: My concern here is, I know it's-the local government unit's limited in the front; however, I've seen statutes describing local government units or governmental units as school districts-described as school districts. And my fear here is that if we pass this with the Gysler amendment, and realizing the types of school financing that are possible in the future-that is to say, from the state and based upon the Revenue and Finance recommendations of the possibility of statewide property taxes—that under this provision the local school districts-there is a possibility, and I think it's open for interpretation, that the local school districts could be denied statewide property taxes or personal property taxes that are collected by the state. I am very, very dubious about this section. I think we're going to have to be really cautious here on this one. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Champoux, for this-for my edification, are you in favor of Mr. McDonough's motion to delete?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: You will find out when I vote, sir. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: That's for sure.

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman, I don't know if this is out of order, but could we have an estimated time of adjournment?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Let's finish this section, and then I'll let you know what I have in mind.

Mrs. Blend.

DELEGATE BLEND: Mr. Chairman, for the purpose of establishing the committee's intent in inserting Section-what is it—8, it was the intent of our committee to enable each individual local government unit to share in funds that might be available from the state. I would like it clearly understood there is no intent for local entities to share in each others tax money. It is to enable each of us to obtain money from the state to help us out locally, and I think that the intent of this article is completely different from the amendment and from the fears that have been expressed here. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. President [Chairman], I certainly wholeheartedly agree with the majority report on this revenue sharing. I would oppose the motion to delete and the Gysler amendment to this particular section. I think, as a young person in my particular community, I've watched a lot of tax dollars come from Montana residents, for example, to our state and even to our federal government, that has not returned. And as a young adult who is going to be living a good share of my lifetime in this state, I would like to see it where that the communities and local government units can share of state funds and federal funds. And I urge this body to take this progressive move, support the majority report, defeat the motion to delete and defeat the amendment of Mr. Gysler, and stick with the majority report.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman. I support the motion to delete. I do not have any further words of wisdom.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman, I support the motion to delete. If we don't delete this and then get amendments into a technical tax field, we'll be trying to do something in a few minutes which may affect every local unit of government; so let's support the committee now. They want to delete it, and I believe we could vote on that and then go on if we don't delete it.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The question now arises on the motion-substitute motion of Mr. McDonough that we delete Section 8. As many as are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Opposed, say NO.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

Mr. Nutting.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Mr. Chairman, I move the committee arise and report progress and beg leave to sit again.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: You've heard the motion of Mr. Nutting that the committee rise, report progress, and beg leave to sit again. As many as are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. If all of you will rest quietly for a few minutes we'll have this report out, and we do not intend to come back this evening. We made very good progress on this.

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: The clerk will read the Committee of the Whole report.

CLERK SMITH: "March 16th, 1972. Mr. President: We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration Report Number 11 of the Committee on Local Government, recommend as follows: that the committee rise and report progress and beg leave to sit again. Signed: Murray, Chairman."

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: Is there any objection to the-not reading the report in its entirety? There be no objection?

DELEGATES: No.

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: Mr. Nutting.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Mr. Chairman [President], I move we adopt thecommitteereport.

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: You've heard the motion of Mr. Nutting. As many are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

(No response)

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: Ayes have it, and so ordered. We'll be on Order of Business Number 11. Any announcements?

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman. I would like to report to this body that, based on tours scheduled and estimated numbers of-in groups that arrived without being scheduled, that we've had 6,165 persons on conducted tours. I would like to also ask, if any of the delegates would like to see the slide presentation, we would set up a special showing tomorrow at 12:15. In addition, I have had a request from one of the delegates to have copies of these slides; and if at that time, after you see the slide program, if you'd like copies,

I would also look into that further. Could I have a show of hands how many might want to see the slides? All right, if it's all right with the Convention, I'll set up a program tomorrow at 12:15, and lots of you are in the presentation. Thank you very much.

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: I guess it's the consensus of the—

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Excuse me-it will be in the Senate chambers at 12:15.

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: That's fine.

Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. President, fellow delegates. I'd like to take just a minute of your time to call attention to a poll that you should have found on your desks, distributed this afternoon. The poll has been prepared by Randy Gray, one of our interns from the University of Montana. I told Randy I would ask the delegates to please cooperate and fill in the poll for the young man. It's part of a project he's working on in his further studies at the University of Montana. I would like to tell you that Randy had this duplicated and run off at his own expense. He has spent considerable time on it; he worked real hard for the Revenue and Finance Committee, and I would like to encourage your support of his poll. We've got to get these kids graduated. Thank you.

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: Any further announcements? (No response) Remember Rules Committee meeting at 8:15 in the morning, on the Torrey Johnson resolution. We'll-if there's no objection, we will revert to Order of Business Number 1 for just a moment, please. The clerk has a report that he would like to read.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. We, the Committee on Style, Drafting, Transition and Submission, transmit revisions of the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Article Number 9 for consideration of the Convention, Signed: Schiltz, Chairman."

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: If there is no objection, we will revert to Order of Business Number 11.

Mr. Nutting.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Mr. Chairman, I move that we adjourn until 9:00 a.m., March 17th.

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: The question now arises on the motion of Mr. Nutting to adjourn till 9:00 a.m. tomorrow, which is March 17th. As many as are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

(No response)

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

(The Convention adjourned at 6:20 p.m.)

March 17. 1972 Forty-Eighth Day Convention Hall
9:00 a.m. Helena, Montana

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Sure and begorra, it's time to start the Convention again. (Laughter Applause) If you'll all stand, Delegate O'Scanlin will give us the invocation. (Laughter)

DELEGATE SCANLIN: It is my privilege, this morning, to have with me the folks with whom I've been staying while in Helena, and Marge Fowler will sing for us "The Lord's Prayer". Let us be in the spirit of prayer.

(Miss Fowler sang "The Lord's Prayer")

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Thank you very much for that very lovely song. Very well, we'll take attendance today by voting Aye on the voting machines.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, may Delegates Warden, Harlow and Holland be excused, please?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well.

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Berg, Delegate Brown, Delegate Cain, Delegate Drum, Delegate Etchart, Delegate Holland-Delegate James.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: List the absences again.

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Brown, Delegate Drum. Kelleher is voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, take the ballot. He's here.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 95 delegates present, 3 excused, 2 absent.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Order of Business Number 1, Reports of Standing Committees.

CLERK HANSON: None, sir.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 2, Reports of Select Committees.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 3, Communications.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 5, Final Consideration.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 6, Adoption.

CLERK HANSON: None, sir.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 7, Motions and Resolutions. The Chair would like to announce that the Rules Committee met and will meet again on Mr. Johnson's resolution, and it is my understanding that it'll be out tomorrow morning. Are there other motions or resolutions?

CLERK HANSON: None, sir.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 8, Unfinished Business. Ladies and Gentlemen, today is the day that I report again on the budget; and I will do that, but I'm not prepared to do it yet. I'm still working on it, but I will do it before the day is finished, as far as I know. So, if we'll pass Order of Business Number 8. Order of Business Number 9, Special Orders.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Without objection, the Chair would pass for a moment to Order of Business Number 11 to make a couple of announcements that will help you plan your schedules. On adjournment this morning-on recess this morning-that is, at 11:45, 11:30, whenever we get through, or 12-I'd like to have a meeting of the committee chairmen-and I think probably we ought to have that-is the Legislative room upstairs available? Let's have it up in the Legislative Committee room. And then, on adjournment tonight, whenever that is, I'd like the Voter Education Committee-that's the new committee we appointed yesterday-the Voter Education Committee to meet, on adjournment tonight. And Mrs. Babcock informs me that she is prepared to show the slide presentation to any delegates that are interested, about noon, but she can do that shortly after adjournment, whenever that may be, this morning. Very well, we'll go back on Order of Business Number 10. May I make, also, a couple of observations there? We'll finish up Local Government this morning; and when we finish that-if we finished it this morning--we will also consider Style and Drafting's Proposal Number 13 on the ordinances, if you want to be prepared on that. If it's all right with everyone, we will pass Education until after lunch; but presuming that we might finish Local business this morning, we will take up Education on Style and Drafting after lunch. And in a moment you are going to get-oh, I guess you've already gotten-Public Health on your desks. If we finish Education this morning, it would be the Chair's intention to move to suspend the rules-the 48-hour rule-to consider Public Health this afternoon on Style and Drafting. If we can get these Style and Drafting reports out of the way today, it will make quite a difference to the Style and Drafting Committee's ability to handle the Constitution on the typewriters. So the plan is to handle Local Government this morning and the ordinances this morning and then recess this morning for these committee meetings.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President, I move the Convention resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for the purpose of handling business under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to resolve ourselves into Committee of the Whole. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Convention resolved into Committee of the Whole, Mr. Graybill in Chair)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Style and Drafting Committee Proposal Number 10, Education, having been duplicated and placed on the delegates' desks on the 15th day of March, 1972, at 12:00 noon, will, at 12:00 this day be in compliance with Rule 23 of the Montana Constitutional Convention rules. March 17, 1972. The following committee proposals are now on general orders: Local Government; General Government; Style and Drafting 10, Education; Style and Drafting Number 9, Public Health; Style and Drafting Proposal Number 13." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, we're ready to go to Local Government; and the Chair, recognizing when he has a good thing, is going to have Marshall Murray finish that one up. We're doing very well on that, and I'm very pleased. So, Mr. Murray, will you take the Chair.

(Delegate Marshall Murray assumed chairmanship of the Committee of the Whole)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: My records indicate that the committee finished the first eight sections last evening, and we should start with Section 9. The clerk will read Section 9.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 9. Initiative and referendum. The initiative and referendum powers reserved to the people by the Constitution shall be extended by law to the qualified voters of each local government unit." Mr. Chairman, Section 9.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Simon.

DELEGATE SIMON: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 9 of Proposal Number 11, it recommends that the same be adopted. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Simon.

DELEGATE SIMON: Mr. Chairman, the Local Government Article, as we told you yesterday, would like to have one single document, as near as possible as we can, and with that, then, we would like to have the initiative and referendum section include this part. On page 30, the comments that you have before you will be brief. The committee believes it is essential that local residents have the power of initiative and referendum, particularly in view of the broad self-government powers offered in this proposal. This committee also believes that the proper place to assure these people's powers is in the Local Government Article. Specific provisions concerning petitions requirements, however, should be left to statutory law, where they can be easily reached if change is needed. Now, this initiative and referendum was not dealt with in the general government article and will be dealt with when the general article comes up. A few other little minor things that we would like to talk about and give you a little emphasis on-Section 9 does one thing; it directs the Legislature to extend the initiative and referendum powers to local government units, such as cities, towns and counties. The section itself does not set specific limits under which the initiative and referendum should be enacted locally. These details--such as the number of signers on the initiative petition-are left to statutory law. It is also important to stress that the General Government Committee report does not provide for local initiative referendum. Therefore, this proposed section is not duplicated elsewhere in this Constitution. Initiative and referendum are not new in Montana, particularly on the local-city level. Such provisions already are part of the statutory law for city and town ordinance in the Revised Codes of Montana of 1947. It'll be unnecessary to give you all the sections. In addition, certain other county matters, such as debt, must be submitted to the vote for the voters' approval. It is important that Section 9 of the committee's proposal would assure that this power be provided for people on the local level. It is particularly important that it be provided, in view of the fact that local government units will be strengthened, in terms of power, under the committee proposal. The initiative and referendum offer another check on this power and are of such importance that they should receive constitutional guarantee. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: I'll call for discussion of Section 9 at this time. Any discussion?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Members of the Committee, the question now arises on the motion of Delegate Simon that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 9 of committee proposal 11 on Local Government, that the same be adopted. As many as are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. The clerk will read Section 10.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 10. Recall. All elected public officials of the local government units are subject to recall by the voters of the unit from which elected. Procedures for recall shall be prescribed by law." Mr. Chairman, Section 10.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10 of Proposal Number 11, itrecommends that the same be adopted.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman, at least 13 state constitutions provide for recall of all elected officials, and I think that the gloss which the delegates have before them contains a listing of that. The possibility for recall of officials on the local level is also nothing new in Montana. The provisions of existing Section 11-721.1 provide for recall of officials at the municipal level. In addition to that, in the event thatconsolidationoccurs, the Commissioners of the consolidated unit may be recalled under provisions of existing statutes—let's see, Section eleven thirty-one, thirty-two and following sections provide for that procedure. Under our existing statutory law, however, the county officials themselves are not subject to recall. This provision would enable the recall of County Commissioners, as well as Mayors or County Commissioners of consolidated counties-cities, such as we presently have. This is not a duplication of the general government article. The general government article provides that recall may be had of certain elected state officials; however, it also provides a standard whereby the recall can be effected and provides that 25 percent of the-that a petition must be signed by 25 percent of the electors in the area, as determined by the last election for Governor. Since some of the local government units in which recall could be effected do not conform to the voting precincts, it would be impossible for a-or it would be impossible to determine under the local government—or the general government provision, rather—whether the required number of petitioners had signed a petition so as to recall, for example, a Mayor, in certain instances. If recall is desired, therefore, it does appear that it is necessary to have a provision for recall in the local government article. It's doubtful that county officials could be recalled at the present time. In order to make it possible to recall the Commissioners of unconsolidated counties as well as consolidated counties and in order to make it possible to recall other county officials, as we can now recall city officials, it would be necessary to adopt this provision. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Kelleher, the Chair has an amendment which you haveoffered, and it treats it as a substitute motion. And I would like to have the clerk read it at this time.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move, as a substitute motion, to amend Section 10 of the Local Government Committee proposal, being page 5, lines 24 through 27, by deleting it in its entirety. Signed: Kelleher." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Arness yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Arness, will you yield?

DELEGATE ARNESS: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: He yields, Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Franklin, on the bottom of page 30 and the top of page 31 of your comments regarding recall, you state that the requirements should be of sufficient severity to eliminate frivolous and repeated recall elections. And you state there that your committee had some concern about this, and I am concerned, too. I wonder how you plan, through the recall, to eliminate frivolous and repeated recall elections, which I understand was once a problem in North Dakota.

DELEGATE ARNESS: I'm not sure that it really was a problem. So far as I know, this—these recall provisions have-presently exist in at least 13 states as a matter--as a constitutional matter, and there are a number of others where recall is allowed, including Montana at the present time. There has been no frivolous use of our recall provision, so far as I know; and, in fact, so far as I know, it hasn't even been used. In North Dakota, it's true that one of their governors was recalled. I don't know whether it was justified or not, but I assume that, it having occurred, there was some basis for it. I only know of one instance where there was a recall. The recall has been used relatively infrequently, despite the fact that it's been on the books for a long, long time. According to the statistics we had, there are 1,510 cities that answered the survey that had recall provisions available to them, and out of those cities, they—recall had been used only 59 times in-over a 4-year period, and it had been successful 25 out of those 59 times. I-Under our present law, it takes 25 percent of the registered electors, as determined by the vote at the last municipal elections, in order to stage a recall, and I submit that 25 percent is a large number. I don't think that the recall provisions have been abused, and I'm not aware of any instances where they have. I don't think that it's true that they were abused in North Dakota. North Dakota still has the recall provisions, and I notice that the recall provision is retained in the draft of proposed North Dakota Constitution.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Kelleher

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman. I still didn't quite get an answer, I don't think, to how we are going to eliminate frivolous and repeated recall elections. Eight states that have the recall provision provide for all of their officials, and I realize we're just talking about local government, but we're going to come up to general government on this matter-the same matter tomorrow. Eight states, the provision applies to all elected state officials. In Idaho, Michigan, Louisiana and Washington, they exempt all or some judicial officers and generally a recall petition may not be filed against an official during the first 6 months of his term; Wisconsin allows it after the first year. Now, obviously, one of the reasons why they let the officeholders stay there for a small-at least 6 months or a year, I assume, is to find out whether he's going to be doing his job or what, but I call to the attention of the committee that aldermen are elected every 2 years, and if we did allow recall we would be having elections very often. Now, some of the reasons-Or could have elections if we recalled a man. My principal objection to recall is that it's not done on the merits. I could start a recall petition for any reason. In fact, I could go down to West Park Plaza and get people to sign-get a few thousand signatures on a petition to get rid of an alderman, I think, in 2 days' time; people will sign petitions without even knowing what's on them. And these elections cost an awful lot of money, and I submit-how would you like it if there was somebody out here in the lobby waving around a recall petition, and every time you threatened to vote for or against something that they didn't like, they'd say, "Well, I'm going to go file this recall and we're going to get you out of here"? In fact, can you imagine if somebody had--what this Convention would be like if somebody had recalled Kelleher from Yellowstone County? (Laughter) In all—

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Let's keep a little order in the assembly here. Mr. Kelleher, you may try and proceed.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: In all states, including our state, I call your attention to the fact that we do have impeachment proceedings and if a public officer is convicted of a-1 mean, commits—charged with commission of a felony or even a misdemeanor, he can be charged like any other citizen in the courts. Improper conduct by public officials is grounds for removal by judicial, legislative, or sometimes gubernatorial action. If a member of the Legislature or the City Council can be expelled-in fact, down in Billings, we did expel a City Council member, and his ward immediately reelected him. It-Finally, it's a provision as a tool for well-organized groups and for political recrimination. I submit, Mr. Chairman, that once a man or woman has been elected, let them do their job, and without threat. We've had threats to this Convention and we know how we've all reacted to those threats, and I say that the recall is the most vicious threat of all, and it is the weapon of the anarchist. Finally, I see no reason why this matter couldn't be left to the Legislature. It's really not necessary to put it in the Constitution for—what—80 percent of the states don't have it in their constitution. If they want to put it in-if the Legislature wants to put it into laws, all right. So I move to delete the entire section.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Mr. Chairman, I can't miss what might be my only opportunity to support something proposed by Mr. Kelleher. (Laughter) Mr. Chairman, I would support Mr. Kelleher's motion to delete, for these reasons. First, I note that it was not very popular with the committee; it passed there by a six-to-four vote. Secondly, I think it goes against the philosophy espoused by the committee in this particular article; and that philosophy seems to be: let the people of the various local governments choose the type of government they want, the officials they want to run that government, and provide for their election or appointment. Requiring recall elections appears to me to be making a choice for them that we are not required to make. Why constitutionalize this? Why not let them make this choice themselves? Regarding the argument in General Government, it seems to me there is a possible conflict between the two articles. The General Government proposed section at this time provides for the recall of all elected officials of the state and its political subdivisions and then sets forth the procedure. I think maybe if we do adopt this provision in Local Government, they'll have to follow the procedures set forth in the General Government article anyway. However, when we get to that section, I'm at least going to move to amend it at that time. And regarding the question whether we have to have something in the Constitution in order to have recall, I think not. Under the present Constitution, I would agree we would regarding county officials, because their term of office is set forth in the Constitution, and I think it would be an attempt to amend the statute-or that Constitution by statutory law to attempt to shorten that term by a recall provision. But looking at the general government article, they leave the term of office to the people to be set by them, the people of that local government unit. Therefore, I think we should allow the people to choose whether they want to shorten those terms by recall elections. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman, I think that, probably, the point was missed here on the difference between this and the Local Government article. The point is that if we adopt the General Government article on recall, that it's not possible to implement it in the case it was to be used for a public official. The General Government article on recall provides a percentage that is to appear on the petition-and I don't have that article right here, right in front of me-then it provides the machinery by which the determination is to be made as to whether or not you have a sufficient number of signers: and that determination is based upon the number of votes cast in the preceding gubernatorial election, based upon the precinct breakdown. Now, theprecinctbreakdown is not going to correspond to all the local governmental units that we have, so there may be-there are a number of situations whereitis possible that an elected local government official would not be elected on the-in an area where it could be determined how many of the people who voted for him had voted also for the Governor. You've-there are a number of cities where the precinct lines don't follow exactly the city boundaries. It's also possible, as been pointed out earlier, that at some time a school district may become a local government unit, and, again, the boundaries of the school district are not going to conform to the precinct boundaries. In those cases, how do you determine who-or how many voters in the area where that local government official is elected did, in fact, vote for the Governor at the next preceding election? You can't do it. So, if we're going to have it-if we're going to have a machinery for recalling these people, and I-it's up to the Convention: of course, whether they think recall is a good idea or not-but if we're going to have it for these people, then we have to have something that makes it possible to do it. The General Government article would cut off Local Government officials for the simple reason that it provides the mechanics that do not conform to the realities of the local government situation. So if you don't want local-recall on the local government level, fine, but that is the problem. Now, these two articles are in conflict. We can resolve the conflict by making one apply to state offices and one apply to local offices and avoiding it that way, but if we want to make it general, then we have to have some other standard than the one that's set up in the general article. I just want to point that out; that's all. It-I suppose that it's entirely up to the Convention whether they think, like Mr. Kelleher, that this will result in anarchy-I think that's rather an unusual idea of recall-but if you think that way, that's fine; but we can't have it both ways.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: I think Mr. Arness is right in that he implied the issue is whether or not we want it. The Legislative Committee talked about recall quite at length. We tried to put down on one side what the advantages of recall are and on the other side thedisadvantages. It was our rather studied opinion that the disadvantages outweighed the advantages, and the one that is uppermost in my mind is-when you raise the question as what will recall be used for-as Mr. Kelleher pointed out, there are several provisions for removing a person from office if he really is involved in practices that are contrary to the law. If not, then the question becomes whether or not you disagree with his approach or his political philosophy or the way he's voting. Now, we have a recall provision-it's called the election-and every couple of years or so, the people elect and there's a chance-a real honest chance atrecall, in a sense, of an elected official if he chooses to run again; he may be defeated. Let's put 25 percent—let's take this into a little district. Twenty-five percent of the voters might be what? Well, we discovered that some societies-I forget-there was a Jack Ash Society or some name-it was some tree-

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: You're going to have to speak a little clearer, Mr. Harper. (Laughter)

DELEGATE HARPER: -and these people were pushing very much for this. I think they saw this as a way of holding a club over the head of an elected representative. It could be that, let's say, a union or any other sizable segment of people in a particular locality could say, as a sort of a club, behind the door, to any elected official, "Now, you know, we have more than 25 percent of the voters, and if you don't go along with our line, then we're going to have you running again". And when we weighed the advantages against the disadvantages, we thought our straight electoral system, with rather brief timespans between elections, with all the safeguards of law that we have put around it already, was perfectly adequate, and we didn't want to get into the possibilities of having happen what Idaho had with three legislators recalled from one district because the legislators voted to raise their salaries, and so forth.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Martin

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, I just want to put in a disclaimer. Having introduced this recall provision, I certainly am not a member of the Jack Ash (Laughter) committee (Laughter) or society and want no part in it. (Laughter) And I think that we of the Convention have a short time and perhaps the best thing to do is to forget about recall.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Mr. Chairman, I'd just like to point out that the Legislature in the last session provided that subsequent aldermanic and mayoral races will be every 4 years now, and not every 2, and County Commissioners are elected every 6 years. So you don't have only a 2-year span in the case of Mayors and Aldermen.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. There is such a thing, and we have had it at times in my town of Whitefish, where Aldermen are elected and they are absent more than our United States Senators. An Alderman is not any good to any citizen or any precinct unless he attends the meetings, and I think that the majority report here-this could be one way of taking that man or woman out of office, just because they are not doing the job that we elected them to do, and I would hope that you would support the majority report.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, I support the motion to delete. I've been attending council meetings for almost half a century, and the people who are attending the meetings most of the time are the Mayor and the Aldermen. Unfortunately, the public is so apathetic that it normally doesn't attend the council meetings unless it wants something, and as soon as it gets what it wants or has a request turned down, it packs its tent and silently steals away. I think that in more than 80 years of application of the present method of election of county and municipal officers, we've got along famously without having a recall provision in the Constitution, and I think we can get along until we have another constitutional convention 20 years hence, at which time I will take the matter up again and be against it. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Siderius.

DELEGATE SIDERIUS: Mr. Chairman, I support the motion to delete this, because you take, for instance-like on a local school board, very few people in that school board could create a large-a big hassle just over a little incident that didn't really amount to a damn by trying to recall a delegate-or a trustee--and I-therefore I support the amendment to delete that.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I support the motion to delete. Originally, I felt that the idea of recall was a very good idea for the same-some of the same reasons that the committee has presented here. However, I have thought about this from the beginning of the Convention, and it's my opinion that the dangers outweigh the advantages and, in fact, what we're doing is saying that the electorate, once they choose, has a chance to decide again. And I think the electorate should be aware of the fact that when they elect a public official, it's an extremely important step and they should take their vote very seriously and they should do everything in their power to define the advantages of the candidate they're voting for. And I think it's a very real possibility that a 25-percent minority, if it was well organized, was extremely militant or active, could, in fact, use this minority position as a club over the elected official; and I think the motion to delete is well founded and I support it. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman, the-1 only want to point out to the delegation, without taking any particular side on this one way or another, that at this point, the Convention is facing a problem as far as uniformity of application of the recall provisions are concerned. Now, if you strike this recall provision out of the Local Government article, we'll still have Section 10 in the General Government article to consider. And if you approve that section, having struck this section out, you may have and probably will be creating a situation where you can recall all of the state officers and some of the local officials but not all of the local officials. Now, if that's the situation that you want, that's fine. If you, on the other hand, have determined, at this point, that you think that recall is a bad idea generally and you're going to strike recall out of this provision and out of the general article, that's fine and there will be no problems. But I would like to avoid getting into the situation where we get into Section 10 in General Government and then discover that we ought to go back here and reconsider this section in this article that's now before us. I think that we should be aware that we will have a problem, as far as the uniform application of these provisions, when we get to that point. If we want uniformity, then we should either approve both these sections or disapprove both these sections. If, on the other hand, we want to discriminate against some of our officials and leave them without recall provisions while we can recall others, then, of course, I suppose we can go either way. But I think that we should bear that in mind-that we've got the possibility of an inconsistency in our situation. We do have an inconsistency now. Mr. Romney mentioned that we've gotten along without recall, and I think maybe he meant just in the Constitution-or maybe he said that--but we've had recall for our municipal officers and for certain of our other local officials since 1911, and that's quite a while, so far as I know, without any abuses. We have definitely had recall for our municipal officers for the last several years. We have existing statutory provisions that provide for recall of these local officials, as Mr. Kelleher mentioned; one of the aldermen in Billings was recalled. We can't recall our county officials at the present time. We can recall our local Mayors and Councilmen. We've got an apparent anomaly right there in our present local government laws. The question is, then, whether we want to continue that or not. It may be the sense of this Convention that we just don't want recall, but we should bear in mind that if we strike this provision out, we probably ought to strike it out of the General Government Article as well. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: I'd like to call the attention to the delegates-I have here a book, and records are real hard to come by in regard to cities-but in the Western cities in the last 4 years, there were 22 actions for recall, of which 11 were successful. I think this disputes the frivolity of the recall procedure. Now, I'd also like to call your attention to our own actions here. We're actually using the recall procedures right here ourselves. I wonder how many times that we have acted to reconsider our own actions right here. I think this is a fundamental right that the voters should have in their local government areas. We've been very conscious of not denying rights to very, very many groups of people and segments of our society; and I think the fact that, if we took this away and there would be no recall rights to the voters, we would be denying them a fundamental right that they should be able to exercise; and I oppose the motion to delete.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Kelleher, would you like to close? It appears that there's no further debate.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: I just notice that the Chairman of that committee voted No on Section 10 in the roll call on page 40. That's all I have to say, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Okay. The question now arises-have you closed?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: I have.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: You are closed. Okay.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Roll call.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Roll call? Okay. The question now arises on the substitute motion by Mr. Kelleher to delete Section 10. As many as are in favor of the motion, vote Green, I guess (Laughter) and those opposed, vote Red. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The vote will now be closed. The clerk will take the vote.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 49 delegates voting Aye, 31 voting No.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: 49 delegates having voted Aye and 31 voted No, the motion is carried and Section 10 has been deleted in its entirety. Section 1 l-the clerk will read Section 11.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 11. Voter review of local government. The Legislature shall, within 4 hours-4 years of the adoption of this Constitution, provide for procedures by which each local government unit, either separately or jointly, shall review the government structure of the local unit or joint unit and shall submit one alternative form of government to the voters at the next general or special election. The Legislature shall provide for a review procedure each 10 years after the first election." Mr. Chairman, Section 11.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under-had under consideration Section 11 of proposed-Proposal Number 11, it recommends that the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: Fellow delegates, this Section 11, we believe, is the key to the whole Local Government Article. You've heard many times, everyone complains about local government but nothing is ever done about it. We feel, with this section, that something will have to be doneabout it and, in other words, this is the start to the reform in local governments if reform is needed in any particular area. Now, we've talked in our committee and personally to many officials of cities and towns and have posed the question as why they hadn't tried to improve their local government units, and many of them say that they have tried and they've had so much heat over it, you might say, that they have just dropped the idea and they just don't do anything. And many of them were asked, "If you were in a position where you had to, so often at least, look at your local government, would you do this?"-and they thought this was a good idea. Now, if you recall, Section 7 of our present Constitution, which provides for all types of local government, was adopted in 1922—that's 50 years ago-and very little has been done with local government since that time. And I think one county-Petroleum-adopted a different type of county government; all the other 55 kept the same type that they have now and very few cities and towns made any attempt to change their government. And the reason for this is that there was no-nothing in there that forced them to look at their-and have the people become involved and to change their government. Now, the key of this particular article on reform and change of local government is that it will start the process of reform, and then if the people want a change, they can change it. If they don't want a change, it will remain the same, but at least they'll have a chance. Now, many have asked the question, "Well, how will this particular section work?" I think I mentioned it briefly yesterday-that a commission of probably three or five people would be appointed in either the cities-in the cities and the towns and also for the county-that would make a study of their government--and we assume they would work with the present government officials, hold hearings that the various citizens in the community could attend-and eventually they'd come up with a alternative or optional form of government. And all that would be done then-that if they decided on this, this commission would agree on this-that this alternative type of government would be submitted to the people at the next election and all they'd have to do is vote whether they wanted this new type of government-if they voted No, they'd go back to their old form. Now, as you recall, in our General Government article a few weeks ago, we adopted the idea of the Constitution being-idea of having a constitutional convention be submitted to the people every 20 years, and this was voted in—thought it would be a good idea. Well, here we have a-provided for a review every 10 years; and the reason we put this in here is that the first review will be 4 years after this Constitution is adopted, But then, you don't want to sit still on 4 years—we'd go another 50 without any change-so we see nothing wrong in submitting this every 10 years. Now, many of the city and county officials were very concerned about this lo-year business because, they said, of the ramifications of it-the cost of it, and it would be too complicated-but if you'll read that section, it just says that the Legislature shall provide for a review procedure, and I would assume that they could simply say-they'd just put on the ballot, are you-whether you vote that you're in favor of your present structure of government. If you vote Yes-if you're in favor of it, it will remain the same; if you're not pleased with your government, you'd vote No and then they'd have another commission to make a study and submit another alternative plan. So we feel that this section is the key-and also, there has been some concern that, say, a government changed its-say before this 4-year period or some time before the 10-year period-could they do this; and we would like to state for the record that a city or county government-any local government unit could change its government at any time. You don't have to wait for this 4 years or this 10 years, but this 10 years is--would have to be mandatory. So we feel this section is the key to the whole Local Government for reform of local government units, and we would ask that you support and adopt this particular section. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Would Mr. Ask yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask, will you yield to a question?

DELEGATE ASK: Yes.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: All right.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Tom, under Section 11, could the voters of Billings, which now have a unicameral legislature, could they choose to have either the city manager form, of government or-and the alternative-and could they do this at one election? Could they have an alternative at one election-a choice, say, between a city manager form of government and a form of government where the aldermen would choose one of their number as mayor-in other words, the so-called "parliamentary" form of government? Could that be done at the same election?

DELEGATE ASK: Yes, Mr. Kelleher. When this commission-or whatever alternative is submitted to them-it could be any type of government; whatever this commission thought was the best-this would be submitted. The people could either adopt it, or if they didn't adopt it, they'd go back to their old system, but it—that—any type of city government could be submitted.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: As alternatives on the ballot?

DELEGATE ASK: Yes.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Thank you.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, I move to delete Section 11. I do it because I think that we've had-there is ample opportunity for municipalities and counties to carry on elections to change their form of government under the present situation, especially since we have adopted the arguments in the section previously adopted in this article. Take the city of Missoula, for example. Some years ago, they started out with a mayor and alderman type of government. Later on they decided that they wanted to have a change, so they took up the commission form of government. After a few years of using a commission form of government, they took up, I believe, the city manager form of government; and now they are back to-they decided they didn't like that, so they are now using the mayor and alderman type of government. And they're-according to the debate yesterday, the Mayor of Missoula was the only witness who appeared before the committee, asking that there be incorporated in this document a plan for a charter form of government, so I presume that Missoula will soon be embracing a charter form of government. Another-My argument is that there's ample latitude at the present time for change, and I think that it is an imposition to have an election every 4 years or every 10 years when they already can do it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman, I disagree with Mr. Romney wholeheartedly. I think that this is one of the most innovative things we have in our whole Constitution. The history of local government is that it-people sit on what they have-that they do not-they cannot pick the thing up and innovate-and this will put them on-this will put the problem of their government in front of them and they will have to face what they will do or will not do. I really disagree with what Mr. Romney said.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman, the-it should be kept in mind that by-we have kept our traditional form of government, including our traditional form of county government, and that the present organization of our county government tends to favor inaction. Most of the time that the County Commissioners spend, whether we like it or not or whether we are willing to admit it or not, consists in-not in taking action, but in trying to frame decisions that avoid action. The structure of county government is designed so as to create the greatest possible inertia over the longest possible time. That's one of the problems that we have. Our county government is not suited, of course, for a rural situation-or for a urban situation. County governments are antithetical to cities, and they are as much opposed to them as they are opposed to action. I submit that, in order to goad these people into some kind of movement, something is necessary. This is a very, very small thing that we have put in here, and it seems to me that it might have some good effect; it could certainly have-do no harm. It would help to overcome the inertia that exists in the existing system by virtue of its very structure, and I submit to you that we ought to keep this section.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Rollins.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Mr. Chairman, when we had numerous county and city officials in for-to testify before our committee, I was impressed with the idea that the responses of local government to needs for change are about as fast as the reflexes of a brontosaurus that blinks its eyes 4 minutes after it's bitten on the tail by a tyrannosaurus. (Laughter) Mr. Romney mentions the changes that Missoula has made, and I applaud Missoula. They may find something that will solve their problems. I think that this is one of the vital parts of the Constitution as far as local government is concerned, because it gives a needed push to the local governments in order to meet local needs. We hear quite often that local governments will say they're satisfied with what they have, which, to me, is a rather low state of contentment. I remember once getting in a fight, and the other kid beat the soup out of me, and he says, "Are you satisfied?" And I said Yes, but I wasn't happy. (Laughter) Now, the local people have been getting the soup beaten out of them sometimes because they are under governments which refuse to meet the challenge, and I think this is something that will at least force them to propose some kind of an alternative within 4 years and again in 10 years, and I think it's one of the more valuable parts of the article.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Simon.

DELEGATE SIMON: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. This is the section that does the job for local government, and I'd hate to see the-this Convention drop any part of this section. We were accused the other day by some of the media of having gone from 1889 to 1920. Let's not kill the section that puts us back to 1900. Now, we've got tremendous problems in our area-in Billings, Montana-and if this section can do something in the next 10 years-Now this section here provides, within 4 years, that if the Legislature doesn't do something in providing procedures, the local voters can do something; and, for heaven's sake, let's not kill the very heart ofthelocal government proposal by deleting this section. I implore you to-and tell you that this is one of the sections that Delegate-we gave the most consideration of any single section in this Local Government Article. I don't want to go home with a Local Government Article and say that we had nine good sections and we loused it up at the tail end by deleting Section 11, and I implore you to keep Section 11 alive. Thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Blend.

DELEGATE BLEND: Mr. Chairman, the entire idea of the Local Government Article is to get action to make people on thelocallevel become aware of their government. This Section 11 would create interest in government. I would question Mr. Romney's prerogative in analyzing Missoula's government, because this is something for them to do. This is why we need this section, so that each unit of government may question their own government or not as they choose. This is the flexibility and this is the ribbon that ties up the entire section for action on the part of local government in the future.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Garlington.

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: Mr. Chairman, as the oldest living resident of Missoula in this Convention, it's history having been brought into question here, I think I ought to explain a little what went on. We tried to have the innovation of a city manager system there, but we ran into personnel problems, and the reason there was a change was just the personnel situation. Otherwise, I think we match up in citizen lethargy to most of the rest of the state, and I just have to say in conclusion that it doesn't seem to be too high a standard for the 21st Century to have the citizens be forced to face a new thought at least once every 10 years. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Reichert.

DELEGATE REICHERT: Mr. Chairman. I, too, rise in support of the majority proposal. I think this is by far the most innovative section; and if you will recall, yesterday we were told that the National Municipal League had commended the Local Government Committee for their fine work on their article. I think if we deleted this section, we'd probably get a retraction of that letter from the National Municipal League.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Furlong, you've been up.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. Chairman, I oppose deletion, and if I could prevail on some kind soul who was on the majority of the last section, I would even like to make a comment or two about that. What I'm seeking, Mr. Chairman, is some support for reconsideration, after Section 11, of Section 10. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman, I think we all campaigned on a platform that we'd make government more flexible, that we'd take the-take government out of a straitjacket. I think this is what we're doing by this section. I support it.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Miss Speer.

DELEGATE SPEER: I think I have-Mr. Chairman, I think I have only one thing to add to the arguments that have been made. I feel that local government is the training ground for our citizens in government participation, and I see nothing reprehensible in the fact that Missoula has changed a few times. I think it shows a citizen alertness and awareness, and this is not shown in too many communities. From the lot of interest in the Local Government Article on-in this Convention-and I am just as aware as anyone else, or perhaps more so, of the weariness of people at this state, which probably accounts for some of this-but I think that unless this provision for a voter review is made automatic in the Constitution, that there will tend to remain a status quo.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Mr. President. I, too, am strongly opposed to the deletion of this article for the very reasons that everyone else has stated-the fact that this will tend to overcome the apathy on the local level toward the existing system of government. You know, people are very prone to criticize the courthouse or the city hall. They crab all the time aboutit. But this gives them a chance now-in 4 years after the ratification of this, they have a chance to do something, to quit complaining--and I have a sneaking suspicion that it will result in a vote of overwhelming confidence in the people who are trying to do a good job in local government--and therefore, I certainly oppose the amendment to delete.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Kelleher

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, I think the Local Government Committee should be highly commended. I think this is one of the greatest articles going into this Constitution. We have the so-called "strong" mayor type of government down in Billings; and a month or so ago, one of the aldermen called him a "goofy buzzard"; and this led to a rash of sale-started a new industry in "goofy buzzard" T-shirts down in Billings. Our City Council does nothing but feud and fight. It's one of the biggest hindrances to the amusement industry in Billings (Laughter) because everybody can get a free show on Monday night down in Billings. It doesn't cost a nickel; you just have to hurry up and get down there early in order to insure yourself of a seat. We have recently appropriated-or spent Uncle Sam's money, which means our money-$300,000 on Poly Drive, to widen it. Made it a very nice four-lane highway-east-west highway in Billings-and the City Council wanted to make it-the Traffic Commission wanted to make it four lanes-they're nonpaid people that-citizens that serve on the Traffic Commission-but a few housewives went down and says, "No, we got no place to park our cars"--and so it's this huge-it's almost six lanes wide-it's still a two-lane highway because a handful of housewives--or a handful of men, too, for that matter-can run the City Council. And 24th Street West was another one. It's a very heavily trafficked four-lane highway-should be four lanes-it is four lanes, but it's painted for two lanes because a few of the people down there didn't like to have it four lanes. And I submit that one of the things that we really need in Billings is this provision, and if we have a new type of government where the-in the City Council, that we'll be able to get things done. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. We hope that this section shall and will create a movement in the counties and cities and towns to encourage the people to take a more active part in local government. We are closest to this form of government in our counties and cities, but we know the least about them. We just are apathetic. Indifference and apathy by citizens in most towns makes it absolutely necessary that we try to encourage the citizen to become involved. Our Local Government Article is flexible to this point and a very good article, I believe. Now, we must plan to zone and help our town to have a more active citizenry. Now, we would like the Constitution-or this Convention to be remembered for the new avenues of democratic self-government and opportunities and the opportunities that it opens for Montana, rather than the doors it leaves locked and unopened. We would not be concerned about a constitution as a literary document to be filed in the archives, but, rather, one that is functional and flexible and which encourages the democratic desires of the people, with a minimum of checks and balances aimed at preventing excessive or abusive use of power, rather than denying the people access to participation and responsibility for the government. This does encourage the people to take a more active part, and they will be aware of it 4 years from now and 10 years after that and for each 10 years thereafter, so we can have better local government.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: And, Mr. Romney, would you choose to close?

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I don't know why.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Oh, Mr. Ma-. honey, I'm sorry. I just couldn't see you. There's so much activity ahead of you.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman—Oh, pardon me.

responsibility-if you wanted to change in plans--was responsible upon the people that were the change-they wanted the change, they had to go out and get the petitions signed and do the work. Now, we're putting it over to state government and county government and says, "You shall submit a new plan." Now, I just-I'd just like to have the initiation come from the people and not from the top down. Now, they're going to name the commission, as I understand--and if the Legislature says that--and I think we have a lot of things to study up on this-"The Legislature shall provide for a review procedure each 10 years after the first election." Maybe we should leave this down and let the people at the bottom. Now, I'm willing to go with the first one, but this last section seems to me--every 10 years. Now, if you want to go out and rehash the whole state--and there's things I think could be done. I've been strongly for-to go—a lot of these small counties to go to the county-manager form of government; I think Petroleum County has proved that it can be done. I see nothing wrong with Silver Bow County going to a consolidated city-county manager form of government, but the voters of Silver Bow County, in its wisdom, each time has turned it down. Now, you got to remember this, that you went out here in Mineral County--and I think it was 2 or 4 years ago-they tried to go county manager, and the voters turned it down. Now, what I hate to see is to subject this to election every 10 years. I'm willing to go with the first one, but I'd like to have you give awful good consideration to this every-lo-year thing. Now, if you could do this under the parliamentary system of government that has been suggested by the distinguished delegate from Yellowstone, then they could pick the time. You know, Labor government just got lost out in England the last time because they didn't pick the right time; ordinarily they pick the time to have an election so they can win. Now, maybe we shouldn't have this on the 10-year interval; maybe we should go to this parliamentary system and let them pick the time when they want to change the government; and maybe this would be one way, for the parliamentary system. Now, if we want to go far enough, then let's go out and say to the State of Montana that the State of Montana shall submit every 10 years the parliamentary system or some other system of government to all the people. We're just asking the cities and counties to do things that we aren't asking the state to do. Now, this is-1 think this-1 don't mind the first one but, boy, I'll have an awful time on the second one. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman, I would like to reply to Mr. Mahoney. On the 10 years, I think you misunderstood that. Wedon'tintend, by the 10 years, to submit an alternative plan, go through the whole procedure. All that is worded, if you'll look at it, is that they'll provide for a review procedure, which we contemplate to be merely placing on the ballot to the people at an election—do you-are you happy or do you want to change your government, or are you satisfied with your present structure of government-do you vote Yes or No? You vote Yes, that's all that's to it. If the majority of people want to vote at that election that they want to change their government, then they go through the process of submitting an alternative at the next election. We assume this is the way it's going to work. They're not required to go through this lengthy procedure every 10 years. And, if you'll recall, we have a 6-year provision if the unicameral is adopted that'11 be put on the ballot-what is it, 6 or 8 years?—I can't recall. And, also, our Constitution is going to come up for a convention every 20 years, so the people are going to get a chance to-whether they want to change the structure of their state government. I see nothing wrong on the grassroots, the local government, to have this opportunity to vote Yes or No every 10 years. But they're-just so it's clear to everyone here, they're not required to go through the lengthy process. And we have in the Bill of Rights, I believe, that they want people to participate in government-the right to know, the right to participate. Well, I think by this procedure, we're giving them a right to participate, to take an interest in it, and I therefore oppose the motion to delete and would ask that the Convention adopt the section.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: I would just like to say a few words in behalf of County Commissioners; I think that they have been kind of blasted from time to time here. But the Commissioners, as I understand it, look at their job as not one of initiating new forms, and this is a very difficult thing for them. Now, it might be that this is just our Commissioners, but at least they have the feeling that if they are going to change, then our Commissioners are in a situation where we are, you know-we are fast becoming an urbanized county or a county where urban services are needed out in the outlying areas, and yet they are continually criticized if they try to initiate action. This would really be a way where the Legislature would direct them to involve citizens in a process where they with the citizens, could come up with some changes that might enable them to deal with their problems more effectively. You know, fortunately, our city government doesn't have these problems. Bozeman is one of those fortunate places with a city-manager form of government where we have continually had very good management. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Mr. Chairman, I would just very briefly like to respond to some of the comments made by Mr. Mahoney, particularly in relation to Missoula's problems. Since I've been at the Convention, Missoula has lost one of its problems, so you don't have to worry about that. But I would just like to say, in support of the majority report of the Local Government Committee, it seems to me that you're right that there has not been much change in local government, and I'm not so sure it's because we're that satisfied with it. I'm sure the delegates to the 1889 Constitutional Convention would be quite familiar with our present form of municipal government, but I think you have to realize that in—even as late as 1920, there were only something like 24 incorporated municipalities; now we have a hundred and twenty-six. But of this hundred and twenty-six, only 37 of these are gaining any population at all, and a great many of them arerapidly decreasing and will soon become to the point where they may--would like to be unincorporated. I think this is a real essential part of this revision of local government-to allow these areas where the population is decreasing to, every 10 years, or periodically, look at their form of government in relation to the number of people that they have, because this is changing, and the need for the governmental services that they need to provide. I think that this is probably the most crucial point of having some of these hundred and twenty-six incorporated municipalities get into the 1970's.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, I rise to support the majority report and say that, in my opinion, this is something that we need. It's an educational program, and it isn't going to cost anything. If the motion prevails, I would move that we delete one phrase, "or special", and to have it read: "The local unit shall submit one alternative form of government to the voters at the next general"-and I would omit "or special"—"election". And I think that it would be something that wouldn't cost any additional amount of money and it would be highly informative. As you talk to Commissioners sometimes and recognize their problems, they find that they haven't got enough citizen participation, and this would be a good opportunity for just that. I support the motion of the majority.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: I would like to see us resolve this issue on its merits and have a vote at this time.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Well, Mr. Romney has the opportunity to close, and I am going to give him that opportunity.

Mr. Romney, you are closing?

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Sir?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: You are going to close, is that right?

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Yes, sir—

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Okay.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: --unless someone else wants to talk.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: I see nobody else.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, I brought this matter up because I felt that there was ample opportunity for change under the present situation, as augmented by the material that was adopted yesterday. I still think that, and so I think that I'll let the matter go, with the observation that yesterday I noted that the Convention was slumbering through the session. At one time there were 56 people-delegates-on the floor by actual count, and the Convention had degenerated into a Rip Van Winkle assemblage. I think that something had to be done to dynamite some action into the operation so that people would become aware of what was transpiring. I think it has served that purpose in the discussion on the last section, as well as on this Section 10, and if it is necessary to nail my hide on the electric voting board, why, I think it is well done. I thank you.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: All right. Members of the committee, the now-the question now arises on the motion of Mr. Romney-

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: We'll have a roll call vote; and Drum and Brown have returned, so they may vote. The question now arises on the motion-substitute motion of Mr. Romney that we delete Section 11 in its entirety. We'll use the voting machine. So many as are in favor, vote Aye; those opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The vote is now closed. The clerk will tally the vote.

(Delegate Bugbee rose to gain the Chair's recognition) (Laughter)

CLERK HANSON: She wants to explain her vote.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: I think you're out of order. (Laughter) What do you want-what would you like to say?

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman, I would like to change my vote. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: You would like to--I'm sorry, the vote is closed, but the record will show that you voted in error.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I think that Mrs. Bugbee should be allowed to change her vote. She was overwhelmed with the green of the day. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The record will show that she voted in error.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 5 delegates voting Aye, 85 voting No.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: 5 delegates having voted Aye and 85 voting No, the motion has failed. The question now arises—
Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: I would like to offer an amendment to delete "or special" in line 10.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Now, what page are you on, at line IO?

DELEGATE MARTIN: On page 31.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: You're-you would simply delete the words "or special election", is that right?

DELEGATE MARTIN: That's right.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: And that would be the same three words, "or special election", on line 4 of page 6. Just "or special", I guess; that's your motion.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Right.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The two words "or special".
Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: In order to save time, I'll be quiet. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: I don't have any quarrel with this proposal, except that it does require the voters in a county to do this every 10 years, whether they want to or not. And I submit that perhaps this may-should be a voluntary thing and if a group wants to submit an alternate plan, this would be fine; and I would like to change one word on page 6, line 3, and insert "may" instead of "shall".

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Give me that again, would you please, Mr. Wilson?

DELEGATE WILSON: Insert "may" in place of "shall" on line 3, page 6.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Is that a form of a substitute motion for Mr. Martin?

DELEGATE WILSON: This is right.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Wilson, I'm going to rule your motion out of order, because it does not affect Mr. Martin's motion at all. His amendment can stand alone without yours, and let's take up the issue of Mr. Martin's amendment-that's the one you should be addressing yourself to-and then let's go to yours, if that's all right.

DELEGATE WILSON: That will be fine, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: All right.
Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. Isn't it true that our city elections, especially, are held usually at just a—it's a special election just for that purpose? Our city officials are not held at regular presidential general elections, so special elections or city elections instead of these special--maybe we could substitute and put in there, "general" or "local elections".

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Ask, could you respond to that, please?

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman, I think I would oppose this motion to delete those two words by Mr. Martin. We're not out here to get special elections. We want to cover it broadly. You have a general or a special election. Now, city elections are held on different days than the general election. The general election, of course, would apply to the county, so I would say, let's leave it flexible. And I'm sure the local officials are not going to be wasting money on elections if they don't have to. And if your city officials are elected for 4 years, possibly you'd go a long time here without an election, so let's leave it up to the local people when they want to have their election, whether they want to wait until the general election or the next city election or whether they want to even have a special election-I don't think they would-but let's leave it up to the local level and not decide it here. So, I would move-1 would be in opposition to that motion to delete those two words.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Martin, do you choose to close?

DELEGATE MARTIN: I would be agreeable to change it to "city election"--or "city election or local election". I wasn't precluding any regular authorized elections. My point was that it shouldn't be a special election to add additional cost and it should come at a time when you are voting for regular city or county officials, and the general election is where you elect the county officials, so you could-1 would be willing to change it--"or city elections" or something of this sort.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: I have no motion to that effect, Mr. Martin. You still have the floor; do you wish to make such a motion?

DELEGATE MARTIN: Well, I'll amend it to say "general or city election". Well, the county is at a general election-is-am I right? "General or city election"-1'11 amend it to that.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: So your motion now stands, then, instead of deleting the words "or special", you want to change those words to read "or city"; is that right?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman, I'll offer a substitute motion to delete "general or special", so that it will read "at the next election".

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mrs. Babcock has now made a substitute motion to delete the words "general or special election", but I guess, by virtue of doing so, she is attempting to wipe out Mr. Martin's motion to change "special" to "city". All right.

Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: I resist all of these substitute motions and would like to have the delegation consider the original language. This provides the flexibility that you need. The local officials are aware of their situation. They're responsive to the voters, and they're not going to increase expenses by holding a needless special election. I'd like to see them have the utmost flexibility so they can act on the voters' behalf in the most efficient and economical way. Please defeat these substitute motions.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Choate.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Chairman, I would support the position of the majority report, because, conceivably, if you said just "election", a school board election might be the next election, and it certainly would not fit this situation.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Okay. The question now arises on the motion of Mrs. Babcock, a substitute motion to delete the words "general or special" on line 4 of page 6. As many as are in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

DELEGATES: No

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Noes have it, and so ordered. The question now arises on the motion of Mr. Martin to amend the word "special" to "city", so that the language reads: "the voters at the next general or city election". As many as are in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Noes have it, and so ordered.

Now, Mr. Wilson, I think that your motion would be in order at this time.

DELEGATE WILSON: I move that, on line 3, after the word "and", in place of the word "shall", we put in the word "may"-on page 6.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Do you wish to speak to that motion, Mr. Wilson?

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President, I think this will provide the people in the local county with the opportunity to either-they won't be required to do this-it wouldn't be a definite term-thing, as spelled out here; that they would have to do it-and if they're satisfied, why, they would just remain with their status quo. I do believe that it-any county or-that is satisfied with their system shouldn't be required to do this every 10 years if they don't choose to do so.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman, I can't help but feel that maybe Mr. Wilson doesn't entirely understand what the committee was trying to do here, and I'd like to get him back on the majority's side, if we can. The idea of Section 11 is to give voters in the area a chance to take a look at it and decide. That's the whole point of it. If they decide at the election that they want to review it, then they'll go ahead and engage in the review procedure; if they decide they don't want it, then they won't. And they're not being forced, under the present Section 11 the way it is in the majority report, to do something or not to do something, They are given just exactly what you pointed out, they're given a choice. This is their election, and at the election they make the choice whether they want to make the review or not to make the review. Nothing is forced on the voters by this section. I oppose the amendment on behalf of the committee, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Okay. The question now arises on Mr. Wilson's motion to amend the word "shall" to the word "may". As many as are in favor of his motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Noes have it, and so ordered. Committee members, the question now arises on themotion of Delegate Ask that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11 of committee proposal 11 on Local Government, that the same be adopted. As many as are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. The Chair has no further amendments.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman, I move the committee rise and finally report.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The question now arises on the motion by Mr. Eskildsen that the committee rise and finally report. As many as are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: All those opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

(Proceedings reverted from Committee of the Whole to Convention, Delegate Murray as Acting President)

CLERK HANSON: "March 17th, 1972. Mr. President: We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration Report Number 11 of the Committee on Local Government, recommend as follows: that the Committee rise and finally report. Signed: Marshall Murray, Chairman."

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Acting Vice-Mr. Acting President, Mr. Murray, Delegate, sir, I move the adoption of the Committee of the Whole report.

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: And that committee proposal Number 11 be referred to the Committee on Style and Drafting.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I so do, Mr. Murray.

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: As many as are in favor of the motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

(No response)

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Acting President, Marshall Murray, because of the way we've conducted ourselves, I move that we stand in recess until 11 o'clock this day.

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: Thank you. Now, just before going into recess, before calling for that vote, I would like to have the pages-I have a note the pages are to go out into the foyer out there for some purpose. They will please do that, and I have been asked that I should suggest to you that you remain in your seats for just a moment after we recess. As many as are in favor of Mr. Eskildsen's motion to recess until 11 o'clock, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: All those opposed, say No.

(No response)

ACTING PRESIDENT MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

(Convention recessed at 10:45 a.m.)

(During the recess, flowers were placed on the desks of the male delegates in commemoration of St. Patrick's Day, and a brief presentation was made by Mrs. J. C. Garlington. Appropriate thanks were extended by Mr. Murray.)

(Convention reconvened at 11:10 a.m., President Graybill in Chair.)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Convention will be in session-the Committee will be in session. Ladies and Gentlemen, including those in the lobby, I wish you'd come to your seats. Very well, members of the Committee, we'll be in session, I understand, in my absence, that the wives of those delegates that are living here were nice enough to bring us these flowers, and I want to point out to the Convention that my wife chose snapdragons. (Laughter) However, I'd also like to say that I was stopped in the lobby by the press and they said, "Is this the funeral for Mr. Studer's right-to-work bill?" (Laughter) Very well, I think enough of us are back.

Mr. Eskildsen, will you make a motion.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President, I move the Convention resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for the purpose of handling business under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to resolve ourselves into Committee of the Whole. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Convention resolved into Committee of the Whole. President Graybill in Chair.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz, we're prepared, I think, to go ahead on Report Number 13 from the Style and Drafting Committee; and to do that, I think it will require a motion to suspend the rule about the 48 hours on the desks. We might try the body and see if they'll do that.

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee of the Whole suspend the rules--and I don't-I'm not sure which rule it is—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Rule 23.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: —23?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Rule 23.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: -suspend Rule 23 for the purpose of considering Style and Drafting substantive report, which is labeled Report Number 13. As everybody knows, we're moving along pretty fast on some of this, and it's going to be necessary to suspend the rules to get everything done by tomorrow night.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the motion is to suspend the rules--or suspend Rule 23, which requires 48 hours on your desk before consideration, on Style and Drafting's Report Number 13, which concerns the ordinances. Is there discussion of that motion?

Mr. Harlow.

DELEGATE HARLOW: I just want to be here so I can vote.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Oh, Harlow was-Harlow, you're-Mr. Harlow, your presence may be shown on the journal. Mr. Drum, your presence may be shown on the journal. Very well, the motion is to suspend Rule 23 to allow consideration of Style and Drafting Report Number 13 without it having lain on your desk 48 hours. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered. Mr. Clerk, will you read the title and the article of Report Number 13.

CLERK HANSON: "Montana Constitutional Convention, 1971-72; Committee on Style, Drafting, Transition and Submission Proposal Number 13. Reported March 16th, 1972; John M. Schiltz, Chairman. Be it proposed by the Committee on Style, Drafting, Transition and Submission that there be a new article on Compact with the United States, to read as follows: Article. Compact with the United States. All provisions of the Enabling Act of Congress, approved February 22, 1889, 25 Stat. 676, and of Ordinance Number 1, appended to the Constitution of the State of Montana and approved February 22, 1889, including the agreement and declaration that all lands owned or held by any Indian or Indian tribes shall remain under the absolute jurisdiction and control of the Congress of the United States, continue in full force and effect until revoked by the consent of the United States and the people of Montana. Signed: Schiltz, Chairman."

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Style and Drafting Report Number 13, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, this particular article is in answer to a request by the various Indian tribes of Montana that something go into the Constitution-in particular, the Indian tribes wanted the Ordinance Number 1 reprinted at length so that our present Constitution provide exactly as the—as-that our new Constitution provide exactly as the old one—or the present one. We, in the Style and Drafting Committee, decided not to do that because there's quite a lot of material in there that doesn't pertain to the Indians themselves, but we considered, as North Dakota did, that it was necessary to put something in the Constitution to acknowledge that the old Enabling Act requirements were still in full force and effect in this new Constitution and to note particularly that the general language that the declaration that all lands owned or held by Indians and Indian tribes shall remain under the jurisdiction and control of the Congress of the United States. I think North Dakota, in response to an inquiry from us, answered the problem about as well as it could be answered. They said not to put it in would be like throwing away our copy of the contract. Mr. Chairman, I move the adoption.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Schiltz yield to a question?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I yield.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Schiltz, I'm sure you gave consideration to this, but I wonder what the thinking was, when you refer to this as your copy of the contract, the Enabling Act has been amended at least twice since that time. I wondered if the language "and subsequent amendments thereto" would be appropriate. I mean, if you're adopting the original.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, I don't think Ordinance Number 1 has ever been amended, and that's the particular reference.

DELEGATE DAVIS: It says that all provisions of the Enabling Act of Congress, approved-and of Ordinance 1, and I'm just—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, we will be adopting any amendments that are now in that Enabling Act.

DELEGATE DAVIS: All right, thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: On behalf of my Indian friends and the United Tribal Council, I want to thank the Committee on Style and Drafting for giving consideration to proposal Number 15, and I'm very happy with the results. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman, the second section of Ordinance 1 was referred to the Bill of Rights Committee. We decided in committee that we really didn't have the authority to make any changes in it, since it was really a contract with the United States government and that it should be left as is. We have not met to consider the proposal of the Style and Drafting Committee, but in looking at what it says, which is really that the ordinance will-is still accepted, I think that it satisfies that provision. I would hope that in some printed copies of the Constitution, the ordinances would be included, even though they-you know, when you read through them, they'revery-pretty much outdated. I think that the phrase "that all lands owned or held by Indian or Indian tribes shall remain under the absolute jurisdiction and control of the Congress of the United States" is really what the Indians were concerned about. I tried this morning to get in touch with the local representative of the Intertribal Council and was not able to reach her, and I think that anyone who has discussed it with her might relate this to the body. In looking at it just from the short time I've had to look at it, it's-looks as though it's really pretty much in keeping with what they want. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. President, may I ask Mr. Schiltz a question, please?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I yield.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. Schiltz, does--would this prevent the Indians from selling their lands or leasing them to others? I understand that maybe Mr. Hanson from Ronan could tell us this, but the Indians-a lot of white people own, or apparently own, Indian lands. Would this prevent them from selling these lands, then?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Absolutely not. This has no effect on anything-any existing law, any-it just reaffirms the contract we made with the United States under the Enabling Act, in which we've protected the rights of Indian lands—and whatever the Congress does, this won't affect it. They still have the right to do it. So—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Would Mr. Schiltz yield to a question?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I yield.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Schiltz, on line 9, after six-seven-six, with the parentheses around it, would you have any objection to adding the words "as amended", or would it create a problem with Style and Drafting?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, I wouldn't want to do it unless I had some very good authority on what the amendments are, and I don't as I stand here right now.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Well, the statutes—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I don't think the ordinances have been amended.

DELEGATE DAVIS: No, I'm referring to the Enabling Act that you are talking about more than the ordinances. You're talking about your adopting the Enabling Act—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Oh, all right—

DELEGATE DAVIS: -and the ordinance. The Enabling Act was amended in 1920-something to provide that we could accept mineral-bearing lands. It was later again, in 1930's, amended to permit us to keep the minerals and requiring us-in any future sales or exchanges, to reserve all minerals for the schools. So, I would think you would have our complete contract, accepting the original and the amendments thereto as well.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: All right, why don't you insert an amendment after the word "six seventy-six" and before the paren?

DELEGATE DAVIS: I would so move, Mr. President, if you follow that. After the parenthesis on line 9, "six-seven-six, as amended"-

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: (Inaudible)-as amended?

DELEGATE DAVIS: I beg your pardon?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Don't you think the paren ought to follow "as amended"?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis, he's proposing you put it in so that it reads: "February

-or-"as amended."

DELEGATE DAVIS: Very good.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: As amended?

DELEGATE DAVIS: As amended. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Davis has proposed an amendment to the article, Compact with the United States, which would appear in your books on page 2, line 9, within the parentheses and after the numbers "six seventy-six", we would add the words "as amended", so that it would read: "All provisions of the Enabling Act of Congress, approved February 22nd, 1889, 25 Statutes 676, as amended, and of Ordinance Number 1." Is that the sense of your motion, Mr. Davis?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.
Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Loendorf yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I'll yield.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Jerry, after looking over this-1 value your opinion-does it change the intent of the present Constitution as referring to the Indian lands?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: This is the provision that was on the handout sheet that merely makes reference to that ordinance rather than incorporates it in its entirety?

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Yes, sir. I'm particularly concerned there about-is the reference to the Indian lands. What I-when-it was your opinion-does the Style and Drafting wording here—

DELEGATE LOENDORF: There's no change in substance.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: -any different than the intent that's in the Constitution as it is?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: None at all. None at all.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: You feel that way?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Right.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Thank you very much.
Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Johnson,

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Would Mr. Cate yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Cate?

DELEGATE CATE: Certainly.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Jerry, I would like to ask you the same question I just asked Jerry Loendorf. Do you agree that there is no change in the absolute intent in the Style and Drafting in their presentation here from the ordinances as written in the present Constitution?

DELEGATE CATE: I think that it carries through the same intent. I haven't examined it in detail, Mr. Johnson. I'll take a look at it here-Mr. Blaylock just handed it to me-and I'll answer your question in a moment. All right?

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Thank you. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Mr. Davis' amendment or the ordinance?
Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Just about the ordinance. The lack of a signature says I wasn't here, not that I don't approve of it, and I wanted to have that there for the record.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises on Mr. Davis' motion that we add the words "as amended" to the reference to the Enabling Act of Congress in the Compact with the United States article. So many as are in favor of adding that language, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as are opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Now, we're back considering the language as a whole. The substance of this-this is a substantive report from Style and Drafting, and we may consider it substantively and style. Is there any further discussion of the article entitled, "Compact with the United States"?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of the article as it's written and amended here, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted as amended. I'd like a motion, Mr. Murray; I'd like a motion this committee rise and report finally on Style and Drafting Report Number 13, Ordinance.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee rise and finally report on Committee on Style, Drafting, Transition and Submission Proposal Number 13.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Proceedings moved into Convention from Committee of the Whole. President Graybill presiding)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read the Committee of the Whole report.

CLERK HANSON: "March 17th, 1972. Mr. President: We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration Report Number 13 of the Committeeon Style, Drafting, Transition and Submission, recommend as follows: that the committee rise and report. Signed: Leo Graybill, Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does anyone want the committee report read in full?

DELEGATES: No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, 1 move that we adopt the Committee of the Whole report and refer Committee on Style, Drafting, Transition and Submission Proposal Number 13 to Order of Business Number 5.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to adopt the Committee of the Whole report and refer Proposal Number 13 to Order of Business Number 5, Final Adoption. Is there any discussion?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: No-all opposed, No.

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered. Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move that we revert to Order of Business Number 5.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to revert to Order of Business Number 5, Adoption. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, be--we're on Order of Business Number 5. Now, the purpose of this, members of the body, is that Style and Drafting, having drafted the ordinance and it being short-having drafted the proposal about the ordinance and it being short, there seems no purpose in sending it back to Style and Drafting, and Mr.-let's see-so we're considering it on Order of Business Number 5 right now, and we'll finally adopt it unless someone has objection.

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, the clerk will read Proposal Number 13, as amended, for action on Order of Business Number 5.

CLERK HANSON: "Committee on Style, Drafting, Transition, Submission Proposal Number 13. Be it proposed by the Committee on Style, Drafting, Transition and Submission that there be a new article on Compact with the United States, to read as follows: Article. Compact with the United States. All provisions of the Enabling Act of Congress, approved February 22nd, 1889, 25 Statutes 676, as amended, and of Ordinance Number 1, appended to the Constitution of the State of Montana and approved February 22nd, 1889, including the agreement and declaration that all lands owned or held by any Indian or Indian tribes shall remain under the absolute jurisdiction and control of the Congress of the United States, continue in full force and effect until revoked by the consent of the United States and the people of Montana." Mr. President, Number 13.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, the article entitled "Compact with the United States" is before you. All those in favor of it, vote Aye on the voting machines; and opposed, vote No. This is a final vote. For those of you who just arrived, we're taking Order of Business Number 5, Final Adoption of Compact with the United States, which we just adopted as amended. The words "as amended" were the amendment. So the Compact with the United States is the issue. If you're in favor of it, vote Aye; if you're opposed to it, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Please take the roll.

Mr. President Aye

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 89 delegates voting Aye, 1 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: 89 having voted Aye and 1 having voted No, the Compact with the United States is adopted. Now, ladies and gentlemen, we do not want to start the Education Style and Drafting until after the noon recess. Have in mind that the Public Health Style and Drafting will probably be taken up this afternoon on a motion to suspend the 48-hour rule. If we finish both of those, we will start General Government this afternoon, and I want to remind you that the committee chairmen--I'd like to have a meeting of the committee chairmen in the Legislative room immediately upon the noon recess.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, just a reminder that Rules will also meet, and I would like to meet at 15 minutes to 1:00, realizing that we're going to recess until I o'clock, so I would move at this time that the Convention stand in recess until 1:00 p.m. this day.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to recess until 1:00 p.m. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Convention recessed at 11:35 a.m.—reconvened at 1:32 p.m.)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Convention will be in order. Members of the Committee, the Chair apologizes for being a half hour late, but, believe me, we've been handling lots of business, so don't worry about it; and the business has been going well, so don't worry. Now, we were on Order of Business Number 5 when the Committee recessed, and without objection we'll be back on Order of Business Number 10. Is there objection?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Murray, will you make a motion on Order of Business Number 10.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move that the Convention resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for consideration of business under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to resolve this Convention into Committee of the Whole. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it. Very well. On Order of Business Number 10, we're now ready to take up Style and Drafting's Report Number 9, on Education-10-w get before you the Committee on Style and Drafting's Number 10, on Education and Public Lands; and if you'll turn to page 6, that's the easiest place to follow the text-page 6. Will the clerk please read the title and Section 1 of the bill.

CLERK HANSON: "Montana Constitutional Convention, 1971-72; Report of Committee on Style and Drafting, Transition and Submission on Education and Public Lands, Number 10. Reported March 15th, 1972; John Schiltz, Chairman. Be it proposed by the Education and Public Lands Committee that there be a new article on education, to read as follows: Article. Education. Section 1." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1,

Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, minor changes in style in Section 1, sub. 1; and I make that motion as to Section 1, subsection 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there discussion of Section 1, subsection 1?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 1, subsection 1, of the Education Article, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted, Section 1, sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1, subsection 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, no changes except that this became a subsection instead of part of the main section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Section 1, subsection 2; all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 2—subsection 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1, subsection 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman-I should have made this motion first-on line 18, I move that the words "quality" and "free" be interchanged. Someone might slip a hyphen in there sometime and make it read, "system of quality-free public elementary and secondary schools." (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Schiltz has styled and drafted, at this late date, to reverse the words "quality" and "free", on line 18. All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, your subamendment is approved, Mr. Schiltz; now do you want to go ahead?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1, subsection 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted as amended. Otherwise, minor style changes; nothing significant.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 1, subsection 3?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's adopted. Will the clerk read Section 2.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2. Public school fund." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, may I first call your attention to the fact that these are not subsections; it's numeration of a series. Secondly, on line 29 of page 6, you'll see that the words "known as school lands" are not struck out. They are struck out over on page 1 and should have been struck out here. We operate with two typewriters, and they don't have a link between them. Otherwise, let me see-Oh, I have an amendment here. On line 6, page 7, of this section, I move that we strike the words "no other" and substitute in lieu thereof "without". Now, that's awfully hard to read unless you go back to page 1—or 2; then you'll see why I did it. At the top of page 2, if we don't do that, it reads: "All other grants of land or money made from the United States for general educational purposes or no other special purpose", and it reads better if we say, "-or without special purpose", so I offer that amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, the Chair understands that Mr. Schiltz has proposed two subamendments here, one to strike out, just on the page 6 version of Section 2, the words "known as school lands", on line 29; and also, on line 6 on page 7, to strike out the words "the other"-

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: No other.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -"no other", and substitute the word "without". So many as are in favor of allowing Style and Drafting Committee those preliminary amendments, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay; those were approved, Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Before I make my final motion, I will say that the rest of it is minor style. And so I now move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Section 2, as amended; all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, Nay.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it. It's adopted. Section 3.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 3. Public school fund inviolate." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, there

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 3. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 4.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 4. Board of land commissioners." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I want to make an amendment here. If you'll direct your attention to line 20 on page 7, and-wait, I have to be careful here. All right, I want to make it read this way, Mr. Chairman-I think that it's the best way to say it: "the authority to direct, control, lease, exchange and sell", and then I want to strike "of the" at the end of that line; so it will amount to inserting, after the first "the" on line 20, the words "authority to" and then striking the "i-o-n" on "direction" and the "i-n-g" and substituting an "e" for "leasing" and "sell" instead of "sale".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And the "of the" at the end of the line?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's struck, yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, Mr. Schiltz has proposed an amendment to Section 4 so that the sentence beginning at the end of line 19 will read: "It has the authority to direct, control, lease, exchange and sell school lands and lands which have been or may be granted", et cetera.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, this we can call the Eck Amendment. Mrs. Eck correctly pointed out that we had gerunds and various other participles, and so we struck them all out so they're uniform.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. All in favor of allowing this preamendment to Section 4, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, you want

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Otherwise, Mr. Chairman, we have rather minor style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 4.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I think I said "as amended"; if I didn't, I meant to.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 4 as amended, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 5.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 5, subsection 1, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, minor style changes in subsection 1 of Section 5.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any question about 5, sub. 1?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of 5, sub. 1, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. — 5, sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 5, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, minor style changes-we inserted the word "public" in front of "school funds"; otherwise, struck some unnecessary verbiage.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of 5, sub. 2?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. All in favor of 5, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 6, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 6. Aid prohibited to sectarian schools"; containing two subsections. Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, we did some rearranging in this case but didn't affect the substance in any case and, I think, improved the style.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion on Section 6?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 6, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's 6, sub. 1.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -6, sub. 1 is adopted. Sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, there are no changes in sub. 2.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -6, sub. 2. Any discussion? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of 6, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. It was close, but it's adopted. Section 7.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 7. Non-discrimination in education." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 7, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, there are no substantive changes. We did insert, instead of "person" of line 28, "teacher or student", and I think we borrowed some of that from the comments. And I have gone over it with Mr. Champoux, and he had no problem there. We didn't know-we couldn't see that any such tests would be applied to anybody other than teachers or students; and so that could be a basic change or a substantive change, but I don't think it is. That's all.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Section 7; all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted, Section 8.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 8. School district trustees." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 8, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, no substantive changes: changes in style only.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 8?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Section 8; all those in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 8 is adopted. Section 9, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 9. Boards of education"; containing three subsections. Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I want to move to amend, on line 30 of page 9, by striking out the word "state". That just slipped in there--or it didn't slip in there, we just forgot to take it out. We've taken it out everywhere else.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. All in favor of taking "state", before "state superintendent", out of line 30 so it just reads "and superintendent of"—all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's done. Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 9, subsection 1, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, in connection with this entire Section 9, I should say that it's been completely rearranged and largely-if you'll recall the debate, Mr. Harper made the amendment after a long, hot afternoon; and we got one of those things that said, "If there's any problems here, we'll leave it up to Style and Drafting"; and we took him at his word. I checked with him early this morning, and he thought it was fine; and then I fine-toothed-combed it with Mr. Champoux, and Mr. Champoux, has no problems. There are a couple of minor things that Mr. Champoux and1 talked about, and I think I can satisfy him on those privately, without any amendments. Now, as to subsection 1, those are all style changes, but all the substance is there. As to subsection 2, when we get to it: it used to be subsection 3; we reversed the order of those two boards, and so now I move the adoption of subsection 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.
Mr. Rygg, you have a motion here. Do you want to take it up at this time, or—

DELEGATE RYGG: I don't believe it's on subsection 1. But-it's in this same section, if you want me to make it now.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Well, is it-it's in subsection 2?

DELEGATE RYGG: Yes, it would be-it's 2, now, I believe-that was 3. It would be in 2, now.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, Mr. Chairman, just to be very careful about those two sections, it would be-it's safer to look over on page 4—or the bottom of page 9 and 4, to see how they've been reversed. They've been cut up quite a lot, and I think they make easier reading over on page 3 and 4.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Well, I take it that there's no problem with subsection 1, then. Is there discussion of subsection 1?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well; all in favor of subsection 1, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Now let's take subsection 2, on page 10. In other words, we'll take them in subsection number, but they're out of sequence here. Subsection 2 is the old subsection 3, the Style and Drafting Committee apparently reversing the order of these two boards and the description; is that correct, Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right. You see, we-all right, go ahead.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Discuss subsection 2 (a) and (b) and(c), on page 10, please; line 4 to 22.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAY&ILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 9, subsection 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, these are style changes. It would take an awful lot of explanation to show how we revised all these various things and tried to make the two boards parallel, but they are only style-no substantive changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Allright. Now, at this point we're discussing the Board of Regents, right? Mr. Schiltz? Subsection 2 will now be the Board of Regents?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right.

Now, Mr. Rygg, would you like us to read your proposal?

DELEGATE RYGG: Please, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you want to read Mr. Rygg's proposal.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to suspend the rules for the express purpose of reconsidering line 21 on page 4, Article IX"-page 10—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's line 21, page 10.

CLERK HANSON: Line 21, page 10, right.

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: May I speak on this a moment? I admit I'm really quite concerned about the fact that our University System is now a complete autonomy with very little control by the Legislature. In fact, I suppose I think we've created another Highway Department. However, this body has shown that that's its desire, so I'm not going to attempt to insert the words "as provided by law". I feel about the only control a Legislature has now is the purse strings; and, really, the purse strings aren't much control in education, because we have to give money to education. So I feel that, really, all that's left is accountability—as far as the Legislature is concerned-and I don't think that just an audit will do much good, because auditors can audit anything, but unless there is a unified system of accounting, it's pretty hard for an audit to show a statement that can be read by legislators or any committee or anything like that. So, my thinking is that I believe we should include all institutions in a unified accounting system over the state. I believe it's nearly implemented now. I think that they hope to have it done by July first of this year, and I think it's important enough to include it in there. The Revenue and Finance Committeewas considering a proposal like this, but we didn't put it in the Constitution, actually, as a general thing, but our comments did stress very much that we thought it was very important. So my only intent, if this should pass, would be to add those two words so that we could have statewide accounting in there, so that an audit would really mean something, so the Legislature could have true accountability. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Is it within the rules, sir, that I may answer that and defer, after a few comments, to Mr. Heliker for an argument? Sir?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You want to ask what?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Is it within the rules that I may answer that, very briefly, with just a few sentences?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You may answer it briefly, but stick to the fact of whether or not the rules should be suspended to do this.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: All right. Then later, may I defer to Mr. Heliker, after I make my two sentences?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Certainly, everybody can discuss.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: All right. First of all, I'm absolutely opposed to this. This will accomplish what we spent 8 hours debating, which means that all the control is back in the statehouse. When you're involved in accounting procedures, you're also involved in managerial decisions. And it's just simply another way of getting the same kind of controls. Now, at this point, I'd like to defer to Mr. Heliker. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, I have, Mr. Chairman, nothing in essence to add to what Mr. Champoux has said, except to say that the intent of this amendment is to emasculate the decision that we made to give the Board of Regents managerial authority. If the Director of the State Department of Administration is able to impose internal structure of accounting procedures on the University system, then it means it can take away the managerial flexibility, managerial power of the Board of Regents and put it in the Department of Administration, and this will completely subvert what we debated for many hours and decided to do the other day.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Now, I'll allow other discussion, but I'm going to hold you closely to the concept of whether we should suspend the rules. We now-1 think everybody now sees what the issue is going to be, but—

Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Would-Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Rygg yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg?

DELEGATE RYGG: Yes, I will.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Delegate Rygg, is there anything in this subsection 2, or anything else in Revenue and Finance that you know of, that would prevent the state from implementing in all subdivisions, as a matter of fact, a uniform accounting procedure?

DELEGATE RYGG: Well, I think the way this is written, it could, because they have complete autonomy. I don't think any other section has it-any other department has it; I don't think they have the autonomy that this particular has right now. I think that's why it's needed in this one, yes.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: I would resist the reconsideration, because I don't believe it's necessary. I believe the state has the authority to establish a uniform accounting procedure throughout the whole of the state. I think they're well on their way to doing it right now, and there's really no purpose in reopening this to accomplish what I think is already being accomplished.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, I resist the motion to suspend the rules, in keeping with a continuing policy of the dinosaur. I hope-1 was in support of the position of Mr. Rygg, but in this case, I think that we would do just as we did yesterday on the right to know; we would talk for 3 hours and end up with just exactly the same position.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to just remind the members of the Convention that, in reconsideration, this is the only opportunity that a one-body house has of looking over what we just did. And this is really something that we offer to the people that feel that something has been done that they can't quite agree with. Now, whether you agree with what he's trying to do or not, I still think that in the way that this body operates, this is the only opportunity he has to say that he isn't satisfied what we did another day. I think we should give him the opportunity to reconsider. I think we should give anyone an opportunity to reconsider pretty near any motion that they want to bring up.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman. I'll be very brief. This is just a hashing over what we've hashed over. It's an attempt to ram down the throats of the University System an accounting system to which they cannot possibly adjust, and I suggest to you that if there is uniformity of accounting required, that this can be done by computers.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Artz.

DELEGATE ARTZ: Mr. Chairman. There's been about 10 to 15 years spent trying to get a uniform system of accounts for the State of Montana.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Artz, how's that-that's argument, isn't it? I don't want to interrupt you, but—

DELEGATE ARTZ: No, I merely answered Mr.-

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'm interested in arguing the issue of whether we should suspend the rules. I don't care how long ago we've had accounting or where we are in the accounting business; we'll debate that if we suspend the rules. Now, if you want to say you're for it or something, that's fine; but don't talk about the accounting system yet. In other words, the motion is to suspend the rules. Are you for or against that, and what are your reasons? And they're not supposed to be the reasons that we're going to debate later.

DELEGATE ARTZ: Well, the reason I was for it, Mr. Chairman-and stop me the minute I get out of order-but we had hired Touche, Ross, Bailey and Smart to come in and determine that we needed this. We thought we still needed it, and their statement said: "Accounting systems have developed more or less independently of each other. Consistent application of generally accepted government accounting practices and principles does not exist. This deficiency makes the interpretation and comparison of financial information for planning, operating and controlling government activities difficult and, in some cases, nearly impossible.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Now, that seems to the Chair to be clearly argumentative.

DELEGATE ARTZ: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The issue is clearly drawn here that if we suspend the rules, we're going to debate accounting in the University System; but I want to know if you have any more to say about whether or not we should suspend the rules, not about the accounting system.

Mr. Drum.

DELEGATE DRUM: Mr. Chairman. I, too, would support the-suspension of the rules. I think the question is so important for the future of all involved that, if there is any question in the minds of this body here, I think this is the time to clarify it and come to an agreement. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman, I have previously felt, like Mr. Martin, that it wasn't proper to reconsider, and I've resisted all the prior motions to reconsider. If-After listening to Mr. Eskildsen, it has occurred to me that the reasons that I have formerly felt that it was improper to reconsider for were reasons that would be more properly applicable in a court, rather than in a deliberative body. Since this is not a judicial proceeding, but a-in fact a deliberative proceeding, I think that it is proper for us to reconsider; and I have decided that I have been wrong; and so I publicly confess the error of my ways; and I intend from now on to vote for, rather than against, reconsideration every time it comes up. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harlow.

DELEGATE HARLOW: Mr. Chairman, being a strong advocate of unicameral system and this being a unicameral body-and you must reconsider things in unicameral; you can't put it over to somebody else to do-I'm strongly in support of the motion to reconsider.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The motion is to reconsider Mr. Rygg's-or the motion is to suspend the rules so we can reconsider. It's Mr. Rygg's motion, and his purpose is to consider line 21-I think the Chair will rule that the purpose will be to consider anything under sub. (d), which would be lines 20, 21 and 22, because I don't want to fix it so we can only talk about one gap in the sentence. Anybody-If we reconsider, it will be to consider the matter of "The funds and appropriations under the control of the Board of Regents are subject to the same audit provisions as are all other state funds." Now, so many as shall be in favor of that, vote Aye on the voting machines; and opposed, No. It's not a roll call vote, but I must know the total, since the rules provide that it requires two-thirds or 51 percent, whichever may be less. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The ballot is 52 to reconsider, 42 not to, so we will reconsider-or we will suspend the rules, rather—suspend the rules.

All right, now, Mr. Rygg, do you want to make a motion to reconsider?

DELEGATE RYGG: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, Mr. Hanson will make the motion.

Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE HANSON: Mr. Chairman, having voted on the prevailing side on the question involved, I now move that we reconsider Section 9, subsection 3-or whatever it is-part 3-for the express purpose of adding the words "accounting and"—I can't read my writing-before the word "audit" on line 21, page 10, of the Style and Drafting report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson, will you allow me to state your motion as 9-3-(d), the way I said it awhile ago, so everybody is together?

DELEGATE HANSON: Yes, I will. Correct-right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Nine-three-(d)-the motion is to reconsider Section 9-3-(d). All right-Well, it's 9-2-(d); it used to be 9-3-(d). Okay. It's sub. (d), lines 20 to 22 on page 10. All right, the motion to reconsider has been made.

DELEGATE HANSON: Mr. President, I'd like to defer at this time to my accountant, Delegate Artz.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Artz, can you discuss the motion to reconsider?

DELEGATE ARTZ: Mr. Chairman, I'm all in favor of the motion to reconsider. I'm not sure, under the rules, exactly what I can say, but we do need a lot of change. We need those words in. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. The motion is to reconsider Section 9-3-(d) of the Education Article. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and the motion carries.

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman, I move to amend 9-2-(d) on line 21 by adding the words "accounting and" after the word "same", so that it would read: "The funds and appropriations under the control of the Board of Regents are subject to the same accounting and audit provisions as are all other state funds."

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, everyone should understand that he wants to add the words "accounting and" on line 21, after the word "same".

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman. Basically I have covered this before; I'm not going to belabor the point. I honestly feel that we're not doing away with what we did before. I don't think this is in any way hurting the autonomy of the University System. I feel that there has to be some regulation from the Legislature; I think, because they are spending the taxpayers' money, I just think that we have the right to have the accountability of it. I don't believe that such an accounting system is going to overturn the internal policies, because-the one they are working, I think, is now a WICHE program, which is used in all states; and from all the information I can gather there, it's not going to work a hardship on the University. I think it's true that probably the Controller can switch that into it, but it still would come out the same. There is another reason for this, too. We have required-in the previous section, I think it was-that they have unified budgets, and unless the accounting procedures are the same, it's going to be very difficult to anyone to work out a budget, because I can't imagine that just a sum brought in to the Appropriations Committee is going to be acted on that way. I think they are going to have to have some knowledge of what it is, and I think the six universities are also going to have to have some knowledge of rearranging this, in case they wouldn't get the full amount. And as it has been in the past, the four main captions, probably, of Personnel, Capital, Operating Expenses have not always been the same in each institution. Under Operating Expenses in one, there will be several account numbers, and the other institution, it'll be different-and the same with the other headings. And when you do it that way, it's just about impossible to know how you're appropriating it or how it's being spent. So I have given up the idea of getting a control of the University System, as I said, and this is strictly an accounting procedure and showing the accountability. And I can't understand why it should hurt anything in the University System. They're nearly on it now. I just want to make sure that an audit will mean something, and I don't think it's meaningful unless the same accounting system is throughout the system I think the Legislature and the Appropriations Committee are entitled to have a readable financial statement, whereas if it were the other way, it would just be the auditors that could read it. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President, I rise in support of the motion to amend. I think that if I were sitting at the head of one of the University Systems in-I'd want this accounting system in my own self defense, to-because of the fact that I'm using public money. I would want to be sure that the public knew where the money went and how it was used and it was used in the way it should be. And there's quite a little difference between an audit and an accounting system, and again, I think the people of the University System and the Board of Regents are-that the people are entitled to know where this money went and how it went.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Rygg yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg?

DELEGATE RYGG: Yes, I'll try.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Rygg, I'd like to know just how much this-accepting the state auditing means. Would it mean, for instance, that there would be preauditing, whereexpenses would have to be approved by the state beforehand, and would it go over into the area of personnel at all?

DELEGATE RYGG: Not to my understanding of it, no; it's just the-that the actual bookkeeping, accounting numbers, would mesh with what the state has, even if it has to go through a computer to do it. It's just so they can have an accountability of where the funds were appropriated and where they were spent. As far as I know, it has nothing to do with preaudit. I know that-Mr. Champoux is showing me what North Dakota did-and in that it included a preaudit, but I didn't think that could be done here, because I think they'll handle that right in their own, the way it's set up.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Artz yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Artz?

DELEGATE ARTZ: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Artz, would you also agree that this wouldn't affect either any checks on personnel or on preauditing?

DELEGATE ARTZ: Delegate Eck, as far as I'm concerned, the only purpose of adding this word is to see that we have a uniform system of accounting throughout the state. Now, as I tried to mention at first, the Forty-first and the Forty-second Legislative Assemblies made specific appropriations to get this done. They hired an outside firm-a national firm, Touche, Ross, Bailey and Smart; one of the eight national firms in the United States-to make this, and they came back, as I mentioned at first, and said that there was a terrific lack of uniformity. And all we're trying to do is-we don't care how the University System-or where they buy their apples or where they buy their oranges, but we want them classified as apples and oranges, the same as everybody else does. In other words, to insure that when the Legislature gets reports, they will be in conformity with the reports they get from the other state agencies. It's taken about 15 years to get this accomplished, and I'd certainly hate to see one branch of the government or one agency of the government slip out through this thing we put in here the other day. Does that answer your question?

DELEGATE ECK: I believe it does. Thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Driscoll.

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: Mr. Chairman. I rise in support of the amendment, and I'd just like to say a word to the body here. I hope they've listened to the words of Mr. Lloyd Barnard with a deep sense of care. I'm sure you're all aware that Mr. Barnard was in this position as Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if the body realizes the fundamentally unique nature of an institution of higher education. To try to impose a businesslike system of accounting on a University System has proven to be unworkable and impractical. As Mrs. Bugbee said at length the other day, you find Deans-highly paid Deans--running around with requisition orders for paper clips and typewriters; and I'm not going to repeat that over and over again. But to try to impose this, we found that after the University System be-came under the Department of Administration, there was greatly increased cost to the University System by reason of having to comply with a system of accounting that was designed for something like the Fish and Game Department or the Board of Health or something else. You have a completely unique type of institution which does not lend itself to the kind of an accounting system that Mr. Artz is talking about. I know from personal experience in dealing with the University that this imposition of a uniform accounting system on the University has greatly increased their costs, immeasurably increased their costs, and I think they simply have to be let alone to work out their accounting system in the best interests of the student body and of the people of Montana. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: This will be short, Mr. President. We spent, oh, 15 minutes to an hour or two on the public's right to know in the Bill of Rights section. I think this is just as important as the public's right to know. What we're actually doing by putting this in here and making uniform accounting methods is that the Legislature also has the right to know, and so doesn't the public have the right to know how the money is to be expended and has been-not to be expended, but has been spent? And this is only a logical deal to implement-and very efficiently implement—the Legislature's and the public's right to know how the money is spent in the University System.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, I'm not an accountant and I will not be able, therefore, because I've not been immersed in this question as an accountant would be-but I have consulted with University System accountants on this matter. This is not a question of accountability-we have written accountability into the section as it is now written-it is a question of managerial control. Now, I have a five-page brief on the subject here, which I am not going to read to you in its entirety, but because I think you must be informed on this as to exactly what the issues are, I'm going to ask you to bear with me for a few minutes while I read part of it. "Unquestionably"—I read from this report—"unquestionably, a state-supported university is part of a larger accounting entity, the state, which is subject to specially formulated and defined governmental accounting principles which apply to the state as a whole. However, unlike most other state agencies, a university is subject to generally accepted accounting principles of its own, which must take precedence in designing an accounting system if the information reports provided by that system are to be meaningful. This concept is widely accepted by the profession, as evidenced by Donald C. Bruggeman and Gerald D. Brighton in October, 1963, issue of Accounting Review, where they state: 'There is truly a separate and distinct set of generally accepted accounting principles for colleges and universities.' What, then, are these generally accepted accounting principles as applied to universities, and what constitutes authoritative support for these principles? The general answer to the first part of the question is the principle of separate, distinct fund groups. This broad principle is recognized by W. Lynn Fluckinger, C.P.A., in the August, 1963, issue of the Journal of Accountancy, where he writes: 'One other concept peculiar to reporting for fund type enterprises should be mentioned. While an institution will have only one general fund, it might have many, perhaps hundreds, of designated funds. In such cases, it becomes, obviously, desirable that these funds be grouped for reporting purposes. When funds are grouped, it is necessary that they be grouped by like purposes and restrictions so that the assets applicable to them can be reported jointly and the various accounting statements, when combined, will be meaningful. The fund groups which are applicable to the various types of institutions are usually designated in the related accounting literature. The composition of these groupings should be followed carefully. Specifically, the need for this principle of separate fund groups as applied to universities was stated in the Finance of Higher Education, by J. D. Russells, as follows: 'The separate nature of each of these fund groups cannot be too strongly emphasized. In dealing with each kind of asset, the institution should consider itself practically a separate enterprise. Thus, in caring for current funds, the institution acts as an operating corporation. In handling student loan funds, it acts as a commercial credit agency. In managing endowment, its actions are those of investment trusts. The accounting procedure must segregate the transactions in each fund group just as vigorously as if entirely separate managing corporations were involved.' A review of the nation's colleges and universities would soon reveal that College and University Business Administration, Revised Edition, is by far the most widely used accounting reference. That this edition recognizes the principle of fund group accounting is evidenced by the following article in the March, 1969, Journal of Accountancy. That authority continues to recommend as a basic principle that the accounts of colleges anduniversities should be classified in balanced fund groups; not only in books of account, but also in financial reports. In addition, all financial transactions should be recorded and reported by fund groups. The authors of this article, Ralph S. John, C.P.A., and Howard A. Whitney, C.P.A., are partners of the national C.P.A. firms of Haskins &Sells, and Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., respectively. They represented their firms, which in turn were chosen by the A.I.C.P.A. to represent the profession as consultants to the American Counsel on Education. This article also recognized the general acceptability of College and University Business Administration, Revised Edition, with the following: 'In the opinion of the writers, College and University Business Administration, Revised Edition, is the authoritative guide in accounting for colleges and universities. It is well prepared and contains as complete a statement of accounting principles applicable in a specific area in accounting as is currently available in any area.' Having established that there is a distinct set of generally accepted accounting principles to apply to universities, it then becomes necessary to address the conflict that arises when, as in-the proposed Statewide Budgeting Accounting System proposed by the Department -the Director of the Department of Administration does, an attempt is made to include a university accounting system under the same broad funds that apply to a stategovernment. Basically, the problem arises because of a misconception in the definition of fund groups; that is, that a direct correlation can be drawn between the funds in a state accounting system and the fund groups in a university accounting system. For example, it may appear at first glance that a general-state general fund may correspond to a university's current unrestricted fund group or that a state, federal and private revenue fund may correspond to a university's currently restricted fund group or that a state agency fund may correspond to a university agency fund group. When these assumptions are approached with adequate knowledge of a university's accounting problems, however, these simplistic correlations soon prove false. An attempt, therefore, to force a university accounting system into the broad spectrum of a state government system without special recognition of the uniqueness of university accounting will result in the production of inaccurate and inadequate information, at best, and mass confusion substantially-and substantially increased workloads, at worst." Now, I read you just enough to give you an idea of what is involved. This is a highly technical matter, but the nub of the matter is this: that the Department of Administration does have the authority now to require a reporting framework, which is controlled by the Director of the Department of Administration, in the disbursement of funds. All of the funds of the University System are kept in the state treasury, and state warrants must be drawn and processed by the Treasurer and charged to an account that is structured in the treasury and which the Director of the Department of Administration has the power to control. Now, the proposal which the State Director has made would give him the authority to structure not only that reporting framework, but the internal accounting of the University System, which is a management tool and without which the University System will find it difficult to manage. Now the Legislature and the Executive have plenty of authority, without having the authority to structure the internal accounts of the University System, to control the University System. You have the purse strings held by the Legislature. You have the post-audit—legislative audit-by the Legislature; you have the University accountable to the Legislature through that procedure. You have the Governor on the Board of Regents. It is not conceivable that the Board of Regents could run contrary to the wishes of the Governor, as a matter of fact, with the Governor as the Chairman of this board. Now, these institutions that we are talking about-of higher education are set up-and they're out there to do a very important and very special job for the people of Montana, and they are not set up to be the playthings of an accountant or set of accountants in the Department of Administration in Helena. And I say to you that what we adopted the other day and what is contained in this provision is to give the Board of Regents and University administrations the power to manage those units effectively, and that is the power that I hope you will leave to them. I hope you will confirm that principle, but if you adopt this amendment, you will be reversing 180 degrees and you will be imposing upon the University System, through the control of their internal accounting, effective managerial control by the Department of Administration.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Very briefly, if I may add to that, sir, let's note the fact that no Constitution-none-in the United States has anything concerning accounting systems in it. Now, the University isn't-and I want to emphasize this-the University isn't against getting into the state accounting system. They aren't. Let's get that understood. Now, the problem is, they have their own accounting system; it's the educational accounting system. Now, what would be agreeable? It would be this, as Mr. Toole pointed out: that the State Administration office work out a computer program and simply include the educational accounting system in the statewide system. And it is not something that you do through a constitutional amendment, and I want to make that clear. Now, let's look at this state accounting system; let's really look at it. Well, we can't. You know why? It isn't in existence. So, what we're talking about is a system that isn't in existence. Not only that, when the system was being proposed, the state accountants in the Administration office did not go down and consult with any of the educational-accountants in the educational units-none of them. Now, my question is-and I'm going to leave it with you: is this system ever going to change, this statewide system? Are all others going to change in the future? If we tie this in, it will be too inflexible. Does this mean, for instance, that we always will have a statewide system of accounting? Not necessarily, since we have lived without one for 88 years. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Speer.

DELEGATE SPEER: Will Mr. Heliker yield?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I yield.

DELEGATE SPEER: Mr. Heliker, you said that this was a matter of internal management, I believe.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

DELEGATE SPEER: Now, does this not mean, then, that the courts could interpret, if this decision to include accounting were put in the Constitution-could the courts not then interpret almost any internal management function as to be under the Legislature?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, this is the heart of the managerial function. I have no idea what the courts would interpret.

DELEGATE SPEER: Well, my point is, Mr. Chairman, that this could be carried into far other areas through interpretation by the courts.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Speer, are you finished?

DELEGATE SPEER: Yes, thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Let's see-Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, I've heard these good old decisions before, these old arguments--we can't operate-I've heard them for years, and I think this thing could operate just nicely under the government, the state government-Legislature, Governor and all-and I don't see any sense in going out and giving them this exclusive right just because they're the University System. I don't know, maybe two and two isn't four in different accounting, but that's what I get back to. And I heard this discussion that they can't operate and the people of this state voted for 20 departments and in these 20 departments, the Governor and the Legislature, in their wisdom, set up a Department of Business Administration. And all they have to do is live under it, and I'm sure that we-the University won't close if they get under our-rest of our government.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Melvin.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Mr. Chairman, may I direct a series of questions to Mr. Rygg?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You may.

DELEGATE RYGG: I yield.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Mr. Rygg, it seems to me like we're beating all around the bush. Are we suggesting that because the accounting system that the University System has-that it isn't adequate? Or are we suggesting that some funds may be being spent that are covered or not being shown by the present accounting system?

DELEGATE RYGG: I don't know that we're suggesting that at all. We're just suggesting that we have everything in the state in the uniform system so that an audit can be meaningful. In talking with the budget-the post auditor yesterday, he said they can audit anything and they can understand it, but unless it has a uniform system, they can't put out a-meaningful statements that could be understood by a layman. So I think in the past there certainly has been some evidences of things being covered up, but I don't think that's what we're aiming at now, no.

DELEGATE MELVIN: One more question. Has there been any discussion, that you're aware of, Mr. Rygg, between the Legislature and the University units concerning the accounting system and the objection that they have to state accounting or the system set up by the state?

DELEGATE RYGG: Yes, there has been in the past. There's been a difficulty in reading them, and I think, as Mr. Artz noticed that-noted, that in the last 12 or 15 years, they've been trying to get this coordinated so they would be in a statewide system. And I understand that they are now working under the WICHE system, which can be used and is used by other states and does coordinate with the state system, and I think this is to be implemented very shortly.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I would rise to support what Mr. Heliker said. I think I would be amiss not to give testimony to 20 years of some school administration, to say how different it really is. I'm surprised with this move on the University System, so to speak, that we don't have a similar move on our grade school and high school system. I think we recognize the uniqueness of that control, and yet we want to take away, almost, from our University Presidents and-that autonomy which is necessary to operate a school. I would find the move that's being made here not much more ridiculous-to me, anyway, with my experience-than to ask our elementary schools to take on the bookkeeping system of the Department of Agriculture or our high schools to take on the bookkeeping system of our Highway Department.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Cross.

DELEGATE CROSS: Mr. Chairman, again we come down to a difference in basic philosophy, and I think we all understand how many people are involved in a University System. It isn't just the teachers and the administrators; it involves a great many young people. I wonder if Mr. Rygg would yield to a question.

DELEGATE RYGG: Yes, I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE CROSS: Mr. Rygg, in your remarks, it raised a question in my mind. Does each unit of the University System, then, do their accounting as each one wants to do it, or are the units within the system on a uniform system, or how much variation is there?

DELEGATE RYGG: I can't answer you how much variation there is. There has been a great deal of variation in the past. They are gradually getting into being more uniform; but, yes, different universities in the six systems will have different account numbers under the account headings. That's true.

DELEGATE CROSS: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman, I'd again like to repeat that no one has asked me to speak, not on this floor and not in the rest of the state. I really feel that it is absolutely tragic that this body would not be able-cannot be able to read the Eisenhower report of 1957 before we vote on this. Essentially what they are saying is that all over the country this is happening; as departments of state centralize and centralize their administrative procedures, that higher education coming under this is slowly being smothered. Now, as I said the other day and I will repeat-also my husband feels this-with every passing month, practically, the paperwork is going up; the difficulty of getting the right size paper clips, the difficulty of doing this, of doing that is absolutely drowning these people. If, Mr. Rygg, what you wanted was a unified accounting system between the University departments, that would be fine by me; but to put the whole higher education department under the Department of Administration, so that everything-all buildings go under them, this is what I object to, and it seems to me this is what your--what this amendment would mean. And—this is what I'd like to be sure of. If they are alike—you understand what I mean? If they have to be alike and unique, all six of them the same, that is fine; this sounds very logical to me. But it's when they come under the Department of Administration for every bloody paper clip and building—science building,, complex and everything else—that higher education and the delicacy ofteaching begins to fall apart, and this is the whole thrust of this Eisenhower report. And I repeat, this is something that is happening nationwide; and it seems to me that we are going to do exactly what they are predicting is happening in higher education: it is becoming less and less sensitive to the need that it needs to fulfill, which is teaching.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Drum.

DELEGATE DRUM: Mr. Chairman. I, too, would like to rise in support of the amendment and make a couple of comments. One, I've learned to respect Mr. Artz' wisdom. He's a Certified Public Accountant and he has used extremely good judgment in our Finance and Revenue Committee, and I'm certainly willing to listen to him in this matter. I would suspect that if the universities or the higher education system were on a unified system of accounting--which, probably, the reason they are not now; and we've heard people say that they are striving for this at the present time, because I think they all recognize that higher education may be better off as a result of it-it's kind of painful at times; but the people who sold computers here several years ago happened to sell one flavor to one higher education unit and another flavor to another, and this is part of the problem now. But the people that I have talked to in higher education agree that this would be a good thing; but if the audit time of the legislative post-audit could be cut-and unified accounting would certainly cut the time that they have to spend making the audit-I think it would be a-effect quite a savings to the state. I think responsible people in-whether it's in a business or in education or wherever-really learn to respect and desire good accounting systems, because it relieves the minds of those. It's good-it creates more efficiency and it makes them look like winners if we have good accounting. I'm not sure just what all the problems are that we have over at the University now, but good accounting may have eliminated some of those problems. Now, for the-each school or each one to say, "We have different problems here and different problems there", I would wonder if perhaps J. C. Penney might not have different problems in, say, their New York store than they have, say, in the Billings, Montana, store. But they've overcome these problems, and the reason that J. C. Penney and Sears & Roebuck and people like that win is because they have unified accounting. They create a situation where they save money and they pass it on to the taxpayers-or to the purchasers. I think perhaps this same result could come in our higher education system. It may be a tax saving down the road for the taxpayers of the State of Montana. And if the Legislature could be-the real important point is if the Legislature can be better informed, it will be more responsive to the needs of the higher education and the people will be more responsive. That is the important point, as I see it, Mr. Chairman. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Rygg's amendment to add the words "accounting and" on line 21 of page 10 of the Education report of Style and Drafting.

Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I haven't had time to check with the Chairman of our committee; I would like to maybe ask him a question at this point in relation to this amendment. I wonder if Mr. Champoux would yield.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I'll yield.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Rick, I was going to write you a note, but what I was wondering was if, for instance, on line 21, you read: "The funds and appropriations under the control of the Board of Regents shall be accounted for in a uniform manner and then subject to audit provisions as are all other state funds", you would gain a nudge toward uniformity in between units, but you would not be turning over to the State Administration Department the managerial function. I wonder if this, as you look at it, would have some possibilities in terms of what the group really is seeking-and that is, some kind of measurable and discernable understandable accounting system; not necessarily the system of the state, but a uniform system within the various units of the Board-or the system of education. Now, that's a long question. Let me read it to you again. After the word "Regents", on line 21, to insert "shall be accounted for in a uniform manner, and subject to the same audit provisions as are all other state funds."

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Okay. First of all, let me say this: that within the University Systems, there is a uniform system of accounting recommended by WICHE, the Western Interstate Compact on Higher Education, which covers all of the western United States, all of the university systems, all the college systems-they're all going to have the same kind of accounting. For-It's been recommended-this kind of accounting has been recommended by the Commission-by the United States Commission on Higher Education. Now, it's estimated by-They have all of it implemented in the different units right now. The only thing that's lacking is coordination between the units; they figure they'll have that finished by July. And this is another reason why-you see, now, they've been working on this; they're ready to go on-stream with it; it's working within the units. They're ready to go on-stream with it between the units, and now they're being told, "Well, we've got to hold; wait a minute; we now want you to bring in-come in on the new kind of accounting system that the state's going to impose." Does that answer your question, sir?

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Rick, as I read this, did it seem to you to be clear in its delineation of the function? In other words, it would still be under the control of the Board of Regents, but it would be necessary for them to account in a uniform manner; and you say it's already happening?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes. If you want to add "internally", it would probably be better.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Internally?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes. That would be acceptable, Bill.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I would like to propose a substitute amendment for the amendment before us, which maybe I would trust our Chairman of this committee to work on a bit and bring to you, Mr. Chairman, rather than myself in some kind of an offhand way. But I would so move that we put in a substitute amendment at this point, rather than the amendment which is now before us; and I would like our Chairman of the committee to bring it forward, if he would.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'm sorry. Now, the Chair isn't going to accept a motion to amend that isn't in writing and that you're asking somebody else to prepare. Go out in the hall and prepare your motions; I don't care. But I'm not going to sit around; we're going to debate it while we do this.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Well, if you know that's what we're working on, why, maybe you won't vote too fast. Okay?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I don't control this system, I only run it.
Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. I'll tell Mr. Burkhardt before he goes why I don't agree with what he's proposing, because I think that the difficulty here is in the very last phrase here, where the accounting system must be the same as those of other state agencies, or however it's worded.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: "-are all other state funds-"

DELEGATE ECK: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: "—as are all other state funds."

DELEGATE ECK: Yes. Right now, the University System is developing a compatible system so they're compatible among themselves and with other units. Now, I think that you could ask them to develop a system that is compatible with the sytem that our Department of Administration uses. I think you could have a system that is compatible with this system, as well as being compatible with the system that is used throughout the University System. But, really, to ask them to use the same system is making them possibly not compatible with whatever WICHE uses. I think that the real problem we're dealing here-with here is that it would be possible, and I think this is what the universities are afraid of, that the whole accounting procedure be moved, really, out of the hands of the Board of Regents and into the hands of the Board of Administration; and whereas, all the Penney's stores all over the United States might be able to use the same accounting system, it might not be a system that would also be appropriate, say, for all the fish and game departments all over the country. In using a system of accounting as the states do in developing a program, planning and budgeting system, this is a little difficult at times to transfer into a University System, because a university has to evaluate, based on different values other than cash values, what their money is being spent for. And for this reason, I think that university systems might find occasions where their system cannot be the same, even though it could be compatible; and I really think that this is what we're looking for. And I think that if amendment came up that would do this, it would be quite appropriate. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Drum is a dandy person. I like him very much, but I really think it is simplistic to equate the University System to J. C. Penney's or Sears-Roebuck. Obviously, there are deep differences.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Mr. Chairman, will Mr. Rygg yield to a question?

DELEGATE RYGG: Yes, Mr. Chairman, I'll try.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Sterling, by leaving this out, the way it was written before, would this have any effect on the legislative audit that does now pertain to the University Systems?

DELEGATE RYGG: Well, it'll make this difference in that the legislative post-audit can post-audit anything, you know, and they can audit it, no matter what system of books YOU have any where, but they would not be able to bring in a meaningful statement so that it could be read by the average legislator or anyone in the Appropriations Committee. They can audit anything, any bookkeeping system, anywhere. But what they bring back, the meaning-the statement would not be meaningful.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Thank you, Sterling. Well, the one thing that concerns me, then: why is the University so afraid of having somebody audit them? This I don't understand. I would like to hear from somebody that-to speak on this, except the professors from the Universities. This is the only one that we've heard, is from that side. I'd like to hear the other side awhile. Thank you. Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman, I'm far from being a professor at the University, but I've had a lot of experience with the-how the University operated before we had a Department of Administration, when it operated efficiently with a small crew and was able to conduct its affairs to the satisfaction of the people of the State of Montana and there never was any problem with the accounting. But now, since they're operating under the Department of Administration, there's an army of people out there at taxpayers' expense, running around, trying to conform to accounting principles which are not adapted to higher education. And I submit to you that it is costing the taxpayers a great deal of money, which is not necessary if the University System were permitted to manage its own financial affairs. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis, you were up.

DELEGATE DAVIS: I think Mr. Roeder was ahead of me, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Roeder.

DELEGATE ROEDER: Mr. Conover, I rise, not to offer any apologia for the University System or its leadership, but I do think what I see here is a mutual distrust--and perhaps it's deserved. I think there's a feeling on the part of some people-perhaps Mr. Rygg feels this way—that the University leadership does not always do what it ought to do, and maybe that's the case. On the other hand, I think the University people are deeply suspicious of bureaucrats in Helena-and maybe that's as it should be, too, because, you know, really, the two big problems of our society are garbage and bureaucracy. Now, I submit that there are probably real problems here-that-and there probably is basis in reality for both areas of suspicion; but if I may tear a page out of the book of Mr. McDonough here, the way to deal with this is in a normal political and administrative process and not in the Constitution. You've said in here that the Board of Regents shall be the governing body for the University. So be it. Work out the other problems in the course of normal political life.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President, delegates. The other day I thought it was-be a good idea to have a little compromise here between the influential nonbureaucratic educating people, who have control of a lot of funds, and the people that wondered about this and suggested we put the financial control in the Legislature and give them complete academic freedom and complete administrative freedom. Now, when that didn't pass and when you gave complete financial control, by a strong vote of this thing-well, let's leave it that way. That's what you gave it to-the Board of Regents-and if they got it, don't start writing accounting procedures in a Constitution. There's no place for it. Either go all the way, or stay home-one or the other. Once you got this far, you might as well leave it that way. Now, I think, of course, you have a very strong consensus of people here in the educational field, which is-more power to them. They ran, and they got elected, and that's their baby; and they're not looking after their own salaries, I don't think, but they're interested in their field; and it is a big field. I don't agree with Mr. Toole when he gets up and calls the Highway Department a bureaucracy and then says that the education field is pure. I'm sure that there's lots of places in the field of education that money can be spent, to. But that's what they're going to work on. But that's what you put the Board of Regents in there for; they're all citizens. They're going to run this thing; they're going to require accounting procedures. And they're not going to go to the Legislature and say, "We're not going to go without some accounting", because they know the Legislature is not going to give them 5 cents unless they're satisfied. The Legislature still has to appropriate the money. So I think you should stay with the majority report; forget about-you've got this far with it; you've given complete financial, academic and administrative freedom and autonomy in the University System-and that's where it is, and so you might as well leave it there. There's no use starting to qualify it at this late date in the game. And you're going to have to rely upon the Board of Regents, and they have complete power-not the administrators, not the educators; the Board of Regents. If you have confidence in them-and they're appointed-and this is Friday, and remember, it's the odd-even days when we have a great confidence in appointed people; it's on the odd days that we have confidence in the elected people. (Laughter) So, you've got confidence, this is-being Friday-let's keep it there, and let's stay with the majority and get this Constitution written.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Now, the issue is on Mr. Rygg's amendment to add the words "accounting and" to the line that says that the regents are subject to the same accounting and audit provisions as are other departments of the state.

Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Because I was on my feet a moment ago, I felt I should stand and perhaps clarify where I am now in terms of a suggested way to go. I would urge the body to defeat-to defeat the amendment by Mr. Rygg. I will not be offering an amendment. I would hope that we would go, as Mr. Davis has suggested, with the original language. I hope we will defeat Mr. Rygg's amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President, I rise, of course, again-in support again of the motion of Mr. Rygg. I'd like to point out a few things from past experience. I put in 8 years on the House Appropriations Committee, where every year I had to battle to get sufficient money for the University System to operate, and I know that the Appropriation Committee of the House or the Revenue and Finance Committee of the Senate are not going to appropriate any money unless they have a full accounting of every single item that is spent in the University System. They may not even appropriate $1. It's always a battle to get money for the University System here, and in defense of the University System themselves, I think they owe this to the people.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. As a rank-and-file teacher, I'm not an administrator. I told you the other day that a strong, unified management of the University would probably make me-make life a little bit more difficult for me-as a rebel, sometimes, in the position of having to fight with administrators-but I come back to my old theme that if we are to use the people's money effectively and efficiently and get the job of education done, we really need that managerial efficiency and unification. Now, speaking to this question of uniformity of accounts within the University System, the University System units are quite different. You have an engineering school down at Bozeman; we don't have an engineering school at Missoula. We have computer centers on both campuses, but the computer centers are for quite different purposes because of the differences in the two institutions. If you force on those two units identical accounting systems, you will force on them identical management systems over their computer centers. This is one example, and there are many examples like this. And this simply is tying them to a straitjacket which is not efficient and which does not allow them to use their resources to the best purpose. Now, there is absolutely no fear of audit or accountability that I have been able to detect on the part of the University administrations or the Board of Regents. The legislative audit is in there and goes over the books. Mr. Drum says if you had absolutely uniform accounts, it would make the Legislative Auditor's job a little easier. This may be true, but it will also be at the expense of flexible management of our higher education units-flexible and efficient-and this is what we want, I think, in their management.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Garlington.

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: Mr. Chairman, I am disposed to point out something that I think has not been mentioned in the discussion so far that, it seems to me, has quite a little bearing on the whole problem. In the past, we had a weak Board of Education with no leadership. We have cured that, now., by the new system that we worked out and amended and put in here; and untried, as yet, is a new Board of Regents with definite power to run the show and with definite authority to obtain an expert to help them in the process. The people who will be on the board face the fact that the Constitution now says that they shall together work out a unified budget request to go to the Legislature, and being intelligent people and this also being a new thing which has not been done before, it seems reasonable that they would realize what is required to satisfy the legislative demands and would act accordingly. And rather than impose some kind of uniform straitjacket that applies to all boards, bureaus, commissions and bureaucracies in Montana on an admittedly unique type of thing, it seems to me that we ought to feel that the handiwork of our previous days deserves a fair trial and that we should not sort of throttle it at the last minute by imposing a standardization which none of us expert accountants can really understand the full impact of. So, I feel that we did a good job. We've got good, responsible management now, and I think we ought to give it a fair chance, to see what it can do. If we hamper it before it ever starts, I'm sure we'll all feel that--afterward that we made a mistake and that our vehicle for the future of education was deprived of a wheel at the last minute and that we made a sad mistake. So I believe we should, along with Mr. Davis, leave it the way it is and trust the people whom we have now equipped with adequate authority to handle the situation to go ahead and handle it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Driscoll.

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: Mr. Chairman, in deference to Mr. Heliker, I am a school administrator. I handle roughly $400,000 of state funds and a million two hundred thousand dollars of federal funds each year. I am perfectly willing to be accountable for those funds to the state or any other way I have to be. And in deference to the Board of Regents, and we've set up this thing that's going to work so well, perhaps we should now give them the tools to operate. The Board of Regents as it operated previously was an excellent system. I defy anybody to say they weren't. I worked with them; they were, as I stated, courageous, competent individuals. And I, for an administrator handling these state and federal funds, am perfectly willing to come under a system of state accountability.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. It seems to be two main worries expressed by the people from the University System. Number one, they're worried about how they're going to be allowed to spend their money, This is not the intent of putting this in. They can spend the money as they see fit; but we think it is important that the legislative body know how they spent it, that it be put in a form that they can understand, a form that is similar to the other reports that come in. I maintain that dollars are dollars; just because they're University dollars don't make them any different than Fish and Game dollars; they're all still tax dollars and us taxpayers are paying them. We depend upon the Legislature to see that we get full value received. I don't like to see any obstructions put in to make their job harder. Now, we've had another problem here: that the University System requires an accounting system that is completely different, I admit that there are some differences in the accounting procedures. They have admitted that the WICHE system will work, that it is working; they're satisfied with it. I checked with the Department of Administration. The WICHE system is compatible with the state accounting system. As a matter of fact, they are currently working on the program to get it implemented. They're talking about all these problems. We have the post legislative auditors; these are C.P.A.s. They aren't national C.P.A.s; they're Montana C.P.A.s; but we think Montana C.P.A.s are just as good as the national ones, maybe a little bit better. And we think that if there are any minor problems involved, the state-or the post legislative auditors will certainly be able to make the necessary recommendations to solve them. Haskins & Sells, a national firm, was quoted. I think it is only fair that Touche, Ross, Bailey and Smart, another national firm-there's only eight of them-get a few more remarks that they put in when they helped the State of Montana get some uniformity. They said, "A lack of statewide uniform accounting systems and procedures also results in considerable difficulties when attempts are made to prepare consolidated statements of financial position for financial planning and reporting purposes." At this time, they made this statement: "Finally, there is an almost complete lack, in Montana, of financial reports which of-are of any use in making decisions about resource allocation alternatives or in effectively monitoring the operations of a particular agency." The last paragraph I will quote: "A statewide uniform system of accounts and accounting coding structure should be implemented across all state agencies to insure uniformity and consistency in accounting and budgeting data. The accounting classification should be designed to satisfy all of the state's accounting, budgeting and financial reporting requirements." All we're asking is that all the wheels be the same size. We don't want some 13-inch wheels, some 14-inch wheels and some 15-inch wheels going around. You know, you have a pretty uneven vehicle then. I certainly hope that you will support Mr. Rygg's proposal. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg, you may close.

DELEGATE RYGG: I'll be very brief. I could talk about these paper clips and I could talk to Delegate Arbanas about the difference between a budget that's put into the Legislature and about the school systems, and that-but I won't. I think your minds are made up, and I close. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Rygg's amendment.

DELEGATE RYGG: Could we have a roll call vote, please, and ask for sufficient seconds?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, that's fine-Section 9-2-(d), on page 10, line 21, to add the words "accounting and", so that it reads: "(d) The funds and appropriations under the control of the Board of Regents are subject to the same accounting and audit provisions as are all other state funds." So many as shall be in favor of that amendment, vote Aye; and so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 40 delegates have voted Aye; 52 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 40 delegates having voted Aye and 52 having voted No, the motion is defeated. Is there anything else on 9, sub. 2, sub. (d)?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz, will you again state your motion on 9 (d) 2-9-2, and we'll put that matter?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I want to check if I have any amendments on that besides that one. No. Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 9, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted, and I have explained it previously.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Now, 9-3, which is back on page 9, lines 22 to the end.

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 9, sub. 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted as amended. We amended the word "state", on line 30, there. Right. Mr. Chairman, as I explained before, this whole Section 9 was rearranged and extensively edited and rewritten, all with the concurrence of the committee chairman, and I presume with his committee through him. There have been no substantive changes; all style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion?

Mr. Harlow.

DELEGATE HARLOW: Well, I'm wondering-I'm on page 5. You have there, in subsection (b), you go on through the Governor, Commissioner of Higher Education and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction--now, you've been cutting out "state" in most of the areas.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harlow, we took "state" out by amendment before we started on this whole subsection--whole section. Is there any other discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. All in favor of 9, sub. 3, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 10, on page 10, line 23. Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 10. State university funds." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, only minor style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any question about Section 10?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 10, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Now, if you'll turn behind the yellow manila folder-or manila sheet, to page 12, and, in fact, to page 13 if you want to follow the changes, Mr. Schiltz will take up the article on Public Lands. Will the clerk read the title of Section 1.

CLERK HANSON: "Be it proposed by the Education and Public Lands Committee that there be a new article on Public Lands, to read as follows: Article. Public Lands. Section 1. Public land trust-disposition." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: There are four subsections. Mr. Schiltz, Section-subsection 1.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1, Public Lands, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, there are no changes in Section 1, but I would call attention of the committee to the fact that, on line 9, the language says "Congress"-"all lands of the state that have been or may be granted by Congress"; previously we've used "the United States", but we feel there's some reason to leave "Congress" in there. It comes from the old Constitution, Article XVII, Section 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Are there any questions about 1, sub. 1, Public Lands?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1, sub. 2, Public Lands, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, we've made fairly extensive style changes, but nothing that alters substance.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All those in favor of Section 1, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1, sub. 3, Public Lands, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, again we've made some style changes, but nothing substantive.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Public Lands, 1, sub. 3; all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 4.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1, sub. 4, Public Lands, Style and Drafting Report Number 10, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, again, style changes that do not alter any substance.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Section 1, sub. 4, Public Lands; all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Now, ladies and gentlemen, you've adopted the four subsections of sub. 1 on Public Lands and the 10 sections of Education. It's the Chair's intent to set that aside until we've finished Public Health after the recess, and then we will rise and report on both of these Style and Draftings at the same time. Let me think. Mr. Murray. Very well, before we recess, the Chair would like to point out that we should do Public Health after the recess. I have a budget report. It might be possible for us to—depending on how long Public Health took, it might be possible for us to-Oh, we'll also take Mr. Johnson's resolution-is now ready, is that right, Mr. Johnson? Have you got your resolution out, or is it ready to go out?

DELEGATE JOHNSON: It's ready to go out.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, we'll put it out on the desk during the recess; and this afternoon, after Public Health-I think we can take it today instead of tomorrow and discuss it. Very well. And then, if we have any time, I think we will probably do Bill of Rights on Order of Business Number 5, rather than start General Government today. I don't know that we'll be able to do that, but I thought you might like to know that. We'll still try to get out of here reasonably early.

Mr. Eskildsen, can we have a motion to recess for 15 minutes?

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman, I move we stand in recess until 3:30 this day.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The motion to recess until 3:30; all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(The Convention recessed at 3:15 p.m.—reconvened at 3:40 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Committee will be in order. Will the delegates in the lobby please take their seats. Members of the committee, we now are prepared to proceed with the report of the Style and Drafting Committee on Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry, Number 9.

Mr. Murray, this report not having lain on the desk 48 hours, I wonder if you'd make a motion to suspend Rule 23.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I move to suspend Rule Number 23 for the purpose of considering this particular proposal at this time.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The motion is to suspend Rule 23 so that we can consider the Public Health, Industry-Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry proposal as it's been returned from Style and Drafting. Is there discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of the motion to suspend Rule 23, which requires 48 hours on the desk, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, will the clerk please turn-if you'll all please turn to page 5—if you'd care to follow the changes, page 5. And—

Mr. Murray, I wonder if you'd take the Chair for 5 minutes?

(Delegate Murray assumes the Chair)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The clerk will read Section 1.

CLERK HANSON: "Montana Constitutional Convention, 1971-1972. Report of the Committee on Style, Drafting, Transition and Submission on Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry, Number 9. Reported March 17th, 1972; Schiltz, Chairman. Be it proposed by the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee that there be a new article on nonmunicipal corporations, to read as follows: Article. Nonmunicipal Corporations. Section 1. Limitation of power." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1, Nonmunicipal Corporations, Style and Drafting Report Number 9, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, because the word "only" was in there on line 9, we changed it from "grant of power" to "limitation of power", which seems appropriate; otherwise, no changes.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Any discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: As many as are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2. Protection for citizenry." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2, Nonmunicipal Corporations, Style and Drafting Report Number 9, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, minor style change on line 12 and striking of the word "for" on the same line.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Any discussion on Section 2?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: As many as are in favor of the motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

CLERK HANSON: 'Section 3. Retrospective law prohibition." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 3, Nonmunicipal Corporations, Style and Drafting Report Number 9, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, on behalf of the Committee, we all hope-or we're all glad this is something that's only style, because none of us really knows what it means. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Is there any discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: As many as are in favor of the motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. Okay, page 6, Labor Article.

CLERK HANSON: "Be it proposed by the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee that there be a new article on labor, to read as follows: Article. Labor. Section 1. Department and commissioner." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1, Labor, Style and Drafting Report Number 9, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: You'll notice that on-wait, I've got to find this-on line 11, we've struck "under the control of' and substituted therefore "headed by a Commissioner", so that it would conform with Section 8, Article I of a totally different article, the Executive Article; and then we also thought that they didn't really want this board to be totally under the control and "headed by" sounded better. Then there's "Legislature", and "Senate" was in paren—we've struck "Legislature", and in the transition article, we will cover that transition if this should become a unicameral legislature. That's all, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Any discussion on Section 1 of the Labor Article?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: As many as are in favor of the motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2. Eight-hour day." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2, Labor, Style and Drafting Report Number 9, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, minor style changes.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Any discussion on Section 2?

Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to ask the group's indulgence for a few minutes. Could we pass this and go on and then come back to it?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: What's your problem?

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: There's proposed new language that they would like to put in here, if we can—

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: If you want to pass it, you'll have to make a motion to that effect.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: All right. I move that we pass this.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Until when?

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: For about 5 minutes.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Well, let's put it ahead or behind something else, so we've got a place to take it up; 5 minutes doesn't really mean anything.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Fine. I move that we take this up after we have finished with Section 6.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Any discussion on that motion? Mr. Blaylock has moved that we take this up after we discuss Section 6.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: As many as are in favor of his motion to pass consideration of Section 2 of the Labor Article until we have considered Section 6, which is Regulation of Public Utilities, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Well, the Chair is in doubt on that one. We'll have to use the board. The Chair is no longer in doubt. The Ayes have it, and we will pass consideration of Section 2 under the Labor Article until after we have considered Section 6, Regulation of Public Utilities. We will go now to the Article on Institutions and Assistance.

CLERK HANSON: "Be it proposed by the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee that there be a new article on institutions and assistance, to read as follows: Article. Institutions and Assistance. Section 1. Institutions." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1, Institutions and Assistance, Style and Drafting Report Number 9, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, rearranged the wording a little bit, but it didn't affect the substance in any way.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Is there any discussion on Section 1, Institutions?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: As many as are in favor of the motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2. Restoration of rights." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2, Institutions and Assistance, Style and Drafting Report Number 9, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, a few minor style changes. We exchanged Section 2 for Section 3 and Section 3 for Section 2, as we got it from the floor. I will call that to your attention: otherwise, no substantive changes.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I would like to suggest to Style and Drafting that, in line 17, after "suspended rights", that the words "shall be" be stricken and the word "are" substituted therefor, so it will read: "Suspended rights are restored upon termination of the state's responsibility." Because I think that was the sense of the Committee of the Whole at the time that this particular section was added: and I would like to inquire, Mr. Schiltz, if that would not be a change that would more fully carry out the sense of this Committee at the time that this section was adopted.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, it would be my observation-we-I'm not clear what the sense of the Committee was, but if it wasthatthey shall be restored when that happens-when that contingency happens, why, then, I think "shall be" is correct, but if they're somehow automatically restored, as you and I talked of yesterday in a different section and a different article, why, then it should be "are".

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, it was the sense of this Committee they should be automatically restored, and the language "shall be" would still lead to the interpretation that perhaps somebody has to petition a court to have that restoration made official. And I think if we substitute for that language the word "are", that will indicate they are automatically restored, and then some system could be set up whereby a certification of restoration could be given administratively and court action would not be necessary. I so move, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Your motion, then, would be to substitute the word "are" for the two words "shall be" in line 17?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: That is correct, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: And that's page 7.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I so move.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: And Mr. Schiltz does not resist that, I presume, on the basis that it is substantive rather than stylistic? Do you agree that it is style change?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, for the purposes of the record, I will; yes.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: All right. (Laughter) Is there any discussion on Mr. Dahood's motion?

Mr. Choate.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Yesterday, we did have a vote on this very change. Wade-Mr. Dahood proposed that this word be changed from "shall be" to "are", and we took a vote on it and it was passed.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: I didn't hear the end of that, did you say it did pass or did not pass?

DELEGATE CHOATE: Did pass.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: It did pass? Well, I'm sorry that the Chair doesn't recall that, but I will put the question to you at this time. Any further discussion?
Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, I don't like to disagree with my Chairman, Chairman Schiltz, but I think Wade is right and that's-was our intent, anyway, that they be automatically-rather than go to the Governor, as now, to get a pardon.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Okay, the question now arises on Mr. Dahood's motion to amend line 17 by deleting the words "shall be" and substituting the word "are". As many as are in favor of his amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2, Institutions and Assistance, Style and Drafting Report Number 9, it recommend the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Any discussion?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: As many as are in favor of the motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it. So ordered.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 3. Assistance." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Assistance -Institutions and Assistance, Style and Drafting Report Number 9, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, only style changes— "Legislative Assembly", and we had to put a "such" in there. I apologize for it, but we had to.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Any discussion on Section 3?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: As many as are in favor of the motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. Okay, we'll take up Section 6, Regulation of Public Utilities-Consumer Council.

CLERK HANSON: "Be it proposed by the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry Committee that there be a new article on regulation of public utilities, to read as follows: Article. Regulation of Public Utilities. Section 6. Consumer counsel." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6, Regulation of Public Utilities, Style and Drafting Report Number 9, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, we only deleted the words "by law", under Section 9, because that's about the only way the Legislature can provide.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE McNEIL: Mr. Chairman, this is a technical thing that I mentioned to Mr. Burkhardt yesterday in Mr. Schiltz' absence, but I think the caption should be changed. The article reads, now, "Regulation of Public Utilities", and the only section contained underneath it is "Consumer counsel", which does not relate to regulation, so I believe the heading should be just "Public Utilities" or something other than "Regulation", because the section doesn't speak to it. I move to delete the words "Regulation of' from the caption to the article.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: No objection.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: All right, the question now arises on the motion of—

Excuse me, Mr. Loendorf, did you—

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Am I correct in assuming it's proper to wait until the section is adopted before making it?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: I think so. I'm going to call cm you; I realize that you have an amendment to it or a motion to make. The question now arises on Mr. McNeil's amendment to delete the words "Regulation of' in the title, so that the title of the article then reads "Public Utilities". As many as are in favor of the amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I would like to make another amendment. I would call on some of my committee to correct me if I'm wrong, but I don't think we need a Section 6 or a Section 1, either one, under-this is-there are no other sections, and this would be a lone provision under this article, so unless I hear objection from my committee members, I will move to delete the words "Section 6" on line 8.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Is there any discussion?

Do you agree, Mr. Garlington?

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: Yes.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Okay, the question now arises on the motion of Mr. Schiltz to delete the language "Section 6", as it appears before the words "Consumer counsel" on line 8 of page 8. As many as are in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Those opposed, say No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Public Utilities, Style and Drafting Report Number 9, that it recommend the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Mr. Loendorf, I presume that you wish to make a motion which would be to suspend the rules, and then offer some language instead of this one; is this right?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: That's correct, Mr. Chairman. At this time, I would move to suspend the rules for the purpose of reconsidering the former Section 6-now, I presume, just the section on Public Utilities--or the article on Public Utilities. Mr. Chairman, may I speak to the motion?

CHAIRMAN MURRAY: Yes, Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Fellow delegates, I apologize for making this motion at this late date. However, as you know, Section 6 was not part of the original article; it was an amendment that came in quickly, and we didn't have a lot of time to review it before voting on it. Secondly, I would like to say that some of you have expressed the fear to me that suspending the rules now and reconsidering this matter would result in its deletion. That is certainly not my purpose in making the motion, and if my amendment does fail, I guarantee you I will support the present article. Now, what I have proposed-I've had an amendment placed on your desks that if the rules are suspended, I would make a motion to reconsider this section and have that language substituted therefor. And, as you note, it amends the present section in two respects; one, it broadens the scopes of the duties of the office of Consumer Counsel. He would represent consumers before all public agencies, rather than just the Public Service Commission or its successor, the one agency. Secondly, it would leave to the Legislature complete discretion in providing for the funding. The reason for the first amendment was this: I'm not completely aware of how often rate hearings occur before the Public Service Commission, but I'm wondering if they do not come up more frequently than once or twice every year or two. And I'm wondering: if we're creating a new office in the Constitution, if we should not give this person something to do. I certainly don't want to pay somebody to sit around waiting for another rate hearing to come up, and he may be waiting 6 months to a year. Therefore, I propose that we let him represent consumers before all agencies of the state. Secondly, I've deleted the words--or the provision providing for the special tax. Initially, I thought possibly there was a constitutional question here. However, after talking it over with other lawyers, I'm probably incorrect on that, but since I've now broadened the office to deal with all state agencies, I assume the Legislature can find a tax from an appropriate source or even the one we have proposed here. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

(Chairman Graybill assumes the Chair)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there other discussion on the motion to suspend the rules?

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: I-thank you, Mr. Chairman. I resist the motion to suspend the rules for this particular purpose. I point out that the amendment to be proposed is different in scope entirely. I do not think, on review of it and discussion of it with Mr. Loendorf, that it would accomplish the purpose for which it is designed. I think that it is introducing again to this assembly a people's advocate, or ombudsman, and this is not the purpose of the original section. I might point out to you that I think the language would delete any rate regulation possibility before the Public Service Commission, and as such I resist his motion to suspend the rules.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. I, too, resist the motion to suspend the rules, but-and looking at this, I don't think it looks like an ombudsman to me. You know, if I thought it was really going to be one, I would support it. (Laughter) But it looks to me more like a way of getting around what proves to be kind of an objectionable way of funding to some groups, and I resist it. I think that the article-the section as stated-I guess it's an article right now- is very adequate to do what we intended it to do. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Loendorfs motion to suspend the rules so that we can consider the public utilities article. We'll take a non-roll call vote. All in favor of suspending the rules, vote Aye; all against, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate want to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well; 66 having voted against it and 27 for it, the motion is defeated-66 to 27-and so we won't suspend the rules.

Mr. Schiltz, have we adopted the article yet?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: No, sir, we have made the motion and-that it be adopted as amended, but no vote has been taken.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. And we have amended the title and the style under there.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: We took out Section 6—the words "Section 6" and the word "regulation of '.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Section-of the article on Public Utilities? Mr. Wilson, on Style and Drafting?

DELEGATE WILSON: Will Mr. Schiltz yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I yield.

DELEGATE WILSON: Would it be your interpretation of this suggestion that it would require this person to regulate all utilities, such as water systems, public municipalities, and so forth?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Wilson, it would be my interpretation of this that there are two sentences there, and under Style and Drafting, that's as far as I'm authorized to go.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President, would you yield to the question of whether this would cover all municipalities, water systems and so forth, as well as public utilities?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think, Mr. Wilson, the point is that-Mr. Schiltz is making the point that we're on Style and Drafting and not on substance. Now, I haven't read it carefully, as a lawyer, and I don't want to make a comment on it from the Chair if I had, and I really haven't. I really don't know. Are there other comments on it?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of adopting the article on public utilities, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's adopted. Very well, I understand we passed Labor, Section 2.

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, there was one article that we-or one section or article that we passed.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, Section 2 of the Labor Article. Do you want to move it again, Mr. Schiltz? And I have someone else who wants to speak on it.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: All right. Mr. Chairman, I move-let me see if we had any amendments-Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, having had under consideration Section 2, Labor, Style and Drafting Report Number 9, it recommend the same be adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Cate-or Mr. Blaylock, did you want the floor?

Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President, it was at my request that we pass this, because I had understood that some of the laboring people were very concerned about some of the' language in this, but it has been conferred and they have decided to leave the language as is, so I thank the assembly very much for their indulgence.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well; Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr.-I guess I made the motion, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You made the motion; are there any explanations you want to make?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: No, we only had style changes of no-nothing that changed any substance.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Drum.

DELEGATE DRUM: Mr. Chairman, would it be in order for me to suggest that we amend out "and stockraising"? It would seem to me that "agriculture" in general would cover this area, and who was-ranchers are all stockraisers, and probably people who feed cattle are stockraisers-they're raising the weight of the cattle—one thing or another. But it would seem to me that "agriculture" would be better wording to use in this section. And I would like to propose that we just say "employment except agriculture" on line 14, period.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You're suggesting that the words "and stockraising" are included in the concept of agriculture?

DELEGATE DRUM: Stockraising-they seem to be-they are in the-certainly in the concept of agriculture, yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz, do you care to speak to that?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I don't-1 think the point is reasonably well taken, but I don't know what the authors-whether agriculture includes stockraising, or whether there's a definition somewhere in the world that says that stockraising might include feeding, such as you do, and is not agriculture; I have no idea. I'd think safety would indicate leaving it in.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: I think they're two separate functions, and I would resist the motion to delete it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We don't have a motion. Now, Mr. Drum, one of the stockraisers doesn't want to.

Mr. Etchart.

DELEGATE ETCHART: That language is in the present Constitution, and I agree with Mr. Wilson that we should leave it in.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Drum, are you going to acquiesce?

DELEGATE DRUM: No, Mr. Chairman, I'm not going to acquiesce, because stockraising is in agriculture; and when you use the word "stockraising", you are restricting the word "agriculture" considerably, because there are a lot of other activities that-it seems to me that "and stockraising" restricts the application of the word "agriculture" here. I move that we amend it by deleting "and stockraising". Stock is certainly in agriculture.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The Chair is going to rule that, with the explanations made here on the floor that agriculture is intended to cover stockraising, that this then becomes a matter of style and not a matter of substance, and we can decide whether or not to do it-which way to do it. Therefore, I'll allow Mr. Drum's amendment-motion that we delete the words "and stockraising", and it's open for debate on the style issue of whether or not you want to use "agriculture" or "agriculture and stockraising". Is there any further discussion?

Mr. Nutting.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Mr. Chairman, I'd just like to comment: in our state government we separate them, so it would assume-the assumption would be, on a state level, that they are separate departments, so therefore I would resist the movement.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman, having been raised down in that Jordan country as a cowpuncher, I would resist being called a farmer. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Where does it say "farmer", Mr. Harbaugh? (Laughter)

Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman, just to add to what Harbaugh was saying, in agriculture you could conceivably hold to an 8-hour day without hurting anybody, particularly. I think, if you drew the line around them so that you'd be driving a tractor and cultivating wheat, et cetera, whereas if you're out punching cows and you leave a bunch eight-nine miles from home just because it's time to quit and you haven't got them where you're going yet, that wouldn't be so very good, you know. I think you have-No, seriously, now, you've got problems living with a cow that —you can turn a tractor off, you know, but you can't turn a cow off. That's all there is to it. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. I think that this is purely a matter of what the words mean, and I certainly interpret agriculture to include stockraising, beekeeping, and a lot of other terminologies. And I think that stockraising is a narrower form of agriculture, and when you put it in the Constitution, by rights you should then list all of the other similar categories of agriculture in the Powder River rule. And so I think that Mr. Drum's motion is very well put, and I think that agriculture certainly includes stockraising, as well as many other different practices.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aronow.

DELEGATE ARONOW: Mr. Chairman, I have a dictionary here, and the definition of the word "agriculture" in Webster's Dictionary is: "the art or science of cultivating the ground; the production of crops and livestock on a farm; farming." Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President. I—the only authority I have is from the play Oklahoma! where they sing, "Oh, the farmer and the cowboy should be friends." (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair is going to observe that we have a pretty good one going here. (Laughter)

Mr. Choate.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: How does it look from up above?

DELEGATE CHOATE: They probably agree. I think that probably if we could consider Mr. Foster's bees-or herd of bees, it probably ought to come under ranching; and I'd suggest that we change these words, both of them, to "farming and ranching".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Pemberton.

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: I was waiting to hear from Mr. Burkhardt, Mr. President. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt, do you yield.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I simply can't resist. If we ever-if we do get beyond this—I've talked to four people here; none of us were here when this was debated. Why is it in the Constitution? I realize that isn't the discussion of the amendment, but if we get past this amendment, I'm going to ask to suspend the rules and ask why it's in the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Sullivan.

DELEGATE SULLIVAN: Mr. President, may I say to the assembly that you meant that Mr. Choate is a pilot, and you weren't referring to the gallery?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's right. (Laughter)

Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: In Choate's -it doesn't make any difference with Choate, he's always flying anyway.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, now, the issue is on whether to take the word "and stockraising" out of line 15 and 16. So many as shall be in favor of taking those words out, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No. (Laughter)

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: -the cowboys are winning!

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Noes have it. All right, so many as are in favor, vote Aye on the voting machines; and so many as are opposed, vote No-for a nonrecorded vote. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Noes have it, 57 to 33; 57 voting No, 33 voting Aye, so we leave the words in the Constitution.

Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, at the risk of our being here more than an 8-hour day, I just would-1 ask whether this body might move to suspend the rules and reconsider this issue, and I would so move.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt moves that we suspend the rules on Section 2 of the Labor Article. Is that correct?

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: If I ask to reconsider this, I'd like to explain what I have in mind. This is one of those things that, in a very few years, is going--we're going to be asking ourselves, "Why did we put that in there?"-and I'd like to hear someone say why it's there originally. I was off the floor when this was debated, and no one to my left or right within reach here, remembers talking about it. I serve on a board of a hospital where the employees have voted and are working 10-hour days 4 days a week and enjoying a three-day weekend, and they're happy with it; and am I now going to tell them that that's unconstitutional? I think it may be something we want to look at in some depth.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of the motion to suspend the rules?

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Well, I'm probably talking on the wrong subject. Mr. Chairman, I'd like to point out to Mr. Burkhardt that agriculture and stockraising and labor are the threemost important industries in Montana, and they should certainly be in the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Now, we're on the issue of suspending the rules.

The next one up, I think, was Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman, I believe this is very restrictive and we should reconsider it, so I would back Mr. Burkhardt.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The next one up was Mr. Woodmansey.

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: Those of you who were here yesterday would have found, in the debate, that we put in the word "maximum" here, and I would resist deleting this. I think it's important. Things may change; if you want to work a 10-hour day and still get in the workweek somehow, this will allow it. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, I resist the motion to suspend the rules. For Mr. Burkhardt's benefit, we debated this quite extensively; and just because he wasn't here is no reason to go all over it again.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Cate.

DELEGATE CATE: For Mr. Burkhardt's benefit, in answer to his question of why it's in there, I once heard a story of why it's there. I don't know whether this is true or not. It's my understanding that, in the days of mining, that the miners would come to the shaft and they would have to sit around there for half an hour or so before they'd take them down into the bottom to work in the shafts. And then, after 8 hours was completed down there, they would have to lay down there in the mining shafts underground a half hour or so waiting for the cable car to come down to pick them up. And so, in effect, they were putting in not 8-hour days, but 9- or 10-hour days, because they had to sit around and wait for the mining car to come up and down. And it's my understanding that that was the original purpose for having this put into our Constitution, and I think it still serves a purpose in that it prevents that type of thing from happening in the mining industry and elsewhere.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Drum.

DELEGATE DRUM: Mr. Chairman. I, too, feel that it would be wise for us to perhaps reconsider this thing. I had a communication that I'd like to pass on-and I don't have any connection in any way with this group, but it apparently has become a point of concern to the Contractor's Council. They feel that the limitation of an B-hour day may make it difficult for them to know-if the people don't care to work over 8 hours-in their bidding of jobs and that type of thing, there may be some restrictions that will raise some havoc with the construction industry in general, and I think they would like to pass that on to this body. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Mr. Chairman, I rise to resist the opening of this section. I think it was clearly debated yesterday on how much restriction this would be, and there is absolutely none, and it leaves it open on the end for the Legislature to draw up any other restrictions that may-and conditions that may affect labor.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President. We discussed this a lot yesterday, all right; but as far as reconsidering it, I've had a lot of people concerned about this, and I would like to see it reconsidered.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, I-in the motion to reconsider, I just wonder how far we can discuss it, but we did discuss this at great length yesterday, and the old Constitution let you-couldn't work over 8 hours. If you ever worked over 8 hours and are not paid overtime, you're in violation. Now, the worst trouble has been, the person working, as well as the other, were both in violation. This is a liberalized thing; this lets us do it in the-later; and I'd resist the motion to reconsider at this time.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE McNEIL: Mr. Chairman, for Mr. Burkhardt's information, the roll call vote on this was 74 to 13, so unless an awful lot of people have changed their mind, I think we ought to oppose the reconsideration.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, I—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt, I-All right, go ahead.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Yeah. Just that if someone else wants to make this motion, they may. I will withdraw my move to reconsider. I think, as I've heard it explained, it has some possibility for flexibility, and it does seem statutory to me, but I withdraw my move to delete. Someone else may want to make it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt has withdrawn his motion to reconsider.

Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: I'm not going to renew it. I'm just going to point out to Bill how short our article on labor will be if we take this out. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Members of the body, you have before you for your consideration, on the recommendation of Mr. Schiltz that when this body has finished considering sub-Section 2 of the Labor Article, as Style and Drafting has sent it to us, that we adopt it. All in favor of adopting Section 2, Style and Drafting's Labor Article, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Very well, members of the body, you have adopted both the Public Health, Welfare and Labor and Industry Style and Drafting proposal, plus the Education and Public Lands-Oh, wait a minute. Mr. Harper, I guess I almost went by you. Go ahead. Mr. Harper wants to add a new section to Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry.

Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes. Mr. Chairman, I'd like to, I presume, move to suspend the rules in order to add a new section. I'm not sure what you'd call it; you might call it subsection 2 under the article of regulation of public utilities on--I'm looking at page 8 of Style and Drafting report-assuming that the first one, entitled "Consumer counsel", would become subsection 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's right, Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: This new section, to be presented to the voters in the June 6th election as a separate issue on the ballot, and it would read, as the clerk has it—or I can read it—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read Mr. Harper's proposal.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2. Any county or-"

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Wait a minute-wait a minute. Read his proposal: I move to amend—

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to add a section to the Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry report, to be presented to the voters in June 6th election as a separate issue on the ballot: Section 2. Any county or municipal subdivision of the state has the power and authority to establish public cooperatives for the maintenance and operation of facilities, subject to regulations provided by law. Signed: Harper."

DELEGATE HARPER: Thank you. I'll just speak to the motion to suspend. Sixteen of you who didn't get a chance to express yourselves on this issue-and I know you feel badly about that—in a vote that turned out 43 to 41, will find this—these exact words-in so-called "Section 7" on page 29 of the Committee Report, the original Public Health, Welfare-et cetera-Committee report. I think its intent is obvious, except for the 16 people who didn't hear it. The debate was long and arduous, and I simply offer it again as a possible way of getting something that a good many people are interested in onto the ballot as-to give the people a chance to express themselves on it. It doesn't make any real difference to the utility companies, and there probably will be no contest on it. If it does, they can make-take a good deal of interest in explaining both sides of this to the people. I understand that this is not now allowable unless the Legislature actually passes a law making it allowable, and it does seem to me to be consistent with our basic approach toward freeing people and communities for action.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Harper has made a motion to suspend the rules to consider adding a Section 2 to the public utilities article, the substance of which would be to place on the ballot this subsection-subdivision as an alternative for the people to vote on-whether or not county and municipal subdivisions can establish public cooperatives for the maintenance and operation of utilities. Is there discussion of the motion to suspend the rules?

Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE HANSON: Mr. President, is the word "public cooperatives" or "public corporations"? I checked mine, and I thought I heard it different.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It says "public cooperatives" on the motion that Mr. Harper makes. I don't know if that's exactly what it was in the previous—

DELEGATE HARPER: My writing is hard to read, and I can-1 apologize to the secretary as well as to you. That should be "corporations".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, it's "public corporations for the maintenance and operation of public utilities, subject to regulations provided by law." Mr. Harper says that it's Section 7 that we considered the other day, of Public Health's article, and the purpose of it would be to place this matter as an alternative on the ballot.

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President. I resist the motion to place this on the ballot. I voted in favor of this the other day—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, now, Mr.—

DELEGATE HABEDANK: -just let me finish.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, but that's not the motion that is before you.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: The motion to reconsider.

CHAIRMANGRAYBILL: Youmayresist the motion to reconsider, but not the motion to place it on the ballot, because we don't have such a motion. Okay.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President, I resist the motion to reconsider.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I feel that the motion that will be made to reconsider is to place it on the ballot; and I feel that we discussed this thing, we voted on it, it was lost. And there are other-there is another motion-there is another proposal coming up for being placed on the ballot, and I think we will have too many matters on the ballot; and for this reason, I oppose its reconsideration for that purpose.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McKeon.

DELEGATE McKEON: Mr. Chairman, I support the motion to suspend the rules. I think that it's important, with a greater number of people here today, that we again air this argument with more people in the house. As Mr. Harper noted, it was a 41 to 43 vote, and I have noticed many people have decided-or are considering changing their minds on this issue, so I think that it would be important that we would give the committee the opportunity to discuss it again.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: On the issue of suspending the rules, Mrs. Van Buskirk.

DELEGATE VAN BUSKIRK: I am also in favor of suspending the rules that we may vote on this again.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Mr. President. Frankly, I'm somewhat surprised at this attempt here, because we've already allowed cities and towns to establish their municipal electric systems when we considered Local Government yesterday, and I see no point in having it in here twice.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman, I don't think that's entirely accurate. There's really nothing in the Local Government proposal that this body adopted that changes the present situation in any way. I support the motion to suspend the rules.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, now, the Chair is going to rule that that issue has been spoken on on both sides, and there seems to be a disagreement, and we can certainly go into that if we open the rules, so I'm not interested in hearing any more about whether it's in or out of Local Government. Is there any more discussion about suspending the rules?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the motion is to suspend the rules in order to authorize the addition of a section concerning-to the public health article on public utilities to allow county and municipal subdivisions to establish public corporations to maintain and operate utilities. So many as shall be in favor of suspending the rules, vote Aye; and so many as shall be opposed, vote No.

Mr. Toole, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman, to explain my vote. I decline to vote under Rule 20.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rebal, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE REBAL: Mr. Chairman. I paired with Mr. Holland, he being for; me being against-so I'm not voting.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a minute. We're in Committee of the Whole; you're explaining your nonvote.

DELEGATE REBAL: I'm explaining my nonvote, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: A pair is not allowed in the Committee of the Whole. It's allowed in the body as a whole. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the Chair will close the ballot; 50 have voted Aye, 42 have voted No. It takes a majority of 51 or a two-thirds majority to carry a motion to suspend the rules; therefore, the motion fails.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: You must count the two votes that was paired, then. Oh, yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'm sorry, the rule is that you must have an absolute majority of the body, which is 51, or two-thirds, whichever is less; so we have to have 51 votes.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The other rule is, Mr. Eskildsen, there are no pairs in the Committee of the Whole. I don't care what he says, there aren't any.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I understand that, very well; you can still vote, then, Mr.—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, he can't vote now.

Mr. Cate, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE CATE: Mr. Chairman, we have a delegate that did not vote that I believe wished to vote, Mrs. Speer.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, I'm sorry; it's too late now. Now, if somebody wants to remake the motion, I'll put the vote again, but when I close the ballot-and this one was open a long time-1 can't help it. The motion has failed. Does somebody want to remake the motion?

DELEGATE McKEON: Mr. Chairman, I so move.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McKeon will remake the motion. The motion is to suspend the rules for the purpose of considering a new Section 2. I see no reason for further debate. The Chair will open the ballot. All those in favor of suspending the rules, vote Aye; those opposed, vote No. All right, now, has every delegate voted that wants to?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, it's 51 to 43; therefore the motion prevails.

Very well, Mr. Harper-Mr. Harper, the Chair is somewhat concerned. We voted on this issue. Are you prepared to make a motion to reconsider the section that we voted on? And voted down?

DELEGATE HARPER: Does that need to be done?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I would think it does, because otherwise I'd be adding an identical section to one that was already added, so—

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman, I am prepared to move that we reconsider—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, now are you prepared in the sense that you voted on the prevailing side?

DELEGATE HARPER: You are right; I am not prepared-(Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, is there any—

DELEGATE HARPER: -but I'm looking right at a friend for whom, the other day, I moved to reconsider to kill my own measure, and he got it done, and I'm sure Mr. Ask is going to ask for the privilege of moving to reconsider. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ask, are you prepared to reconsider?

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman, having voted on the prevailing side on this section, I move that the-we reconsider this particular section, and I yield to Mr. Harper for the grounds and reasons.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper, is the grounds and reasons the same as the reasons you suspended the rules?

DELEGATE HARPER: Just exactly.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: In other words, it's to propose a new Section 2 to the Public Utilities Article of the Public Health proposal, that would say "Any county and municipal subdivision in the state has the power and authority to establish public corporations for the maintenance and operations of utilities, subject to regulations provided by law." That's the motion to reconsider. Do you need to discuss it, Mr. Harper?

DELEGATE HARPER: No. I'd like to point out again, in case they didn't catch it, that on page 29 of their committee report, Section 7, they find these words. That's why I didn't ask a secretary to type up copies for everyone.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's of the original committee report? The—

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes; right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The reddish-colored committee report. Very well. The motion—

Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Was the motion stated as putting this on the ballot as a separate issue?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you intend, Mr. Harper, to put this on the ballot as a separate issue? Is that right?

DELEGATE HARPER: Is it possible to amend this now, or will it be getting under the wire with the wrong—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, the—

DELEGATE HARPER: -with duplicity if I just went for a straight vote on putting it in?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, that would be duplicitous, Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Well, I wouldn't want to be engaged in that kind of process, Mr. Chairman. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The problem being that you garnered your 51 votes on a motion to suspend for the purpose of putting it on the side, on the ballot. All right, now, the issue is to move to reconsider; all those in favor of reconsidering, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's reconsidered. All right, now, Mr. Harper, would you like to make your motion?

DELEGATE HARPER: The motion now to add a section to the Public Health-Labor-Industry report to be presented to the voters in the June 6th election as a separate issue on the ballot.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper, do you have that motion?

DELEGATE HARPER: As it was read to you. I don't think I'll go into any kind of a long discussion about this again; I'm kind of hoping nobody else will, unless some of those who weren't here might need some information. I look upon this as something that's permissive. I find-1 really found it difficult, the other day-wheneverit was; it seems like weeks ago that we discussed this; maybe it was yesterday-but there was so much opposition to it, since it is not mandating anything but simply freeing up counties or municipal subdivisions of the state to do this if and whenever in the future they wanted to do it. As I understand, now this is not permissible unless the Legislature would enact new legislation; and I think it's perfectly in keeping with a lot of the things that we've written into the Constitution. And I would rather sit down and maybe have the opposition show cause, to use a court phrase, as to why this should not be allowed to the people.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: I would like to make a parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman. I wonder: is there some way to test the body whether it would want to split this issue? It seems to me there are really two issues. As I sit here with my next-door neighbor and he's opposed to the idea because of adding one idea to the ballot and I'm for it because I'm for the concept and not too anxious about putting something on the ballot-can we—is there some way to split the issue?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I don't think there is, at the moment, Mr. Arbanas, because we voted yesterday--or the other day, on the issue; and it's true that a number of people weren't here and it was narrowly defeated. Now, in considering it at this time, it took a motion to suspend the rules. The rules were suspended upon the indication from the mover, Mr. Harper, that his purpose was to place this matter as an issue on the ballot-with public-in other words, it would only be adopted if the public approved it in some form on the ballot. Style and Drafting would have to put it on the ballot in a manner that would allow the public to vote on it. Then, when that passed-and, as you know, narrowly--we had a motion to reconsider, which I construed from Mr. Ask to be within the original motion to suspend the rules for the specific purpose only of the ballot type of issue; so—and then the motion has been made for that effect, so I don't think I could allow an amendment to strip the ballot issue away from it without going back and letting you move to open the-to suspend the rules for a different purpose.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: I understand.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, when this has been-has failed, if you want to try again and test that 50/51 margin, you may.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: I understand, thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. This may be a very fine issue, but I am very much in favor of this proposal, but I would be very definitely against putting it on the ballot as a separate issue. And I'd like to inquire, either from the Chair or from Mr. Harper, what it is a separate issue to. I don't see anything on the ballot presently that stands over against this article.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The point would be, Mr. Harbaugh, to say, on the ballot: Section 2 concerns the right of county and municipal subdivisions to have power to establish and maintain and operate utilities. Are youforplacing this in the Constitution? Yes-No? If they voted Yes, it becomes part of the Constitution; if they vote No, it doesn't. We have done the exact same thing on the-we've sent it to Style and Drafting—on the abolition of the death penalty. The abolition of the death penalty is not in the Constitution. We've said, "Do you want it in there?" If it went in there, it would only have the effect of changing the statutory law in Montana. So this would be put in the same manner; I don't know exactly how Style and Drafting would do it, but it is possible to put an issue to the public that we don't decide here.

Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Mr. President. I wish to reiterate once again-apparently Mr. Arness and I have a small disagreement here-but I submit that yesterday when we considered the Local Government Article, Sections 5 and 6, on home rule, we specifically allowed municipal -or cities and towns to establish their own municipal electric system if they want to. We say, in Section 5 of the Local Government Article-or Section 6, one of the two-that once they've adopted the home rule by such measures as the Legislature may prescribe, they can do anything that's not prohibited by law. Now there's nothing on the statutes that prohibits the establishment of municipal electric systems. There's not one word about them at all, one way or the other; and that being the case, as the law stands at the present time, they could go ahead and establish their municipal electric system if they saw fit. And I don't see any reason why we should--we have to have some separate issue on the ballot to cover the point twice. That's my point.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman. It's correct that we do have a basic disagreement here, and the disagreement is not only with me but with the entire committee and with the intents of the committee report. Dillon's rule is the rule in Montana at the present time. If the proposed Constitution is adopted, Dillon's rule will be the rule in Montana under the new Constitution; that is not changed. There is no change so far as the power of local governments under our proposal. The local governments, at the present time, cannot acquire public utilities and operate them because of the operation of Dillon's Rule. There are some of them, like Libby, that would like to acquire power companies and have not been able to acquire them because of the fact of the status of local government in this state. The status is not changed by the Local Government Article; Sections 5 and 6 create the possibility that the Legislature may set up a class of cities and that a class of cities, once designated, may then apply for a more powerful status than they enjoy. There are two steps there that require action by the Legislature. The rule is the same now as it has always been, and there is nothing in the Local Government Article that you adopted that would permit cities and towns to acquire public utilities. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Payne.

DELEGATE PAYNE: Mr. Chairman. I beg to disagree with my colleague, because in Section 6 it clearly says, in the Local Government Article, that local government units adopting self-government charters may exercise all powers now prohibited by this Constitution by law or by charter. So, if you want to carry it this far, I certainly think it could be done.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: I've had the reasons explained to me before, but I would like to ask again how it was that themunicipality of Saco got their public utility. I should know, but I haven't got the time to go down and look it up. Would one of the-Tom, Mr. Joyce, are you familiar with that statute or how they did it?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: I don't even know where Saco is. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg-

Mr. Scanlin, are you finished?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Evidently Joe knows, could he explain it?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: He knows where Saco is.

Mr. Eskildsen. (Laughter)

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Scanlin, Saco is in the eastern part of the State of Montana. It's a fine little city that sits on top of a gas dome. And long before-many years ago, long before the Montana Power Company or the Dakota Utilities and those were barely established in the State of Montana, the city of Saco drilled a well and got gas and they piped it around the city. And later on, other towns tried the same thing, but they wasn't lucky enough to hit the gas. And in the meantime, the Montana Power Company, the Montana-Dakota Utilities, and so forth were established, and they established themselves around the state; and since then, why, you can follow the courses that have taken place. But this happened before those companies moved in.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman. Is there any reason that any other community couldn't do the same thing if they wanted to with any utility?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Are you asking-who are you asking, Mr. Scanlin?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Anybody that can give me an answer to the question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: You can't do it now, because they have a franchise within your cities and they have the pipelines and they own the utilities and the power poles and that kind of stuff. If you were going to take over, you would have to buy them out; you couldn't just move in with another franchise.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President. I think I have a-to ask a question of some of the attorneys here. As I understand the situation, it's now permissible to start up a gas system--natural gas system in a municipality, and the electrical side of it is the only one that's excluded. I don't know whether I'm right or not, but that was my understanding of it, and that's the reason that this particular emphasis is on electricity.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. President. I might state, for the benefit of those that weren't here yesterday--and I don't want to bore this new--other group that has listened to this long debate-but they can, if they wish to sell general obligation bonds, they could go out and do it. The only prohibition is that they can't sell revenue bonds, and this came out in 1953—that's when that law was taken off the books. Now to go back to Saco, they used this originally to get started. Up until 1953, they could use the revenue bonds-this came off the books. Now the big problem on that is that now you have to go to general obligation bonds instead of revenue bonds. This is the prohibition, Mr. Scanlin, as of now on that issue.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. If the legal research which was done by our committee analyst is correct, there is no statutory authority for a municipality to go into the electric business. They can go into the gas business, because there is specific authority for that.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Mr. President, the-that's true as things stand now, but we're talking about a new Constitution. We're talking about the future here; we're not talking about 1927 when the statutes which allowed cities and towns to put in their own gas service was put in effect; we're talking about the future. And under Section 6 of the Local Government Article, as Mrs. Payne pointed out, if any city or town adopts the home rule procedure here, it says right in there they can do anything-they may exercise all powers not prohibited by this Constitution, by law or by charter. Now there's not a word in the statute that prohibits a city or town from setting up their own municipal system. So why can't they set it up in the future? That's my point.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Mr. President. I really promised myself today I wouldn't get up on this issue, but I have to again. I forgot to tell you yesterday that I might have a special interest in this thing, which I'd forgotten about; that our law firm represents the Golden Valley Electric Co-op. And I have no idea how they feel on this issue, so I think I'm free to talk about it. But I did want to get up, but I have to object to it again on the grounds you're legislating, and all you have to do is read this thing-"establish public corporations for the maintenance and operation of utilities". Now, it doesn't say anything about constructing them; it doesn't say anything about purchasing or acquiring utilities. If you adopt something like this, and I agree with the concept—I've been that way for 20 years-of public utilities and Nebraska system. But I just say, you're like Don Quixote and the windmill by adopting this thing; and you're actually going to mislead the voters by putting it on the ballot, because you're going to lead the voters to believe that, by adopting this section, that they're going to be able to acquire utilities; and even by it's wording it doesn't give them the power to acquire and it even-even if it did put the wording in there-you could acquire-that it's still up to the Legislature to tell the public-these counties, municipals only, it doesn't even go as far today as to say "public utility districts". And you could have a very uneconomical unit by counties and cities only, as Charley brought out the other day. So I think you're just like Don Quixote and the windmill: if you adopt it, you're going to mislead the voters; and if it's passed by the voters, it isn't going to do anything anyway.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President. I certainly support what Mr. McDonough said on that and where it says "subject to regulation prescribed by law". For the benefit of those who weren't here yesterday, I come from Dillon and I have nothing to do with the Dillon Rule.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper, do you want to close?

DELEGATE HARPER: I'd be glad to close.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr.-Wait a minute. Mr. Mahoney, aren't you willing that he close?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I would like to just say one thing, that I was answering a question the other time and I don't want to belabor a point. But if this Constitutional Convention is coming out here now to issue or send out petitions to the voters, and this is what we're doing-I mean, here we're sending out—it is not alternative or anything like that. This is what we're going to do is-getting initiative to the people-of the Constitutional Convention sending it to them, this is what we're doing under this initiative.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Anyone else care to debate it before Mr. Harper closes?

Mr. McKeon.

DELEGATE McKEON: Mr. Chairman. I want to say, without belaboring the point, that I think that the issue here is whether or not we want to give the voter the choice. I can't imagine anyone-1 can't imagine the Montana Power Company-wish to deprive the voter of his choice as to whether or not he wishes to be under a public utility or such as this or under Montana Power service. So I think that if we decided thisissuejust on the merit of giving the voter a chance, a choice to decide what he wants, I think that we would have realized exactly what we're doing. So for that reason-that we are giving the voter a choice, I will urge that we do support this. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper—Oh, all right, now, I don't want to cut off debate. But art you-do others want to debate it now?

Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman. I would just like to remind Delegate McKeon that this delegation had a wonderful chance to give the people of Montana a chance, just the other day when the right-to-work law was up. And that was supposed to be put on the ballot-if we wanted to give the people a choice, so-and we couldn't do that. I don't see why we should give them a choice on something like this. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman. I'd like to know whether Mr. Harper's language is amendable.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: If we adopt the thing, it's amendable, yes.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: But not until we adopt it?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, I don't care; if you want to amend it, I suppose I could let you. The point is that if we amend it and then spend an hour debating the amendment and then it loses, its useless. I would rather decide whether we're going to put something on the ballot; and if so, you may amend it.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Very good. Mr. Chairman, what I'm going to do is explain what my amendment would be if his motion passes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: I am going to add the words "or public utility districts" and I'm going to add in the first part, so it'll read: "Any county, municipal subdivision or public utility districts of the state have"-H-A-V-E-"the power and authority to establish public corporations for the", and I'm going to add the word "acquisition" before the word "maintenance and operation of utilities". Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there other debate?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper, do you want to close?

DELEGATE HARPER: No, Mr. Chairman, as I feel very much like Don Quixote on this; but as I remember the story of Don Quixote, the windmills didn't come and attack him. And we have tilted with some very lively windmills; in fact, this is the thing that has piqued my interest in this whole thing. We are constantly assured that we can already do all of this; that the amendment doesn't mean anything; that it won't change anything. And yet there's a terrific reaction toward putting this in. Now, is it Legislative? Well, I ask you if it's any more legislative than saying, "We'll have an B-hour day, unless we change our mind to have it either longer or shorter"-which is what we've put in-and several other instances I could cite you. Seriously, I, too, am thinking about the future, and I think the people ought to be; I think we ought to be. There will be a day when Billings is 300,000. I hate to think about that. Right now it might not be feasible for most Montana villages, towns, and even cities to consider this, but there might come a day when it would be feasible. If it's not feasible, if it's not profitable, cities or municipalities or public utility districts won't be formed and they won't acquire and maintain and operate utilities; so I suppose my basic idea is that-what will it hurt to give this a try? If we are this evenly divided here, this may or may not be an indication of public reaction to this. I have an idea that if it's put on the ballot, you'll discover that an awful lot of people in cities and municipalities across this state will be for the idea of allowing themselves this freedom.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Harper's motion to add a subsection 2 to the Public Utilities Article of the Public Health proposal. The public—

Mr. McKeon.

DELEGATE McKEON: Can we have a roll call vote on this?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes. The proposal to say: "Any county or municipal subdivision of the state has the power and authority to establish public corporations for the maintenance and operation of utilities, subject to regulations provided by law." Roll call vote. All in favor, vote Aye; all opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate-Now, everyone should understand the motion is to place this on the ballot. I don't know whether I stated that, but that's what it's for.

Mr. Anderson, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE ANDERSON To explain my vote.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE ANDERSON: I have studied this Constitution, and in Article XIII, Section 5 and Section 6, which are now cancelled, I believe that this authority already rests with the city if-or county if they get legislative authority.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 43 delegates have voted Aye; 49 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 43 having voted Aye, 49, No, the issue fails. Are there other amendments or motions? If not, Mr. Murray would like a motion to rise and finally report on Public Health, Welfare, Labor and Industry and Education and Public Lands.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I so move.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of rising and finally reporting on these two substantive-two Style and Drafting proposals, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read the report of the Committee of the Whole.

CLERK HANSON: "March 17th, 1972. Mr. President. We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration report Number 10, Education, from the Committee on Style and Drafting, recommend as follows: and-that the committee rise and report. Signed: Leo Graybill, Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: --should be "rise and report finally"--or "fully". "Rise and report finally". Very well, the motion is that this committee—

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move adoption of the Committee of the Whole report and that the Style Committee's reports Number 9 and 10 be referred to Order of Business Number 5.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All in favor of Mr. Murray's motion that these two-that the Committee of the Whole report on these two articles be adopted and that they be placed in Order of Business Number 5, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered. Now, without objection, we'd like to be on Order of Business Number 7, Motions and Resolutions— No, Order of Business Number 1. All right, is there objection? Otherwise, we'll go to Order of Business Number 1.

Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. President. We, your Committee on Rules and Resolutions, having had under consideration resolution Number 15, introduced by Delegate Johnson, recommend that the said resolution be not adopted. Committee on Rules and Resolutions. Signed: Murray, Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, that'll be referred to Order of Business Number 7. Now what's your other one?

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. President. We, the Committee on Style, Drafting, Transition and Submission transmit revisions of the Bill of Rights Article for consideration of the Convention on Order of Business Number 5." Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, the Bill of Rights has been received-the Bill of Rights Article has been received back and it's placed on Order of Business Number 5 for tomorrow morning, and Mr. Johnson's motion--or Mr. Johnson's resolution is on 7, and the Rules Committee proposal on that resolution has just been referred to Number 7. Without objection, the Chair would like to be on Order of Business Number 7.

Mr. Murray, will you take up Mr. Johnson's matter, and then we'll give it to Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President. I move that the report of the Committee on Rules and Resolutions that resolution Number 15, the resolution by Mr.-by Delegate Johnson-that it be not adopted--actually, be adopted-by this Convention. I think that all of you have had an opportunity to take a look at resolution Number 15. It reads: "Whereas, this Constitutional Convention has cost the State of Montana $700,000 in money and has cost its delegates about 8 months of their lives, devoted to study and research in the field of constitutional government; Whereas, we certainly do not want to waste the effort, money or time involved. Therefore, I move this Convention consider the following: The Montana Constitutional Convention shall, after completing debate on the proposed Constitution, recess for 5 months, to August 15, 1972, and then convene and reconsider our new proposed Constitution in its entirety. After this interim, used for knowledgeable consideration and observation, we will complete a superior document, more worthy of this dedicated group of delegates and more worthy of Montana." This matter was referred to the Committee on Rules and Resolutions. The committee met this morning, heard certain witnesses; met again at noon, heard other witnesses; took its vote, and unanimously-seven to nothing-recommended that the resolution be not adopted. Mr. Johnson presented to the committee his ideas, with respect to the recess which he requests in his resolution, most eloquently. He indicated that he felt that, quite frankly, we were in some difficulty with the proposition of having our proposed Constitution adopted at this time; that there were things in it that he did not believe that he fully understood and, because he could not understand them, at this time could not support them; would sincerely like to have an opportunity to go home and reflect on these matters and visit with his constituents to see if he could not persuade them to what we had done and, if not, to study the proposition more fully to see that he-make sure that he understand-understood what we had done; and then to return to ascertain if this Convention would, perhaps, if necessary, reconsider any action that it had taken on the various matters of concern to him and to others. And he is quite persuasive in this particular respect, and there is much merit to his proposition. Unfortunately, it is the position of the Committee on Rules and Resolutions that his resolution comes forth at a very late date, after this Convention has already decided that its election date should be held on June 6, 1972—just over 2 months from now; after this Convention has placed in motion the operation to accept bids-or receive bids for its voter information pamphlet and hasletthose bids; after this Convention has considered and pressed hard under its financial limitations to arrive at the point where we nearly are at this particular moment. And the Committee on Rules felt that it was not in the best interests of the delegates of this Convention nor of the citizens of the State of Montana that we delay the ending of our Convention, the adjournment sine die, and the submission of this matter to the voters on June 6, 1972. Now, I do not mean to advise this body that it is for financial reasons that the committee decided to vote against Mr. Johnson's resolution; it is not for financial reasons. As the President will report to you after this matter has been taken care of, we are solvent. We are in good financial condition, and perhaps we could return, but it is the position of the Committee on Rules, as I have explained, that this would not be a proper thing. There were many factors which came into our minds as we deliberated on this particular issue. We now have 100 of us here; we may not again have these 100. There are some of us who are a little older than others: and I hate to think that we might perhaps lose those-and, of course, we would have new delegates appointed-but you 100 would not be with us, or some of you. We take that chance if we delay this matter. We have placed into operation and have considered the staff necessary, have made all of the arrangements, we think, that we could have made in proper fashion to place this matter on the ballot in-June 6, 1972. We recognize another distinct difficulty and possibility; I cannot say that this is the final ruling on this matter, because should someone litigate the issue, there might be a different decision-but it occurred to the Chairman of the Rules Committee that if we delayed this matter-if we delayed adjournment sine die until after the June primary-that those of us-and I am not one, I assure you-who may have an interest in running for public office in this state this year, 1972, would most certainly be foreclosed from that possibility. And I could not, for one, participate in asking any of you to foreclose that if your hearts and minds are set on that particular endeavor, and if they are, as many of you have indicated, as I read in the newspapers, with you-that you are somewhat interested, then I think you should have that opportunity. And so, Mr. President and fellow delegates, it is our recommendation that the resolution be not adopted and that we proceed as we are scheduled. Thank you.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: May I speak a little bit on this?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: You betcha, Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Thank you, sir. Fellow delegates, I feel that-and I always have since I came up here-1 guess I better state my position, this special-interest group that I represent-they include the Norwegian sheepherders up in the northeastern part of the state and the Indians on the reservations and the Irish cowboys over in Butte and, of course, those prospectors down along the Yellowstone; that's all of Montana; and this is the group that I really came here to represent. I haven't had any particular friction-or, that's not the word, trouble with my people back home. They haven't brought a lot of pressure on me, but I know pretty much how they feel about these things. I don't want to see this effort that all you folks have made, concentrated effort for the last many months-and I'vemadeit, too; I started studying what little I could get hold of before we started getting these research analyst books, et cetera, when I had filed for the primary; I was very interested in doing a job here for Montana. This is a primary interest. It's cost a lot of money; it's cost a lot of people's times; and I surely do not want to waste it. I think we stand a little bit of a chance of wasting it. You heard-1 don't want to repeat what Mr. Murray told you because that would just take up some time. I might add that since we-or since I put the date of August 15th in here-that's an arbitrary date; that is a date, though, if we would meet at that time, we could still get it on the fall ballot. But I do think that the ideal thing to do would be actually to recess until-for a year, until after the session of the next Legislature, when this all would again be available to us. I do believe we could do this in 10 days, or a short time. There might be two or three of us gone; I might not be here, either. Another winter would have gone by, and you can slip and fall under a horse pretty easy, you know, in that time. But there would be somebody to take my place, surely, and there would be somebody to take any of you fellows' place. There is not a one of us here that are indispensable, I'm sure; and there's no one here that isn't really dedicated to what he thinks is the best interest of Montana; I am sure of that. So I urge you to consider this very carefully when you vote. Thank you, Mr. Chairman, and all you people.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, is there any debate on this matter?

Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman. I would like to say this: that I agree with a lot of things that Torrey says. I do wish that we had a little rest in there; and I do think we went at it too fast-and I sure would recommend for future Montana Constitutional Conventions that they take the example of North Dakota. I think North Dakota was right and that we were wrong in the way we handled ours, but I'm also looking at the State of Missouri. Theirs dragged on for about a year and a half, Torrey, and the people just plain lost interest in it, and when it got on the ballot, they just didn't even turn out and vote for it, as I understand it. And I think we've come this far now and we've done a pretty good job, and we should just hang in there.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mrs. Pemberton.

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: Mr. President, there's no one respects the position of my colleague from District 1 more than I do. We're very good friends, although I do not support his resolution. I know it was made in good faith and probably expresses the feeling of many of us that we wish we did not have to be in such a hurry. In looking back over these past weeks, we have made many decisions, and I'm sure that Torrey will also think-when we're through and go out over the State of Montana to explain the Constitution, he will be one of those who has the best explanation of all and will do a great job. I think it's great that he had the courage to come at this time with his resolution. I'm proud to be serving with him. Thank you.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Johnson, do you want to close?

DELEGATE JOHNSON: You betcha. We want a roll call.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Oh, you want a roll call. Very well, a roll call will be had. The issue is on the motion of the Rules Committee that we recommend that the resolution be not adopted, that Mr. Johnson has presented. You have Mr. Johnson's resolution Number 15 before you, and you have the Rules Committee's recommendation that it be not adopted.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President. I don't mind using the board so that we know how we have voted on the issue, but the rules do not provide for a roll call on resolutions.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The rules don't provide for a roll call vote on resolutions. Is that your point?

Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman, I move that we suspend the rules in this case.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Well, Mr. Murray?

DELEGATE MURRAY: I'll support that.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All in favor of suspending the rules, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered. Now, we've got that done. All right, we're going to have a roll call vote on Mr. Johnson's—or on the Rules Committee proposal that we do not adopt Mr. Johnson's proposal. Now, if you vote Yes, you're voting with the Rules Committee not to adopt it; and if you vote No, you're voting with Mr. Johnson. So, the ballot is open. If you vote Yes, that's not to adopt it; if you vote No, that's to go with Mr. Johnson. So you vote Yes if you're ready to continue with the present planning, and you vote No if you want to wait till August, to put it bluntly. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, I'll close the ballot. Take the vote.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 67 voting Aye, 26 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: 67 having voted Aye to sustain the Rules Committee and 26 having voted No to wait till August, the motion fails.

Very well, Mr. Toole, would you come forward. Without objection, the Chair would like to move to Order of Business Number 8, Unfinished Business.

(Vice President Toole assumes the Chair)

VICE PRESIDENT TOOLE: The Chair will call on Mr. Graybill for a report on the budget.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Mr. President. Today is Friday, the 17th of March, and I have an Irish report for you-that's one that looks up on this day. If you'll take the budget report before you. I'd like to go over it with you. And I'd like to say, to begin with, that our financial condition looks brighter than it has at any time and it does appear that we will get through-if we proceed on the present plans, we'll get through our whole program in the black, which I think is very good news for this Convention. Now, first of all, notice that this budget is styled "March 24th". Now, it obviously isn't March 24th yet; it's March 17th; but I asked-it's-our costs, our daily costs are quite stable and fixed, and I asked Mr. Brown to estimate for us where we would stand at the end of next week. I'm not saying we'll be through on the-on Friday, but at least that gives us a pretty good idea of where we would be when we finished up and could adjourn. You'll notice that, by that time, we will have spent all the salary money; we will have spent all the wage money, except for $5,007, which has been put in as part of the federal grant. Now, I told you I would show you the federal grant, and if you look at the bottom of the second column, you'll see that our total money is now $529,281, and that's because we've added the $30,000 in. Now, we have not signed for the $30,000, because we needed the committee that we just created yesterday and we just haven't quite physically got it done, but the $30,000 is, we understand, available. Secondly, we cannot draw on the 30,000 until the 31st of March, but when we do, we can draw as of the 1st of March. So, the three numbers in the first column that are asterisked, the $5,007 and the $500 under Communications and the $23,900 at the bottom, are the tentative allocation of the $30,000 to the budget. The request for the HUD funds did include paying for the Style and Drafting costs after March 1st; that's why the $5,000 is up there in Style and Drafting. In other words, we will be able to lend ourselves money and recover from HUD money to pay the costs of Style and Drafting from March 1st on. Style and Drafting didn't have too much to do before then, but a little, but we can't pick anything up behind March 1st. But we can pick all the staff and lawyers' salaries up, and there's quite a lot of money there, because there are seven or eight typists up there. All right, that explains why that's up in that part of the budget. The rest of it is down there, lumped in Public Information, where it really will go. All right. Now, the next thing I'd like to point out to you is that, by next week, the employee benefits will all be exhausted, and the $5,007 lays there and will be available to cover some of our costs there at that time. Now, we will be in a deficit position in some of these categories by then, because-but we have balanced that by our contingent fund. You'll recall that our contingent fund was $40,000—the last item down there, as budgeted-and we've spent, by spreading it up there for these other costs to make the delegates' salaries and the wages and everything else come out even-we've spent all but 5,000 of that contingent fund by next March 24th. Now, the next thing you should note: we didn't lose our heads and buy you a lot more stationery. The stationery expenses by next Friday are accrued at 16,000 because we added in, at that line, the cost of the voter information pamphlet, which the bids came in at about twelve or thirteen thousand dollars-twelve thousand five-and we're buying a few extra copies-so twelve or thirteen thousand dollars. We put it on that line because, otherwise, it would distort our contracted services; and the fact of the matter is, our stationery was stable and nobody was buying any more stationery; and that's why it's thrown in there. That's why that account now is in grave deficit there. Communications-we have a little money left in postage, but we have accrued through next week enough, we believe, to send home the last batch of material that has to go home and go to the clerks and recorders and the libraries, so we're pretty close on that. I think that the telephone will also break about even then, although we might be a little over, because quite obviously we're going to have to keep some telephone service between March 24th and the 6th of June. I might tell you that the telephone company-I think I hinted this before—but the telephone company negotiated the bill with us when we took out all of that service. The upshot of it was that the bill through February 17th was negotiated to $4,600, and then, the addition from then till now brings it up, as you can see there, to $5,600. We had a bill for the first month of 5,100 once, but we talked them out of that, in a friendly manner. Okay. You can see that we anticipate spending about 500 more on the telephone up till June. Now, travel-technically, we're ahead on travel, because if we do not adjourn, if we work Monday and Tuesday and then have our final ceremonies, say, Thursday and don't send you home for Wednesday, we really have saved one round-trip. You've been paid two round-trips. I hope all of you haven't spent the money you're to go home on, but you really don't get another round-trip unless we bring you back here, in case of some disaster. So we really ended up—we had—we budgeted three round-trips and we only spent two round-trips. Now, contracted services-I'm happy to say that we are, at the moment, in good shape in printing. I realize that many of you have told me that you thought we printed an awful lot of stuff and put it on the desks, but we have had an awfully good deal on printing downstairs. We—you know, we bought the printshop and operated it jointly with the state office, and it really costs a ridiculously low figure to put one sheet of paper on your desks. I don't want to tell you how much; we're not quite through yet, but we've gotten by pretty well on printing. Now, we're not quite through with printing, but we have accrued printing at the present rates through next-March 24th. It's conceivable that there might be some printing that we would need to get into in conjunction with voter information or voter education, but, basically, I think you can say that we got by well on printing, and that's one of the reasons we're in good shape today. Our equipment rental and Xerox and that sort of thing is going to come out pretty close. Our court reporter--we've estimated spending all that we've accrued. We might actually be off on that; it's rather difficult to say. We've done this by checking with the reporters as to how many pages per day they think they are running, but the truth ofthematteris they haven't typed a whole lot. That is, we haven't-it isn't-I think we have the transcript typed-perhaps Marie can tell us better than I-but I think it's typed up through maybe the 1st of March or something like that, but most of the debate is not typed yet. And exactly how many pages, we don't know, but based on the number of pages they estimated, and taking it through next Friday, we'll come out about even. On our per diem, we come out in the hole, as you can see, and that's part of the money used borrowed from the contingent fund. In other words, we spent a hundred and seventy-seven and we had budgeted a hundred and sixty. On our consultants, however, we came out ahead. We haven't spent near that amount of money, and we have a little there. On our Commission expense, I want you to note that we have, at the moment, picked up, by necessity, $3,400 worth of Commission expense. Now, about sixteen-fifteen or sixteen hundred dollars of this, you'll remember, was picked up in the form of office supplies that we agreed to take, and a few of the books. And the Commission had a debt which we did not pick up, which is not shown there. The reason that has grown to now $3,400 is that as we've laid off some employees who had been working for the Commission, some of them have been working more than a year for the state, and they had accrued vacations and they had accrued other fringe benefits, and we've had to pay our share of it, and since the Commission had no money, we have paid the Commission's share of those fringe benefits. On public information, because of some reverses in the filming industry, we didn't get our film thing worked out because of changing the date. We saved a lot of money there, and Public Information ended up with quite a bit of its money. And, of course, we've put with it the balance of the HUD money, the total being 46,000. Now, we hope to spend, say, 50,000 on public information, as that pamphlet-or as that memo said the other day, but you can see that the 50,000 is, in fact, available, because we have 5,000 left in the contingent fund, assuming that everything works out as of, say, March 24th next week. So, if everything works out fine and we spent-you see, the balance that we'll have unencumbered after next March 24th, after we adjourn, will be about $58,000. And if we spend, say, 50,000 for public information, we are in the black. So, I think that's good news and I'm happy to report it. I intend to continue to hold the line. And we might even be in the black more, but at least we can now see the end of the tunnel, and it looks like we're going to make it. Now, are there questions?

Mr. Monroe-Oh, excuse me, Mr. Toole. Mr. Acting Chairman, I—

VICE PRESIDENT TOOLE: Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: Will Mr. Graybill yield to a question?

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Yes, Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: I was wondering: who will bear the expenses of the journal being printed?

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Well, now, I think I know what you're getting at, and I'll discuss it with you. You don't mean the journal, which is what Rosemary types, the transcript and that. You mean the transcript, and the situation on the transcript is this: the $15,000 pays for one copy, which Marie Durkee delivers to us as she finishes it, and her contract provides for a hundred-$1.50 a page and so much a day-1 think it's $40 a day-and she has to deliver it by July 1st. She's typing on it, and so is Marie. That is, they split this and type-one types and one works here, and so forth, but they don't pretend to be up with us. Now, when the rest of it is typed, they will give us this one copy. We now have about 1,200 pages of it. Now, because of the danger, quite frankly, that Mr. Toole and I saw in something might happen to that one copy, we did decide to print in our shop downstairs a few copies; and we tried to price it out, and we had a lot of difficulty getting a price, and finally, we got one and we determined to print about 10 copies for the pure purpose of having more than one. I didn't want a St. Louis incident to happen and have us lose the transcript, so we printed 10. Now, all we've printed so far is 10 copies of the first 1,100 pages, but we had intended to print 10 copies of the whole eight or nine thousand pages, as they become available. But one of the reasons, if I-I think this is an open convention; we might as well be completely open about it-one of the reasons I was off the Chair this morning was that we got an estimate up from downstairs that it was going to cost us $5,000 to print the rest of the transcript, because we weren't going to own the printshop after next week. And we had a little discussion about that and called a few people, and I'm happy to report that we will get our 10 copies for about $750 total, and they have dropped back down to a labor and materials only cost on us, and we're in good shape. This is about 10 copies of the transcript. Now, what we're going to do with those: if the Constitution happens to pass, the Legislature will clearly have the duty to provide printed copies of the transcript for law libraries and everybody else. If it happens to fail, I suppose there will not be such a great interest in printing the 8,000.page or 10,000-page transcript, and in that case, we would see that the Universities-both of them, major ones-and the Historical Society and-we'd spread these 10 copies among the major libraries and archives, and that'11 be that. And if you have a little mimeograph machine, why, we'll see that you can print one for yourself at 5 cents a page. Other questions?

VICE PRESIDENT TOOLE: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Yes, Mr. President. Leo, on special expenses-per diem, there-we show a hundred and sixty thousand budgeted and a hundred and seventy-seven thousand five hundred spent, with nothing encumbered and no balance.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Well, the reason-that's what I explained. What Mr. Brown did-we only figured for only 9 weeks, I believe it was, see. Well, that ends tomorrow, but he computed, now, in the third column there, the hundred and seventy-seven thousand, what our per diem will be through next Friday. So, it ran us over our 9-week budget, and he used the money in the contingent fund-the 40,000 we initially had has been spread part of it back up there and part of it back, you see, at the top line. We've spent-we will have spent a hundred and eight thousand in our salaries, when we only have-had budgeted 96,000 for the first 9 weeks. And the same is true of staff; we budgeted at sixty-six and we spent seventy-one, et cetera, et cetera, see. So he's taken our famous contingent fund-it's now gone after next Friday, see.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: (Inaudible)-the University budget comes out. (Laughter)

VICE PRESIDENT TOOLE: Mr. Leuthold.

DELEGATE LEUTHOLD: Mr. Chairman-Mr. President. Some people are asking, "Why is it-are we getting 30,000 from the federal government?" And I can't give them an answer, and I was wondering if you could clear that up. Why do we get 30,000 from the federal government?

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: We applied for a grant from HUD. Many other have applied. The whole state reorganization program-that is, our 20-department reorganization program-is financed by HUD, the organizational part of it. Many other public bodies have done this. The State of North Dakota just got 40,000 from HUD for this same purpose. We applied for it, and we explained what we wanted it for, and we told them we wanted it so that the Style and Drafting Committee would have-we wanted it for funding part of the Convention expenses-namely, Style and Drafting; we wanted it for public education purposes, because we anticipated that without it, we would not have sufficient funds to adequately inform the public-and they will buy public education, which we're doing, and this is the voter information pamphlet and this is the panel programs on the TV and that sort of thing. In other words, the public information will be obviously funded half by them and half by us, and they have a program-HUD has a program which-the purpose of which is to assist any local governmental unit which cares-which attempts to improve its governmental forms or facilities-or any local governmental unit that is working on a project which will improve local government. And HUD has a program for that, and we applied and we got it; that's all.

VICE PRESIDENT TOOLE: Any further discussion on the budget?

Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. Chairman. Leo, on this $50,000 we have that we're going to spend for this education, now, I take it, now, this is-will be neutral, insofar as it goes out on TV and radio and things like that. This is simply education; it's not pro-Constitution or anti-Constitution.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Well, when you say "neutral"—I mean, you can't honestly mean neutral. I mean-but we're going to let you and we're going to let Archie both explain it at the same time. (Laughter) Now, even I can't call that neutral, but we're going to (Laughter) explain it fairly. We have Mr. Schiltz's resolution, and we have him on the committee; and we're going to explain it fairly and broadly, and we're going to tell them what's in and what's out, and we're going to answer questions fairly, and we're going to put out information that is the-many of you have seen the Illinois thing; we'll do the same thing. We'll put the new text; we'll put in color what's been-what this changes; certain parts are out of the old Constitution; this is the same as certain parts of the old Constitution, et cetera, et cetera. And, yes, we're going to be objective. We're going to be objective. Any other questions?

VICE PRESIDENT TOOLE: Mrs. Reichert.

DELEGATE REICHERT: Mr. Chairman. I would just like to say, on behalf of the other 99 delegates who I know must share my opinion, that it's highly commendable that we were able to operate in this fashion in these days when budgets are so seldom balanced. Thank you very much for all the hard work.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Well, if you celebrate this tonight, do it on somebody else's money. (Laughter)

VICE PRESIDENT TOOLE: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Slavedriver; I mean, Mr. President. This is off the budget, but what do you foresee our schedule next week? Now, it's a little off the budget.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: Well. we're going to debate General Government tomorrow. May I use this time, Mr. President, to explain the schedule?

VICE PRESIDENT TOOLE: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: And I don't know, Carl, but the best estimates that I have are that we're going to debate General Government tomorrow. I don't know whether we'll finish, but it's possible that we might finish. Then on Monday morning, we have to take up Style and Drafting on Local Government and on General Government. They will-they have-theoretically, I think Mr. Schiltz has got Style and Drafting done on Local Government, or will have it tonight, but we can't get it printed tomorrow without overtime, and I still haven't let them do that. So-but they'll print that between 8:00 and 9:00 or 8:00 and 9:30 in the morning. We'll be able to go Monday morning on Style and Drafting on Local Government, and he will have style and drafted over the weekend on General Government and we'll be able to go on that as soon as we're finished. Now, if we have to debate a half a day on General Government, fine; but in other words, we'll finish up those Style and Draftings first. The reason we must go Monday on that is that the other processes simply can't go forward until we have style and drafted all of these 10 articles and send them back through Order of Business Number 5. Now, as soon as we have done that, we'll finish Order of Business Number 5 on Bill of Rights, which we might do tomorrow if we got through with General Government, or if we took it first. Either that, or General Government might take more than a day, see. But by Monday night, we ought to be through with that; that is, with Order of Business Number 5 on Bill of Rights. Then we've got Order of Business Number 5 on Local and General Government, which we'll either do Monday or Tuesday. By that time, Mr. Schiltz has got to come up with his corker, the ballots, and we've got to debate Style and Drafting's substantive proposal for a ballot. And after we've debated that, then Style and Drafting and the machines have to print and type. Now, that'11 be, I suppose, Tuesday and Wednesday. If we were really through Tuesday, we might shoot for Thursday; but if we're not really through Tuesday, we're probably shooting for Friday, in order to give them 1 day to pull this thing together, type up perfect copies so we can sign them, et cetera. And then Mr. Garlington is going to take care of us, on either Thursday or Friday, with a closing ceremony that shouldn't take all day, but it'll either take all morning or it'll take all afternoon-or, you know, till 3 or 4 o'clock-and we'll be all through. Now, that's how I see it, but that's assuming you only talk 1 day on General Government and that you don't debate the ballot for 6 days.

VICE PRESIDENT TOOLE: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. President, I have a dual purpose here. One, I'd like to say that I would like to ask the President if Style and Drafting, which is going to meet at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning-that's one of the purposes-will you please point out that we don't get any of that $5,007 that the committee members—

Mr. President.

DELEGATE GRAYBILL: You mean that isn't-you mean you've given that money back to the staff? (Laughter) Right; that's for salaries for the staff, and it's for salaries for the secretaries, and it's for all the other people. You do get paid the same stipend as the rest of us do for the time you put in. (Laughter)

VICE PRESIDENT TOOLE: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Vice President, I move that the Convention adopt the President's budget report.

VICE PRESIDENT TOOLE: You've heard the motion that the budget be adopted. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

VICE PRESIDENT TOOLE: Opposed, NO.

(No response)

VICE PRESIDENT TOOLE: Motion is carried.

(President Graybill assumes the Chair)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Members of the Committee, may we be on Order of Business Number 11. On Order of Business Number 11, I'd like to remind the Voter Education Committee that we want to have a meeting. Now, since we're this late, we'll make it very short, but let's have a short meeting in the-we'd better have it in the Rules Committee room here-the Rules Committee room-on adjournment. Secondly, I am asked to call on Mr. McCarvel. Do you want to make a motion, or is Mr. McNeil up for the same purpose?

Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE McNEIL: Mr. Chairman, I rise for a point of personal privilege on behalf of those of us who have sufficient Irish heritage to be able to celebrate this day with a clear conscience. For the record, I ask that St. Patrick forgive my good friend, Marshall Murray, for wearing a sacrilegious pink shirt while he's presiding over this body on this very special day. (Laughter)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll note that.

Mr. McCarvel, do you want to make resolution Number 16?

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Yes, Mr. Chairman, if you would read-if you will, please.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Would you like it read? Will the clerk read resolution Number 16.

CLERK HANSON: "Resolution Number 16, on the 17th. We, the undersigned, declare, on this 17th day of March, 1972, that Row 6 on the left side of Convention Hall, seats numbered 65 through 70, be known as "Irish Row", with a little Scotch. Signed: Joseph McCarvel, Number 65—"

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mason O'Melvin—can't you read? (Laughter)

CLERK HANSON: I certainly can't. (Laughter) "Mike McKeon, Number 66; C. B. McNeil, Number 60—" No—"McDonough, Number 66; Mike McKeon, Number 67; C. B. McNeil, Number 68; Mason O'Melvin, Number 69; and Lyle Monroe, Number 70." Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Well, I'd refer that to the Rules Committee, but you've just destroyed your credibility with the Rules Committee, and I think you're in trouble, Mr. McNeil. (Laughter)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: And all the good sense in the middle, Mr. Melvin. (Laughter-Applause) Are there other important announcements before we adjourn?

Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOLJX: You know, I couldn't let this go before letting you all know that last night in President Nixon's address, he totally agreed with the Educational Committee of the Montana Constitutional Convention and what you people passed, when he proposed that the Congress set up an Equal Educational Opportunities Act, requiring that-and I'm quoting-"every state and locality must grant equal educational opportunity to every person, regardless of race, color or national origin". I'm sure he got his message from us. Thank you. (Laughter)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Murray, I wonder if you'd make a motion to adjourn.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move that the Convention adjourn until 9:00 a.m. March 18th. 1972.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Now, the— before you vote on that, the State Auditor's office will be open until 6 o'clock. You've got 15 minutes. All in favor of adjourning, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

(The Convention adjourned at 5:45 p.m.)

March 18, 1972 Forty-Ninth Day Convention Hall
9:10 a.m. Helena, Montana

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Convention will be in order. If you'll all rise, Mr. Arbanas will lead us in the invocation this morning.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Let us join together in the prayer of St. Francis. Lord, make me an instrument of Your peace. Where there's hatred, let me sow love. Where there's injury, pardon; where there is doubt, faith; where there is despair, hope; where there is darkness, light; where there is sadness, joy. 0 Divine Master, grant that I may not so much seek to be consoled as to console, to be understood as to understand, to be loved as to love, for it is in giving that we receive; it is in pardoning that we are pardoned; and it is in dying that we are born to eternal life. Amen.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: We'll take attendance today by voting Aye on the voting machines.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, may Delegates Delaney and Felt be excused this day?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Delaney and Felt are excused.

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Hanson, Rod; Delegate Holland; Delegate Mahoney; Delegate Pemberton; Delegate Holland; Delegate Pemberton.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, take the attendance.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 96 delegates present, 2 excused, and 2 absent

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, that's a quorum. Order of Business Number 1, Reports of Standing Committees.

CLERK HANSON: None,

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 2, Select Committees.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 3, Communications.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 4, Introduction and Reference.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 5. Ladies and gentlemen, under Order of Business Number 5 this morning, we have the Bill of Rights proposal, which we'll take up at this time. We will have placed upon your desks, we hope before the end of the session this morning, the Education and Public Health Articles for final adoption. And before I begin on the Bill of Rights section, Mr. Dahood has asked to be recognized.

Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of personal privilege and also on behalf of the Bill of Rights Committee. Yesterday morning, throughout several of the newspapers of the State of Montana, including the newspaper from my own area, the front page headlines carried stories that Con Con threatens no-fault insurance. A press release was issued yesterday. Unfortunately, we have not been given equal position with respect to that. So that the delegates may be fully informed, I wish to read from the release that was made yesterday in response to it: "It is totally beyond legal logic for anyone to contend that the Bill of Rights proposal has an effect on the no-fault insurance concept. There is absolutely no way that such a conclusion can be reached by a fair, sound-thinking person. The present attack on that section of the Bill of Rights which only restores to an injured workingman, in certain situations, his right to full legal redress is unfair, unjust, and, in many respects, dishonest. For a number of weeks, this section of the Bill of Rights was discussed, debated and circulated. Not a single critic of the section was able to seriously contend that this section prohibited the Legislature from considering no-fault insurance in the future." This section was fully debated by the Convention and, before that, at a public committee hearing after proper notice was posted. We indicated in our comments, we indicated in debate on the floor, the journal will reflect, the committee hearing records will show that we answered the several questions with respect to it to the effect that no-fault was not involved in any way. On behalf of the committee, I am going to add to the comments in the Bill of Rights proposal, so that there can never be any question about it under any circumstance nor by anyone, the following: "Further, it is the intent of the committee that the additional wording shall not be construed to preclude the adoption of a no-fault insurance plan for the State of Montana." Thank you for the privilege, Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Will the clerk please read Order of Business Number 5, the Bill of Rights, Number 8. Now, that's this uncovered Order of Business Number 5 report on the Bill of Rights, which you should have before you, which we will use in finally adopting the Bill of Rights Article. Does everyone have it?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Clerk, will you read the title and the preamble.

CLERK HANSON: "Order of Business Number 5, Final Consideration, Style and Drafting, Bill of Rights, Number 8. Preamble." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, you have before you the preamble of the Bill of Rights Article, Number 8, on Order of Business Number 5. All in favor, vote Aye; and opposed, vote No on the voting machines. We're on Final Adoption, and we take a roll call vote on each article--or each section. Has every delegate voted?
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Take the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 78 delegates voting Aye, 19 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: 78 delegates voting Aye and 19 voting No, Section 35 is adopted. Ladies and gentlemen, you've adopted all of the Bill of Rights. Now, we're having placed on your desks the Education section, Order of Business Number 5, on Report Number 10, Education. We will take it now. I will go somewhat slower, since you haven't had it before you, but we need to finish up these this morning, if possible. So Section 10—or, I mean, report 10 on Education is now being passed out to you. While you're all looking at it, the Chair will call your attention to one style error. On the-line 5, after "Educational goals and duties", you should insert a "1" in parentheses. In other words, that's a three-section subsection—three subsections of Section 1; Number one did not get numbered. Put in a subsection 1 in parentheses, after the word "duties". I take it that's okay, Mr. Champoux?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: (Inaudible)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Ladies and gentlemen, while we have a short break here, we'll let the pages put out Number 9 on Public Health, too. The pages will distribute it now, too. Very well, we're ready to go on Education. Will the clerk please read the title and Section 1 of the Education Article for final adoption.

CLERK HANSON: "Order of Business Number 5, Final Consideration, Style and Drafting, Education, Report Number 10. Article. Education. Section 1. Educational goals and duties."; containing three subsections. Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, we're voting on Section 1, Educational goals and duties, containing three subsections. So many as be in favor, vote Aye on the voting machines; and opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Has every delegate voted?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, Section 1 is adopted. Will the clerk read the title of Section 2.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2. Public school funds"; containing no subsections. Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Well, he's technically right; that's an enumeration, it's not a subsection, but it is everything on page 1 and the first seven lines of page 2. Very well, everyone that's in favor of Section 2, Public school fund, vote Aye on the voting machine; opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 96 delegates voting Aye and no delegates voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, Section 5 is adopted. Section 6.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 6. Aid prohibited to sectarian schools"; containing two subsections. Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So many shall be in favor of Section 6 and its subsections, vote Aye; opposed, No.

DELEGATE McNEIL: Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE McNEIL: I rise to explain my vote.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE McNEIL: I am in favor of subsection 1; I oppose subsection 2, which permits tax money to be sent for church schools. I therefore must vote against the entire section.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: I want to explain my vote. It's exactly the opposite of Mr. McNeil's (Laughter)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Has every delegate voted?

CLERK HANSON: "Section 7. Non discrimination in education." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Section 7, vote Aye; opposed, vote No.

Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE McNEIL: Mr. Chairman, I rise to explain my vote. I support all of Section 7 except the change of the word from "teach" to "advocate", which now permits the teaching of religion in the public schools. I therefore oppose the section.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Has every delegate voted?

Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE 0. ANDERSON: I rise to explain my vote, because I do not like the change from "taught" to "advocate".

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Any other delegate want to change their vote?

(No response)

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 67 delegates voting Aye, 28 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well,

that section is adopted. Ladies and gentlemen, we have now finally adopted Bill of Rights, Education and Public Lands, and the Public Health Articles. The Chair has referred them to Style and Drafting for inclusion in the final Constitution.

Mr. Eskildsen, I think we should be in 15 minutes' recess before we get ready to go on General Government. Will you so move?

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President, I move that we stand in recess until 15 minutes to 11:00 this day.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All in favor, vote Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: We're in recess.

(Convention recessed at 10:32 a.m.—reconvened at 11:09 a.m.)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Convention will be in order. The Convention will be in order. We have now completed the work we had for today on Order of Business Number 5. Order of Business Number 6, Adoption; none. Order of Business Number 7, Motions and Resolutions; I think there are none. Order of Business Number 8, Unfinished Business.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 9, Special Orders.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 10.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President. I move the Convention resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the purpose of handling business under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, the motion is to resolve this Convention into a Committee of the Whole. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Committee of the Whole)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "March 18th, 1972. The following committee proposal is now on General Orders: General Government." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll proceed to the General Government Article on the Committee-in the Committee of the Whole this morning. That's the gray one, Number 12, on General Government, and you'll want to turn to page 3. Now, before we proceed, Mr. Etchart has some amendments to the committee report.

Mr. Etchart.

DELEGATE ETCHART: Mr. Chairman. I think you have the written amendments up there, but I'll—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right. Do you want me to read them?

DELEGATE ETCHART: Yeah, if you would, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. The first is on Section 1, page 3, line 10 and line 13. Strike the word "departments" and insert therein "branches"; that's on line 10 and on line 13. In other words, on the first article-first section of the General Government Article, it should read, "The powers of the government of the state are divided into three distinct branches", instead of "departments". And then, on line 13, it says, "belongs to one of these branches", instead of "departments". The reason is to avoid confusion—the Executive Reorganization Act, which refers to 20 departments. The second amendment the committee wishes to make is to Section 4, on page 4, line 10. After the word "constitution", put in an asterisk, because we need to add a sentence, which can go at the top or bottom of the page. The sentence is: "The highway revenue provided for in Article blank, Section 6, shall nevertheless be subject to appropriation by initiative." Now, I'll say that slowly: "The highway revenue provided for in Article blank, Section 6, shall nevertheless be subject to appropriation by initiative." That goes on line 10, after the word "constitution"--an asterisk. Then on Section 4-the same Section 4, line 10, the last word is "eight". Strike the word "eight" and put "five". And on line 13, the same thing-strike the word "eight" and put "five". And then you go to Section 5, on line 25, and strike "eight" and put "five"; and on 27, strike "eight" and put "five", So there are four places; on line 10 you strike the word "eight" and put "five"; line 13 you strike the word "eight" and put "five"; line 25 and line 27, strike the word "eight" and put "five". Now Mr. Etchart, I think we've cleaned it up for you. Very well, will the clerk please read the title and Section 1 of the—

Mr. Etchart, do you wish an opening statement?

DELEGATE ETCHART: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Will the clerk please read the title and Section 1 of the article on General Government.

CLERK HANSON: "Montana Constitutional Convention, 1971.1972. General Government and Constitutional Amendment Committee proposal on General Government, Number 12. Introduced February 19th, 1972; Mark Etchart, Chairman. Be it proposed by the General Government-Constitutional Amendment Committee that there be a new article on General Government to read as follows: 'Article. General Government. Section 1. Separation of powers. The powers of the government of this state are divided into three distinct branches, the Legislative, Executive and Judicial; and no person or collection of persons charged with the exercise of powers properly belonging to one of these branches shall exercise any power properly belonging to either of the others, except as in this Constitution expressly directed or permitted'." Mr. Chairman, Section 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Etchart.

DELEGATE ETCHART: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this Committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration General Government Proposal Number 12, Section 1, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, this section, with the exception of the title change from "distribution" to "separation", is identical to Article VI in the present Constitution. The committee feels a statement dividing the powers of government among the three branches of state government is essential to any constitution. The present article has been the crucial factor in determining much litigation and is an invaluable tool for the courts in deciding matters of governmental jurisdiction. A statement dividing the powers of government is designed to act as a check on overly ambitious branches of government. Mr. Chairman, I think that that explanation should be enough, as this separation of powers is well understood and well accepted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aronow, you have a proposed amendment to Section 1, right? Would you like the clerk to read it?

DELEGATE ARONOW: Yes, please.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 1, General Government proposal, on page 3, at line 15, by adding the following sentence: 'In the Judicial Department, there shall be a Clerk of the Supreme Court, who shall hold his office for the term of 6 years. He shall be elected by the electors at large of the state.' Signed: Aronow." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aronow.

DELEGATE ARONOW: We, earlier, in the Judicial Article, on a motion to delete, without any debate, eliminated the office of Clerk of the Supreme Court from the Constitution. This morning-Oh, and in that process, we eliminated the office in a rather cavalier fashion. There wasn't a word said; there wasn't a bit of debate; there was no discussion. It seemed like a good idea at the moment. This morning we adopted, on third reading, Section 3 of the Bill of Rights, the rights—and this is one of the individual rights-therights of pursuing life's basic necessities. We're not here to play God, to take away a man's livelihood, take away his office; he had a right to rely upon it. We did eliminate one office-that's the State Treasurer-but that treasurer is not able to run to succeed himself, so we did not deprive anyone of the right to make a living or the right to hold a job. We did eliminate the State Auditor, and then we put the State Auditor back in. And we should be consistent, at least. I admit that this probably is not the place in the Constitution where this matter should be handled, but Style and Drafting, I'm sure, can place it in the right article of the Constitution. And for the-and I'm-and I ask you all to have a little charity in your hearts, to be consistent, if that's possiblein this body, and not pull the rug out from any individual. And I ask your support for this amendment. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. When I campaigned for this Convention, I campaigned on the principle of a short ballot. I argued and debated, on the several occasions when the opportunity arose, that there was certain offices in state government that did not participate in the determination of policy, and as a consequence, there was no real justification for their retention as elective offices. Arguments were presented here to the effect that that particular premise had to be countered with the requirement that the people be permitted to exercise their franchise of participating in government and this could truly be exercised only by allowing them to vote for certain offices at the elections held in the state. I balanced that reasoning with my own reasoning that I formulated and adopted prior to coming here, and I think my record will indicate that I accepted that particular premise so that the people could fully participate through the elective process, even though they voted for offices that would not be involved in policymaking. The only office that we eliminated-and the Treasurer's office, of course, is a different consideration, since there was no right to succeed oneself in that-was the office of Clerk of the Supreme Court-a gentleman who has served Montana so well and so ably; has been a friend of all; has never allowed the fact that he had party label to have anything to do with the way in which he greeted people that came into his office to either file documents, file briefs, seek services or seek his advice. He has been a real humanitarian over all the years; and although perhaps this has no real basis for consideration by us, he has taken it as a definite insult on a personal basis; he has felt that this Constitutional Convention has reflected upon him and his service to the state over all these years. And being somewhat fair about it, I think we should all-or would all have to agree there is some basis for his reaction to our action in that fashion. We have left the clerks of the District Courts throughout the 18 judicial districts and throughout the 56 counties on an elective basis; we have left the Montana Supreme Court on an elective basis. And I fail to see what justification there is, then, for taking this one individual office out of the entire judicial system and saying that, for him and for him alone, it shall be appointive. I submit that, as long as we did not go to the short ballot, that we should reconsider our position and adopt the motion that has been made by Delegate Aronow and allow Style and Drafting to make that correction in the judicial article; and I support the motion that's before this body.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Quite frankly, the Chair is disturbed by this amendment, because it seems to the Chair to be grafting onto the General Government Article in a-a reconsideration. The Chair will take 5 minutes and read the Judicial Article and see what it was we voted on, and if this is the same thing, the Chair is not going to allow reconsideration by this manner. There are other ways to do it, but the Chair is disturbed by this. So we'll be-stand in recess a moment while the Chair reads the Judicial Article.

(Recess)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair is now ready to rule. The Chair observes that when we debated the Judicial Article, we debated a Section 12, the first four lines of which are identical with the proposed amendment. The second part of the article, that was deleted at that time-part of it dealt with-one sentence dealt with the clerks of the District Court, which there is no proposal to change here; the other part that was deleted at that time dealt with the term, qualifications and compensation of the District Court clerks, so the only part of Section 12 that was deleted that pertained at all-No, I'm wrong about that; Section 11 it was, Clerk of the Supreme Court. The first part was identical with what has been proposed in this amendment; the second part dealt only with the salary and qualifications and duties, to which the amendment here does not speak at all. The Chair is therefore going to rule that the proposed amendment to the General Government Article is identical with something that we deleted by a vote of 57 to 31. The Chair is going to disallow the amendment, at this time, of the General Government Article. You may challenge the ruling of the Chair. The Chair will announce, now, that if the Chair is sustained, the Chair will allow, at some appropriate time, when we finish general government or on recess, a motion to suspend the rules and reconsider whatever we've done in the Judicial Article for that purpose alone, so that the matter may be reached if this body wishes to reach it. But the Chair feels that we should not allow amendments to the other articles which have been reached and where other people have been bat-red by failure to be able to get enough people to suspend the rules or by failure to reconsider or by not being on the prevailing side at the right time. In other words, all these rules that-by which we protect our work should not be easily overturned by grafting onto the General Government Article something we have already decided. Now, that's the Chair's ruling; if you care to challenge it, well, let's challenge it.

Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mr. Chairman. I'll challenge the rule of the Chair and ask for a vote of the house to allow a vote on the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The Chair will allow Mr. Holland's challenge to the Chair's ruling. We will vote on it in a minute, after you've discussed it if you care to. You will recall that the motion that will be put is to sustain the challenge. So you would vote Yes to sustain Mr. Holland; you would vote No to sustain the Chair. The Chair has a right to explain his ruling. I think I've adequately explained my ruling to you; I won't explain it any more. You may discuss it.

Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I must rise to state I think the Chair is absolutely right in this ruling that you can't hook onto something, and there is a way-we've been doing always in the past-and beings this is the last article, I think it would be awful if, all of a sudden, we all got to hooking on things that have been in the past. And I am in favor-1 might state that I am in favor of Mr. Aronow's idea, but I think that the proper procedure is the way the Chair has said it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman. I think it's only fair to point out, in answer to Mr. Mahoney, that we haven't always done this this way in the past and that when we considered the Executive Article, we tacked on a provision relating to Legislature audit, and at the time that we did it, we discussed it and it was decided that, even though it belonged in the Legislative Article, that we'd consider it-put it in the Executive Article and then Style and Drafting could put it back in the Legislative Article, where it belonged, later on; and that was, in fact, done. If we do what we're proposed to do here now, we're just doing what we did before and the President has already established for it. I submit that we should go ahead and do this this way.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. President. At this late stage of the game, I'm very, very disturbed at your latter statement, where you said that you could bring this matter up for reconsideration possibly later on. Does that mean, then, that after we have worked over these articles and have them in final consideration, that somebody can then amend them again?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Are you addressing an inquiry from me?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I am addressing that to you, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair is of the opinion that this body is plenary, and if you want to suspend your rules at any time, you can suspend your rules. Now, whether or not you should is another matter, and I-but I think that the Chair has the right to rule that that should be done at an appropriate time. This is not a motion to suspend the rules. I'm not saying that I favor it or vote for it, but I'm saying that if we wanted to suspend the rules today and redo something, I guess we could. There's really nothing says we can't; we have a rule that says the rules can be suspended. I am merely pointing out there is a way to do it, and I'm not going to let them do it this way if I can help it. When they do it the otherway, those who don't want the rules suspended will have to defend themselves.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: May I just make one more comment, sir?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I would caution every delegate in this assembly to be very aware of anything that comes, from now on, in this manner. Just think about everything that comes from now on. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I would just like to point out to the delegation that in a one-house body, this is the only opportunity you have to reconsider anything that you've done if you have--until everyone is satisfied that the vote is exactly the way that we take it. Now, on the close votes, there's nothing wrong in reconsidering to see what we've-see if we've really done what we intended to do. If we had a two-body assembly, where it went back and forth, it's a little different; but with one body, this is the only opportunity we have-and that's in reconsideration. However, I do support the President in what he has said up there right now; this is not the right place to do it. But, later on, when the time is right, I'll support that move to reconsider, to suspend the rules, because it's only right that we give everybody a-one last chance to take a look at anything we do.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, Does anyone have the vote on that-from Mr. Eskildsen's-was it a close vote?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I announced it a few minutes ago as 58 to something-you mean the vote on this issue before? The vote to delete Section 11 as 57 to 31.

Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman. I would just like to caution the delegates that if we do not sustain the ruling of the Chair, then under this General Government, everyone here who has any dissatisfaction with any article can merely make an amendment, we'll have to debate every one of them. And the only proper way is to reconsider or suspend the rules.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Holland's motion challenging the decision of the Chair to disallow Mr. Aronow's amendment. The proper form is-of the question is: Does the house-or does the body sustain the challenge? That means, if you vote Aye-on a roll call vote, if you vote Aye, you're voting for Mr. Holland; if you vote Nay, you're voting to sustain the Chair.

Mrs. Pemberton, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: I would just like to ask one question. I'm sorry to have it brought up right at this instant, but what-for the uninitiated in these affairs, what does final draft mean, then?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Final approval?

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: Yes, final approval-which we-1 thought that was the very end.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It is, except this body has the power to suspend its rules, Mrs. Pemberton.

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And when we adjourn sine die, that's the only thing we can't undo, then we're done. (Laughter) We're done as far as the constitutional drafting is concerned; we're not done as far as spending the money, but we're done considering the articles when we adjourn sine die.

Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman. I assume that under the rules as you announced them, if Mr. Holland's motion is defeated, we still have recourse to the right to suspend the rules and proceed?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, I announced that I would allow, at some appropriate time, that remedy to be attempted. I don't want to tell you, but somebody's got to decide whether you can do this or a lot of people might be working over the noon hour. All right, is there any other discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The motion will be a roll call vote on whether or not to sustain the challenge of the Chair. If you vote Aye, you're sustaining the challenge; if you vote No, you're sustaining the Chair. I asked for the roll call, do I have any seconds?

(Affirmative response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay, has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate want to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 16 delegates voting Aye, 79 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 16 delegates having voted Aye and 79, No, the challenge is not sustained and Mr. Aronow's motion is wiped out. Is there other discussion of Section 1?

Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: I don't like Section 1 because I feel that the Legislature is primus inter pares or, even more than that, that the Legislature is supreme, over the Executive and over the Judicial; but I am not going to make any amendments.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Section 1?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Members of the body, you have before you for your consideration, upon a motion of Mr. Etchart that when this Committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1 of the General Government Article on general government, that we recommend it be adopted. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Mr. Clerk, would you read Section 2.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2. Continuity of government. The seat of government shall be in Helena except during periods of emergency resulting from disasters or enemy attack. The Legislative Assembly may enact laws to insure the continuity of governmental operations during a period of emergency. Such laws may deviate from other provisions of the Montana Constitution conflicting therewith but shall be effective only during the period of emergency that affects a particular office of the governmental operation." Mr. Chairman, Section 2.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Etchart.

DELEGATE ETCHART: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this Committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration General Government Proposal Number 12, Section 2, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Etchart.

DELEGATE ETCHART: Mr. Chairman. This section would revise the provisions in Article X, Sections 2, 3 and 4, of the present Constitution relating to the seat of government and Article V, Section 46, relating to continuity of government. The proposed section is sufficient to allow the Legislature to enact laws to provide for continuity of government under any situation which may arise.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. You have before you, on Mr. Etchart's motion, Section 2. All in favor of Section 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And it's adopted. Will the clerk read Section 3?

CLERK HANSON: "Section 3. Oath of office. Members of the Legislative Assembly and all officers, executive, administerial or judicial, shall, before they enter upon the duties of their respective offices, take and subscribe the following oath of affirmation, to-wit: 'I do solemnly swear or affirm that I will support, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of Montana and that I will discharge the duties of my office with fidelity; so help me God.' And no other oath, declaration or test shall be required as a qualification for any office or public trust." Mr. Chairman, Section 3.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Etchart.

DELEGATE ETCHART: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this Committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration General Government Proposal Number 12, Section 3, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, this section on the oath is a shortened version of the oath presently contained in Article XIX, Section 1, of the present Constitution. This oath contains the intent of the present Constitution's oath, but without the extensive detail. The proposed oath also allows a person of any religious persuasion, including an atheist or agnostic, to take the oath without violating his principles. The provision also prohibits any other oath as a qualification for any state public office.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, is there discussion of Section 3 and the oath?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Members of the committee, you have before you, on the recommendation of Mr. Etchart that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 3, that we recommend the same be adopted. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 3 is adopted. Will the clerk read Section 4.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 4. Initiative. The people may enact laws by initiative in all matters except appropriations of money and local or special laws prohibited by this Constitution. The highway revenue provided for in Article blank, Section 6, shall nevertheless be subject, to appropriation by initiative. Initiative petitions must be signed by 5 percent or more of the legal voters in each of one-third or more of the legislative representative districts, and the total number of signers must be 5 percent or more of the total legal voters of the state. Each petition must contain the full text of the proposed measure. Petitions must be filed with the Secretary of State 4 months or more prior to the election at which they will be voted upon. The enacting clause of all initiative measures shall be: 'Be it enacted by the people of the State of Montana'." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Etchart.

DELEGATE ETCHART: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration General Government Proposal Number 12, Section 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Etchart.

DELEGATE ETCHART: This is the provision for statutory initiative agreed on by the General Government and the Legislative Committees, jointly. The General Government Committee feels the petition requirements of 5 percent in each of one-third or more of the legislative representative districts and 5 percent or more of the total legal voters of the state are high enough to prevent frivolous legislative efforts by a small minority, yet low enough to allow serious popular measures to be initiated by the people. Incidentally, the 5 percent is 3 percent lower than the present Constitution allows for.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Loendorf, you have an amendment up here. Would you like the clerk to read it?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Please, Mr. Chairman.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 4, page 4, lines 18, 19 and 20, of the General Government Committee proposal Number 12 by deleting the following words: 'The enacting clause of all initiative measures shall be: Be it enacted by the people of the State of Montana.' Signed: Loendorf." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Mr. Chairman. The purpose of this amendment is to simply remove from the Constitution a provision which may prevent laws being declared void on a technical basis. This provision has nothing to do with the substance of anything. And let me explain by an analogy which, I think, illustrates the point, although it's perhaps not a fair analogy. Supposing this required-the Constitution required that initiatives be written out on yellow paper and someone drafted one on white paper and the court declared it void. That's exactly what has happened in the past under this-a similar provision. We also had under the Legislative Article a clause for bills, which is the same, only it read: "Be it enacted by the Legislative Assembly of the State of Montana." An old 1937 law was declared void on this basis when the Legislature inadvertently used the enacting clause: "Be it enacted by the people of the State of Montana" instead of "Be it enacted by the Legislative Assembly of the State of Montana." Neither of these phrases had anything to do with the law passed, yet the law was declared void because the Constitution required this phrase be a part of the bill. I was a member of the joint committee that met on this as a member of the Legislative subcommittee, and I'm sorry—and I would like to share the blame-for not having taken this sentence out earlier and having to bring it before the body now. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: The General Government Committee is all in favor of this amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue before us, then, is Mr. Loendorf's amendment to strike lines 18 through 20—most of those lines-the sentence being: "The enacting clause of all initiative measures shall be: 'Be it enacted by the people of the State of Montana.'"

Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, might--would the gentleman, Mr. Etchart, yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Etchart?

DELEGATE ETCHART: Yes

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Why did you continue to use the 4 months for this time, instead of going down to-with all our modern communications and everything we have?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, just a minute, Mr. Mahoney; you're off the subject, aren't you? The subject is whether or not to eliminate—

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Oh-oh-I-I beg your pardon.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I haven't quite put that question to a vote yet; I was trying to. All right, now, everyone understands Mr. Loendorf wants to strike that "be it enacted" language. All in favor of Mr. Loendorf s amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, say NO.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It carries, and the language will be stricken.

Now, Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Now, might I renew my question to Mr. Etchart?

DELEGATE ETCHART: Yes. Well, we thought the 4 months would give people enough time to consider it, even with our better communications.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Can you--with all we have now-say these people-1 mean-this would mean July, this has to be in. I was wondering, did you ever give any thought to 60 days or something like that? I think we're going to try and get away from elections fooling around too long, having this long time between primaries. I'm wondering, if we don't defeat some things or get some things too long, that the people lose interest in them. Did you ever give any thought to that?

DELEGATE ETCHART: Well, the committee discussed it briefly, Mr. Mahoney, but didn't feel that there was any real advantage to shortening it up more than 4 months. We thought that it would be beneficial to have enough time for all the people to study it out.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I'm looking for the line-all I want to do, if I can find the right line-it's in line 16—and I would like to strike that from "four months" to "two months". I move it, Mr. Chairman, if I can without a written amendment. I couldn't get it up there later-It's only one word.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We'll allow your amendment, Mr. Mahoney. Mr. Mahoney wishes to amend line 16 by taking out the word "four" and putting in the word "two", so that it means that the petitions must be filed with the Secretary of State 2 months or more prior to the election. Mr. Mahoney, you through?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, as I have done so often in the past during this convention, I heartily endorse Mr. Mahoney's amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President, I resist the motion to change this to 2 months. There are certain work to be done by the Secretary of State; things have to go out to the clerks-clerk and recorders office in connection with these matters, and I think that 2 months is just a little bit too short. I don't believe it hurts the people of the State of Montana to have something on their agenda for 4 months. Initiated measures are an unusual way of passing legislation. Preferably legislation should be passed by the Legislature, where it can be discussed, debated and all the changes that are made that are been made by this convention, to make good legislation. Initiative measures, by and large, in my opinion, are the result of a small group who get together, they come up with an idea, they don't discuss the thing properly, but they-as far as wordage is concerned—but they decide they want something done; so they put the measure on the ballot and away they go. And I think it will be well for the people of the State of Montana to have 4 months to deliberate on it; and I resist the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Vermillion.

DELEGATE VERMILLION: Mr. President, I resist the amendment, and I think we should make clear that what we're saying here is that the petitions must be filed with the Secretary of State within 4 months, and not when they go out to the voter. It might be that the 4 months-that gets the Secretary of State's office busy at getting these things printed up and sent out to the voters, and they should have, I think, at least 50 or 60 days to study these things. If these petitions were filed with the Secretary of State only 60 days before the election, the voters might have only 20 or 30 days to look over. So I think that if you want them to have 60 days to look it over, they should—the petition should be given to the Secretary of State about 4 months before the election.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, in answer to that, this Constitution isn't going to have very long out here, not 4 months or any time like that. It's just kind of getting in line with the Constitution. I believe we got about 30, 40 days after it gets down there-it's going to be 60 days, we have to be 60 days in there; so I think we're just kind of getting along with the way we're operating the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Choate.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Chairman, there is one other point that maybe Mr. Mahoney hadn't considered. In our referendum and initiative thing in the other article, we provide that the Secretary of State shall certify these petitions. Now, in order for him to do that, he's got to have the County Clerks-if this is a statewide petition, they have to be checked in the counties, and that's going to take a little time. If the petition is filed with him and he has to have it back to the people on the ballot within 60 days, it might not have time enough to go back to the counties for the County Clerks to certify the petitions within their respective counties. So I think that it takes, maybe, a little more than 60 days, and I believe the 4-month period would suffice.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Correction to what Mr. Choate said. If you are getting an initiative signed, they go through and are certified in all the counties first, and then only do they go to the Secretary of State's office. This is one of the big messes about getting an initiative petition. A person getting an initiative signed can get them all in to the county clerk, and then if the county clerk for some reason holds them up and doesn't get them in to the Secretary of State's office by the deadline, you're dead. So, after this date of getting them in to the Secretary of State's office, they do not then have to be checked by the County Clerks any more.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Mahoney's motion to change the word "four"-F-O-U-R-to the word "two" on line 16, so that you only have to have these petitions in to the Secretary of State 2 months before the election. All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Noes have it.

Mr. Joyce, you have an amendment before the Chair, do you want us to read it?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Please, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 4 by adding a new sentence on line 28, page 9, to read as follows: 'The sufficiency of the initiative petitions—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -shall not be question—

CLERK HANSON: -shall not be questioned once the election is held.' Signed: Joyce."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. He wants to add-Mr. Joyce wants to add a sentence, at the end of Section 4, to say: "The sufficiency of the petitions shall not be questioned once the election is held." Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. I propose to add this sentence just to make perfectly clear-I--when I was a young lawyer and knew everything, much more than I do now, I had the privilege of being an assistant attorney general and had the privilege of arguing in the Supreme Court of Montana the veterans' bonus initiative, and one of the challenges that was made in that case, after the election was held and after it passed overwhelmingly, was that the petitions that had been circulated in the various counties were insufficient, that some of the names were forgeries, and that sort of thing. And the argument was made, quite seriously, that, since the Constitution required that these petitions be signed by the sufficient number in each county-and we had the dilemma, then, of going back and trying to prove whether or not some of them were forgeries. We argued to the Supreme Court that once the election was held, it couldn't be challenged, but notwithstanding, the attorney on the other side kept needling us that the Constitution was mandatory. And so, I just thought that perhaps this little sentence wouldn't do any harm to--would make it perfectly clear in the future that once the election is held, why, you can't challenge the sufficiency of the petitions.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of Mr. Joyce's amendment. I had personal experience with such an election where the petition was disqualified for strange reasons: because a physician put the word "Doctor" in front of his name, or a lady put "Mrs." in front of her name. We won in the Supreme Court, but I think this sort of thing would definitely need a remedy in this Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Joyce's amendment, which would add, at line 18 on page 4, a sentence which would say: "The sufficiency of the initiative petition shall not be questioned once the election is held." So many as shall be in favor of that amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Is there other discussion?

Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I move to amend, on page 4, line 16, the last word, "four", by deleting it and adding the word "three".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Foster has an amendment, similar to Mr. Mahoney's amendment, changing it from "four" to "three" instead of "four" to "two", so that everybody understands it.

Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: I think that the remarks that Delegate Mahoney made were very well put, and I also felt that some of the remarks of those who felt that 2 months was not quite sufficient time could be satisfied by making it 3 months. This is obviously a compromise between the two positions, and I thinkitwould improve the section. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Will Mr. Etchart yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Etchart?

DELEGATE ETCHART: I yield.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Mark, in the—your first General Government Article that we dealt with, on constitutional initiatives for calling a constitutional convention, you didn't mention any time limit in terms of when the petitions had to be filed. And I was wondering what your reasoning was in terms of why, now, you should put this in and not before in the other article.

DELEGATE ETCHART: Well, this is in the present Constitution, and we felt it has been well tested through the courts. And the-I think both the Legislative and-the Legislative Committee and our committee felt that there was some value in retaining a lot of the language from the present Constitution. So, I think that was the main reason we left it in.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Mr. President. Will you yield to one more question?

DELEGATE ETCHART: I yield.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Etchart.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: I-I see that point, but when I compare these two articles, there just doesn't seem to be much consistency in terms of either procedure for initiative-and, of course, the numbers and percentages in the districts vary a great deal, too-, but it just seems that if you are going to write a time limit in on one initiative procedure, it should perhaps be written into the other, or I think, as we've kind of indicated just on the discussion that maybe 4 months is too much, 2 months is not enough, that this might be something better left to the Legislature to determine.

DELEGATE ETCHART: Well, I-Miss Robinson, in our-thinking of the committee is that the initiative on constitutional amendment would be used very, very rarely, so we didn't go into quite as much detail with it. Also, if you will notice, we require 10 percent of the voters on the constitutional provision and we only require 5 percent of the voters on our initiative in this section; and the reason for that was to make it easier to amend the statutes than it is to amend the Constitution. So we feel that it will be a very rare occasion that the initiative will be used in constitutional revision and amendment; but this provision to amend the statutes probably will be used a— quite a bit.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Mr. Foster's amendment?

DELEGATE FOSTER: Could we have a roll call?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster wants a roll call vote. All in favor of Mr. Foster's amendment, which is to change "four" to "three", vote Aye on the voting machines; and all opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 63 delegates voting Aye, 29 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 63 having voted Aye and 29 voting No, the amendment prevails and on line 16, you should amend the word "four" to "three".

Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman. I have something of a little more substantive nature here, I feel, and I think it ought to be brought up. This morning-first, I'll make-propose an amendment: it's very simple. It would simply delete the section that was added by voice after the asterisk in line 10 this morning--after the word "situation", in Section 4. Those words are "The highway revenue provided for in Article blank, Section 6, shall nevertheless be subject to appropriation by initiative." My amendment is to delete that, to restore the article to what it was before that addition was made. And I will give you my line of reasoning and not argue the point, then. Just-I think the body ought to be aware of what this will do. Mr. Etchart, Chairman of the committee, was perfectly correct when he pointed out that differences in the amendment to the Constitution by initiative procedure and in the amendment to statute initiative section we are now dealing with, Section 4. It takes 10 percent of the voters to get an initiative on the ballot to amend the Constitution; this section calls for 5 percent to get an initiative on the ballot to change a law. Now, put that one fact together with this fact: the first sentence of Section 4-the present Section 4 on initiative: "The people may enact laws by initiative on all matters except appropriations of money" and so forth. Now, then, our Legislative Committee at first was dealing with this matter before it was passed to General Government. We talked at length on this. We were very much in favor of the initiative and the referendum; completely in favor of it. We also came out, I think unanimously, in favor of making an exception in terms of appropriations. Now, for example, when the public starts making appropriations or starts cancelling appropriations that have been made and appropriations of funds on which agencies have already budgeted and so forth, you get into a really ticklish area. And so, while we were all for keeping everything open to the public in terms of initiative referendum, we were leery at that point, and so we supported wholeheartedly the General Government's approach to this matter of leaving appropriations out of this. Now, then, put those two things together. What one appropriation mentioned in the Constitution will now be eligible for removal by initiative initiated by only 5 percent of the people? You guessed it-the highway antidiversion measure-or however you want to title it. I feel that this inclusion is no accident. And I simply wanted to call it to the attention of the floor before it went through just as part. and parcel of this thing, which we have not had on our desks, you see, to look at as we have had the rest of it. And I think we just simply ought to know that we're making an exception for this one thing for a very specific purpose, contrary to the general rule in the first sentence of Section 4 and, of course, in a much weaker fashion, allowing an amendment of the Constitution on this one point for 5 percent instead of 10 percent as the original article called for.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The Chair will allow Mr. Harper an amendment, the purpose of which is to delete the material that was added by the committee before it presented this report, about the highway revenue provided for in Article blank, Section 6, "shall nevertheless be subject to appropriation by initiative". And it is now open for discussion.

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President, I don't believe the addition to this Section 4, as made by the General Government Committee, was made because of any general disagreement with the principles which Mr. Harper discussed. However, this convention voted, in passing the Revenue and Finance measure, the following provision, which is Section 2, subsection 2, of Section 6: "Such revenue may be appropriated for other purposes by a three-fifths vote of the members of each house of the Legislature or by initiated measure approved by a majority of the qualified electors." This body, by a majority vote, has said in that specific section that that particular thing could be initiated; and it's a matter of trying to eliminate a conflict between the initiative section which we have proposed and subsection 2 of Section 6, which this body has adopted, that that was added for. We would be very happy, I think, if they would strike out the initiated measure in subsection 2 of Section 6, but there's got to be some correlation between the two.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee. Some time ago, when we were debating the highway matter, Mr. Etchart came to me asking if we could take care of this conflict in Style and Drafting, and at that time I told him I thought it would need some kind of an amendment, either to the revenue and finance Section 6 article or to this one, and we decided that this would be the place to take care of it. I have no substantive interest in it, except that it would have been a substantive matter if it had come out of Style and Drafting with that amendment in there, because we wouldn't be entitled to make that amendment. So we thought the easiest way was to put this language in at this point so that the substantive material could be handled by the Committee of the Whole and then Style and Drafting would have no problems. There is definitely a conflict. If you read that section and keep in mind that Section 6 of the highway-of the revenue and finance provision allows just exactly what this prohibits-so there must be something done somewhere to remove that conflict.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: For the benefit of the body, in case you don't have your Revenue and Finance Style and Drafting final adopted Section 6 before you, I'll read you subsection 2 of Section 6: "Such revenue may be appropriated for other purposes by a three-fifths vote of the members of each house of the Legislature or by initiated measure approved by a majority of the qualified electors." As I understand the situation-I'm not trying to argue it-the point is that that is a specific direction in Section 6 of Revenue and Finance that this money may be reached by initiation-I mean by initiative; we're now, in general government, setting up initiative; and ordinarily you can't appropriate by initiative, so there had to be an exception in the appropriation-in the General Government Article that denied the public the right to appropriate by initiative, and this is it. Now, let's discuss it.

Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Would Mr. Harper yield to a few questions, please, sir?

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. Harper, is your point that it is now easier, under this new section, with the 5 percent added, to, so to speak, get at this money by initiative? Is thatyourpoint?

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Champoux, that's exactly the point. At the time the Revenue and Finance Article was written and this reference which the Chairman just read, amendment by initiative, we had then passed in this body the amendment by initiative, Section 9, of their style-General Government report Number 2, which tells you how you, by initiative, may change the Constitution. And now we are coming back later, after that, with 10 percent in mind, and we voted for that with-this was on the books, in a sense-and now we're moving at 5 percent. I'm not really that hot on it; I just want to be understood that we're substantively changing this and we're, of course, doing it for this one measure and one measure only.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Is it your feeling, then, that we should increase this; is this your point OF not?

DELEGATE HARPER: Actually, I think --now I realize the boys-we're in a bind in terms of Style and Drafting and the rest of it-but it's something like we were talking to on Mr. Aronow's motion, although not completely. Really, if they want to make an exception to the way you amend the Constitution, it should have been put into—somewhere into Section 9 of their report Number 2, because Section 4 of the present report we are dealing with, initiative is talking about changing legislative matters; it is not talking about changing the Constitution. I don't want to belabor this point again, but I think it is a way of just cutting it in half, making it twice as easy to get the job done.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President. I would like to state that I don't know whether Mr. Harper is in error intentionally or just misstated himself, but this initiative does not have to do with amending the Constitution; this is legislative initiative. The initiative for amending the Constitution still requires 10 percent.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: He just told me that; he didn't ask me that. But if Imayrespond to it, well, then, I am-if I'm mistaken, it certainly is just because of my dumbness, and I'd like to clear it up. I thought this business we passed about the diversion money was going to be in the Constitution. See, I thought the Revenue and Finance Article was in-going to be in the Constitution; that's where I slipped up. Now if it is going to be in the Constitution, it seems to me like the only way to amend that is to amend the Constitution. That was my line of reasoning, Otto. Not true?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: No

DELEGATE HARPER: Well—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Babcock, I will come to you; but Mrs. Robinson has been up.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: I merely wanted to point out I think Reverend Harper is exactly right. There's another thing that's been overlooked. Not only are there differences between these two procedures in terms of percentage-10 percent for a constitutional amendment and 5 percent for legislative enactment-but it's also in terms of the number of districts that this petition signatures have to be spread over. In the constitutional amendment, they have to be obtained in two-fifths of the legislative districts, and to amend--or to enact legislation by initiative, they only have to be in one-third. And when you are talking about a 5-percent variance in terms of actual population, and then also a 7-percent variance in terms of distribution of petition signatures, you're talking about some real substantial differences.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Choate

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Chairman, I just might say that, for the edification of the people here, that in our committee we had no intention of trying to change this thing or put in something later. That is not the point of it. You see, our first article came out long before the revenue and finance article came out, and we had no way of knowing what that would have been; otherwise, we would have probably provided this in that report. And I'd say that if it could still be done, it probably would be more in order to revert it back to that one and leave it at 10 percent than as is presently provided for here. But that's the reason why it came out this way. Our report was out 2 weeks before the-or a week, at least, before the revenue and finance was; we had no knowledge of it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Babcock,

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman, I was just going to ask Reverend Harper a question. I wondered if he was planning on building a canoe this summer; seeing as how he doesn't approve of highways, maybe he could travel by boat.

DELEGATE HARPER: The answer is "No, I'm not planning on building a canoe."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: How about an ark? (Laughter)

DELEGATE HARPER: Well, if the deluge continues, I might have to, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman. I wish to apologize to the body for not noticing in-when it came out in Revenue and Taxation-or I'd have certainly been on my feet-that we were going to let electors appropriate and change this formula by initiative. I had thought that-and I hadn't read it, and I'm going to blame myself-I went to Mr. Schiltz later, and we discussed this this morning, and I didn't know that the electors was going to have any part of appropriation at all. And I think this is-Now, we have made a mistake; I think we have made a mistake in this body; and I think right now we could correct it by eliminating this and say, "You just can't do it over another section; let Style and Drafting determine that this is what the body wanted." And I think we have plenty of time here to do that at this time and leave this part where it says, "except appropriations". And I think this should be done and this is the time to do it. This is one of the problems that we're going to have in the future with-when the unicameral system gets in-and we're going to have to admit them and make mistakes and clean them up as we go along, Mr. President. And I think it would be well if we just amended that out and let Style and Drafting correct on the end and says, "There's no appropriation by anybody"; then this can't be done. If you go out here to the point of letting me come out here to get the gas, then, immediately you're going to find-we're going to be in a terrible shape. And I think we should draw back—admit our error, correct our mistake, right now. Now, I don't know if this is right or that we can do it, Mr. Chairman, and it'll take, probably, a ruling from the Chair. But I think we could go out and then let Style and Drafting correct it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harlow, you were up next.

DELEGATE HARLOW: Mr. Chairman. In order to clear up this confusion in regards to the initiative for amending the Constitution and the initiative for enacting laws or-there are two different requirements between amending the Constitution and enacting laws. We have no variation of thinking nor variation of initiative measures when we set up two different qualifications for amending the Constitution by initiative and for enacting laws by initiative. You cannot amend the Constitution through legislative action less than two-thirds of a total vote of the members; you can enact laws merely by a majority of those voting—so I do not think you need to be alarmed over the variation in these two things. Now, I think we do need to be alarmed by the sentencethatwasputin at the committee. And I was not present at the committee; I was away on Constitution--on Convention business and was unable to attend the meeting, so I'm not necessarily opposing the committee, but I am not-this is going to be real good, you'll get a laugh out of this-I'm not opposing the committee, but I don't think that's a good sentence to put in. So I think, keeping this thought in mind about the initiative for the amending the Constitution and initiative for laws, they should not be compatible. They should be different, as they are now. So let's just keep our minds on this section and not try to bring in the section on amending the Constitution by initiative. Thank you, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the motion to delete. And I think that maybe we could clear the whole matter up if somehow or other we could amend the tax and revenue section to say that the-somehow to read that the Legislature-such revenue may be appropriated for other purposes by three-fifths vote of the members of each house of the Legislature or by an initiated measure authorizing such appropriation. Because, as I recall, I think that must have been obviously the purpose-the intent of the committee, because it just never has been the situation of allowing people to appropriate money out of the public treasury by initiative in any constitution, because there may not be the money in there or they may appropriate more money than there is in there. And that just can't be, and I think that, obviously, the committee must have meant a-if the people got up an initiative authorizing the Legislature to divert it, that would be the same as a three-fifth vote. So I rise in support of the deletion in any event; let's not make the matter worse.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Cross.

DELEGATE CROSS: Mr. Chairman, if I recall correctly, the intent of the Committee of the Whole when we discussed this measure under Revenue and Finance-was to make the Highway Department more responsible to the Legislature. If this sentence changes that intent, then I think we should delete it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Here's where we have to be cautious. Now, there's no mistake, Charley Mahoney, on the antidiversion amendment. That's been passed twice here. The intent of this committee-the intent of the committee can be questioned in terms of the percentage; 1'11 submit to that. But the general intent of this body has been known twice on that vote. Now, the question here is not one of appropriations, as I see it; not one of appropriations. That's already been settled—twice-when we passed that antidiversion amendment. The question here is the percentage of voters to be allowed to petition for an initiative appropriation which we allowed under the section that we passed under Revenue and Finance. Now, Charley is trying to give the Style and Drafting, as I see it, a substantial change that we've already voted on that would open up the Finance and Revenue Article again; and I'm opposed to it. Now, the Reverend Harper is right; this is a deluge to becloud the issue. The issue is the percentage we want to initiate a petition for appropriations.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman, I discussed this with my committee Chairman, and we would like to make it clear that our committee didn't put this in because we were for it. I'm violently opposed to appropriation by initiative; and I was-like Charley, I didn't know it was in that diversion fund. So we just wanted-The reason we put this amendment in was to bring it to the floor's attention that there was a conflict. I think, through-Mr. Schiltz brought it to the Chairman's attention. And I'm like Mr. Mahoney, possibly we'll have to suspend the rules; I don't think Style and Drafting can do it; but if you don't want appropriation by initiative, then I think what you're going to have to do is suspend the rules, delete that from the antidiversion bill and then delete this. But if you want initiative-appropriation by initiative, then you're going to have to leave this in; and that's the decision this body's got to make-is what you want to do with that antidiversion measure.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. I think perhaps we're getting away from the purpose of the section that we approved in Revenue and Finance, and perhaps when I'm finished, somebody from Revenue and Finance can either agree or disagree with my analysis. Now, I frankly don't see any conflict. I don't think we need the section that is proposed by General Government, because I think when you construe sections, they've got to be placed together and you've got to construe them in pari materia, which is a recognized rule of legal construction to come out with the sense of what's intended. And I think what was intended, as I understood Revenue and Finance when I voted on it-it was simply this: that with respect to only one fund-that is, the highway revenue fund and no other-the people would have a right to divert part of that fund by placing the matter on the ballot and a majority of the electors approving it. I agree with Delegate Mahoney, we cannot have anything done by way of initiative or by any other means that would tend to affect the budget considerations of the Legislature. I don't think we are doing that in Revenue and Finance. I think we're saying that only in that one particular instance may the electors, in that fashion, indicate they want part of that fund diverted. That, in my judgment, would not in any way upset the budget considerations of the Legislature. And I would like to have Revenue and Finance tell me whether or not that analysis is correct.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman, of course, we're getting into a legal area. What I would like to suggest-if it's in order, I would like to suggest that we pass this Section 4 until, say 2:00 p.m. this day and that, personally, I think it would be all right to take this initiative part out of our Section 6, but I would like to have the opportunity to meet with our committee and see if they would agree on that. And that would be my reason for asking this: to give us a little time during the noon hour and maybe thresh this out and save some discussion on the floor. So I would move that we pass this Section 4 until 2:00 p.m. this day, if that hour is in thinking with yours.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg has a motion to pass Section 4, substitution motion for Mr. Harper's motion to delete. Is there any discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of passing Section 4 until 2:00 p.m.-it has to be till 2:00 p.m.-it has to be till a time certain under the rules--all in favor of passing Section 4 till 2:00 p.m., say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's passed.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman, I move the Committee of the Whole stand in recess until 1:30 this afternoon.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is to recess the Committee of the Whole until 1:30. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a moment-just a moment-Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Garlington, do you have an announcement?

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the members of the Ceremony Committee to meet in Room 431 up here for a brief meeting immediately upon adjournment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Upon adjournment, the Rules-the Ceremonies Committeemeet upstairs. Very well, the motion to recess has passed. We're in—

Mr. Rygg, do you want a motion-do you want the Revenue and Finance in-?

DELEGATE RYGG: Room 437, immediately on recess, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -437. Which one is that?-Is that education-I mean, is that Local Government?

DELEGATE RYGG: Yes, Local Government.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's Local Government. Very well. All in-you've all voted to recess, and we are recessed.

(Convention recessed at 12:30 p.m.—reconvened at 1:50 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Committee will be in order. The Committee will be in order. Very well, members ofthecommittee, beforelunch we were considering Section 4. We moved to pass Section 4 until 2:00 p.m. It isn't quite 2:00 p.m., but it's nearly 2:00 p.m. Perhaps we can start the discussion there so that we don't have to go on to something that we're not all thinking about. The Revenue and Finance Committee has met during the lunch hour, and I understand that Mr. Rygg wishes to be recognized.

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to speak on a point of personal privilege, if I may. Our committee, of course, met because we had to clear up what our actual reasoning or thinking was behind the wording in there--and sometimes what you think and what the words are don't agree-but we have come to the conclusion that we are in support of Mr. Harper's motion to delete, and we feel that if we can, probably like Mr. Dahood did this morning, read into the record our thinking on our terminology, that actually the two sections can stand as they are without conflict. Originally it was not the committee's thinking that the initiative of the people was to provide for the appropriating of funds or revenues, but our idea was that if a three-fifths vote of the Legislature could not be had, then the people would have the right by initiative to direct the Legislature to use these dedicated funds for other purposes. That really is the thinking of the committee when they wrote the article. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Rygg, you'll have those comments sent to the journal and they'll be entered in the journal. Now, with that understanding, apparently it's the-as the Chair understands that, it's the sense of the Revenue and Finance Committee that they want their language left alone but that they did not mean to grant the power of appropriation to the people but only the power for the people to authorize the Legislature to appropriate. With that comment added to their committee report, we are now debating Mr. Harper's motion that the material added by the committee, when they be-when they presented their proposal today, to Section 4—namely, that the highway revenue provided for in Article blank, Section 6, shall be-nevertheless be subject to appropriation by initiative-they are suggesting that be deleted. Now, the issue is on Mr. Harper's motion to delete that language which was added to the General Government's Section 4. Is there other discussion?

Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, there is a point of contention in my mind. Now, if I can resolve this, I will vote for deletion; but if I can't, I will vote against deletion. Now, here's the problem, as I see it. If you look at the Revenue and Finance Article, Section 6, sub. 2, it says "such revenue may be"-now, notice the words, "may be-appropriated for other purposes by a three-fourths vote of the house of each members-three-fifths vote of the members of each house of the Legislature or by initiated measure--approved by a majority of the qualified electors". Now, the key words there, it seems to me, are "may be" and "by initiated measure approved by a majority of the qualified electors". Now, that section, to me as I read it, gives the right. Okay, now, if you go to the general education-the General Government, Section 4, it says: "The people may enact laws by initiative on all matters except"-now, again, there's the key word-"appropriations of money and local or special laws prohibited by this Constitution." Now, it seems to me that on the one hand we are given the right; and in this section, it's taken away from us. If you put the amendment in, then it comes in agreement when it says, "The highway revenue provided for in Section 6, sub. 2, nevertheless shall be subject to appropriation by initiative." Now, what happens if you take this out? Well, then, both of these sections, as I see it, are in conflict. Now, if they are in conflict, and I-if somebody can convince me that they aren't, I'd be willing to accept it-but if you take this out-this amendment-and they remain in conflict, well, then, who is to resolve that conflict if we leave this as it's stated in both areas in this Constitution? I submit that the courts would be the ones to resolve that conflict, and in the process you might dilute the strength of both of those sections or bring them into question as to what we really meant here. Now, if we see the problem and the conflict is obvious to us here, then we must resolve it in this assembly. Now, the issue here, as I see it, isn't-the issue isn't whether the people have the right to appropriate money for revenue purposes by initiative. That's not the issue. Why isn't it the issue? Because we've already decided that issue by two votes when we voted for the antidiversion amendment. We've already decided that issue. That's locked up unless we want to open it up again and argue it out again, which, under the rules, we can do; but if we do that, of course, it will further weaken that antidiversion amendment. Now, having said that, if you delete this amendment, then you put this into conflict. Now, really, one of the problems may be here whether we feel philosophically whether people should have the right-the great majority of the people by initiative-to involve themselves in the budgeting process. Now, that may be a fundamental problem here. Now, we may-it seems to me we've resolved that when we voted for the antidiversion amendment. Now, maybe some of you weren't aware of this-that this thing was involved, this principle; but that's the way, as I see it; and to leave this unresolved here means that we have the conflict and it's going to be left up to the court. So I say, "Leave the amendment in if you want to keep appropriations by initiative of the people, and if you don't, take it out." But if you do that, then it's going to open up the antidiversion amendment, Section 6, into question, and something then has to be done with that. That's the way I-that's my problem. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman and delegates. I concur wholeheartedly with Mr. Champoux's explanation of this whole matter. I think if we leave this amendment in, there will be no doubt about our intent. I did not and do not agree with the idea in the Revenue and Finance Section; but as long as it's there, let's leave it there; and in order to keep everything clear, let's leave this amendment as it is and then there will be no question in anyone's mind what our intent is.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I was satisfied with the explanation that Chairman Rygg presented to the delegates, and if that explanation is not going to resolve the situation, then I think we'd better take another look at exactly what we're doing here. If we're going to leave it the way it is, the question then, becomes-let's assume that a revenue measure for an appropriation is initiated by the people. Let's take two budgetary periods, '73 and '75, so the budget is passed, let's say, in '73, and then there's an initiative by the people diverting some of the highway funds for a particular special purpose. We know that we can't back up to the '73 budget-that's already balanced, based on certain revenues-so then it has to go into the budget that is going to be next considered by the Legislature, and we're saying to the Legislature, "We've already made a diversion with respect to income, and that is set aside; now build the rest of the budget around it." I think we're taking a power away from the budget-making body that I don't think the people want us to do, and I think it tends to interfere with the fiscal integrity of the state. I think our forefathers knew what they were talking about and what they were writing about when they wrote in the first Constitution that appropriation matters shall never be subject to any type of action by the people by way of initiative. Now, as I gathered from the comments of the Chairman of Revenue and Finance, what's in subsection 2 of Section 6 is merely this: that the people may indicate to the Legislature that they may-that they want a diversion to take place, and then the Legislature that meets after that particular expression by the people will then decide just exactly how they're going to fit that into the general overall budget. If that explanation isn't correct--much as I dislike suggesting this-then I think we'd better recognize that we've made a mistake with respect to the fiscal integrity of the state and we'd better take that particular provision of subsection 2 of Section 6 out of Revenue and Finance and delete the sentence that we're talking about in Section 4 of General Government. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, I support the delegate from Deer Lodge. I don't see how in the world people are going to use this crazy section anyway, but it can cause all sorts of trouble and it can do little, if any, good. I don't see why it can-the Harper amendment to delete cannot be accepted and then the Convention suspend the rules and take up the Revenue and Finance and eliminate that last phrase. I don't think that is what any of us thought we were doing anyway; and then, as far as anyone being afraid to opening up the section now, I personally was against the thing, but after being run over by the locomotive and the whole bunch of cars afterwards twice, I'm quite sure that we-there would be no disposition on the part of anybody to go any farther. I support the Harper amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Mr. Chairman, I think we could debate this matter all day, and I agree with Mr. Dahood that I'm a little concerned here about saying one thing in the Constitution and then having to explain that to the people by saying, "Well, there's something else in the record that makes that mean something that it doesn't say there"; and therefore I'm going to move, at this time, as a substitute motion, to suspend the rules so that we may consider deleting the language in Section 6, subsection 2, of the Revenue and Finance Report Number 7. And that language I would like to delete is on-found on page 6, lines 12 and 13; and I would make this amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf, the Chair is going to rule you out of order on attempting to suspend the rules on a section that we're not debating. Now, I have already explained to this body once today that the people that want to amend it to take care of the Clerk of Court will have an opportunity to suspend the rules, but the time to suspend the rules on something in the Judicial Article is not while you are in the middle of debating the General Government Article. Now, we'll dispose of the Harper amendment one way or the other; and if you want to suspend the rules to change the Judicial Article, you can get in line with the people this morning. I'm not going to stop you from doing it, but I'm going to oppose doing it in the middle of the debate on General Government. Even though I see it's obviously apropos, it just seems to me we must follow the rules. Now, maybe you—If you care to challenge the Chair's ruling, go ahead.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Yes. I'm not going to challenge the Chair's ruling, but that makes it awful difficult, it seems to me. This question has to be determined before we can determine Harper's amendment, so-okay, someone says No. I support Harper's amendment anyway.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman. This brings up another question to me, and I might be wrong, but say that after we pass the Constitution and the people-now I have made-and so that they can have an amendment by initiative or by signatures-now, if this gets in in two spots, it will be-they'll have to go out and have two different amendments, as I understand, to try and arrive at the same thing. Now, if nothing else, if this Convention will not go any further, let's take this out of this article, so then the people won't have to go out and amend two articles of the Constitution when they try to amend this out, because I am sure that if this article is left this way, there will be an amendment submitted very quickly after this Constitution is adopted and—because if we don't, the people are going to find an awful lot of people will certainly not support the Constitution. I'd like to see it left, at least, if nothing else-and I said on this floor this morning and I'll repeat it again-1 wish to apologize to this Convention for not noticing this earlier. Then I think we could have had it better discussed on this point; and I'm going to take the blame for it. And I do think that this Convention-it won't hurt us to have a little confession of the soul and say we made a great mistake here and we're entitled to one in all the time we're at this Convention. We're entitled to one mistake, and I'm sure that the press won't ridicule us too much if we just honestly come out and we come to the point, if the majority-and I'll certainly support them to reconsider and limit it the same as we've limited the other--we did this in our other articles, right down definitely to a point-and say this is the only thing we're going to reconsider if we wish to take it out of that article. I'm willing to go that far, but to get a compromise here--and let's don't stand on protocol, let's don't do anything. Let's come out and send a document to these people. So, if you can't go for the suspension of the rules, please take this out so we won't make it tougher on the people to amend the Constitution, because I'm sure they're going to want to do it-letting appropriations by initiative would be terrible. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Will Mr. Mahoney yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I'll try.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Mahoney, if we pass the Harper amendment, then you will agree to suspend the rules for the purpose of striking out, in the Revenue and Finance Article, this terminology: "or by initiated measure approved by a majority of the qualified electors"?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I'll agree to that and limit it to that, so there's no other part of it's going to be open; and we have precedents for that in this body.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I will also go along with the Harper amendment with this supposition that we can suspend the rules and delete this section from the Revenue and Finance Article.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim, you have confused the Chair. I don't know about the rest of us. It would seem to me that, if you and Mr. Mahoney agreed to do that, you would strike Mr. Harper's amendment-or you would support Mr. Harper's amendment-is that what you mean? Very well, I understand.

Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Would Chairman Sterling Rygg submit to a few questions, please, sir?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. Rygg—Sterling, so we can get this cleared up in everyone's mind here, so that there isn't any confusion and we-1 don't agree with Charley Mahoney. I was aware, when I voted for this, exactly what we were doing, and I'm sure a lot of other people in this assembly were aware of what they were doing about this. However, I will submit that it could raise a number of problems. I will agree with that. Now, somebody had to put that in that section. Now, who did it in the committee and for what reason? Surely, the committee debated this.

DELEGATE RYGG: Well, we put it in there. Apparently we weren't too careful of the wording. We weren't aware of that. I don't know who put it in the committee. I can't tell you that, but it was put in there with the thinking that if the three-fifths vote was not gotten in the Legislature, then the people would have the right to ask the Legislature to use these funds for other purposes. I can't name the man; I don't know who it was. But that's-that was the thinking of the committee; that's why it went in there.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Now, when you-may I ask another question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: When you did discuss this, did you think of it in terms of specific appropriations, or just simply opening it up for general appropriations?

DELEGATE RYGG: Well, we had no thought at all of having the people appropriate the money. That wasn't our thinking at all. Our thinking was that they could direct the Legislature to divert this money into-for other purposes than highway purposes. Nothing specific, no.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: May I make a few comments, sir?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Again, then -it seems to me, then, that what we're debating here is whether we want to accept the philosophy of the people to appropriate money by initiative. Now, this could be, as Mr. Dahood said, could result in a lot of problems, and I think that's the major point. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee. I object to the idea where Mr. Aasheim and Mr. Mahoney can make some kind of a deal and I'm supposed to go along with it, and I'm not going to. If we suspend the rules in order to do this, we ought to get back-and if we're going to make any deals, we ought to get back to what the committee intended, which was that the people can require the Legislature to do what that thing says. And that's what you said in your--was your intent, and I'm not party to any deals between Aasheim and Mahoney, I'll tell you that. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: This morning, Delegate Dahood got up and, in response to some newspaper material, specifically stated for the record that the provision in the Bill of Rights did not mean to limit, in any intent, no-fault insurance for the State of Montana. The Revenue and Finance Committee did not intend that the people appropriate money, per se, when they wrote that in there. They did intend that the people. by initiative by a majority of the people, could direct the Legislature to use the money for purposes other than stated in the Constitution; and I submit to you that if we accepted Delegate Dahood's explanation this morning--and I think we accepted it in good faith that there was no intent--I think, by the same token, we can accept the same kind of reading into the record this afternoon that it was the intent of the Revenue and Finance Committee to give the people by initiative-it's still a majority of the people, 51 percent-that we give them by initiative the right to direct the Legislature to use or appropriate highway revenues for purposes other than specifically stated in the Constitution. And I would like the delegation to support the Revenue and Finance position as they supported Delegate Dahood's proposal this morning.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: I think that we're speaking of two different things here, because I believe that our article which Delegate Dahood spoke about this morning clearly did not say, and I think that the lawyers in the body who have looked at it could see no way it could be interpreted to say, that it prohibited no-fault insurance. The difference here is that, no matter what the intent of the committee was, that the provision clearly does say that this money may be appropriated by initiative. I can't see that we have this much of a problem. I think that if we go ahead and delete the provision from the General Government Article, accept Harper's amendment, I think that it's quite obvious that the group will agree to suspend the rules to go back and make the change we need. I don't think that we can delete it with the assurance that this will happen, but I think that-you know, considering that we're reasonable people—we don't want to submit a document to the public which is going to have to be amended and changed, as Mr. Mahoney suggested it might be. I think we-you know, we pretty well have to risk it at this point. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I would like to ask a question of the Chair. I think the Chair has correctly ruled in regard to Mr. Loendorf's motion, particularly in respect to what was done otherwise. However, I think the real question that we're faced with is: you cannot properly vote on a motion to delete, assuming that this body is going to do something else in regard to the Revenue and Finance measure. And would it be in order to bring this matter to a head, out of context where it doesn't belong, but so we get one-the thing that should be decided first-decided-to challenge the ruling of the Chair and then see if we could get the Revenue and Finance Article ended and then go back to the other? Would the court--would the Chair entertain--would a challenge of the Chair's ruling affect that? That's what I'm trying to get at.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well—

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I think the Chair's ruling is correct. I just don't want it to go the way the Chair—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You'd like to do it incorrectly, because it's easier?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Yes. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, maybe the Chair would, too. The Chair is bothered by one thing. And I've listened carefully to the debate, and without entering into the debate, I would like to observe that you're really talking about three things, and not two things, out there. Some of you want to leave it as it is, with the Harper amendment in or out; some of you want to go back and change the antidiversion section; but when you get that group that wants to go back and change, some of you want to just knock out the words "initiative" and others of you want to say what the committee says it meant. And there's two things—there's two possibilities back there--and I think it's the fact that there are two possibilities when you get Section 6 opened that bothers the committee and a lot of other people. And, you know, you really are not of one mind when you get it opened, and I think that's what's bothering a lot of people about opening something that we don't know what we're going to do with when we get it open. We not only don't know whether we're going to go back and open it, Mr. Habedank—we don't know when we get it opened what we're going to do; and that's the problem. That's why the Chair is a little reluctant to-out of order and to make it easier—blow the lid off.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I agree with the Chair as to what can happen, but whatever is decided there then, you know, it's decided and you can govern the other section accordingly. And if we're going to open it, it's my feeling we might just as well open it now and whatever way the lid blows off, that's the way it's blown; and then we can govern ourselves correctly in connection with the General Government Article.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'm sure we'll hear some more debate.

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman, would it be possible to segregate this section from the Committee of the Whole report and—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: There's a rule against segregation in the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. I'd observe there's a fourth thing to add to what you've suggested that's in evidence here, and that is that there is a real reluctance on the part of some of the delegates to open up one article that we've already passed, because they see that this might lead to opening up other articles.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: True.
