DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman. I rise in opposition to Mr. Etchart's motion and support Mr. Aasheim's. I feel that a body of 40 is not an adequate number to even staff the committees that are necessary in a working body; and in order to assure adequate representation to our rural areas, I support Mags, and not Mr. Etchart's. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. President [Chairman] and fellow delegates. We already, in our Constitutional Convention, districted to 23 districts. Why not 46 senators and 92 legislators, without leaving it to a new Legislature to decide what size they're going to be? Set it at 46 and 92. It would be a little less than what we're talking about and a little bit more, in some respects, than what we're talking about. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Gysler.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Chairman. I'm going to support Mr. Etchart's amendment now, and then if that fails, support Mr. Aasheim's. But I think that there's one thing that all of us from the rural area should recognize and think about. As Mr. Davis has said, regardless of what happens numberswise, some towns in this state can control it. I had hoped that by the time we got the Convention this far, that some things would have happened that haven't as yet happened. But I am sure that, at a meeting coming up pretty soon, all of the farm groups organizations in the State of Montana, for the first time, are going to start getting together on some things. And one of these things is what the rural people, the agricultural people of the State of Montana, should have been doing for a long time, and that is letting the people in the cities and the urban areas know that there are a lot of farm dollars being circulated in this state. I feel that when this is worked out with the farm groups and when this kind of a promotion starts, for the first time in many a year that we in the rural areas aren't going to have to worry about being outvoted by the people in the cities. When the people in the cities can walk down their streets on a Saturday or any day of the week and find out how many rural people they have in their town, they're going to recognize where an awful lot of the economy of the State of Montana comes from. And I'm certainly not worried about going to the bottom of 40 and 80 and the maximum of 50 and a hundred as we have right now. I think this 50 and a hundred we should keep, because this is what it is. But unless the people in the rural areas get together and do things like I hope the farm organizations will start on next week or week after when they have their meetings, we're dead sunk no matter how many members we have in there. So I support this Etchart amendment to start with.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Members of the body, you have before you Mr. Etchart's amendment to lower the Senate minimum to 40 and the House minimum to 80; that's from 45 and from 90. We want a roll call vote. So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Etchart's amendment, please vote Aye on the voting machines; so many as opposed, please vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate want to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman. 62 delegates voting Aye, 30 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 62 having voted Aye and 30 voting No, Mr. Etchart's motion prevails. And the minimum in Mr. Aasheim's amendment is 40 on the Senate and 80 on the House. Is there further discussion on Mr. Etchart's-or Mr. Aasheim's motion'?

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I would point out that somewhere in this Legislative Article it provides that a senatorial district be made up of two representative districts. And I don't know if you can make that work out if you have anything but two to one provided for.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair would observe that the minimums, at least, would allow two to one. Very well, the issue is on Mr. Aasheim's motion. His motion is to change, in Section 2 of the bicameral-if you're on page 7, and the bicameral section-the maximum in the Senate is to be 50 and, as amended, the minimum is to be 40; the maximum in the House is to be 100 and the minimum in the House is to be 80. Do you want a roll call? Very well. You want a roll call. So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Aasheim's amendment, vote Aye; and so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

Mrs. Pemberton.

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: Mr. President [Chairman]. There's some question in this area of the hall-the exact way we're supposed to be looking at this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, I'm sorry. The vote is on-and you can explain your vote. I've explained that you're voting on Mr. Aasheim's amendment, which is to change the bi-cameral size of the Legislature so that the Senate is 40 and 50 and the House is 80 and a hundred. That's his amendment. It changes it from the 53 and 50 and from the 106 and a hundred. The vote is still open. Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

Mr. Romney, for what purpose—

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Would you please state that again, the numbers?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim's amendment now reads that the maximum in the Senate would be 50 and the minimum would be40; and in the House, the maximum would be a hundred and the minimum would be 80. You're aware that Mr. Etchart amended the bottom limits of Mr. Aasheim's motion. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 77 delegates voting Aye, 16 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 77 voting Aye, 16 voting No, Mr. Aasheim's amendment prevails. Are there other-is there anything else about the numbers? If not—

Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to explain my vote. Not only my vote but—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, wait a minute. I'm sorry; you have to explain your vote before the vote is taken-while the vote is being taken. And there was lots of time. If you voted wrong and would like the journal to show so, you may certainly do so.

DELEGATE MARTIN: I don't want to do that. I thought you said we could explain our vote.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You may explain your vote, under the rules, until I close the ballot. And there was lots of time; and you certainly may put on the journal something if you want to, but the vote is already cast. But if you wanted the journal to show something, go ahead and state it.

DELEGATE MARTIN: My reason for voting No is for the reason that I'm going to continue and be consistent in voting No. Once we decide something, it seems we should be able to stand up for it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Now, just a minute-Mr. Aasheim, do you want to move that Section 2 of the Legislative Bicameral Article be adopted?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman. I move to adopt-Section 2 of the bicameral article, as on page 7, be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, I think you mean to say that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2 of the—

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I just said it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -bicameral article, that this committee report to the Convention that it be adopted. Is that what you say?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: That's what I said, yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's adopted as amended. Now, the Chair sees that it's-the hour is late and rather than go on with yours, Mr. Harper, I'm going to recess. But before we recess, Mr. Murray, the Chair would like--unless someone objects, the Chair would like to make two announcements, or three announcements. First of all, some of you might want to arrange during the lunch hour or call your wives—the wives are having a luncheon tomorrow and reservations are necessary. And Mrs. Garlington has arranged to have a speaker discussing interesting and old houses in Helena. And it looks like a good program, so if your wife is not attending yet, and you want to check on it, will you please check and make these arrangements by this afternoon with the office out there. Secondly, the Chair wishes to advise you that we're having a delegates' dinner tomorrow at the Colonial Club, and you're allowed to bring guests. And we do not yet have enough reservations, so please make your reservations. This is another $5, including two drinks, dinner just like the other one, so please get your names in out there to the people in the glass cage.

Now, Mr. Murray, have you an announcement?

DELEGATE MURRAY: I move the committee recess until the hour of 1:50 p.m. this day.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is to recess till 1:50 this day. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Convention recessed at 12:38 p.m.—reconvened at 1:57 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Committee will be in session.

Mr. Arbanas, 'for what purpose do you arise?

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. President [Chairman], I'd like to be counted as present.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, you're present and voting; and, let's see, Mr.—somebody else that was absent this morning wants to be present. Oh, Mr. Champoux. He isn't present, but he is. Is he here? Mr. Champoux, do you want to be counted present this afternoon?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Members of the committee, before the recess we had completed Section 2 of the Legislative Bicameral Article. The rules were suspended to allow for reconsideration of Section 2 of the unicameral article, which appears on page 10 of the Style and Drafting Legislative Proposal.

The Chair will recognize Mrs. Reichert.

DELEGATE REICHERT: Mr. Chairman, I move to reconsider Section 2 of the Legislative Unicameral Article for the purpose of adjusting the size.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Reichert, did you vote on the prevailing side?

DELEGATE REICHERT: Yes, I did.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Mrs. Reichert, do you want to explain? Now, this is—we're going to vote on reconsideration. Do you want to explain briefly your purpose?

DELEGATE REICHERT: Very briefly. For the same reasons that the bicameral was reconsidered, I think we need some flexibility. I think that the figures 100 to 105 as they now exist, do not lend the kind of flexibility we would like in this article. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion of the motion to reconsider?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: If not, all in favor of the motion to reconsider, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

Mrs. Reichert.

DELEGATE REICHERT: Mr. Chairman, I move to amend Section 2, page 10, line 14, of the Legislative Unicameral Article by striking the following figure: "100", and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "90".

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is that the only one?

DELEGATE REICHERT: Yes, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mrs. Reichert.

DELEGATE REICHERT: We feel that by substituting the figure 90 for a hundred and retaining the maximum figure of one hundred—and five, we will have attained the type of flexibility we would like in our Legislative Article.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the sense of Mrs. Reichert's amendment is to change, on line 14 in Section 2 of the Legislative Unicameral Article, on page 10 of your booklets, the number "100" to "90", so that the spread on the unicameral body would be90 to a hundred and five instead of a hundred to a hundred and five. Is there discussion?

Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Mr. President [Chairman], I move to amend Mrs. Reichert's motion to change the number "105" on line 14, page 10, to "100".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson has moved to change the number "105", on line 14, to "100" so that the spread, if both of these amendments was adopted, would be from 90 to a hundred instead of from a hundred to a hundred and five.

Mrs. Reichert.

DELEGATE REICHERT: Mr. Chairman, I resist the amendment by Mr. Hanson. I've spoken to several of my fellow delegates, particularly Mr. Foster, and 105 seems a more realistic figure for the maximum limit on a unicameral body.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion? I want to let them discuss it, Mr. Hanson, before you close.

Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I concur with the lady from Cascade. Hundred and five is a magic number that we should have had in the other one; and so I think that we should retain the 105 so that all the bicameral&s that wanted to have a large and adequate number of representatives can swing over to the unicameral&s' position in the way in which it was divined they would. May I ask the lady from Cascade a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Reichert, will you yield?

DELEGATE REICHERT: Yes, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mrs. Reichert, would you advise me who is going to make the decision as to how many it will be?

DELEGATE REICHERT: Well, I think when districting is taken care of, I think, realistically, that we're going to look towards maximum limits in both the unicameral and bicameral for the next few years. I think that, realistically, we're going to have a bicameral of a hundred and fifty for the next few years or a unicameral of a hundred and five. I think that for the future, we need the lower limit of the bicameral, which is a hundred and twenty, if we ever do need it, and then the lower limit of the unicameral as 90.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney, I don't know that that's responsive to your question, but the section says "the number of senators shall be prescribed by law"; so the Legislature is going to set it. Is there other discussion?

Mr. Skari.

DELEGATE SKARI: Mr. President [Chairman], would Mr. Hanson yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson, will you yield?

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: I yield.

DELEGATE SKARI: Rod, I notice that on the bicameral we have the range set from 80 to 100. Is there any special reason why you tighten up this range of flexibility on the unicameral from 90 to 100? It does seem to compress it here.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Carman, I merely did it to conform to the same size as the House would be in a unicameral body. However, if-1 see the consensus, and I would withdraw my motion to amend.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson, do you want to withdraw yours?

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Yes, I withdraw it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson has withdrawn his motion. Is there any further discussion on Mrs. Reichert's motion to lower the number "100" to "90" so that the range is 90 to a hundred and five?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Are we on Mr. Hanson's amendment now?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: He just withdrew his.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Oh, I'm sorry.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So we're on Mrs. Reichert's which is moving the number "100" down to "90", the bottom.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: But I think there's some clarification that's necessary here. There's a feeling by some people that the commission sets the size of the Legislature. This is not true. The Legislature still determines the size. I'm sorry Mr. Hanson withdrew his because I-no, that's fine, because I'm sure that the unicameral people (Laughter)-the unicameral people need 5 more to correct the errors the hundred make. (Laughter).

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim, maybe I should recap this for you, but Mrs. Reichert has made an amendment to change the minimum from a hundred to 90. Mr. Hanson made a motion, but it has been withdrawn; and Mr. Romney asked who would set it, and we agreed the Legislature would. Is there further discussion?

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I didn't agree the Legislature would. I think the commission will.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I see, under this section you think the commission will.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, it looks—the Chair would observe that the commission's got to have the power to legislate, then, because it says "as provided by law". Very well, do you want a roll call vote?

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Reichert says yes. All those in favor of Mrs. Reichert's motion to lower the number "100" to "90" on line 14 of Section 2 of the unicameral article, please indicate so by voting Aye; and those that want to leave it-those that do not want to, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 76 voting Aye, 9 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 76 having voted Aye and 9 No, Mrs. Reichert's motion carries and the number in the unicameral article is now reduced to 90-90 to a hundred and five.

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Having voted on the prevailing side this morning when we considered Section 14 of the unicameral article, I move to add, after the word "senators" on page 4 of page 15—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz, the Chair will let you do that next. But will you move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2 of the unicameral Article V under Legislature, that it recommend to the Convention that the same be adopted as amended.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: In the interests of saving my voice, I so move.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: (Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, Section 2 is closed up again. All right, now you want to look at 14?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Fourteen on page 15, and of course it will be changed back on page 3 or wherever it is. On line 4, after the word "senators", which will, of course, be changed to "members", add the words "and each district shall elect one member". Mrs. Bates pointed this out to me; and, of course, we only worked with what we had to work with, and that's what that committee sent us. And in Section 14 in the bicameral, or at least in the corresponding section of the bicameral, that language is used-"and each district shall elect one member"--and I think it probably should be in here because it needs it and because it needs to be parallel.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And it does not amount to a substantive change because we did adopt the single-member district proposal, is that the idea?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, now, the Chair understands that Mr. Schiltz is moving to reconsider Section 14 in the unicameral, and he has stated his reason. Is there discussion? All in favor of reconsidering Section 14, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Now, Mr. Schiltz, before you make your amendment, this morning you, I think, left out Section 14. Does it have to be changed to "members" from "senators"? I don't care. Make your motion.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, I'll make a motion before we finish with this report that will take care of that, too.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 14 of the unicameral section, as it appears on page 15, line 4, by adding, after the word "senators", "and each district shall elect one member".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Schiltz wishes to amend, on page 15 at line 4, after the word "senators", by adding: "and each district shall elect one member", so that the single-member district principle is involved in this section; and he tells us that it is also presently involved in the bicameral section. Is there any discussion? (No response) All in favor of the motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14 of the unicameral Judicial--or Legislative Article as reported in Report Number 3 of Style and Drafting Committee, that it recommend the same do be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You've all heard the motion that Section 14, which we've just reconsidered and amended, be adopted as amended. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted as amended.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Have we moved Section 2 in the bicameral?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We have.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Since it's been changed?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: As amended, we moved it, yes.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: All right, we're ready to go to Section 3 then.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, if you'll all turn to page 7 after the sheet in the back of the book, on the bicameral proposal, we're now ready to proceed with Section 3.

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 3 of the bicameral section of Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: These are style changes only, and they pertain only to the unicameral-or the bicameral section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion or debate of Section 3? (No response) So many as shall be in favor of adopting Section 3, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted, Section 4.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4 of the bicameral portion of Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: This was approved in the same form this morning in the uni-camera1 section, so all the style changes that were noted then are in here now.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion? (No response) All in favor of Section 4, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Mr. Schiltz. Section 5.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Before I get into that, I want to ask Mr. Harlow if he's working on Section 13. Are you? (No response) Okay. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 5, sub. 1, of the Style and Drafting Report Number 3, bicameral section, it recommended the same do pass.

Mr. Chairman, again, this was approved in the unicameral portion this morning and it's the same.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 5, sub. 1? (No response) All in favor of Section 5, sub. 1, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 5, sub. 2, bicameral portion of Style and Drafting Report Number 3, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, again, this was adopted this morning in the same form.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion? (No response) All in favor of 5, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 6.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6 of the bicameral portion of Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Once again, this was okayed this morning in the same form in the unicameral section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion? (No response) So many as shall be in favor of Section 6, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response) It's adopted. Section 7.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 7 of the bicameral portion of Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted,

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: There were no changes in this this morning, and it's the same as the one we adopted for the unicameral section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All those in favor of Section 7, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 8.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 8 of the bicameral section of the Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, this is, again, the same as the one we adopted this morning for the unicameral section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion? (No response) All in favor of Section 8, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed'?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 8 is adopted. Section 9.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that the language in Section 9 be deleted, and in lieu thereof the struck-out language be reinstated.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And in this case we can leave in the word "senator" or "representative", can we?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: "-and a member of either house". we can leave that in?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The body will recognize that this is the one this morning where we agreed to put the stricken language back in because it was out of the old-the present Constitution. Is there further discussion?
Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. Chairman, is a substitute motion in order?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You certainly can move anything you want on Section 9.

DELEGATE FURLONG: I move as a substitute motion in Section 9, in both the bicameral and unicameral, actually, the—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, you can only do it at this time in Section 9, bicameral.

DELEGATE FURLONG: All right. Thank you. The substitute would read: "Section 9. Disqualification. No legislator shall, during the time for which he is elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the State of Montana created during such time."
Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, let me get the sense of your amendment. You're going to use the first four stricken lines down through-is that right?

DELEGATE FURLONG: Well, actually, it's the majority report as it was originally reported to the Convention.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Read it again slowly, what you want to-your amendment to say.

DELEGATE FURLONG: It would read: "Section 9. Disqualification. No legislator shall, during the time for which he is elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the State of Montana created during such time.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: "No legislator shall"-so we put "legislator" up there in place of "senator or representative"-"during the term for which he shall have been elected, be appointed to any civil office under the State of Montana"-is that what you said?

DELEGATE FURLONG: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And then, what's the rest of it?

DELEGATE FURLONG: "-created during such time."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, this-Mr. Furlong has proposed an amendment which limits the disqualification to offices created during the time that the senator or representative-or the legislator serves in his term. I take it that's the sense of your amendment. Isn't that right? In other words, the only disqualification it would have would be a senator or a legislator would be disqualified from serving on any-in any civil office which was created during the time—during the term for which he was elected.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: But he could serve on other-he could be appointed to other offices, because he is eliminating the rest of the disqualifications.
Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I actually rise with hesitation to do this, but I realize the dangers inherent that you may have power play and fraud and you may sell votes to get appointed, and that does concern me. But I think the few times that that would conceivably happen under the normal course of circumstances is outweighed by the fact that we are in-we are essentially denying a person the right to improve his position. I can envision where a person elected for 4 years may, for healthful reasons, decide that he best not serve in the Legislature and could still be barred during that period of time from any appointment. It just seems to me that a man or woman inherently has the right to improve their position, and I just think that the number of times that fraud might be involved would be far outweighed by the number of times that we would, under the present situation, actually disbar or disqualify an otherwise qualified person who may very well be the person for the job or the position to which he would be appointed. I would certainly like to hear some discussion. I would appreciate your support. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of order. There's nothing particularly about Mr. Furlong's motion that I disagree with. I don't have any strong feelings one way or another; but this is a Style and Drafting report and it appears to me that that proposed motion goes to substance. And, as such, I ask for a ruling of the Chair as to whether or not Mr. Furlong's motion is in order.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You're quite correct. I think it does go to substance and I think, Mr. Furlong, I have to move you--rule you out of order now that I understand it, unless you want to make a motion to suspend the rules.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. Chairman and Mr. Holland, thank you for pointing out the error. I just thought I could slip something in. (Laughter) No, actually, I would move to suspend the rules so we could consider the proposition that I've just put before the body.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, you've got to write that down so I've got it up here. Just make a motion to suspend the rules for the purpose of amending Section 9 on disqualification; and I guess we'll vote on that in a minute, soon as you get it written up. Is there discussion or debate of the motion to suspend the rules only? Not the issue, just the motion to suspend therules.
Mr. Gysler.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Chairman, I rise to resist the motion to suspend the rules for this proposed amendment to our article.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman, I likewise resist the motion to suspend the rules. The motion is made to consider precisely what we have already considered in the Committee of the Whole. The majority of this Convention voted to reject the majority committee's report and to adopt the present Article V, Section 7, of our Constitution, which appears in this Style and Drafting, so for that reason I would oppose the motion to suspend the rules.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I move that we have a roll call vote on this. Every time we turn around we're going to suspend therules. I think we ought to roll call them each time.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll have a roll call. Very well, Mr. Furlong's motion is to suspend the rules for the purpose of voting on the substantive issue of what disqualifications should be allowed under Section 9 in the bicameral article. Is there further discussion?
Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, I rise for a point of information. Would you refresh my recollection as to what we did with Section 9 in the unicameral alternative this morning?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes. On Section 9 this morning we struck out the Style and Drafting Committee's language, and we reinserted the stricken out language, which is, in effect, the present Constitution. We also changed, in the other article, "senator or representative" to "legislator"; but that's a minor matter.

DELEGATE HELIKER: We did that on the basis that the Style and Drafting's report was a substantive change?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, we did it on the basis that-well, yes, there was some argument that it was a substantive change, but in other words we did not adopt their style change. We went back to the original adopted language of the Convention.

DELEGATE HELIKER: It didn't require a suspension of the rules in any case, did it?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, it was not a substantive change from our original language. The argument was made that the language of the committee was a substantive change, but it was not a substantive change from our original action in the Convention.

Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: On the same argument that we used this morning, I certainly believe we should go back to the original form that we did for the other section, because it seems to me that—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, all right, but that isn't the issue.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Right now it's for reconsideration.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's right.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Excuse me.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: In other words, if we reconsider it, then he's going to change it-going to move to change the nature of it. All right, a roll call vote has been called for. So many as are in favor of reconsidering Section 9 of the bicameral article, on page 9 of Style and Drafting's bicameral report, vote Aye; so many as are opposed, vote No. Well, Mr. Clerk, cancel the ballot, and we'll start over. I pushed the wrong button. All right, now, I'll open the vote again. So many as are in favor, vote Aye; and so many as are opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Please take the vote.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 23 voting Aye, 65 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 65 having voted No, the motion fails to carry and Section 9 is not reopened for substance; and your motion is then out of order, Mr. Furlong. And Mr. Schiltz, your motion-did you make your motion to use the original language?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, Section-Mr. Schiltz's motion is to use the original language on Section 9, so that it comports with what we did this morning. Mrs. Erdmann, that's your point. Is there discussion about that? If not, all in favor of Mr. Schiltz's motion to use the original language, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it. Will you move the section again?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 9 of the bicameral portion of the Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as are in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 9 is adopted. Section 10.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10 of the bicameral section of the-portion of the Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, we okayed this this morning in the same form except that there is bicameral language in Section 10 in this portion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion of Section IO?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's sub. 1, I guess.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Ten, sub. 1. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10, sub. 2, of the bicameral portion of the Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, this is identical with the material we adopted this morning for unicameral.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion? (No response) All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Sub. 2is adopted. Sub. 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10, sub. 3, bicameral portion of Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, this is the same as we adopted this morning for the unicameral.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of sub. 3? (No response) All in favor of sub. 3, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 4.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10, sub. 4, the bicameral portion of Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, this again is identical with the material we adopted for unicameral this morning.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of sub. 4, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 5.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10, sub. 5, bicameral portion of Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, we did not have this this morning. It's a special provision for bicameral Legislature, but there are no changes other than style changes, and they're very minor.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of sub. 5? (No response) All in favor of sub. 5, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 11.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11, sub. 1, bicameral portion, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. Chairman, these are style changes— No, these are the same provisions that were okayed this morning in the unicameral section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of Section 11, sub. 1? (No response) All in favor of Section 11, sub. 1, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it; it's adopted. Sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11, sub. 2, bicameral portion, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, this is identical to thematerial adopted this morning in the unicameral.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of 11, sub. 2? (No response) All in favor of 11, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Eleven-now, let's make-let's be careful--oh, I see, you did strike the 3 there.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, now, 11, sub. 3, on line 23, page 10.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11, sub. 3, bicameral portion, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, this is the same material as we adopted in the unicameral.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of 11, sub. 3?

Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Mr. President [Chairman], by eliminating the two words-"by a vote of a majority of all members present"-by eliminating "and voting", I'm wondering if we really haven't changed something, because the people present would be answering to the roll call; but you also have members who abstain from voting on a particular item; and I just wondered if that had been considered by the committee.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: What line are you on, Mrs. Erdmann?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: What line are you on?

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Section 1 of "Bills"-Section 11, end of line 12.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, I'll have to look at my comments.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: On Section 11, sub. 1, are you talking about? I don't see the words "and voting".

DELEGATE ERDMANN: My point is that we have referred before to a majority of the members present "and voting", and this is my point. We have deleted the two words "and voting", and I do believe this makes some difference in the actual count.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Erdmann's point is to line 12, which we've gone over but we can open up. She thinks the words "and voting" should be put after the word "present", on line 12, sub. 1, in 11.

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, we didn't have that material to work with and we supplied what did get supplied there, I think. I don't care whether you want to put it in or not. It would be substantive, I think.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, I think Mrs. Erdmann's point is it isn't any more substantive than saying "present". I mean, either one of them is substantive in the sense that we—or either one of them aren't, in the sense that we didn't say specifically.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, yes; it's whatever anybody wants to do. I don't really care. Well, you see down on page-on lines 19 and 20, we incorporated that material and put it up above.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I see.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: And there all it says is "members present", and that's what we used in order that we wouldn't change anything substantive.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's-Mrs. Erdmann, they've picked up lines 19 and 20, which they struck out. Do you care to make an amendment, or do you--willing to let it go, Mrs. Erdmann?

DELEGATE ERDMANN: No, I'm willing to let it go.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, you're willing to let it go. Is there other discussion of sub. 3?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Are we on sub.—Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We're on sub. 3, but if you want to go back to sub. 1 or 2—

DELEGATE AASHEIM: In our original presentation from the committee, our wording went something like this-"on any vote which changes the status or substance of the bill, resolution or rule, a vote of each member must be recorded." I believe it's going to be confusing if we don't say "the people voting", because if you don't say that, you have a head count every time you vote. And I think that was the intent of the committee to have the-because you're going to have times when people won't vote, and if you have the members present, you're going to have to make a head count. Now, Mr. Chairman, may we reconsider subsection 1 on Section 11?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion by Mr. Aasheim is to reconsider subsection 1 of Section 11 to take care of this word "and voting". All those in favor of his motion to reconsider, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, the Chair is in doubt. All those in favor of reconsidering, say Aye-vote Aye on the machine; and those opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 45 having voted Aye, 25 No, we will reconsider subsection 1 of Section 11.

Now, Mr. Aasheim, do you want to make a motion?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 11, subsection 1, being line 12, by adding, after the word "present", striking the period and adding "and voting period".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim has proposed to add the word "and voting", so that the line says: "members present and voting." The Chair is going to rule that that is still a Style and Drafting change. Now if anybody cares to challenge the Chair, fine; but it seems to me that it's not clear what members present--and it certainly doesn't seem that we intended that they have to recount the House every time and determine a majority, so I'm going to rule that's a style change. If anyone wants to challenge the Chair, they may. Otherwise, debate is now open on Mr. Aasheim's amendment to add the words "and voting", at the end of line 12, to that sentence. Is there any discussion? (No response) All in favor of Mr. Aasheim's motion to add the words "and voting" to the-so it says "a majority of all members present and voting", please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

Mr. Schiltz, will you remove Section 1, sub. 1.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Will I-well, I was going to-well, all right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Unless you're not through with it.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, I'm through with that. I wanted somebody to change the unicameral, too. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11, sub. 1, bicameral portion of the Style and Drafting Report Number 3, that it recommend the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Schiltz, the-all in favor of Mr. Schiltz's motion say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Sub. 1 is adopted as amended.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a moment. Make a note; and we have passed Section 11, sub. 1, in the unicameral, but we have not adopted the article and moved it out of Committee of the Whole, so we can move to reconsider that at the end.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, I can make a note, but it would be just as easy to do it now, I think.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, while everyone is on it, let's turn to page—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Thirteen.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -page 13, line 6. Do you want to make a motion that we reconsider Section 11, sub. 1, of the unicameral article, Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I make that motion for the apparent reasons.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Mr. Schiltz's motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, it's open. Now, do you want to make your motion to—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes. I move that Section 11 of the unicameral portion of Style and Drafting Report Number 3 be amended, on line 6 on page 13, by adding, after the word "present", the words "and voting".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion? (No response) All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, do you want to move Section 11-l of the unicameral?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 11, sub. 1, the unicameral portion, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, that it recommend the same do pass—be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 11, sub. 1 of the unicameral is adopted, and we're back on Section 11, sub. 3 of the bicameral, on page lo-second page 10.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Were we sub. 3? Have I moved that?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, move it again.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11, sub. 3, bicameral portion, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: This only has—well, it doesn't even have any changes. It's just identical to the report we adopted this morning in the bicameral-or the section-subsection, CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of sub. 3? (No response) All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 4.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11, sub. 4, bicameral portion, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, this is the same, again, as the one we adopted this morning for the unicameral.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of sub. 4-11, sub. 4? (No response) All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 5.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Sub. 4, wasn't it?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now we go to sub. 5.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes. Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11, sub. 5, bicameral portion, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, there are no changes of any significance. It's identical with the provision we adopted this morning for unicameral.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion? (No response) All in favor of sub. 5, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered. Sub. 6.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11, sub. 6, bicameral portion, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, there is no change.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No change from the unicameral.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: From the unicameral.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 12.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 12, bicameral portion, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, this is identical, again, with the unicameral section that compares with it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion? (No response) All in favor of Section 12, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Now, Section 13.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: We should have an amendment by Mr. Harlow, I think.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harlow, is there any reason it can't be identical to the one this morning?

DELEGATE HARLOW: Section l-or Section 13, sub. 1, will be identical. Section 2 will be a little-Section 2 and 3 will be just a little bit different because the wording in these two sections are a little different than what the wording was in the section this morning.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Have you got them written out there?

DELEGATE HARLOW: I have them. There's only just two little cross-outs.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, do you want to show us in Section 13 what you want to change?

DELEGATE HARLOW: Yes. Section 13, subsection 1, will read identical to theamendment we put in this morning. "The Governor, executive officers, heads of state departments, judicial officers and other such officers as may be provided by law are subject to impeachment and upon conviction shall be removed from office. Other proceedings for removal from public office for cause may be provided by law." Subsection 2 will be the same as what is in the wording here on page 11, subsection 2, except we will cross out the words, in line 24, "removable by", and the rest of that section will remain the same. And in subsection 3 the wording as is on your page 11 there will be identical, except on page 28, we will cross out the words "for impeachment". Otherwise, Section 2— subsection 2 and 3 will remain the same as there, and subsection 1 will be identical to the words that I just read of what we put in this morning.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the Chair will allow an amendment by Mr. Harlow, the sense of which is to change subsection 1 of Section 13 so that it reads identical with the one we adopted for unicameral in the morning. Then, in subsection 2, it will strike the words-I've stricken them so well I can't read them.

DELEGATE HARLOW: "Removal by".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: --"removal by", from line 14. And in subsection 3, it will strike the words—

DELEGATE HARLOW: "For impeachment".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -"for impeachment", from line 28. The sense of this amendment will then make this section read identical with the one on unicameral. Is that correct, or-make it read substantially identical with the unicameral.

DELEGATE HARLOW: Except that we do not-the words "may select the Senate as tribunal" will be different than what is in the unicameral, because there the-"it shall be provided" -"and shall provide for a tribunal."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right. So that it provides for a different method of picking the court, but it makes a parallel change in the impeachment section to that in unicameral.

DELEGATE HARLOW: That's correct.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I had understood-or I had hoped, at least, thatthesechanges would provide that impeachment charges were brought in one body and tried in another; and I don't have his amendment before me, but I wonder if that's contemplated? You see, in unicameral we had to say that they'd provide for a tribunal, and traditionally, the-and I think the way it's always been done in the past in this impeachment article, the House heard the charges and the Senate tried them.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think the difficulty is that when we adopted that, Mr. Schiltz, in the Convention Committee of the Whole a few days ago, we made it general. We didn't specify. Isn't that correct? Subsection 2 says now, as amended: "The Legislature shall provide for the manner, procedure, and causes for impeachment and may select the Senate as a tribunal", but it doesn't say "must". That's the way we adopted it the other day.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: All right. Mr. Chairman-Oh, I guess you want to get that amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'm not sure that Mr. Harlow did this, but members of the committee, you have before you the amendment of Mr. Harlow that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 13, sub. 1, 2 and 3, that the same-that we recommend that the same be adopted as amended. Is there discussion? (No response) All in favor of that motion, then, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted as amended.

All right, Mr. Schiltz, subsection 4 of 13.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section-subsection 4 of Section 13, bicameral portion, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, this is the same as the unicameral section that corresponds with it, which was adopted this morning.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of subsection 4? (No response) All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And 4—subsection 4 is adopted. Now, Section 14, Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14, subsection 1, bicameral portion, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, this is a special section that pertains only to bicameral. We made one change that might be considered substantive. If you look at line 8, we inserted the word "adjoining" as a new word; however, we picked it up from below where they talked about the districts consisting of compact and contiguous territory, and we thought that was warranted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion of Section 14? (No response) If not, all in favor of Section 14, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And it's adopted. Section 14, sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14, sub. 2, bicameral portion, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, this is the same as the unicameral corresponding section adopted this morning.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All those in favor of 14, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14, sub. 3, bicameral portion, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, again, this is the same as the subsection we adopted this morning for unicameral.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion'? (No response) All in favor of 14, sub. 3, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. How about Section 15, Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 15, bicameral section, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, it recommend the same be adopted. This is the same as 16, which we okayed this morning in the unicameral section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Section 15, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 16, Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 16 as it's written on page 13, line 19, by striking the word "senators" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "legislators".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz has moved, in line 19, to strike the word "senators" and put in the word "legislators". All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That only proves we're fallible up there, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 16, bicameral portion, Style and Drafting Proposal Number 3, as amended, it recommend the same do pass.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion of Section 16 of the bicameral Legislative Article? (No response) If not, all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that the committee send back for-or rerefer—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz, we're not through. We've got to go to 15-3 on page 16. You will remember this morning, ladies and gentlemen, that when we got to Section 15 on— referendum on unicameral Legislature, we passed--or we adopted subsection 1 and subsection 2, and when we got to subsection 3 the difficulty became that we needed to start talking about the nature of the Legislative Article. It seems to me that we have to now pick up, Mr. Schiltz, the amendments we've just made.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes, Mr. Chairman, and I'm not sure I'm prepared to do that at this moment. But what I would say is that at the end of this consideration, I will move that the report be rereferred to Style and Drafting for incorporation of all amendments and for the additional purpose of seeing if there are any anomalies that we have created by these amendments that I haven't been able to pick up as we've gone along.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, the Chair-let's do this. On page 17-if you'll all turn to page 17, the first major amendment is on line 2. You have to put in the "50" and "40" in place of the "53" and "50". And on line 3, you have to put in "a hundred" and "80" in place of the "hundred and six" and "a hundred". So, in other words, we have to amend Section 2 as to size, so that it's 50-40, 100-80. That's the first amendment. Then we might just mark these up. Everything else is okay till you get to number 11, sub. 1-I don't think you ever get there, do you? Yes, you do. No, you don't. Then we have to amend the one on impeachment. The bottom of page 17, Section 13, has to be amended as per the Harlow amendment.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Couldn't we move those as amended? Wouldn't that take care of it?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, I think we can. I'm just trying to point out which ones we have amended. Then the rest of them, except for—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, Mr. Chairman, I would be inclined to say—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's all.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: -that we adopt Section-that I move for the adoption of Section 15, sub. 3, as amended, and that will incorporate all the amendments. Then we'll pick them up upstairs.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, do you want to make that motion?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 15, sub. 3, unicameral portion, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, that it recommend the same be adopted as amended. If I may speak to it?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You may. Let me see if I can't summarize. The changes are Section 2, that we just marked on page 17, and Section 13, at the bottom of page 17; and then, Mr. Schiltz, you have some language in Section 14 thatdoesn't appear anywhere else that maybe we should consider.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Are you talking about Section 14, which is—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 14, sub. 4 and 5.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Are you talking about the one on page 18?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Page 19, yes.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, that's subsection (f).

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: In other words, the two lines-if you'll look at line 11 on page 19, ladies and gentlemen, subsections 4 and 5 deal with this matter, Mr. Schiltz, of the election, and I think the only-we haven't looked at them anywhere yet.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Subsection 4?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Have we looked at 14-4? I don't think so. "The members of the unicameral body shall remain in effect-in office and their authority to act shall continue until the members of a bicameral body are elected and qualified." We haven't considered that yet.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Oh, that's right. That's new.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And the next one there, the same-"the present Senate chambers shall exist"-

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Why don't you—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I'll move the adoption of those two and 6, also.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think that 14-1, 2 and 3 have been adopted; but 4, 5 and 6 have not been adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So, if you would move—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -4, 5 and 6; yes.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: -1 move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration the bicameral portion, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, Section 15, subsection (f), sub-subsections 4, 5 and 6, that it recommend the same be adopted. No, I don't want to say that, I guess.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, you will.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, that-all right-as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion on 4, 5 or 6 by you or anyone else? (No response) I'm on page 19, lines 11 to 21, ladies and gentlemen. These three subsections deal only with the unicameral elections, assuming there is one. Is there any changes required there? Is everybody happy with the Style and Drafting language?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: It's-we didn't make any significant changes. It's all transition, and I'm glad you picked it up because I forgot it. But other than what we show there, there are no changes. They're all style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of subs. 4, 5 and 6 of this Section 14, which is (f) of 15, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: They are adopted. Now, Mr. Schiltz, if you'll move that other one as amended, we're in business.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 15 of the bicameral portion, Style and Drafting Report Number 3, that it recommend the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion? (No response) If not, all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Now, Mr. Schiltz, make your motion.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I ask that-or I move that Style and Drafting Report Number 3 be rereferred to the committee for incorporation of amendments and for further examination and with privilege to ask that it be referred back by the committee to Order of Business Number 5.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, ladies and gentlemen, the purpose of Mr. Schiltz's amendment--or motion is to take the Legislative Article, with the changes we've made this morning, back to Style and Drafting and they'll go through them and see that they're all straight. And if we missed any, they'll comeback; butifnot, they will move Section-we will move their report straight on to Order of Business Number 5. Now, that's the sense of the motion.

Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: A point of information, Mr. Chairman. I don't have my sheet here. What is Order of Business Number 5?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, that's Final Adoption, where it would go after this Style and Drafting. We ordinarily would move it straight to Order of Business Number 5 now, but we're proposing to send it back to the committee for them to check out all of this work we've done today and see that they haven't missed anything, and then move it to Order of Business Number 5 unless there are changes that they think we've overlooked.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Well, Mr. Chairman, for a point of further information, I think this body wants to know how this body stands on the two propositions, and I'd like to have the information of the Chair when we may make this motion. After tomorrow, it would be too late.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I take it you're talking about testing the body on unicameral-bicameral. Is that what you're talking about?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Yes, I want to make a motion now, and 1 think that will test the body; and I wonder if this is the time for the motion to determine the position of these propositions on the ballot.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, it—

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I'd be willing to wait till tomorrow morning, 9 o'clock, if you would want-if you would give us an opportunity at that time, before we go on Order of Business Number 5.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, now, the Chair will explain what the Chair feels the situation is. This body moved the first day that it discussed Legislature to send the Legislative Article to Style and Drafting as a dual article. And we did send it as a dual article, and we've treated it as a dual article all the way through, and we've now approved it again as a dual article. I realize some people want to test it. I don't know what your purpose in testing it is except just for your own curiosity. It seems to me thatitreally does nothing to aid us in our problem here. Therefore, the Chair is not very anxious to test it, because if it gets tested and somebody loses badly, we may be back redoing the entire Legislative Article, at which point I'm not very happy to start. Now, the Chair has explained before that there is an opportunity, when Style and Drafting brings its budget-its ballot recommendation in here, to make a substitute motion or to amend in some way its ballot proposal so that you can test it at that time. If its-if your test-if your purpose in testing this, ladies and gentlemen, is purely for curiosity, I suggest you do it on a yellow pad; but once you get this body committed more than half to one of these two things, then you have the problem of what you're doing when you go to the public after doing that. What this body has really said so far is that it's going to put this issue to the public as a dual issue. I really do not see what purpose it then does to force everybody here to take a stand and count noses, except if it's a matter of going out and campaigning on the basis of that. Now, the time to do that, it seems to the Chair, is at the time that we have the ballot; and if you really want to knock unicameral out or knock bicameral out, that's the time. If your purpose is not to knock it out but merely to get a head count, I suggest you pass a yellow pad up and down the rows and find out, but I think your-1 think it's very dangerous to start fooling around and getting a vote one way or the other unless you're willing to run the risk of one of these things not going on the ballot.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman, may I state my position?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Surely.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: You know, having-my name begins with a double A, and I'm in a very favorable position usually; and right at this time, as committee Chairman, I am concerned about which of these proposals is going to be on the ballot first; and that's the reason I'm trying to find out—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, all right, now, if that's your purpose, then you are surely premature, because that-which goes on first or the form in which they go on is Style and Drafting's and not Legislative's or this Convention's prerogative to make the recommendation. Then this body can decide and put anything on first or last or in red or green or blue ink if they want to, but not until Style and Drafting has considered that matter and made its ballot recommendation.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Well, at this time I shall pass further action. If somebody else wants to make a move, it's entirely up to anyone else.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, we have a motion before us, and the motion is whether or not to send this back to Style and Drafting for checking and then, without coming back to the body, put it to Order of Business Number 5 unless there are errors in it.

Do you want to discuss the motion, Mr. Drum?

DELEGATE DRUM: Mr. Chairman, a point of information more than—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE DRUM: -of discussion of a motion. The question may come up at some point in the minds of the electorate: did we ever take a vote as to whether this body favored a unicameral or a bicameral? And it seems to me that at some point we should make an indication, which has been averted to date. And I think at the early time that we made the decision that we were going to accept both on the ballot, some of us felt we would hear a little more debate pro or con on bicameral or on unicameral, and I wonder if it may strengthen the posture of the Convention in the eyes of those who we represent if they felt an opinion were coming out of this Convention. And I ask you for an opinion of this, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, as I say, I'm not saying that one isn't coming out; and I can think of some ways to do it, but I think that you ought to think carefully about it before you do do it. If it's the sense of this body that it's going on the ballot, there's a good question as to whether or not it needs to come out, or whether it is helpful to have it come out. But assuming you decided it was helpful, I can think of a lot of ways to get it out. If you want one off the top of my head, why don't you make a resolution and put it in and we'll-that it be the sense of this body that they prefer the unicameral thing, and we'll take a vote some morning before we get into Committee of the Whole and we'll find out how everybody feels. But I don't see that it does a whole lot of-what I'm terribly afraid of is that about the time we find out that 65 percent of you are in favor of one or the other, we're going to redo the Legislative Article; and I'm not anxious to do that. I think we've made our position clear and I think we've made it clear with the public that this thing is going on the ballot. And I think it would be very dangerous for us to try and get if off of there now; and, quite frankly, I don't trust 65 percent of you, if you happen to be on one side. (Laughter) Mr. Drum, does that answer your question?

DELEGATE DRUM: Would you yield to a question? What if it were 89 or 99 percent, or 81 percent? Shouldn't we know as a Convention what the feeling of this Convention was? I think we've had a system of legislation here for a good many years, and we're going to look foolish if we agree to change it without knowing what the consensus of this body is.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Drum, I'm not going to stop this body from finding out if it wants to, but I may make them do it while they're in order and not while they're out of order. And we're on a different motion, and I don't think that this is the place nor the time to do that.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I move that when Style and Drafting has done their work, that this Legislative Article be referred back to General Orders.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, let's see, we have Schiltz's-I'd better catch up here— Schiltz's motion to refer to Style and Drafting with a right to go to Number 5 unless there's trouble. Is that the sense of your motion, Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Unless you find something wrong, you'd send it straight on to Number 5. Now, I have Mr.-that's your motion. Now, Mr. Aasheim has a substitute motion to refer to Style and Drafting and back to General Orders. Is that what you're saying?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: This is the Legislative Article.

Very well, Mrs. Bates, do you want to discuss Mr. Aasheim's motion?

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman, when we discussed this in committee and came out with the recommendation to discuss and to write two very good articles on the bicameral and unicameral, the committee all held to this until these articles were written. After that, we had decided we could all go our own way if it came to a vote on the unicameral or the bicameral. I wonder if it would be out of order to ask that this committee, unless they can get a two-thirds vote for one or the other, that they do refer it to the people. Would that be possible; would I be out of order? Or perhaps this could be done when it comes back on General Orders.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, it would seem to me that any motion as to the form of the ballot is out of order at this time since we have no recommendation from Style and Drafting. I think when Style and Drafting comes in, if you want to make a motion that unless two-thirds agree, why, it has to go to the people, why, I suppose it would be perfectly normal then. Right now we're trying to decide whether to rerefer this to Style and Drafting and if so, where it goes when it comes back. Is there more discussion on Mr. Aasheim's motion to refer it to Style and Drafting and back to General Orders?

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Style and Drafting has no problem. I think whatever we come back with will be very brief and we can dispense with it in a matter of five minutes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Felt.

DELEGATE FELT: I'd like a little clarification, perhaps from the Chair. If we vote for the motion of Delegate Aasheim, is it-is this just setting the stage for a future debate, then, as to what the position on the ballot would be for these alternative positions?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Not in the view of the Chair, it isn't. It would seem to me we would have to—

DELEGATE FELT: Well, I would like to know just what the effect of a vote on this motion would be. then.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Well, Mr. Felt, you understand that I am perfectly willing to entertain any motion anyone makes; but I don't think Mr. Aasheim's motion-if it prevails and gets this back on General Orders, then the Chair will insist that we do what we do on General Orders-namely, we consider the style changes that they've made-and we will not discuss substance at that time unless you suspend the orders-suspend the rules.

DELEGATE FELT: Is this a motion to get us back on General Orders right now?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, it's to refer it to the committee—

DELEGATE FELT: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -and then come back on General Orders again-say, tomorrow. At that time the Chair would take the position that we have to discuss whether Style and Drafting's changes are correct, and if they are, I would think we could not discuss matters of substance tomorrow unless we suspend the rules.

DELEGATE FELT: I had thought that we would--after Style and Drafting acted, that it automatically came back here to us and we didn't need a motion just to discuss form changes again, that they-it would automatically be discussed by us.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, Mr. Felt, ordinarily at this point we have now adopted Style and Drafting's proposals here, and at this point we ordinarily refer it to General-to Order of Business Number 5. But since there were so many changes, Mr. Schiltz asked that it go back to his committee so he can check it out and see that it's all right; and he asked that it go back to his committee, and, if it's all right, go automatically to Order of Business Number 5. Now, Mr. Aasheim has amended that-that it go back to him and come back to this body on Order of Business Number 10.

DELEGATE FELT: I see.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And you asked whether or not that would give us an opportunity to open up the question you-that these people are talking about. And I think it would not, because that would be a substantive matter if we discussed whether to put one or the other on the ballot, and it does not seem that we are ready to discuss the form of the ballot yet. No one seems to want to wait. When we get to Style and Drafting—

DELEGATE FELT: Mr. Chairman, I don't want a misunderstanding. I think-I felt that you had ruled correctly, that this was not the proper time, and I wanted to make sure this motion wouldn't have the effect of overturning the position the Chair had taken, because it seems to me, too, that this is-neither today nor tomorrow would be the proper time to take up that question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's the Chair's view that if you want to take this up at the proper time, the proper time is when you debate ballot, which you're going to do before you get out of here, and the Style and Drafting Committee will draw a ballot and that ballot will be up for debate. And if you don't like it, you can move to strike what they did on Legislative and put it on the ballot one way or the other, or neither way, whatever you want. And at that time, we can debate it as much as we want. Of course, that's going to be near the end. Other than that, it seems to me the only other way I can see of getting the consensus of this body—well, there are two ways. One is to suspend the rules and go right back in and start over again on Legislature, and the second way-that is, on 1, 2 and 3 of the Legislative Article. The second way would be, if you want to send to the Rules Committee a rule and get the sense of the body, rather than affect the substance of it, I suppose that the Rules Committee would discuss with you a possibility of having a resolution which might give us the sense of the body without affecting the substance of the article. Now, there's three ways to do it-the ballot time, by resolution, by suspending the rules and starting over again on the Legislature. But I don't think you're going to do it, Mr. Aasheim, by bringing it back to General Orders tomorrow. Is there further—

Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Yes. I would like to ask a question here that I think might clear this up to some extent. When we vote on the ballot, to decide, then will we be deciding which will be on the top-the unicameral or the bicameral? And is it possible that maybe counties will have to stagger these and that some counties will let it take the same shape as candidates and that it may not be the top in one area and—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You people are all presuming what Style and Drafting is going to do, and you cannot guess, because they haven't decided.

DELEGATE BATES: Well, Mr. Chairman, when it's candidates-and this, of course, may be different-but when it's candidates, they must be staggered. The first one—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's right, Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: But it isn't with this ballot, then?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, Mrs. Bates, I didn't say it wasn't. I said Style and Drafting is going to decide that matterandyou'regoing to get a chance to vote on it. Now, this issue is whether or not we should adopt Mr. Aasheim's substitute motion to refer this to Style and Drafting and back to General Orders tomorrow.

Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman, I'm just asking for another day's time to think this matter over. That's the reason I'm asking to come back on General Orders.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, is there other discussion? (No response) All in favor of Mr. Aasheim's motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Noes have it, and it's defeated. All right, now we're back on Mr. Schiltz's motion that the matter be referred to Style and Drafting and then, if it's all right, go directly to Order of Business Number 5; if not—there are errors-to be brought back to General Orders. So many as are in favor of Mr. Schiltz's motion, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Style and Drafting's Report Number 3 is rereferred to Style and Drafting under the terms of that motion.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee consider the Style and Drafting Report Number 4 on the Executive at 9:00 a.m., March 8, 1972, and consider all other business on General Orders at the next sitting of the committee. And the sense of my motion is to rearrange the calendar and get on with the Bill of Rights work.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray's motion is to pass the Executive Article Style and Drafting Report until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and start now with Bill of Rights. Is there any discussion? (No response) All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: I move the committee recess until 3:30 this day.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: A move of recess until 3:30. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Convention recessed at 3:20 p.m.--reconvened at 3:40 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Committee will be in session. The Chair would like to announce that the Chair anticipates an evening session tonight. I think I may have said that before, and I anticipate that. We'll probably wind up about 5 or 5:15, and we'll probably come back in at 7:30 or 8:O0.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I move the committee rise and finally report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: On the Legislative Style and Drafting Article? The motion's been made to rise and finally report on the Legislative Style and Drafting Article. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Will the clerk please read the title of the report.

CLERK HANSON: "March 7, 1972. Mr. President: We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration business under General Orders, Report Number 3 of the Committee on Style and Drafting, recommend as follows: that the committee rise and finally report on the Legislative Style and Drafting Report. Signed: Leo Graybill, Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move that the Convention adopt the Committee of the Whole report.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion has been made that the Committee of the Whole report be adopted. Is there discussion? (No response) All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered. Mr. Murray, we'll go on to Order of Business Number 11. Are there announcements?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President. Rules Committee meeting, 8 o'clock in the Rules room. I might add, Mr. President, that's 8 o'clock in the morning in the Rules Committee room.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Rules, at 8 o'clock in the morning. Are there other announcements? (No response) Very well, we'll be back on Order of Business Number 1.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move that we advance to Order of Business Number 10, General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 10, General Orders, has beenmoved. Is there-we've been moved to-advanced to that. Is there any objection? (No response) All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: We're back on Order of Business Number 10.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move that the Convention resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for consideration of business under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion has been made to resolve this Convention into Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill of Rights proposal. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

(Convention resolved into Committee of the Whole)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Ladies and gentlemen of the committee, we will start the Bill of Rights by having Mr. Dahood make a short statement, and then we'll consider it as usual, article by article-section by section.

Mr. Dahood, are you prepared to make your statement now, sir?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I am prepared, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. Bill of Rights Committee Proposal Number 8 is before you. We hope and trust that you have examined all 34 sections, that any questions that you might have with respect to any of those sections will be presented to us. We will welcome meaningful dialogue and debate. During the course of preparing the proposal that is before you, the committee received 46 proposals, heard 138 witnesses, and held more than 20 committee hearings. As a result, there are 34 sections in a proposed Bill of Rights for the State of Montana that promises to provide the citizens of the State of Montana with the finest, most expansive declaration of individual rights enacted by any state of the United States. The proposal before you will show that there were seven votes cast in opposition. With respect to the 34 sections, only 5 sections received negative votes; but nevertheless, when all was resolved, all 11 committee members unanimously pledged their support to all 34 sections without dissent. The committee members will move the various sections. I have placed before the Chair the sections and, opposite those sections, the committee members who will move those respective sections; and I would like to request the Chair to recognize the committee members in the order in which their names appear on the list that is before the Chair, commencing with Preamble and committee member George James. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Clerk, will you read Bill of Rights Preamble Article. Read the title and the Preamble.

CLERK HANSON: "Montana Constitutional Convention, 1971-72, Bill of Rights Committee Proposal Number 8. Date reported, February 23, 1972; Wade Dahood, Chairman; Chet Blaylock, Vice-Chairman. Be it proposed by the Bill of Rights Committee that there be a new article on the Bill of Rights to read as follows: Preamble. We, the people of Montana, grateful to God for the quiet beauty of our state, the grandeur of our mountains, the vastness of our rolling plains, and desiring to improve the quality of life, equality of opportunity, and to secure the blessings of liberty for this and future generations, do ordain and establish this Constitution." Mr. Chairman, the Preamble.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, guests, members of the staff. I think that we all took an active part in the presentation of this Preamble. It's not the usual form sort of thing that many states have. It expresses a reverence for our land, a pride in it; and it's an expression of a philosophy that we of the committee believe in. Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having under consideration the Preamble, it recommends that the same be adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, you have before you a motion that the Preamble be adopted. Is there discussion?

Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman, I think the authors of this Preamble are to be congratulated. I think it represents the use of the English language at its very best; yet it is different, so far as I can determine, from any other state constitution. I think it deserves-they deserve great credit for the beauty of the terminology, and I support it and hope for its adoption.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion? (No response) Very well, members of the committee, you have before you for your consideration, upon the motion of Mr. James that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration the Preamble to the Bill of Rights Article-the Preamble to the Constitution, that this committee recommend the same be adopted. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Mr. Clerk, please read Section 1 of the Bill of Rights Article.

CLERK HANSON: "Declaration of rights. Section 1, Popular sovereignty. All political power is vested in and derived from the people. All government of right originates with the people, is founded upon their will only, and is instituted solely for the good of the whole." Mr. Chairman, Section 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman]. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1 of Proposal Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman], this reads exactly as the Section 1 of the 1889 Constitution. We had considered shortening the language; in fact, we had tried it out and the committee discussed this for some period of time. And we had some expression from some people who had come before our committee that they liked the language as it was, they liked the sound of the language. And so the-by a final-the vote of the committee, we decided to leave it just as it is in the 1889 Constitution, to be put into our new Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 1? (No response) Members of the committee, you have before you for your consideration, upon the motion of Mr. Blaylock that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1 of the Bill of Rights Article, that this committee recommend the same be adopted. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Will the clerk read Section 2.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2, self-government. The people of the state have the exclusive right of governing themselves as a free, sovereign, and independent state. They may alter or abolish their Constitution and form of government whenever they may deem it necessary." Mr. Chairman, Section 2.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2 of Proposal Number 8, it recommend that the same be adopted.

Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman], we have changed this one so far as the language. We straightened it out some to make it read a little more simply. For instance, in the old Constitution, right after "have the" on the-line 21, we struck the words "so and", because wefeltit means the same as exclusive; so we struck those two words. And then we took out the sentence-we say there they "may alter or abolish their Constitution and form a government whenever they may deem it necessary", and we have stricken from this language "provided such change be not repugnant to the Constitution of the United States". We felt that language was not necessary in this, that this is simply a declaration of our rights as citizens of this state.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 2? (No response) Members of the committee, you have before you for your consideration, upon the recommendation of Mr. Blaylock that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2 of the Bill of Rights Article, that we recommend the same be adopted. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 2 is adopted. Section 3-please read, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman. "Section 3, Inalienable rights. All persons are born free and havecertaininalienablerights, whichinclude the right of pursuing life's basic necessities; of enjoying and defending their lives and liberties; of acquiring, possessing, and protecting property; and of seeking their safety, health, and happiness in all lawful ways. In enjoying these rights, the people recognize corresponding responsibilities." Mr. Chairman, Section 3.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 3 of Proposal Number 8, it recommends that the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: In the inalienable rights section, we have basically kept it the same as the inalienable rights section in our present Constitution, except for some minor changes. If you'll turn to page 15 in our committee proposal, you can read along with me. The committee proposes, with two dissenting votes, that the former Article III, Section 3, be retained with few substantive changes. The committee struck language which was felt to be redundant. In addition, it is recommended that the right to pursue life's basic necessities be incorporated as a statement of principle. The intent of the committee on this point is not to create a substantive right for all the necessities of life to be provided by the public treasury. The committee heard considerable testimony from low-income people and social service people alike that the current state public assistance programs are not meeting the genuine needs of low-income people who, because of circumstances beyond their control, are unable to obtain basic necessities. Accordingly, it is hoped that the Legislature will have occasion to review these programs and upgrade them where necessary to provide full necessities to those in-who-in genuine need and to go-and to curb whatever abuses may exist in the programs. What was attempted in this part of the portion-the proposed section was a statement of principle that all persons have inalienable right to pursue the basic necessities of life, that there can be no right to life apart from the possibility of existence. Otherinalienablerightswereindicated, with only minor changes in style for purposes of clarity. In addition, an additional right, the right of seeking health, was incorporated in recognition of the fact that the right to life without health is a very sorry proposition. The final sentence of this section is-having been derived from Delegate Proposal Number 116. Testimony was received both favoring and opposing the inclusion of this statement of corresponding responsibilities in the declaration of rights. Some expressed the feeling that many were accepting rights without recognizing that they create obligations. Others were adamant that a declaration of rights should contain just that-the right of persons against governmental abuses and the rights of minorities against the power of unchecked majorities. The committee felt that the inclusion of such a statement does not infringe or impair the rights granted in the declaration of rights, but only accords a tone of responsibility in their exercise, In regard to basic necessities, we had about 17 people come before our committee. Many of them were of low income status economically, and we had social service workers. And it was our opinion that such a statement in the Bill of Rights as we have stated here does not suggest that the state pay out of the public treasury for those basic necessities, such as housing, medical care and nourishment, but that this is more or less a constitutional sermon so that maybe the Legislature, from time to time, can improve and update--update and upgrade our public assistance programs from time to time as they see fit. Ofcourse, therighttohealth was incorporated in the last sentence and the second to the last sentence of our inalienable rights section. I didn't look it up in the dictionary; but an inalienable right is something, in my estimation, that comes to each one of us just because we're here and we're human beings. Even if there was no such thing as a government, all of us would have these rights. I will stop at this point, and if there's any comments we can hear them, and I move that we adopt this section. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further debate?

Mr. Kelleher. No?

Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I believe that you have, Mr. Chairman, a copy of an amendment for this section that does not delete anything. It's the addition of eight words, and I wonder if the clerk could read it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read Mr. Burkhardt's amendment.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 3, Bill of Rights Committee proposal, on page 4, line 26, by inserting, after the word 'include', the following words-quote: 'the right to a clean and healthful environment'-comma, end quote. Signed: Burkhardt."

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a moment. Mr. Burkhardt wishes to make an amendment on line 26, after the word "include", right at the end of the line-"which include"--and he wants to add the words "the right to a clean and healthful environment" before the phrase "the right to pursuing life's basic necessities", et cetera.

Mr. Burkhardt, your amendment is allowed. Go ahead and discuss it.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman. This is a statement that we, as a body, have already adopted in another section of our Constitution, in our Natural Resources section. We have the statement: "It shall be the duty of the State of Montana and each person to maintain and improve a clean and healthful environment." And it seems to me that it's simply striking the other side of the balance to put it here in our Bill of Rights, to recognize that this is, for the time in which we're living and for the foreseeable future, one of the inalienable rights that we hope to assure for our posterity. I don't care to belabor the issue. It seems to me it's self-evident. I would reserve the right to close if there is debate on the issue.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I would ask Delegate Burkhardt if he will yield to a question.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I will.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Delegate Burkhardt, I would like to inquire, on behalf of our committee, if by this proposed amendment it is your intention to provide the citizens of the State of Montana with the independent right to initiate a lawsuit when his own health and his own property is not affected within the contemplation of the present law?

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Dahood, you have much experience as a trial lawyer and I may be somewhat at a disadvantage in handling the question, but I will try to answer it as I understand it. I read the Preamble to this section on the Bill of Rights and believed it. I think it's a beautiful statement, and it seems to me that what I am proposing here is in concert with what's proposed in that Preamble; that what we are talking about here is the goal toward which we try to grow as a society. I do not see it as an overt attempt to slip in with the opportunity to sue.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Very fine. Thank you very much. Mr. Chairman, I certainly want to comment that, with respect to the basic concept itself, it is a concept with which no one can disagree, in my judgment, but I certainly would like to hear some of the other delegates with respect to the proposed amendment. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion?

Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Our Bill of Rights Committee discussed environmental issues at some length and decided that we really shouldn't include a section on environmental bill of rights, which I think that a great many of us had expected to do, since this would be covered by the Natural Resources Committee. We did submit a statement to the Natural Resources Committee which included, I think, a slightly stronger statement than what we've included here. We also concurred pretty much with the statement that they came up with, especially their statement of what the duty of the state is in regards to maintaining a clean environment, a healthful environment, a high-quality environment-whatever you want to call it. It's my understanding that they quite purposely did not include a statement of each individual's rights, believing that this kind of a statement really fitted better into the Bill of Rights. We could include a separate statement on it, but I think that with what has gone before, it's not really necessary; and I certainly do concur in Mr. Burkhardt's amendment here as being quite appropriate to what the intention of it was in our committee and I think also the intention of the Natural Resources Committee. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion?

Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. McNeil yield to a question on this subject?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil?

DELEGATE MCNEIL: I yield.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. McNeil, do you think this tends to reinforce your article in Natural Resources, or how do you regard putting this in with-in the light of what your own committee did?

DELEGATE MCNEIL: I can't speak for the committee; I can only speak as an individual. I introduced a delegate proposal which would have given each individual the right to a quality environment. I have already spoken on this "clean and healthful". I'm afraid that that isn't as strong as what we really want, but if that's the will of the Convention and as strong as they think they can pass, why, I would agree with it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Well, Mr. Chairman, I would want the minutes and the record of this Convention to show that this amendment does not have as one of its purposes an attempt to circumvent the votes that were taken with respect to the Natural Resources motions that attempted to put in theories with respect to the environment, that were rejected by a majority of these constitutional delegates. And I trust that this is not the intention of the mover of the amendment; and if that be correct, then I would have no objection to the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt, do you care to respond?

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Am I closing or just responding, or what?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, you're probably closing, since I don't see anyone else up.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: The way I figure it, Bob Kelleher owes all of us an hour and a half, and one of these days I'm going to take it, but not now. (Laughter) Just that I think running through all of us is a concern to provide for future years, and I think industry joins us in this concern. They are, after all, human beings whose children must grow up in our country; and already our major industries are on record in the direction and beyond what we're stating here. So I would say that I did not vote the other day for the public trust concept because I felt it had been an emotional, a distorted issue and that it would be misunderstood; and it seems to me that we are providing here, though, a clear intent. It does present the right of every person. And we've already talked about the duties of persons, and it's nice to balance it with this right. I close with that.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises on Mr. Burkhardt's motion to add the terms-the words "the right to a clean and healthful environment" on line 26, page 4, of the Bill of Rights Article, Section 3. So many—

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Roll call.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kamhoot wants a roll call vote. So many as are in favor of Mr. Burkhardt's amendment, vote Aye; so many as are opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Please take the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 79 delegates voting Aye, 7 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 79 delegates having voted Aye and 7 No, the amendment to add that phrase to Section 3 passes-or is adopted. Is there any other discussion of Section 3?

Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, I move to substitute the word "conceived" for the word "born" on line 25.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a minute, Mr. Kelleher. Since you didn't send that up, I have to write it out here.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: C-O-N-C-E-I-V-E-D.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: B-O-R-N? Yes, Mr. Kelleher. Mr. Kelleher makes a motion to amend line 25 by striking the word "born" and putting in the word "conceived".

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: My purpose in this is, what's theuseofhavingrightsoftheliving if I don't have the right to be born? A most defenseless human being in the world is the human fetus, which is dependent upon its own mother for protection. And lastly, I would leave to the courts the meaning of when a-quote-"person"-close quote-as used in line 25, is conceived.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I stand in opposition to the amendment. What Delegate Kelleher is attempting to do at this time is, by constitutional command, prohibit abortion in the State of Montana. That issue was brought before the committee. We decided that we should not deal with it within the Bill of Rights. It is a legislative matter insofar as we are concerned. The world of law has for centuries conducted a debate as to when a person becomes a person, at what particular state, at what particular time; and we submit that this particular question shouldnot bedecided by this delegation. It has no part at this time within the Bill of Rights of the Constitution of the State of Montana, and we oppose it for that reason.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Kelleher, you may close.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: May I have five seconds, please, for a roll call vote?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, we'll have a roll call vote. The question now arises on Mr. Kelleher's amendment to substitute the word "conceived" for the word "vote"-or for the word "born". So that the first sentence would read: "All persons are conceived free and have certain inalienable rights." So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Kelleher's motion, vote Aye; and so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 71 having voted No and 15 delegates having voted Aye, Mr.

Kelleher's motion fails. Is there other discussion of Section 3? (No response) Very well, members of the committee, you have before you, on the recommendation of Mr. Monroe that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 3, that it recommend the same be adopted as amended. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 3 is adopted. Mr. Clerk, will you please read Section 4.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 4, Individual dignity. The dignity of the human being is inviolable. No person shall be denied the equal protection of the law nor be discriminated against in the exercise of his civil or political rights on account of race, color, sex, culture, social origin or condition, or political or religious ideas, by any person, firm, corporation or institution; or by the state, its agencies or subdivisions." Mr. Chairman, subsection-Section 4.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mrs. Mansfield.

DELEGATE MANSFIELD: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4 of the Bill of Rights, it recommends it be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Mansfield.

DELEGATE MANSFIELD: The committee unanimously adopted this section with the intent of providing a constitutional impetus for the eradication of public and private discrimination based on race, color, sex, culture, social origin or condition, or political or religious ideas. The provision, quite similar to that of the Puerto Rico declaration of rights, is aimed at prohibiting private as well as public discrimination in civil and political rights. Considerable testimony was heard concerning the need to include sex in any equal protection or freedom from discrimination provisions. The committee felt that such inclusion was eminently proper and saw no reason for the state to wait for the adoption of the federal equal rights amendment or any amendment which would not explicitly provide as much protection as this provision. The word "culture" was incorporated specifically to cover groups whose cultural base is distinct from mainstream Montana, especially the American Indians. Social origin or condition was included to cover discriminations based on status of income and standard of living. Some fears were expressed that the wording "political or religious ideas" would permit persons who supported the right to work in principle to avoid union membership. Such is not the intent of the committee. The wording was incorporated to prohibit public and private concerns discriminating against persons because of their political or religious beliefs. The wording of this section was derived almost verbatim from the Delegate Proposal Number 61. The committee felt that this proposal incorporated all features of all the delegate proposals, numbers 10, 32, 50 and 51, on the subjects of equal protection of the laws and the freedom from discrimination. The committee is well aware that any broad proposal on these subjects will require considerable statutory embellishment. It is hoped that the Legislature will enact statutes to promote effective eradication of the discriminations prohibited in this section. The considerable support for and the lack of opposition to this provision indicates its import and advisability. Mr. Chairman, I move that when this cornmittee does rise and report, after having this under consideration, Section 4, of the Bill of Rights, it recommends its adoption. Thank you, Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, is there discussion of Section 4?

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Chairman. I move to delete from Section 4, on line 8, the words at the end of the line "by any person", and on line 9 the words "firm, corporation or institution; or".

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President [Chairman], it is my opinion that the words "by any person, firm or corporation ox-institution" can be opening a lot of challenges to the rights of other people to privacy, to things which we have considered dear. I happen to be a very-partly Scandinavian. I belong to an organization called Sons of Norway. They exclude people who aren't Norwegians, although you can go a long ways in finding out who-if you have some Norwegian blood in you. But the point I'm trying to make is that I feel that this amendment, as it is written, can be construed to prohibit organizations which are incorporated from limiting their membership. It can cause me, as an individual, to have to associate with people that I choose not to associate with. And I think the federal Constitution, as it is being interpreted by the United States Supreme Court at the present time, carries this matter far enough, and I am therefore moving the deletion of these words.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion?

Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. I can appreciate Delegate Habedank's concern, because I think that concerned us all, but that is not the intent of Section 4 with respect to individual dignity. We must keep in mind that we have a federal Civil Rights Act of 1964 which encompasses some of the fears that have been expressed by the gentleman delegate who has moved the amendment to strike that particular phraseology. There is no intent within this particular section to do anything other than to remove the apparent type of discrimination that all of us object to with respect to employment, to rental practices, to actual associationship in matters that are public or matters that tend to be somewhat quasi-public. With respect to a religious organization, with respect perhaps to the Sons of Norway or the Sons of Scandinavia, of course, there would necessarily be qualifications that an individual would have to meet before he would be admitted to membership. That type of private organization is certainly not within the intendment of the committeein submitting Section 4. The intent of Section 4 is simply to provide that every individual in the State of Montana, as a citizen of this state, may pursue his inalienable rights without having any shadows cast upon his dignity through unwarranted discrimination. And we submit that the concern of this date and of this Convention with respect to discrimination should not be reflected simply by having limitations upon the state and its agencies, but also by having those same limitations upon the private agencies that live within the society of the State of Montana. I oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman], I also oppose the amendment. I believe-I don't think that we can logically say that we'll just leave it to the state; and so many of these that are going to be--would be stricken if this amendment were to pass are the very firms that are hiring many people and, where we are concerned as Montana citizens, where discrimination may take place, so I do oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Would Mr. Dahood yield, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood, will you yield to a question?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I yield.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Mr. Dahood, correct me if I'm wrong, but it's my understanding that under the federal equal protection of the laws clause, which is the same as you have here, that everything you have after the word "equal protection of the law" would really be subsumed in that first provision and everything you've said after that would really be unnecessary, although I have no objection to it. It would go without saying, is that correct?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: No person shall be denied the equal protection of the law.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Right. If you put a period there—

DELEGATE DAHOOD: That's correct.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: -the meaning would be the same.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: But I think when we're dealing with this type of right, Delegate Loendorf, and we are dealing with something that is this basic, to an orderly and progressive society perhaps sometimes the sermon that can be given by constitution, as well as the right, becomes necessary. And I think it takes that type of language to convey the intent of this committee. Thank you for the question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Yes, will Mr. Dahood yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I yield.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mr. Dahood, I'm a little bit like Mr. Habedank. I understand that we don't want discrimination in employment, things like that, but could-can the intent of this be that, for instance, that all of the ladies would—should be-can join the Elks or the Masons or the strictly men organizations? I mean, you say any corporation--or any person or any corporation-I presume many would apply to that-or any institution. There are several lady organizations, several male organizations, all of which are thereby—

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Holland, in answer to your question, no, that is not our intent. There are certain requirements, certain qualifications, certain matters, I suppose, that might fall within the term of legitimate discrimination that are not covered by this particular section. Anything that falls within the realm of common sense-1 think you've indicated situations where common sense would have to indicate that the qualifications that would be set for membership are proper, and in those circumstances I would not expect Section 4 to have any effect. Thank you, Mr. Holland.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Would Mr. Dahood yield to another question?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE HARPER: I think we see what Mr. Habedank is getting at. This says that "No person shall be denied the equal protection of the law". That's clear. Then it continues, "nor be discriminated against"—and this is the phrase—"in the exercise of his civil or political rights". Now is that-does that, in your interpretation, rule out things like girls joining the YMCA and so forth? Aren't civil rights things that the Legislature has to deal with?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Basically, Delegate Harper, that is correct. And I do not think at this time in America we have an all-inclusive definition of civil rights. Thank you for the question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion of Section 4?

Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman, I'd also like to point out the fact that this does include protection from religious discrimination, which previously had been in the religious-in the section on freedom of religion; and it is covered here and it is not covered again there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Will Mr. Dahood yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Mr. Dahood, I'm concerned about this proposal because of some information that was received that it might be a nonself-executing provision as you have it written. And that's why, in my proposal, I followed what Illinois did and provided that this would be a self-executing provision. There is some concern that as you have it written now it would take complete legislative implementation to make it effective. Is that true?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Delegate Robinson, I think the question is sound, but I must answer by saying in my judgment that is not true for these reasons. I think the Illinois section, if memory serves correct, added a paragraph to indicate that the Legislature would set guidelines for the enforcement of that particular right. In any event, constitutions are based on the premise that they are presumed to be self-executing, particularly within the Bill of Rights. If the language appears to be prohibitory and mandatory, as this particular section is intended to be, then in that event, the courts in interpreting the particular section are bound by that particular presumption and they must assume, in that situation, that it is self-executing. There was a case in Montana some 60 years ago that involved a provision of our Bill of Rights that had to do with an individual right, and there the Supreme Court said that was self-executing and a citizen could enforce it without any type of legislative implementation. Does that answer your question?

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Yes. Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Will Mr. Dahood yield to one more question?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Dahood will yield to one more question.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: If Section 3, then, is self-executing, where we are stating a right against discrimination, why would not Section 4—rather, why would not Section 3, where we included the right to a clean and healthful environment? What I-you know, it seems to me that your concern in adding this thing in subsection 3 is perhaps it is not a self-executing thing, and then in 4, perhaps it is. I-it seems that for-in the Bill of Rights, what would apply to Section 4 would apply to Section 3.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I understand your question. It's very good, but I am being consistent. What we have added to Section 3 is, in my judgment, self-executing with respect to an individual who personally is affected with respect to his health and to his property. And I think the statement is a good one; I think it's an amendment that certainly ought to be in our Bill of Rights, I just wanted to be sure that we were not trying, through some type of subrosa method, bring in the public trust doctrine which was discredited here on the Convention floor. Thank you, Delegate Robinson.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion of Section 4? (No response) Very well. Members of the committee, you have before you for your consideration, upon the recommendation of Mrs. Mansfield that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4-just a minute, Mr. Habedank.

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Chairman, we have an amendment to be disposed of first.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Oh, so we do. Excuse me. Mr. Habedank has an amendment to strike the words "by any person, firm, corporation, or institution; or", on lines 8 and 9. Is there further discussion?

DELEGATE FOSTER: Roll call.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You want a roll call vote? Very well, so many as are in favor of the motion to strike those words, vote Aye; and so many as are opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk take the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 13 delegates voting Aye, 76 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 76 delegates having voted No and only 13 Aye, Mr. Habedank's amendment fails. We're discussing Section 4. Are there other amendments or other discussion? (No response) Very well. Members of the committee, you have before you on the recommendation of Mrs. Mansfield that when this committee shall arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4 of the Bill of Rights proposal, that this committee recommend that it be adopted. So many as shall be in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Will the clerk read Section 5.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 5, Freedom of religion. The State of Montana shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." Mr. Chairman, Section 5.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Monroe

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 5, Proposal 8, it recommend that the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, the committee decided unanimously to substitute the concise wording of the freedom of religion clause of the federal First Amendment. Much testimony was heard on this provision, most of it on the subject of public aid to church-related schools. The committee felt that this issue should be dealt with, as it was, by the Education and Public Lands Committee and that the provision incorporated into the declaration of rights should restrict itself to guaranteeing the free exercise of religion and prohibiting the establishment of any religion. The committee felt especially strong about removing the anti-Mormon biases reflected in the previous wording of Article III, Section 4. This can be found on page 2 of our present Constitution, Section 4. Beyond that, the committee noted that since the religions which historically were persecuted were those alleged to violate or threaten the good order, peace and safety of the state, such passages were dubious of merit in a statement of religious liberty. Accordingly, both, of considerable length, were deleted. What remains is the tradition-ridden guarantee of religous liberty adopted by the first U.S. Congress in 1789 as part of the federal Bill of Rights. Realizing the legal, social, political problems of the church-state area are exceedingly complex, it is not urged that this provision will simplify their resolution. However, it will certainly not make the understanding of these compelling and sometimes paradoxical concerns more difficult. We've, as it says, substituted the First Amendment clause in regard to religious liberty. It makes it a lot more—simpler to understand, in my estimation. The present Section 4 of Article III in OUT Constitution is some 129 words, and in my estimation it is not very clear. Our committee-and members of the committee, as well as many people in the Convention, have received letters from people saying that they feel that is clear. I do not agree with that, and some members of my committee do not agree with that either. Some people have even went as far as saying they would not be able to vote for the Constitution-the adoption of the Constitution-if we altered Section 4 in the present Constitution in its present form. We feel that the federal amendment in regard to religous freedom is quite adequate and has served us for almost 200 years. I move for its adoption, Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion of this article-this section?

Mr. Rollins.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I feel I ought to rise and give thanks for the Mormons, in spite of the fact that you are only 82 years behind times, because the Mormons abandoned it officially in 1890 themselves.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Members of the committee, you have before you for your consideration, upon the motion of Mr. Monroe that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 5 of the Bill of Rights, that it recommend the same do pass-m the same be adopted. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 5 is adopted. Section 6, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 6, Freedom of assembly. The people shall have the right peaceably to assemble, petition for redress or to protest governmental action." Mr. Chairman, Section 6.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Mansfield.

DELEGATE MANSFIELD: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6 of the Bill of Rights, it recommends its adoption.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Mansfield.

DELEGATE MANSFIELD: The committee unanimously recommended that the former Article III, Section 26, be adopted with only one stylistic change. The basic right to assemble for redress of grievances by petition or remonstrance remains unchanged. The wording was tightened up a little and the phrase "protest governmental action" was substituted for the phrasing "apply to those invested with the powers of government for redress of grievances by remonstrance"—unquote. In doing so, the committee notes the paramount position of the right and the invaluable function its responsible exercise plays in a democratic society. Mr. Chairman, I move the adoption of this Section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman, I move to amend Section 6, page 5, line 16, by adding, after the word "or", the word—quote—"peaceably"-close quote.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil's amendment has the effect of adding, at line 16 on page 5, after the word "or", the word "peaceably".

So that the sentence reads: "The people shall have the right peaceably to assemble, petition for redress or peaceably protest governmental action." Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman, I think the amendment speaks for itself. I agree with the committee's stylistic change and updating of the language. However, I would not want the absence of the word "peaceably" to imply any endorsement of violent protest of governmental action.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman, the word "peaceably" is already on line 15, and I believe it already applies to all of those other words.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman, I must disagree with that, because of the conjunctive "or". The "peaceably" modifies "assemble"; it does not affect petition for redress. And I don't want there to be any doubt that the protesting of governmental action must likewise be peaceable.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any further discussion? All in favor of Mr. McNeil's amendment to add the word "peaceably" on line 16 before-"peaceably protest governmental action", please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, that amendment is adopted. Is there-are there further amendments to Section 6?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Will Mr. Dahood yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood, will you yield?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I do yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Just a matter of context here. Why didn't you say "to assemble peaceably", rather than to put the "peaceably" first? Why didn't you say "to assemble peaceably"?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Or "to assemble peaceably"?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: On page-on line 15, yes.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Delegate Aasheim, are you referring to the old wording of the Constitution?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Well, it just seems like you are putting the adverb in-out of place. You assemble peaceably, don't you?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Well, I frankly had not considered it. The Vice-Chairman, who, of course, is our expert in grammar and English composition, indicated to us that that was proper wording. We accepted it; and I fail to see where the meaning can in any way be misconstrued. I thought the amendment proposed by Delegate McNeil would do away with any ambiguity, but if somebody thinks the syntax can be corrected and improved, I have no objection to it.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: A question, then. Do you want "peaceably petition", "peaceably redress"? Is that what your intent was?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Was that our intent?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Yes.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Yes, our intent was that in exercising any of the rights that are set forth in Section 6, that it must be done in a lawful, orderly and peaceable manner. And none of us experienced the ambiguity that's been expressed on the floor.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROBERT HANSON: Mr. President [Chairman], I think if you'll-if Mr. Aasheim will look at the present wording in Section 26 of our present Constitution, he will see that it says "the people shall have the right peaceably to assemble", and I don't think we plan on making any changes in the language.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Cross.

DELEGATE CROSS: Mr. Chairman, the word "peaceably", with that ending, is an adverb; and adverbs modify all forms of verbs; and infinitives are forms of verbs. So I don't see what the question is in this particular sentence. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think the journal will at least be clear. Is there any other question? Very well, members of the committee, you have before you for your consideration, upon the motion of-Mrs. Mansfield, is this yours?

DELEGATE MANSFIELD: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay-of Mrs. Mansfield-that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6, as amended, that it recommend the same be adopted. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Will the clerk read Section 7.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 7, Freedom of speech, expression and press. No law shall be passed impairing the freedom of speech or expression. Every person shall be free to speak or publish whatever he will on any subject, being responsible for all abuse of that liberty. In all suits and prosecutions for libel or slander, the truth thereof may be given in evidence; and the jury, under the direction of the court, shall determine the law and the facts." Mr. Chairman, Section 7.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Mansfield.

DELEGATE MANSFIELD: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having under consideration Section 7 in the Bill of Rights, it recommends the same to be adopted.

Mr. President [Chairman], Section 7. The committee unanimously proposes the adoption of the former Article III-this is on page 19—Section 10, with one substantive change. The freedom of speech is extended, in line with federal decisions under the First Amendment, to cover the freedom of expression. Hopefully this extension will provide impetus to the courts in Montana to rule on various forms of expression similar to the spoken word, and the ways in which one expresses his unique personality, in an effort to rebalance the general backseat status of states in the safeguarding of civil liberties. The committee wishes to stress the primacy of these guarantees in the hope that their enforcement will not continue merely in the wake of the federal case law. Other minor changes made in the section were merely stylistic in nature, except for the inclusion of the word "slander", to provide protection against abuses of the free speech and press guarantees in cases of spoken as well as written word. The committee retained the established principle that in libel trials, the jury shall decide the law and the facts, on the theory that the removal of this clause might be construed as the denial of a right. The principle is continued, with the note that in the cases of libel it is necessary for the prosecutor to convince both the court and the jury before the free speech and press protections are overridden-Harrington versus Butte Miners Company, et al, in the Montana 550, 554, 139, page 451. I move this adoption, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion?
Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Mr. Chairman, would Mrs. Mansfield yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Mansfield?

DELEGATE MANSFIELD: If I can answer it.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Mrs. Mansfield, I've read your comment-and I haven't read Harrington versus the Miners Union, though—but I'm concerned about juries determining questions of lawinlibelcases. Would you justelaborate a bit on the reasons the committee retained that?

DELEGATE MANSFIELD: You know, I think I'll turn that over to Mr. Dahood. He's our legal—

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Thank you, Mrs. Mansfield.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood, you may have the floor.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Very fine, Mr. Chairman. Thank you very much. In response to the question, let me say that the committee initially applied the same reasoning that is in the mind of Delegate Loendorf at this time, but research indicates to us-does indicate to us there is a historical reason for the language as contained in that section to the effect that the jury shall determine both the law and the fact. I think to the trained legal mind, at first blush it seems inconceivable that a jury shall have the right to determine the law. But apparently in the common law days of England, the right of free speech was considered so precious that the right, with respect to whether or not the law should apply in a particular case, was left to the jury rather than to the court so that there would be no abuse of that sacred right. That particularright apparently was carried over from England to the United States, and the framers of the current Montana Constitution and Bill of Rights carried that protection into the section on free speech. There was a Montana case, which Mrs. Mansfield cited in her rationale supporting Section 7, and that particular concept was set forth in that case. We do not think thatitis going to change the manner in which cases involving libel and slander are tried in the State of Montana, since the juries are still expected to take their guidance with respect to the law from the court. But it does provide the jury with leeway in the event that they should think, within their community conscience as jurors, that in this particular instance, even though there might be a technical violation of the law, the circumstances are such that there should not be any type of penalty for that violation. The jury would have the right, then, to disregard the technical aspects of the law and find that there has not been any libel in that instance, either in a case of civil libel or criminal libel. To be consistent, to expand upon the right, we've included slander within that rationale, inasmuch as juries tend to follow that particular concept for determining libel and slander cases in any event. We did not want to take away any right that the citizens of the State of Montana presently have in the current Bill of Rights, and our committee takes great pride in the fact that the proposal that you have before you now takes away nothing that the citizens of the State of Montana have, but rather expands their rights in many respects so that expanding government shall continue to be, perhaps will become, more responsible to the citizens of the State of Montana, I hope that explanation does respond to the question. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman], if Mr. Dahood would yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Dahood, subsequent to the Harrington case that-cited in 48 Montana, I believe, or whatever it is, our Supreme Court has held that while under the provisions of this section the jury in libel suits shall determine the law and the facts, the function of the trial court and jury is not greatly different from what it is in other cases. Thus, it is for the court and not the jury to pass upon the admissibility of evidence, upon motions for nonsuit, or for a directed verdict upon motions for a new trial and motions to set aside verdicts and vacate judgments. And so, libel suits, though sui juris, are subject to the rules of practice found wise and useful in administering justice generally in the courts. I know that you've considered this matter, but it seems like this is an archaic carryover that really isn't being followed by the courts anyway, and I wondered if you would resist a motion to strike that portion of it.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Yes, I do, Carl. I do resist on behalf of the committee, simply because what you have just stated was the premise upon which we approached the section at our first study session; but after reviewing the law, we find that there is general substantial reason as to why the section should remain as it is. The case that you are talking about indicates the traditional function between court and jury does apply in the libel and slander case to the point where the court will instruct the jury as to what the law is in a particular case. The court will continue to determine whether or not there is some basis for granting a motion for a new trial; the court will continue to rule upon objections with respect to the evidence. But in the event the jury in a libel suit should determine that in this particular instance, notwithstanding the facts may fall within the proscription of that particular legal rule, nevertheless the jury does have the right to disregard the law in that instance and find in favor of free speech in that instance. The Montana court would not have the right then, under that rationale, to grant a motion for a new trial. The distinction does exist, and I want to assure you, Carl, that there is reason for leaving the section as we have submitted it to this Convention.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Will the gentleman, Mr. Dahood, yield to another question, please?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Dahood, I suspect this is in the present Constitution, and if it is it's probably always bothered me. In line 22 it says "prosecutions for libel or slander, the truth thereof ', And to me libel and slander are, per se, untruthful--and then when you say "thereof', it bothers me. Could we change that to "of statements" or something like that?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Delegate Schiltz, you raise a question that, of course, we raised; and I confess to you that there is language in some of these sections that perhaps could be stated in clearer legal language; but we thought in some of these instances we ought to pay some heed to tradition. I think all of us as lawyers appreciate that whether it's stated in a constitutional Bill of Rights or not, truth, unless actuated by malice, is a complete defense. And rather than be concerned about changing some of the words in that section and bring down the critique of certain segments of Montana society, we thought that this might fall within the legal concept of diminutivus; something that perhaps is too trifling to require any type of major change by the committee. So we left it in its original condition. I hope and trust that explanation is satisfactory to avoid a motion to amend at this time. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion? Very well, the question is on Section 7. Members of the committee, you have before you, on the recommendation of Mrs. Mansfield, when this committee rises and reports after having had under consideration Section 7 of the Bill of Rights Article, that this committee recommend the same be adopted. All in favor, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 8.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 8, Right of participation. The public shall have the right to expect governmental agencies to afford every feasible opportunity for citizen participation in the operation of the government prior to the final decision." Mr. Chairman, Section 8.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 8 of Proposal Number 8, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: The committee unanimously adopted this section in response to the increased public concern and literature about citizen participation in the decisionmaking processes of government. The provision is in part a constitutional sermon designed to serve notice to agencies of government that the citizens of the state will expect to participate in agency decisions prior to the time the agency makes up its mind. In part, it is also a commitment at the level of fundamental law to seek structures, rules, and procedures that maximize the access of citizens to the decisionmaking institutions of state government. If you recall when we were discussing the Legislative Article, we did not arrive at satisfactory wording to the effect that the Legislature must announce the dates of hearings so many days ahead of time. I think that this provision would very well take care of the fact that the Legislature must provide for some-for citizen participation in its hearings. I believethatother agencies of government--and I think right now of the Forest Service-have also become very much aware of the fact that there are real values in citizen participation where a decision is forthcoming. They announce it to the public and ask for public input, and they have found that this not only provides a good public relations with the public, but also provides them with some of the kinds of information they need, really, in making their decision. It is hoped that this provision will play a role in reversing the dissatisfactions increasingly expressed regarding bureaucratic authority insulated from public scrutiny and participation. The wording of the provision is derived from Delegate Don Foster's Proposal Number 38. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 8?

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Dahood yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Dahood, as I read this, I am in sympathy with what is being attempted, but I am concerned about the use of your words "every feasible" rather than "reasonable". It would seem to me that "every feasible" would be apt to be construed that no matter what you do, something else could have been done to afford citizen opportunity to participate. And without making a motion, I would like your rationale on why you've used "every feasible" rather than "reasonable".

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Well, in our judgment, "feasible" would include "reasonable" within it. What we were trying to express in this particular section was that the Legislature would do everything possible which is reasonable and feasible to allow the citizen to know that some decision is about to be made; and if the citizen wants to voice any opinion with respect to that decision, that they're going to be given not only a reasonable opportunity but a feasible one-one that provides them with easier access to approach that particular agency so that they can make their particular opinion known. Now you might, for example, give reasonable notice under circumstances where it might be difficult to approach the agency in a meaningful manner, such as perhaps having some undue restriction upon the ability of that particular citizen to make his opinion known to that committee. So by "feasible" we're intending to broaden the scope of "reasonable" to provide that the Legislature shall set up guidelines that will give some real substance to the right of the individual citizen to participate with respect to any decisionmaking function of government. As the comment would indicate, Delegate Habedank, this, I think, in substance is what we would call a constitutional sermon. I think we're laying down a particular principle. We want the Legislature to implement it. I am not prepared to say there isn't a self-executing facet to it as well-that if the Legislature did not do anything about it at all, perhaps if some decision were made without giving notice, without giving a citizen a chance to participate, I think that citizen could contend that there was an unconstitutional legislative activity. But we have faith in the Legislature. We think the Legislature, when it is formed after the new Constitution takes effect, is going to look at this particular section. We think they're going to do something about it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Will Mr. Dahood yield to one more question?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Yes, I will.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: As I understand your intent then, it is the thought and intent of the committee that "every feasible" leaves to the Legislature the power by statute to determine what is feasible and does not extend to an individual coming in and convincing a court that whatever the Legislature says, something more could have been done.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: No, Otto, I would think that if the Legislature provided a particular system whereby there will be government participation, I think a court could look at it and say that they have met the criterion of feasible as set forth in the Constitution. It's a reasonable set of guidelines. I don't think we'd have that trouble. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Dahood, would you yield to a question?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Dahood, would you interpret this to mean that any act taken by a School Board, a City Council, a Board of County Commissioners, any other board or commission, that was not noticed-in other words, any item of business they took up they hadn't previously published notice on and advised all the public--would be illegal and unconstitutional under "every feasible", because it would always probably be feasible to do this. Would you please comment on that?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Yes, I will comment on that, Delegate Davis. I think the intent of this is that any governmental agency, any agency that represents the people of this state, before it makes any substantial decision-and I think again we've got to depend upon the courts to interpret that in a wise and commonsensical way—must give that citizen some notice so that he can appear and participate. I think that's the function of democratic government, and I don't think it's too great an obligation on government.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President, I move to amend this article by striking "every feasible" and put in "reasonable" opportunity.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, that's in line 27. Mr. Davis proposes to strike the words "every feasible" and substitute therefor the word "reasonable", so that the sentence would read: "have the right to expect governmental agencies to afford reasonable opportunity for citizen participation.

Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: I won't speak further on it. I think it's self-evident. In every branch of our government, from school board meetings on, you have decisions and different business items come up that you would have to publish your complete agenda. The County Commissioners-everybody knows when the board meets, but they don't know all the items that may be necessary to discuss. I think it would restrict the operation of the-and function of our government if you have "every feasible"-is really difficult an interpretation.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I do not experience any particular problem in having the word "reasonable" substituted. I'm sure that my committee would not have any particular difficulty. I think, in our judgment, feasible was synonymous with reasonable but somewhat more expansive; but I think, as a lawyer, having been confronted with the use of the word "reasonable" so many times, having seen it defined so many times, that I think the definition that the law would give it would certainly serve the purpose that we intend to serve by Section 8. And if it pleases this body, I wish to state here and now the committee has no objection to that amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Davis' amendment to delete the words "every feasible" and substitute therefor the word "reasonable", on line 27, so that Section 8 reads: "The public shall have the right to expect governmental agencies to afford reasonable opportunity for citizen participation in the operation of government prior to the final decision."

Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: A roll call vote, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll have a roll call vote. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye-vote Aye; and so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Please take the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 75 delegates voting Aye, 11 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 75 delegates having voted Aye, 11 voting No, Mr. Davis' amendment prevails. We are still discussing Section 8. Are there any other matters?

Mr. Garlington.

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: Mr. Chairman, I have said before, I think it is the responsibility of this body to be-to deliberate carefully and not to do things that are going to create a lot of difficulty and confusion in the future. I am concerned about what is meant by the phrase "opportunity for citizen participation in the operation of government". This-I take it, "operation" means the decisionmaking performance of government. And when you participate in it, this, to some people, would mean the opportunity perhaps to vote or to argue, present a position in the course of the formation of that decision; and I want to propose an example, an illustration of how this might work. I've had considerable experience in the past representing individuals who have been subject to condemnation by the State Highway Department, and there is quite an elaborate appraisal ceremony that the State Highway Department conducts. It is always done in the utmost secrecy, and there is quite a lot of skirmishing that goes on between the right-of-way agent and the owner, usually before the lawyer ever gets into it. And my question is whether this language would not enable any land owner whose lands lie in the course of the interstate or some other highway thing to go to the Highway Department and to participate in the appraisal proceedings and the determination as to how his particular parcel was to be bargained for and acquired. And I certainly wouldn't mind this on behalf of clients whom I might represent, because it would greatly advantage his dealings with the department of government involved; but I think you can see that it would create quite a lot of havoc in the conduct of government. And were this to be applied to any other phases of the governmental function, I think we would be in trouble. And I bring this up so that we can look at these words and make sure that whatever we draft here really states what our intention is and if there are limits to what we're authorizing. And this is a mandatory right that a citizen could enforce on his own, because it starts right out— "the public shall have the right"-and it would therefore presumably be enforceable in the court. And I would like to know whether it could be pushed as far as I have indicated.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I think Delegate Garlington is to be commended for bringing up this point, because I think probably to--someone who did not participate in our committee debates might think that that problem can arise from the language that's contained in Section 8. In our judgment, it cannot arise from the language contained in Section 8 simply because it does not support the rationale and the record of this particular debate; this dialogue and this colloquy between Delegate Garlington and Delegate Dahood I think will lay that particular problem to rest forever. What is intended by Section 8 is that any rules and regulations that shall be made and formulated and announced by any governmental agency, which of course are going to affect the citizens of this state and the common welfare, shall not be made until some notice is given so that the citizen will have a reasonable opportunity to participate with respect to his opinion, either for or against that particular administrative action. With respect to the eminent domain situation that Delegate Garlington talks about, that is not within the ambit of Section 8. That involves a particular treatment of an individual right under laws, rules and regulations already made for which, of course, the courts provide the type of protection or the type of due process that we think the citizen needs to protect that particularright. I hope and trust that, for Delegate Garlington, at least, that answer does serve to set aside the particular concern at this time.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Blend.

DELEGATE BLEND: I would like to shed a little different thinking on this subject, Mr. Chairman. I am particularly delighted to see this section presented in the Bill of Rights. I have been involved in a citizens' participation group for several years now, and I am very much aware of the antagonism of government toward citizens' participation in its deliberations. They feel that citizens' involvement is disruptive; that we have elected them to make the laws, therefore we should not interfere. And I believe that this particular section could bring about an involvement of people in the-on the local level, particularly, in a very fine way. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman, I am very much in accord with the things that've been said here, but it seems to me that all of this misses the point very badly. The problem is, it seems to me, that here we have a statement which says the public shall have the right, but it is a right to what? A right to expect. Well, I submit that the right to expect something is not a right at all. Therefore, I would move to amend Section 8 by striking the words, on line 25, "the public shall" and on line 26 "have the right to expect" and to further strike—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, just a minute-just a minute. I've got "the public shall". What else are you striking?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: "The public shall have the right to expect"-to strike those words, capitalize "Governmental agencies", and strike the word "to" and, in place thereof, put the word "shall"; so that the section will read: "Governmental agencies shall afford every reasonable opportunity for citizens' participation in the operation of the government prior to the final decision."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I trust you mean "Governmental agencies shall afford reasonable opportunity". We struck the word "every" before. You don't need that back in, do you?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: No-yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, Mr. Harbaugh's amendment would strike, from lines 25 and 26, the phrase "the public shall have the right to expect"-strike that phrase and then start with a capital "G'-"Governmental agencies"-and then insert the word "shall"-"afford reasonable opportunity for citizen participation in the operation of government prior to final decision."

Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that this really is the intent of what the committee has envisioned here. And the way that proposal is phrased at present, it really does not do that-that all that the public is given is the right to expect something. I would submit that making the amendment that I have proposed would clarify this right that the public is to have under this section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion?

Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. As one of the authors of this particular section, I would not be opposed to Delegate Harbaugh's amendment, although, personally, I don't think that it really changes either the intent or the effect of this section. But if this body would like to amend it in this manner, it certainly would not be in opposition to my original thoughts.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, Delegate Foster conferred with me just a moment ago and asked my opinion. I told him that's certainly stating the intent that we had in mind, and with that premise, I certainly would not quarrel with the delegate with respect to his proposed amendment. But I can submit one reason as to why there should not be an amendment, and that is from the standpoint of legislative implementation. We intend to provide by Section 8 not only a right, but a constitutional direction to the Legislature to implement that right by setting forth the guidelines and setting forth the requirements of governmental agencies in this regard. If we accept the amendment, the language would tend to indicate that we have self-executing right that does not require any particular guideline from the Legislature. I would then have a concern, and that concern would be this: who, then, would determine whether or not the agency in question is providing the type of opportunity or the type of regulation for citizen participation that would satisfy the constitutional directive? I think the language of the committee, as it is before you now without amendment, is going to require that there be uniform rules and regulations set by the Legislature with respect to citizen participation, and I submit that Delegate Harbaugh's concern that the word "expect" is not strong enough is not a matter that should cause us any apprehension. It is a matter of constitutional draftsmanship that in certain areas of basic and fundamental rights you make no attempt to be precise; you merely make an attempt to set the principle down in general language so that the Legislature or the implementing lawmaking body will have the opportunity and will have the latitude to set forth the guidelines that will best implement that particular policy and have the opportunity to change those guidelines with the passing years as circumstances change and different needs arise. So, notwithstanding the fact that Delegate Foster and I are satisfied that the language as amended may tend to secure for the citizens the same objective, we will submit, at this time, that the motion to amend should be resisted simply because it is too restrictive with respect to the type of uniform guideline that we would want the Legislature in its wisdom to enact. And therefore I oppose the motion to amend.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Will Delegate Dahood yield to a question?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I yield.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Is there any-in your studies, did you find any other state constitution that had a similar provision?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: There were similar state constitutions that took up this particular issue, Mr. Joyce. I do not recall that there was any state constitution that had precisely this particular language. I do recall several that did provide that there should be citizen participation with respect to governmental matters; and I submit to you, Mr. Joyce, in answering your question, that I don't think any governmental agency should have any concern or any apprehension about having a citizen participate before any rule or regulation is laid down that's going to affect the life of that particular citizen. I should think that any governmental agency within a democracy would welcome the opinion of the citizen before some guideline is set down with respect to his conduct and his life as a citizen.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Well let me ask you another quesion, Mr. Dahood. Would—

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield once again, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Would you interpret-

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Try this time to-just to answer now, Mr. Dahood. (Laughter)

DELEGATE JOYCE: Would you interpret this section as giving, say, me the right to participate in the Supreme Court conferences when they're deciding cases that I've argued?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: No, I do not and it wouldn't do any good anyway. (Laughter)

DELEGATE JOYCE: Well, I know the— but I-May I speak then, Mr. Chairman? I move—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: I move, as a substitute motion, I suppose-there has to be a villain in the piece and I'm willing to be the villain-I move to strike Section 8 in its entirety. May I speak on that motion?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce's motion is to strike Section 8 in its entirety. Okay, Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee. It seems to me that however laudatory the language may be, that when we're writing a Bill of Rights we ought to give people rights or not rights. But to say that they have the right to expect something gives them no right at all, as Delegate Harbaugh pointed out; and it seems to me, with the amendment that the government will afford every reasonable opportunity to participate in the operation of government just makes the whole proposition unworkable. It seems to me that it turns our system of government from a republic into a true democracy. If everybody's got the right to participate in every decision that's made in government, why, then it will disrupt the government in that, under our system of government we elect people to make decisions. We may not agree with them, and we may think they're crazy, and we may want to vote against those people when they come up for election again because they've made decisions that we don't like. But it seems to me that this is completely unworkable to allow the individual citizen to participate in the decisionmaking; that actually the decisionmaking must necessarily rest with the people who are, in fact, elected. And as far as-it just seems to me to write into the Constitution the right to participate in the decision will just create more harm than good and that it really doesn't give anybody a right. And if, as Delegate Dahood says, the right is subject to reasonable legislation-it doesn't say that the Legislature can set up any rights on it-it gives an absolute right to participate. And, on the whole, I think that it will do more harm than good, and I think that we ought to strike the whole section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion?

Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I wish to speak in opposition to the motion of Delegate Joyce. I think this is a very important question, and I think that we should be very well aware of what this committee is attempting to do. The continuing growth of bureaus has brought a new dimension to our representative form of government. We have drawn clearer lines of election for legislative officials. We have devised a more responsive system of selection and election for judicial officials. We have retained an extensive elective process for our executive officials. But what of the bureaus, the long arm of government with which the average citizen most often comes in contact; the long arm of government which is not responsive to elective officials; the long arms of government with which many, if not most, of our Montana citizens have met frustrating resistance and/or indifference? Elections do not materially affect the bureaus. Political pressures are not sufficient to juvenate [sic] response to public need. Public awareness and access seem to be the only tools to remind the great mass of public servants that their job is to serve the needs of the public and no other; they are paid by tax dollars to benefit the public above all else. It is my opinion that many Montanans' dissatisfaction with government stem from lack of awareness of the primary role of public servants to serve the public; be they rich or poor, strong or weak, helpful or helpless. It is my opinion that many Montanans want to be a part of their government. They want to know their government and what it is doing. They want to provide input on matters which affect them directly or which they are keenly interested in. Not all Montanans are interested in all phases of government. Most Montanans are, I submit, interested in knowing about and participating in relatively limited scope of government; but when that time comes that Montanans wish to be known and be heard, they expect their government to listen and preferably act. If they are received reasonably and heard and the results explained, they will feel that they have done their part in a democratic government. If they are ignored or passed off indefinitely, they become frustrated and demoralized in their government. It is hard to imagine how the inclusion in our Constitution of a right to know and a right to participate could do anything but improve in some measure responsiveness of government officials to citizens and improve in some measure citizens' confidence and satisfaction in government. The government will be the better for it; the people will be the better because of it. I resist the motion to delete, and I support the proposal of the Bill of Rights Committee. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman, I rise also to resist the motion to delete and also to clarify one point that Mr Joyce made. We are not suggesting that the citizens participate in the decision-the decision is made by those who have been elected to make that decision or those who have been appointed to make the decision-but to participate in the deliberations prior to the decisionmaking. I have been a part of this process for a good many years now, and I have found that while at first governmental agencies-and I've participated both on the state and local level—may be threatened by having people around who are seemingly interfering in what they are doing, that after they become accustomed to the fact that there are citizens who are interested and who want to contribute, that they really welcome this kind of participation. I don't think-and I think it's unfortunate, but I don'treallyfeel thatcitizens are going to rush in great droves to participate-we just haven't found that-but I think that if they know when decisions are being made, what topics are being considered, that they will benefit from learning in advance what their people think. I think this is true with individuals, as well as groups. I think that farm groups, Chamber of Commerce groups, labor groups, as well as groups of interested citizens, can really make a valuable contribution to our government; and this is a contribution that is really free. And, I think, will add, you know, at no additional expenses a considerable dimension to the kind of decisions that are being made. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McKeon.

DELEGATE McKEON: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to Mr. Joyce's motion to delete. I think in this time, in this age, government is slowly slipping away from the people. I think the people are beginning to lack credibility in their government; and if a provision such as this can bring the government closer to the people, if a provision such as this can give the people more access to the government, then, Mr. Chairman, I think that it is most vital that we accept this provision. And for that reason I resist the motion by Mr. Joyce.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Garlington.

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: I certainly agree that we are dealing here with ideals; and it would be a great thing if we could operate on the basis of idealism in the participation in government. It has often been said here that the courts are the ones who seem to louse all of this up and to find fault with things. But I want you all to remember that nothing comes to court except when it is brought there by an aggrieved citizen. And you must also remember that, in most of the operations of the government, there is a citizen who is aggrieved as well as the one who is comforted by the action of government. Take the simple business of zoning as it may occur in individual communities. Zoning limits some owner's right to use his property, and he is the one who is aggrieved: someone else is happy that this good result came about by the operation of government. And I want you all to realize that when you have a very brief statement like this, unaccompanied by the hours of discussion and the debate and the consideration that we are having here, you just look at the little old words. And here now is some man, some property owner, who is individually aggrieved by an action of the zoning board and he goes to his counsel and he says, "What can I do to hold this up?" And this is how and where the case begins to get in court. And he goes to his counsel and he says, "Now, it says here that I had a reasonable opportunity to participate in the operation of government before they take their zoning action, whatever it may be, and I don't think I did." Now, there is no guideline here. There isn't anything that says whatreasonable participation amounts to, and there isn't anything to keep that man from starting his case, holding up the operation of the zoning regulation, whatever it may be, while there is litigation as to what transpired and whether he did or did not, in fact, have a reasonable opportunity to participate. And this may take 1 year or 2 years; and of course all he may think is that if he can get it delayed long enough, he can somehow stall or stymie this zoning action, whatever it may be. And I ask you all to look at this seriously now and realize how many different kinds of government affect the right of one individual against another where the aggrieved one is going to come in and say, "I didn't have the opportunity to participate so this action that was taken does not live up to the Constitution, and I am therefore entitled to object." Now, one thing you have to remember always is that constitutional power is far greater than any other power; and sometimes I kind of fear that we are getting a little intoxicated with the constitutional power that we feel here, and this is why I am always counseling caution in these things, because these are irretrievable and unmanageable. They are rigid and firm. And if you were the judge sitting there and you saw that it said in the Constitution that the citizen had the right to participate in the operation of government, what would you do about it if some fellow came in and said, "Gee, they did this and I didn't have a chance to know. They didn't write me a letter. They didn't explain the things that they were doing. They didn't tell me what they heard from these other people. I didn't know about that"-so on and so on. Now, you multiply this and all the myriad contacts between government and the individual, and you see what this is going to do. And I caution you again that we should make sure that the language we write and we put in here is so clear that these things are not suddenly thrust upon the public in a way that creates disruption and dissatisfaction with government instead of pleasure with it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of Mr. Joyce's motion. I believe that the Legislature is a deliberative body, and I don't believe that every citizen can rightfully participate in those deliberations. I feel that they participate by electing the representatives to do the deliberating. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Vermillion.

DELEGATE VERMILLION: Mr. President [Chairman], I came here with one idea in mind, a kind of a philosophy, and that is that the public and the people are actually the boss of the government and the government is the servant of the people. You take that in mind and take this Section 8 and replace the words "the public" and make that "the boss" and make "the government" "the employees", you could come up with a phrase like this: "The boss shall have the right to expect his employees to afford him reasonable opportunity to participate in the operation of his business." And that seems to be fairly basic, and it seems to me that we should keep Section 8 as it is, and I oppose Mr. Joyce.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: I would like to speak in opposition to the amendment; and in reaction to my fellow committeeman, Mr. Garlington, the fear that there's going to be a case-here's the zoning business and that the man will start a case if he didn't have a chance to participate-it seems to me I would like to see him have a chance to give a case if he didn't have a chance to participate. So fundamental is it that I would be more afraid of that right being infringed upon than the delay of the action.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mr. Chairman, I think I saw this proposal in its original form as submitted by Mr. Foster and others. At that time I didn't know what it means, and I'm not sure I do now. I was willing to go along with it when I heard Mr. Dahood's explanation that this is a matter that the public-there would be reasonable opportunity for the public to find out what is going on and they will have a reasonable opportunity to express their views to the body that is in— deliberating or taking the action. This seems reasonable to me. But I do think the language here is-like Mr. Garlington says, is pretty strong. We're talking about participation. Now, what notice is going to berequired? Whatright does this give rise to? Does each body have to, at each step of the proceedings, notify all of the public and make sure that all of the public somehow gets the message, and then they have a right to participate? And what is participation? We are 100 delegates here. I can't think of anybody that has ever been more open, yet are we letting the public participate? Are we letting the people in the gallery give-come dawn and talk on this matter, express their views in the open hearing? We've let them— we've given them notice of committee hearings. They could come in. They certainly have sent us numerous letters expressing their views. Now, this is participation; but must it go further? Must they have a voice on the floor and participate? Must they have a vote in the proceedings? All of this is-language is so loose that it can lead, as Mr. Garlington has pointed out, it can lead to nothing but lawsuits. Earlier here, someone designated the constitutionality of-as to whether or not all of the-in the title of a legislative act, that all of the matters covered therein should be expressed in the legislative act or it becomes unconstitutional. And they spoke, "Well, that's become nothing but a lawyers' feed bill," and I suppose it has, to some extent; but if that's a lawyers' feed bill, I'll guarantee you this one will be, because we won't even have to look up any constitution. Any time a client comes in and they say, "There's a statute against me" or "There's a law against me", we won't even have to turn to the Constitution. We'll just say, "Put somebody on there; find out somewhere in the legislative process where the public didn't have a right to proceed, or to participate." Maybe it's some legislative step. The hearing was had and there's no proof that the public was there or there was room for the public to participate. All of this can open a Pandora's box, and all of it can lead to good solid legislation where the public had adequate notice and they had adequate right to notify their representatives of their feelings on the matter-could still be defeated because of the interpretation put on here by the courts and by—and the courts are nothing but individual judges—in their desire to set aside a law will rule that somehow or another the public couldn't participate. I suggest that if the intentment is as Mr. Dahood says, then I can support it. But I feel very much like Mr. Joyce and Mr. Garlington. It can be pushed far beyond what the Committee on the Bill of Rights wants here, and when it does, then we are creating a monster. And I submit that Mr. Joyce's motion should be accepted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The Chair would like to get a vote on at least Mr. Joyce's motion here before we go to dinner, so the Chair will entertain further debate. Please be brief.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: I'm always brief, Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's why I'm calling on you, Mr. Blaylock. (Laughter)

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman], I believe it was Mr. Davis who put in the word "reasonable" in here. And when he did that, I thought I saw a vast look of relief spread across all of our barristers' faces, and so if we—he said it was defined; they know what that word means. It says "reasonable opportunity for citizen participation"; and if we go back to Section 1, which this body has adopted, it says: "All political power is vested in and derived from the people. All government of right originates with the people, is founded upon their will only, and is instituted solely for the good of the whole." So I submit, Mr. President, that a citizen should have a right to participate in that government.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman. I would like to say that I like the theory of this, but in working with a group of people that has a majority of lay people-this is the comprehensive health planning-I can see all kinds of citizens' participation. But in looking at this, I'm wondering if we aren't looking a little deeper into a policy-making. And even in our organization, I wonder if there was a decision on food stamps within a county or changing the way it was handled, how far can we go? And the words here would make me think this was a lawyer's dream, and therefore I would speak in opposition to this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I'll be brief, too. There are a couple of things that I'd like to point out that I don't think have been said yet. I'd like to speak basically in opposition to the motion to delete, because I think we need this sort of section; and the amendment which I offered does not take this out of the realm of political theory. It still is in the realm of political theory. Also it seems to me, secondly, that the title of this article is very misleading if we adopt the article as it is presently written. What is really offered to us under this title of a right of participation is a right to expect something, not a right to participate, and I think we want a right to participate. Perhaps this is a Pandora's box. But if it's a Pandora's box, maybe we'd better open it and see what's in it. So I would resist the motion to delete.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President [Chairman], I come up here as a juryman and I've made up my decision. I think that if this thing is a very strong article and can be interpreted as Mr. Garlington and Holland said, that it could be very dangerous. And as other delegates have said that it's-doesn't mean anything the way it's written; either way it's a bad deal. I would like to go for Mr. Joyce's amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, if this particular section could be interpreted as Mr. Garlington has suggested, as Mr. Holland has suggested, if it doesn't mean anything, as another delegate has suggested, then it ought to go out. But that isn't true. The article states-the section states very clearly that we are talking about governmental agencies, and the rationale on page 21 says as follows: It is hoped that this provision will play a role in reversing the dissatisfactions increasingly expressed regarding bureaucratic authority insulated from public scrutiny and participation. The intent of this particular section is to make sure that these governmental agencies, these bureaus, are going to be more responsible to the individual citizen. We are talking particularly about the rule and the regulation that they make to implement the law that is given to them by the Legislature, which directly affects each and every one of us. And we think that when those rules and those regulations are made that are going to affect our everyday lives, that we should have the right to participate. Before the Constitutional Convention accepts a proposal, there's a public hearing. Before the Legislature passes a law, there is a public hearing. And before a governmental agency passes a rule or regulation that has the force and effect of law, there ought to be a public hearing. Now, that's what we're talking about. The language is too broad? How about freedom of speech, and how about freedom of religion? Can anything be broader than that? And yet there has to be restrictions on those particular rights, and the books of law are filled with the restrictions that are necessary to make sure that those rights are realistic rights within a free society. We submit to you that with the debates that have taken place on this floor here and now and with the journal and with the record that is made, therecould be no mistake as to what is intended by Section 8. And the Legislature will carry it out, and the Legislature will set guidelines; and when governmental agencies-and I underscore that-are going to set forth rules and regulations, make rules and regulations that govern all of us, unlike what they've done in the past with callousness andindifference to the American and Montana citizen, they're going to have to give notice that they are going to do this. And they are going to have to listen to the citizen before they pass that type of rule and regulation that unquestionably has the force and effect of law. I oppose the motion to delete.

DELEGATE JOYCE: May I close?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Apparently you're not going to be able to close. I see Mr. Wilson up. (Laughter)

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: I rise with a great deal of apprehension. I have a lot of respect for the different lawyers that have approached this subject, and I see that they cannot agree. There's a lot of different opinions; and I propose to the rest of us people who are just nonlawyers, citizens, that perhaps we're opening up a field for a wide range of litigation. If they can't decide among themselves now, we're in trouble.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Yes. Mr. President [Chairman], I would just like to add that if we have to base our decisions on only those things that the lawyers can agree on, we'll never adopt any of this Constitution. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce, you may close.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman, I suppose that in closing, it's a matter of philosophy as to what should be in a constitution. I happen to believe that constitutions shouldn't contain any sermons. I happen to believethatif you're going to give people rights, they ought to have rights that are enforceable in the courts. I don't read this section that it only pertains to the rulemaking power. I submit that we already have an Administrative Procedure Act that by statute that if there is-it is desirable for the government-for the people to participate in government, that the Legislature ought to set down rules and guidelines, that the Legislature does have that constitutional power now. It seems to me writing anything into a constitution that abrogates or makes unfeasible the reasonable exercise of that power will do more harm than good. I submit that just writing platitudes into the Constitution will do more harm than good. And, in reply to my distinguished delegate, Mrs. Robinson, if us lawyers can't agree, it seems it is an anomaly here that us lawyers are trying to keep away from having a field day with the section, while the rest of you people are trying to force it upon us. And that does seem anomalous to me; and it seems, I might submit to you, that perhaps because we do practice law and we are involved in courts and we are trying to enforce rights in courts, that maybe we do know something about what constitutions are all about. And, of course, those of you who think we do not, even though we come from every different kind of political persuasion, why, that's just a deficiency, I guess, in the public relations of the legal profession. But notwithstanding, I still reiterate that this section as written will do more harm than good, and I hope that my motion to delete passes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, I trust you want a roll call vote. No?

DELEGATES: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes? All right. So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Joyce's motion, which is to strike Section 8 in its entirety, vote Aye; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The vote is closed. Please take the vote.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 37 delegates voting Aye, 54 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 54 delegates having voted No and 37 Aye, Mr. Joyce's motion fails.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I move the committee recess until the hour of 8:00 p.m. this day.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is to recess until 8:00 p.m. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Committee recessed at 5:50 p.m.-reconvened at 8:02 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Vermillion, would you shut the doors for us. Members of the committee, before recess we were discussing Section 8, on page 5 of the Bill of Rights Article, and this article was first amended by Mr. Davis by striking the words "every feasible" and putting in the word "reasonable". I see no reason to go behind that. Next it was amended by Mr.-an amendment was proposed by Mr. Harbaugh, striking the first phrase-"The public shall have the right to expect"-and making the phrase read: "Governmental agencies shall afford reasonable opportunities for citizen participation." Then Mr. Joyce made his motion to strike, which was defeated. Unless I hear objection from the floor, I will consider Mr. Harbaugh's amendment as still entertained; namely, that the phrase would read: "Governmental agencies shall afford reasonable opportunity for citizen participation in the operation of the government prior to the final decision." And the matter would be open for further amendments. Is there any objection from the floor to starting at that point? Very well, we'll start at that point. Mr. Harbaugh, with your amendment under discussion. Do you care to rephrase it, or at least to rediscuss it?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: No, I was going to close if—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, let's not close too quickly. There have been a lot of pencils out over the dinner hour.

Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: Would Mr. Dahood yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE BERG: And would you yield to a series of three or four questions?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I will yield to a series of three or four questions, Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: Well, Mr. Dahood, I note that the article as now proposed-or the section says "for citizen participation in the operation of government prior to final decision." Do you mean, by "government", to include all branches of government.?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I do not. I mean, by "government", include those branches that are going to make rules and regulations that have the force and effect of law with respect to the average citizen. That does not include the Judiciary, Mr. Berg, obviously.

DELEGATE BERG: This is your construction.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: That is my construction.

DELEGATE BERG: Is there any such construction in your comment?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: In the comment-there is no such construction in the comment; but it would seem to me, in my judgment, that that is the only construction that can be given that is reasonable.

DELEGATE BERG: Thank you, Mr. Dahood. I'm sorry that I have to disagree with my colleague, Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: You have three questions to go. (Laughter)

DELEGATE BERG: Well, I'm through. I'm through with my questions. I have your answers. I don't think that it's rational or reasonable to describe government and not include all branches of government. I don't see how you can arrive at the interpretation of the word "government" and exclude from it one branch and include others. If it does include Judiciary-as Mr. Dahood assures us it does not-but if it does, you run into a very peculiar problem. For example, if in the course of a trial with a jury, you have litigants there and you have people in the public courtroom, sitting back as observers. These are people, now, who under the terms of this-at least in my construction-would have a right of some kind to participate in the operation of that branch of government before a final decision is reached. I cannot conceive of what their participation would be. I don't know whether it might include suggesting instructions to the court that the jury should be given in the deliberation of this case, or without a jury, whether the participation might include the giving of the findings of fact and proposed conclusions of law. I don't understand what this word "participation in the operation of government" means, especially as it could relate to the Judiciary.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: May I respond now, Mr. Berg?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: First of all, with respect to Mr. Berg's comment, which I know is a comment that we should have before us. As I indicated earlier, I think this dialogue is very meaningful and the questions, I think, are meritorious. I once again want to urge all of the delegates to look at the term "governmental agencies", which is the key to constructing that particular section. Governmental agencies, I do not think can be defined to include thecourt. Participation-citizen participation in the operation of government; I think the comment would tend to indicate that what we have in mind is that before decisions are made that affect the citizens of Montana, the general welfare of the citizens, that the citizen will have a right to express his opinion and in that way participate in the operation of government that leads to that final decision point. And I do think that we should all recognize that when we're dealing with constitutional doctrine, which must necessarily be phrased in broad language, that we are going to have to deal with a generality and then to bring it down to a specific point. We have to have some regard for the reference within which that generality is framed, and we would expect, of course, that the Legislature would outline for us the guideline for participation in order that we might achieve the objective sought. Once again, I want to point out, we have in mind the governmental agencies that are miniature legislatures who put together rules and regulations that affect us all. And of course I could give you many examples of what I'm talking about, and I'm sure the lawyers are well aware of it and I submit once again that Section 8 advances the rights of the citizen in the State of Montana and is necessary. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman, I'm very much in accord with the whole intent here of this section; and as I look at it more closely, it seems to me that it is clear that what the section speaks about is the right of participation in regard to governmental agencies, as I have amended it. But I am afraid that if we say the public shall have the right to expect, included with the rest of the language, that really we're not getting at the heart of the problem. It seems to me that if we really want to have a right to participate, that then we ought to spell that out; that this is the right that we're specifying, not a right to expect to participate. It seems to me this removes the whole thing one step further from those people whom we would like to see become involved in these things; and I have no quarrel with the expressed intent as it's spelled out in the commentary on this section. It says in part it is also a commitment at the level of fundamental law to seek structures, rules and procedures that maximize the access of citizens to the decisionmaking institutions of state government; and I am in full accord with that. But I just would hope that we get down to the place where we actually set forth the right to participate, not set forth the right to expect to participate.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aronow.

DELEGATE ARONOW: Mr. Chairman, I have a substitute motion that I would like to present; and perhaps the Chair would read the substitute motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's short. I'll read it. Mr. Aronow's substitute motion is, substitute the following language in place of the present Section 8: "Reasonable opportunity shall be afforded to the public to appear and testify before all governmental agencies exercising the power to adopt rules and regulations having the force of law, which opportunity shall be exercised under circumstances prescribed by law." Now, I'll read that more slowly in case you want to write it down. "Reasonable opportunity shall be afforded to the public to appear and testify before all governmental agencies exercising the power to adopt rules and regulations having the force of law—comma-which opportunity shall be exercised under circumstances prescribed by law."

Mr. Aronow.

DELEGATE ARONOW: Mr. Chairman, I have listened to this debate, and I think a matter of this sort has a proper place in the Constitution. And I am greatly impressed with the comments: "It is hoped that this provision will play a role in reversing the dissatisfactions increasingly expressed regarding bureaucratic authority insulated from public scrutiny and participation." We have in the Constitution the provisions that the Legislature shall act openly when--with public information. We have provisions that no one shall be denied access to the courts. Now we have the problem of the appointive bureaucratic organizations of state government. As you all realize, and I have realized for many years that the appointee does not owe his allegiance to the public. He owes it to the appointive authority; and this is the problem that we're trying to get to, I believe. I realize that the committee has spent a great deal of time and heard a great deal of testimony. We have had a considerable debate, and I do believe that this provision will have the good effect that we want upon the processes of government which are not elective; that is, upon the appointive personnel that makes the rules and regulations that affect the lives of all of us. And it will make these appointive people, hopefully, a little more responsive to the needs of the public rather than their appointive authority. I trust that this proposed amendment will be favored by this Convention.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman. I rise in opposition, not to the thought which Mr. Aronow has put into his statement, but to the form in which it's expressed. It seems to me that the Bill of Rights is really a poetic statement and is not to be confused with the terse and hard language of the statute. Robert Frost has said, and I think perhaps has said it for generations, that a poem is a momentary stay against confusion; and I have an idea that Frost may be quoted as we now quote Shakespeare sometimes. He may be quoted three or four hundred years hence. He has succeeded on numerous occasions in stating in simple ways the hopes and dreams of people and their experience, and it will stand. I think those who write a Bill of Rights have something of the same goal in mind. They don't want a precise, hidebound kind of inescapable statement that has to be put into the statutes. Whatthey're lookingforis the soul of a document, theliving, growing reality. And I think this group has demonstrated soul, not only in this section but in some of the sections just ahead of us-the right to know, the right to privacy, which I hope we'll get to eventually. But it seems to me that what we're dealing with here is an expression of poetry which, nevertheless, is a kind of a safety net under the high wire in the circus. And while it may not serve every situation, there may be an occasion of blatant abuse when the safety net is needed and it will be there and it will serve a very important function. Therefore, I'd like to get to the language of the original committee, for, while it is somewhat imprecise, it's the kind of poetry that a court that's concerned for justice can work with and the future can find hope in. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Mr. Aronow's proposed language? (No response) Very well, the issue is on Mr. Aronow's substitute motion to amend Section 8 by deleting it and putting in the language: "Reasonable opportunity shall be afforded to the public to appear and testify before all governmental agencies exercising the power to adopt rules and regulations having the force of law, which opportunity shall be exercised under circumstances prescribed by law." All in favor of that substitute motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATES: Division.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, use the voting machines to vote Aye; and all opposed, No. Has every delegate voted?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, 52 having voted No and 37 having voted Aye, Mr. Aronow's motion fails. Very well, we're debating Mr. Harbaugh's language: "Governmental agencies shall afford reasonable opportunity for citizen participation in the operation of the government prior to the final decision". Is there further discussion?
Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman, I move to amend the amendment to-on line 28, page 5, to substitute the word "agency" for the word "government".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now would you state your line again? Are you on page 5?

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Page 5, line 28. Delete the word "government" and insert the word "agency".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. McNeil wants to substitute the word "agency".

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a minute. It's the second time the word is-the last line of subsection 8, so that it reads: "in the operation of the agency prior to the final decision".

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman, I believe this will clear up the ambiguity that was concerning Delegate Berg. I think it will reach to the heart of what the committee was really looking for, and that is making these bureaucratic agencies responsive to the people. It will eliminate any question that the people are not going to participate by way of vote in terms of the Legislature or the Supreme Court or anything else and will clearly pinpoint the fact that it is the governmental agencies that are the target of this section designed to permit the citizens to participate therein.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: Mr. Chairman, I heartily concur.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: So do I. Mr. Chairman, I thought-I might prevent-prefer just for clarity, and I don't know why it sounds better to me, but to have "governmental agencies" rather than "agency". Would that-1 don't know if it makes any difference.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We already have that on the first line.

DELEGATE ECK: Yes. I guess maybe the "agencies" would be satisfactory, and I think that this is really the intent of the statement. And I think that by eliminating "government", it eliminates things like the Judicial, which we certainly didn't intend to refer to.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil, a question has arisen. "Governmental agencies" -plural-"shall afford reasonable opportunity for citizen participation in the operation of the agency or the agencies", I-E-S? I know Style can do that, but—

DELEGATE MCNEIL: If that isn't within the province of agencies-or within the province of Style and Drafting-if the first part of the sentence is to be "governmental agencies", then it should read "participation in the operation of agencies prior to the final decision".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, it can be the-we'll make it plural in both cases. All right, is there further discussion?
Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Would Mr. McNeil yield?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil, will you yield?

DELEGATE MCNEIL: I yield.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Just as a matter of curiosity, Mr. McNeil, what is a government agency? (Laughter)

DELEGATE MCNEIL: I don't have a precise answer to that. I think it is what the committee intended to reach with this, and that is appointive commissions, bureaus, so forth, to the exclusion of the Judiciary and the Legislature. But I don't have a precise answer to that question.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Will Mr. Dahood yield?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Does it exclude legislative agencies of local government?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Legislative agencies of local government?

DELEGATE HELIKER: City councils and so forth?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: No, I would not think that it does that; but I think what we're trying to get at is the type of bureau within the governmental structure. If we have agreed in that fashion, we're going to be talking about whatever would constitute a governmental agency. I suppose it would apply to some of the agencies that may be local. I think a lot would depend on how they're constructed and by whom they're appointed.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Do they have to be appointed?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Do they have to be?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: His question, Mr. Dahood, was, is the city council a governmental agency?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: The city council, in my judgment, would not be the type of governmental agency that's contemplated by Section 8.

DELEGATE HELIKER: May I ask—inquire further? Then you-this applies only to appointive agencies?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Basically, that's true, because a city council, for example, just like a Legislature, is not going to act without regard to the-to citizen participation. They are not going to do it; but the governmental agencies that are not elected, that are appointed, that function to carry out the laws that are passed, are the ones, of course, that will enact rules and regulations and make the decisions that affect people with the effect of law without, sometimes, having any regard for citizen participation.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the question arises on Mr. McNeil's amendment, in line 28 of Section 8, to change the word "government" to the word "agencies", so that the phrase reads: "to afford reasonable opportunity for citizen participation in the operation of the agencies prior to the final decision." So many as shall be in favor of Mr. McNeil's amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: His amendment is adopted. Now we're back on Mr. Harbaugh's basic amendment to make it: "Governmental agencies shall afford reasonable opportunity" and to strike the first few words. So many as shall favor Mr. Harbaugh's motion that we strike the first phrase and start the sentence with: "Governmental agencies shall"-so many as are in favor of that motion, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair is in doubt. All in favor, please vote Aye on the voting machines-of the Harbaugh amendment-those opposed, vote No. That strikes the first phrase "The public shall have the right to expect". Have all-has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The vote is 58 against and 30 for, so the motion is defeated. We're now back on the basic language of Section 8: "The public shall have the right to expect governmental agencies to afford reasonable opportunity for citizen participation in the operation of the agencies prior to the final decision". Mr. McNeil's amendment and Mr. Davis' amendments having passed, they will be incorporated in the language we're now debating, so it says "reasonable" and it says "agencies"; but otherwise it's the way the committee wrote it.

Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: I move to amend Section 8 by adding to the end of the sentence, after the word "decision", "as provided by law".

Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis moves to add, on line 28, after the word "final decision", the phrase "as provided by law", so that the sentence reads: "to afford reasonable opportunity for citizen participation in the operation of the agencies prior to the final decision, as provided by law."

Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: In Mr. Dahood's discussion of this, several times he said he expected the Legislature to establish guidelines for this and it's inferred the Legislature would and so forth. I think it would be clearer to put in the fact that we want the Legislature to establish someguidelines, rather than leaving it in doubt. Because when it comes time to interpret this, the journal may not be published and all the statements that are made here on the floor; so I think this would probably solve a problem in this regard, instead of leaving it by inference.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Mr. Chairman, I support Mr. Davis' amendment. It's probably already provided in the Administrative Pro. cedure Act, which I'm not to familiar with. But at least this will prevent the multiplicity-just a lot of lawsuits over the interpretation of this section, because the notice and the public participation has to be provided by law.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman, I don't resist these motions at all. It had been my understanding, and I'm not sure I'm right about this, that almost all of these sections inferred "and as provided by law". In other words, we set up a right and infer that laws will be provided to implement them. But I think maybe I would like to hear from Mr. Dahood on this. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I would not oppose the amendment. I think it's implicit within it. As we've indicated in Section 8, we are dealing with governmental agencies; and perhaps to more clearly respond to a previous question, "agencies", of course, has to be derived from the generic term of "agent". We have to have a principal and an agent. We're referring to those agencies, those boards, those bureaus that are created by the Legislature or by a city council. And of course the governmental unit that creates these agencies probably should be the one necessarily to set down specific guidelines, and I think that certainly is in accord with our intent that the Legislature shall set down some uniform rule or set of rules by which these agencies must provide for government participation. So I think-on behalf of the committee, I think I can safely state that we would have no objection to that amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises on Mr. Davis' motion to add the phrase "as provided by law" to the end of Section 8. All in favor of that amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Are there further amendments to Section 8, or is there further discussion? Very well, members of the committee, you have before you, on the recommendation of Mrs. Eck—

Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I wish to offer a substitute motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: "Citizens shall possess the right to attend meetings of governmental units charged with the responsibility of administration of statutes and regulations. Such attendance shall guarantee hearing the deliberations at meetings, view the proceedings, and accept the invitation to offer suggestions."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the page go and get the language from Mr. Romney. All right, I'll read this carefully for you, for those of you who want to take it down. This is a motion-a substitute motion to delete Section 8 and add this language: "Citizens shall possess the right to attend meetings of governmental units charged with the responsibility of administration of statutes and regulations, period". "Such attendance shall guarantee hearing the deliberations at meetings"—I can't read the next word, Mr. Romney-

DELEGATE ROMNEY: "View".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -"view the proceedings"-"view", I guess it is. "Such attendance shall guarantee hearing the deliberations at meetings-comma-view the proceedings"-it probably should be "viewing the proceedings—comma-and accepting the initiative-initiation -the initiative to offer suggestions."

DELEGATE ROMNEY: "Invitation".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, "suggesting the invitation to offer suggestions"--"and accepting the invitation to offer suggestions." "Such attendance shall guarantee hearing the deliberations at meetings, viewing the proceedings, and accepting the invitation to offer suggestions."

Mr. Romney, do you care to discuss it further?

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, it is merely another attempt to solve this enigma, Otherwise, I might say (Inaudible) [res ipsa?] loquitur. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Or perhaps caveat emptor? (Laughter) All right, is there further discussion? (No response) If not, the issue is on Mr. Romney's motion-substitute motion to delete Section 8 and put in place of it language which says: "Citizens shall possess the right to attend meetings of governmental units charged with the responsibility of administration of statutes and regulations. Such attendance shall guarantee hearing the deliberations at meetings, viewing the proceedings, and accepting the invitation to offer suggestions." So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Romney's amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's defeated. Very well, we are debating Section 8, as amended. Is there other discussion? The amendments involve the word "reasonably" and the word "agencies". Members of the committee, you have before you, on the recommendation of Mrs. Eck that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 8 as amended, that it recommend this section be adopted. All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's amended-it's adopted as amended. Section 9. Wait a minute. Is this 9, Mr. Cate?

DELEGATE CATE: Yes it is.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay. Will the clerk read Section 9.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 9, Right to know. No person shall be deprived of the right to examine documents or to observe the deliberations of all public bodies or agencies of the state government and its subdivisions, except in cases in which the demand of individual privacy exceeds the merits of public disclosure." Section 9.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk, you're supposed to read that "individual privacy clearly exceeds the merits of public disclosure." If you'll all look in your books, on page 6 and on line 3 thereof, between "privacy" and " exceeds", put in the word "clearly". The committee intends that word to be in there initially. The Chair will allow that amendment to thedocument: "exceptin cases in which the demand of individual privacy clearly exceeds the merits of public disclosure."

Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 9 of Proposal Number 8, that it recommend that the same be accepted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: The committee, with two dissenting votes and after considerable reflection, adopted this provision explicitly establishing a public right to know. In the main, the provision is from Delegate Proposal Number 57. It is a companion to the preceding right of participation. Both arise out of the increasing concern of citizens and commentators alike that the government's sheer bigness threatens the effective exercise of citizenship. The committee notes this concern and believes that one step which can be taken to change this situation is to constitutionally presume the openness of government documents and operations. The provision stipulates that persons have the right to examine governmental documents and the deliberation of all public bodies or agencies, except to the extent that the demands of individual privacy clearly outweigh the needs of the public right of disclosure. The provision applies to state government and its subdivisions. The committee intends by this provision that the deliberations and resolution of all public matters must be subject to public scrutiny. It is urged that this is especially the case in a democratic society wherein the resolution of increasingly complex questions leads to the establishment of a complex and bureaucratic system of administrative agencies. The test of a democratic society is to establish full citizen access in the face of this challenge. The committee approvingly cites Section 82-3401 of The Revised Codes of Montana, 1947, which provides: "It is the intent of this act"-that's the Open Meeting Act-"that actions and deliberations of all public agencies shall be conducted openly." The people of the state do not wish to abdicate their sovereignty to the agencies which serve them. We do commend this particular bit of legislation, but we think that probably it is not enough and that this provision does go considerably farther and, as our government continues to grow, will provide a better basis than one that is purely statutory. The committee, during its deliberations on this provision, struck the word "public" from the phrase "to examine public documents". This was done to avoid tying theviability of this provision to the 1895 legislative efforts to define public and private writings. Sections 2 and 3 of Title 93, Chapter 1001 of The Revised Codes of Montana, 1947, define these two classes of writings. Broad categories of what constitute public writings are stipulated in Section 2; Section 3 proclaims that all other writings are private. The committee admits that this list of public writings is admirably broad; however, using this type of statutory construction is dangerous when one is attempting to establish a right to know. Judging from the example of federal and state statutes on the matter, it is better to stipulate the exclusions rather than the inclusions. To do otherwise is to risk losing the right to examine a document because it does not fit statutory categories as a public document. The committee intends by this provision that the right to know not be absolute. The right of individual privacy is to be fully respected in any statutory embellishment of the provision, as well as in the court decisions that will interpret it. To the extent that a violation of individual privacy outweighs the public right to know, the right to know does not apply. To clearly establish this point, the committee stipulated in the provision that the right to know is subject to the demands of individual privacy. And further to clarify this point, we added the word "clearly", with the intention of tipping the balance in the favor of the right to know. The committee commends this provision to the Convention as a long step forward in assuring the openness in government. By creating an atmosphere of openness in government, the committee believes that confidence in government will increase and governmental operations will be facilitated. Such a provision, far from limiting the effectiveness of governmental operation, establishes the prerequisite to the effective exercise of citizenship in a democratic society. I think most of you are aware of the fact that we've been getting quite a bit of static on this and especially-in fact, almost entirely--regarding the section which attempts to create the balance between the right to know and privacy. We were aware of this, really, from the beginning in our committee deliberations-the fact that there is a right to privacy involved in the right to know. I think it's come up time after time that we don't intend to open up the state income tax records; that in this case, for the most part, the right to privacy exceeds the demands for public disclosure. We do recognize, however, that there aresomecaseswheretherighttoknowwhatisina document that might be classified may exceed the right to privacy. There are times when the right to know what is going on in a deliberation regarding personnel, which ordinarily would be classified and would not be public--we considered it private-but there are times when the public right to know clearly exceeds the individual person's right to privacy in this case. You might have an agency head, for instance, whose dismissal is being considered. If there is-if he is being dismissed for cause, I would think that the publichas a right to know that reason of dismissal. There are times when this would apply to local school board situations, local government situations, and many others. Now, we have had a number of suggested revisions on this. The-I can't think of his name-from the School of Journalism, has suggested that we delete the entire last provision with-listing the exceptions. His feeling is that the court will provide the exceptions. We had assumed that the court also would pretty well define the exceptions; in other words, they would determine what the cases are in which the demands of privacy exceed the demands of public disclosure; and I think it was pretty well the agreement of our committee that we would prefer this method of determination. However, I understand that there are some in the body who would prefer leaving it to the Legislature, and, you know, you could end by—in the exception phrase-by saying something like, "except in cases in which the demands of privacy"--no, back further-"subject to these exemptions as may be prescribed by law, or by the Legislature." To my mind, I don't know that I can weigh the advantages of having the Legislature make this determination or the court make it. I think our committee decided, and I'll go along with them on it, that it would be better to leave it to the courts to make this determination; but surely, if this body decides that the Legislature would be a safer or a more responsive body to make the determination, I don't think that our committee would object greatly. For the present time, though, I would like to present it to the committee as it's stated, with our one amendment which inserts the word "clearly" as was read. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Cate.

DELEGATE CATE: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee. I think that this provision is like the Biblical proverb-"the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away." The first part of that paragraph does give the citizen the right to know, and the second part of that paragraph denies the citizen the right to know. I think under the second part of that paragraph, the fears of the Montana Press Association and other individuals who have written to us are well founded. Any governmental agency or officer could refuse on the grounds that individual privacy exceeded the merits of public disclosure, and in effect you would not have a right to know. You might very well also jeopardize the present statutes which we have in Montana dealing with the right to know; and therefore I think it is prudent to add to that provision a section which would permit the Legislature to set the situations in which individual privacy exceeds the merits of public disclosure as they have under the present public information act. So I have a motion before this body, which I would ask the clerk to read at this time, which I think will take care of that situation, meet the objections of the Montana Press Association as well. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read Mr. Cate's amendment.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 9 of the Bill of Rights proposal on page 21, line 19, by inserting, after the word 'except' and before the word 'in', the words 'as may be provided by law'. Signed: Cate."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Members of the body, that is on-if you're on page 6, that's on line 2—after the word "except", Mr. Cate would add "except as provided by law in cases in which the demand of individual privacy clearly exceeds the merits of public disclosure". So Mr. Cate adds, after the word "except", "as may be provided by law"-the phrase "as may be provided by law"; so that the last phrase reads: "except as may be provided by law in cases in which the demands of individual privacy clearly exceeds the merits of public disclosure". It has the effect of putting the Legislature in as the arbiter of the cases excepted.

Mr. Cate, do you have anything further?

DELEGATE CATE: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. The committee worked long and hard on this particular section, and we invited testimony from members of the news media and we worked with their assistance. It was only after we completed our section that they suddenly, somewhere, from some place, decided that our section was too weak; and I'd like to quote from the testimony of Mr. Dan Foley in regarding this particular subject. He says: "I understand that this committee is very concerned about the right of privacy, and well that you should be in the era of credit checks and computer banks, wiretaps and bugging devices, and military spying on those exercising their rights of free speech and assembly. Governments, even state governments, collect information on all of us, some of which should not be in the public domain. I would never suggest, for example, that the people's right to know extends to inspection of individual income tax returns." He continues, "But I think the people's right to know about their government and individual citizens' right to privacy can be balanced in the Constitution. I understand you are considering a proposal which guarantees public access except in cases in which the demands of individual privacy exceed the merits of the public disclosure. I would endorse such a proposal. I much prefer it to any provision guaranteeing access-quote-'except as otherwise provided by law.' I don't think the latter provision would give the public or the press any access they don't already have under the state law and it might be an open invitation to legislation setting forth exceptions to the access rule." Now, it was the thinking of the committee that, in fact, the courts would have to strike the balance between the merits of public disclosure and the merits of privacy, and our committee had faith in our courts to strike this balance. And we did not feel that this particular provision should be left to the Legislature to interpret, and I would oppose the amendment of Delegate Cate. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, as a substitute motion, I should like to make a motion to delete the section. I do this with tongue in cheek, because for 50 years I've been trying to accomplish and secure the right to know. But there have been some developments which came up since Dan Foley testified before the Bill of Rights Committee, and on the basis of that and the studies that were made by the Montana State Press Association, I take this position—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin, the Chair will allow your substitute motion to delete Section 9 in its entirety. Is that your point?

DELEGATE MARTIN: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, you may discuss it.

DELEGATE MARTIN: In this morning's Missoulian there's an editorial and I'll just quote a little bit. The title to that is "Right to Conceal Must be Killed". "The right to know section proposed by the Constitutional Convention Bill of Rights Committee should better be called the right to conceal." Earlier in Section 8 we talked about a word "expect". The one word in this case is "except". The provision says, "No person shall be deprived of the right to examine documents or to observe the deliberations of all public bodies or agencies of state government and its subdivisions, except in cases in which the demand for individual privacy exceeds the merits of public disclosure." The words "except in cases in which the demands of individual privacy exceeds the merits of public disclosure" are causing widespread alarm among Montana newspapermen. They believe the words are so vague that they could be interpreted to allow almost any public board, agency or administrator to cover up vital public matters. The Montana Press Association has notified all delegates of its fear that the right to know section would become a vehicle for concealment. There is more of this than the concern being expressed by the press. This article could close much of government to all citizens, frustrating their ability to participate in the decisionmaking process and giving each--even more power to those who like to exercise power behind the scenes. The proposed section either should be amended so the dangerous wording is removed or, better yet, simply deleted entirely. An editor of the other sex, Donna Brown of the Gallatin County Tribune, said this last week: "I am positive that the Constitutional Convention delegates would never knowingly pass a section of the proposed Constitution if they thought it was unjust, unworkable, and would contravene one of the original freedoms guaranteed this nation by the founding fathers, freedom of the press, but this is what would happen if the Committee of the Whole does not change a section of the proposed Bill of Rights that will be debated in the near future." Mrs. Brown says, "I take strong exception to the wording, 'except in cases in which the demands of individual privacy exceeds the merits of public disclosure'. As it is written, the passage makes this section of the Bill of Rights very subjective, subject to the desire or whim of the agencies concerned, or possibly the Legislature. In the end, only the courts could settle the matter. This is what can happen when you let the Bill of Rights become a document for government manipulation and distributes a right unequally to the people. Our country is based upon absolute equal individual rights. Let's not, as Senator Irvin says, 'limit the right of the public to be informed with a faulty section in the Bill of Rights'. It would be better to eliminate the right to know provision altogether than to undermine our present freedoms, however much they may need strengthening." After recess this afternoon, I talked at some length with Francis Mitchell of Common Cause. I think that we have a mutual agreement of the absolute need for strengthening the right of the public to know. And I also talked with Mrs. Eck, as well as with Mr. Dahood, but we came-1 came to the conclusion that you should give some consideration to the letters that came from the attorney for the Montana Press Association in Billings, as well as for the member of the faculty--of the Dean of the School of Journalism, and in their suggestions. I do hope that we can continue the spirit of openness which has marked this Convention, and I think we have made some great strides in regard to this openness of meetings. But let's not get it tangled up so that we have words like "except". Let's either be positive or not have anything at all. I hope the motion to delete prevails.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I oppose the motion to delete, and I think we ought to place proper focus on the position that's taken by the press. The gentlemen of the fourth estate seem to think they have no responsibility in a free society; they have a responsibility. And this particular section was not enacted for their benefit; it was enacted for the benefit of the citizen of the State of Montana. This particular section was in the rough draft that was circulated several weeks back. This particular section was framed after the gentlemen of the press themselves appeared before the committee and said this particular language was acceptable. Recently, someone in an ivory tower in an eastern state, apparently that represents some national press association, has read this particular section and, with his sophisticated training far beyond my own or that of any member of the committee, has decided that the wording in this particular section impairs the right of freedom in a free society. And in the State of Montana, apparently those that represent the press have paid some heed to that clarion call, and they make the same indictment. We're reasonable people. Let's read the section. The first sentence reads: "No person shall be deprived of the right to examine documents or to observe the deliberations of all public bodies or agencies of state government and its subdivisions." Language, of course, serves the purpose of communication. How much clearer can this communication be with respect to what is intended by the Bill of Rights Committee? What is there in that particular sentence that does not serve the public interest? What is there in that particular sentence that in any way injures or impairs the right of the press to ferret out the news and report to the public? What is there in that particular sentence that shackles the press from acting as a watch guard upon the activities of government for our benefit? Not for their benefit, to sell newspapers, but for our benefit. And the two purposes behind this section, as are the basic purposes behind the federal amendment contained within the Bill of Rights that provides freedom of the press, is twofold: one, to allow the press to be a watch guard on the activity of government and, second, to make sure that the rights of the individual citizen of a free democracy are protected. And that is the only justification for a free press in a democratic society. Now, let's go on to the second part of it— "except in cases in whichthedemandofindividual privacy clearly exceed the merits of public disclosure". Now, what's our concern? Our concern is to make sure that this so-called right to access with respect to government documents, this right of access that we call freedom of the press, is being used to foster individual right and citizenship in this particular society of Montana. There's got to be a limit to it. The reason we organize in a free society is to make sure we have dignity, that we have privacy, that our private affairs are not open to public scrutiny. Now, if I go into a welfare department and I'm a poor citizen and I have to disclose my circumstances— circumstances I'm not proud of; perhaps circumstances that may reflect upon the children of tender years that I have to feed and clothe, whose parentage, perhaps, must be reflected in shadows that I don't want publicly disclosed-but I have to disclose those facts to gain assistance from the beneficent State of Montana. Should that be open to scrutiny? I'm injured--my medical history is important; perhaps I've had diseases I don't care to have disclosed publicly-but that medical history requires that these particular factors be placed within that particular governmental file so that there's sufficient basis for the claim that I make as provided by law. Should the press have access to that? And on and on. How about the confidential relationships that are set by statute that are zealously guarded? Should they not be protected? Should not communication with respect to a private matter that deals with some governmental concern between attorney and client not be protected? Perhaps there's some disclosure between priest and penitent, doctor and patient, the sacred relationships that are so important in a free society; should they not be paramount? Should they not be supreme? We are all trained to read our own language. Read this. Where within this language do you see anything that restricts the right of the press to know and to investigate and to examine that is not within the limits of fairness to all of us? They are here to serve us and to protect our rights, and we want our rights protected first and foremost and always. And I submit to you that as Chairman of the Bill of Rights Committee, I thought at times that the journalistic proboscis of the fourth estate was much too long, on many occasions, and was delving into concerns that were beyond fair press and fair report. But the members of my committee convinced me that the press wanted this particular declaration and it should be within the Bill of Rights and we would be forward among all the states in enacting this particular provision. And so I accepted their reasoning, and I accepted their concern, and I accepted their motivation. Most laudable, indeed, to balance the need to know with the need to have the press act as a watch guard upon government. Balance that with the basic right of individual dignity and privacy in the type of governmental structure which we have and which we enjoy. And I say to you here and now, Section 9 will serve that purpose. And this campaign that has been levied against it is not a just campaign and fails to strike the mark, because the mark that we strike is the one for the people of the State of Montana. Mr. Chairman, I oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman, I'm concerned about Mr. Martin's proposal to strike this section. I've been trying to read along a little bit ahead and to find out just where else this same right is guaranteed, and I wonder what the answer to this question would be. If we strike out Section 9, the right to know, then where in our Constitution do we guarantee this same thing? And if it is not guaranteed just this way, then if it is left as a matter of law to government agencies to make this decision for themselves, then where do people have this guarantee? So I am going to work and vote to keep this section in, because I think it's necessary. Then a second thought occurs to me. If we do write it in, as Mr. Dahood has suggested, should it be absolute? Or should there be any exceptions? And the third thought occurred to me. If there should be any exceptions, then how do you write it in? If you don't write it in this way, then I'd like to hear--and I'm serious, now-this is dialogue on the subject-if there should be any exceptions, and particularly in view of the next section that we're going to present, the right to privacy, then how would you make a statement of the fact that there should be exceptions that-in a manner that would be superior to this?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to direct my remarks chiefly to Mr. Dahood, if he'd remain-(Laughter) No question. I'm serious, though, here, Wade. Mr. Cate made an amendment which I think at this stage I will support, and I didn't think you were opposing it till the remark you made just before you sat down, and apparently you may be. What concerns me here, though, is how this right is to be enforced. If we leave it to the courts, as Mrs. Eck suggested, the agency really makes the first determination. For example, supposing I wish to attend a public meeting. I go and the agency advises me that a man's individual privacy precludes me from attending. I then have to go to court and attempt to get an order allowing me to attend. The court may-by the time I can do that, the court might tell me, "Okay, the question is moot; the meeting is over." Or, for example, the welfare recipient. He goes and makes certain disclosures in order to get the benefit of welfare. Then the agency discloses this to the press. Well then, again, it's too late for him to come in and get an order, really, to protect himself. And I wonder if Mr. Cate's amendment allowing the Legislature to make some general laws in this area, right in the exceptions, might not be good. I'm not sure, and I'd appreciate your comments.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. The Legislature, of course, would still have the right to make any regulation that it deems necessary in conformity with Section 9. With respect to the fears and apprehensions which you have recited, I would much rather have that error made in favor of individual right than in favor of disclosure that might cause some particular problem or error or disgrace or indignity that would be beyond any type of remedy whatsoever. I think we can take any of these particular rights and we can carry our analogy out to the extreme and show where we can have problems, but we've got to have faith in the people that are representing us in governmental capacity. We've got to have faith in the people that are going to know about this particular section and know that they have a certain obligation and a certain responsibility to disclose these things. We've got to have faith in these people in cases where there is, without any doubt, the right of privacy to restrain that particular disclosure. I think when we make the comment that has been made and the critique, I think we're assuming that these people are not going to act responsibly. Nobody is going to act perfectly. Nobody is so completely perfect, that they're going to act in a manner where they're not going to make any mistakes, but we're going to reduce the chance for error in this connection. There may be a requirement for a court case or two or three to set a proper guideline, but isn't that the history of freedom? Isn't that why we have a Judiciary that's so supreme and that's so final, because there comes a time with all of our rights where a court test is required so that that particular right can be outlined and delineated with respect to the time within which that particular question has been raised. I submit to you there is no way to draft a perfect constitutional provision, but this provision does provide the practical guideline and the practical right and the practical obligation that we want here to accomplish the purpose that's intended. I submit to you that the motions to delete and the motions to amend should be rejected.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. President [Chairman]. I'm going to, if we ever get to it, talk in favor of Mr. Cate's amendment. But we're starting to discuss the philosophy of those--whether it should be by court or Legislature, and I hope we can vote on the deletion now and if that wins, that's the end of it. But if it doesn't, then I think we can go on to the other discussion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin, do you want to close?

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, we have on the statute books today the legislation—Section 82-3401 of the 1947 Codes, "Legislative intent-liberal construction. It is the intent of this act that actions and deliberations of all public agencies shall be conducted openly." Section 82-3402 provides meetings of public agencies to be open to the public, and it has some exceptions—national or state security, the disciplining of any public officer, the employment or appointment or something, the purchasing of public property, the revocation of a license, and law enforcement, and so forth. And then minutes of meetings, on Section 82-3403—"minutes of meetings", "public inspection", "open to the public". Now, the exception that we take with regard to this is not in the positive statements of-that is, "No person shall be deprived of the right to examine documents or to observe the deliberations of all public bodies or agencies of state government and its subdivisions". There is nothing wrong with that, but when we get to the "except", it then gives and provides some opportunities where some bureaucrat, some agency, some government official can shut up a classified file and make some decisions. That's the point. If it were just to end with subdivisions and just prior to the exception, there would be no question. And I think that, in view of the statutes that are there, a provision that would provide "except as provided by law". Now, Mr. Cate in his amendment, as I understand it, was going to continue, "in cases in which thedemands for privacy exceed the merits of public disclosure". This was the basis on which our motion to delete was made, and as much as we'd like to see it decided, I think that we want you to know, not that we're trying to tell how people should do and how people should act-in the section on freedom of the press, there are some provisions there that those of us who don't do the right thing are subject to libel and slander actions, and some of us have been burned pretty badly by that. I hope the-my motion prevails.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Martin's motion--substitute motion to delete Section 9 in its entirety. Do you want a roll call vote?

DELEGATES: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll have a roll call vote. All those in favor of deleting Section 9 in its entirety, say-vote Aye; and all those opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'll close the ballot. Will you take the ballot.

Mr. Chairman ..... Nay

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We'll announce it twice, Marie. We'll announce it twice. Go ahead. Go ahead and announce the vote.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 14 voting Aye, 76 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The committee will be in order. 76 people having voted No and 14 having voted Aye, the motion to delete fails. We're now debating Mr. Cate's amendment.

Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman, I rise to support the amendment of Mr. Cate. I think that Mr. Dahood and Mr. Cate and I are trying to get to the same thing. I agree with Wade that we should protect welfare records, medical records, and certain other things like adoptions, that should not be made accessible to newspapermen. However, I can see where this would be abused by a County Commissioner, a Governor, other state officials, using this exception in our present Constitution to deny access to public documents. As a result, you'd have to go to court and end up ultimately with the Supreme Court, which would take years in many cases. We'd be litigating hundreds of cases by public officials denying access. However, if you go along with Mr. Cate's amendment, when they see an abuse of this by public officials, then they can immediately amend the laws to provide for open access. So I go along with Mr. Cate. Don't let the courts tie this all up, but let the Legislature have flexibility provided by law-they've got a clear mandate under this article. Then we can have legislative support for it; and if the courts start to abuse the matter, then the Legislature can correct it. But if you get a narrow-minded court in future years and they narrowly construe this article, then Mr. Dahood's rights are out the window. So I hope the Convention will support Mr. Cate's amendment. Thank you, Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Cate's amendment has the effect of adding, on line 2 on page 6, this phrase: "except as may be provided by law in cases in which the demands for individual privacy clearly exceeds the merits of public disclosure".

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I don't think this kind of language belongs in the Bill of Rights anywhere. I think we're announcing principles here, and we shouldn't be referring things to the Legislature from the Bill of Rights. I can't see that this adds a thing to the Bill of Rights; and in answer to Mr. Brown's argument, he's throwing up a smokescreen about the Supreme Court and hundreds of cases. The Supreme Court will decide the issues involved here in one or two cases, and it's purely a smokescreen and should be disregarded. I don't approve the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman], I would support this amendment, too. It seems to me-from the discussion of the members of the majority of this committee, they indicate that this is in there by reference anyway, but we already have statutory law that I don't think they intend to repeal by this constitutional provision. It could beinferred they intend to repeal the open meeting part of the statutory law. It's important. As 20 years as County Attorney, there have been many, many things that you cannot make public disclosure on, particularly sex crimes and juvenile matters and that sort of thing. And it's really been no problem-I know in my area, anyway. I think if you make it "as provided by law", it's in keeping with the intent of the majority. They indicate that it's inferred that this will be done, and I'm sure they have no intention to repeal the present statutes on this subject but rather let them expand them and implement them as time goes by. So I'd support Mr. Cate's amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I resist the motion of Mr. Cate very strongly and take exception to Delegate Davis' inference that the majority of the committee would, in fact, support this amendment. We discussed this question of "except in cases as provided by law" in our committee and rejected it and clearly felt that it did not belong in there. And we felt that the proposal of the committee was what, in fact, we wanted. And we felt confident that the courts would determine this in their wisdom, and we also felt that the Legislature could provide provisions within the determinations of the court to embellish it without specifically stating it. And I support the position of Delegate Schiltz, particularly in this regard, and also the position of the majority of the committee. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Skari.

DELEGATE SKARI: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Dahood yield, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SKARI: Mr. Dahood, in Section 82-3402, *Revised Codes of Montana, in Sec*tion 4, they say that one of the exceptions is "the purchasing of public property, the investing of public funds, or other matters involving competition or bargaining which, if made public, may adversely affect the public security or financial interest of the state or any political subdivision or agency of the state." Does your Bill of Rights Section 9 cover that sort of thing? In other words, can the state's interest be protected here?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Yes, I think the state's interest is protected in those instances where there's a need for that protection. Where you've got a bidding situation, of course, that particular matter must be kept confidential until the bidding is over.

DELEGATE SKARI: Mr. President [Chairman], would Mr. Dahood yield again?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE SKARI: Well, as I read it, Section 9 states "except in the case where the demand of individual privacy exceeds the merits of public disclosure". I have a little trouble with that.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Well, Delegate Skari, what we are talking about here, of course, is protecting basically the right of the individual with respect to those matters that may affect him. I think what you're talking about is the statute that has to do with certain functions of government in securing property for the operation of government to serve the citizen, and I must confess I have not had occasion to review that statute recently. But I think, as you read it, that indicated that there must be some confidentiality up to a particular point; is that not true?

DELEGATE SKARI: Yes.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: And I think that's necessary for the integrity of government within that particular area. I do not think that anyone would expect to have information before a particular point of decision is reached in that situation, because the reason for it, of course, is to secure property for the government at the best obtainable price.

DELEGATE SKARI: Thank you, Mr. Dahood.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises on Mr. Cate's amendment to add the words "as may be provided by law" after the word "except", so that the last clause reads: "except as may be provided by law in cases in which the demand of individual privacy clearly exceeds the merit of public disclosure". Do you want a roll call vote?

DELEGATES: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Roll call vote has been called for. All in favor of Mr. Cate's amendment, vote Aye on the voting machines; all opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk take the ballot.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 30 voting Aye, 56 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 56 having voted No and 30 voting Aye, Mr. Cate's amendment fails. We're back on Section 9 as submitted by the majority report here of the-by the Bill of Rights Committee report. Is there further discussion of Section 9?

Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Mr. President [Chairman], I now have to ask Mr. Dahood a question. Would he yield, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood, would you yield?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Mr. Dahood, would this section now—9, as it's now standing with the defeat of that amendment, would that allow a defendant in a criminal case more leeway and more power than he has now to examine the records of the County Attorney's office relative to the case that he's being tried for?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: No, I think not, Delegate McDonough, for this reason. I think all rights have to be balanced against a police power. I think the Supreme Court of the United States has announced that doctrine time and time and time again. We have a Criminal Code in the State of Montana that provides the discovery that you're talking about, and I think that would be balanced as against that particular section. I do not think that that would have any effect whatsoever upon a criminal situation.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman], would Mr. Dahood yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Dahood, for the benefit of the journal and the record here, is it your intention on this to repeal the existing statutes on open hearings, or do you feel that they would still remain in full force and effect?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I feel they would still remain in full force and effect, Delegate Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Thank you, Delegate-(Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion? Very well, members of the committee you have before you for your consideration, upon the recommendation of Mrs. Eck that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 9 of the Bill of Rights Article, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Heliker, for what purpose do you arise?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I would like to ask Mr. Dahood a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay. (Laughter) Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Dahood, being an ignorant nonlawyer, what is an individual?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: What is an individual?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Is it by any chance also a corporation?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: A person can, of course, Dr. Heliker, as you well know, be defined to include a corporation under the law.

DELEGATE HELIKER: I know a person can, but can an individual?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: An individual, in my judgment, would not be a corporation, no.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, the Chair doubts that it needs to restate that lingo. All those in favor of this motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered. Section 9 is adopted. Will the clerk please read Section 10.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 10, Right of privacy. The right of privacy is essential to the well-being of a free society and shall not be infringed without the showing of a compelling state interest." Section 10, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10 of Proposal Number 8, it recommend that the same be adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, the right of privacy is a right which is not expressly stated in either the United States or the Montana Constitution. It is our feeling, on the Bill of Rights Committee, that the times have changed sufficiently that this important right should now be recognized. If I may, Mr. Chairman, I would like to add an amendment which the committee has made, and I would like it voted on before I continue. This would be to the-add to Section 10 the right of individual privacy.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is that on line 5 of page 6?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Yes, Mr. Chairman, and the committee has unanimously approved this amendment and would request a vote on it if necessary.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of adding the word "individual" so that it reads: "the right of individual privacy", as the committee wishes to have this matter considered, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: This would exclude any question about a government or a corporation. In our early history, of course, there was no need to expressly state that an individual should have a right of privacy. Certainly, back in 1776, 1789, when they developed our Bill of Rights, the search and seizure provisions were enough, when a man's home was his castle and the state could not intrude upon this home without the procuring of a search warrant with probable cause being stated before a magistrate and a search warrant being issued. No other protection was necessary; and this certainly was the greatest amount of protection that any free society had given its individuals. In that type of a society, of course, the neighbor was maybe 3 to 4 miles away. There was no real infringement upon the individual and his right of privacy. However, today we have observed an increasingly complex society and we know that our area of privacy has decreased, decreased, and decreased. The United States Supreme Court, in Griswold versus Connecticut, had to construe the right of privacy as an implied right and, in that case, held that the right of privacy extended into the marital privacy, that the state did not have a compelling state interest in going into the bedroom of a married couple to prevent contraception. And they ruled the Connecticut anticontraception law invalid as invading the right of privacy. Now, we don't know how the interpretations will go from there, what the Supreme Court will do. We feel, in the Montana Supreme Court, it has recognized the right of privacy, although it has not been expressly stated in the Montana Constitution, What this would do-by requiring that this area of privacy be protected unless there is a showing of a compelling state interest, it produces what I call a semipermeable wall of separation between individual and state; just as the wall of separation between church and state is absolute, the wall of separation we are proposing with this section would be semipermeable. That is, as a participating member of society, we all recognize that the state must come into our private lives at some point; but what it says is, don't come into our private lives unless you have a good reason for being there. We feel that this, as a mandate to our government, would cause a complete reexamination and guarantee our individual citizens of Montana this very important right-the right to be let alone; and this has been called the most important right of them all. You've all had placed on your desk the Montana Standard's editorial of February 3, 1972. I think it states it very well. "Times change. That, in a nutshell, is why the Constitutional Convention delegates in Helena are working on a new and more modern governmental charter for Montana. Today, with wiretaps, electronic and bugging devices, photo surveillance equipment and computerized data banks, a person's privacy can be invaded without his knowledge and the information so gained can be misused in the most insidious ways. It isn't only a careless government that has this power to pry; political organizations, private information gathering firms, and even an individual can now snoop more easily and more effectively than ever before. We certainly hope that such snooping is not as widespread as some persons would have us believe, but with technology easily available and becoming more refined all the time, prudent safeguards against the misuse of such technology are needed. Some may urge and argue that this is a legislative, not a constitutional issue. We think the right of privacy is like a number of other inalienable rights; a carefully worded constitutional article reaffirming this right is desirable. Wade Dahood of Anaconda, Chairman of the Bill of Rights Committee, hit the nail on the head when he said: 'As government functions and controls expand, it is necessary to expand the rights of the individual.' The right to privacy deserves specific protection." Mr. Chairman, I would recommend the adoption of this section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, is there discussion?

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: May I ask a question, please? Would this preclude a corporation made up of family members?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: It's not-it is intended to protect the individual as we have described it. We do not feel that a corporation is an individual. It can be considered a person, but not an individual. We don't think that this would apply in that area.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman. I'd like to move an amendment that, on line 7, after the word "infringe", we put a period and strike out the rest of the sentence. On line 7, after the word "infringe", simply put a period and strike out the words "without the showing of a compelling state interest" and let this statement about right of privacy simply stand just right there, barefaced, on its own; that we have the right to privacy as stated. Section 11 gives some leeway to that for the state in a lawful way to go about invading the right to privacy in the section on searches and seizures. I am a little worried about that phrase "without the showing of a compelling state interest" because that may be interpreted by whatever state agency happens to have an interest in invading my privacy at that particular time.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the Chair will allow Mr. Harper's amendment to strike the last phrase of Section 10 and put a period after "infringed"-strike the words "without the showing of a compelling state interest". Is there discussion on Mr. Harper's amendment?

Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I would agree with Delegate Harper's amendment. The right of privacy is recognized within the law, has been amply defined in case after case within the common-law area. The last phrase that Delegate Harper seeks to strike does not really serve any necessary purpose, inasmuch as the very definition of the right of privacy as we know it in the law takes care of that particular phrase and, consequently, the other matters where the state is involved would have to be balanced against this right. Our committee does not object to the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises upon Mr. Harper's amendment that would strike the words "without the showing of a compelling state interest" and put a period after "infringed" on line 7, page 6, in Section 10. So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Harper's amendment, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. Is there further discussion of Section 10? Members of the committee, you have before you, upon the recommendation of Mr. Campbell that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10 as amended, that this committee recommend that the same be adopted. All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 10 is adopted. Will the clerk read Section 11.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 11, Searches and seizures. The people shall be secure in their persons, papers, homes and effects from unreasonable searches and seizures and invasions of privacy, and no warrant to search any place or seize any person or thing shall issue without describing the place to be searched or the person or thing to be seized, nor without probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, reduced to writing." Section 11, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11 of Proposal 8, it recommends that the same be adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman, in this searches and seizures provision, Number 11, we have the outline as is written up on page 24. I won't bother to read that to you. I'm sure you can go through it if you have any questions. You may note that in our rough draft when we did present it to the Convention, it did contain specific information regarding electronic equipment and surveillance. We at the committee felt very strongly that the people of Montana should be protected as much as possible against eavesdropping, electronic surveillance, and such type of activities. We also recognize that there may in the future be a legitimate need for such in legitimate police activities. After careful consideration of the rough draft that we did produce, we found that the citizens of Montana were very suspicious of such type of activity. We found from the law enforcement officers we talked to that there was really not a need and such activity was not taking place at this time. We had then decided that what we had done was made constitutional something that we may someday want to regulate or even abolish. There were people that would-testified to our committee that the wiretapping and such should be abolished expressly in the Constitution. It was our feeling, after considering this, that it should not be solidified and cemented into the Constitution; it should be made a legislative matter; and as such, we have removed reference to it from the Constitution. It is not prohibited; and we have added, in addition, that a person's papers, homes, effects should be protected as well as invasions of his privacy. This is a two-pronged approach with the other right of privacy in Section 10. This is one that would affect the officer and the local person enforcing the law. It would not make any more difficult his right to receive a search warrant. It was our feeling that express language concerning electronic equipment should be dealt with by the Legislature and should not be solidified in the Constitution. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Will Mr. Campbell yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I will yield.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: I'm confused by your remarks and by the comments of your committee. It seems to me that your committee very clearly and very strongly wanted to prohibit the future use of wiretapping or any other type of electronic surveillance in the State of Montana. And it seems from your comments that, you know, there is certainly no justification for it in this state; yet you are leaving it open, are you not, by your saying that-in essence that it can be done if probable cause can be shown, or if a warrant can be obtained?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: No, we are not mentioning it in the search and seizure provision. There was some testimony before our committee that under the present Montana statutes, wiretapping is illegal--or at least under the present state of the law, which is, at best, in flux. It was the feeling of some that putting it in the Constitution would legalize it forever and that we would not be able to change it. If there is going to be any invasion of privacy by intercepting this communication, it will have to be done specifically by the Legislature. It was our feeling that we could not present to the Convention and the State of Montana an absolute prohibition which would forever preclude law enforcement from ever using these things, which some day it may need to use.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Mr. President [Chairman], will Mr. Campbell yield to another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I will yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: I don't see, really, how you can talk about privacy and in the same breath mention the possibility of wiretapping or electronic surveillance. I think these are probably two most incompatible things that you could ever have. I would wonder what the committee or Mr. Campbell's feeling might be. On your committee comments on page 25, you state, in line twenty-six and a half and twenty-seven and a half, that the committee believes that the privacy of communications should remain inviolate from state-level interception. I was wondering if the committee would accept a similar statement—privacy of communications shall be inviolate-as an amendment to Section 11 if your committee was-really believes what your comments say on page 25.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Yes, we do really believe it. We would accept it and as a committee we would endorse it.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: I have an amendment, then, for Section 11, and I'll get it right up there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mrs. Robinson's amendment is as follows: "I move to amend Section 11 of the Bill of Rights Committee proposal, on line 16 on page 5-page 6, by adding to the following sentence at the end thereof: 'Privacy of communications shall be inviolate.'" ' rivacy of communications shall be inviolate.'

Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Mr. Chairman, this is simply, you know, a very short statement of the committee's comments and language on page 25. I feel that this is something that the committee obviously felt very strongly about, yet did not put it in the Constitution. I also feel very strongly about this state not ever, ever engaging in wiretapping. I just finished a book by Schwartz of New York State University dealing very extensively with wiretapping. He cites instances after instances where there is no actual proof or even the slightest indication that the gains from wiretapping can ever in any way measure up to the invasion of privacy perpetrated by wiretapping. Privacy, I think, is the right most valued by all men. And Justice Brandeis said that a wiretap, simply because it picks up both sides of all conversations, of all calls made by or to all persons using telephones under surveillance, by definition constitutes a general search, committed not only against a person under suspicion but against many others. I think that if you look at any statistics dealing with wiretapping, you will see that the value of wiretapping in no way measures up to the infringement on private property-private privacy. For example, in 1968 the federal-state officials overheard 4,000 people in 66,000 different conversations, wiretapped conversations. Not a single conviction. In 1969, state and federal officials both overheard 31,000 people in a hundred and seventy-three different conversations. One-third of one percent of the people overheard were convicted, at a cost of something in excess of $680,000. Similar situation occurred in 1970 where 25,000 people were listened to in 300,000 conversations. One-half of the 1 percent of the people overheard on these wiretaps were convicted, and the cost of such wiretapping and electronic surveillance exceeded $3 million. None of these wiretaps were—are—include those in national security or in one-party surveillance. I think it's quite clear that no case has been or can be made for wiretapping in the State of Montana, to have such a blatant disregard of privacy of individuals.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Will Mrs. Robinson yield for a question?

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Yes.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mrs. Robinson, I appreciate and agree with your statistics on wiretapping, but you understand that the telephone company sometimes uses blocks to locate obscene phone taps-or phone calls-that this would also rule out monitoring to see where these were coming from. Because you use such a broad term as "communications".

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Yes.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: And may I ask one further question? Will you yield for one further question?

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Yes.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: For instance, "communications" is broad enough for checking mail; that now the prisons can't go through the mail of the prisoners to check on what information they might be passing out, including possible plans for escape or to bring weapons.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Well, I think that in the area of mail, which would certainly be covered by federal statutes, federal regulations, that anything a state constitution would write in terms of mail inspection would certainly be superseded by the federal regulations of the mail.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Well, I haven't read the federal statutes on wiretapping, but I presume because they are-there is a certain amount of interstate commerce, they might-it might also-1 have no further questions.

Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: I resist the amendment upon the grounds that, while I am in sympathy with the fact that-and support the position that there should be no wiretapping or other electronic surveillance, I think "communications" is too broad, because it could be stretched to anything-mail; putting blocks in the line as telephone companies do to-when women are being bothered by obscene phone calls, to pick up who's doing the calls; telegrams-communications could even be notes being passed back and forth in prison or any of a number of different situations. And as I say, while I agree with the thinking behind it, and-1 agree more with Mr. Campbell that this thing can be covered much better by legislation, which can be more specific and which can meet the shifting requirements that are required by such statutory matters.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. President [Chairman], I feel this is all immaterial. We've-in Section 10 we gave the absolute right of privacy without any exceptions regardless of the state interest or any compelling interest. So we've already given them-we've opened the door, and I don't think anything we do now to limit it-we'd be in direct conflict with Section 10. But that's the way the Convention feels; we're going to legislate right through this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman, I would like to amend Delegate Robinson's amendment by placing the word "oral" between "privacy"-between "of' and "communications". Her amendment would then read: "Privacy of oral communications shall be inviolate".

Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a moment. Mr. Campbell's amendment would add the word "privacy of oral communications shall be inviolate"-adding the word "oral" to Mrs. Robinson's amendment.

Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I feel that the concern was in wiretapping and interception of oral communications. This would eliminate any question on written types of letters, notes and that sort of thing, packages through the mail, which there is a legitimate right in many cases to search and to seize. I feel that with "oral communications" you are not excluding the legitimate law enforcement people who, with the consent of one party, the person who is being threatened by phone calls and things like this, to act on behalf of that victim. The privacy of that individual certainly could be waived with his or her consent, and there's certainly no privacy toward the obscene caller. I feel that this would not hinder law enforcement in that respect at all. If there were situations such as kidnapping, certainly the federal law would prevail. The federal law does provide a number of areas for wiretapping. They certainly are available; they could be used. For the State of Montana, I do not feel that it would be necessary, and it certainly would be expensive, to employ this type of electronic surveillance. I think we would have the adequate protection, and I feel that with that amendment it would be acceptable. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Melvin.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Will Mrs. Robinson yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Robinson?

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Yes.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Mrs. Robinson, did I understand you correctly that you felt that this-your amendment would forbid the telephone company and law enforcement officers to trace obscene telephone calls?

DELEGATE ROBINSON: I'm not sure whether it would or not. I feel that these things may have to be-1 really don't know how, technically, they do it-if they do it by a bug or by tapping lines. I know any time that I've had an obscene phone call, they can't do-they never are able to get it anyway. (Laughter)

DELEGATE MELVIN: Thank you, Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: But I'm not sure how they do it, or how they don't do it.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Thank you, Mrs. Robinson.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Melvin.

DELEGATE MELVIN: I have to speak in opposition to Mrs. Robinson's amendment for that one reason. One of the nastiest, most difficult offenses that is reported to police departments and sheriffs' offices is the obscene phone caller, and in spite of the statistics that have been spread here this evening, there have been some identified. It has not always resulted in criminal prosecution. Sometimes it has resulted in treatment by appropriate psychiatrists or others. But I do feel that this is an area that it's only possible to reach it in this manner. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Vermillion.

DELEGATE VERMILLION: Would Mr. Melvin yield to a question, please?

DELEGATE MELVIN: I yield.

DELEGATE VERMILLION: Mr. Melvin, I was wondering now, on these obscene phone calls, does the receiving party know that the telephone company is intercepting the message?

DELEGATE MELVIN: Yes.

DELEGATE VERMILLION: Well then, this-I'm wondering if this would be a private communication then? It might be that in this instance, this proviso would cover that. I'm wondering—

DELEGATE MELVIN: Well, I could only assume that a court would interpret a communication as a dialogue between two people. Does that answer your question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Yes, let me answer that question, Mr. Chairman. First of all, this does not in any way relate to the obscene phone call situation, nor does it relate to the ability of the telephone company to make the traces. The logic and the reason is this: all personal rights, constitutional or otherwise, may be waived. Lady A is receiving the obscene phone call. She waives her right and grants the telephone company the right to intercept that communication. The individual that's making the call does not have the right of privacy with respect to violating the law and making the obscene phone calls, so as a consequence, we are not interfering with anyone's rights by having the telephone company attempt to intercept and discover and determine who the caller is; we are protecting the right of privacy. So as a consequence, may I say that that objection would not be one that we would have to worry about under the law, and the amendment proposed by Delegate Robinson would not in any way interfere with that situation.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mr. Chairman, I'll have to admit that Mrs. Robinson is probably better endowed for obscene phone calls than I am, and I'll have to yield to her knowledge in that respect. (Laughter)

CHAIRMANGRAYBILL: I'msureyaudo so reluctantly, Mr. Holland. (Laughter)
Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman], would Mrs. Robinson yield to a question?

DELEGATE ROBINSON: If it's not obscene. (Laughter)

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mrs. Robinson, if there'd been the crime of murder committed and you and I were standing here and I said that I shot that dirty s.o.b., not to be obscene, would that be an oral communication?

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Well, yes.

DELEGATE DAVIS: And then you would not want to be in a position where you could testify in court that I had made that statement?

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Oh, I think that's totally irrelevant.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Not if it says in the Bill of Rights "privacy of oral communications is inviolate", is it?

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Are you not, in essence, giving upyourrightto total privacy when you tell me what you've done?

DELEGATE DAVIS: You're guaranteeing I can't give up my right of total privacy. There's nothing in here about a waiver, is there?

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Oh, no. You're -there's a difference between your knowing that you're telling me and you know whether there is someone around us listening or if it's just you and I; whereas, on the telephone, you may tell me that and you may suspect that I'm the only one listening, but you certainly may not know that.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman], I would have to rise in opposition to this. After 20 years in law enforcment, there's still some rights of the citizens that have to be protected. In law enforcement, it seems to me oral communications could be a communication that was overheard if I were telephoning someone. It could be a communication overheard on radios between a stakeout and-as was demonstrated in London awhile back, where they overheard them talking about robbing the bank. It seems like it goes a lot further than electronic surveillance and wiretapping, which I think they originally had in mind, If they could clear it up in that regard, it might be acceptable.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman, it's not very often I have a little bit of legal knowledge to impart, but I think that there was a case just in this last year that involved something very much like you described, where there-it was not a case of wiretapping; it was a case of a sister-in-law who was listening-or a sister who was listening in on a communication, and the court ruled that this evidence could not be used because it was a violation of privacy. This had nothing to do with wiretapping, but I think that in this case, it would not be admissible evidence.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Gysler was up next.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Chairman, on page 25, line 13, I read: "The committee had incorporated into the tentative rough draft safeguards for wiretapping, electronic surveillance and other means of communications interceptions." After hearing further testimony, the committee decided to delete any reference to interceptions of communications. And yet, now, the mere mention of it on the floor and they say, "We're for it." I don't know. They really leave me kind of in a state of confusion, so I think I will go along with their written testimony and vote against the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to respond to what Delegate Gysler has to say, and I think there's some basis for what he does say. First of all, we agreed that we would go along with an amendment that would prohibit electronic surveillance in the State of Montana. The committee is still of that opinion. After listening to testimony, after examining briefs that were submitted to us, after analyzing the situation, it is inconceivable to any of us that there would ever exist a situation in the State of Montana where electronic surveillance could be justified. And the thinking throughout the United States is, electronic surveillance shall be justified only in matters involving national security, perhaps in matters involving certain heinous federal crimes where the situation is such that in those instances we must risk the right of individual privacy because there is a greater purpose to be served. But within the area of the State of Montana, we cannot conceive of a situation where we could ever permit electronic surveillance. And our intention was-in responding to the proposed amendment; that we would not object to it-was to allow an amendment that would prohibit electronic surveillance in the State of Montana. That is the committee explanation.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mrs. Robinson's motion to amend Section 11 by adding the phrase: "Privacy of oral"— no, let's see, it's on Mr. Campbell's amendment to add the word "oral" to Mrs. Robinson's amendment, so it would read: "Privacy of oral communications shall be inviolate."

Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I think I'm compelled to state that that particular language, with all due respect to Delegate Robinson, does present some problems. I'm not satisified in my own mind at this time that that is going to reach the electronic surveillance that we want to proscribe, and I think that perhaps that amendment might be withdrawn and perhaps the term "electronic surveillance" put in the phrase that's suggested by way of amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Mr. President [Chairman], I would be glad to withdraw that amendment. The wording bothers me too, and I took it directly from the committee report. So anything that Mr. Dahood could come up with that would meet my objectives would be fine.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do I understand, Mrs. Robinson, that you wish to withdraw your amendment?

DELEGATE ROBINSON: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell, are you going to withdraw your "oral" word?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Yes, I will.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, both Mr. Campbell's and Mrs. Robinson's amendments are withdrawn.

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman, could I ask Mr. Dahood a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: When the Governor has a device on his telephone that has a beep on it when someone calls in and then your voice is recorded, when you call into the Governor's mansion, is that electronic surveillance?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: It's electronic, but it's done with the consent of the participants in that conversation.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue before us is Section 11, unamended.

Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: There are no present amendments before us, then, regarding wiretapping, et cetera?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood's pencil is busy, but there are none before us.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: May I ask Mr. Campbell a couple of questions, then, while Mr. Dahood is writing? (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell, would you yield?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I will yield.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: There are a couple of things that concern me here, Bob, although not too much because I know the federal case law protects us. But assuming there was no federal law, in Section 10 we now provide for a right of privacy which will not be infringed. In Section 11, which appears now to me to be an exception to Section 10, we allow for invasions of privacy on a showing of probable cause. Now, this leads me to believe that, in the example you gave, the contraception case, that the police could go into court and, on a mere showing of probable cause that a crime is being committed, obtain the search warrant to go in and search unless our state court, as the federal court has done, invented a better right of privacy than I think we have stated here. Since we've removed the provision that a compelling state interest also be shown, I think the officers could merely go in. And I'm wondering if you think we've really changed the law at all by the addition of Section 10 and the additions to Section 11.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I see your objection and I would agree with yourreasoning. I certainly would have no objection and would heartily support an amendment you might have to delete invasions of privacy from Section 11, to leave it in its original form.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf, you've been invited to amend Section 11 by dropping the words "and invasions of privacy". Do you wish to?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I'll leave that to the committee to do that. I just wish to point that out.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, the committee-Mr. Campbell now moves that we strike, on line 11, the words "and invasions of privacy" from Section 11, since we have taken the clause out up above. Because otherwise, the modifier "unreasonable" seems to weaken Section 10. Mr. Campbell, your amendment to strike "invasions of privacy" will be allowed. Is there discussion?

Mrs. Robinson, do you want to discuss this new matter?

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Yes, because this was the objection that I had, because I think that in Section 10 we did protect the right of privacy, but in Section 11, as it was written, it seemed to me that an invasion of privacy could be--would be okay as long as you had a warrant or could show probable cause or these other things. To me, an invasion of privacy is wiretapping and electronic surveillance. If you eliminate invasion of privacy from this section, then you have precluded wiretapping and electronic surveillance and I'm happy.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Campbell's motion to strike the words "and invasions of privacy" on lines 11 and 12 of Section 11 on page 6. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and the offensive words are stricken. Now, is there-are there further amendments to Section 11? Members of the committee, you have before you for your consideration, upon the recommendation of Mr. Campbell that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11 as amended, that it recommend the same be adopted. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Members of the committee, the Chair is quite pleased that we've gone as far as we've gone. And I see a section coming up that might take some time; I think maybe we should go home.

Mr. Murray, would you like to make a motion?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee rise, report progress, and ask leave to sit again.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion has been made that the committee rise and report progress. All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Proceedings moved from Committee of the Whole into Convention. President Graybill in Chair.)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: If you'll just remain for a minute now, we'll finish up. Will the clerk please read the title of the committee report.

CLERK SMITH: "March 7, 1972. Mr. President: We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration Report Number 8 of the Committee of Bill of Rights, recommend that the committee rise and report progress and beg leave to sit again. Signed: Graybill, Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Members of the committee, hearing no objection, we will not read the entire committee report. So many as shall be in favor—

Oh, Mr. Murray, you want to make the motion?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move we adopt the Committee of the Whole report.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to adopt the Committee of the Whole report. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered. Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move that the Convention adjourn until the hour of 9:00 a.m., March 8, 1972.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to adjourn until 9:00 a.m. tomorrow morning. All in favor, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Thank you very much for coming tonight.

(Convention adjourned at 10:13 p.m.)

March 8, 1972 Fortieth Day Convention Hall
9:10 a.m. Helena, Montana

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Convention will be in order. If you'll all rise, Delegate Harbaugh will lead us in the invocation.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Let us pray. God, our Father, we do not begin our days here with an invocation just for the sake of ritual, nor because it is traditional to do so, but because we sense that unless the Lord builds the house, those who build labor in vain. We do not know what the future holds, yet we strive to produce a guide for that future. So give us grace today to believe that even though we cannot look beyond our own time with clarity, you hold all time in your hands through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: We'll take attendance by voting Aye on the voting machines.

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Berg, Delegate Bowman, Delegate Brown, Delegate Cate, Delegate Choate, Delegate Dahood. Mr. President, may Delegate Eskildsen be excused, please?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: He may.

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Berg, Delegate Bowman, Delegate Brown, Delegate Choate, Delegate Toole, Delegate Berg.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Take the vote.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 95 delegates present, 4 absent and 1 excused.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. The journal may so show. Order of Business Number 1, Report of Standing Committees.

CLERK HANSON: None, sir.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 2, Report of Select Committees.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 3, Communications.

CLERK HANSON: "Helena, Montana; March 7, 1972. Honorable Leo Graybill, Jr.; President, Montana Constitutional Convention; Capitol, Helena, Montana. Dear Mr. President: In accordance with the provisions of Section 15(2), Extraordinary Senate Bill Number 6, Chapter Extraordinary Number 1, Laws of Montana 1971, the license of Roy G. Crosby, Jr., license number 58-72, has been reinstated as of March 7th, 1972. Sincerely yours, Frank Murray, Secretary of State." "March 7, 1972. Honorable Leo Graybill, Jr.; President, Montana Constitutional Convention; Capitol, Helena, Montana. Dear Mr. President: In accordance with the provisions of Section 15(2), Extraordinary Senate Bill Number 6, Chapter Extraordinary Number 1, Laws of Montana 1971, the license of Gene A. Tuma, license number 32-72, has been reinstated as of March 7th, 1972. Sincerely yours, Frank Murray, Secretary of State."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Are there other communications?

CLERK HANSON: None, sir.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 4, Introduction and Reference of Proposals.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 5.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President. Due to the press of business that we have today, I move that we pass this Order of Business and the voting on the General Government Articles at this time.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray's motion is to pass Order of Business Number 5 and take up the General Government Articles tomorrow. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 6, Adoption.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 7, Motions and Resolutions.

CLERK HANSON: None, sir.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 8, Unfinished Business.

Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. President, fellow delegates. It is my pleasure this morning to introduce the pages for this week. Would all the pages come forward at this time. As I call your name, please stand. The first one we have is Lois Kamp; she's the niece of Mrs. Grace Bates. Lois, by the way, is from Manhattan. Leslie Ann Newman from Columbia Falls; Carl Rostad from Martinsdale, Montana; Patsy Seitz from Broadview; Marsha Murray from Kalispell-this is the daughter of our fellow delegate, Marshall Murray; Carolyn Patterson from Missoula; Brad Van Wormer from Missoula; Orville Granger from the Fort Peck Reservation; Keri Baer from Helena; Melody Jackson from Helena, Montana; and Tala Skari from Chester-she's the daugher of Carman Skari. We want to welcome you and hope you enjoy your time here. Now, one of you will come forward and address the Convention.

UNIDENTIFIED PAGE: Ladies and gentlemen of the Convention. I feel I can only respond with-like the pages before us have. And so much-it is a great honor to serve this assembly. The next 2 weeks are final weeks of the Convention. They will probably be the most chaotic, the most demanding, and the most trying upon the Convention, for now you will have to adopt the document which you have compiled. It'll be up to your discretion whether you think the document is a good enough one to submit to the public. We wish you well. I thank you. (Applause)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: We want to thank all of you pages, and we're sure we'll have a very pleasant week with you. And I'm sure you'll make it much easier for us to do that job that you described as difficult. Thank you very much. Your names will appear in today's journal, and you'll be given a copy that you may take home with you.

Order of Business Number 9, Special Orders.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 10, General Orders of the Day.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President. I move that the Convention resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for consideration of business under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. The motion is to resolve this Convention into Committee of the Whole to consider matters under General Orders. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk.

(Committee of the Whole)

CLERK HANSON: March 8, 1972. The following committee proposals are now on General Orders: Bill of Rights, Education, Public Health, Local Government, General Government, Style and Drafting Number 4. Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman. By way of rearranging the calendar somewhat, I move that the Committee of the Whole take up the consideration of the Executive Article Report from Style and Drafting at this time.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. It's moved that we take up the Executive Article of Style and Drafting. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's Booklet Number 4.

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1 of Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same do pass.

Mr. Chairman, Section 1—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 1, sub. 1—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: -sub. 1, is-we only made style changes. I would call your attention to the word, on line 7, "department". In our comment, we noted that this has a different meaning and intent than department does in Section 7 of this same article, where they're talking about the Executive Department under reorganization.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, in case you haven't got with us, we're on page 9—if you want to follow the changes of the Executive Style and Drafting Article Number 4. Page 9, Section 1, number 1, line 6. Is there discussion of Section 1, article-Section 1, sub. 1? All in favor of Section 1, sub. 1, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 1, sub. 2.
Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1, sub. 2, of Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.
Mr. Chairman. There are only style changes; nothing significant.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Discussion on sub. 2? All in favor of Section 1, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Adopted. Sub. 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1, sub. 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.
Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: We combined sub. 3 and sub. 4. Otherwise, there are no significant differences.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Sub. 3 and sub. 4 of the original article having been combined, is there any discussion of sub. 3? If not, all in favor of adopting sub. 3, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 2.
Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.
Mr. Chairman. There we took out the words—we rearranged the sequence of executive officers, and then we will retain that same sequence throughout. They were mixed up a little bit in the various sections. Style changes only.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 2, sub. 1? All in favor of that section, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 2, Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 2, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.
Mr. Chairman, no changes except for style. We picked up the words used throughout, in line 26, "provided by law" instead of "as may be prescribed" et cetera. That's all.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion on sub. 2? All in favor thereof, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 3, sub. 1, Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 3, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.
Mr. Chairman, only style changes; nothing unusual that should be called to the attention—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 3, sub. 1?
Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I move that we suspend the rules to reconsider the age qualifications in this section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Do you want to send some short writing to the Chair so we've got it for the thing-for the record that says that you're suspending the rules on 3, sub. 1, for the purpose of considering the age qualifications?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: And I would move that the language of the majority report be reintroduced and accepted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell is moving that we suspend the rules on Section 3, sub. 1, which has the age qualifications involved. And he-if the rules are suspended, he will move to reconsider to put in the majority report's original age qualifications. Is there further debate?

Mr. Campbell.

ing enough reform, for having the full seven offices in the Executive, are things that I think the majority of us now regret. But they are slowly congealing into the cement of Montana history. And we can't-they're all but beyond us; we can almost not change it. As you know, in the Bill of Rights we have an article on adult rights. On the Executive, if you will allow to suspend the rules to reconsider this qualification, it would be the first step in producing the type of reform, the type of recognition of our young people, that I think they deserve. I did not see any wave of joy coming from the young people that this responsibility would not be imposed upon them. I felt a great deal of dismay that we lack the trust and confidence in them and the voters of the state. With that, Mr. Chairman, I would request that we suspend the rules on this section to reconsider our decision. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion on the motion to suspend the rules?

Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman. I would simply like to amplify what Mr. Campbell has said and say that I think that this is one of the poorest things we've done in the Constitution so far. It is simply not a constitutional matter, and it is writing into our document a rigidity that simply does not belong there. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg. The journal may show your presence and you may vote.

Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President, fellow delegates. I made the motion to reconsider. First, I'd made a motion to reduce the age qualifications from 30 to 25. That made the same-made you eligible to run 5 years earlier for these seven offices. I think this has been misquoted in the press, whether intentionally or unintentionally, that young people are deprived of the right to hold office. They can hold all-the offices of legislators, all the county offices, any state office except these seven. And to have some additional qualifications for office besides the 18-year-old would not seem to be unreasonable to me. I have wondered what we are writing in this, but I finally reviewed my notes last night and discovered that we were writing poetry, Mr. Burkhardt said. So I can see why it would be rather poetic to have all the 18-year-olds eligible for office. I attended the Girls' State; I've attended Boys' State; I've attended the State Key Club Convention; and none of the young people in those even voted to lower the voting age, to say nothing about the age to the highest offices. I think there's another significant question too, about talking about running this government that you've given so much power to; the complete power of taxation and these other things. If you have a team concept that we now have in our Constitution, you can have an old man like myself with the teammate, maybe, as the President of one of the units of the University System, would be very appealing to the voters. You'd have a great team going. And then, if I got killed in a car wreck the next day, I'm sure that everyone would have some misgivings about whether enough experience, and so forth, that goes into this thing. I think, by now, we should all be impressed-I hope we are-by how much experience could mean if we were fortunate enough to have it; and we haven't acquired it ourselves, I'm sure. So I would oppose anything to suspend the rules further in this Convention. There have been very many close votes. The thinking of this Convention is quite novel. A week ago, we voted 71 to 16 on the floor, of how many people we're going to have in the body. Yesterday, we voted 77 to 17, so the stability of our thinking and consistency has been not anything really to be admired. It's almost like a unanimous dissent in the Supreme Court. So I oppose any motion to suspend the rules on this or anything else.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman. In defense of us poets, I just want the record to be straight. We're only interested in the book of sounds, otherwise known as the Bill of Rights. We don't intend to put any poetry into the Executive Article. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on—

Mr. Kelleher. Do you wish to speak?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Thank you. I think that my learned brothers teaming up with a teenager is as likely as Mrs. Chisholm teaming up with Mr. Wallace, as a recent suggestion has been made for a national ticket. I think the serious and only relevant matter as far as allowing the 18-year-olds to run for Governor-there's only one question that's really important. Do you have a quarter of a million dollars? That's whatit costs to run for Governor in this state, and that's the only relevant matter. The young people around here were tremendously disillusioned with this Convention after we reversed ourselves. And I strongly support Mr. Campbell's motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. President [Chairman]. Yesterday, I spoke to a gentleman who supposedly represented about, he claimed, about 91,000 people in the State of Montana. And he said they were rather concerned about many things that we had reconsidered in our deliberations. This 18-year-old running for Governor happened to be one of them. So I hope that we move here to reconsider and go even further than that and allow 18-year-olds to run for the office of Governor, even though we know in our owr. minds no 18-year-old is really going to be able to win an election in the State of Montana.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Gysler.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Chairman. Last night when I filled up with gas, a 19-year-old service station attendant asked me-he said, "Is it true that someone 18 or 19 like I am can run for the Legislature?" I said, "Yes." In no uncertain terms, he told me that he thought that this body just wasn't too sharp to do something like that. I oppose the motion to reconsider.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Well, I suppose it just depends on who you talk to or who writes to you. Now, I have a letter here. "Dear Mr. James: I support the right of all registered voters to hold public office. Respectfully, John Elliott, President, Youth Con Con." Evidently, this kid had more on the ball than the one Mr. Gysler talked to. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair will recognize Mrs. Bowman, Mr. Brown, and Mr. Choate, who are now present and may vote. The journal may so show their attendance.

Mr. Martin, do you wish to speak?

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. President [Chairman]. As a member of the Executive Committee and one who advocated and urged that the age barrier be dropped, I will just reaffirm the position which I've taken on the floor and which I intend to keep. And that is that I will oppose any motion to reopen debate and discussion once we've decided. I oppose the motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell, if you want to close, do so briefly, please.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: That-the argument that someone will have an 18-year-old running mate is as unlikely, and would be as politically popular, as Richard Nixon dropping Spiro Agnew for Lou Rawls. And as Katie Payne said, "Who's Lou Rawls?" To the young people it means something, but politically it's just not going to happen. I would just like to say that since this reversal we did make, and we have made two decisions on it-the first one favoring the young in the Executive Report; the second decision was against them and, what I think, was the low point of the Convention. And now, what I'm asking is an opportunity for us to make our final decision-and we certainly have done it. And I would request a roll call vote.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. We'll have a roll call vote. It takes 51 votes or two-thirds, whichever is less, to accomplish this. Those in favor of suspending the rules, vote Aye; those opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Take the vote.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 40 voting Aye; 55 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 55 having voted No and 40 Aye, the motion to suspend the rules fails. Is there other discussion of Section 3, sub. 1? If not, you've heard Mr. Schiltz's motion that we adopt Section 3, sub. 1. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Mr. Schiltz, sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 3, sub. 2, of Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Only style changes, which are self-evident.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Discussion? All in favor of sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 3, sub. 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, once again, style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of sub. 3? All in favor of sub. 3, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 4, Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Section-Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. In this and the next section, particularly this section, we've taken particular care to define the powers and duties. We thought they were a little fuzzy in the material we got from the floor, and we clearly delineated between the two. Otherwise, everything-and that's style, and everything is style.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any question about Section 4, sub. 1? If not, all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4, sub. 2, of Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. I made the comment about clearly delineating between powers and duties and providing that powers cannot be delegated.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion? All in favor of Section 4, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4, sub. 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. These are only style changes. I have one note here I want to look at, though. If you'll look at sub. 3, we provide "the Secretary of State shall maintain official records of the Executive Department", which is transposed from the way we got it because we didn't want it to mean acts of the Executive. We didn't think that's what was intended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 4, sub. 3? If not, all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 4.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4, sub. 4, of Style and Drafting Report Number 4, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, these are minor style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of sub. 4? All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 5.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 4, sub. 5, of Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. We combined sub. 5 with sub. 6. And this will probably be moved at some time to the Legislative Article, when we prepare the final draft. This is the legislative post-audit.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of sub. 5? All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Sub. 5 is adopted. Sub. 5 includes 6, is that right?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: It includes 6 and 7.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Everyone understands that? Those next two paragraphs? That's the end of Section 4. Very well, It's adopted.

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I'm wondering if Style and Drafting really intends to move all of sub. 5 to the Legislative Department, It seems to me what they've taken out of 6 is the part that would be moved to the Legislative Article.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, Mr. Chairman, we're not moving it at this moment, so I don't think there's any need to debate it until we do move it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman]. When I spoke in response to Mr. Campbell, I overlooked the appreciation of Miss Rankin being here. I wonder if we could take time out to give a rousing hand of applause to a great, dedicated public servant. And I'm very sorry that I, in my debate, overlooked that. Would that be proper, Mr. President [Chairman]?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think it would.

(Applause)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Convention should understand that Miss Rankin is going to address us next week, so we'll see her again. All right. Lest anyone be confused, subsection 5 of Section 4, which includes the old 6 and 7-or at least it's all been compressed-has been adopted as far as the Chair understands, and we're ready to go on to Section 5.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 5, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. You'll see that we made no change in this; but we did make a comment that this is a somewhat bland statement and that it does not prohibit increase or decrease in salary at any time. We thought we should call that to your attention in the comments. Otherwise, no change.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Were you talking about sub. 2?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I was talking about sub. 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Section 5, sub. 1; no changes. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 5, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Only style changes--nothing significant to note.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion of sub. 2-Section 5, sub. 2, on page 11? If not, all in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 6.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, we only changed style in some minor places. There's nothing significant to note in the section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of Section 6? All in favor of Section 6, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 6, sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 6, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, this is minor style changes only.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 6, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 7.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 7 of Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. We made only style changes. We deleted the language on lines 22, 23 and 24 as something that has already been done. This section was apparently taken from the Executive Reorganization Act.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 7? All in favor of 6 and 7, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 8.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 8, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: These are minor style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of Section 8? All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 8 is adopted. Section 8, 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 8, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. This, again, is minor style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of 8, sub. 2? All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Eight, sub. 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 8, sub. 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. You'll note that we took out the words "during a recess of the Legislature" and inserted in lieu thereof "is not in session". We did that again in Section-sub. 4 for the reason that during a recess, it has no real meaning and could be confusing. We thought the intent was that—when the Legislature is not in session. Otherwise, everything's style.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of sub. 3? All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 4.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 8, sub. 4, of the Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. Except as noted, where we supplied--we took out "during recess" again, only style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of sub. 4? All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 9.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 9, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. We made no changes here.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 9. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 10, sub. 1.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. I've some notes I want to look at first. As the material that came from the floor—the material we got from the floor made it possible to read this section-subsection-that a bill could become law if the Governor did not sign and did not veto. That, of course, is not the intent. So we put in language to cure that possibility, which is surely only a style change.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any question about that? Any discussion of 10, sub. 1? All in favor of 10, sub. 1, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Excuse me. Mrs. Bates, do you want to discuss that?

DELEGATE BATES: Well, I don't know, but I didn't have time to let this sink in. But it seems to me that that's inaccurate. But I'll have to-let's bypass it first.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, let's—Mr. Schiltz—we won't bypass it unless we move to. But let's--would you explain again what you—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes. I'll have to read it. I did this late last night. Let's see-"it shall be submitted to the Governor for his signature and shall become"-I'm reading on line 5 of page 14—and this is the way we got it from the floor-"and shall become law if he does not sign"—as it read—"if he neither approves nor vetoes the bill within 5 days"-then it goes on, "it shall become law." And we didn't think that anybody meant that, so we had it read as it reads now, that it is sent to the Governor for his signature; if he does not sign or veto the bill within 5 days after its delivery to him, if the Legislature is in session, or within 20 days if the Legislature is adjourned, then it shall become law. I don't think there's any question about the clarity of it now, and we thought there was some question about the clarity then.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I don't think it changes the sense of it, Mrs. Bates. It makes it a little clearer. Let's put the question again. Is there any further discussion on 10, sub. 1? If not, all in favor of 10, sub. 1, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Ten, sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. There are no changes here that need to be noted; it's purely style.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Ten, sub. 2. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Three-sub. 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10, sub. 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, these are only style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: They have the same problem here about "present and voting". Would this apply here also?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I couldn't hear, Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: We have "two-thirds of the members present". And we discussed this yesterday and decided that it would be preferable to have "present and voting".

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, that's substantive so far as I'm concerned.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, we held yesterday, Mr. Schiltz, that making it "present and voting" was not substantive and was stylistic, to make it clearer what you meant.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I should say that we didn't wish to take it upon ourselves to add it.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes.

DELEGATE ECK: I move that we add "and voting" after "present".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: This is sub. 3, on line 21 on page 14. Mrs. Eck has made a motion to add the words "and voting" after the word "present", so that it's the same as we did yesterday on the Legislative Article. Is there discussion? All in favor of adding the words "and voting" after the word "present" in line 21, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That amendment is made. Is there other discussion of sub. 3? Very well. All in favor of sub. 3 as amended, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted as amended. Now, sub. 4.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10, sub. 4, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. Only style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion? All in favor of sub. 4, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 5.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10, sub. 5, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. I would only note that the committee is divided on whether or not this belongs in the Legislative Article or the Executive Article, and that will probably be resolved when we prepare the final draft. Otherwise, no change.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All those in favor of sub. 5, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And it's adopted. Now, Section 11.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I should note at this point, because it isn't noted anywhere else, that we entirely deleted the—

Section 11 on page 15 as it came from the floor for-the reason was that it's provided for in Section 6 of the Legislative Article.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Does everyone understand, then, that Section 11 has been entirely deleted here because in the Legislative Article we put in a section providing for calling special sessions, which said the same thing in substance? Is that right? Said the same thing in substance?

Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. It seems to me that, as the Section 11 passed the Committee of the Whole, that the first sentence—or the first clause--what we had in Section 11, which appeared on page 29 of the Executive Report-was retained, where it said that whenever the Governor considers it in the public interest, he may convene the Legislature, either house or the two houses in joint session-period. It just seems to me that that should be retained in the Executive Article, even though it is duplicated in the Legislative Article. For the purposes of clarity, anybody reading the Constitution can see that the Governor does have the power to call special sessions. And I therefore move that the sentence as it passed the Committee of the Whole be reinstated in Section 11 of the Executive Article.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce, what number is that in your report? Let's see—we're on Section 11.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Page 29 of the majority report, which was identical with the minority report of the Executive Article.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Joyce has made a motion that we retain the first sentence of Section 11, which says, "Whenever the Governor considers it in the public interest, he may convene the Legislature"-that's lines 2 and 3 on page 15 of the report we're working from-on the grounds that even though it's repetitious, it should be set forth in the Executive Article. Is there further discussion?

Mr. Furlong.

DELEGATE FURLONG: Mr. Chairman. I wonder if Mr. Joyce would consider suggesting to Style and Drafting that they put that portion pertaining to the Governor in the Executive Article and the other portion pertaining to the Legislature in the Legislative Article.

DELEGATE JOYCE: That would be fine with me. It's just-Mr. Chairman, I take it he asked me a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'm checking the-what we did. We did leave that sentence in. We took out the middle sentence. And we left it as the stricken part shows. Is there further discussion of that matter? Does anyone happen to know, offhand, the number of the-in the Legislative Article?

DELEGATES: Sixteen.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Page 16 in the Legislative Article.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Graybill?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Page 11 of the unicameral section-and it's on page 11, starting at line 15.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Of the unicameral article?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Right. It says in haec uerba, "The Legislature may be convened in special sessions by the Governor". In haec verba, how do you like that one?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, the Legislative Article says, "The Legislature may be convened in special sessions by the Governor or at the written request of a majority of its-of the members." This one says, "Whenever the Governor considers it in the public interest, he may convene the Legislature." Mr. Joyce's motion is to retain in the Executive Article, the first sentence about the Governor. Is there further discussion?

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I would only have a problem that in one-that the two provisions aren't exactly parallel and somebody might look up one and rely on it and never get around to looking up the other one. I thinkstylistically there should only be one mention of this. In one case, it requires the public interest; in the other case, the Governor can do it willy-nilly. I don't like it just from a style standpoint, but I don't resist it awfully hard.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: I hate to quibble over the thing. It just seems to me if in the final styling if there is a Section 11 that says "The Legislature may be convened in special session by the Governor"-period-why, that would be fine with me. It just seems to me that it is one of the powers of the Governor and it should appear in the Executive Article.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I concur with Mr. Joyce, for two reasons. I think it belongs there because it's an executive power, and secondly, I think it spells out who is going to call the Legislature into session if the majority of the Legislature requests it. In the Legislative Article, it just says the majority of the members may call; it doesn't say who is going to implement the call. So I would move that we retain Section 11 in the Executive Article, if that motion hasn't already been made.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, Mr. Joyce only wanted-only made a motion to retain the first sentence. Do you want to make a motion to retain the whole thing?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: As a substitute motion, I do.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Mr. Aasheim's substitute motion is to retain all of Section 11 as shown on lines 2 to 6, page 15. Is there any discussion?

Mr. Joyce, are you up?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Yes. Mr. Chairman, maybe I'm wrong; my notes indicate that the second sentence was deleted in the Committee of the Whole.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's wrong. The middle sentence was deleted, and it's not in the book here, but the last sentence was retained—and that's--what-lines 4 to 6.

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: When I indicated that I didn't resist Mr. Joyce's motion too much—but I do resist the substitute motion, because now we're putting into the Executive Article material that is entirely legislative and doesn't belong there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. The issue is on Mr. Aasheim's motion to retain all of Section 11. All in favor of that, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. That's defeated. Now the issue is on Mr. Joyce's motion to retain the first sentence of Section 11 about the Governor calling the-convening the Legislature. All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That motion passes. So we've adopted that. And, Mr. Schiltz, let's now put the question on the first two sentences of Section 11.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: And at the same time, I want to include--or renumber--we'll have to renumber as we go along.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10, sub. 11, that it recommend the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, let's—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Wait a minute; it's Section 11, I'm sorry.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 11—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: -of Style and Drafting Report Number 4.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of adopting Section 11 as Mr. Joyce amended it and as the Chairman has moved, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. It's adopted as amended. Now, we'll take former Section 11, now Section 12.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 12 of the Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. We made some style changes that are not significant. We changed the word "reinstate" to "restore", to coincide with Section 94-4720 of the Revised Codes. "Reinstate" is not a word used in the Codes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, now. Members of the body, we'retalking about lines 7 to 10 on page 15. It used to be 12, and then it went to 11, and now it's back to 12. So if you'd renumber "Pardons" as 12 and "Militia" as 13 and "Succession" as 14 in your books, we'll refer to them that way since that's the way Style and Drafting will now want them. Is there discussion of Section 12, Pardons? All in favor of that section, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 13, Militia.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 13, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. The-only style changes here.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of 13, sub. 1, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Thirteen, sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 13, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. Only minor change in style,

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of 13, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Now, Section 14, Succession, sub. 1.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. We only made one or two minor style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion of 14, sub. 1? All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Fourteen, sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. If you'll look on page 16, during the-at the top, we read the material as it came from the floor that there was a possibility that the Lieutenant Governor could be acting Governor during the 45 days' absence instead of becoming acting Governor after 45 days had elapsed. So we changed it so it was clear that after the Governor had been absent from the state. Otherwise, no other changes-or style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 14, sub. 2?

Mrs. Payne.

DELEGATE PAYNE: Mr. Chairman. May I ask Mr. Schiltz a question?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes, indeed.

DELEGATE PAYNE: Does the Style and Drafting mean absent from the state, you know, bodily from the state, or do you mean absent from the office of Governor?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, the material we got from the floor is just "absent from the state.

DELEGATE PAYNE: Well that means— Mr. President [Chairman], may I ask another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, Mrs. Payne.

DELEGATE PAYNE: Well, could he be absent from his office for 45 days and—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, not the way we got it. As it read, "He shall serve as acting Governor during the absence from the state of the Governor for any period in excess of 45 consecutive days." There's a next section that covers that sort of thing.

DELEGATE PAYNE: Oh, thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The next sections do cover the situation of disability, Mrs. Payne, and might answer your question. Is there any further question about Section 14, sub. 2? All in favor of it, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14, sub. 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, relatively minor style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 14, sub. 3? Very well. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 4.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14, sub. 4, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, only style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any question about 14, sub. 4? All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 14, sub. 5.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14, sub. 5, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. Only style changes here.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: We have the same problem there, "members present". I move that we add "and voting" after "present".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: On what line?

DELEGATE ECK: On line 19.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: On line 19, Mrs. Eck moves we add, after the word "members present", the words "and voting". All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14, sub. 5, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of adopting it as amended, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 6.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14, sub. 6, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, a very minor change. Instead of "herein", we put "in this Constitution".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 14, sub. 6, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 7.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14, sub. 7, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, very minor style changes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of sub. 7, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 8.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14, sub. 8, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, in this case, we struck out all that business about the title, powers and duties and emoluments of that office and just said "shall be the Governor". In other words, he's either the Governor or he isn't; and we styled it that way.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Section 14, sub. 8, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Now, renumber the next Section 15, on "Information for Governor".

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 15, sub. 1, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, we made some style changes which don't need to be noted particularly and added a title which wasn't in there, "Information for Governor".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 15, Information for Governor? All in favor of 15, sub. 1, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 15, sub. 2, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, we made only style changes; nothing else significant.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any discussion? All in favor of 15, sub. 2, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Fifteen, sub. 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 15, sub. 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, only a minor style change.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion? All in favor of 15, sub. 3, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Mr. Murray. Just wait a minute—Mr. Roeder.

DELEGATE ROEDER: Before we finally dispose of this, I'd like to suspend the rules and reconsider the Executive Article.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Roeder, under Rule 74, I need you to write that down and tell your reason. You may state it and then write it down, but I do need it sent to the Chair.

DELEGATE ROEDER: Well, sir, my reasons would be this: if I were to be vouchsafed such a thing, I would then seek to remove the office of Treasurer from the Constitution, in accordance with the recommendations of the Legislative Council, Report Number 25, October 1968, in which they say, "At a minimum"—underlined— "the constitutional status of State Treasurer should be eliminated."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there further discussion?

Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman. Before we completely vote on this article, there's something that disturbs me here a little bit. In going over this, on Section 14, on Succession, we've added the words—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates, I'll come back to you. But we have a motion before the house to suspend the rules to consider the Executive Article again.

DELEGATE BATES: Okay.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there debate on the motion to suspend the rules? Very well, the issue is on Mr. Roeder's motion to suspend the rules to reconsider the State Treasurer's office. It takes 51 votes or two-thirds. We'll use the voting machine but not for a recorded vote. So many as are in favor of suspending the rules, please vote Aye. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The ballot is 50 for and 29 against. If some mathematician will tell me, I think that's two-thirds. That's not two-thirds? All right, that's not two-thirds. Fifty/seventy-ninths is not two-thirds.

Mr. Felt.

DELEGATE FELT: I have changed my vote from No to Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Why don't you put the question again, Mr. Felt. Well, I think I've closed the vote, so you can't change your vote, but put the question again. Mr. Felt wanted to change his vote. I had closed the vote. I will be glad to open-1 will be glad to let somebody put the motion again if you want to.

Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. I move that the Convention-that the Committee of the Whole reconsider its action on the Executive Article for the purpose of deleting from the Constitution the office of State Treasurer.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. You have to say that you want to suspend the rules, Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Didn't I say that? I move to suspend the rules for that purpose.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Let's vote again on suspending the rules. Do you want to clear the machine. Is there further discussion? Very well. We're ready to vote again. We'll use the voting machine. So many as shall be in favor of suspending the rules, vote Aye; and so many as shall be opposed to suspending the rules, vote No. The vote is now 58 to 26. The light has just struck the Chair. The rule is two-thirds or 51 percent, whichever is less. So, since we didn't get 51 last time, that lost; but this one passes. Therefore, we're now in a position to suspend the rules and consider the Executive Article in terms of the Treasurer's office. The rules are now suspended. Does Mr. Roeder or Mr. Felt or Mr. Joyce care to make a motion concerning the Treasurer's office? Since they moved to suspend, Mr. Brazier, I'm going to give them the opportunity to make their motion, and then I'll certainly come back to you.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. I move—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We have to make a motion to reconsider. You tell us what you want to reconsider.

DELEGATE JOYCE: I move to reconsider Section 1, sub. 1, of the Executive Article by deleting, on line 10, the word "Treasurer"; and I further move to amend Section 2, line 19, by deleting the word "Treasurer" and further move to amend Section 3, line 30, to delete the word "Treasurer".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'm not sure that the Executive Article is right here. Maybe I'm wrong. Didn't we adopt some duties for these officers? Where are they? Yes, it would be on page 2, Mr. Joyce, Article--or Section 4, sub. 5. It's got the word "Treasurer" in it, if you're looking for that.

DELEGATE JOYCE: So I further move that subsection 4-Section 4, subsection 5, line 26, that the word "Treasurer" be deleted, on page 2. I further move, in Section 6, line 18, subsection 2, the word "Treasurer" be deleted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's on page 3, line 18.

DELEGATE JOYCE: I further move that Section 7, on line 30, the words "and Treasurer" be deleted and that the word "and" be inserted after the word "instruction" on line 29 and before the word "auditor".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Joyce has moved to reconsider portions of Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 6 and 7, being all the-referring to "Treasurer".

Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. It's just been called to my attention that I'm out of order because I didn't vote on the prevailing side. But Mr. Brazier is willing to make that same motion. I guess for the record you can substitute his.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brazier, do you care to make that motion?

DELEGATE BRAZIER: Mr. Chairman. Having voted on the prevailing side, I now make the motion that Mr. Joyce attempted to make.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Mr. Brazier has now made the motion to reconsider Section 1, 2, 3, 4, 6 and 7 as regards the reference in those sections to the word "Treasurer". Is there discussion?

Mr. Brazier.

DELEGATE BRAZIER: Just briefly, my reasoning is that I've felt a little concern. I think that some of the delegates have been unfairly castigated for the results of the Executive Article. I came here willing to cut back on the number of executive offices. At the same time, I will defend my decision to try to retain as an elected officer at least one person who has-who is on thecashflow of state funds and has a chance to preserve evidence in case of embezzlement and that sort of abuse of power. I don't feel that I got a meaningful chance to reflect, in my tally when we considered the majority report, what I really thought. I think the motion that I just made more clearly reflects my philosophy. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: As a point of information, Mr. President, did we open up this article for-like Section 2; is that opened up so that we could cut out some more elective offices?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section-the motion for substitute-to suspend the rules was to remove an officer. Now, I think the-my notes only show to remove an officer. I think he did mention the Treasurer specifically; I don't know that he mentioned others. Did you mention just the Treasurer?

DELEGATE ROEDER: Yes, I did.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Pardon?

DELEGATE ROEDER: To suspend the rules, I mentioned only the Treasurer.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Mr. Joyce, in your motion-Let's see, Mr. Felt, in your motion to suspend the rules, what did you mention?

DELEGATE FELT: I didn't mention any particular office, but I understood it related only to the Treasurer.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. So it's open now, Mr. Mahoney, for the Treasurer, at the moment.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Didn't we open up the whole section, Mr. Chairman? Can we just go in and take out one word out of a section, under the rules? Or is the whole section open?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Rule 74 says: "One or more rules may be suspended for a specified purpose by the affirmative vote of two-thirds or a majority of all the delegates of the Convention." So it has to be for a specified purpose. So I think we're limited to the purpose they specified. That's why I insist they write down-and I still expect Mr. Felt and Mr. Roeder to write down their purpose. But they've now said that their purpose is "Treasurer". I'm not against entertaining another one to open for another purpose, Mr. Mahoney, but I think this one opened it for the purpose of taking out the word-the office of Treasurer.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: All that is bothering me, Mr. Chairman, is this: if we're going to open up a section, I don't think we can limit that section to only one thing. If you open the whole section, I think the whole section is either opened or it isn't opened. And this would be my-maybe now I-why, I know the Chair's position and I don't want to question it. I just think that this ruling should be made, because this is going to come up lots of times from now on if we're going into Style and Drafting to reconsideration. I think this is a problem we have to get settled this morning.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, Mr. Mahoney, I'll settle it and then we can challenge the Chair. "One or more rules may be suspended for a specified purpose by the affirmative vote of', et cetera. The Chair is going to rule, and the Chair has made it quite clear to everybody that's done this so far, that they must write down the purpose for which they open it. I'm going to rule that the rules are suspended only for the purpose that they announce, because that's what the other people vote on. They vote assuming that that's the purpose that it's going to be opened for. So if you want to enlarge the purpose, then you can either make another one, or the next time this comes up you may move to amend the purpose so that everybody understands what we're doing. But at this point, the Chair is going to rule that we voted to open these sections-or open the Executive Article for the specific purpose of dealing with the office of Treasurer. I think that's a definable purpose. That's what the rules say; that's what I'm going to rule. If you want to challenge the Chair, I'd be happy to-go ahead.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I won't be prohibited from making another motion at this time to open this section up so that I can get at the Lieutenant Governor, could I?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, you certainly may. I'll be glad to put you down on the list with Mrs. Bates and Mr. Brazier. All right, the motion of Mr. Brazier is to reconsider Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 6 and 7 concerning the office of Treasurer. Is there further discussion? All in favor of Mr. Brazier's motion to reopen Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 6 and 7 to consider "Treasurer", please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it. Now, the section is open. Mr. Brazier or Mr. Joyce, do you want to move to delete those words?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. I move that the Style and Drafting Report on the Executive, Number 4, be amended by deleting, in Section 1, line 10, the word "Treasurer"; and in Section 3, line 30, the word "Treasurer"; and in Section 2, line 19, the word "Treasurer"; Section 4, line 26, the word "Treasurer"; Section 6, line 18, the word "Treasurer"; Section 7, line 30, the words "and Treasurer"; and insert, on line 29, after the word "instruction" and before the word "auditor", the word "and".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Joyce has now made a motion to delete the word "Treasurer" from Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 6 and 7. Is there discussion?

Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I'd like to speak in favor of the motion. I was on the Executive Committee. This was the majority report at the beginning. And when we discussed it on the floor, I kind of had the impression that maybe I had read the voters of Montana wrong. We talked for 2 or 3 minutes about it, and everyone seemed to think that the voters would not respond to that type of shortening the ballot. I was extremely surprised when I found out that probably no other item were we more criticized for. People I talked to, who certainly were not wild-eyed liberals or people, you know, willing to change government radically. We just couldn't understand how we had acted so incongruent with the facts of the Executive Department. It seems to me it's rather obvious to a lot of people that a simple ministerial job that is done in some office and cannot really be visible to the voters of Montana cannot be properly handled by a statewide vote. I think a lot of peopleunderstand that very well.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Joyce's motion to delete references to Treasurer in Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 6 and 7 of the Executive Article.

Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President. I, too, served on the Executive Committee, and there was a lot of discussion about this. I don't think that I need to go into all the argument that we had when we were discussing the minority of the Executive Article and the majority report. Perhaps this did come under some criticisms from some quarters. I can assure you that if you took this question out to all of the people of Montana, you wouldn't get criticism for it; you would get comments in favor of it. Now, we're talking about the person that keeps the cash for you people. You've all expressed a lot of concern about your government agencies. You have, in the passing of your Revenue and Finance Committee proposal, certainly created other problems as to what your cash and cash balances will be. And they talk about this person: nobody knows him; nobody knows anything about the Treasurer. And I submit to you that the person who holds the Treasurer's office got probably one of the largest votes in the last election. There has always been an interest in the Treasurer's office and who ran for it. There again, we hear the argument that we want the people and the young people to have the right to vote. Who are you going to vote for? Do you want to remove another office that these people are going to vote for? Do I have to reinstate my policy to begin with that you're disenfranchising the people's right to vote when you remove the higher offices in the state government? And I suggest that when you look this proposition over—proposal over, that you think about the part that your Treasurer plays, along with your Auditor, in keeping the accounts and the cash flow of state government where it is visible for you, the people, to take a look at. Now, if it is the will of you people that you no longer want to have an elected official who will be responsible to you, the voters, keeping charge of your cash of the Montana state government, so be it. But I suggest that you think about this just a little bit. It is a responsible position, and I think we should have the right to vote for that person. And I resist the motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Lorello.

DELEGATE LORELLO: Mr. Chairman. I'd like to caution some of the delegates here who think that we're just going to deal right now with the Treasurer; we're going to get this thing out of the way and then we're going to progress. This is not the case. We voted on this thing several times. If we now eliminate the Treasurer, you can be certain that there's going to be moves on to eliminate some of the other officers. So if you're going to let this one go, be prepared to let some more go. I would like to caution you, and I'd like to resist Mr. Joyce's motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Roeder.

DELEGATE ROEDER: I'dliketorespond to both Mr. Lore110 and Mr. Wilson. As to opening other offices, I won't make any such motion to open them up, because the people who indicated to me in the last few days that they would support a motion to reconsider indicated they would do so only to consider the office of Treasurer. I would not go back on that agreement. Now, so far as the office being essential that we vote on it, I don't think that's true. The office of Treasurer is not required for modern accounting practices. Your money is going to be safe. The fact of the matter is the office is a historical relic. If you vote to keep it in the Constitution, you're voting to keep it there for sentimental reasons, the way you keep a spittoon in a law library for old times sake.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman. I have to refer again to the meeting that I attended at Fort Benton a week ago. There were a number of people there from rural communities. The first question I was asked was, "Why didn't you eliminate those old, outmoded constitutional offices?" This comes from a rural group. It comes from a group that would normally, I think, support Mr. Wilson. Apparently they do not. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman. I was one of the majority of the committee that endeavored to do everything they could to eliminate these offices. But as I said on the floor a few days ago when I asked you the question, "Does this mean that we're going to reopen every article that we've gone through and decided on General Orders?" You said you didn't know. We've found the answer. Yesterday, we opened the-reopened the Legislative Article; today, the Legislative—the Executive; tomorrow will be Judiciary, and on down the line. I oppose the motion just for that reason.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Lorello, you may be next.

DELEGATE LORELLO: Mr. Chairman. I'd like to assure Mr. Roeder and some of the others who believe that this isn't going to happen, to look this way and you'll see pencils going very strongly. There's some more going to be coming, believe me.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. President [Chairman]. I rise in support of us deleting this particular office. On a number of different occasions, I've stood before the body and mentioned that I had an opportunity to visit with a lot of people before the 2 weeks previous to the Convention, in excess of 800 people. And every person that I talked to, I asked them to identify eight people in public offices. The results of that particular survey were very, very discouraging. Less than 50 percent of the people could identify 50 percent out of eight of those public officials that I asked them to identify-everything from President Nixon to some of our legislators that are now serving in our Legislature. From that survey, I really can't see where it's very meaningful for the people of our state to go to the polls every 4 years and put into office someone who they really don't even know. They're just marking an "X" on a ballot, maybe. It's more or less like a lottery to them, and especially in the case of this particular office of Treasurer. When, you know, does that person really treasure; do they really have the job; are they really necessary? And I support deleting this particular state office in the Constitution because of the research that I have done and because of the stand that the majority of this Executive Committee took and also because I don't think that that job is necessary today. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Warden.

DELEGATE WARDEN: I'd just like to say that I am supporting the motion to delete the Treasurer. However, when you delete the Treasurer, it does not mean that you are eliminating the Treasurer. This is still provided for by statute, and I would assume that it would continue to be an elective office.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harrington.

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: Mr. Chairman. I rise to oppose the motion to delete the Treasurer. I feel that this would be a harsh thing for this Convention to do at this time. Last night after we left here, the first thing I heard, as we were driving out of the lot, was that the Constitutional Convention did it again; it changed its mind again. And I think that sometimes the people are going to say, first we do it today and then we don't do it tomorrow. And I think this is going to be-1 hope we don't get this type of publicity all the time. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman. I think Delegate Harrington really touched on something here. Delegate Monroe said that he interviewed a lot of people who didn't know these officers. Well, I'm sure that everyone in the State of Montana is going to know everyone of this Constitutional Convention if we change our mind every week and take a different direction. It seems to me that we worked in the committees; we've debated this stuff thoroughly; we've gone over it time and again. Like Delegate Martin said, if we're going to start bringing everything back and start all over again, I just wonder how in the world we can expect the people to ever have any confidence in us writing a Constitution. We're trying to write one here that's going to last a hundred years. Every week, we change our minds and take a different direction. To use the phrase of Carl Davis, I think we just ought to let the tail go with the hide here and call it quits. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Mr. President [Chairman]. I rise in opposition to the motion. We have absolutely no assurance, once this office is taken out of the Constitution, that it will remain an elective office. And I have stated right along that every time you remove an elected office and give it to the power of the Governor to appoint, you have taken democracy one step away from the people. And I thought that the purpose of this Convention was to get the government closer to the people. I therefore oppose the motion. Thank YOU.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce, do you want to close?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. It seems to me that no useful purpose would be served by making extended argument one way or the other. All of the delegates have heard all of the arguments. And so I'll just submit it to the delegates on the record that has been made.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue before you is Mr. Joyce's motion to delete the word "Treasurer"--or the concept of Treasurer from Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 6 and 7 of the Executive Article. We'll have a roll call vote. All those in favor of deleting, vote Aye; and those opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 56 have voted Aye, 33 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 56 having voted Aye and 33 having voted No. the motion to delete the Treasurer from the Executive branch—or the Executive Article is adopted.

Now, Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I move to suspend the rules to open up everything in regard to the Lieutenant Governor.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney has moved to suspend the rules on the Executive Article to open up the article to discuss the office of Lieutenant Governor, wherever it may appear throughout.

Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. President [Chairman]. Here's an office that I think could be just as well handled by the Governor. We could give him an administrative aide, an additional one, and then in case of death of the Governor, either the President of the Senate or the Speaker of the House could be made the Governor, in case of death only. Now, we're only 24 hours away from any spot in the world. For the-having this there-the Governor-we had a President sign a bill in Peking that became law. Now, I think we could get along beautifully without a Lieutenant Governor. Now, this idea of running in a team is nice, but this fellow will continue to be elected by the people, and he's going to get his own ideas of operation in the final end. Or we could turn around and get dynasty set up here where the Governor picks his Lieutenant Governor candidate as he goes along, and we will have a dynasty. So this is the reason for my motion. And if I do, I will then ask it to be sent back to Style and Drafting. This can't be done on this floor-to send back to Style and Drafting with the instructions to get out the Lieutenant Governor and to put in the President of the Senate or the Speaker of the House, whichever this group feels should be next, only in case of death.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion? Very well. The issue arises on Mr. Mahoney's motion to suspend the rules to reconsider the Executive Article concerning the Lieutenant Governor. We'll have a roll call vote. So many as shall be in favor of that, vote Aye; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 28 have voted Aye, 60 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 60 voting No, 28 having voted Aye, Mr. Mahoney's motion to suspend the rules for the Lieutenant Governor fails.

Mr. Foster, will you please send me up your motions. I want those for the file.

Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman, would you read my motion, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Mr. Foster says he moves to suspend the rules for the purpose of reconsidering the office of Secretary of State in the Style and Drafting Number 4 of the Executive Article. Mr. Foster therefore wants to suspend the rules to consider the office of Secretary of State in the Executive Article.

Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: I think the intent of my motion is quite clear. I don't think it's necessary for me to make a long, belabored speech. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion? Very well. The question arises on Mr. Foster's motion to suspend the rules so that the office of Secretary of State can be reconsidered wherever it appears in the report of the Executive Article. Do you want a roll call vote? Very well. All in favor of suspending the rules on the Secretary of State, vote Aye; all opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 28 have voted Aye, 56 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 56 having voted No and only 28 Aye, Mr. Foster's motion fails.

Mr. Cate.

DELEGATE CATE: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. I made a great speech here the other day. My delivery wasn't too good, but I talked about the Attorney General's office and why that office really ought to be eliminated. There's a quarter of a million dollars a year being paid out to private counsel because of the conflict between the Attorney General's office and the Governor's office. The Governor of the State of Montana ought to have his own attorney. Throughout the history of Montana, he has not had his own attorney. Governor Anderson is faced with a Republican Attorney General, Robert Woodahl. Governor Anderson cannot rely upon the advice of the Attorney General, so he has to hire private counsel, not only for himself but for all of the agencies of the Executive Department. This same situation existed when Governor Babcock was Governor and Forrest Anderson was Attorney General. And I know that situation well because I worked in that office, and there was a constant vying for political advantage between the two offices. The situation existed previously when Arnold Olsen was Attorney General and Aronson was Governor. This is a situation that drastically needs correction. The President of the United States appoints his chief legal officer, the Attorney General. The Governor of Montana should be allowed to do that also, and it would result in a more efficient and effective state government. The office of Attorney General in 35 other states is appointed by the Governor. And it seems to work in those areas, and I think it can work in Montana. Now, a comment was made, after I made my plea for this last time, that the Attorney General of Montana was responsible for bringing the charges against Mr. McGaffick, or bringing them out into the open. The Legislative Auditor was the one who brought those charges out in the open. The comment was made that the Alice Creek state lands situation up at Lincoln was the responsibility-or was something that was brought out by the Attorney General. That's not true, because that was brought out by a reporter by the name of Dick Gilluly from Billings, and it wasn't until Dick Gilluly got on the subject that anything happened with it. And I don't think that the Attorney General constitutes that much of an inhibition to the Governor committing fraud that it's necessary that he remain an elective office. So I would simply urge you to look at this situation. It's a rotten mess. It ought to be cleaned up. And it can be cleaned up, and we have an opportunity here to do that. Thank you very much. I would request a roll call vote on that, too. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion?

Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: The present system does not work well, and it is expensive. It is a waste of the taxpayers' money, and I heartily support Mr. Cate's motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Swanberg. Okay. Very well. The question arises on Mr. Cate's motion to suspend the rules to consider the office of Attorney General as it appears throughout the Executive Article. All in favor-we'll have a roll call vote-all in favor of eliminating the-or re-opening-suspending the rules to consider the Attorney General, vote Aye; and those opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 33 delegates voting Aye, 50 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 50 having voted No and only 33 Aye, Mr. Cate's motion fails.

Mrs. Bates, we're back to you.

DELEGATE BATES: Yes, Mr. President [Chairman]. In regard to the section-I think it's 14-on succession and the "members present and voting" that we added to this, I wonder ifwereally meant this, because it's something that we have added to the other articles. But when we consider two-thirds of this body, which is 67 voting, then if we consider two-thirds of those voting and present, that's only 44. When we talk of a successor to the Governor, or disqualifying him, I wonder if this is what we really meant.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates, tell us again what section you're talking about.

DELEGATE BATES: Section 14.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Sub. what?

DELEGATE BATES: On succession. It would be under sub. 5.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Sub. 5.

DELEGATE BATES: On line 27.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: On page 16? On line 27?

DELEGATE BATES: On page 16, where we inserted the words "present and voting" in going through it just a few minutes ago. And I wondered if this is what we really meant, because "present and voting" could mean only 44 of a body of a hundred actually acting on this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair-is Mr. Schiltz there?

DELEGATE BATES: In just talking to Mr. Schiltz, he said, "Well, it seems this was the motion from the floor." And he, too, questioned it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: In a moment, we'll get Mr. Schiltz-

DELEGATE BATES: Okay.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -1 hope. The Chair wants to point out another problem here, and I'd like Mr. Schiltz to hear. I'll come to you, Mrs. Eck, in a minute. Mr. Schiltz, we need you. We're on Section 14—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: You've got me

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We're on Section 14, sub. 5—

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: All right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -where the Governor is disabled and we put in the words "present and voting", on line 19, so that it says: "If the Legislature, within 21 days after convening, determines by a two-thirds vote of its members present and voting, that the Governor is unable to discharge the duties." Mrs. Bates raises the issue of whether we mean present and voting; if that isn't too small a number. But I have another problem. If you'll look down on line 27, it says: "Unless the Legislature determines otherwise by a two-thirds vote of its members"; so we've got two different kinds of votes in the same section. Now, maybe that's what we mean, but I just want to call that to your attention. Mrs. Eck, do you see that problem too? Mrs. Bates, do you want to make it two-thirds of the members? Is that your point?

DELEGATE BATES: Yes, Mr. President [Chairman]. I think this is the-was the intent of this group, because this is a pretty serious matter.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Then why don't you move to reconsider 14, sub. 5? We haven't left-as a matter of fact, I don't think you have to do that. We haven't closed up the article yet.

DELEGATE BATES: Well, I move to delete that-those two words that we inserted here, "present and voting". I think that will clear it up.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We only inserted "and voting". You move to delete the words "present and voting" on line 19; is that right?

DELEGATE BATES: I think that's where we placed it,-two-thirds voting-yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Mrs. Bates amends Section 14, sub. 5, on line 19, by deleting the words "present and voting". The point of this is that this makes it the same as the vote taken in the second half of the section, which is by a vote of two-thirds of its members. And the issue is whether or not the condition of the Governor-whether he can serve or not-should be decided by two-thirds of the total body or two-thirds of those present and voting. Is there discussion on this?

DELEGATE BATES: I think that if we read the entire paragraph, Mr. President [Chairman], it starts out with "within 21 days after convening, determines by two-thirds of its voters present, that the Governor is unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office, then the Governor shall serve", and so forth. And then—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Then it says, thereafter when the Governor says that he's ready to resume his powers, it takes two-thirds of its members.

DELEGATE BATES: And I think that would clarify it, just leaving it in its original position. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. I must apologize to the Convention in that that was the intention of the Executive Committee, to make it that it would have to be two-thirds of the members. And apparently, our drafting made an error in that connection, and I would accede to the amendment offered by Delegate Bates.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Is the word "present" deleted too, Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates has moved to delete both the word "present", and the words "and voting".

DELEGATE BABCOCK: All right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Use your mike; we have to go on the record.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. Could I ask a question of Mrs. Bates?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates, will you yield?

DELEGATE BATES: Yes.

DELEGATE ECK: Did you, in your motion, delete the word "present"?

DELEGATE BATES: Well, I'll tell you; I was looking at it, but I just thought that was a mistake, that present and voting, because that way we could have two-thirds or two-thirds of the body when we looked at it in the second quorum. And I'm not certain, but I just wanted to question this group before we made a final decision.

DELEGATE ECK: Yes, but the motion—Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck and Mrs. Bates, the Chair made your motion "present and voting". Now, if you don't want that, you say so; but at the moment the issue before the body is to strike both the word "present" and the word "voting".

DELEGATE ECK: Very good.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is that all right, Mrs. Bates? She says it's okay.

Now, let's see-we were back to Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I only want to clarify the same thing the two ladies wanted to clarify.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion? If not, the issue arises on Mrs. Bates' motion to delete from line 19 the words "present and voting" so that the vote required to either say that the Governor is unable to discharge or that he is able to discharge is two-thirds of the members of the Legislature. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Now, Mr. Schiltz, will you move 14, sub. 5 again, As-I'll do it for you, Mr. Schiltz. Wait a minute.

Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman]. Just-I'd like to ask a question of you. As we've got that now, would it be possible for a group within the Legislature to simply stay out of the chamber and thus thwart the desires of the chamber?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The way it is now, it takes a two-thirds vote of whatever the membership is-just as we just got through voting-and it took a 51 percent vote or a two-thirds vote. So, of course, it would be possible to thwart if enough stayed away. On the other hand, if you want my opinion, which I'll give you, it seems to me that if you're going to take the Governor's office away from him, you ought to make it pretty tough. Mr. Murray, just a moment. (Laughter) Mr. Murray, if you can say to me publicly what you buzzed me about a minute ago, speak up.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Yes, Mr. Chairman. To clarify this question about staying away in the Legislature, my understanding of the Legislative rules is that everybody is required to vote. You can force them to do so by having a call of the Convention, so I don't think you can thwart anything in that manner.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I agree wholeheartedly with Mr. Murray. If the Legislature had-if it were unicameral and had one house and it had a hundred members in it, it would take 67 people to accomplish this job.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz, before we get too far away, let's readopt 14, sub. 5 as amended, because we've amended it again.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14, sub. 5, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted as re-amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. So many as are in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Go to page 14 and do the same-make the correction there. On Section 10, sub. 3, line 21, I move, Mr. Chairman, on line 21 to put a period-now wait a minute—delete "present and voting". It would read, then, "two-thirds of the members"-It would read, then: "If, after the receipt of a veto message, two-thirds of the members approve the bill, it shall become law."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The Chair will allow Mr. Aasheim's amendment to be considered, and it has the effect of saying that to override the Governor's veto requires an absolute two thirds, not just an absolute--not just two-thirds of those present and voting. Is there discussion?

Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: I rise in opposition to the motion because it seems to me that when the Legislative Committee deferred to the Executive Committee to write the veto section, that it was agreed by both committees that it only had to be two-thirds of the members present to override a veto. And that-it seems to me that we're dealing with entirely different policy considerations here. Overriding a veto is the Legislature simply imposing its will against the Governor's wishes, and that there isn't the need for the strictness and the absoluteness to accomplish that purpose; while when we're talking about taking the Governor's office away, why, then it ought to be tougher. But I thought that it was unanimously agreed by both the Executive and the Legislative Committees, when we submitted this proposal to the floor, that it would-the veto could be overridden by two-thirds of the members present.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I might state the present Constitution says "two-thirds of the members present". And that's the present Constitution. I think it's tough enough.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman. When we amended this a few minutes ago under Style and Drafting, we added "and voting" there. And I think this is the part that should be deleted and left in its original form as coming from Style and Drafting. And I think this was our committee's action too.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. I think when this matter was discussed yesterday, our decision was that by adding "and voting", we would make unnecessary a process of counting up how many people were present so that you know whether you have enough. I think that the present Constitution says just "present", but it infers and has been interpreted "and voting". And since we have done it with the Legislative section, I think that it's appropriate also to do it here. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. If you add those words "and voting"-in my role as Chairman of the Style and Drafting Committee, I'll accept anything anybody sends in here, but I'm not talking from that standpoint now. If you put in "and voting", you're inviting the Legislature-or you're allowing the Legislature to say that people don't have to vote. And the rules in the Legislature when I was there, and I'm sure when Mr. Murray and Mr. Felt were there, was that you are required to vote; and that's implicit in the present Constitution. If you say "and voting", you're inviting them to say, "I can sit there and not vote and thereby defeat just what you're trying to get". So those words "and voting" shouldn't be in there at all.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I made the motion purely for the matter of clarification. I shall now withdraw and support the wording as it is.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Mr. Aasheim has withdrawn his motion, and now it's back where it was.

Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. As a point of information, we did pass, did we, in the Committee of the Whole this morning, the motion by Mrs. Eck to add the words "and voting"?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, we did.

DELEGATE JOYCE: I therefore move to-having voted on the prevailing side, I move to reconsider our action in that connection. And if my motion to reconsider should pass, why, I would then move to delete the words "and voting".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a minute. Let me think a minute. The Chair is thinking. We did not adopt-we did not rise and report, but I think you're perhaps right, that we have to— What's bothering me is that we did not vote to reconsider, in the case of Section 5 of Article XIV that Mrs. Bates did. I don't want to be fouled up here. I think to be technically correct, Mr. Joyce, I'll hold your matter in abeyance for a moment. To be technically correct, the Chair would like to ask Mrs. Bates, on Section 9—on Section 14, sub. 5, where you just took out the words "present and voting" in the Governor's illness case, would you please move to reconsider 14, sub. 5.

DELEGATE BATES: Yes, Mr. President [Chairman], I will do so.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Now, she's moved to reconsider. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now will you move to strike the words "present and voting" out of line 19, Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: I move to strike "members present and voting".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, not "mem-bers", just "present and voting"—

DELEGATE BATES: "present and voting"-sorry.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right. She now moves to strike "present and voting" out of Section 14, sub. 5. Is there discussion? Very well. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now I think we've done that right. I didn't want to have an error and have somebody challenge the record. Now, Mr. Joyce, if you want to make a motion to reconsider 9, sub. 3.

DELEGATE JOYCE: I move to reconsider the action of the Committee of the Whole in its consideration of Section 9, sub. 3, of the Style and Drafting report on the Executive Article, Number 4, for the reasons I've previously stated; namely, to strike the words "and voting" if the motion to reconsider does pass.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's 9, sub. 3, Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Nine, sub 3.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion? All in favor of Mr. Joyce's motion to reconsider 9, sub. 3, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I beg your pardon, it is 10, sub. 3.

DELEGATE JOYCE: May the record so show.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Ten, sub. 3. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, the reconsideration is allowed. Now, Mr. Joyce, do you want to make your motion?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. I move that Section 10, sub. 3, of the Style and Drafting report on the Executive Article Number 4, be amended by striking, in line 21, after the word "members", the words "and voting". So that if the amendment were to pass, subsection 3 would read: "If, after receipt of a veto message, two-thirds of the members present approve the bill, it shall become law."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Joyce's motion is to amend 10, sub. 3, by striking just the words "and voting" which we added this morning. Is there further discussion?

Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman and members of the assembly. I think we're going to have complications here. You're going to have people sitting in their chairs and they are going to refuse to vote, and that'11 require that you take a head count to get the total members present. If you have a tally on the board, there's no question about it. So I resist the motion to delete "and voting".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion? Very well. All in favor of Mrs. Bates' motion to strike the words "and voting", say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of striking it, use the voting machines and vote Aye; and opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 55 having voted Aye, 18 voting No, it is adopted. Now, Mr. Joyce-Mr. Schiltz, would you remove Section 3.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, can I re-move 14, 5 again?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, let's remove both of them.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10, sub. 3, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted as reamended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Fourteen, sub. 5. Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14, sub. 5, Style and Drafting Report Number 4, it recommend the same be adopted as reamended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, we're right back where we were an hour ago. Are there further motions?

Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I don't have a motion, Mr. Chairman. I wanted a point of clarification. If, as a matter of style, we discover we've used "and voting"-"present and voting"—throughout the document, are we now empowered to take the "and voting" out?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, Style and Drafting still has the Legislative Article back in it's lair, so I guess—

Mr. Schiltz, do you want to speak to that?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes, I would like to speak on that. We consider this to be a substantive matter and there are about three interpretations you can put on it. So, when it comes from the floor in one fashion, we assume that the committee intended it to be "present and voting" in one case, or only "present" in another case, and "members" in another case, which would mean all the members and a fraction of two-thirds of all those, which would be 67 if it's a hundred. In answer to Mr. Burkhardt, I don't think that the Style and Drafting Committee will tamper with that in any way, because we intend that-or we interpret that the intent was to send it to us as it came-as we got it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Are there other matters?

Mr. Murray-Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. I move that Style and Drafting Report Number 4 be rereferred to Style and Drafting Committee for incorporation of the changes and amendments made in the Committee of the Whole this day, with the privilege of sending it back to the Convention for referral to Order of Business Number 5.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you think you want it back, Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, I would assume you'd want a clean copy; I don't know.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, we'll get a clean copy in any event. I don't care. You can do it that way, but there aren't any changes-the two things we double changed we--are right back to your language.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Except Section 11, on page 15.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Well, let's vote on Mr. Schiltz's motion. I take it to be the sense of your motion, Mr. Schiltz, as yesterday, that if there are no changes-if you find no errors, that you may then put it on General Orders-or, put it on Order of Business Number 5. Is that correct? That's correct.

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Will this make it possible for this to all be opened up again?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It can't be opened up again unless Mr. Schiltz finds an error. So we'll hope for the best, Mrs. Babcock. All in favor of Mr. Schiltz's motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered. Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman. By way of rearranging our calendar, I move that we pass consideration of all other matters before the Committee of the Whole until the next sitting of the committee.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: What do you mean by that, Mr. Murray?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Well, I mean that we have other matters to take up, like Bill of Rights, and I'd like to move and finally rise and report on this part of it. And that's the purpose of my motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. All in favor of Mr. Murray's motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman. I move that the Committee of the Whole rise and finally report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: On the Executive Article? The motion is to rise and finally report on the Executive Article of the Style and Drafting Report. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read the report of the Committee of the Whole.

CLERK HANSON: "March 8, 1972. Mr. President: We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration Report Number 4 of the Committee on Style and Drafting, recommend as follows:"—

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

CLERK HANSON: —"that the committee rise and report. Signed: Graybill."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Unless there's objection, Mr. President, I move we adopt the Committee of the Whole report.

PESIDENT GRAYBILL: Is there objection to not reading the entire Committee of the Whole report? The motion is to adopt the Committee of the Whole report. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President. I move that the Convention resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for consideration of business under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to resolve ourselves back into Committee of the Whole to consider matters under General Orders. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered. It's the Chair's intention to take up one or two Bill of Rights articles before noon. That's why we're going back into Committee of the Whole.

(Committee of the Whole)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read Section 12 of the Bill of Rights Article Number 8.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 12, Right to bear arms. The right of any person to keep or bear arms in defense of his own home, person, and property, or in aid of any-of the civil power when thereto legally summoned, shall not be called in question, but nothing herein contained shall be held to permit the carrying of concealed weapons." Mr. Chairman, Section 12.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman]. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 12 of Proposal 8, it recommend the same be adopted. Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman]. On this particular section, which has had a great deal of discussion and has been the subject of a great deal of emotional debate throughout our country and here in Montana in past political races-and insofar as gun registration is concerned, we heard a great many witnesses on this particular section of the Bill of Rights. And it was very early decided among the Bill of Rights Committee members that we would leave this section as is, which is the strongest statement on the right to bear arms of any of the 50 states of the United States. We had many people who are members of the National Rifle Association, the group of the right to keep and bear arms, appear before our committee. Then, when we were holding our hearings in the Senate over here, the question was put to each one of these witnesses, "Are you satisfied with the present section of the right to keep and bear arms?" And with only one exception, every one of them said, yes; they were pefectly happy and would be very pleased if the committee would recommend this. And so we have. And so, I would urge this Convention to keep the present Section 12, the right to keep and bear arms; which is, as I say, the strongest in the United States. And I will rest at this point. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Berthelsan, you have an amendment. May the Chair have the clerk read the amendment? Will the clerk read Mr. Berth&on's amendment?

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 12, page 6, line 20, of the Bill of Rights Committee proposal by adding the following words after the comma following the word 'question'-quote: 'nor shall any person's firearms be registered or licensed, comma"-end quote. Signed: Berthelson."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Berthelson has proposed an amendment to Section 12 which has the effect of adding, on line 20, the phrase "nor shall any person's firearms be registered or licensed". That's in the middle of the sentence, but it's before the last clause.

Mr. Berth&on.

Rights", and again this is true. But tell me, how much freer would the Czechs, Poles, Hungarians, Cubans, and so forth, be if we sent them a hundred, a thousand, or even a million copies of our present Constitution with its present section on the right to bear arms? Maybe they would be a little warmer as their leaders burned them, but certainly no freer. What is it, then, that truly differs us from these enslaved peoples throughout the world? Might I suggest that it is not only our desire to remain free, but our ability to insure that our rights asserted in the present section will never be overstepped nor infringed. Fellow delegates, I submit to you that that ability will be tremendously strengthened by adding the nine words "nor shall any person's firearms be registered or licensed". Mr. President [Chairman] and fellow delegates, I thank you.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman]. I resist the admendment. Since the year 1900 in our country, we have had over 770,000 people die from nonmilitary gunshot wounds in the United States. We're slaughtering each other at the rate of 18,000 a year. Last year, we had 93 policemen shot down in the United States. Ninety-six percent of the murdered policemen killed by gunfire are killed by pistols. Now, no one under our present Bill of Rights right to bear arms section have lost any arms in the State of Montana. No one proposes to take their arms. The argument that we can never-or never should--register these guns, I think we have to contemplate very seriously and go into the future. No one knows how the State of Montana, how our population may grow. Our cities get larger; our problems become more complex. And that we may very well, someday, in our state Legislature, want to give that Legislature and our Constitution the right to register at least pistols. Now, the argument is always given that if we ever register any guns—you know, we do register our automobiles; we register all kinds of things-but if we ever register guns, then they will know where the guns are and therefore they can come and take the guns. And I submit that that's a false argument. If you remember-some of you may have read it--about 5 or 6 weeks ago, there was trouble in Turkey. They thought that there might be-the regime over there thought that there might be trouble, so they thought they would search the homes in Instanbul. They used the army and they went through 216,000 homes in one 24-hour period. I submit that the same thing would happen in any Montana city. If they really want to go through our homes—if that-if we ever had our government go over like that-they will get the guns, and do you know what they'll do? They'll simply pass a decree that anyone caught with a firearm in their home or on them, they will be shot on sight, and you will not keep your guns. The argument is also used-time and time again, I've heard these people use the argument-that the Czechs lost their freedom because they didn't have their guns. Again, historically, that simply is not true. Czechoslovakia lost their freedom in 1938, not because they didn't have guns. They had one of the finest little armies in Europe, very well supplied with arms. They had tanks, they had the whole bit; but they lost their freedom to Nazi Germany because their friends, Prime Minister Daladier of France and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of England, sold them out. That's the way they lost their freedom, and that's why the freedom has been lost in most of all of these countries. You will not keep your freedom by having shotguns and rifles in your home. So if you're going to argue from the basis of keeping your freedom, don't use that. You keep your freedom by participating in the democratic political process such as we're doing here and always making sure that that's alive. You cannot fight tanks and all the sophisticated weaponry of modern armies with rifles and shotguns. You'll last as long as the proverbial snowball in you-know-where. It simply won't be done. Now, I just have a couple of clippings here of the kind of things that are happening in the State of Montana all the time. I cut these out of the Billings Gazette. Here it is: "Billings Man Shot in Bar." It says, "Patrick Holland, 23, 1619 Clark Avenue was shot in the head about 10 p.m. Sunday in Archer's Beer Depot, 1223 Grand Avenue." I won't read the whole thing. This is in another bar in Billings. "April 20, 1970. A woman was killed and two men wounded in a shooting incident about 1:29 a.m. Sunday in the Standard Bar at 1207 Minnesota Avenue." They'd been having a party. Evidently somebody got looking at the wrong person. The guy hauls out his gun, shoots down three of them. Now, Mr. Berthelson talks about the fact that he owns guns, that his wife owns guns, that his sons own guns and his daughters own guns. The last thing that I would want to do in speaking to this article is to take guns away from the people who legitimately use them. But I think that we're asking the police officers of this country and of our state to do quite a bit when we say we are going to put on the books of the State of Montana, in our Constitution, that the Legislature can never look at that problem; they can never register these guns or license them. I think the day may come, in maybe 20 years, when we may very well want to do that very thing to protect our police officers. And I resist this amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. President [Chairman] and fellow delegates. Mr. Berthelson has talked about this registration of guns, and I wholeheartedly agree with him. I have over 50 letters and names, and so on, of people that have written me from all over the state wanting us to put these nine words in our right to bear arms article. One of the letters I have states that this extension of these nine words of our previously guaranteed rights is supported by the Montana Wildlife Federation-it's over 10,000 members; The National Rifle Association, over 6,000 members in Montana; Montana Rifle and Pistol Association; Western Montana Fish and Game Association; Montana Gun Collectors Association; Association to Keep and Bear Arms, with groups across our state; Flathead Wildlife Incorporated; and many other groups; and perhaps a quarter of a million hunters and family people here. I believe that we should put this in our Constitution as a safeguard. Denmark, at the start of the Second World War, was taken over because their guns were registered. All the Nazis had to do was go to the Clerk of the Court and get the list of names, under the point of a gun, and go to these homes and pick these guns up. The result was the Nazis moved in without a shot fired and, of course, the Danes became pawns of Hitler and his troops. I would earnestly hope that you would support putting these nine words in our Bill of Rights right to bear arms article. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Mr. President [Chairman]. For some reason that I've never been able to understand, this whole matter of guns is a very emotional matter across the whole State of Montana. I support the Berthelson amendment for the very reason that I couldn't be honestly supporting the voters of Cascade County who sent me here if I didn't endorse it. I have had more personal telephone calls, more lettters, more petitions, mass media messages from this one group of people in Montana than any others. Actually, I'm sure that if a count were made, it would be just as many people petitioning me for this as the group who petitioned me to vote against the right to work. I do submit that if the future need arises where we should register our guns, it's a simple matter now. We've made several methods of constitutional amendment in Montana. So I submit this would be an easy thing when the people of the State of Montana see the need for it. But in the meantime, I can't see that these nine or ten words make that much difference. I must say I don't own any guns, but I look at this from a political viewpoint. These gun buffs are very emotional. By inserting these words, you will have not a group going to the-threatening you to go to the constitutional ratification election and killing the thing, They will be going there to endorse it, to ratify it. They will get all their friends out to ratify this Constitution just to insure this protection which is so dear to their heart. So I support the Berthelson amendment. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Cross.

DELEGATE CROSS: Mr. Chairman. It looks like we have two and two here now. I think the business of these words being added, of course, is something fairly recent. Up until about 2 weeks ago, the question was posed to me time and again, both at home and after I came here, "Will you support the wording which is in the present Constitution?" And this came from some of the groups that you people have quoted. And at that time, I said, "Yes, I would; I think the present Constitution section is fine and we should keep it." Then, all of a sudden, within the last 2 weeks, we get all of this tremendous outpouring of mail asking us to add these words. I think the committee is wise in retaining the present section. I don't think that adding these words is going to add a great deal to the Constitution. I feel that we are being pressured in a way here which I do not consider the kind of pressure I like to get. I think some of the arguments which have been presented for these words are not legitimate arguments. I think anyone who reads their history very thoroughly knows that that's one argument that has been twisted out of context. As far as registering guns is concerned, there are some of us who have done this voluntarily, mainly as a protection for the weapons, so that if they're ever taken, they can be traced. I happen to be on the board of a museum in our county that has some very old guns in their collections. I went to the police department about 2 years ago and asked them about registering the guns. They told me that it was optional; we could do as we pleased.

But knowing what happens sometimes to these gun collections, if they ever were taken or lost, we would never be able to trace them. So by unanimous vote of that board of trustees, we took the serial numbers of all those guns and our police department has them. Frankly, I can't see the big uproar over these additional words. I think the committee is very wise in wanting to retain the present section, and I support them.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Mansfield.

DELEGATE MANSFIELD: Mr. Chairman. Having these few words in the Bill of Rights would be a very glaring error. I support the majority report of the Bill of Rights. In my family, my children have a great-grandmother and a great-great-grandmother who used a gun to slaughter her chickens and turkeys. She was such-they were both such good shots they could remove their heads without using the axe. We have many guns in the family that will be passed on to my sons. Today, the men on the ranch carry the guns in the pickup for the purpose of killing predatory animals. The only danger is they may be stolen if the pickups are unlocked. The neighbor had several guns stolen, and they happened to have the numbers registered at home, and they were found in California. And it was only through this registration that they were able to return them. We have one of the finest sections on the right to bear arms in the United States, and I believe it should be retained as is. I support this majority report of the Bill of Rights. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James. I think you were up next.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. As a member of the Bill of Rights Committee, I will go along and support our report. We thought this over and Chet has given you some of the material on it. We did hear all kinds of people, and they were well satisfied with this thing before an organized letter campaign started. And just about all these letters came on the same pink stationery, with the exact wording, and-with the exception of one that threatened our Constitution if we didn't go along with them. Now, I think that I'd be a hell of a member of the Bill of Rights if I gave in to threats. I think we've had threats before that this Constitution wouldn't be passed if we did something. I think it's time to stand on our feet as men and reject these threats. Now, we think of ourselves as a frontier people, perhaps a frontier state, but let me read to you what the Constitution of the frontier State of Alaska has to say. This state, as you know, is just a few miles away from Soviet Russia. "A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed." This is a collective right. Again, let me take the frontier state of Hawaii, which was in our time invaded by a foreign power--or attacked, I should say, at Pearl Harbor. "A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed." Then we have the Constitution of the State of Idaho, which is much more restrictive on the right to bear arms. "The people have the right to keep and bear arms, but the Legislature shall regulate and exercise this right by law." This is much more restrictive. I do think we have a good article here. It gives us the right. It's an individual right, not a collective right like Hawaii and Alaska have. If there's any registration in Montana, I'm sure it will come from the federal government, such as one man-one vote has. If the situation arises here, as Delegate Blaylock has said, that there's a need for registration because the crime rate has risen so, this is up to the Legislature. We have given you the individual right in the present Constitution. We will give it to you in the future Constitution. I think that's about all I have to say. I heartily support our Bill of Rights proposal and will go along with it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman. I'm a member of the Bill of Rights Committee. I have, since the commencement of our work, reserved my personalright to speak on this subject even though I voted for the section as it appears in the proposal put out by the Bill of Rights Committee. I don't know that I've ever been personally threatened about this matter or any other, either in or out of the committee. I come from an area which is concerned greatly, apparently, from the volume of mail and the phone calls and other contacts that I have had about this matter, both here and at each occasion that I have been in the Flathead during this Convention. I don't speak on this subject from a philosophical standpoint, although I probably could. I don't speak on the subject from an emotional standpoint, although probably I am somewhat emotionally involved in trying to keep and bear arms as we propose it here. I do clearly want to state to you that I am in favor of the Berthelson amendment for one particular reason, and that is the matter of practical politics. I can't think of one single thing that we could add to our Constitution that would attract voters faster than the adoption of this particular amendment. I think that it does no harm. I think that it might do great good in the practical sense. I do not wish to mean by these comments that I will not support the committee recommendation if this amendment does not pass, but for the reasons given, I support the Berthelson amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair senses that we're not going to get to a final vote on this issue before noon. I see three people up. I wonder if it wouldn't be advisable for us to recess at this time.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman. I move the committee recess till the hour of 1:30 p.m. this day.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Before the Chair puts this motion, the Chair is going to ask to make two announcements. First of all, Style and Drafting will not meet during the lunch hour, but will meet at 8:00 a.m. tomorrow morning-Style and Drafting, at 8:00 a.m. Secondly, will you please-if you have not, will you please make your reservations for dinner tonight-the $5 dinner at the Colonial Club-for you and your guests, if you have not made them with the girls in the secretary's office in Mr. Toole's or my office. All those in favor of—

Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: May we have the Education Committee just very briefly in the committee room right after this adjournment, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Education Committee, briefly, after this adjournment. Very well. All in favor of adjourning till 1:30 p.m., say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Recessing— All opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Convention recessed at 11:58 a.m.—reconvened at 1:30 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The committee will be in order. Ladies and gentlemen of the committee, before lunch we were discussing Section 12 of the Bill of Rights Article Number VIII and we had an amendment offered by Mr. Berth&on. The sense of the amendment is to add, on line 20, page 6, at the end of the line, the words: "nor shall any person's firearms be registered or licensed." While everyone is getting settled, I might announce again that some of you have requested that we use the pages with the comment, and I certainly don't mind others doing that. It does confuse-some of us are using one and some the other, and the Chair has tried to use the others; but because of the comments, I lose my place. But I'm perfectly happy if the rest of you want to use the other page; but that's what I use and I'll try and give other references if I can. Now, we're discussing Section 12 and Mr. Berth&on's amendment which adds the phrase "nor shall any person's firearms be registered."

Mrs. Pemberton, you were up before lunch.

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: Thank you very much, Mr. Graybill. There was a reference made to mail this morning that was coming in from people you were representing in your counties, and there was page after page of mimeographed letters. I have about 25 or 30 letters asking that we give consideration to Mr. Berthelson's amendment, and all but four of them are personal letters; and that is from District 1. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman], fellow delegates. I've been inclined and very desirous of supporting the majority position on this issue. But it is a very important issue, apparently, because of all the mail and all of the fixed opinions, as noted in the last election, and how active these people were and how concerned they are about the guns. I'm not so concerned that the state is going to license and take away their gun. Now, Mr. Berth&on, as a member of the majority, last week had a great deal of confidence in our state government and gave them authority to do all the taxation, to move the assessment to a state level, remove the state debt limit on taxation so in effect they could take away your house you had the gun in, and so forth; and so I think that that part isn't too serious, about that these same people are going to turn around and make you license your gun and be very-cause a problem. However, I spent the same time here as most the rest of you--except the officials, who I know have spent a lot of additional time, and we're very grateful for that; but I want a Constitution that we can support. And also, as kind of, I hope, a little practical politician. Now, basically, these gun people are "aginners". They're going to vote against the Constitution if you don't have any article in it; they're going to vote against it if you've just got the same article in it; but they're sure going to be trapped if you put in this amendment because to get this amendment they've got to come out and support the Constitution. Therefore, I'm going to support the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Well, Mr. Chairman, I wonder if-1 rise in support of Mr. Berthelson's amendment. I wonder if by eliminating Mr. Berth&on's amendment we are not tacitly violating Section 10, the Right of Privacy. Perhaps one of the members of the committee might wish to address himself to that matter. So far as I'm concerned: the part of the country I come from, this is a people issue; this is not a pressure group issue. And I would be very much interested to know that, to have someone comment upon whether or not we are violating Section 10 by tacitly-in our tacit refusal to include Mr. Berthelson's amendment in Section 12. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I would like to speak very briefly, sir, concerning this amendment. I want to state, to begin with, that I am in agreement with the majority proposal but I also favor Mr. Berth&on's amendment. Now, it's been said that registration is not confiscation. If it isn't, then what is it for, really? If we're going to talk about registration in terms of stopping crimes, I'm sure the case of New York with their gun control registration act can show that this sort of thing isn't successful. Secondly, Mr. Blaylock's comments on not being able to stop tanks, planes and so forth with firearms; I think the situation in Vietnam could give him an argument that opposes that position. I think the position of this amendment is for protection, as the right to bear arms was originally, and I am in support of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman, I'm not going to take much time on this. When I came to the Convention, I thought I would be very happy if we could retain the section that we have in our Constitution. Therefore, I feel that the committee should be commended. However, we have many, many letters, and now it's been stated that these are a form-letter. That may be true, but these people did put-&cent stamp on it, they went to the trouble to send it in, so therefore I know that these people want me to vote for Mr. Berth&on's amendment. And I think this is what we should do, because there's no sense of going against the will of the people. We heard many, many times that this is a people's convention. Well, let's listen to the people a little bit, then. And this is certainly an emotional thing, I don't suppose as important as a lot of people think; but I certainly want to support it because if it's what the people want, that's what we're here for. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Well, Mr. Chairman, thank you. I think most of the arguments for this have been said. I would like to observe that if we register firearms, you're making an outlaw out of everybody that refuses to register them. And I know that this would be done, and it would remind me a great deal of the years when bootlegging was in its prime. And a crook or a dangerous man that needs a gun in his work is certainly going to have it. He's illegal to start with, and any laws against him wouldn't deter him in the least, I'm sure. I support Mr. Berthelson's amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, inasmuch as I have the privilege of serving in the capacity of Chairman of the Bill of Rights Committee, I feel that I am compelled to address myself to the issue that is before the Chair. I sincerely submit that the most prominent nonissue that has been presented on Convention floor is this issue. There is no one on the Bill of Rights Committee—nor has there been a suggestion made that firearms in the State of Montana should be registered. I am opposed to the registration of firearms. I think all the members of our committee at this time are opposed to the registration of firearms. I am not prepared to state, however, with utmost clarity for the future that we may never have a situation where perhaps handguns, in order to preserve law and order in society, may not fall under some legislative directive that may compel registration. That is something for the future, but for now there isn't anyone on the Bill of Rights Committee that supports any law that would require firearms to beregistered. When this matter first came before our committee, the concern was that we would amend the present protection and thus interfere with the right of the people of the State of Montana to keep and bear arms. We finally convinced all those who appeared before us that that was not true and there was no intention whatsoever to consider such an idea. And so, then, everyone was satisfied with the present protection. We explained to them, as I explain to you now, the federal Constitution, almost 200 years old, does not give you the right that you have in the State of Montana. The federal Constitution, in the Second Article of the federal Bill of Rights, provides for a collective right, when the citizens are acting as a militia, to keep and bear arms. And notwithstanding all of the movement and the argument of the issue generated throughout the country, nobody is suggesting that the federal Bill of Rights be amended. Let me remind you again that in Montana, the provision that we have had since 1889, and which we have now and which our committee suggests be retained, states as follows: "The right of any person to keep or bear arms in defense of his own home, person and property shall remain inviolate." The federal Constitution right says this: "A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed." That has been interpreted by the high courts of the federal Judiciary to mean that this is a collective right and not necessarily an individual right. So in Montana, what do we have now and what is our committee's suggestion that we retain? The broadest, most liberal concept with respect to the right to keep and bear arms that exists anywhere in any of the several states of the United States. From the debates that I've listened to, suddenly there's an issue that doesn't exist here. Registration is not an issue. We want to keep our right as it presently exists, and there is no contention anywhere for registering firearms in the State of Montana. And I submit to you that I am opposed to registration, my Vice-Chairman is opposed to registration, the members of the committee are opposed to registration, and let's not give any homage to a prominent nonissue by voting for the amendment. Because I submit to you we're maintaining the right without any concern that it ever, in the future of the State of Montana, is going to be infringed; and as a consequence, I oppose the amendment. I am going to vote against the amendment; and at the same time, I and the rest of the committee are opposed to registration. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harrington.

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: Mr. Chairman, I rise to oppose the amendment. I feel that to lock this into the Constitution would be a grave mistake by this Convention. I also hope that none of the delegates will take the 1970 campaign and the vindictiveness that was waged in that campaign against Senator Mansfield. We are not registering guns. We are not thinking about registering guns. We have, as Mr. Dahood said, one of the strongest articles in the Constitution against the registering of guns, and I feel we should oppose this amendment. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman—I'm tangled up in my books here. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of Mr. Berth&on's amendment. If this is not an issue, then why make an issue of it? As a matter of fact, I thinkregistrationis an issue. The proponents of the majority report have said as much. They said it's not an issue today, but it will be an issue sometimes in the future. I don't think the people of Montana want gun registration now or in the future. Now, I come-or came quite awhile back, 16, 17 years ago, from the State of Michigan, which is a state that does have handgun registration. And it results in so much bureaucratic form-filling-out and nonsense that most gun nuts like me didn't bother to own a handgun. Who had the handguns? You know who had the handguns-those people who had a strong enough use for them to get a registration permit, or those who had a criminal use for them and didn't need a registration permit. Now, Mrs. Cross says this issue came up pretty fast. As a matter of fact, it did. It's also true the public trust issue came up pretty fast. I was for that and I am for Mr. Berthelson's amendment, so how fast it came up is, I think, beside the point. I am for it also because I am a member of the Western Montana Fish and Game Association, which is one of the most responsible organizations around and does not take ill-considered positions on anything and is firmly in support of Mr. Berth&on's amendment. There have been no threats to me from any of my constituents. There have been some well-reasoned letters. I have responded to them by saying that I am in favor of the proposed amendment, although I do not think it is the most important issue in the

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Mr. President [Chairman], to paraphrase an Alka-Seltzer ad, I can't believe I'm hearing this. I firmly support the majority. I see no threat in their proposal to anyone owning guns. I see no portent of any attempt to register guns. I say if we act on political expedience, how do we know what's politically expedient? Perhaps it is politically expedient to go along on this. Is it politically expedient, then, to go along on everything on which we get letters? Where is this great flood of letters? I don't see them. I've had quite a few on this, but I haven't been flooded in the campaign. I had a few ask about it; they didn't object to keeping what we now have. Those who feel that the opponents of the amendment will wreck the Constitution; I think I should point out that if they do wreck this new Constitution, they have exactly the same thing in the present Constitution; what have they gained by their actions? Expediency to me is not a very palatable word. There was a man by the name of Henry David Thoreau who was thrown in jail because he acted according to his own conscience, and his friend, Ralph Waldo Emerson, came to see him and he said, "Why, Henry, what are you doing in there?" To which Henry replied, "Why, Waldo, what are you doing out there?" (Laughter) And all the time he was in prison, Henry Thoreau said, "I am the only free man in this city, because I'm the only one who is living up to my convictions." He also said, "If I am more right than my neighbors, I'm a majority of one." And that's the way in which we operate. The argument of political expediency, to me, is not a good one. I support the majority report and oppose Mr. Berth&on's amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Mansfield.

DELEGATE MANSFIELD: Mr. President [Chairman], I am just going to say a few words. As you remember the song, "Pistol Packin' Mama"-this song referred to the people in-the women especially-in Montana, and I would not like to see these nine words placed in our Constitution. At our hearings--and the letters we first received at the beginning of our hearing were handwritten, and we had many people testify to retain what was in the Constitution. And then several did appear that wanted to have these nine words placed in there, and my only question to them was, "If we left this section as is, would you vote for the Constitution?" And they said, yes, no argument. The letters continued to come in to still retain this section and then, all of a sudden, form letters seemed to corns, being signed by Mr. and Mrs.; and I believe that there is something afoot. I still support the major section. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman, I support the Berthelson amendment. I haven't received any threats, but I think I've seen a lot more interest in that than I did in anything in the Revenue and Finance-from our county, that is. (Laughter) I realize that probably this is legislative. I realize that probably isn't the most important thing. On the other hand, in the last couple of days, it seems to me we have done some other things which are probably legislative, and maybe to me they weren't important but to someone else there is. And I honestly believe that these nine words are very important to a great many people. I don't think they will clutter up the article, and1 do support the amendment. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President [Chairman], I justwanttoclearupamisstatement that I think Dr. Rollins gave us a few minutes ago. He said that if these gun people don't want this in the Constitution, they're going to get it back in the old one; if they vote against this new Constitution, they would be getting the same thing back in the old Constitution. But we're talking about the amendment. It is not in the old Constitution. I just want to correct that. And I want to bring up another fact that last year a fellow from the western end of the state come over and run against Mansfield. He was the Republican nominee by the name of Wallace. He run on the right to bear arms issue only, practically only, and he had very few other issues. We also had a senator over there that run against Melcher, and to thesurpriseofmost of the people, especially in our district, Wallace picked up more votes than Rehberg, and Mr. Rehberg put on a tough race. He worked hard, there was a lot of money spent-there was not a lot of money spent; he didn't have it. Wallace was over there with hardly any support other than the right to work-(Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'm sure that was a Freudian slip, and not an attempt to get around the Chair. (Laughter)

DELEGATE STUDER: Okay, a little commercial doesn't hurt once in a while. (Laughter) But anyway he did not have the support of any known organization other than the right to bear arms. And when he got that many votes, I would say those people are quite serious about their voting; and if we have a chance now, by this addition of these nine words, of getting their vote, I think we ought to do it because I'm quite sure that we will alienate this vote if we don't. I don't think it's very important that we have these nine votes—nine words in here, but I do think we should have the votes, and for that reason I support Mr. Berthelson.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE McNEIL: Mr. Chairman, in-generally I agree with the committee. They have a very good, strong section. However, it will be better with the Berthelson amendment. Delegate Blaylock referred to some 700,000 people who've died from gunshot wounds, and an alarming number of policemen in recent history have been shot down. This is an emotional issue, and I ask that you strongly consider who shot those policemen. Would they comply with a licensing or registration law? Of course not. Delegate Blaylock and Delegate Dahood both referred to some date in the future when we may need licensing and registration. This ignores the fact that only honest, law-abiding citizens will comply with licensing and registration. The perfect example of this is New York City; they've had the Sullivan Law for years and have as high a crime rate as anywhere in the country. I submit that the net result from licensing and registration would simply be to raise the premium that the Mafia would have to pay for an unregistered gun. To the citizens of Montana, having a constitutional guarantee against licensing and registration is far more important than a constitutional right to know orrightto participate or right to privacy. We're talking about the real heart of what is important to Montanans. In addition, I think it would be very nice to have all the gun nuts, and I number myself among them, supporting our Constitution. Delegate Dahood referred to this as a nonissue. I agree. It wouldn't change our Montana law one bit to put this amendment in. It wouldn't change it one bit, but what would it do? It would require that at some time in the future that anyone wants to put licensing and registration as part of the law of Montana, that they'd have todoitbyavoteofthepeoplebya constitutional amendment. I submit that's where it belongs and strongly support the Berthelson amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President [Chairman], I don't know what I could add to what has already been said here, but-(Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson, is that an invitation to stop, or-(Laughter)

DELEGATE WILSON: I hope that you don't interpret it that way, Mr. President [Chairman]. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay.

DELEGATE WILSON: But, I have many letters and telegrams in my desk and drawer. In fact, it's practically full of them. And they represent people from my district, a lot of them, and if I remain silent on this issue they would certainly question why I did so. I support Mr. Berthelson's amendment. I think that this thing does have a lot of meaning. It has a lot of meaning to these people that wrote these letters. There is not one of these letters in my desk that says that they will not support the Constitution if you do not put this in. They are merely expressing a wish that you will do this. They want it done. They want this additional protection that would come from having it written into the Constitution. As my good friend across the aisle has said, it will require then that the people take a vote on this if they want their guns registered; and this in effect is what these people who sent these letters to us are asking. They're asking this consideration of this body. Thank you, Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. President [Chairman], fellow delegates. There is one thing to be added to this argument why these nine words should be put in our right to bear arms article. There is a movement on foot nationally to register all guns in the United States. Now, when our national Constitution was written, the stateswere given all rights not prohibited by this national Constitution. Now, if this movement to register arms comes even close to being an amendment in the national Bill of Rights, our already having same in our Constitution would prevent, for a time anyway, the registration of firearms in the United States. Now, if we put this amendment in our article, I am sure that other states will follow suit and copy this, the thing that we're doing here. We need this in the Constitution, and now.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Mr. Chairman, will Mr. Dahood yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I yield.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Mr. Dahood, after hearing all of these different comments for and against, to me, actually, I can't see where it would do the-hurt the article or the section one bit, but I'm going to ask you one question. Isn't it true today that if you buy a gun, even in the State of Montana, that you have to fill out three or four different forms and it's registered within the store that you buy it?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I think that's probably correct, Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Mr. Chairman, will Mr. Dahood yield to another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Well, in that event, if we put this in the Constitution, these five-nine words, if the federal government at any time requests that all guns be registered, does that override any state?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Conover, I wish I could answer it yes or no. I cannot, but I will try and answer your question. I think there'd be a serious question as to what type of traffic we're talking about with respect to firearms. If it's solely a matter within the State of Montana, I would not think that the federal area would have jurisdiction. On the other hand, they could contend that the manufacturer of firearms is within the stream of interstate commerce and as a consequence would have jurisdiction in that fashion. So with respect to registration, I should think that that is not a consideration that quite has the validity that some of the delegates may think it has, simply because I think if someone wanted to have a list of the firearms that exist, that wouldn't be too much trouble. I should think the National Rifle Association has a subscription list for their magazine that's probably long and extensive. I would imagine that anyone on that subscription list probably has a firearm. But in answer to your question, I think it would depend on various circumstances as to whether or not a federal registration act would apply to Montana. It would depend on the circumstances I've indicated.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Thank you, Mr. Dahood.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Well, in listening to all your arguments, I must say that I am one of them too, probably, because I am a great lover of guns. It must come down to one point. It's going to take money out of your pocket if you have to register them. And how much it will mean to each one of these individuals, I wouldn't know. Maybe a hundred dollars, $200, $500; so I think this is the purpose that you want to add these nine words. I think, let's be honest about it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, I want to read this proposed section to which the amendment is to be appended: "Right to bear arms. The right of any person to keep or bear arms in defense of his own home, person, and property, or in aid of the civil power when thereto legally summoned, shall not be called in question, but nothing herein contained shall be held to permit the carrying of concealed weapons." That is the background for this amendment which reads, "nor shall any person's firearms be registered or licensed". We all know that we have a backstop for this right to bear arms in the federal Constitution. There is no suggestion of registration or licensing in the committee's proposal-none whatsoever. It is a fear which has been engendered in the people of Montana's minds over the past several years, and it is widespread. It is so widespread that a person who opposes it might as well paint a big target on his back and run for the mountains and find a hole and run in the hole and pull the hole in after him. If he wants to avoid it, he'd better paint himself sky blue and run along the horizon so nobody can find him. Or, we can have a situation where we have such concern for our budding Constitution, it becomes so sacrosanct that we must embrace it-or embrace this amendment, whether we like it or not, whether it is pertinent or not; and I suggest it is not pertinent. Now, I think this is a matter that is legislative in scope. I don't think it's constitutional law. I'm not in favor of putting it into the Constitution. If I were a Legislator, I would not be in favor of putting it into the statutes of the State of Montana, because I don't believe in registration of guns. I have guns, several of them. I've used them all my life. But there are some other considerations, too. All of the mail that I have received-almost entirely being--on this subject-almost entirely being mimeographed form or material of that type-has been insisting that this be placed in the Constitution. I don't think that there-I've received more than 40, 50 such messages, but they've all been the same. Nobody has suggested that we do not keep it in the Constitution-place this in the Constitution as an amendment. The people who are in favor of placing this in the Constitution as an amendment to the majority report are very much agitated about it, and they are working tooth and toenail. The people who are against it are complacent; they take no part of it. They figure we'll all do our duty as we see it. Now, from my remarks I'm quite certain that you realize that I am not in favor of putting this amendment in the Constitution. However, in November of 1970, the people of Ravalli County took a plebiscite on me on this very question, and they retired me from the Legislature on that-because of this situation. Now I am placed in the diabolical situation of whether I should support my conscience or my constituents. (Laughter) It is a hell of a predicament. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I think the name of the game here right now, and I'm not sure I have all that much to add, is that everybody get on the record on this subject, and I'm going to get on the record on this subject. I have watched andlistened to and looked at almost every kind of weapon that you could name, from three-tenths of a millimeter up to a hundred and fifty-five millimeters. I'm about half deaf in my left ear from standing next to that lanyard on that big one. And I suspect—although I don't claim to be more expert than anybody, I doubt that there's anybody in this room that knows more about guns than I know. I can take them apart in the dark, and I have. I can find first position, second position and third position stoppages and go immediately to the source. And with all that knowledge, I hate them. They make noise. There's only one thing you can do with them and that's shoot them; and there's only one thing you can do when you shoot them and that's hurt somebody or something. I have an intense hate of the things, but I will say this: I don't own one; my grandfather didn't own one; my father didn't own one; and my kids don't own one, and that's possibly because of my influence. But if I did own one, I would have no hesitancy in going downtown and registering the damned thing. (Laughter and applause)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Please don't demonstrate. We laugh, but we don't demonstrate. (Laughter)

Okay, I think Mr. Blaylock was up next, Mr. Artz.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman], just a few remarks to maybe clarify some of the points that have been made by the supporters of the amendment. First of all, on this matter of the State of New York, I've heard that quoted to me an awful lot, so I finally wrote to the Police Commissioner of the City of New York to ask him what he felt about the gun control law in that city. And I received a reply from the Deputy Commissioner of Licenses, a man by the name of Lewis Stutsman, and he says this: "Your communication concerning gun control has been referred to the undersigned for reply. The provisions of the penal law of the State of New York regulating the possession of firearms is an essential factor in our fight against crime. Our experience has revealed that in most instances firearms used in the commission of crimes in this state originally were purchased in some other jurisdiction and thereafter illegally transported to this state. It is our belief that if there were more rigid controls in other states of the possession and sale of firearms, that the crime situation would be improved." Now, I would also like to show the delegation this telegram-500 names on it from Billings, Montana, to the Bill of Rights Committee. This was addressed to Chairman Wade Dahood. It's from such people as the National Rifle Association, the National Association to Keep and Bear Arms. This is when we were holding hearings on this. They were all asking that we leave this part of our Constitution just as it is. It was only afterwards, about like 2 weeks ago, like Mrs. Cross said, that we began to get all of this lobbying to change this section. Also, in regard to this business of threats. This was addressed to Mrs. Cross, and she just passed it to me. This is at the bottom. It says: "P.S. As a delegate it would be readily apparent: with no change in Section 13, why should we support a new Constitution?" I count that as a threat-we are going to go against it if you don't do what we want. Also, in regard to-there was a remark made insofar as the country of Denmark by somebody in here, and it was because the Nazis knew where the guns were that they overran Denmark in World War II. Denmark lasted exactly 4 hours, and it wasn't because they knew where the shotguns were. I would like to reiterate that we have one of the very strongest statements on the right to keep and bear arms of any state in the Union. I don't-I think that to add this language does make a change. I think we're tying the hands of future state legislatures when this problem may become more severe some time in the future. And we have-I've heard this said over and over again in this chamber by this body-we'll leave things to the state Legislature. All right, this is a problem that may someday have to be taken up by them, and I think we should leave it to them in case that they do want to do this. Now, insofar as the argument that has been made, and I shall close with this, about the business we're going to pick up votes for this Constitution if we'll just put this in. Now, I heard when we organized this Constitutional Convention back in November, there were a lot of good idealists in here, and there was a lot of things being said about the dirty old politicians who have been over here in the state Legislature. I never did join in that thing, but those were the statements that were made; and that we didn't want caucuses and we didn't want this and we wanted to be open and let's not act like politicians. All right, we're here as a Constitutional Convention and we are writing a Constitution for maybe the next 80 years. Now, are we going to bow to some pressure to change this when maybe in our heart we really don't believe it? Now, if you really don't-if you really do believe that these words don't make any difference and that we'll put this in that they can never be registered or any licens- then I suggest that you do not act like the proverbial politicians and vote just because of pressure. Vote what you really think is right-not on whether this thing is going to beadopted, whether we're going to pick up some support-because I would like to point out that while Mike Mansfield did have some trouble in the last election, he did win and he still won big. There's a silent majority here that's never been heard from. And I think that we have the strongest section of any state; let's leave it alone.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Artz is next.

DELEGATE ARTZ: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, a few comments only. Number one, the registration will not necessarily stop criminal element. They will merely steal their guns and not register them. You are just going to create a hardship on honest people. I agree with Delegate Erdmann. I've had the same pressure from Cascade County. I would certainly appreciate it if you would support Delegate Berthelson's amendment, because I would hate to take a risk of being shot at when I go back to Cascade County. (Laughter) I would also like to eliminate a chance-or to provide a chance for getting more votes for this Constitution. Maybe I am a dirty old politician, but I'd hate to work over here as hard as I have and, with the elimination of nine words, lose the Constitution. I maintain that if Alaska and Hawaii don't like gun registration, that's fine. The people of Montana like it; they should have it. I've also heard quite a few comments around here about whether it's constitutional or legislative. Well, I found this out: if you're for something, it's constitutional; and if you're against it, it's legislative. Now, technically all of the Revenue and Finance was legislative material. Nine more words certainly should be allowed, considering the number of legislative words we've put in this Constitution up to this point. A point has been made that there was a sudden avalanche of these communications about this. I think possibly it could have been an editorial in the March-April 1972 issue of the Handloader magazine that probably give these people a hope that we could accomplish something if we got it in the Montana Constitution. Now, in the comments some of the reasons for not putting this in were stated as follows: "The committee notes that the statutory efforts to regulate the possession of firearms have been at the federal level zine for March-April 1972, the editorial, and I'm not going to read all of it, just a little, says—quote-"A significant U.S. Supreme Court decision, one which could have a far-reaching effect upon present and future federal firearms laws and could preclude a federal gun registration or licensing program was handed down shortly before the close of the 1971 Session. The decision struckdown the section of the Gun Control Act of 1968 which prohibits convicted felons from possessing firearms, one of the few items in the Gun Control Act of '68 which most sportsmen favored. The case in which the Supreme Court made its decision involved one Dennis Bass of Bronx, New York, who had been convicted on two charges of possessing firearms after having been previously convicted of a felony. The key words were this; this is the crux of the matter. If the Supreme Court will not allow Congress to write laws prohibiting criminal ownership of firearms unless those firearms are directly involved in interstate commerce"—I quote, "interstate commerce"-"then it follows that Congress may not write laws denying firearms ownership to anyone. All of the proposed federal gun registration and/or licensing laws would prohibit anyone's owning a gun without having met the federal requirements. Yet the Supreme Court's Bass decision says that Congress may not take such a prohibition unless the gun is involved in interstate commerce, and without the authority to prohibit unregistered or unlicensed possession of a firearm, Congress can't write a registration or a licensing law"--unquote. Therefore it is up to the states, and I maintain that Montana should put these nine words in. I heartily support Delegate Berthelson's amendment. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh is next.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman, once there was a fellow who had a dog. It was a particular kind of a dog, a very wonderful dog. He could run like the wind. This dog had a tremendous nose; he could trail almost anything. He was a great fighter, but he had one weakness. He was afraid of rabbits. (Laughter) He was what you'd call a scared-rabbit dog. I don't think I'd want to own a scared-rabbit dog. I don't think the people of Montana want a scared-rabbit Convention. It seems to me this is what the issue is when we're talking about putting frosting on the cake. I think that we ought to get on with the business of this Convention. I wouldn't change my mind on this issue in spite of all of the conversation that's taken place here. My mind was made up on this issue before we began. I wouldn't change my mind if all the people in Montana were out here beating on the Capitol door. I say, "Let's vote this amendment down; let's get on with the business of this Convention."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins, I think you were next.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: We've heard about these nine little words. Here are nine words. Came from a poem-"Just for a handful of silver he sold us." This poem was a nasty, mean, unwarranted poem aimed at one of our great men, Daniel Webster, because he spoke his conscience in the 7th of March speech in 1850. Mr. Romney said he was in a hell of a predicament. The predicament that I fear is that if I don't vote my conscience-and with my ugly mug, I can't stand to shave more than one face in a day. I don't worry so much about what the people may say. They perhaps exercised poor judgment in electing me, but I've had a number of them say, "Now that you're elected, go there and write the Constitution." And in order to do that, you have to use your own judgment; you have to use your own convictions. And that's what I hope to do. I feel that those nine little words--oh, they don't mean so much; but there was another song--"Three little words, eight little letters-I love you." Man, what a trap that's been. (Laughter) Words have meant things, and those words mean something. The majority report without those words is a very strong protection to those who want to have the right to bear arms. I'm like Mr. Schiltz. I don't own a gun; I wouldn't have one. I have known personally five people who have been killed in gun accidents. I'm afraid of the things, but I don't chastise those who love guns; and I think perhaps I can understand it. I'm that way with books. But I feel that going those extra nine words is not necessary. You have a very strong article the way it is. I hope that the people will support it. Beyond that, all I can do is vote the way I feel, which is in favor of the majority report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Gysler, you were next.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Chairman, I rise to support the Berthelson amendment. I sat in this chamber on the day that the Bill of Rights Committee had their public hearing, and I'm not going to condemn the committee at all for limiting the number-the time that people had to speak on this, but I do know that there were-it was after this time when there was considerable opposition to leaving the-this section as it is that the organized stuff started coming. On that day I was lobbied by-to add something to this by the father of Lones Wigger, Jr., who in the Olympics in Japan, I believe in 1964, was a gold medal winner in rifle competition. I can't quite see some of the arguments. They say, "Well, now, this isn't going to happen. Do you know anybody that's going to be doing this?" And then I just checked three fast ones. Do you know anybody around that says we shouldn't have freedom of religion in the State of Montana? But we have a Section 5 passed that way. Do you know anybody, any organized thing going on that would prevent us from having free and open elections? We have a section, a proposed Section 13 that way. Can you imagine somebody in this country at this time in the history of our country to be deprived of life, liberty and property without due process of law? I can't see where any of these things would happen in this country of ours, but yet we still maintain these things in the Bill of Rights. I think the addition of these few words just strengthens the article a little, and this is one of those places where I think if-because this has been historically the position that people of the State of Montana have thought of with the section we have now, that also they can't register them, I think that by-guns-I think that by adding these words in there and putting down in black and white what most of the people have always thought would be there, and then if somebody in some foreseen future--unforeseen future day may want to register them, then it goes back to the people and the people can decide. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President [Chairman], I will be brief. I agree with Mr. Toole; I agree with Mr. Gysler. I have received threats. I feel the majority proposal is good with—the Berthelson amendment is better. And I will vote for it, not because of the threats, but in spite of it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman, my conscience doesn't tell me to go one way or the other on this; and I'm not like Romney that I have a feeling for my constituents, because I have some pro and con. I feel this is statutory matter and that the federal government will preempt if they at some time decide to do so. I also have some strong family ties of shooting relatives who are strong gun clobbers, and therefore I will abstain from voting on this amendment. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harlow.

DELEGATE HARLOW: I know I am looked upon with disgust because I rise up at this particular time, but I've listened to all of these arguments and I am reminded of one statement made in our history which said, "millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute." And it looks as though this Convention is now subject to tribute. And where can any of you folks who are so concerned about these nine words being so essential-does it say anywhere in the Constitution or anyplace else that you will be deprived of your guns? The gentleman who is so proud-and I am proud, too-of his relation who is a gold medal winner over at the Olympics; I'm always proud of anyone who achieves success in whatever effort they take. But there is nothing in here that's going to take a gun away from that man; nothing in here that's going to take the guns away from any of you. And as my seatmate here so ably put it, if we haven't got the gumption, the guts, to stand up under what we think is right, what we came here for-Now, when you came here, when you ran for election, was there a single one of you who got up and said, "I'm going to put something in the Constitution to make it impossible to register a gun"? All of you said or agreed to that you would put back in the Constitution what was already there; and this fear that you have-World War I, we had to register our guns and we all still had them when the war was over. And we're writing a Constitution here that is supposed to show to the people of Montana that we have some degree of decision on our own part. I am sure that there are more people in Montana who don't own guns than there are who do own guns, and I realize that all of you have been lobbied. Some of you have fell prey to that lobby and have got up here and stood on the floor and said, "I weakened; I couldn't stand up under the pressure; I'm afraid to go home; I haven't got any backbone to me so I'm going to vote for these nine little words that merely show that we haven't got the guts to be a good delegate and stand up under our own convictions and our own thinking." I know those are strong words, but that's the way I feel.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, fellow delegates, I have two more amendments on Section 12 here, but I never see the people who sponsored them stand up; so either you can stay down if you don't want to amend yet, and you can stand up if you do.

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman. I fail to see how, in one breath, we can ask the citizens of Montana to participate in our government and at the same time, when they write to us and say that they want us to do something, that that's a threat. Therefore, I'm going to vote for the nine words. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I think probably most people's minds are already made up and we probably should go for the vote on it. I would like just to mention one thing concerning the telegram, so there can be no question later about intentions on the Bill of Rights Committee or that telegram. Originally there was a rumor around the State of Montana that the Bill of Rights Committee actively wanted to register guns. As a result of that rumor, the telegram from Billings came to our committee, asking us not to change the wording in the present provision. They did not realize that not only was there not a movement to register guns, there was a suggestion from Delegate Berthelson to prohibit the registration of guns. Delegate Berth&on's Proposal Number 4 would have completely removed Section 13 and replaced it with new language which some gun people had told me would eliminate the right completely. I always felt that that proposal, if adopted, would allow some groups to go out and say the right would be eliminated if it was adopted and the present one was gone. Now, I really believe that the people that sent that telegram were not inconsistent when they feel today that they accept his amendment to the present provision. I think also that I've talked to the people and I have complete understanding with the people in our area that in no way can the Montana constitutional provision interfere in any manner with the federal law now in effect, and it may be in effect in the future. They seem to understand that completely. We seem to categorize some of them as extremists, but I have a great deal of mail-1 have it from doctors, professional people, who are also very avid sportsmen; hunters, who also have recreational use. I'm a member of the skeet-trap club. You don't always shoot a gun to kill; you can shoot it for skeet and trap, which I enjoy very much, as well as hunting. I really feel that the people would feel more secure with this. I think if it came to a vote to them, they'd adopt it. I'm not threatened by it because the federal standards will control anyway; but on the telegram, I think that should be understood so laterthey can't say that this telegram was used to misrepresent their views. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Siderius.

DELEGATE SIDERIUS: Mr. Chairman. Just for a point of clarification, would someone explain to me what--after the word "summoned"-"shall not be called in question"--will someone explain to me what that means?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Since no one stands, Mr. Siderius, the Chairbelieves thatthat's language possibly out of the national Constitution, and it has been, I think, used before to indicate "shall not be abridged or stopped". I think it's out of the national Constitution, where it serves the same purpose. Is that right, Mr. Dahood? Do you know?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: That's right. That merely indicates that the right shall remain inviolate and shall not be questioned by any person in a position of authority.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Skari.

DELEGATE SKARI: Mr. Chairman, I, too, have resisted these nine words. I think that, like a lot of the delegates, I have tried to be a purist at this Convention; no legislation. But I suppose that I've supported provisions that a lot of people would consider legislation. Maybe I've crossed that line between delegate and politician, but I suspect that maybe that's not such a clear and definite line. I think perhaps that the decisions are not quite that clear. I think, though, that people are tired of bureaucracy; they are tired of red tape; and they are tired of the paper-shuffling. I can see that these nine words can cause us no harm; therefore I intend to support the Berthelson amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I would just like to rise in support of the committee majority position. Those of you who had your minds made up before you came to this debate, this will in no way affect you; but those of you who realize the dilemma that we're up against in this particular problem, I give you full confidence that the committeedeliberated carefully on this question. We listened to both sides carefully, and I feel in the calmness of reasonable men, we came to a legitimate and fair conclusion. And I request that any of you who are in doubt in any way to rely upon the committee that has worked diligently on this question. I certainly want to go on record opposed to gun registration, but at the same time I strongly support the position of the majority in this particular matter and feel that the provision we have in this section for the Constitution is the best provision; and I oppose the Berthelson amendment. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Foster yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster?

DELEGATE FOSTER: Yes, sir, Mr. Chairman, gladly.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Don, was this amendment ever presented to you as a committee-these nine words in that order?

DELEGATE FOSTER: Yes, they were.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: And you discarded them?

DELEGATE FOSTER: I would enlarge upon that a little bit. We felt that the Constitution was not the place to, in a sense, remove any possibility of any provision ever being enacted in the future if the Legislature felt it was necessary, and at the same time we felt that we had a very strong section and we didn't feel that it was desirable to have these words in the Constitution.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Thank you. Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Campbell yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I will yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Bob, I will put the same question to you. Was this presentation of these nine words in that order put to you in your committee?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Our delegate proposal was Number 4. That was the proposal That proposal was considered and rejected. We came out at the Romney hearings with the present section that we have. That is the one we have solidified in the final report. At no time, to my knowledge, did the committee officially receive and consider seriously changing and adopting to these specific words. I-this is alateramendment. It did come in late, I will admit. It was not presented early at the Convention. Delegate Proposal Number 4 was the only change that we considered, and we decided not to go with it.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Thank you, Mr. Campbell. Mr. Chairman, I would like to submit to 'the body here at this time, I think this is nothing more than a chauvinistic effort on the part of this committee to protect what they've come out with—and they've come out with a pretty good Bill of Rights-but I still think this is mainly the reason that they're standing so tight on it. I don't think that they're worried that these nine words are going to ruin anything, and I would certainly be afraid if they are worried that these nine words may upset something in the future for Montana. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises on Mr. Berth&on's amendment. Mr. Berthelson would add to line 20 on page 6 of Section 12, the words: "nor shall any person's firearms be registered or licensed." Do you want to close?

DELEGATE BERTHELSON: Mr. President, I'd like to close.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, you may close.

DELEGATE BERTHELSON: Thank you, Mr. President [Chairman]. Fellow delegates, I feel a little bit like David of old must have felt when he went out to meet the giant, armed only with a slingshot. I stand here, armed with my slingshot of no formal education. The only formal education I have I received in the University of Hard Knocks. I respect Mr. Dahood for his very, very eloquent training. I respect Mr. Chet Blaylock for his education and all of the experience that he has had as a politician. But I am going to attempt to clear up some things very briefly now that seem to be in question. There is no inconsistencies in what has been done. Early in this committee's deliberations there was a rumor circulated throughout this state that there was to be firearms. It was in response to that rumor that this telegram that lays on this man's desk came. It was in response to that rumor that many, many, many of the letters came to the delegates to this Convention. And now since this amendment containing nine words has been presented to this Convention-and I say it was never presented to the committee when they were in their deliberations-the gun owners and the gun enthusiasts and the sportsmen of Montana are now supporting this amendment. I am real glad that Mr. Blaylock fervently and passionately referred to the accidents that guns cause. He read some statistics for you, and I'd like to read those same statistics from the same sheet that Mr. Blaylock used. Mr. Blaylock was right when he read that a hundred and fourteen lives were lost last year in accidents of all types. Leading the grim parade was 54,800 fatalities caused by motor vehicles; 17,500 deaths due to falls; and 7,300 from drowning. Fire,burns, and so forth caused sixty-seven hundred deaths; poisoning, forty-six hundred; and suffocation, thirty-four hundred. What he didn't read was that firearm accidents took 2,300 lives. Based on total population, firearms accidents recounted for 1 death for each 90,000 people in this country. I'm going to hurry along. Mr. Blaylock and Mr. Dahood both talked about the problems of violence and crime. Now, registration of guns is no solution to the problem. It isn't effective; criminals don't register guns. Registration simply cannot and will not prevent or reduce violence. Registration usually creates more problems than it solves. I want to say just a word about the economic value of guns and their use in this state. I would call your attention, if you will think with me, that firearms have an important social economic impact in the field of conservation and natural resources management. I call your attention-and I don't have to go into any figures as to how much money, economically, the use of firearms brings into this state. But as important as that is the fact that the use of firearms for lawful use in recreational activities aids our economic, sociological and political forces, supporting the conservation and wild use of our natural resources--and wise use of our natural resources. Sportsmen cannot be expected to jeopardize the existence of their sport or these very vital economic, sociological and political forces supporting the conservation and wise use of our natural resources by allowing registration of firearms. I want to read, inclosing, three testimonials. Hubert H. Humphrey, former Vice-President of the United States, had this to say-and I quote: "The right of the citizen to bear arms is just one more guarantee against arbitrary government, one more safeguard against tyranny, which now appears remote in America, but which historically has proved to be always possible"-end of quote. This is a clipping from a Fullerton, California, News Tribune article by Billy Graham, and Billy Graham said-and I quote: "Back to your question about the gun control law stopping killings in the United States; in the final analysis, a gun cannot harm anyone unless there is a human being to pull the trigger. Ten million guns would be harmless unless some human became stimulated by hate, greed or prejudice"--end of quote. And Paul Harvey, the dynamic news commentator who makes page 1 understandable and page 3 exciting, stated on one of his regular radio programs-quote: "If the government of the people cannot trust the citizens with a gun, then the citizens cannot trust the government." Fellow delegates, gun registration is foreign and repugnant to our Montana heritage and traditions. Registration or licensing must be prevented. A registered gun is easily confiscated. To allow that guns would ever be registered or licensed would be an irreversible step if we took that step today. Fellow delegates, let us insure that the things I have talked about will never happen here by voting for this amendment. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Berth&on's amendment to add the words "nor shall any person's firearms be registered or licensed." I take it you want a roll call vote. All those in favor of his amendment, vote Aye; all those opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Take the vote, please, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 43 have voted Aye, 52 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 52 having voted No, 43 Aye, Mr. Berthelson's amendment is defeated. We are discussing Section 12, the right to bear arms. Are there other amendments? (No response) I take it, then, that I can pass the other two amendments sent up to the Chair.

Mr. Campbell, do you want to pass?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I would like to have you read that amendment I sent up, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the clerk may read Mr. Campbell's amendment.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 12, Bill of Rights Committee proposal, on page 6, lines 17 through 22, by adding the following words: 'The right of any person to keep or bear arms in defense of his own home, person, and property' and inserting 'or

'or in aid of the civil power when thereto legally summoned, shall not be called in question, but nothing herein contained shall be held to permit the carrying of concealed weapons.' Signed: Campbell."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Campbell has proposed an amendment that would add, on line 19, after the word "property", the word "or residential use"-the sense of the amendment being to say that-the right of a person to keep or bear arms for residential use.

CLERK HANSON: Recreational.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Recreational --recreational use, pardon me-"for recreational use shall not be called in question."

Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I won't dwell on this. There was a legitimate concern as much as registration and licensing over preservation of hunting--or preservation of guns, not only for defense of your home or property, but also for legitimate recreational use. I don't know how wide-scale the national movement is that some people are concerned about, considering the banning of hunting as being cruel to animals and should be eliminated. The Western Montana Fish and Game Department from our area has recommended, to protect the people of Montana from their legislatures in the future, that this provision be placed in the Constitution. I won't mention our sister state to the east, since it has been mentioned so many times, but I might add that they did also include this on their right to keep and bear arms section at this time. I don't know that required discussion is necessary on this, and I think it could be put to a vote. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman], I resist the amendment. This is the same kind of reasoning that was used on the previous amendment. We're putting up arguments about things that are not-have not come to pass and will not come to pass. This doesn't add anything. We still-this section, as it is, is the broadest, strongest right to bear arms section of any state in the Union, and I resist the amendment. Let's leave it alone and put it in as the majority report of the committee stands.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion? (No response) If not, the issue is on Mr. Campbell's motion to amend Section 12 by adding the words "or recreational use" on line 19, after the word "property". So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Campbell's amendment to add "or recreational use", please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No. Division.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, we'll use the voting machines. So many as are in favor, vote Aye; and so many as are opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate want to change?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 49 having voted No, 33 Aye, the motion is defeated. Is there other discussion of Section 12? (No response) Members of the committee, you have before you for your consideration, when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 12 of the Bill of Rights, that this committee recommend the same be adopted. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATES: Roll call.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You want a roll call on Section 12?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATES: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, we'll have a roll call on Section 12. So many as are in favor of the motion, vote Aye on the voting machine; and opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate want to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Please take the vote.

Mr. Chairman Aye

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 76 delegates voting Aye, 6 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 76 having voted Aye, and 6 voting No, Section 12 is adopted. Will the Clerk read Section 13.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 13, Right to suffrage. All elections shall be free and open, and no power, civil or military, shall at any time interfere to prevent the free exercise of the right of suffrage." Mr. Chairman, Section 13

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Sullivan.

DELEGATE SULLIVAN: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 13 of Proposal Number 8, it recommends that the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Sullivan.

DELEGATE SULLIVAN: The committee felt that this section should be left just as it is, a guarantee that the right of suffrage shall not be interfered with and that elections shall be free and open. Accordingly, the provision as proposed is the verbatim wording of Article III, Section 5, of the present Montana Constitution. The provision is supplemented, but not replaced by, the proposals of the General Government Committee on Suffrage and Elections. No delegate proposals were received on this provision-thank heaven. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, is there discussion on Section 13, the Right to Suffrage? (No response) Members of the committee, you have before you Section 13 and you have Mrs. Sullivan's motion that when this committee does arise and report, after having had it under consideration, that we recommend it do-be adopted. All in favor of adopting Section 13, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Will the clerk read 14.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 14, Adult rights. Persons 18 years of age are declared to be adults for all purposes and shall have the right to hold public office in the state." Mr. Chairman, Section 14.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 14, Mr. Campbell. The-your books should be amended on page 6 by striking the word "any". Is that right, Mr. Campbell?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: That is correct, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: On line 29, the committee wishes this report to be made with the word "any" before "public office" stricken, so that it reads: "the right to hold public office in the state." Where would that reference may-be on the other page? Strike the word "any". It's on page 27, line 25.

Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14 of Proposal Number 8, it recommends that the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: The amendment made, of course, was to drop the word "any" from the provision which would, of course, otherwise be in conflict with our decision on two previous occasions on the Executive Article. It's with great hesitancy, of course, that I watch this happen, since I think that all of us in our lifetimes will see either a constitutional amendment to our Constitution to eliminate this or a United States constitutional amendment which will bring Montana in line with the rest of the nation: I would just like to quote one thing that hadn't been brought up, and I hesitated to bring it up before; and that, of course, was the position of labor on this particular issue. In many other issues, of course, it has been said they had an economic interest, but on this one, I'd just like to quote you what they did say: "In a democratic form of government, there should only be one kind of citizenship. To say that an 18-year-old possesses the necessary capabilities to vote yet is not eligible for public office because of his age does violence to the concept of equal citizenship. Any person of legal voting age, provided he or she has the necessary nonage qualifications as the office may require, is fully entitled to seek public office, with their candidacy to succeed or fail according to the judgment of their peers at the polling place. We of Montana AFL-CIO are proud to point out that our organization was for many years in the forefront of the long fight to secure the vote for citizens 18 years and older." I would just like to close by saying that what the provision-the present Section 14 does is simply acknowledge and welcome in, less enthusiastically than I would have liked, the new citizens who have been accepted by our nation as responsible citizens and eligible to vote and certainly eligible for office, except for the higher offices in the Executive Article. This was the decision on two previous occasions, and if Jeannette Rankin can't change her mind, nobody can; and I would move that it be adopted as presented. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Garlington.

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: Mr. Chairman, I feel there is a technical conflict here between the broad right to hold public office, as stated in Section 14, and the provisions in the Executive Article on professional qualifications for the Attorney General and the provisions in the Judicial Article as qualifications for Judge of the District Court and Justice of the Supreme Court; and I therefore have proposed a short amendment to be added onto this which would be in the nature of an exception for those instances where professional qualifications are required. I move that the Section 14 be amended by adding that exception for professional qualifications, which you have the only copy of.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The clerk will please read Mr. Garlington's proposal.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 14 by adding the following at the end: 'except those for which professional qualifications are required, period'-end quote. Signed: Garlington."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell -No, Mr. Garlington's amendment adds the phrase "except for professional qualifications"— "except those for which professional qualifications are retired--are required", at the end of Section 14. Do you want to discuss it further?

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: I think it's self-evident, Mr. Chairman. I just feel that the provision of Section 14 here has no qualification on right to hold public office, and since the offices of the Judicial branch and of the Attorney General are public offices, we should reconcile the difference in order to avoid a conflict or confusion between the two.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: May I ask— would Delegate Garlington yield to a question, please?

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: He will.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Delegate Garlington, would you have any objection to the addition on the end of your amendment, "any professional qualification as provided in this Con-

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: Not at all, because I think that's the place where the problem arises.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Thank you. I would like to amend it to add "qualification as found in this Constitution". And with that amendment, I would certainly approve it, and I think the Bill of Rights Committee would approve it. This has always been our intention, that professional qualifications, such as a law degree for a County Attorney or a Judge, certainly are necessary; and I certainly, with that amendment, would have no opposition.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, do I understand you're making another substitute--or additional amendment to Mr. Garlington's, Mr. Campbell? Are you amending his language to say "except those for which professional qualifications are found in this Constitution"? Is that what you said?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: "--are provided in this Constitution".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, the situation is that we have Mr. Campbell's amendment which adds "provided for"-"provided in this Constitution", which takes the place of the word "required" in Mr. Garlington's amendment; so that if Mr. Campbell's motion prevails, it would say: "except those for which professional qualifications are provided in this Constitution." If Mr. Garlington's prevailed—

Mr. Garlington, do you care whether it says one way or the other?

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: No, your honor. We've just been discussing—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Wait a minute now-(Laughter) I can't say I don't like it, but it just isn't accurate. (Laughter)

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: —or, Mr. Chairman, we've just been discussing here that perhaps we have not adequately taken care of the conflict that might exist with respect to the 25-year-old qualification for some of the Executive offices. It may be that the amendment is slightly inept in this respect.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I wonder if the Chair might suggest-Mr. Artz has an amendment up here which says: "except as provided seem to me to cover all the problems, the 25-year-old, plus the Judges, plus the Attorney General.

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: I would be glad to withdraw my amendment in favor of that one.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Would you and Mr. Campbell both withdraw?

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: I will.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Artz, you're on.

DELEGATE ARTZ: Let's vote.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Artz would make an amendment that would say: "except as provided otherwise in this Constitution." He would add that language at the end of adult rights for the purpose of picking up the three groups we've talked about. Do you care to discuss it further, Mr. Artz?

DELEGATE ARTZ: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. President, I'm going to make a substitute motion that Section 14 be deleted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, wait till I do my bookwork here. Very well, the situation now is that Mr. Garlington and Mr. Campbell have withdrawn their amendments to Section 13. Mr. Artz has made an amendment that says: "except as otherwise provided in this Constitution", and Mr. Brown has made a substitute motion that we delete Section 13—Section 14-it is-in its entirety.

Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman, I feel that this section is in direct conflict with the section we put in on Suffrage and Elections. Now, if you allow them to hold public office with the amendments they've put in, that would allow a felon to hold office, subject to his parole. Then we put, in suffrage, subject to additional qualifications provided by the Legislature, such as county attorneys, county health officers, et cetera, and we completely covered that. And now we are putting in a conflicting section under the Bill of Rights. I'd have no objections to declare that 18-year-olds are adults, but don't get into this public office thing, because we've already covered it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Mr. President [Chairman], I agree with Mr. Brown. There's no definition as to what a public office is, and they've now limited it to a public officer. Anybody could serve as a public officer who meets the guidelines set out by this Constitution, and there can be-very well be Legislative officers set up who could be classified as public officers that would have to have more qualifications than what's set forth in this Constitution--and especially those officers who are classified as public officers who are appointed. I certainly agree with Mr. Brown that this section should be deleted before it ties up the Legislature so it couldn't set any qualifications for any type of public office.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President [Chairman], I resist Mr. Brown's motion. I'd like to have the Constitution shortened, and we have covered some things, but I think the portion of this section-persons 18 years of age are declared to be adults for all purposes-should remain in the Bill of Rights, and by deleting the whole thing we would not have it in there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman, I believe Mr. Habedank is right; and if I could, I'd amend my motion to put a period after "all purposes" and then delete the rest; and I think it would satisfy everybody--I hope.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brown, I'm going to let you withdraw. Mr. Brown, you're going to withdraw and then make a new motion deleting only up to the word "purposes"-after the word "purposes"? Is that right?

DELEGATE BROWN: Yes, sir, and then delete the remainder of that section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Delete lines 29 and 30?

DELEGATE BROWN: Correct.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, for the body, the sense of the situation now is that Mr.

Brown has deleted only the last half of that section, He's deleted the lines 29 and 30 on page 6, so that the section now reads: "Persons 18 years of age are declared to be adults for all purposes."

Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman, I would support Mr. Brown, and I appreciate his removing of his motion to delete. I think there should be some reference here. I think that we can accept the young people. I think they will be satisfied with this. I think we can be proud of it, and I would simply like to close.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Mr. Brown's proposal?

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Could I just ask a question? Mr. Brown, I did receive some correspondence about people who are on welfare; that if this is left, that they'd lose part of their payments. Do you know if that's correct, or if we should consider that, or if it's important?

DELEGATE BROWN: Do you mean the Suffrage and Elections Article or this article?

DELEGATE BABCOCK: No, women who have children that are 18 years old can still receive benefits, because they are not considered adults.

DELEGATE BROWN: Well, I believe they're adults under our statutory law now-or 19—and I know, Social Security, you can get benefits for an l&year-old or over attending college. I don't think it would present any problem.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Brown's motion to delete the last half of Section 14 so it reads: "Adult rights. Persons 18 years of age are declared to be adults for all purposes,-period". Do you want a roll call on that?

DELEGATES: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor, vote Aye on the voting machine; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Take the vote, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harrington.

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: I would like to change my vote. I made a mistake. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harrington. Go ahead and announce the vote.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 82 delegates voting Aye, 2 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, Mr. Harrington, after I push that button I can't change it, but you may stand and explain it to the journal.

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: Well, to be truthful, I thought we were voting on the amendment, and I was voting against the amendment on this, so it's my fault.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Your point is you voted wrong and you wish you had voted the other way?

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the record may show Mr. Harrington wishes he voted the other way. (Laughter) 82 having voted Aye, 2 having voted No, the motion carries and the last half of Section 14 is deleted. Are there other-that wipes out your amendment, Mr. Artz, it seems to me. Are there other amendments to Section 14? Members of the committee, you have before you for your consideration, upon the recommendation of Mr. Campbell that when thiscommitteedoes arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14 as amended, that the same be recommended for adoption. All in favor of that, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Fourteen is adopted. Will the clerk read 15.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 15, Rights of persons under the age of majority. The rights of persons under the age of majority shall include but not be limited to all the fundamental rights of this article, except where specifically precluded by laws which enhance the protection for such persons." Mr. Chairman, Section 15.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Monroe-I'm sorry.

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having under consideration Section 15, Proposal Number 8, it recommends that the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: The committee adopted, with one dissenting vote, this statement explicitly recognizing that persons under the age of majority have all the fundamental rights of the Declaration of Rights. The only exceptions permitted in this recognition are in cases in which rights are infringed by laws designed and operating to enhance the protection for such persons. The committee took this action in recognition of the fact that young people who have not been held to possess basic civil rights-although it has been held that they are persons under the due process clause of the 14th Amendment, the Supreme Court has not ruled in their favor under the equal protection clause of that same amendment. What this means is that persons under the age of majority have been accorded certain specific rights which are felt to be part of the due process. However, the broad outline of the kinds of rights young people possess does not yet exist. This is the crux of the committee proposal-to recognize that persons under the age of majority have the same protections for-from governmental and majoritarian abuses as do adults. In such cases where the protection of the special status of minors demands it, exceptions can be made on clear showing that such protection is being enhanced. This provision was taken in part from Delegate Proposal Number 65 and Number 88. Mr. Foster, I think-one of his proposals-I think they've got the wrong number there-but it was 65, my proposal, and Mr. Foster's proposal, I believe, were the ones that were combined to make this Section 15. I would disclose at the beginning that I have a special interest in this particular section. For about the past 10 years, I've been involved in youth development type programs with the YMCA and Red Cross, Encampment for Citizenship and Mockford Development, and school programs, et cetera; and from this experience I've learned to know young people and to understand many of their circumstances. What this section is attempting to do is to help young people to reach their full potential. Where juveniles have rights at this time, we certainly want to make sure that those rights and privileges are retained; and whatever rights and privileges might be given to them in the future, we also want to protect them. But we do not want them to lose any rights that any other Montana citizen has, and this is specifically what this particular section is attempting to do. We hope that it would enhance the proper parent-child relationthe family unit. We had a lot of very informative and well-presented testimony from many different groups in our community and our state. The Montana Advisory Council on Children and Youth came before us with five people testifying, representing over the past couple of years over 200 community-type meetings involving over 6,000 people. As we have been quoted to this body before, one-half of the State of Montana's population is under the age of 25, so when we talk about children and youth in the state or those people under the age of majority, we know that we're talking about from-anywhere from one hundred to about a hundred and fifty thousand people. Seventy-one people came before our committee, with five people giving written testimony. I consider these people the cream of Montana's young adult crop. I have much of the testimony here in brochures that you can view. Judge Brownlee from Missoula has compiled the Juvenile Codes of the State of Montana. I have these here for you to view. I think all of us in the body have received letters from our own constituents in our communities and areas that are concerned about the rights of children under the age of majority. Our research analyst of our committee compiled much information for us and our committee report, pages 301 through 305, discussed the situation of people under the age of majority quite thoroughly. And from those-this research and the testimony, we have devised Section 15. In quoting our Chairman, Mr. Dahood, it is altogether fitting and proper that we should give our young adults-and as our Chairman, our President of our Convention mentions, our most valuable resource-And our Chairman of our committee says that if we're expecting these people to respect us, I think we should respect them in some way. it seems to me that Montana can be the leader among all the states in recognizing the rights of people under the age of majority. If there's any questions, I'll certainly try and answer them. I move that this section be adopted, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion?

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Would Mr. Monroe yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Monroe?

DELEGATE RYGG: I'm just wondering- I read this and I still wonder. Could you give me an example of what we're doing? Just one concrete example so that I could find out just what you're trying to do?

DELEGATE MONROE: Okay. Right now, young people are not generally protected by constitutional standards of fairness and due process of law, such as the right to counsel, trial by peers or jury, the right against self-incrimination, and the right to know the nature and cause of accusation. I would cite myself, maybe, as an example, Mr. Rygg. In 1964 I had the pleasure of attending a basketball tournament in Butte, Montana, It was a state basketball tournament, and it was the first one I'd ever been to. Well, some of my friends had traveled down to the tournament in the fair city of Butte beforehand, and along the way they stopped by Helena and they had done some mischievous deeds. And they attended another school, and I met them in the city of Butte and asked them if they could give me a ride to my motel. Well, at the time I was in their car they were apprehended by the police officers and I was incarcerated, and this was my first basketball tournament and the only one I was ever able to attend. There I was, without having seen a basketball game, sitting in the jail of Butte. Now, I didn't know what I was sitting there for, and in this instance I did not know the nature or the cause of any of the accusations that were being brought against me. I didn't know anything, and there I was incarcerated. I was not able to make a phone call or anything. And that would be just one small example. There's certainly examples of where children's rights are not afforded them in child-abuse cases, for example. I've got a file in here; the Montana Advisory Council on Children and Youth has compiled documentation of specific instances where a child's-or rights of children and youth are just nonexistent, really. And what we're attempting to do by this particular section is to give them rights, except where specifically precluded by law. Now, when we say "specifically precluded by law"-let's say there's a law on the books that says you've got to be 16 years old to have a driver's license, and that is to protect and enhance that individual. Thatlawis on the book to protect and enhance them. Or if it says they must be 19 years old, which is the majority age in Montana right now until, hopefully, this Constitution is adopted; then it will be 18. But that law, 19, that they could drink legally, is there to protect them. So we're suggesting that they would have all the rights of this article except where it's specifically precluded by laws in this article-in this Constitution, or any laws on the statute books that are there now to protect and enhance them or that might come in the future. I went a little bit further than answering your question, but my own specific example is where I felt that some of the rights of those people under the age of majority were being infringed upon.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman, I don't see, really, the purpose of this article, even after the explanation. This Bill of Rights covers all people, and it doesn't say only those over the age of majority or those over 65 or anything else; it covers all people. And the example Mr. Monroe told about being put in jail, I know a lot of adults who've been put in jail and never known what they were charged with. And, I really don't see where this serves any useful purpose.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, this does serve a very definite and useful purpose. There is a constitutional controversy throughout this land as to whether or not the basic protections of the Bill of Rights shall be applied to those persons who are not adults, with respect to arrest, detention and trial. We are not, in this situation, affecting in any way the relationship of parent and child or of guardian and ward with respect to someone under the age of majority. Pay close attention to the fact that the last phrase reads, "except where specifically precluded by laws which enhance the protection for such person." So, as a consequence, what we are doing by this article is focusing on the basic guarantees that citizens have with respect to their person, their property and their liberty. With respect to juvenile proceedings in the State of Montana, every effort is made by our court and by our judges to make sure that these young people do have what we for ourselves consider due process. There are instances, however, where these abuses do take place by many of our juvenile authorities thinking that persons under the age of 18-or under the age of 19, at the present time, are not entitled to the basic rights that are accorded the adult citizen in a court of record. For example, there are situations where there are unlawful and unwarranted detentions. There are abuses with respect to young boys and young girls. Searches and siezures take place that violate the basic concept under our Bill of Rights.

Hearings are held under circumstances where a true defense opportunity is not provided. Things have changed in Montana and in America. Although we may say that the rule is, by regulation and by common sense, that whatever you do before you reach the age of majority shall never be used against you. Nevertheless, the investigatory processes throughout this state and this nation are such, anymore, that after you become an adult, somehow they find something perhaps that may have taken place that-during the age of minority and that can be used against you, sometimes is used against you. When that record is compared against the record of someone competing with you for a particular position or place that does not contain that type of apparent blemish, that person, of course, is going to be selected. And as a consequence, a disservice is done simply because the thinking has been, until recently, "What difference does it make if there has been some slight transgression with respect to the right of the minor? It's not going to count against him anyway." I assure you there is a very definite need for it. All we're going to do is make sure that the young boys and the young girls, the young men, the young women, prior to reaching the age of majority, are going to know that during that particular period of maturity they shall have all the basic rights that are accorded to all citizens of the State of Montana, and they are going to be better trained to be more responsible citizens. This is the least that we can do for them. We are not upsetting anything. This is not revolutionary by any means. It merely makes sure that they have the basic rights that many of us assume that they do have and which they do not have, and this will make sure that this Constitution and this Bill of Rights does apply to all citizens regardless of age. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion? (No response) Very well, the issue arises on the motion of Mr. Monroe that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 15, thatitrecommend that this section be adopted. So many as shall—

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 76 have voted Aye, 11 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 76 having voted Aye and 11 No, Section 15 is adopted.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I move the committee recess for 15 minutes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is to recess for 15 minutes, or until 10 minutes to 4:00. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Committee recessed at 3:35 p.m.-reconvened at 3:59 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The committee will come to order. Ladies and gentlemen, just before the recess we had finished Section 15. We're ready to start on Section 16. Very well. Mr. Clerk, will you please read Section 16.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 16. The administration of justice. Courts of justice shall be open to every person and speedy remedy afforded for every injury of person, property or character. No person shall be deprived of this full legal redress for injury incurred in employment for which another person may be liable except as to fellow employees and his immediate employer who hired him if such immediate employer provides coverage under the Montana Workmen's Compensation laws of this state; and that right and justice shall be administered without sale, denial or delay." Section 16, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 16 of Proposal 8, it recommend that the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: The committee voted unanimously to retain this section with one important addition. The provision as it stands in the present Constitution guarantees justice and a speedy remedy for all without sale, denial or delay. The committee felt, in light of a recent interpretation of the Workmen's Compensation law, that this remedy needed to be explicitly guaranteed to persons who may be employed by one covered by Workmen's Compensation to work on the facilities of another. Under Montana law, as announced in the recent decision of Ashcraft versus Montana Power Company, the employee has no redress against third parties for injuries caused by themif his immediate employer is covered under the Workmen's Compensation law. The committee feels that this violates the spirit of the guarantee of a speedy remedy for all injuries of person, property or character. It is this specificdenial, and this one only, that the committee intends to alter with the following additional wording: "No person shall be deprived of his full legal redress for injury incurred in employment for which another person may be liable except as to fellow employees and his immediate employer who hired him if such immediate employer provides coverage under the Workmen's Compensation laws of this state." In other words, the committee wants to insure that the Workmen's Compensation laws of the state will be used for their original purpose-to provide compensation to injured workmen-rather than to deprive an injured worker ofredress against negligent third parties, beyond his employer and fellow employees, because his immediate employer is covered by Workmen's Compensation. The committee believes that clarifying this remedy would have a salutary effect on the conscientiousness of persons who may contract out work to be done on their premises. To permit no remedy against third parties in cases where the employer is covered by Workmen's Compensationis to encourage persons with rundown premises to contract out work without improving the quality of the premises. The committee urges that this is an abuse of the Workmen's Compensation law and constitutes a misapplication of that law to protect persons who are negligent. The committee commends this provision to the Convention with the belief that it is an important, if technical, aspect of the administration of justice. Those are the remarks which are contained in the booklet. Let me amplify them by saying basically this: we feel that the right to third party action is a right which we should establish in our Constitution. It is a right which working men and women who are unfortunate enough to be injured have had for nearly 80 years in this state. We feel that it was wrongly taken away from these people by the Supreme Court decision which was mentioned. We feel that we perhaps are legislating in asking that this be written into our Constitution are acting in a judicial manner in asking that it be written in the Constitution for we feel that this Convention, perhaps, is the court of last resort for injured working men and women in Montana with respect to the third party lawsuit, and we recommend that the section be adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if Mr. Murray would yield to a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray, will you yield?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Yes, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Mr. Murray, I don't understand what this means and I wonder if you would explain it, giving us a specific example of what happened so we'd know what you're talking about.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mrs. Bowman, in the case in question, the-one of the important utilities in this state hired a contractor to repair some of its powerlines and the employee of the contractor that was hired crawled up a power pole and, while there working on that pole, it broke and it fell with him to the ground and he was injured. In the case in question, because of the decision of the Supreme Court, the injured employee was limited to Workmen's Compensation benefits through the coverage of the contractor. Ordinarily, if it were not for this interpretation, the injured employee would be entitled to sue the important utility in this state and recover in addition to his Workmen's Compensation benefits. Those benefits or a portion of those benefits recovered under Workmen's Compensation, were the injured workman-did he-or were he to make a recovery against the important utility, would be paid back under the theory of subrogation to the Industrial Accident Fund of Montana. But does that explain basically what occurred, at least in this one instance?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Chairman. I move to delete from Section 16, page 29, commencing with the line 27, the words beginning with "No person", ending the deletion with the CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Beginning with the words "No person"?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: On page 7 that means that you would delete lines 9 through 13, plus the word "state" on line 14.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I would have to go back to page 7 to check that.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: In other words, you move to delete the clause that covers the matter that Mr. Marshall Murray was just talking about.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: This is correct.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Habedank has an amendment that would propose to delete lines 9 to 14 on page 7-w lines whatever it was he gave on the other page-namely, this Industrial Accident or Workmen's Compensation problem.

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President [Chairman], ladies and gentlemen. I have no objection to this being in here if you put it in here with full knowledge of what you are doing. The decision of the Supreme Court in the Ashcraft case, which I heard and which was brilliantly argued by Mr. Dahood, made quite a change in what a lot of us thought the law was. However, they were interpreting a specific statute of the State of Montana. All that is necessary to change their interpretation is to amend the statute of the State of Montana. And you, if you adopt this particular provision, are writing into the Constitution by vote of a majority of this group what I consider to be strictly statutory matter. This may be a laudable objective, and in interpreting the Ashcraft case your attention may be directed to the Montana Power Company. I think they were the defendant, but it doesn't make any difference, because the next case that could arise in this would be a case where you, as the owner of a house, contract with somebody else to renovate that house. You require the contractor to carry industrial accident coverage. His employee is hurt. He recovers compensation under the coverage which you have required the contractor to carry and then he, in turn, turns around and sues you as the owner because of your alleged negligence in doing something in connection with this house that makes you liable to him because he was hurt because of your negligence. As I view this amendment, it will not allow anyone to recover from anyone else without negligence on the part of the person being charged. However, it will eliminate the ability of you as a owner to hire an independent contractor, require him to carry Workmen's Compensation as a part of the coverage, and be assured that you will not be sued on a third party claim. As I recall the interpretation of the Supreme Court in the Ashcraft case, and I'm sure Mr. Dahood will correct me if I'm wrong, this was-the intent of the decision or the purport of it was to prevent an employee from collecting on a third party claim from either the prime contractor or the owner. He was barred as to those two people. He can still sue as to any other third party who may be responsible for his injury. But as to the owner or the prime contractor who hires the subcontractor, he is effectively barred from his suit. Now, in 1971, I believe it was, an amendment to this act was proposed to the Legislature which would correct this opinion, this construction of the statute by our Supreme Court, and it failed to get through both houses of the Legislature. Whether that would be true in the next session, I do not know. So if you wish to include this, I think you should do it knowingly. I will disclose my interest in this thing. I am a practicing lawyer. I defend many insurance companies; I defend people who are insured; and I do not worry about either the insurance company or the people who are insured, because they pay me. And if they're sued, then I defend. But I don't think that the people who are not aware of this, who hire independent contractors to do a job and are not aware of the fact that they can be sued because they are the owner, as a result of this change, should make this change without knowing what they're doing.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I had intended not to speak on this particular section simply because I was trial counsel on behalf of Charles Ashcraft, who is permanently disabled for the rest of his life and shall never work again at his trade. I have heard this argument in the Supreme Court, an argument that had no basis in logic. I have heard it by several defense counsel who represent the best of corporate interests, that this is going to affect the individual property owner, and if he hires a contractor, he is going to be exposed to a liability that is unprecedented and they did not experience before. This is totally untrue. This section is doing nothing more, and the wording has been very precisely selected to make sure that it does nothing more, than place the injured working man back in the status that he enjoyed prior to 1971, a very basic constitutional right which he enjoyed for 80 years in the State of Montana. What happened in the Ashcraft case? The Montana Trial Lawyers Association, 150 members strong, to a man, without a dissent, believes that this Constitutional Convention must return this right to the injured working man. The unions, without exception, believe that a very basic right has been taken away from the injured working man in the State of Montana, and I understand that the corporate interests that specifically are involved in this have decided that they will not ask anyone to offer opposition to it on the Convention floor. Here is what happened in the Ashcraft case. Charles Ashcraft worked for an independent contractor having no connection with the Montana Power Company. The Montana Power Company made what we call an independent contract to have a new phase placed upon their power poles. Charles Ashcraft went 35 feet into the air. He was there for 20 minutes. Without warning, without any chance to protect himself, that pole gave way below ground level and carried Charles Ashcraft 35 feet to the ground. He was 90-some days in the hospital, but he survived; but he will not work at his trade again. What were the real facts? And keep this in mind: we are only talking about a situation where someone, through negligence, through a failure to use due care, has brought about the injury. There is nothing automatic. You may still suffer injury that is no fault of anyone else-not recover. We are not talking about that. So what were the facts? Dr. Clancy Gordon, one of the environmental advocates, was retained by us. He is a professor of botany at the University of Montana. He examined the pole and found several apparent things about it. One, it violated the statute of the State of Montana that's been on the statute books for more than 50 years, that power companies must construct their poles of cedar-quality or other standardized material. This was a lodgepole pine; it was not as required by statute. This was a lodgepole pine that has a useful life of from 17 to 20 years at the most. This pole had been in place for more than 23 years and had not been inspected for more than 5 years before the accident occurred. As a consequence, the rotting that took place took place below the ground level where the lineman, before climbing the pole, could not detect it, even though in this instance Charles Ashcraft did what he was base of the pole. And as a consequence, through the negligence of the Montana Power Company, he suffered this permanent injury. Up until this decision by the Supreme Court, there was no question that in that situation the injured citizen, the injured working man had a right for proper redress. The Workmen's Compensation law, which is inadequate at best, has certain public reasons for its existence. It applies only between the employer and the employee. So clever legal counsel for the Montana Power Company, and very able, decided maybe there's some way to get away from this case. So they went back to 1965, when the Legislature amended the independent contractor law to provide that you no longer could defend on the ground that someone injured within your work premises was not entitled to Workmen's Compensation from you because he was employed by an independent contractor unless you insisted that that independent contractor carry Workmen's Compensation. The legislators that were behind that amendment were interviewed. They said, "We had nointention whatsoeverofbringing about the results that were brought about by this Supreme Court decision, and you have to strain the reading of that particular section to come up with that particular position." But nevertheless, the Supreme Court--and there's a very bitter dissent on that case-a long and well-reasoned dissent-but in any event, in that case they fastened upon that as a justification and an excuse for denying this working man his remedy. When that happened-and this was after Judge Battin of the Federal Court in a similar case had ruled in Montana that this amendment does not do that—he then had to change his mind, because under federal law, he's bound by a Montana decision. The legal community was shocked. None of us were able to explain the result to the unions, to the working people. This particular right was taken away from the working man after 80 years, so promptly legislators introduced in the Senate a bill to overcome that. It passed the Senate-and I don't want to make a bicameral or a unicameral argument here. (Laughter) Promptly the lobby of the vested corporate interests went across the hall-and we determined this to be true--and made sure that it did not pass in the House. So we're now at the court of last resort. We allowed in our Bill of Rights an amendment to a clean and healthy environment. By this provision and this amendment, we are going to provide for the working man a safe environment. How does the law stand at the moment? Let me tell you how it ests are now using independent contractors because it's reduced their cost of operation. If you have some particular tough job that you want done on your premises where there may be some danger connected with it, what you do, you go out and you hire an independent contractor. Don't have your employees in that dangerous area, because if they're hurt or there's an accident, you have to pay them Workmen's Compensation. So here's the way you do it now that we have immunity from the Supreme Court--an immunity neither intended by the people nor intended by the Legislature. What you do, you hire someone on an independent contractor basis and their employees are in this dangerous area. You don't have to worry about safety anymore. You don't have to do anything to make your premises safe. You don't have to be concerned about a safe environment for the people that are working there to benefit your interests. If they're injured, even though it's the most blatant type of negligence and carelessness, all you have to say is, "Well, we're sorry, but you have your Workmen's Compensation." Maybe you have a wife and seven children, but it's $65 a week for awhile and it's 60, and now, of course, the Legislature has raised it and you can get more money, but that's it. The Workmen's Compensation people were astounded at the decision. They sent their lawyers up to petition forrehearing. I do not think that any strong legal mind could really and truly justify what had happened, which has resulted in this, that in a particular area of industry now we need not have a safe environment for the working man. The vested corporate interest has immunity without paying anything for it. Now, how does it work if we return this basic right that the injured working man had for 80 years? Simply this. Let's assume-let's take the Charles Ashcraft situation. Charles Ashcraft is injured. He proves all these factors about the negligence of the Montana Power Company. He is paid his Workmen's Compensation, so he files what the lawyers call a third party lawsuit. The Montana Power Company then is compelled to acknowledge its obligation. They make payment. He then pays back to the Workmen's Compensation carrier. We have a provision in Montana in the Workmen's Compensation Law that provides for these actions-that the working man doesn't bring it, the Industrial Accident Board does. That law has never been changed. But how about now? That law is almost useless because of this particular interpretation. So what has happened? Regardless of all this conflict, this technicality, having to use the word "Workmen's Compensation" in this particular section, which we didn't want to do, because the minute we did it we knew that somebody would jump up and say it's legislative, but if you're going to draft something with precision and you want to make sure that all that you're doing is returning the law to what it was prior to this decision a year ago, you are compelled, sometimes, in fashioning this precise language to use language that may be seized upon by someone else as legislative. It is not. It is giving back a basic constitutional right that the citizen of Montana had prior to that particular decision. And we submit to you that by this particular provision, all that we are doing is returning that right to the working man; and how can anyone truly, justly object to doing that and only that? Now that is what happened in that particular situation. This is a constitutional provision. We say, in the first sentence, that every citizen shall have the right to full legal redress. We've taken away full legal redress in that particular area. We want to give full legal redress back in that one specific area, and that is why it is framed in that particular fashion. And we submit to you, our fellow delegates, that we are here to make sure that the rights of the citizen are protected, and this is nothing more than a step forward to make sure that they will continue to have a protection that existed for 80 years. We submit it's a constitutional matter and that the amendment is required to have a progressive Bill of Rights. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to Mr. Habedank's amendment. I think if there's anything that should be put into this Constitution, it's the right of a working man. And I feel by this decision of the Supreme Court that he has been denied this right. So I ask the delegates to vote against the amendment and to support the committee's proposal. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Mr. Chairman. I also support the committee's proposal. In eastern Montana there's a lot of accidents in the oilfield, and practically all the work is subcontracted out or contracted out, and we never dreamed--and Mr. Habedank, I'm sure, admits himself he never dreamed, because he's defended these lawsuits-that the Supreme Court would rule in this manner. And I support the committee's proposal because it just-it was a very bad law and it should be restored.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Dahood yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I do yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Wade, I'm a cattle rancher down in southeastern Montana and we live way back in the hills, off the road. We have to maintain our own road; in fact, it's 12 miles there. We built what kind of a road we have, and we try to get by on it. We have some homemade bridges there, and this and that. As a point of clarification, I wanted to ask you, where we would contract somebody to do some work on this road and perhaps one of them with a piece of heavy equipment were doing some shaling or graveling of this or that and one of these bridges would collapse and one of those men would be hurt, then I would be responsible?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Torrey, you would not be responsible. This amendment does nothing more than return the law to what it was about a year ago. Please recall what I said. The only time that someone would be responsible, such as the Montana Power Company, is when they are negligent, they are guilty of some type of civil wrongdoing. And this other argument that's been used, that it's going to open you up or it's going to open the owner of a residence up to some type of lawsuit, is simply, absolutely not true. That's why we fashioned this language precisely as we have. We're doing nothing more than trying to return the law to what it was prior to a year ago. Your situation would be no different than it's been in all the years gone by, Torrey.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: I rise to support our committee's recommendation for this section. I admit that when it first came up from-for discussion, I was appalled at the idea of having something like this in the Bill of Rights. Since that time, I've talked to a good many lawyers. I've only run into a couple of them who don't feel that this Supreme Court case was just--was grossly unfair, the best way to remedy it would be to put it into the Constitution. I did talk with one district judge who suggested that, given a period of time, the climate and the character of the Supreme Court probably would change and they would-probably would reverse this. But I think that in the meantime a good many Montanans are going to suffer an injustice, and I think that, for the most part, our Bill of Rights is really to prevent injustice, even to the few. I also hesitated seeing it come up on the floor, because I think that it really represents a slap in the face to our Supreme Court. And this has been discussed with a great many people. But I think that in this case, the Constitutional Convention does have an opportunity to correct a most unfortunate situation.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Habedank, do you want to close?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Yes, Mr. President [Chairman]. You've had themattervery fairly presented to you by Mr. Dahood. As I told you in the first place, I do not particularly oppose this particular amendment, but I have been told that we lawyers are writing the Constitution, trying to slip matters into this Constitution for our own personal gain. You've had the pro and the con given to you. This is something that can be corrected by the Legislature. You have it in your power to be the supreme Legislature, as the committee has requested you to do. I leave it to you, but I do think that when you do it, you should do it knowing what you do and not accuse the lawyers of pulling the wool over your eyes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the question is on Mr. Habedank's motion to delete lines 9 through 14. We'll have a roll call vote. So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Habedank's motion to delete this material, vote Aye; so many as are opposed, vote No. Has everydelegatevoted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, please take the vote.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 14 have voted Aye, 76 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 76 having voted No and 14 Aye, Mr. Habedank'smotion does not pass. We're on Section 16. Are there other amendments? If not, members of the committee, you have before you on your-on the recommendation of Mr. Murray that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 16, that it recommend the same shall be adopted. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered. Will the clerk read Section 17.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 17, Due process of law. No person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law." Section 17, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, the committee felt that the tradition-ridden phrasing of the due process of law clause should remain just as it is. Accordingly, the wording of Article III, Section 27, of our present Constitution is incorporated verbatim in this proposal. The committee received no suggestion for change in this section, and we recommend its adoption.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of section—

DELEGATE MURRAY: Excuse me, Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 17 of Proposal 8, it recommend the same be adopted, with the explanation I gave.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 17? (No response) So many as shall be in favor of the motion of Mr. Murray, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 17 is adopted. Will the clerk read Section 18.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 18, Nonimmunity from suit. The state and its subdivisions shall have no special immunity from suit. This provision shall apply only to causes of action arising after June 1, 1973." Section 18, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does rise and report., after having had under consideration Section 18 of Proposal 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: This particular provision has, on page 31, 32, and 33, some very lengthy notes that explain what we are attempting to do here. This is the doctrine-all of us know it-the vernacular that the king can do no wrong. It is an old and archaic doctrine, but it is one which the State of Montana has adhered to except in those instances where by statute the state had said that there will not be immunity in-to the extent of insurance coverage. We feel that the doctrine of sovereign immunity, which we are attempting to do away with by this particular provision, really means that the king can do whatever he wants but he doesn't have to pay for it; and we'd like to do away with that doctrine. We are well aware of the fact that the trend in the United States is to do away with this doctrine. We are aware of the fact that a Colorado case did away with the doctrine. We recognize that we took our Constitution and some of our basic laws from Colorado, and we think that now is the time and that this is the place for Montanans to do away with this particular archaic doctrine, and we recommend the adoption of the committee report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank. Do you want the Chair to read your amendment?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read Mr. Habedank's amendment.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 18, line 26, page 31, by adding the following words after the word 'suit': 'for injury to a person or property'. As amended, the section would read: 'Section 18, Nonimmunity from suit. The state and its subdivisions shall have no special immunity from suit for injury to a person or property. This provision shall apply only to causes of action arising after June 1, 1973.' Signed: Habedank."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank has an amendment that adds this language on page 7-it's at the end of line 20, after the word "suit": "immunity from suit for injury to a person or property".

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Presi-

ing nonimmunity for the state. However, ending where it does, I am not certain how far it may go, and I do object to going beyond injury to person or property. In North Dakota, the amendment which they adopted to be submitted to the people reads: "Suits may be brought against the state and its political subdivisions for negligent injury to a person or his property, but the Legislative Assembly may provide for reasonable limitations." That's the end of their amendment. With the provision as it has been offered by the committee and as amended by me, various bodies can pm-chase liability insurance, and they are given time in which to do it, June 1, 1973. And if an injury occurs, they will still not be liable unless there is negligence, but at least no one will be able to hide behind the skirts of the governmental immunity clause in prohibiting the very people that they took insurance to protect from obtaining redress for their wrongs. Limited as it is, for injury to a person or property, the Legislature is still free to make it more open if they desire to in the future. But we at least have assured the people of the State of Montana that they can sue for negligent injury.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I have reviewed with Mr. Habedank and with Chairman Dahood the amendment proposed, and the committee-and I'm sure that I speak for it—will concede to the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Will Mr. Murray yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray?

DELEGATE MURRAY: I yield.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Putting this limitation on an injury to a person--or what if, through negligence of, we'll say, the State of Montana, someone is killed and his survivors--what about their rights?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Well, I think they would still apply under this section. It's my intention that it would, yes.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: What is the purpose of the limitation by limiting the injury just to a person?

DELEGATE MURRAY: It's Mr. Habedank's amendment; you'd probably better ask that of him. I don't know what his purpose is, but I do not find his purpose to be ulterior, as far as I'm concerned.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: I know. May I ask Mr. Habedank to yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank, would you yield?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I yield.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: I don't understand the-why you want the limitation of just injury to a person. I'm not talking about the property rights, because it would seem to me that might put into some question about the survivor's rights-for instance, a wife's rights, children's rights, the state's rights-all of those things which could arise from injuries which ultimately result in the death of the person injured.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I believe injuries to a person which result in death are covered by our survival statutes as they are in existence now. This provides there shall be no special immunity for injury to a person or property, and I believe it would allow the same survival situation that exists before. It was certainly not my objective to eliminate that, but I think there are many instances where there may be some governmental employees do some things in connection with contractual fields that we try to stick the government for where there is a good reason to maintain our governmental immunity in those situations.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, for Mr. Holland's information, I suggest-or I offer that the Supreme Court has held that survivor action is a property right, subject to a 2-year limitation, statute of limitations, as opposed to a 3-year for personal injury, and I think that property right would take care of the problem you're talking about.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion of Mr. Habedank's proposed amendment?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Habedank's amendment, which would add to Section 18, at line 20, at the end of the line, a comma and then the words: "for injury to a person or property", so that the sentence read: "The state and its subdivisions shall have no special immunity from suit for injury to a person or property, period". So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Habedank's amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's adopted. Is there other discussion of Section 17? Section 18 it is, excuse me.

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: I'd like to ask Mr. Murray a question, if I may.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray, would you yield?

DELEGATE MURRAY: I yield.

DELEGATE RYGG: I'm just wondering, having been on the Appropriations Committee before, how is the state going to protect itself? Do you figure just a-do they buy insurance now and take cars of this? Is that what—

DELEGATE MURRAY: In most instances, they have insurance to cover this particular thing. One problem that you might have would be with respect to the-1 think of the Highway Department as a classic example of where they might not have insurance to cover a road defect, or their failure to cure some problem with respect to the highway which might lead or be such negligence as would cause an accident. And in those particular respects, they are not now covered by liability insurance and you cannot sue them, and I think that if we want to build into this state safe highways and make sure that our maintenance work is done properly and that they do not expose the citizens of Montana and elsewhere-the tourists who come into this state-to various situations which might damage or injure them, that we've got to put the pressure on them of suffering the possibility of a lawsuit, because this makes them responsible to us.

DELEGATE RYGG: One further question, if I may.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Do you anticipate this to extra insurance to cost the state any great DELEGATE MURRAY: No, I really don't, Sterling.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Section 19—Section 18 as amended?

Mr. Garlington.

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: I want, Mr. Chairman, to raise the question of what is the proper interpretation to be given to the words "state and its subdivisions". I have reference to local government units and school districts, and it seems to me that this language does not very clearly point to any particular area, and we therefore are building up controversy as to how far this immunity extends. And I think we would have an obligation in this body so to construct our language that we do not create an ambiguity—litigation if we can help it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do any of the committee care to speak to that matter? (No response) Very well, Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Can I ask Mr. Murray a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray?

DELEGATE MURRAY: I yield.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. Murray, don't you feel that perhaps this is more statutory than constitutional?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Well, I guess North Dakota felt that it must be constitutional, and I have been hearing a lot about North Dakota, so I defer to their wisdom in that respect. No, I feel it's a constitutional thing.

DELEGATE WILSON: Would this then apply-if I may ask another question—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Go ahead, Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Would this apply then to all political subdivisions, as Mr. Garlington has raised the question, such as school districts, school boards, and so forth?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Well, it is my understanding that it is, I think, the intent of the committee that its application shall be to all political subdivisions of the State of Montana, what-

DELEGATE WILSON: Then this would cover-would affect fire departments?

DELEGATE MURRAY: I think so.

DELEGATE WILSON: Law enforcement agencies?

DELEGATE MURRAY: I think so. Cities, towns, irrigation districts-anything which might come within the doctrine of sovereign immunity. We're now trying to get rid of that doctrine of sovereign immunity.

DELEGATE WILSON: May I ask another question, Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE MURRAY: I yield.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. Murray, you said it wouldn't cost very much. Isn't this kind of compulsory insurance? Would it cost a great deal of money?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Well, Mr. Wilson, I can't answer you in that respect because I'm not familiar with the cost of insurance. The situations in which the doctrine of sovereign immunity have been invoked in the State of Montana I don't suppose have been many, and I doubt very much if there really will be a great increase in insurance premiums as a result of this change. There may be some. To what extent, I can't answer.

DELEGATE WILSON: Thank you, Mr. Murray.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson, the Chair would observe that many governmental units carry insurance now in spite of the doctrine of sovereign immunity.

Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: Would Mr. Murray yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray?

DELEGATE MURRAY: I will yield.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: Would you or your committee object to the Legislature providing reasonable limitations?

DELEGATE MURRAY: I beg your pardon?

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: Would you or your committee object to the addition of the word "the Legislature may provide for reasonable limitations"?

DELEGATE MURRAY: I don't think we would object to that particularly. That's in the North Dakota Constitution, is it not?

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: Yes.

DELEGATE MURRAY: The one that Mr. Wenstrom sent you? (Laughter)

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: Being a nonlawyer, I'm not going to make a motion, but I sure wish somebody else would.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I think we should point out that there might be some question with respect to the extent of the language "the state and its subdivisions". I think Delegate Garlington does bring up a point. What our committee is really concerned about is making sure that an antiquated doctrine that had no place within American jurisprudence in the first instance is removed from the face of justice in the State of Montana. The federal government did it quite some years ago. They passed the federal tort claims act to cover any negligent activity by any servant of the federal government, and they passed the Tucker Act to make sure that in contract matters this particular defense of sovereign immunity, which should have no place in a democracy, could not be used against someone that was entitled to have full justice and full legal redress. The way the situation stands in the State of Montana at the present time, unless there is some type of insurance coverage, a governmental servant could run you down in the street, be drunk at the time he does it, go through a red stoplight, and you can't recover a dime for your hospital and medical bills and for the support of yourself and your family during your disability. Now surely, no sound-thinking individual can say that that is right. And the intent of the committee is to make sure that in Montana we take it away by constitutional command. In the last several decades, 16 states have done it through Supreme Court decision; several have done it through constitutional amendment. There isn't a legal scholar that1 have read over the past two decades of practicing law, and I'm sure my colleagues here on Convention floor will agree, that can justify the retention of that particular doctrine that the king can do no wrong in Montana and in any of the states of this particular democracy. So it is our intention to remove this particular doctrine because the Supreme Court, when it's been confronted with this particular issue, has said, "Well, we have had it all these years and we don't want to remove it. Let the Legislature do it." The Legislature will come back and say, "Well, let the Supreme Court do it, because, after all, we didn't construct this doctrine-the courts did it years back when they paid so much homage to the law of England that they thought they had to bring it over the seas here to the North American continent." So they keep passing the responsibility back and forth. We have an opportunity now, as long as in Montana no one else will accept it, to make sure that we have full redress and full justice for all of our citizens. So that way, we reduce public dissatisfaction with the administration of justice and make sure that every citizen of Montana has the full right to which he's entitled. We submit it's an inalienable right to have remedy when someone injures you through negligence and through a wrongdoing, regardless of whether he has the status of a governmental servant or not. That is the committee explanation. We think if it's adopted in the language in which it is submitted, that it's going to tell our Supreme Court we do not want that doctrine in the State of Montana. Let's judge cases on the merit, on the principle of what's fair and what's right between man and woman in an organized society. We submit the present language will convey that message. That will be our epistle to justice in the State of Montana and will improve its administration for the benefit of all of us. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The question arises on Mr. Murray's motion that when this body arises and reports, after having had under consideration Section 18 as amended, that the same shall be recommended for adoption. So many as are in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's adopted. Will the clerk read Section 19.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 19, Habeas corpus. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall never be suspended." Section 19, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE R.S. HANSON: I move that when this committee does arise and report, having had under consideration Section 19 of Proposal Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE R.S. HANSON: The present language is shown in our Bill of Rights: "The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall never be suspended." In the present section, Number 21, we have deleted the words "unless in case ofrebellion or invasion, the public safety requires it". The committee felt that we would be accomplishing what we wanted to by cutting out the last words. We hope that you will move for the amendment—or the adoption of this section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman, I feel I especially have to rise in support of this Section 19. The cowboys down in Powder River country just love those words "habeas corpus". (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Those cowboys are learning a lot of new language, too, aren't they, Torrey? (Laughter) All right, is there discussion of Section 19? Members of the committee, you have before you, on the motion of Mr. Hanson that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 19, thatit recommend the same do be adopted. All in favor of Section 19, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All opposed, NO.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 19 is adopted. Will the clerk read Section 20.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 20. Initiation of inferior to the District Courts have jurisdiction shall be prosecuted by complaint. All criminal actions in District Court, except those on appeal, shall be prosecuted by information, after examination and commitment by a magistrate or after leave granted by the court, or shall be prosecuted by indictment without such examination or commitment or without such leave of the court. A grand jury shall consist of seven persons, of whom five must concur to find an indictment. A grand jury shall only be drawn and summoned when the district judge shall, in his discretion, consider it necessary and shall so order." Section 20, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE R. S. HANSON: I move that when this committee does rise and report, having had under consideration Section 20 of Proposal Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE R.S. HANSON: In this section there have been a few changes in words. They are almost identical to our present Section 8, and the committee voted unanimously that this section, which stipulates the method of initiating criminal proceedings, should remain as-with one minor change. The phrase 'justice's courts and municipal and other courts' was deleted as unnecessary and redundant wording. The remainder of the section is verbatim rendering of the Article III, Section 8, providing for prosecution by complaint, information and indictment. It is noted that these fixed aspects of the initiation of proceedings are part of the basic procedural rights framework established to maintain the accusatorial nature of the system of criminal justice. No delegate proposals were received on this provision.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Melvin, you have an amendment. Do you want the clerk to read it?

DELEGATE MELVIN: If you please, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read Mr. Melvin's amendment.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend the Bill of Rights Committee Proposal, Section 20, page 35, line 9, by deleting the word 'seven' and inserting the word 'eleven' and on line 10 by deleting the word 'five' and inserting the word 'eight'. Signed: Melvin."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Melvin has an amendment to Section 20 which appears on page 8. He wants to change the numbers of the grand jury so that they are 11 and 8 must concur in the indictment.

Mr. Melvin.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Mr. Chairman and delegates, the sole purpose of the amendment is to increase the number of grand jurors so that a better chance of the jury arriving at some strong leadership in order to perform the function which they're chosen to do. Now, in 17 years I've observed the two grand juries perform in my particular area-one with regard to a police scandal; the other involved two murders. Especially with regard to the police scandal, that grand jury performed very well and information was obtained during that grand jury hearing that would not otherwise have been obtained. Now, for the layman, I think that it's been so seldom that grand juries have been used in Montana that you should be aware that a grand jury is called only at the request of a District Judge. They assemble at the county seat, and their powers are broad. They're described in Chapter 14 of the Montana Codes, and they can go into all areas of county and city government and functions of the county offices, as well as specific crimes. I'll not belabor the point other than to point out that it's because of the fact that I feel that from 11 people, that stronger leadership could be obtained to conduct this function that I'm asking for this amendment. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE R.S. HANSON: Mr. Chairman, I don't think that the committee has any reason to oppose this amendment, but I'd like to have Mr. Dahood speak on it for a minute.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. Delegate Melvin was gracious enough to discuss this with me, and he has had experience with a grand jury in the State of Montana, and I daresay there are very few lawyers on this Convention floor that have had any experience with it. Let me tell you why. In the Federal Courts, under the federal system of justice, before anyone can be charged with any serious crime or a felony type of crime, it must be upon presentment to the grand jury and the return of a true bill. In Montana we have an alternative provision whereby the prosecuting officer can file against an individual and accuse him of a felony type crime by what we call an information. Although we do have a grand jury procedure, it is almost never used. So it has come down to this in the State of Montana: a grand jury is used on rare occasions when some matter of great concern to the community has arisen and there is some question as to what action should be taken by the county prosecutor, and upon request to the presiding judge of that particular district, a grand jury may be called. It is seldom ever done; and since we have the experience of Delegate Melvin with respect to two grand juries that were called in the 18th Judicial District and he believes that a larger number should serve in that particular instance, we certainly will not quarrel with that opinion. I think there is a rational basis for his amendment, and I think having a larger number in a matter of that type of pressing importance certainly commends itself to us. I think it will serve the purpose for calling a grand jury and for that reason, on behalf of the Bill of Rights Committee, we have no objection to the amendment as presented. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises on Mr. Melvin's amendment that we insert, in Section 20, the numbers "11" for a grand jury, with the number of "8" to concur for the indictment. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and Mr. Melvin's motion is adopted. Is there other discussion of Section 20? (Noresponse) Very well, members of the committee, you have before you for your consideration Mr. Hanson's motion that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 20 as amended, that the same be recommended for adoption. All in favor of that motion, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I move the committee rise, report progress, and ask leave to sit again.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the motion is to rise and report progress. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The committee will rise.

(Proceedings moved from Committee of the Whole into Convention. President Graybill in Chair.)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read the Committee of the Whole report.

CLERK SMITH: "March 8th, 1972. Mr. President: We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration Report Number 8 of the Committee on Bill of Rights, recommend that the committee rise and report progress and beg leave to sit again. Signed: Graybill, Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Members of the committee, unless objection is heard, we will not read the entire report.
Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I move the Convention adopt the Committee of the Whole report.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to adopt the report of the Committee of the Whole. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered. May we be on Order of Business Number 11, Announcements.
Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Education Committee tomorrow morning please at 8:30 in PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Oh, I'm trying to remember what it is Mrs. Babcock wants me to announce. It's that women who might be interested in attending the prayer luncheon on Saturday should make arrangements for that. The prayer breakfast starts at such a late hour that we would have to abandon Saturday morning, but the prayer luncheon will start at noon. And we will probably work till at least noon or a little past on Saturday and give anyone who wants to go to that until about 1:30, so you probably can attend the prayer luncheon if you want to. The prayer breakfast would take from 9:00 till 11:00, and we'll be in session at that time. So if you're interested in the prayer luncheon, please make your arrangements. Are there other announcements? The Chair would like to invite you all to still come to dinner tonight. Mr. Murray, do you have another motion?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move that the Convention adjourn until the hour of 9:00 a.m., March 9th, 1972.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to adjourn until 9:00 tomorrow morning. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Convention adjourned at 5:05 p.m.)

March 9. 1972 Forty-First Day Convention Hall
9:10 a.m. Helena, Montana

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Convention will be in order. If you'll all rise, Mr. Harper will lead us in the invocation this morning.

DELEGATE HARPER: There's a familiar passage of Scripture that says, "This is the day that the Lord has made; let us rejoice in it and be glad." Let us pray. Our Father, let us live this day in the knowledge that it may be the only day we have here. Let this be the day when our wishes are in accord with Your will. Let this be the day when we measure ourselves not against each other, nor even against ourselves of the past, but againstthe measuring rod of humanity we saw in Jesus. And stand us up against the needs and the possibilities of future generations until we see our own lives here in proper perspective and are made humble enough to serve and confident enough to rejoicein this, the day You have made for us, together. Amen.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: We'll take attendance this morning by voting Aye on the voting machines.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President. May Delegates Bowman, Cate, Garlington, Mahoney be excused, please, and Delegate Furlong?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Those-Furlong does not need to be excused yet. Those other delegates are in Great Falls for the television show. Are there other absences?

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Anderson, Delegate Artz, Delegate Bates, Delegate Dahood, Delegate Holland, Delegate McKeon. Delegate Anderson, Delegate Bates, Delegate Dahood, Delegate Holland, Delegate McKeon. Delegate Anderson, Delegate Bates, Delegate Dahood, Delegate Holland, Delegate McKeon.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Will you take the attendance.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. A quorum is present. The journal may so show. Order of Business Number 1.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. President. We, the Committee on Style, Drafting, Transition and Submission, transmits revisions of the Judiciary Article for consideration of the Convention. John M. Schiltz, Chairman; -William A. Burkhardt, Vice-Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Judiciary Article is before you on your desks from Style and Drafting, I might point out to you that it is very possible that we would get to that this afternoon and we might want to waive the time. So if you have any time at noon, you might want to look at the Judiciary Article on style and drafting. We may be getting to that before tomorrow. Order of Business Number 2, Reports of Select Committees.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 3, Communications.

CLERK HANSON: "Helena, Montana: March 8th, 1972. Honorable Leo Graybill, Jr., President, Montana Constitutional Convention; Capitol, Helena, Montana. Dear Mr. President: In accordance with the provisions of Section 15(2), Extraordinary Senate Bill Number 6, Chapter Extraordinary Number 1, Laws of Montana 1971, the license of Joel L. Curtis, license number 84-72, has been reinstated as of March 8th, 1972. Sincerely yours, Frank Murray, Secretary of State." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Yes. Order of Business Number 4, Introduction and Reference of Delegates Proposal.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 5.
Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President. I move that we postpone consideration of business under Order of Business Number 5 until the Convention again reaches that Order of Business, which I hope will be later in the day. And, at that time, we should have the Legislative, final little typewritten report for us so that we'll know finally what we're voting on. And we can take up General Government 1 and 2 and Legislative.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Yes, members of the Convention, the Chair is advised that the Legislative reprint has not yet reached your desks, but it is due and we expect it this morning. So we'd rather do all of those at once. All those in favor of Mr. Murray's motion to pass Order of Business Number 5, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered. Order of Business Number 6, Adoption.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 7, Motions.

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman [President]. I move that this Convention request from the Department of Revenue a fiscal note forecasting the cost of added services to be performed by state and local governments as included in the first eight proposals.

Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: I have no other motive for this than my own curiosity. I guess I feel somewhat the same as if my wife and I had both been on a trip and we'd been spending a lot of counter checks, and now it's time to go down to the bank to see if they'd add them up for me.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. The Chair understands the sense of Mr. Rygg's motion to be that he'd like to ask the state fiscal people for a fiscal note as to what may be the results of what we've done so far in the Convention. If you pass this motion that we ask for that, it is the Chair's intention to refer the matter to Resolutions-so that the Rules and Resolutions—so that the Rules Committee can draw an appropriate resolution to the governmental-or the state agencies so that they will act on more than just our motion. But if you agree with Mr. Rygg that we should ask them for a fiscal note, then vote Yes; and if you don't agree, vote No. And we'll put his motion. Is there discussion?

Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mr. Chairman [President]. Will the roll please show me as present.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The roll will show Mr. Holland as present, and the roll will show Mr. McKeon as present; and the roll show Mr. Dahood is present.

Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. President. Who, specifically, are we going to direct this inquiry to, please?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: The Department of Revenue. The reason for putting it in the Department of Revenue is that they have the personnel normal procedure in the Legislature for every bill that needs an appropriation that we have a fiscal note, and they come back with a figure. I admit they can't always give you the proper figure. They'll have to say, "Well, if you have a hundred members, it's going to be less than if you have a hundred and fifty." But usually they're pretty good about putting down there the approximate reasons for it and giving an alternative of what it will be. So it would just be to the Department of Revenue, and I believe they have a staff who can adequately do that.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Are there other questions or discussion of Mr. Rygg's motion? All in favor of asking the Department of Revenue for a fiscal note on the results of our Convention so far, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and the Chair will refer the matter to the Rules and Resolutions Committee; and Mr. Rygg if you'll work with them to work up a suitable resolution, which we can probably pass tomorrow, and couch it in language so that we can get this accomplished. Are there other resolutions or motions?

CLERK HANSON: None, sir.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 8, Unfinished Business. None?

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 9, Special Orders.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 10.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President. I move the Convention resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for the consideration of business under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray's motion is to resolve this Convention into Committee of the Whole. All in favor, say Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Committee of the Whole)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: March 9th, 1972. The following committee proposals are now on General Orders: Bill of Rights, Education, Public Health, Local Government, General Government, Style and Drafting Report Number 5.
Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. When we completed our work yesterday afternoon, we were-we had just completed Section 20 of the Bill of Rights, so we're on Section 21. Will the clerk please read Section 21.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 21, Bail. All persons shall be bailable by sufficient securities, except for capital offenses, when the proof is evident or the presumption great." Mr. Chairman, Section 21.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. The word is "sureties" in line 9.
Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE HANSON: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 21 of the Bill of Rights Number 8, it recommend the same be adopted as amended.
Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE HANSON: The committee voted unanimously to retain this section unchanged. As it stands, the section announces that all persons are bailable except in certain capital offenses. No delegate proposals were received on this provision.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is therediscussion of Section 21? Very well. You've all heard the motion of Mr. Hanson that this committee recommend the adoption of Section 21. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Will the clerk read Section 22.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 22, Excessive sanctions. Excessive bail shall not be required, or excessive fines imposed, or cruel and unusual punishments inflicted." Section 22, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Sullivan.

DELEGATE SULLIVAN: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 22 of Proposal 8, it recommends that the same be adopted.
Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Sullivan.

DELEGATE SULLIVAN: The Committee voted unanimously that this section be retained unchanged. It is thought that the section provides the Judiciary and the Legislative adequate flexibility to apply the principle that there shall not be excessive bail, excessive fines, or cruel and unusual punishments. No delegates proposals were received on this provision. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is therediscussion of Section 22? Members of the committee, you've heard Mrs. Sullivan's recommendation that Section 22 be adopted. All in favor of that, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Will the clerk read Section 23.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 23, Detention. No person shall be imprisoned for the purpose of securing his testimony in any criminal proceeding longer than may be necessary in order to take his deposition. If he can give security for his appearance at the time of trial, he shall be discharged upon giving the same. If he cannot give security, his deposition shall be taken in the manner prescribed by law and in the presence of the accused and his counsel or without their presence if they shall fail to attend the examination after reasonable notice of the time and place thereof. Any deposition authorized by this section may be received as evidence on the trial if the witness shall be dead or absent from the state." Section 23. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 23 of the Bill of Rights Proposal Number 8, it recommends that the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. This section is exactly the same as Article III, Section 17, in the present Constitution. The provision prohibits unreasonable detention of witnesses and prescribes in detail the procedure for securing testimony in the event the witness cannot be procured for the trial. No delegate proposals were received on this particular section. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President [Chairman]. Would Mr. Dahood yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: In connection with Section 23, Mr. Dahood, was any consideration given by your committee to enlarging the use of the deposition so that it could be used under circumstances where the witness was not absent from the state or dead? It occurs to me that there are many instances which would arise, where a deposition has been so taken, that the evidence is necessary, the witness cannot be located. He may be ill, many other things.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Well, Mr. Habedank, that was discussed to some extent, not any great extent; but we felt that the Montana Civil Procedure Act would take care of that under the discovery Sections, 26 through 37. And we thought that the deposition sections contained therein covered those situations that you refer to now.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Dahood -may I ask Mr. Dahood another question?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Did you consult with any prosecuting attorneys-I have never been one-as to whether or not they have ever

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Habedank, we did not consult with any prosecuting attorney. Again, we have the new Criminal Code which we think, in certain sections, covers that situation. And we did not see that there was any particular reason or need for any constitutional change. That is why we stayed with the section as it is.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion?

Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: I just delivered a proposed amendment to the clerk, Mr. Chairman. It simply would strike the last sentence off-and I move to strike the last sentence of Section 23, starting at lines 24 through 26 on page 8. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you want the clerk to read your—

DELEGATE KELLEHER: I don't think it's necessary.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Mr. Kelleher has an amendment.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: The reason—Mr. Chairman—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, just a minute till I write it down here. Explain-you want to strike the last sentence?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Only the last sentence.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The last sentence begins—

DELEGATE KELLEHER: "Any deposition authorized by this section may be received as evidence on a trial if the witness shall be dead or absent from the state."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Mr. Kelleher has proposed an amendment to Section 23 which would strike the last sentence from the language of Section 23: "Any deposition authorized by this section may be received as evidence on a trial if the witness shall be dead or absent from DELEGATE KELLEHER: The reason— the primary reason for striking this, Mr. Chairman, is that I believe it clearly violates Section— Amendment 6—of the federal Constitution which, as you know, has been incorporated into Article XIV. The matter is well covered under Section 95.1802. In fact, I think the whole section is constitutional, but it is a rather important matter, so I did not move to strike the whole section. At page 171 of the Bill of Rights Committee's own report— the very fine work done by Mr. Applegate-he points out the fact that in Pointer versus Texas, that was a 1965 case, the 6th Amendment was put in the 14th Amendment-and, of course, that was written many years after our own-original Constitution was drafted-that the government cannot use such a deposition. The deposition may be used by the defendant. And we could amend to put that-to allow that in the last sentence, but that's already included in our statutes, so I see no need for it. And this is very similar to Rule 15 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure; and in Moore's Federal Practice, the commentary reads: "The government has no right to move to take a deposition under Rule 15. The use of depositions in criminal cases has always raised questions of possible infringement of a defendant's 6th Amendment right to confront witnesses against him. This was no doubt the reason for the Supreme Court's rejection of the original advisory committee's proposal to permit government depositions, as well as for the rejection of a similar provision contained in a proposed amendment." Now, I realize, as I said, that it's in the present Constitution, but that amendment-that portion of it was declared unconstitutional. If the committee wants to allow the defendant, as it is in the federal rule, to use these depositions, I have no objection to that, but just that-so long as the government in a prosecution cannot use the deposition because of the 6th Amendment. And that matter, incidentally, is very well covered in the committee's following section, Section 24, the fourth line at the bottom of page 8, where we read: "to meet the witnesses against him face to face". Even though the deposition has been taken, that-the criminal defendant still has a right to have that deponent— have the jury examine his demeanor on the witness stand. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. We do not object to the motion by Delegate Kelleher, but I think I should explain some of the problems that have been discussed, for the benefit of the nonlawyer delegates. The word "deposition" simply means that you take the testimony of a witness, under oath before a court reporter, and then that testimony is transcribed. When you have a material witness who is absolutely essential to the case for the state or the prosecution, it sometimes becomes necessary to preserve that testimony for the benefit of the state by taking what is called a deposition. Again, nothing more nor less than the testimony of that witness, under oath, by question and answer. The Montana Criminal Code is going to protect the defendant, because that deposition can only be taken upon proper notice. And one of the bulwarks of liberty under our system of law is the right of the defendant to confront the witness who may stand against him and through his counsel to cross-examine that witness. That right is provided when a deposition is taken. In other words, the state is represented by the prosecuting attorney, the questions are asked of that particular witness. Those questions are written down by the court reporter, as well as the answers; and then the attorney on behalf of the defendant will ask questions and they are written down along with the answers. And any objections with respect to any questions that may be wrong are then decided by the judge at a later time. Since these matters are covered within our Montana Criminal Code and, with respect to any other matter that may relate to any civil procedure, also covered by the Montana Civil Procedure Code, there is really no problem. The constitutional guarantees are going to be applied. We did not take that sentenceout, because we were quite concerned about making sure that, wherever we could, we left the basic rights of the people in the same language in which they were framed in 1889, where the language was still correct and was still proper and was still reflective of society's current needs to have these particular rights in the Bill of Rights. With that explanation, I again state that the Bill of Rights Committee hasnoobjection to the amendment to delete as proposed by Delegate Kelleher. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood. I wonder if the-if you'd yield to a question from the Chair.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I do yield.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: On line 21, it says-it says in line 20 that the deposition of such a witness must be taken in the presence of the accused or his counsel or without their presence if they shall fail to attend the examination after reasonable notice of the time and place thereof. And then, down in your next section-Section 24—it says "to meet the witnesses against him face to face". Assuming a situation where a criminal—where a person might be charged but not yet apprehended, would you expect this person to come in and appear for the deposition? And if you don't really expect that, then how are you going to let him meet the witnesses face to face? In other words, I'm bothered by Mr. Kelleher's point that in some cases, the defendant-it isn't just amatterof notice like in a civil case. This defendant may have good reason not to appear, and yet he wouldn't be able to meet his accuser face to face as you are requiring in the next section.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: In my judgment, Mr. Chairman, I think it is absolutely essential that the person against whom that deposition is to be used does appear, under circumstances where he is before the court under process of court. I should think that in the situation that you have just stated, that that particular defendant is not yet under the control of the court by effective service of process, and therefore in my judgment, he would not be bound by any deposition taken under those circumstances.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That may be; that doesn't appear to me from lines 22 and 23.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Well, that would be my opinion: that the only time that you can use a deposition is when there has been fair process, just process, due process with respect to that defendant. There's some technical reason as to why he is not within the power and jurisdiction of the court because he has not been arrested and arraigned. Under those circumstances, I do not think that this particular type of deposition procedure can be effective against him. And that is our thinking and my thinking as Chairman of the committee. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Section-of Mr. Kelleher's amendment to Section-proposed amendment to Section 23?

Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Mr. Chairman, could I ask Mr. Dahood a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Mr. Dagranting power to a trial judge to allow this deposition to be entered if all the qualifications are met in the preceding section and if they are met down below; whereby if it is struck out, regardless of whether--what the 6th Amendment says, until it's specifically ruled on by the court maybe it should be left in to allow the prosecution to be able to introduce such a deposition even though, at the time of the trial, the defendant does not have the right to, you know, to be able to be present and cross-examined.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Well, Delegate McDonough, I think you raised a good point. I think that the Montana Criminal Code, which, of course, was recently passed and which recently became law in Montana, does cover the point. But I think you're correct that this does provide a direction to the court that if these other conditions are met, then this particular deposition shall be admissible. But in my judgment, I do not think eliminating this particular section is going to change the status of criminal procedure in any respect. And perhaps, Mr. Chairman, as long as these questions are being raised and there is some doubt, perhaps then we should reject the amendment. I, from a standpoint of substance, do not think it's going to affect our present state with respect to civil procedure in the criminal area at all. But if there is some question, then I think perhaps then, even though I have no personal objection on behalf of the committee to the amendment, it ought to be rejected. We looked at this section. I looked at it; the other lawyers looked at it. There were things that we could have done, perhaps to make the wording more clear, perhaps to add something; but we did think that there were other areas of the law which, of course, were enacted by the Legislature that covered the situation. There are basic constitutional protections with respect to a defendant that must be honored at all times. But in view of the questions that have been raised, and questions by lawyers, I would think under the circumstances then, perhaps I should not agree with Delegate Kelleher and perhaps the section should remain as it is. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman]. I would feel compelled to resist the amendment. There's a lot of truth in what's been said about the fact that the federal may control, but this has been in the statutes-or in the Constiinterpreted the last time in 147 Montana-I don't know what year that would be, but about '65 or after that-and they held that this provision allowing for the taking of depositions does not violate Article III, Section 16, of the Montana Constitution, which provides for the right to confrontation and that this deposition taken under authority of this provision are admissible upon trial upon showing the witness is either dead or not within the jurisdiction. It's extremely important in a case, and I think I maybe can give you an example that may be of some benefit. In a recent criminal action, we had a real notorious criminal who robbed an old man down by the river, tied him up and he was going to kill him. The witnesses to the thing were from out-of-state. We're permitted to take their deposition and preserve it. The testimony is then preserved, and in some instances, you don't have the defendant himself captured. You don't even know who he is, maybe, until several years later, in some recent cases in Montana. The first part of this section permits you to take this man-material witness and hold him unless he makes bail or take his deposition. Well, the whole theory is not to hold the material witness. It's the right of another person is 'involved here now, is the right of a witness. He's not going to be confined till trial. You can release him, but he takes his deposition, If the defendant is unknown or in flight, it's not necessarily prejudicial; it may never be used. In the case that I'm referringto, the defendant jumped $15,000 bail and was apprehended 2 years later, hoping that the old man would die. His testimony would then be gone, the case is gone against him; or the other material witness would be gone, who had moved out of state in the construction business. So I would think that it would be a grave mistake to take away this. If the courts-if the federal courts are very jealously guarding all rights of defendants, the Supreme Court is very jealously guarding all rights of defendant, and I don't think it would accomplish what you're really seeking to do by just deleting the last portion of this. There needs to be a provision for taking of depositions of material witnesses in any criminal case, and I'm sure we want to preserve that. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman. I didn't mean to instigate a great debate over such a minor technical matter. But in State versus Storm, our own Supreme Court held-and this is no place to conduct an education class on criminal procedure, I realize that, too-but our Supreme Court, in 1953, said it was error for the trial court to allow the testimony of a witness at the first trial to be read into evidence at the second trial. It was the right of the defendant to have the jury seen—observe the witness upon the witness stand. It was his right that the jury see how the witness acted upon direct- and cross-examination. It was his right to have the jury judge the credibility of the witness from his appearanceand manner while on the witness stand. None of these rights could be had except and unless the witness met the defendant-quote-"face to face"-close quote—in the presence of the jury during the course of the trial. This is awful clear law. I thought it was. I had a murder case last summer, and the only witness was a prostitute. And they had to go find her, put her in jail, take her deposition, and she took off. The Federal Court in Pointer versus Texas—once again, the blue and white book done by Mr. Applegate-clearly sets forth that "The Supreme Court held that the right would be enforced against the state under the 14th Amendment according to the same standards to protect those personal rights against federal encroachment."-close quote. There's no doubt-by striking the last sentence, they could still take the deposition of any defendant. They could put this person in jail. And the reason I didn't strike the whole section is, as I told Chairman Dahood the other day I had planned originally to do, is that I think there's some merit to leaving the first part of the section in so that they just can't take them, lock them up, take their deposition and then forget about them. They have to release them, but even that's covered by the statute. The more I'm thinking about it, Chairman Dahood, I think maybe the whole section ought to be stricken. It's unnecessary in the Bill of Rights and it's covered by the federal-I mean, it's covered by our statutory law, in Title 95 of the Revised Codes. If we want to leave in an unconstitutional provision, that's all right. I'm not going to make a big issue-there's a lot of other matters that are a lot more important, Mr. Chairman, that we should be getting on to.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Kelleher's amendment to strike the last sentence, lines 24 to 26 of Section 23. Those—that sentence saying: "Any deposition authorized by this section may be received as evidence on a trial if the witness shall be dead or absent from the state." So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Kelleher's motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's defeated. Mr. Arbanas, do you have an amendment to this section? No, is it 28? Very well. Is there other discussion of Section 23? If not, members of the committee, you have before you for your consideration, upon the recommendation of Mr. Foster, that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 23, that it recommend the same be adopted. All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Twenty-four, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 24, Rights of the accused. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall have the right to appear and defend in person and by counsel; to demand the nature and cause of the accusation; to meet the witness against him face to face; to have process to compel the attendance of witnesses in his behalf; and a speedy public trial by an impartial jury of the county or district in which the offense is alleged to have been committed, subject to the right of the state to have a change of venue for any of the causes for which the defendant may obtain the same." Section 24, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 24 of Proposal 8, it recommends that the same be adopted as amended.
Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: The committee voted unanimously to retain the former Article III, Section 16, unchanged. The committee felt it was an admirable statement of the fundamental procedural rights of the accused. No delegate proposals were received on this provision. This article-or this section is basically the same as Article VI in the Bill of Rights in the federal Con-16 in our present Constitution. It has stood the test of time, and I feel that it should be adopted as is.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion?
Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President [Chairman]. Would Mr. James yield to a question?

DELEGATE JAMES: Yes, Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I realize this section is identical with the present Constitution, but I've always wondered about the words on line 11 in the present Constitution, and as contained herein, "or district". I'm wondering if any consideration was given by the committee to striking those words so that a person would have to be tried in the county where the crime is committed. We don't have districts in the State of Montana, and I don't know what the framers had in mind.

DELEGATE JAMES: Well, I assume, while I'm not a—one of the "legalites", I do believe this is the county judicial district, or I suppose if we set up a district system eventually in our state, this could apply. Does that satisfy you? Thank you, Mr. Habedank.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion? If not, members of the committee, you have before you Section 24, upon Mr. James' recommendation that when this committee arise and reports, that we recommend it do be adopted. All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 24 is adopted. Will the clerk read Section 25.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 25, Self-incrimination and double jeopardy. No person shall be compelled to testify against himself in a criminal proceeding, nor shall any person be twice put in jeopardy for the same offense previously tried in any jurisdiction." Section 25, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and tion 25 of Proposal Number 8, it recommends that the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman. "Self-incrimination and double jeopardy. No person shall be compelled to testify against himself in criminal proceedings, nor shall any person be twice put in jeopardy for the same [offense] previously tried in any jurisdiction." Now, there's a little change in this. If you read the comments, I believe there have been some cases here where a person could possibly be put in-tried both in state and federal jurisdiction. I must admit, Mr. Chairman, I'm kind of on the spot here, because according to my standard motion sheet, I was supposed to take 24, 28, 29 and 31. So I was sort of caught off base on this one, so I will defer to Mr. Dahood.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood wrote your name on the sheet. Mr. Dahood, would you like to help him out?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Yes, I will Mr. Chairman. I think there was a mistake in the typing. But in any event, probably it's something that I should explain, since it is a legal distinction. We have added the language "nor shall any person be twice put in jeopardy for the same offense previously tried in any jurisdiction." The phrase "previously tried in any jurisdiction" has been added. The rule throughout the United States and the several states in the past has always been that you could be tried twice for the same crime and be punished twice for the same crime, contrary to the popular conception that this cannot happen in America. It was justified by the courts in this fashion: a state is a separate criminal jurisdiction; the United States is a separate federal jurisdiction. Each is autonomous in the area of criminal practice, and each has a sovereign right to prescribe punishment for transgressions of the law within its own area of jurisdiction. So consequently, if you stole a car in Montana and drove it across a state line, you would commit two crimes. The first crime, of course, would be against the law of the State of Montana in taking the car, and technically you could be tried, convicted and sentenced to a substantial term in the penitentiary. And the federal court could then place a detainer upon you and, upon your release, since the statute of limitations would not run while you're incarcerated, then take you to a federal courtroom and have you tried and convicted and sentenced to a federal penitentiary. The Supreme Court of the United States, in reviewing the situation, has now indicated that the two-sovereignties rule is perhaps unconstitutional. We do not have a clear-cut declaration that this is going to be applied absolutely in all cases. I understand that in the federal prosecuting area, there is a somewhat unwritten policy that the federal government will no longer participate in that type of situation. We think it violates a basic fundamental right that an individual should be punished only once for whichever transgression he may be convicted of, whether under federal law or state law. It shouldn't make any difference which jurisdiction has him first. The idea, of course, is to protect society, to have him punished, to have him pay his debt to society, and after that debt has been paid in full, to return and rehabilitate himself and become a useful, functioning member of society. What this does, it provides now in Montana that if someone should commit some crime within the geographical sovereign limits of Montana and he transgresses federal criminal law at the time that he does it and the Federal Court should have him tried and convicted after indictment by a federal grand jury, that's the end of it. The State of Montana then loses jurisdiction to try him. I might tell you this: that usually, unless there's some overriding consideration, the federal prosecuting authorities usually will defer to the wishes of the state prosecuting authorities in proceeding where there is a violation of state law. We think it is a right that should be afforded constitutionally. It is fair and just, and we submit that this particular section, as amended, should be adopted. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman. That's exactly what I meant. Thank you, Wade. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas—Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman, maybe I should address my question to Mr. James, then. (Laughter). I wonder if I could ask Mr. Dahood a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood, would you and Mr. James yield?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield.

DELEGATE ARNESS: As I understand it, Mr. Dahood, this area is an area that is covered by the-or generally comes into play under the operation of what's called the Posse Comitatus Act that was enacted by the federal Congress. And where we get into problems of this kind would be a situation where an airman from Malmstrom would steal a car in Great Falls and drive it into the Air Force base. The prosecution in the federal-or in the state court for the car theft would probably not entirely satisfy the Air Force authorities, who might want to give this man a dishonorable discharge on account of the offense that he had committed against his status as an airman. How would this provision that we have in the Constitution here affect the operation of the Posse Comitatus Act and the situation that I've described?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: If you're referring to the military tribunal, Delegate Arness, let me state this: that I was an officer in the Judge Advocate General's Corps during the Korean War, served in the Defense Appellate Division in Washington, D.C., under the new Uniform Code of Military Justice, and it's a little toocomplicated to discuss at this point. Let me just say this: what we're trying to do here is to make sure that Montana is not going to punish someone who has already been punished for a transgression against society, whether it be the Montana society or the federal society.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: May1 ask another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE ARNESS: You don't think, then, that the other-the operation of this, on the other hand- that is, from the other point of view- from the federal point of view, would make any difference so far as our deliberations is concerned?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: No, Delegate Arness, because we cannot do anything that is going to be binding upon the federal jurisdiction or the military jurisdiction. We can only pass a constitutional protection with respect to the operation of Montana law. Any protection within the two sovereignties, that rule, must come, for the federal area, from the federal courts; within the military area, from the United States Court of Military Appeals. We can only be concerned with Montana. We're hopeful that by doing this in Montana, we're going to balance out the trend and the movement within the federal area. As to what the military is doing, I'm not prepared to state at this time.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: No, that's all the questions I have.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President [Chairman]. Would Delegate Dahood yield to another question?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE STUDER: I really don't know much about this Kamikaze Quo Vadis Act or whatever it was you were talking about, but (Laughter) if a fellow stole that car like you say and went out of the state with it and the federals tried him first for transportation over the state line and I wasn't exactly satisfied that they'd prosecuted right or it'd been bungled some way and he'd been turned loose, that means that when that fellow comes back here and we have definite evidence that he'd swiped the car and everything, I can't do anything about it?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: No, not a thing you can do about it, Delegate Studer, simply because-that they've had one chance at him, that's enough. That's double jeopardy. It's just like in our state courts. Let me amplify somewhat. Let's assume that an individual is tried in state court for a criminal act and some mistake is made in the trial that allowed the jury to come back with a verdict of acquittal. You cannot then appeal to the Supreme Court, for example, and say that there was some type of procedural error or there was some evidence that we could have procured at that particular time that might have convicted him which we didn't have at that time. Once the acquittal is made, once there's a verdict of not guilty, that's the end of it, regardless of what anyone might think upon reflection.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes.

DELEGATE STUDER: Can I ask another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE STUDER: You haven't got it exactly right. You know, they prosecuted him for going across the state line with a car; now I want to prosecute him for swiping the car. I mean, isn't that two different actions?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Basically, Delegate Studer, the courts look at it from the standpoint that there are certain operative facts within a particular crime or a particular area of criminal activity. And that argument has been used a number of times to try and get around the double jeopardy provision, but the courts always say that if you're in the course and conduct of a particular activity to accomplish a particular act, either you are going to be tried on a number of counts at that particular time for the various laws that you may have violated in trying to achieve this particular criminal objective, or the courts and the prosecuting officials are prohibited from going back into it. And I know precisely what you have in mind. You might be able to say, "Well, even though he's only done this one thing, he's violated a number of laws." He's violated, perhaps, a law of break-in and entry, perhaps a malicious destruction of property, asportation of the property itself. Perhaps in taking the car, there was an assault and a battery. There are a number of things that could take place. If you want that individual convicted for all of those independent criminal transgressions, even though they come within the same criminal activity area, then you must allege different counts at the time that he's being tried. If you elect to go ahead just on one count, you can't say, "Well, I'll try it on one count; and if I don't make it there, then I'll come back and get the guy on the second count; and if I miss there, I'm going to get him on the third; and if I miss there I'm to get him on the fourth." That's not permitted. Have I answered your question?

DELEGATE STUDER: Yeah, but not too good. I ain't satisfied with it. (Laughter)

DELEGATE DAHOOD: All right, Delegate Studer, thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood, you've answered his question.

Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Mr. Dahood, would you yield?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Is your answer to Mr. Studer's question this: that where there are two acts, the act of stealing a car and the second act, the act of taking the car across the state lines, that there-may there be a prosecution under the federal law for violation of a federal law, the interstate transportation, and also a subsequent prosecution under our state law for the car theft?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: My answer is that under our amendment, that cannot take place.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion of Section 25? If not, members of the body, you have before you, on the motion of Mr. James that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 25, that it recommend the same be adopted. So many as are in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it. Now, I postponed this until after Mr. Kelleher made his motion awhile ago, but Mr. Kelleher, would you like to make your public recantation now? (Laughter)

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Oh, it isn't that bad, Wade. I just would like the journal to show that I was on that wrong-way trip with wrong-way Harrington; I was in that airplane yesterday with you, Dan. I meant to vote on Section 14, was it, on the 18-year-olds having adult rights. I wanted to show that I thought I was voting on the amendment, and I wanted the record to show that I'm in favor of 18-year-olds being declared adults. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, that's number two of the two people that voted against that required roll call vote yesterday; they've both admitted they were wrong now. (Laughter) We're glad to have the record show that you two meant to be with the majority, and I'm still looking for the guy that made us go on a roll call on that one. (Laughter)

All right. Mr. Campbell, do you wish to recant?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: No, I certainly don't. I would just like to congratulate Mr. Kelleher and Mr. Harrington and say that it was the first unanimous vote that we've ever agreed on anything. And I'm certainly happy it's on the record, and it couldn't be for a better group. So thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Now we're on Section 26. Would the clerk read 26.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 26, Trial by jury. The right of trial by jury shall be secured to all and remain inviolate, but in all cases and upon default of appearance or by consent of the parties expressed in such manners as law may prescribe, a trial by jury may be waived or a trial had by any less number of jurors than the number provided by law. In all civil actions, two-thirds in number of jury may render a verdict, and such verdict so rendered shall have the same force and effect as if all such jury concurred therein. In all criminal actions, the verdict shall be unanimous." Section 26, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 26 of Proposal Number 8, it recommends that the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: You will see, on page 39 of our Bill of Rights booklet, the comments on this section. We have kept it the same except for two changes which we feel will allow a great deal of flexibility in the law. First of all, a number less than 12 could be used in any civil or criminal trial if the defendant or the parties agree. Second of all, a jury trial could be waived by a defendant. Now, this is important especially in the smaller counties where a jury trial may come up [illegible] quate county jails until the next jury term. This would allow him to intelligently waive this right and allow him to be tried by the judge without a jury. The second-or the third change in this would require a unanimous jury verdict. As you know, under the old Constitution, a misdemeanor is two-thirds of the jury in a criminal action [and] could convict. We feel that the misdemeanor status for any criminal action should require the same standard of proof, and that is beyond a reasonable doubt. We do not feel that we can justify taking away a man's livelihood, putting a permanent criminal record on him, for anything less than a unanimous jury verdict. In the federal courts, a unanimous jury verdict is required in all civil and criminal cases. We have talked with the Montana County Attorneys Association about these two changes. They did enthusiastically accept them, and I would recommend that they be adopted by the Convention. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank, do you want to—

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President [Chairman]. In lieu of the amendment which I sent up to you, I would propose amending this section on line 5, page 39, by inserting between the words "actions" and "two-thirds", the following words: "and in criminal cases not amounting to felony".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: What line was that, Mr. Habedank?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: It would be on line 5, page 39, of your particular one.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Seventeen?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Line 5, page 39, between the words "actions" and "two-thirds".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. That's on line 19, page 9. In other words, Mr. Habedank proposes an amendment to Section 26, on line 19, page 9, of the first text: "In all civil actions and in criminal cases not amounting to felonies"-you wanted it "felonies", plural?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I was using "felony", singular.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, to a felony, two-thirds number of the jury could render a verdict. In other words, it would have the effect of making misdemeanors in civil and criminal DELEGATE HABEDANK: That is correct, Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank, you may discuss that.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President [Chairman]. The words I have inserted and the way it is inserted would make the present proposed Section 26 read as our prior Section 23 did. I am aware of the thinking of the majority, but I do not agree with the majority that a conviction of a misdemeanor results in a lifetime criminal record. I feel that any case in Justice Court is appealable to District Court. If a person receives what he considers an unfair trial without any other reason than that, he can appeal the case to District Court and have it tried de novo. I feel a conviction by two-thirds of a jury is just as reasonable in a misdemeanor case as two-thirds in a civil case. And I strongly urge that the Constitution as it has been in existence for all these years be retained. I have not been in connection with the County Attorneys Association, but I'm a little perplexed that they would endorse such a change wholeheartedly. I rather think they may have stated that they would accept and have to work with it, which they would have to if they required a unanimous decision. I would like to ask Mr. Davis if he would yield to a question, as he has been in this business.

Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Would you state your feeling as a County Attorney about a unanimous verdict in misdemeanor cases?

DELEGATE DAVIS: I don't feel a unanimous verdict is necessary. I don't know what testimony the committee heard on this particular point. I would rather have some very serious reservations, if there were too much testimony, that this created any great amount of injustice. You're dealing with the lesser type offenses. And I don't know what the County Attorneys Association position is on it, as I'm no longer a County Attorney, so I'm not too much help. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. President [Chairman] and fellow delegates. I resist the amendment very strongly. The whole concept of trial by jury is that the individual have the protection that he be declared guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. And if, in fact, the prosecution can show that he is guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, he will, in fact, be found guilty by a unanimous decision. The question of the seriousness, to me, seems to be somewhat begging the point. Whether it's a misdemeanor or a felony, it's still a question of prosecution. It's still a question that's on your record. It's a question which society is looking to in judging you as an individual. And I submit that if any of us are going to be tried on a count, it'll probably be on a misdemeanor charge, and I think that we need the protection of being found guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. And I think that this is a very basic right as an American citizen, and I think that this is taking a step in our Constitution to preserve this important right. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Melvin.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Mr. Chairman. Would Mr. Foster yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster?

DELEGATE FOSTER: Yes, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Mr. Foster, in the present Constitution, the provision is the same as the amendment. Did your committee hear any testimony that would indicate any abuses as a result of the two-thirds rule in the Constitution?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Our committee discussed it in considerable detail, and we did not actually solicit or receive outside testimony. But in the course of our deliberations and in the course of our discussions, we felt that, in fact, a number of instances could apply where if a person had been found guilty of a misdemeanor, it could affect him in business. It could affect him in his normal life. It also could affect him if he was later charged with some other act. And we felt that it was an important right that he be found guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. We did not go out and solicit input of people that have been found guilty of misdemeanors. We didn't feel that this was necessary. But our committee did discuss it very fully, and we unanimously agreed that this provision should be in the Constitution. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Melvin.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Thank you. Mr. Chairman, I support Mr. Habedank's amendment as being the same as in the present Constitution. And it seems to me that that has served us quite adequately.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: Would Mr. Dahood yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I do yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE BERG: Under the provisions of the amendment as you have it for a misdemeanor, it would require a unanimous verdict to acquit as well as to convict for a misdemeanor. Is that true?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: A unanimous verdict to acquit?

DELEGATE BERG: Yes.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: That would be correct; otherwise you would have a hung jury.

DELEGATE BERG: And if you have a hung jury, you'd have a mistrial and the action may be tried again.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: And that is the same situation as in a felony case at the present time, Mr. Berg. That's correct.

DELEGATE BERG: This, then, would obtain on misdemeanors. So that the delegation understands it, in order to acquit, you also require a unanimous jury decision. Whereas, under the old Constitution, it took two-thirds to acquit as well as to convict.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Except for one thing, Mr. Berg. You're placing the emphasis on the wrong side of that particular issue. We're concerned with protecting the innocent from an unjust conviction. But your reasoning, if carried out logically, is correct.

DELEGATE BERG: And unquestionably, the jury would be so instructed, would they not?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: They would have to be so instructed.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. I think the nonlawyer delegates would be interested to know that we have two requirements of proof in the system of justice that we have in the State of Montana. The heart and soul of the American protective system of criminal justice is reasonable doubt. That system exists first and foremost for the protection of the innocent. In a criminal case, you are compelled to prove that the defendant is guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, in different terms but to the same effect, to a point of moral certainty, before you cast your vote in favor of guilty. In a civil case, the requirement of proof is substantially different. All that is required in a civil case is that, upon the scales of justice, the evidence tips ever so slightly towards one party or the other for that particular party to prevail. In other words, if you have a quantum of proof that is measured as 100 percent, if you have 51 percent in a civil suit, you're entitled to the verdict of that jury. You don't have moral certainty: you don't have reasonable doubt involved. In a criminal case, the state may have proved its case by 99 percent of the evidence, but a reasonable mind, because of that 1 percent vacuum, many engender or harbor some reasonable doubt; and under our law, solidified by the wisdom of thecenturies, that individual is entitled to be found not guilty. If the rule be, then, from that reasoning, thatin all criminal cases, in order to have our system of justice work as we intend it to work, you have to be found guilty beyond a reasonable doubt regardless of whether it's a felony or a misdemeanor. How can you apply that reasoning to a misdemeanor case where four out of six have voted for guilt and two have not? How can you say, then, that this individual has been convicted beyond a reasonable doubt when two competent citizens have said, "We are not satisfied"? Has reasonable doubt been really satisfied in that situation? Does moral certainty really take over and command those facts to a point where we can say that, to a moral certainty, his guilt has been established when two competent citizens have said "No, we are not satisfied"? And the misdemeanor case is far more important now than it was before. We discussed this issue with respect to the rights of young people. And my colleagues can tell you of sheets that are sent to the sheriffs office, and to the prosecuting officers, from the federal enforcement authorities, from the FBI headquarters in Washington. You may think that a misdemeanor doesn't mean anything, but let me tell you this: the vast record-particular mode of life, and they will show whether or not the accusation has been made and what the result of that accusation has been. And it is important. A misdemeanor is a criminal matter, even though of less severe import than a felony matter. But the reasoning behind it is the same; the spirit that protects the innocent as opposed to the guilty is the same. And if we're going to have any consistency, any logical run of reason throughout all of the law, which is what we should have, if we're going to have a soundlegalcriminal law system, then the mode of proof-the requirement of proof, the requirement of verdict must necessarily be the same. And I must support the position of our committee.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman. I wonder if I could ask Mr. Dahood two or three questions in a row here.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood, will you yield—

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -for a series of questions?

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Wade, this is for my own knowledge mainly, now, so I may know how to vote. We're talking about minor traffic violations, are we?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: We are.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Yes.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Anything that constitutes a misdemeanor.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Yes. Then, in the case of a minor traffic violation, it is this person's right to demand a jury trial. Is this also true?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: That is true.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Then he does not have to hire an attorney?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: He does not, in a misdemeanor matter or in any other matter.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: So he has no expense himself by asking for a jury trial?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: He does not.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: I see. Yeah. well, thank you, Wade. I'd like to reiterate a little something that happened in our area. Now, I don't know very much about courts; I've never been into one, only as a witness or a juryman. We had a case where there was a young person that had already had two convictions against him for bad driving of his car. He was brought into court. He demanded a jury trial. He did not hire a lawyer. He had no expense. The jury system of selecting for these little traffic things is very loose. They have a panel, and the first six that show up, they seat them on a jury. His defense was-well, the charge was for careless driving and inconsiderate, and several other things. What he had done-and he didn't deny it at all-he would come to an intersection where there was a stop sign and he would go through it in a proper manner. Then he'd floorboard his car and spin his wheels for three-fourths of the block; then he'd set the brakes and slide for the other fourth up to the next one. He did this in three stop signs in succession. The policeman observed all of this, and he thought that this was grounds for bringing him into court and he did. He had a witness. He defended himself. The defense was solely that he'd gotten some bad gasoline in his car and it just sputtered a little once in awhile. The only way he could clear it out was tromp on the gas, give it full throttle. Then another fault had occurred that he didn't know about and the throttle would stick. So consequently, he went through three intersections, three blocks and spinning his wheels for three-fourths of the block and sliding them to the other fourth because of malfunctions; first it was bad gas, the next was that the throttle would stick. Now, this was the defense. Now, he was convicted; his driver's license was taken away for 60 days. But that was not a unanimous decision. Now, it's very easy to get someone on that jury that's going to stand up for that kid for whatever he does. So I think this is completely ridiculous. I think you're going to just turn something loose here that you don't want to live with, so I would certainly support the amendment. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arness. First of all, Mr. Arness, the journal may show Oscar Anderson is here and may vote.

Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman. I have been a County Attorney and a City Attorney. And I'm not one right now, but I have prosecuted a number of these cases, including a number like Mr. Kamhoot has described. In fact, that sounds very much like the typical City of Libby case. I think that County Attorneys and City Attorneys wouldn't object to having a unanimous verdict despite what's been said here about this. I can't, of course, speak for the association presently, but it seems to me that this would be something that the prosecutor would probably be indifferent to one way or the other. And certainly, as the members of the committee have already pointed out, this is the kind of thing that the defendant would be a good deal more interested in than the prosecutor. And the defendant certainly had his representatives on the Bill of Rights Committee. I think that the reference to the County Attorneys and their approval of this section probably referred to another aspect of this section, which County Attorneys would be quite interested in and which I'd like to talk about after we get over this one. But so far as this question of two-thirds or a majority is concerned, I'm sure the prosecutor would be, for the most part, indifferent to it. This is, after all, a description of what the federal system is, and that works, and they don't have any trouble with that. I think that the amendment should be defeated, and I'd say that as a former prosecutor. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I rise to oppose the amendment. What we're talking about is not just a traffic ticket, it's not a parking ticket, it's up to 1 year in the county jail-anything less than going to prison for, and that's a big, big crime. How many of us would want to spend 11 months in a county jail? How many of our families would ever want to have this sort of thing? We hope we never would. Now, the crime in many cases-in misdemeanor cases where I've had, that Mr. Dahood has had, that Mr. Murray has had-Mr. Mm-ray, being a County Attorney was on the Bill of Rights Committee. We discussed all of these things. We felt that the protection is needed for the individual, not the prosecutor. We don't seem to think that the prosecutor should have the easiest life possible to put the criminal records on our citizens. Many times these misdemeanors will deprive a man of his livelihood. If it's a driver's license, if there's a close question, should he be convicted? Should he lose his driver's license? Should he lose his livelihood? And this could run into thousands of dollars a year. Should his family be forced to go onto welfare cm these things? These are very serious questions; and after careful con-

Murray's experience-and I've talked to the past President of the Montana Bar Association, Cale Crowley from Billings, on this. He felt it was a good idea. He supported it. The County Attorney's Association has not met on it as a group; I only talked with its President. I did talk about the entire section with him. I don't mean to infer that they're going to come out and wave the flag in support of the whole thing, certainly, at the steps of the Capitol building. But he did feel that this section, as recommended by the majority report, would be a substantialimprovement over the present law. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman] and fellow delegates. I think we should clarify one thing about how this works: in Justice Court or Police Court that Mr. Campbell appears in as he mentioned and you defend someone, if there's a two-thirds vote-verdict in favor of the defendant, he's acquitted, the case is over. The County Attorney can't prosecute further, and he's happy to have it disposed of. If there's a two-thirds verdict and the man is convicted, the state may very well just be started, because all you have to do is appeal to the District Court and you have the case all over again. I couldn't care less, if I were still a County Attorney, whether you had the two-thirds, but it's a two-edged sword. In other words, you can dispose of a lot of cases if you have a good defense and are found innocent. Then, of course, you're completely off the hook with only two-thirds. The point that Mr. Berg is trying to make: if you're found guilty, you can go right to District Court, by simply filing a notice of appeal, and have a unanimous verdict required for your conviction. It's still two-thirds in District Court on a misdemeanor. All right. Anyway, you can still appeal and get your second trial all over again on your District Court rules. But as far as the prosecution is concerned, it would give them a clear mandate. If you don't get your two-thirds, I wouldn't think that they would be pursuing the case any further. If you do get your two-thirds, they have their other right. But it's not a big issue, I don't think, as far as any of the County Attorneys or law enforcement-the problems that have been hung on the law enforcement by the Bill of Rights and the Supreme Court far exceed this. This is really secondary, so whatever action is taken on it, I wouldn't be concerned with.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Chairman. There's been quite a little talk about improvement of justice in our lower court. And I think that if we're going to look for some improvement, it would certainly be fair that we knead out the same kind of justice there on misdemeanors as would be the case in District Court or higher court. And I support the majority report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman. I was formerly a County Attorney. I am no longer, and I don't intend to be any. But I would-should be arguing for the majority, since I'll probably be a defense attorney in some cases. But I rise to support Mr. Habedank's amendment here. In my experience as County Attorney, this two-thirds vote in Justice Court has worked very well. I've never seen any hardship that is created. I think in certain cases, I think we have to have some protection for society also. And I have seen most of these cases that go through Justice Court at the present time are DWIs—driving while intoxicated. And I don't care what kind of a case you have, you always have someone on the jury, if you talk to them afterwards-you know, what they thought of the case, et cetera-there's always maybe one or two on there that'11 say, "Oh, sure he was, but let him go. You know-he'll lose his license", et cetera. I don't think society is being protected with that kind of an attitude. And I think a two-thirds vote is a protection for the defendant, either for a conviction or acquittal. If you get a two-thirds, you haven't proved your case, you're out of court. I think the amendment will put it back. And I think it's been reasonable. It would work very well, and I think we should support it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman. May I ask Mr. Dahood a question?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Dahood, I'm not sure that I heard accurately. Did I understand you to say that in cases of accusations of violations amounting to a misdemeanor, or in convictions of same, that the data was sent to Washington to Mr. Hoover's apparatus or someplace else?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: When they investigate, they seem to pick up that information. Delegate Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, another question. Does that mean that the FBI is maintaining a dossier on all of us who are accused of a misdemeanor?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I don't know. I've seen some of the reports that do reflect what action was taken with respect to misdemeanor matters.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion? If not, the question is on Mr. Habedank's motion that we add, on line 19, to Section 26, the phrase: "In all civil actions", then add "and in criminal causes not amounting to a felony, two-thirds the number of the jury may render the verdict." We'll have a roll call vote. All in favor of Mr. Habedank's amendment, say Aye; all opposed, say No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk tally the vote.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 28 delegates voting Aye; 46 noting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 46 having voted No and 28 having voted Aye, the motion is defeated. And we're considering still Section 26.

Mr. Arness, do you want the clerk to read your amendment?

DELEGATE ARNESS: Please, Mr. Chairman.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 26, line 15, page 9, of the Bill of Rights Proposal, by adding the words, following the word 'all' on line 15, as follows—quote-'civil cases and in all criminal cases not amounting to felony.' Signed: Arness."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a minute. Mr. Clerk, may I have it a minute?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arness proposes an amendment on line 15 of Section 26, so that the sentence would read: "Theright of trial by jury shall be secured to all and remain inviolate, but in all"-and then he adds-"civil cases and in all criminal cases not amounting to a felony-"

DELEGATE ARNESS: Then we should strike the word "cases" I see.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Strike the word "cases" "and upon default of appearance by law, trial by jury may be waived." In other words, it has the effect, in my view, of not allowing a defendant in a capital-in a felony case to waive the trial by jury, is that right?

DELEGATE ARNESS: Correct, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: This is the portion of the change which I think that the County Attorneys would have liked. And for this, I think that probably they may very well have endorsed this, although I don't know. The effect of this would be to make it a good deal easier to be a County Attorney. I think, speaking from my own experience at that, that it's much easier to try a case without a jury. It requires a good deal less work and a good deal less preparation. And I think that the present rule, which does not permit a waiver of a jury case in a felony, is a good one. Most of these felony cases and most of the criminal cases are defended by young lawyers. Many of them are people without experience and more enthusiasm, sometimes, than legal training. I think that there is a temptation for them to waive the jury trial and that they may not fully be apprised of what they are doing or the disadvantages in waiving a jury trial on behalf of their client. Also, there is a certain trepidation about going before a jury. The defendant in a criminal case is, I think, entitled to a jury, especially in a felony case, because these are matters of serious import not only for the defendant but for society as a whole. And I feel that the jury case gives a good deal more exposure and a good deal more publicity and certainly a good deal more consideration to the case than just a trial before the judge. And it seems to me inconsistent to require that the verdict be unanimous in all cases, which I think is a good provision, and then on the other hand, to allow the jury to be waived, so that what essentially we have is a jury of one person to try the case. I realize that it probably would not be wise to put in this paragraph-or in this provision that all juries be 12-man juries. I would betempted to suggest such a thing, but as it is, I think that this amendment is sufficient. It would at least insure that, in felony cases, that there would be a jury. And I think that in such cases, that a jury is required and that it's necessary under our adversary system. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aronow.

DELEGATE ARONOW: Mr. Chairman. I rise in support of Mr. Arness' amendment. It's been a long time since I've been a County Attorney; I think it's been almost 30 years since I was last County Attorney. But I do know, in the criminal cases, most of them occur with indigence being charged, where the court makes an appointment of some young lawyer in the community to defend the accused. And I endorse much of what Mr. Arness said in that regard, but there's one more factor: that on a trial to the court without a jury, it's much less expensive for the county. There's quite a bit of pressure put on the appointive counsel to waive a valuable right of a jury to-which the accused is entitled to have. Also, the temptation on the part of the defense counsel, who is appointed and who gets about the same amount of money whether he disposes of the case easily or whether he works hard at it, is to take the easy route. And I don't think our form-system of justice should be influenced in that manner. I don't care who the person is. Under our law and under our theory of justice, that individual is entitled to the best effort possible in his behalf. He is entitled to put forth whatever defense he may have in the best light possible. And oftentimes, the judge also is somewhat desirous of making his court look good in the eyes of the taxpayers and the County Commissioners, to cut down costs. And this opens up a whole Pandora's box of reasons why the pressure is placed upon a defendant, upon the defendant's appointive counsel to waive the jury, do things the easy way, save taxpayers money. And, therefore, I support Mr. Arness. This is an important matter also in regard to the protection of the individual rights of people.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman. I rise to oppose the amendment. I certainly feel that this is not in any way eliminating a person's right to a jury trial. Hecertainly does have it. What it does is give the individual the option of determining, with his attorney, whether or not it would be in the best behalf of his defense to waive the jury trial, which may not come up in this county for another 4 to 5 months while he's still in the jail, or go directly to the judge now, waiving the jury. The burden is on the state always to prove that he knowingly and intelligently waived this constitutional right. They would certainly see that this is protected. As far as the public defenders, I've found that the younger public defenders have by far been the best public defenders and that many of the old have been ineffective in many cases. It would allow the Legislature to be flexible in dealing with this. In the Criminal Code, it would allow them to set the standards that they want; they would not be bound. It would give them flexibility, and I feel that it would still give the protection to the individual. And, as I said, I have spoken with this entire section to the past President of the Montana Bar Association, and he thought it would be a very good step forward. And as a defense attorney on this, it's something that1 would like to see; and our committee felt would be a great improvement in the present law. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion? Very well. The issue arises on Mr. Arness' motion to add the term-the words "civil cases and in all criminal cases not amounting to a felony" on line 15, the effect of which would be to make it impossible for a defendant to waive the jury trial on a felony. So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Arness' motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion fails. We are now back discussing Section 26.

And, Mr. Holland, do you have an amendment?

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Yes, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you want the clerk to read your amendment, Mr. Holland?

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Yes, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 26, page 9, line 14, following the word 'shall' by inserting-quote-'in all cases in law and equity'-end quote. Signed: Holland."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: What line was that?

CLERK HANSON: Line 14 on page 9.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: "-in all cases in law and equity"?

CLERK HANSON: Yes, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Holland has an amendment, the purpose of which is to add, on line 15, Section 26, after the word "cases", the words "in law and equity", so that the phrase reads: "but in all cases in law and equity upon the default of appearance", et cetera; is that right, Mr. Holland?

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mr. Chairman. I've discussed this matter with Mr. Dahood, and what I wanted to do is clarify the right of a person in a civil case to have a trial in either law or equity. Mr. Dahood has stated that he personally doesn't have any objection; I don't know if he can speak for the committee. But I wanted this for clarification purposes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion?

Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Holland approached me with respect to the amendment, and I indicated to him that I certainly had no objection. And I think I should explain that within the civil area of the law in the State of Montana, as well as in all other jurisdictions, we have a certain area that we call the area of equity. And although within that area you may have the same major concern with respect to the rights of the individual from a civil standpoint, nevertheless, traditionally, the courts have said that in those areas you do not have a right to a jury trial. Sometimes, in those areas that we referred to as the areas of equity, the consequences may be more severe than they are in those civil areas of the law where the right to a jury trial is permitted. I see nothing in Mr. Holland's amendment that is going to cause any particular problem in the administration of justice. It may well improve it, because within this so-called area of equity, in the event that there are not any fact questions for a jury to decide and what is before the court is solely a matter of law, a question for a trained judge to answer, you would not have the right to a trial by jury, be&use a jury is basically the judges of the facts. Moreover, under our rules of civil procedure, even though we indicate in our Bill of Rights that every citizen is entitled to a jury trial, still that individual citizen or party litigant must invoke that right by making demand, at the appropriate point in the civil court proceeding, demanding that he have a jury trial. In most equity actions, I am satisfied that counsel representing the respective parties would probably not invoke the right to a jury trial. But as Mr. Holland has indicated by his amendment, there may very well be cases within the area of equity where the fact dispute is very serious and very complex and a fact dispute that traditionally should be decided by a jury. I think I speak on behalf of my committee; I have looked in the direction of the committee members that are on the floor. I don't see anyone disagreeing with the statements that I have made, and, consequently, on behalf of the committee, we do not oppose the amendment proposed.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: May I ask Mr. Holland a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland, will you yield? Get Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE ARNESS: (Laughter) I guess he doesn't yield. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis, you take over, and we'll get Mr. Holland back.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman] and fellow delegates. Don't leave, Mr. Dahood; I might want to ask you a question. I oppose the majority committee who has had such a well-thought-out and well-reasoned proposal here, abandoning their position so easily on this matter of in law or in equity. We haven't-if, as long as this committee didn't have the opportunity-give the good reasoning to this as they have to other-You can sit down; I haven't got a question yet, thanks, Wade. No, go ahead. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Delegate Dahood.

DELEGATE DAVIS: It comes to mind the traditional procedure that's been established in our courts for a long time-We don't know-it hasn't been explained by Delegate Holland or by Delegate Dahood in abandoning the principal position-what we're going to have this extend to. Are we going to have it extend to the equitable matters of child custody cases and have the jury sit in on such matters as this? On dependent neglected children? On adoption matters? On accounting-complicated accounting procedures that are equitable matters? On title matters? Quiet title actions that are equitable matters, principally complicated legal proceedings, where the law is what will prevail and there are no questions of fact? I would seriously resist changing the language of the present Constitution in this regard without some strong comments and a strong position in this proposal or some strong reasoning in this journal as to what it's intended to affect and what it isn't intended to affect. The traditional concept, as you all know, in jury trials and civil cases is the jury tries-determines the factual situation and the court determines the law. And if you have a question and it's a legal matter, then, of course, you have no need for a jury and they cannot make any determination. They have to follow the law or it's a mistrial. So I support the majority proposal as it's written in the majority proposal and oppose the proposed amendment by my good friend, Delegate Holland, from Silver Bow County. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Yes, I see Mr. Holland is back. And, of course, my question went to what Mr. Davis was talking about just now, and I was wondering particularly what equity matters you had in mind. Is it divorce, quiet title, or accounting, or what is it that you're after here?

DELEGATE HOLLAND: All equity matters, Mr. Arness. Divorce, I might state for you and Mr. Davis, has always been, my understanding, a statutory matter and isn't an equity matter at all. What I'm talking about is factual questions. As the lawyers all know, law in England grew up in two courts: one, the equity, the ecclesiastical court in which no jury trial was granted; theotheroneis the common law system in which jury trials were always granted. Now, for some strange reason-1 think this is the traditional language that's in here-"The right of jury trial shall be secured to all and remain inviolate." Now, for some strange reason, the Montana court has held in equity matters--and I'm not talking about divorces; I'm talking about equity matters, factual questions like a question of-an equity question on a contract. That is-supposing that you claim the right to set aside a contract as distinguished from a breach of a contract. The court does not grant that one, because it grew up in equity--a jury trial, because it grew up in equity, and does grant it in the other. And I say that a jury should be granted in all matters, whether they come out of ecclesiastical courts or otherwise. Now, Mr. Davis speaks of child custody. I would take it he was talking about the state taking the children away from the mother, rather than the custody case in a divorce case. Those are statutory in matter and wouldn't be covered by an equity action. It's only those actions that came out of equity as I had referenced to. This is where they've been depriving-for years they've been depriving people in those cases of a jury trial. Now they want to put this language in so that any contested action that came out of the old common law or the equity system, you get the right to jury trials. It seems to me that when you got two things: you got a contract; one, you're going to reform it, you can't have a jury; the other, you got a breach and you do have a jury. It doesn't make sense to me. I say that if you've got a factual question, you should be entitled to a jury in either action. And I'm not referring, of course, to all these statutory actions at all. Divorces wouldn't be covered. Child custody-the state taking away custody of children, things like that wouldn't be affected at all. It would only be in the actions coming out of equity that this would go to.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: May I ask another question on it?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Holland. It's been my understanding that the court has ruled that these matters that you talked about as statutory are, in fact, equity matters-quiet title, accounting, divorce, this type of thing. Aren't they considered equity? And isn't that what you had in-that's not what you had in mind then?

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Quiet title, Mr. Arness, I believe is equity, but divorce isn't. Divorce is statutory, which is-in other words, there was no divorce in the ecclesiastical court, so it's not considered an equitable action. Title to real estate-the quieting title to real estate does come, I think-maybe we-1 should do more research on quiet title, but I believe it is equitable in action. Now, what I'm saying to you, Mr. Arness, is if we have a factual question-if, for instance, your client has a deed, he claims it's a good deed; my client resisted that this is a good deed. Now why can't a jury hear the facts and rule in that matter, rather than having the court do it?These-the fact that we lawyers have been making mistakes for a thousand years doesn't mean we could--we should continue to make mistakes. What I'm saying is I'm a very strong supporter of jury trials; and I'm saying that in all factual cases-what reason or what logic can anyone say that because in England they did it a thousand years ago, we have to continue to do it today? I'm saying that if we got a factual question and it comes out of equity, a person should have a right to a jury trial just the same as whether it came out of the common law court.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arness. Let's have it quiet, please, in the chamber.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Apparently, Mr. Holland and I have a disagreement on this. It's my understanding, at any rate, that the courts of chancellery-or the chancellor's courts were not necessarily the ecclesiastical courts and that equity would comprehend, under our system, all things that are not criminal in nature or not matters at law as we talk of things at law. I'm not talking against the proposal, but it seems to me that what we're doing is granting trial by jury in all cases regardless of what they are and of what nature they may be. And it seems to me that it's something that hasn't been considered by the committee. I just think that the Convention should be aware that this is something that doesn't seem to have been fully considered. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. I would like to respond to both the points of Delegate Davis and Delegate Arness. I think that, speaking for myself, the reason that I'm so readily amenable to accepting this amendment is because-that when I considered it-and I think that most other nonlawyers would approach it the same way-when I read the words "the right of trial by jury shall be secured to all", that's the way I interpreted it. And so, when additional wording is put in there to further clarify the fact that, in truth, trial by jury will be secured to all at their request, this is the reason that I support the question without a great deal of deliberation or consideration. Because that was my understanding when we first presented the section, and when question is brought that, in fact, maybe that wording isn't sufficient to secure a trial by jury to all, then I support that position. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Cross.

DELEGATE CROSS: Mr. Chairman. I'm not one of the fraternity of attorneys and so I don't speak in "legalese", but according to Webster's dictionary, there is a third definition of this word "equity" which raises some questions in my mind, and perhaps one of them could clarify it. It says, "the money value of a property or of an interest in a property in excess of claims or liens against it; a risk interest or ownership right in property". And I'm really puzzled by this, and I really would like to know what they mean when they put in the word "equity".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. In response to the question of Delegate Cross, the courts have traditionally referred to certain cases as falling within the ambit of equity, and as Delegate Arness has pointed out, it stems from the jurisdiction of the chancellor's court in England. In 104 Montana, in a case that involved this question, the Supreme Court of the State of Montana did say that the conditions that existed with respect to the distinction between equity and law shall pertain notwithstanding the constitutional provision that you have before you, and the Supreme Court ruled that the framers of our Constitution did not intend to put aside the distinction between the law and the equity insofar as the jurisdiction of the court is concerned. And our court indicated there is no right to a trial by jury, notwithstanding this constitutional section, in those cases that fall within the jurisdiction of the common law chancellor's court. Question: why did we not expand it in the committee? One, we had no delegate proposals; two, we did not have a citizen suggestion; three, perhaps sometimes lawyers are timid in dealing with the broad scope of their profession. In a particular case, where we represent an individual client, we don't know the meaning of the word "timidity"; we're out to represent our client to the fullest extent of our ability, our energy, and the law. But when we're dealing in these procedural matters, we, of course, do not want to bring about changes that some may consider to be drastic changes. There would be some problem, and Delegate Davis has pointed to some of the problems that we might have. Precisely how would that particular right be restricted so as not to apply to certain cases where a trial by jury would not serve the cause of justice? And, of course, we're talking about the domestic relations suit, the divorce matter, the separate maintenance matter, the child custody case. As Delegate Holland has indicated, it is not his intention to have that particular right to trial by jury apply to that type of case. And I think we have made the record here this morning, with this dialogue and with this debate, so that if the amendment is adopted, it is not going to be applied to those situations. But the fact, nevertheless, remains true as Delegate Holland has pointed out. It does happen on occasion, in cases that are denominated equity cases simply because traditionally they were within the jurisdiction of the old chancellor's court where the fact controversy is won, that under our American concept of justice, the citizens of the community should resolve and decide for the citizens in controversy. I cannot stand in opposition to the amendment because the amendment would serve, in certain areas of the law, the best interests of the citizens. And other than that, I'm not prepared to make any additional comments, and I hope that my colleague, Louise Cross, is satisfied with my answer. She doesn't know, but thank you anyway, Mr. Chairman. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: I rise in opposition to the amendment. I think it's better taken care of by the Supreme Court and its rule-making authority, or taken care of by statute. Actually, it's been working fairly well for 500 years. If there is a substantial question of fact in most equity cases-he isn't required to-a judge will call a jury to decide that question of fact. This is a substantial departure over what the present practice is, and it might substantially increase the cost of the counties as to juries. I think it should be decided by the Legislature.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: Mr. Chairman. I want to call your attention to the fact that equity is not just limited to some of the matters that have been discussed here so far. It includes, among other things, interpretation of instruments such as wills; it includes the construction of contracts; it includes the recision-that is, the cancellation-of contracts or other instruments of record; it includes the reformation of those contractual relationships between individuals; it includes matters of trust. All of these are considered, inherently, within the jurisdiction of equity. Now, I suppose that, at least in our court system in Gallatin and Park County, that there are perhaps at least twice-perhaps three times-as many equity cases tried as actions at law. Generally speaking, when we're speaking of actions at law, we're looking at money damage; we're looking at negligence cases; we're looking at actions to recover debt. I believe that these actions constitute less than half of the matters considered in the District Courts today. And if the District Court was required to have a jury in all equity cases, then I think it will cause considerable congestion on court calendars, and this could raise a serious problem just in the administration of justice. I call this to your attention for your consideration.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue arises on Mr. Holland's motion. Mr. Holland, do you want to close?

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Yes. I have just this to say to the delegates. Mr. Berg and Mr. McDonough and Mr. Davis have all-and Mr. Arness have all spoken about the-this right to jury trial. I think if you listened closely to them, what they said was, "We did it this way for 500 years, so why improve it now." And I suggest that we're getting all kinds of criticism for not making an improvement. We're not going to congest the calendar. We may add a little expense, but we're going to get more justice, and I don't see any reason for resisting something just because it's expensive if we're going to get better justice. I submit there never was a good distinguishment—a good reason for it. The original Convention wanted jury trials, obviously, and the court has overruled it. And I think if we make it clear here, we'll be able to have a jury trial in every contract action, whether it's recision, reformation, or breach. And why should your client be deprived of the right to trial by jury because the English system did it that way? I submit that the jury trial is the most important bulwark a citizen has in enforcing his rights, and we should extend it to equitable actions.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The question is on Mr. Holland's amendment to Section 26. He would add, on line 14, a phrase so that the sentence would read: "The right of trial by jury shall, in all cases in law and equity, be secured to all", et cetera. So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Holland's motion, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as are in favor, please vote Aye on the voting machines; so many as are opposed, please vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The vote being 44 against and 31 for, the motion fails. Very well. We're still discussing Section 26. Are there further amendments? Members of the committee, you have before you, on the recommendation of Mr. Campbell that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 26, that it recommend the same be adopted. All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered, and it's adopted. Section 27, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 27, Imprisonment for debt. No person shall be imprisoned for debt except in the manner prescribed by law, upon refusal to deliver upon his estate for the benefit of his creditors, or in cases of tort, where there is strong presumption of fraud." Section 27, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Sullivan.

DELEGATE SULLIVAN: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 27 of Proposal 8, it recommends that the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Sullivan.

DELEGATE SULLIVAN: The committee voted unanimously to retain the former Article III, Section 12, unchanged. It was felt that the provision is an adequate safeguard for the right of one in debt to be free from imprisonment. No delegate proposals are received on this provision. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland—or Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. I move that Section 27 be amended, in line 25 on page 9, by inserting a period after the word "debt" and deleting the rest of the sentence.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce has period after the word "debt", so it reads: "No person shall be imprisoned for debt", and then deleting the words "except in the manner prescribed by law, upon refusal to deliver his estate", and so forth.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: I note that the recent North Dakota Constitution did just this. The additional language is obsolete. I don't think anybody has been imprisoned for debt for hundreds of years. I think it ought to be made clear that you can't be imprisoned just for being in debt. And if you committed some crime, you've defrauded somebody, you can be prosecuted criminally. And I think the archaic words in this section should be deleted to recognize the modern facts of life, which everyone agrees--or at least I should think everyone now agrees-that you shouldn't be thrown into debtor's prison. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman. May I ask a couple of questions of Mr. Joyce, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You may ask a series of questions of Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: I yield.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Nothing serious-do you--would you anticipate, Delegate Joyce, there would be any problem for-under this section, as you propose to amend it, where you would have any circumstance arising on a contempt of court which might arise out of a debt?

DELEGATE JOYCE: No, I don't. I mean -as I understand it, the power of the court to put you in debt is the inherent power--or in jail for contempt is when you refuse to comply with the court order. And that's-in those cases where the court has the power to compel you to do something, such as, I take it you have in mind, to support your children.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Right. And I also have in mind the matter of investigation after a judgment is taken-you know, where you call a judgment debtor in-and the proceeding there.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Well, it seems to me when you call people in on the supplementary proceedings, you want to collect a judgment because the fellow has made a fraudulent transfer, why, you set aside the transfers. But I don't think the court has the power to put you in jail just because you won't pay the judgment. I don't think he should have. I don'tthink they have ever exercised it that way, to my knowledge.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Then it is not your intent to get around thosematters by making this amendment in any way, is it?

DELEGATE JOYCE: No, absolutely not. I think it-that the law should be that you just can't be imprisoned for a debt, period. And if you refuse to deliver up your property for the benefit of your creditors, if there are equitable procedures to compel you to do so, then you have to institute an action in the court, get an order of the court authorize--ordering you to do that. And if you don't do it, you're in contempt of court and the court imprisons you, then, at that time not because-just because you violated theorderofthe court, which the court has jurisdiction to impose on you; but I don't think that really should ever be done either. But—

DELEGATE MURRAY: Okay. Thank you very much, Delegate Joyce. After this dialogue, Mr. Chairman, I do not resist, on behalf of the committee, this amendment.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman, may I ask Delegate Joyce a question?

DELEGATE JOYCE: I yield.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Joyce. I notice, under Section 12 of Article III in the Code, there's an annotation in 30 ALR as to alimony or maintenance as debt within constitutionalor statutory provisions against imprisonment. Have you looked into that question, or have you read the annotation?

DELEGATE JOYCE: I haven't, but I would say this: that if the argument is-1 would guess that the annotation says if the argument is made that you can't be imprisoned for failure to pay alimony, that you cannot rely upon the constitutional prohibition that deprives you of being imprisoned for a debt.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Will Mr. Joyce yield again?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Yes.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I would imagine that also, but I wonderedifyou had read the article referred to.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Well I-a truthful answer to it is that I haven't, but I'll be glad to go out and get it and read it and make you a bet that I'm right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Drum. The Chair would like to point out to the delegates that when you stand in the back like that, it makes it very difficult for me to tell who's up. So I don't mind you talking to people, but when you--will you please move off behind the posts. I get a lot of criticism from the back row for not seeing them, and the main reason is that there's too much traffic back there. Anybody can-1 don't mind you going in and out, but when you're not doing anything, I wish you'd stay away from the back row so I can see who's back there.

Now, Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: [Will] Mr. Joyce yield to a question?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. President [Chairman], I will.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE BERG: Would you object to an exception as for the support and maintenance of dependents?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Well, I don't think you should be able—

DELEGATE BERG: Go ahead.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Would I object to amending something in that connection?

DELEGATE BERG: Yes, including that in the amendment.

DELEGATE JOYCE: No, I wouldn't; because it seems to me that you can't be imprisoned for not supporting your children per se. The-what they have to do is, they charge you with a crime, in one instance-say for not supporting your dependents. That's a misdemeanor and you're charged with the crime and you can be imprisoned for that. And secondly, if you-say there's an order of the court that you're compelled to pay something and you don't pay it, they put you in jail because of-you're in contempt of court. But it doesn't seem to me that they should be able up your estate, and this gives the Legislature the authority to put you in jail, except in the manner prescribed by law, for debt. And I don't think you should ever have to go to jail for not paying your debts.

DELEGATE BERG: Well, Mr.-Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE BERG: As I construe this, a debt created by a court decree or a judgment can be distinguished in this respect: that a debt for payment of an obligation, such as a contractual obligation, is one kind of a debt; but a debt created for the support and maintenance of minors or for the support and maintenance of a divorced wife is also by court decree, and traditionally, that has been enforceable by the contempt proceedings inherent in the court, whereas an ordinary civil debt is not. And if we're to treat this word "debt" without that distinction, we may very well be preventing the court from enforcing it's decrees in domestic relation matters. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman. I rise in support of the Joyce amendment. One of the finest legal minds in Montana is Professor Larry Elison, who appeared before our committee in extensive hearings. After we had completed our final draft, I sent it to him, and he had very few comments to make. However, in this particular section, it was his recommendation— and I don't know that Delegate Joyce had talked to him-that after the word "debt", a period be placed. Discussing this with him, he said it would in no way affect the contempt powers of the court in divorce matters, in alimony matters. He felt it was as the law should be, and he fully supported this amendment. And I wholeheartedly agree and would support Delegate Joyce and recommend that it be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. President [Chairman], would Mr. Joyce yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: I yield, Mr. Presi-

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Now, it states, "No person shall be imprisoned for debt". Now, aren't there laws on the books already that said, "except in the manner prescribed by law"? What would be wrong with leaving "except in the manner prescribed by law" in this first sentence and delete the rest?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Well, I suppose it's a philosophical proposition. I just don't think that the Legislature should ever be able to pass a law to be able to put you in jail for a debt. I think that the concept of the debtor's prison is lost in antiquity.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: one more question, Mr. President [Chairman]?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. Campbell spoke of the divorcee. I have a personal relation with a party that put her former husband in jail for nonpayment of alimony, and this did force him to pay it for awhile. Now, is this in the law right now?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Yes, and it would continue to be in the law under my amendment, because in order to put-1 mean, you've had-if you only know of one case, I know of hundreds, and every lawyer here knows of thousands. That's one of the biggest social problems of the day, I suppose. But the way you put people in jail for not supporting their children is that you get jurisdiction over them, you cite them into court, you have a hearing, you have the court make an order ordering [him] to pay a certain amount and then, if they don't pay it, they're in contempt of the court. That's how they're jailed. And it isn't-but you just can't go out and pick them up for not supporting them without some due process of law. And this-my amendment wouldn't affect it in any way. And I think what the framers of the original Constitution-I think they borrowed this from Colorado-and at that time, they were still putting people in jail for certain types of fraud on creditors; and I think that they don't do it anymore and that they shouldn't be able to do it anymore. And that's why I've offered the amendment. Our sister state of North Dakota has done it, and it seems to me that's the way it should be done.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President. Mr. Joyce, would you yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman, I yield.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Now, Mr. Joyce, I want it thoroughly understood for the record that if I vote for your amendment and I don't pay my income tax, which is a debt, I cannot be imprisoned for that then. Is that correct?

DELEGATE JOYCE: No, it's not correct.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Why not? Isn't that a debt?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Because the State of Montana, I don't think, does make it a criminal offense not to pay your income tax now; but how they get you in the federal level, that they don't put you in jail for not paying the tax, they put you in jail for lying-for making a false return under oath, under perjury. But as I understand, the federal law is if you report your income and that you owe, like in your case, several thousands of dollars (Laughter) of federal income tax—

DELEGATE DAVIS:. That's over a 10-year period.

DELEGATE JOYCE: -and you report that you owe this money but you just don't have it to pay, that's a civil matter. They can come in, seize your property, collect it; but they can't put you in jail for it. And I think that's proper.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Thank you, Delegate Joyce.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. Would Mr. Joyce yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce?

DELEGATE JOYCE: I yield.

a person to be in contempt, he can be ordered to jail until he purges himself of that contempt either by living up to some condition laid down by the court or paying the amount involved. Is that correct?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Well, let me answer it this way. We get back to the distinction between law and equity. I think the only way they put you in jail now is if the court has some equity jurisdiction where they have the power to compel you to do something and you don't do it; you're in contempt of court; they send you to jail. But I don't want the Legislature or any court, just because I don't pay somebody's judgment at law-say you sue me for $500 and get a judgment against you. As I understand the law now, no court has the right or the power to compel me to pay that judgment; you've got to collect it the best way you know how. And I don't think any court has the right to put me in jail for not paying it now, and I don't think they should have in the future.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. May I ask Mr. Joyce to yield to another question? Will you yield?

DELEGATE JOYCE: I yield.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Joyce, in a typical case where there is a judgment for payment of a certain sum of money and in order to enforce that judgment a writ of court is issued so that the defendant or debtor is examined in aid of execution and it is found that he is concealing assets that can be used to pay that honest debt. As you well know, under present law, if he refuses to disclose the whereabouts of those assets for execution so that debt can be paid, he can be judged in contempt of court and placed in jail until he purges himself. Now, by your amendment, would that situation then be prohibited?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Yes, I think it would.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: You think it would?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Yeah. Well, as I understand, the proceedings supplementary to judgment are equitable proceedings. You cite the man in and you ask him where his property is, and if he's discovered that he's concealing his assets, why, I don't think that--apparently under the current law, the argument could be made that he could be jailed for that. But if he refuses to disclose where his assets are in answer to a legitimate question, he could be jailed for contempt of court for not following an order of the court. My point is that I don't think that you should be able to jail anybody for debt.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. One of the inherent basic powers of any judicial tribunal is the power to enforce its orders, its decrees, and its judgments. And if the day should ever come when a court does not have that power to enforce its orders, decrees, and its judgments, then we are substituting lawlessness for the law. And under the answer that has been given to us by Delegate Joyce, I must, in the interests of law and order, oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman. May I ask a question of Mr. Dahood?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood, do you yield?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Dahood. As a layman, I hear all through this Convention about the inherent powers. May-will you kindly advise me where the court gets its inherent power?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: The court, Mr. Romney, receives its inherent powers from the traditional concept under which the courts have developed through the common law which has been recognized in the American jurisdiction. The courts do have a certain amount of power that is given to them by statute, but the framers of that power assume that within the exercise of the type of justice that we have, there are certain powers that necessarily must run with the court for the courts to be able to function. If you were to take away these particular powers for the courts to act as courts, then you would not have any way of enforcing what the courts do in resolving controversy between citizens. And then the courts would cease to function effectively.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, another question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: That means that the inherent power is not a power bestowed upon the courts-not just in this case, but in any case—by the people.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Yes, impliedly, it is bestowed by the people so that the court can function with all of the power and authority the court must necessarily have in our type of society. It is not defined explicitly, simply because thecitizens, by framing the Constitution that creates the court, leave it up to the court to take those powers that it must necessarily have, short of actually violating the basic rights of the people as set forth in the constitutional document itself. For example, in our Bill of Rights-many of the provisions in that Bill of Rights are limitations upon the power of the court. And as long as the court does not conflict with those particular limitations, that court has whatever power is necessary to function as a court, with authority to enforce its decrees, its orders, and its judgments.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, a couple of other questions.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: In that case, then, the court can-by these inherent powers, it makes its own rules, avoids the constitutional inhibition to-against accepting payment for per diem and mileage, expends money that is not appropriated, and things of that kind. It has an inherent power because it is a court?

DELEGATE JOYCE: No, Mr. Romney, the court does not have any inherent power to do anything that violates the Constitution. No branch of government has that power. The court will determine whether or not the course of conduct that has been questioned violates the Constitution, but the court does not have any power to violate the Constitution. And the Supreme and Appellate Courts have always stated in a particular case--regardless of the fact controversy, regardless of the individual involved, no matter how heinous, how despicable the crime--what is before the court at that particular point for judgment is the constitutional document itself, to make sure that the rights of the citizens are fully protected. The court cannot, does not, and will not violate the Constitution.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: That is, it should not. Thank you very much.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: And should not. We corrected one of those incidents yesterday.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Will Mr. Dahood yield?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, but this isn't my amendment. (Laughter)

DELEGATE LOENDORF: That's right. But you have opposed it, and your reason for opposing it is the last answer given to you by Mr. Joyce, is that correct?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: That's correct, Jerry.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Are you absolutely sure his answer was accurate?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I'm not absolutely sure it was accurate, but it's reflected upon the journal, and that necessarily is going to aid whoever should interpret that particular provision in reaching some conclusion. And I think if they look to our journal, to our records of the dialogue that took place, they would take Mr. Joyce's answer and say this is what was meant by it. And if that's what is meant by it, that is destructive to the judicial process.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Thank you. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Not being on the committee and not having the benefit of the research, I'm going to make my guess here too. I'm going to support Mr. Joyce's amendment. And I believe there's a real distinction between a debt and an obligation a court finds to exist based on law. For example, if I owe Mr. Dahood a hundred dollars or he believes I do, he sues me in court and gets a judgment against me. The court merely finds and determines that I owe him a hundred dollars; it does not order me to pay that hundred dollars and could not hold me in contempt for not complying with that judgment. But in a case where we have a divorce, for example-I'll have to use Dahood or someone else, assuming I'm not married. Perhaps I can use Mr. Noble-(Laughter) --assuming he was divorced and a court ordered him to pay so much money as child support or alimony. This is an obligation, it seems to me; a court finds, based on law and not by a contractual obligation, between two parties and then not based on a debt, as I understand it. And, therefore, I support Joyce's amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman, may I close?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, not yet.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Well, let me explain then.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay, you may explain.

DELEGATE JOYCE: I yielded to several questions, and each time, I answered the question as I thought, as perfectly elementary that my amendment would not prohibit a court from putting someone in jail for contempt of court. Then Mr. Dahood asked me, did I propose to do away with what currently appears in the Constitution which, in effect, says that the Legislature can, by law, imprison me for refusal to deliver up my estate to pay a debt. And I say, "Yes, I intended to provide that a court can put me in jail for that particular offense, if it is an offense." So that I really am not trying to destroy the entire judicial system or get into the code words of law and order. I think everyone's for law and order. But I just thought that this was-North Dakota has done it, and it just seems so elementary that you shouldn't be imprisoned for debt per se, and that the courts still can enforce obedience to their orders which they are authorized by law to make.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: Mr. Chairman. I move that we pass Section 27 until we reconvene after the noon hour. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: I'm unwilling to accept Mr. Joyce's conclusions that debt would not include, for among other things, alimony and support of minors; and that the court power to hold one in contempt for failure to support his family is not included within the term "debt". I haven't read, nor has Mr. Joyce, the annotation on that that appears in 30 ALR at page 130. I think we'll all be better informed if we'll wait-at least a review of that annotation to determine this question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on—

Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I rise with some reluctance to oppose the motion. My reason foritis this: there's nothing wrong with the way in which the law is operating at the present time. No one is being imprisoned for debt; that violates the United States Constitution and it violates the Constitution of the State of Montana. There is no cause for concern that the particular language of this section is going to do anything to interfere with the rights of any citizen of the State of Montana. And I think my colleagues will have to admit that the law is being administered, at the present time, with due regard to those rights that we hold precious in our society. No court has abused its inherent power with respect to enforcing its judgments, its orders, and its decrees. We found no good reason to change this particular language. Yes, we thought about it. And I suppose if you want to try and isolate some of the words in that particular provision, you might be able to force the tortured conclusion that's been enunciated on this Convention floor. But by leaving the section exactly as it is, we do nothing more than approve and ratify what has been done till now. That is a basic concept for interpreting the intent of constitutional revision when it is made, and that is the primary presumption that must be indulged in when a Constitutional Convention affirms the language that has been in the old Constitution and is placed within the framework of the new Constitution. I see no need to change anything. And for that reason, I would oppose, reluctantly, the motion of Delegate Berg, whose intention is certainly most laudable, so that we might decide without any further discussion the motion of Delegate Joyce. And I would submit that we should defeat both motions and leave the law as it presently stands, which is a good law and an orderly law and one that has not caused any problem in the State of Montana. I oppose the motion, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: Mr. Chairman. I shall be brief. I, of course, just like Mr. Joyce and Mr. Dahood, do not want any debtor prisons of any kind in Montana. And I am in sympathy with the position that no one should be jailed for debt. But I am concerned as to what we mean by the term "debt". I am not satisfied with the discourse that's taken place here on the floor this morning. Indeed, I am afraid that if the interpretations of the word "debt" in other constitutions is contrary to what Mr. Joyce believes it to be and if the courts are to look to this Convention floor at this debate, and the journal, for determining that question and they find that it is contrary to what courts in other states have said, you have a serious problem of interpretation. I simply want to be certain that that question of interpretation is resolved without any question whatsoever.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The question is on Mr. Berg's motion to pass Section 27 until after the noon recess. So many as shall be in favor of that, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Noes have it. Very well. The question is now on Mr. Joyce's motion. Do you want to close again?

DELEGATE JOYCE: Well, I asked you if I could close the last time and you said no. So—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I thought you did so, though, but go ahead, Mr. Joyce. (Laughter)

DELEGATE JOYCE: I'm just going to call the Convention's attention to the Hawaii Constitution, which says in Section 17, Article I, "There shall be no imprisonment for debt, period". And Alaska says "There shall be no imprisonment for debt". This section does not prohibit civil arrests of absconding debtors, which is, I guess, somewhere in between. And so I'm going all the way for the-against the debtor prison, with Hawaii and North Dakota. And as my good friend, Mr. Davis, says, I'm willing to let the hair go with the hide. I close.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Tail— (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. the issue is on Mr. Joyce's motion to put a period after the word "debt" and delete the rest of Section 27.

Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: May we have a roll call?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. All in favor, vote Aye on the voting machines; all opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please take the vote.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 34 have voted Aye; 44 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 44 having voted No and 34 having voted Aye, the amendment fails. We're considering Section 27. Members of the committee, you have before you, on the motion of Mrs. Sullivan that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 37-m 27, that it recommend the same be adopted. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Will the clerk read Section 28.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 28, Rights of the convicted. Laws for the punishment of crime shall be founded on the principles of prevention and reformation, and full rights shall be automatically restored upon termination of state supervision for any offense against the state." Section 28, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 28 of Proposal Number 8, it recommends that the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman. The committee voted unanimously to adopt this revision of former Article III, Section 24. In doing so, the committee recommends that once a person who has been convicted has served his sentence and is no longer under state supervision, he should be entitled to the restoration of all civil and political rights, including the right to vote, hold office, and enter occupations which require state licensing. The committee believed that this is eminently proper and that the paramount concerns of prevention and reformation cannot be realized unless the ex-convict can readily move back into society as an equal participant in community affairs. Surely to rehabilitate one and attempt to insure that he has the opportunity to become a full member of the community requires that he be restored to the same rights, privileges and immunities as other citizens. This provision does not speak to the rights of the incarcerated while they're in prison, as did Delegate Proposal Number 98. It is not meant in any way to preclude them having all rights except those necessarily denied as a condition of their incarceration. The committee has also deleted reference to capital punishment. The reference to capital punishment is not necessary, as it merely grants the Legislature the power to do something it can do anyway. To delete this reference has no effect on the status of capital punishment in Montana. It remains in effect in those instances which the Legislature provides. The committee rejected Delegate Proposal Number 3, which would have abolished capital punishment. The committee felt the matter should be better left up to the Legislature. Now, for those delegates who think that this is soft on crime or the criminal and gives him more rights than he should have, may I say that, at present, I believe there are 24 occupations which are state licensed. At present, a person released from prison, until he is pardoned, cannot resume his occupation. He is, you might say, in a state of limbo or still in a state of isolation from society. This is, I would say, a catalytic agent for return to criminal activity, rather than an inducement to be a good member of society. So I do believe that we should adopt this section as the committee has reported it. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas, you have an amendment. Do you want the clerk to read it? Will the clerk please read Mr. Arbanas' amendment.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 28, page 10, line 3, by adding, after the word 'state', the following—quote-'death shall not be prescribed as a penalty for any crime'-end quote. Signed: Arbanas."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas has proposed an amendment to add a sentence at the end of Section 28 which would have the effect of abolishing the death penalty.

Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I do not presume to second-guess the committee. Yesterday I made a point of talking to Mr. Dahood and Mr. Blaylock about what had transpired in the committee with regard to the death penalty. And pretty much the word that I received back was the fact that, well, there is a national trend in this direction and that the federal courts are going to decide it anyway and that California has been on the bandwagon, and sooner or later it'll come to Montana, so to speak, and so that there's really not much reason for it to do it now, when the Legislature could do it anyway. I'd like to have us very seriously consider whether something is to be gained by a statement in our Constitution on this matter. I would liken it very much to this house of delegates; a motion comes on the floor and we all kind of listen to it and then say, "Well, is there something to be gained by my getting up and saying something about it?" And sometimes we do and sometimes we don't, but very often the actual vote of this house is influenced by what is said. And I'd like to submit to you today that as this national trend, you know, is before our nation, for us not to consider it even, or not to say something on it, might be a big mistake. I'd like to see Montana take a lead on something; and if we do adopt something, it'll be the vote of one more state in this direction. And I think that could be very important. So I'd like to see the issue debated by the Convention and faced by the Convention. I find it hard to imagine, in 1972, any Constitutional Convention meeting and not considering this very important item. The issue before the Convention, it seems to me in this item, is the sacredness of life. We havedebated abouttheright to vote and the land and privacy and water. We come here, I think, in criminal justice, to a very important item of the sacredness of life. We have on the other side of the docket, murder; all sorts of terrible crimes that certainly we don't want to go easy on; but we always have to measure that against the sacredness of life. Perhaps we're unfortunate to meet this question right before noon hour, but I'd like to see the Convention react to the proposition. I'd like to see us be one state to vote in favor of the sacredness of life.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Woodmansey.

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: I'd like to rise in opposition to the amendment by Mr. Arbanas. I think we have probably seen some trends at the national level in this area, but I think we're building here a constitution for the State of Montana. We've seen what, of course, California has done. I don't think we have to follow what the California courts have decided. Just what the courts of California decide does not necessarily say what the people of California, as a whole, believe. I know many people in California, and I have found them to be distressed with what has gone on. I know I have had people talk to me regarding this during the time we have had the Convention. I feel the people I represent want something there. I don't think they feel that we're going to go out and use the rope, as is possible, but I think many people feel that it may serve a deterrent in any way. And I think if you were affected by some major crime like this, that you would have strong opinions this way. And I'm very much against putting this into the Constitution and changing our present stance on this. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. I rise in support of the Arbanas amendment. I think that the proposal of the committee, in effect, dodges the issue; or maybe it really doesn't dodge the issue either, because the committee proposal says that the punishment of crime shall be founded upon the principles of the prevention and reformation. Now, I fail to see how the application of the death penalty, in any way, can come within the scope of that particular clause and intent. It seems to me that we have long since passed the time when this type of amendment is due in our Constitution. I think the Constitution is the place to tackle this sort of issue. I don't think it's the sort of thing that we ought to pass on to the Legislature. I believe that we have a duty to the people of our state to, in effect, carry out to its conclusion the thing that has been begun by the committee's proposal. They have struck a very important phrase from the present article, and it seems to me that that indicates that we are moving one step more in the direction of the abolition of the death penalty. And I think that the Arbanas amendment makes this clear, makes our intent clear, and I support the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Speer. Miss Speer.

DELEGATE SPEER: I rise to support Arthur Arbanas' motion. I have a great respect for this Bill of Rights Committee and the Chairman, but I do have strong conviction and I want to speak. I feel that the death penalty is an archaic relic of the past years when there was little regard for life. And I would like to see this Constitution, representing the people of Montana, commit this state to the abolition ofrevengeful punishment for crime.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Would Delegate Arbanas yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas?

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Certainly.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: You speak of the sacredness of the human life. Which one are you talking about? The man that commits the crime or the man that he does away with?

DELEGATE ARBANAS: That's a pretty good question. I think that our-the sacredness of life, of course--we know that the tremendous crime that is committed with murder--and I think that our way of handling in the past has been "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" sort of thing; that "you took my life and the state takes your life". And that's, I think, what Mrs. Speer was talking about when she talked of vengeful taking of life. I don't-if this were a deterrent, if this actually reduced that type of crime and-then I think we'd have something to talk about. I think there, our modern investigation, modern thought in this would tell us and pretty well display that what we had in mind to accomplish, you know, to protect that sacredness of the life of the man being murdered, actually is not being accomplished. In other words, it's almost like the man who's desperate to do something. I mean, it just seems that if you wanted to take a life, or lets say, I mean, to punish by taking a life, that that would be the supreme punishment for the supreme crime. But in fact, it doesn't happen that way. But, I mean, as far as the deterrent, as far as the philosophy of an eye for an eye; so I think that I understand what you're saying, but I don't think it actually argues against the point.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Would Delegate Arbanas yield to another question?

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Yes.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Well, in doing away with the death penalty, does that not cheapen my life? You can take my life, but I can't take yours.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Well, I don't know if you were dead that you could take my life. But the-1 don't believe so. It's necessarily not the intent of why-the opposition to the death penalty. Certainly if you--what you're saying, an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth, that's a philosophy. It seems to me that what we have to look at here is that any one of us, at anytime in our life, make a certain number of mistakes and we do harm to one another. We do it every day, in smaller ways or in larger ways. And so that, after a particular incident has happened, then you have-we, as society, have-how do you deal with that? You deal with it by correction. You deal with it by using your information to prevent other things happening. You deal with it by rehabilitation. Well, I submit that death doesn't do any of those.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Maybe—would Delegate Arbanas yield to another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Certainly.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: What about a man that is we'll say, put on-imprisoned for life? What is to deter him from taking a guard's life, because he's already in there? And if he is—through some action of one of the guards, he may take his life. It doesn't mean any more to him.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: What your question probably presumes is the man who is so intent on evil or so twisted that he's, you know, a murderer. That-I submit there are other ways of doing that too. But I don't know how-our presumption is when someone commits a crime, they are a bad person, rather than a person who's made a mistake. Maybe that's really the difference in the philosophy that we're bantering back and forth in our questions; whether you think a person is a bad person or a person who made a mistake. And I'd submit that adopting one of those philosophies or the other may well depend how you take care of it.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Well, I feel that there is a difference between a disturbed person and one that is just inherent to kill, that's all. And I think there is a difference in between there. And one would be in a mental institution and the other one would be in a prison. That is all, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman. I move that the committee recess until the hour of 1:30 p.m. this day.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Before we recess, the Chair would like to announce that there is a Citizens' Corps luncheon at noon at Jorgenson's.

Mr. Blaylock, for what purpose do you arise?

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: To announce a committee meeting of the Bill of Rights, right after adjournment in the committee room.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Blend, for what purpose do you arise?

DELEGATE BLEND: To announce a committee meeting of the Local Government Committee in Room 437 during the lunch recess. Please bring your lunch.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will everyone wait until we finish the business at hand. It's very disconcerting to the Chair to try and adjourn this meeting when everybody's standing up, and to take announcements. Will everyone please sit down. Okay.

Mrs. Sullivan.

DELEGATE SULLIVAN: Mr. President [Chairman], I'm sorry, but with all the commotion, we didn't hear the announcement that you made.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right. The announcement I made was that there's a noon luncheon for the Citizens' Corps executive people, and many people involved in the Citizens' Corp know about it. And I'm asked to remind you of that luncheon at Jorgenson's this noon. Now, the motion is to adjourn this Convention until--or this committee until 1:30 pm. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Adjourned.

(Convention recessed at 12:03 p.m.—reconvened at 1:45 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Committee will be in order. Ladies and gentlemen, before lunch we were debating Section 28 of the Bill of Rights Article, and Mr. Arbanas had offered an amendment which would add a sentence to the Bill of Rights Article on rights of the convicted saying: "Death shall not be prescribed as a penalty for any crime." We had not taken a vote. We're going to continue to debate on that issue. Does anyone else care to speak?

Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman and group, I think we are to a place where we can do something for the State of Montana psychologically. I believe that most of us in our own private consciences would find it hard to vote if we were on a jury to have a man killed or a woman killed. I think most of us personally would shy away from it; I think most of the people in the State of Montana would. I've been reflecting on this over the lunch hour, and I think what the people of Montana would like to see-they would heave a big sigh of relief, in fact-if some group like the Constitutional Convention-or if we don't do it, some day the Legislature--would just all together sort of tighten their belts, stiffen up and do this thing; just remove this from the lawbooks. Now, I think there'd be just a big sigh of relief go up from people all across our state. Now, I think there's some practical reasons for doing this, too. I'm a little suspect of a law that's on the books that isn't operative. I suppose lawyers here can tell us when the last death penalty was placed in Montana.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: 1944.

DELEGATE HARPER: '44? It isn't anything that is presently done. I have heard people say, particularly lawyers, that people on juries are a little bit reluctant to bring in a first degree murder conviction because they are not always sure that the judge might not impose a death penalty; which implies to me that it really makes almost ineffective the more stringent types of punishment we would like to place upon a person who has committed an offense that would call for capital punishment. The other side of the coin—and it's practical, too-is that as a result these jury trials seem to drag out almost interminably and the State of Montana is cost a lot of money that might otherwise not have to be spent on these jury trials. If we ourselves as a people on a jury would not like to see this, I sort of hate to put other citizens who might be on juries in the future in the place where they have to face this. I think the committee has already given us a good lead, because in writing this present Section 28 they state, "Laws for the punishment of crime should be founded on the principles of prevention and reformation". So it seems to me like this is a logical amendment here, because the things I have read in the last 20 years or so from people who have tried to write objectively in this field all indicate that capital punishment on the lawbooks is not really a case of preventive medicine and does not do the job for prevention. I think no one can quarrel with the fact that it is a very poor way to reform a person. The average corpse is seldom reformed by the fact that he has been rendered so by some judicial decision. I think, for practical purposes as well as for maybe the bigger psychological, philosophical principle that underlies this, that the State of Montana would, in a sense, breathe a real sigh of relief if we just, as their Constitutional Convention, would strike forever this archaic law from our books.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McKeon.

DELEGATE McKEON: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the motion by Delegate Arbanas to abolish the death penalty in Montana. I've done some reading during the lunch hour on death penalty statistics and the philosophy of the death penalty in general. I noted there are 14 states presently in this country without the death penalty. These states have been studied in comparison to states with their borders adjacent and the other states in general, and it has been found that the states without the death penalty do not have a rate of capital crime any higher than any of the states with the death penalty. We have heard the argument that the death penalty is a deterrent to crime. I feel this is the shabbiest of arguments in defense of the death penalty. The death penalty is not a deterrent. We all know, I am sure, that most death cases are--result from passion. Murder is a crime of passion. It is not a reasoned crime. For this reason, I submit the hanging over the head of the person of a death penalty plays no part in deterring him from the crime. I read of some interesting cases. There was a case in one state where a police officer argued very vehemently for the death penalty on the statute books of that case. Ten days after the-his argument was adopted in that state, he murdered his wife. There are other cases where a man was in prison for a crime and while in prison he helped in the erection of a gas chamber. He was released and immediately committed a murder. Now this man must have been quite aware of the possibilities of death for the crime of murder in that state, yet they did not-yet this possibility did not deter him. The examples are legion. The examples of this situation are legion. Also in a book I read, entitled The Case Against Capital Punishment, the author pointed out that murderers are least likely to be recidivous. Recidivists, as you know, are repeaters. Parole officers from across the country were examined, and they testified that the paroled murderer was least-was probably the best parolee. He, more than others, realizes the error in his ways and is more likely to try to redeem himself in the eyes of society. Also, Mr. Chairman, I think that with 14 states having abolition of the death penalty, we have a situation which is somewhat similar to a lottery. We take our chances, depending on the state in which we happen to commit the crime. But I would say, and perhaps this is the strongest argument which I have, that civilization is gauged by the way people treat others; and if we are to progress and if we are to become more civilized, then, Mr. Chairman, I say we must look at the way we treat others. And I think one way is to abolish the death penalty as inhuman and barbaric and no way for a society that portends to be civilized to continue. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, on behalf of the committee, I think our fellow delegates should know ourposition with respectto this issue. I am personally opposed to the death penalty. I think the evidence in favor of abolishing the death penalty preponderates. I'm not going to go into all the reasons and the statistics that exist. They could be discussed here. We could conduct an intellectual debate, and I'm satisfied if we could measure it on some logical scale, those that favor the abolition of the death penalty would prevail. Unfortunately for that position, statistics throughout the United States reflect that the people are not as convinced as some of us that the death penalty should be abolished. The latest survey indicated that 51 percent favor the death penalty. We are not going to place in the Bill of Rights or in this Constitution, as far as our committee is concerned, an issue that could very well be the basis for a crusade and a campaign against the entire document. Let me suggest this to you, my fellow delegates: placing separate proposals on a ballot has a very useful function to perform. It generates interest in the constitutional issue. We have one issue that will be on the ballot in the alternative with respect to the Legislature. I submit to you we need more than one. The abolition of the death penalty question might very well be another proposal that has sufficient merit to appear as a separate proposal. This is going to generate debate and discussion throughout Montana, and I am sure that there will be a number of citizens who will go to the polls simply because that issue is presented to them in that fashion, and let them decide it. After all, on an issue that statistics indicate is so close to the division point of public opinion, I think we ought to leave it up to the people to decide it. That is our position on the Bill of Rights Committee. I think when our committee voted, I think we would have voted to abolish the death penalty, but we're here to serve this Constitutional Convention to the best of our ability, wisely and practically, and we do not want to do anything that may cast aside all of the good and great things that we are doing and will accomplish before this Convention adjourns. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President [Chairman], I support the resolution of the Bill of Rights Committee in this instance, that the abolition of the death penalty should not be included in this section. I also support, if there are not too many other provisions going to the people, the reference of this question to the people. I stated in my campaign for this office, whenever I was asked, that I personally opposed the abolition of the death penalty and I would oppose it here, but that if anything was to be done about it, I would favor its referral to the people of the State of Montana to decide. If they wish to decide this through an initiative measure, they can, without it being included in the Constitution. If, when themajority of the Legislature decides the death penalty should be abolished, they would have that power under the proposal. I would like to state in answer to the argument that civilization is rated by the way we treat others, that the 51 percent of the people of this country who do not favor doing away with the death penalty feel that it is probably proper that we give some attention to the people who are being murdered. It is true, probably, that a murderer is not a recidivist. It is also true that the person who is murdered does not repeat the performance. No one in this state is now or will be, under our laws, sentenced to death except for a willful, premeditated murder. In my experience in the courtroom and previous to that as a court reporter, I have only seen one man sentenced to death. His sentence was commuted by Governor Ford. That man deliberately shot a person in the back. He did it willfully, he did it intentionally, and he pleaded guilty to the act. The court sentenced him to hang. The fact that Governor Ford, for the sake of his family, saw fit to commute that sentence, in my opinion is no reason for the law to be changed. Whether or not the death penalty is a deterrent, I feel anyone who commits a crimeof premeditated willful murder should know that the possible sentence for that penalty is death. Bobby Kennedy did nothing to Sirhan. When he killed him, he killed him deliberately and intentionally. And I know of no reason why he should be reformed to go out and possibly kill again, or to do some

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Melvin.

DELEGATE MELVIN: Mr. Chairman, I must rise in support of the position of the committee on Section 28. Everybody in this room believes in capital punishment or else you don't believe in the system. You have put stars and badges on officers and handed them guns, and many times those officers are called upon in seconds' time to decide whether or not they believe in capital punishment. Now, I think that this is the issue. In a matter of seconds, those officers have to decide. Some of these cases ofmurder-and we're not talking about mistakes, we are talking about first degree murder, which requires the element of premeditation, planning, a decision to commit murder before the murder is committed, or else a case of a person participating in a felony and committing murder at that particular time. Now, I am sure that I can speak for a good many law enforcement officers in Montana when I tell you that they would feel very much more confident if they felt there was a little backup. And after all, aren't we kind of jousting with windmills?—1944 was the last capital punishment in Montana. Now, in the past week or 10 days, there was an article in the papers from the Associated Press, from the Montana Criminal Law Commission. And they're recommending that the death penalty be used if the court finds that: one, the deliberate homicide was committed by a convict sentenced to imprisonment for more than 30 years; number two, the defendant was previously convicted of another deliberate homicide; number three, the deliberate homicide was committed for pecuniary gain; number four, the deliberate homicide was especially heinous, atrocious or cruel, manifesting exceptional depravity. Is that too much to ask? And as far as a deterrent is concerned, I think that this is a question that will be argued from now until there's no longer a world. We have talked about a state to the east of us, and that particular state has life imprisonment for murder. By a man's own admission, he realized that he was in Montana when his wife informed him that she was not interested in a reconcilement, and he realized that Montana still used the rope, so, by his own statement, he drove back to that fair state before he committed the deed, and he received life imprisonment. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, I call your attention to the fact that West Virginia formerly had ceased to use capital punishment, but in the past month they reverted to capital punishment. I call to your attention the deed of this man Mason [sic] and his three girlfriends who recently-I forgot the name. (Laughter) Anyway, you know who I mean-down in California. He and his three women accomplices killed several people and have been sentenced to death and now apparently are reprieved by action of California in doing-the court doing away with the death sentence there. I don't know whether capital punishment is a deterrent or not, but how many of you have ever seen a legal execution? I have. I've seen two of them. In 1921 or '22, the State of Montana executed a man by the name of Vulkovich in Missoula. Sheriff Houston was in charge of the execution. The county erected a huge pine-board fence around one corner of the courthouse. Imposing invitations were printed and mailed to many people. I was a young newspaper reporter at the time, and I attended to view the proceedings to write the story for my paper. It was during the period of the noble experiment of Prohibition, but most everybody there was drunk on moonshine. They led the condemned man out, and during the proceedings they dropped him three times, and he strangled rather than having his neck broken. It's pretty grisly business, folks. Makes me sick to think about it. There were people who vomited. Some of them were nearly ready to faint; and I felt pretty much that way myself, although I was a pretty flip young buck in those days. About a year later, in early '24, while I was steamshipping in the Orient in what is now Vietnam, I witnessed another execution. The condemned man was-they kneeled him down before a block and with one stroke of a huge knife, the executioner sliced his head off, and the blood spurted up like that. I tell you, I'm not going to vote for capital punishment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Restate that, Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: I'm wondering if Delegate Dahood will yield to a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I would, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Is it a fact that presently we have capital punishment by statute?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: That is correct.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Is there any need to put it in the Constitution?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: There is no need, in my opinion.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the statement which would remove capital punishment from our statutes. There are only two or three reasons why I think a person should be executed. One of them, certainly, is when, just for instance, a man who would rape a little girl, two or three before they catch him, and murder each one as he goes along; and for all intents and purposes otherwise, the psychiatrists say he's perfectly sane. You can't find a thing-of course, these psychiatrists build themselves up and say they're great, they've really learned, they've got the new medical dictionary memorized, and they can treat these people so that they're completely cured; they turn them loose and in 2, 3 days you have another little girl, or two or three, raped and murdered, dismembered, whatever. This is vicious. This type of killer-when you turn him loose, this is what happens all the time. For some reason or another, somebody gets them turned loose, and they go out and kill somebody else. What kind of responsibility is it if you're going to let these people out again to do this? We should have that in [the] background. I don't believe in hanging everybody. (Laughter) However, there is another category where I would certainly like to see capital punishment used once in awhile, and that's for these drug wholesalers and pushers. This is the most fiendish operation. They ruin more lives than any number of murderers. Now, that's about all I have to say, except maybe you could add cattle rustlers in there. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President [Chairman], I maintain that the death penalty is a deterrent. I just bring it up because I happened to read about the Mafia and these gangsters and what they do every once in awhile, putting these fellows in a sack of concrete and throwing them off a bridge in the river, or taking them out and shooting them now and then. If they aren't using this as a deterrent, I don't know what they're using it for. It certainly does stop a lot of going off on directions that the chiefs don't want them to go, and that isn't even murder. They just keep them in line with a death penalty. I'm sure it's a deterrent. How can people quote figures when they don't know how many people haven't been murdered or raped because of the fact that there was a death penalty but they didn't use it, or something like that. There's no question-I mean, you can't guess as to how many people might have been killed or might not have been killed. The facts were, this morning on the television-it just happened to be on CBS or NBS [NBC]—I remember seeing a fellow talking about this same thing, the death penalty. And he quoted the figures that during the time that 42 people were reprieved, there were 5,000 more violent crimes in that period than in previous periods of the same length of time. This fellow was evidently for keeping on the death penalty, and he had a pretty good argument. I don't see what harm it does to leave it in there, and it may do some good. And if we do go on this alternate thing of Mr. Dahood, I believe that the alternate ballot might be the answer to it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Erdmann.

DELEGATE ERDMANN: Mr. Chairman, I support the stand of the majority report. I'm sorry I didn't know about Miles Romney's little stories, or I would have probably spent last night looking up the story of the Vigilantes and entertain you and shock you with the stories of the hanging of Henry Plummer and his road agents. However, I don't pretend to understand how men think; but I thought it might be interesting to you to know what the results of a Good Housekeeping poll have been in regard to capital punishment. About 10 years ago they polled their lady readers--and this represents middle-class women across America-and at that time the enlightened reading woman of the Good Housekeeping class were about 90 percent against the death penalty. But last fall, late last fall-and the reports of their last poll were published shortly before Christmas-they polled their lady readers again. And perhaps it was because of the assassinations or it may have been-they also mentioned it may have been the result of this increased danger from the airline hijackers, but at any rate the women had changed their mind. Sixty-some percent were in favor of the death penalty, with 30 percent, in rough numbers, being against it, and about 10 percent not responding. Thank you, Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman, I think I would like to just address my remarks to Delegate Romney. He very emotionally and gruesomely described what he had seen. I'm sure if he'd have been on the riverbank over near Gardiner 2 years ago, he would have seen a sight that probably would have made him sick completely, when this fellow chopped another one up and ate part of him. And I'm sure the blood squirted pretty high there, too. I think Delegate Romney is well aware of the Lindbergh Law. I can remember when the Lindbergh Law was enacted, and it certainly did slow up the kidnapping of these children, and the reason it did was because it was for the death penalty for people that did these kinds of crimes. Now, I don't know how many people should be hanged or how many shouldn't, but I do feel that as long as Montana retains this right to put people to death on some of these crimes, that we may keep some of this crud out of Montana. And I certainly would be for that, and will not support the amendment of Delegate Arbanas. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Mansfield.

DELEGATE MANSFIELD: Mr. Chairman. I would just like to comment, along with the other members, that in this time-and especially after last night, the hijacking of airplanes-I think maybe we'll have to pass something like this too, along with the Lindbergh Law, to curtail this. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman, I rise in defense of our committee's position, and I do so somewhat reluctantly. And, I think along with a good share of the members on our committee, I very much oppose a death penalty. But I think that the kind of arguments we've had on the floor today indicate the kind of arguments we would get around the state during the campaign time. Now, we have a lot of fairly difficult issues to present to the public. We want them to be aware of the changes we're making in the structure of state government; we want them to be aware of the kind of government we are going to try to bring to the people of Montana. And I see this as an issue that could just cloud over everything else and really steal our thunder and in many ways prevent the people of Montana from facing up to the much more relevant issues that are facing us. I agree that the death penalty is not really appropriate; it's not really being used; the action we take probably is not going to make any difference on whether a person is ever executed in Montana. I think it's quite possible that the Supreme Court might take action on this and make any action on the state level unnecessary. But if we do feel that removing the death penalty is necessary and that it should be written into the Constitution, I think it would be much wiser to take it as a separate issue in some other year when we don't have an issue of this magnitude and this complication facing the people of Montana. And I urge you to stay with the majority report for this reason. I think this is a very difficult decision. I think a lot of us are going to be very reluctant to push a red button on this issue because we really do believe in abolishing the death penalty; but on the other hand, I think it's an appropriate thing to do. I think that it could cause the whole understanding of the constitutional issues a great deal of damage. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

will then, in fact, vote against the Constitution if they're going to vote against it for that reason. So it seems to me that it would do no good, in the light of the proposal that the committee has brought forth, to put this on the ballot in an alternate form. I think this is the time and this is the place to decide the issue, and, again, I would support Mr. Arbanas' amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President [Chairman], I rise in opposition to Mr. Arbanas' amendment, and I would like to pose this question to you fellow delegates. I wonder how many lives have been saved by the very fact that we do have this penalty hanging in front of people. Just ask yourselves, now, don't--wouldn't you think just a little bit about maybe they might stretch your neck if you killed someone? I wonder how many other people has thought about this. I wonder how many lives have been saved just with this thought. And I suggest to you that we have a terrific problem with law enforcement at the present time. Every law enforcement officer that is on duty never knows when he's going to be subjected to a bullet, and if you remove this little bit of fear that most law-abiding citizens have, what does a life sentence mean in Montana? The maximum is about 13 years. I've known several that got out in far less time than that-5 or 6 or 8 or 9—for murder. But there, again, I say-you don't know how many lives you have saved with this, with the very threat that this poses to the person and checks him just in time before he commits this crime. I think that this is something that we really need to think about. How many lives will we save-not how many people we're going to execute. Thank you, Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Choate.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Chairman, would Delegate Harbaugh yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh?

DELEGATE HARBALJGH: I yield.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Yes, Mr. Harbaugh. Where in the present Constitution do you find a provision that provides for capital punishment?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Well, the provision is in the parallel article, Section 24. Section 24 says: "Laws for the punishment of crimes shall be founded on the principle of reformation and preservation-prevention, but this shall not affect the power of the Legislative Assembly to provide for punishing offenses by death." And that's removed from the committee's language.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Okay, thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President [Chairman], fellow delegates. I am a person who has given a lot ofthought to the death penalty over the years, and it's been in relation to making the decision of whether to ask for the death penalty or not in prosecuting murder cases. I've never had a case where I have asked for the death penalty. In the last five murder cases I tried, there were never a case where I could ask for the death penalty. But I think it's important for you to know, in the State of Montana, at the outset ofthe trial, you can make a determination as to whether you are going to ask for the death penalty or not, and that's binding and the judge cannot and will not give the death penalty if you ask for it. So it's not an automatic, speculative thing. In a trial, it's a thing that requires a lot of soul-searching; and you think one way one time in your life, and I suppose you think another way when there's a real heinous crime committed. I recall-it's not a type of thing where you're going to get a jury or a judge to very easily give a death penalty. In other words, when someone made the statement here, "Let's be strong and get rid of it"—I would submit that it's going to take someone an awful lot stronger that's going to be able to give the death penalty ifthey think it's [an] appropriate case for it. It wasn't too long ago I asked the judge from another jurisdiction what had happened where a boy had shot his father and mother and they turned him loose. And the judge said, "Well, they felt sorry for him because he's an orphan. (Laughter) And that's usually what happens on these type of cases. I mean, there's no rights in here for the victims of these crimes. I've been in the investigation where the widows and the orphans are completely forgot about, and all the rights are the other way. Everybody immediately starts thinking about the rights of the defendant. And then, there's another thing I really think that's kind of interesting in this thing. When you gave the right in your Constitution for anyone to give--use sufficient force to enforce-to protect his own life and his own property, you, in a sense, said you can shoot somebody in self-defense, and that's a death penalty in reverse. In other words, you wouldn't want to take that right away to protect your wife and your children and your property. I think we're creating a great deal of alarm over a situation that's not bound to happen. The matter's before the Supreme Court of the United States right now. It would seem to me this body, in its good judgment, would leave our Constitution in its present form, and it's a Legislative matter in its present form, or defer the matter to a vote of the people-in other words, and see whether we want to superimpose our personal, individual judgments on those other people who are quite concerned. I think the death penalty would be more important to put on the ballot than whether we can have lotteries, or a lot of other things that are going to come up as great big challenges of dealing with rights and so forth. This might be the kind of thing that everybody's voice should be heard in it. So I would support, in the best interests of this document that we're trying to write, leaving this matter in its present form and defeating the amendment and leaving the matter to the Legislature or putting it as a separate issue on the ballot.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, I have two principal objections to the death penalty. The first one is that the hangman's noose is a white man's weapon, not only here but in the South; and I believe the last man to be hung in this state was a black man, and there are very few black men in this state. I have referred to that very well-read document, Report Number 10, of Rick Applegate's, of the Bill of Rights, which I'm sure all of you have read thoroughly. On page 185, he states: "Race is a clear factor in the application of the death penalty. For example, between 1932 and 1957, twice as many blacks as whites were executed in the South. To be sure, crime rates for blacks and whites are different, but not to the extent reflected by capital punishment statistics. Especially in cases of rape, the discriminatory application is clear. From 1930 to 1962,446 people were executed for rape. Forty-five were white, 2 were Indian and 399 were black. A total of 436 of these executions were in the South. Forty-two were white, 2 were Indian, and 392 were black. Just over two pages previous to that, in the well-read document of Mr. Applegate, on page 183, he set forth 10 states-the records in 10 states-for the period 1964 through '68. He matched up these 10 states, like Rhode Island and Connecticut, Wisconsin and Indiana-those that had the capital punishment and those that did not-and the statistics very, very clearly indicate that capital punishment is not a deterrent to capital crimes. They used to say the Germans had 200 words for making war and the French had 200 words for making love and the British had 200 reasons for hanging you. In 1801, the British hung a IO-year-old-13. year-old boy for stealing a spoon. The British, several years ago, after World War II, as you'll recall-the men of my generation-abolished capital punishment; and although we have capital punishment in almost all our states, including the great state of Texas, our President, Jack Kennedy, although we had a battalion of SS men-secret service men-to help protect him, was assassinated. Bobby Kennedy was assassinated, although California had the death penalty. Great Britain does not have the death penalty. The Prime Minister of Great Britain has one bodyguard. The British Bobbies do not carry guns, and yet their death rate-the number of capital crimes, rather-has decreased since they got rid of the death penalty. Only the Soviet Union, in the modern countries, and Spain and one other European country-I believe the French with their guillotines-still have capital punishment. The rest of the civilized-so-called civilized world has done away with it. I support Mr. Arbanas' amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman, I have a question as to a point of order, I think. I notice on our desks that we have a proposed amendment that would deal with two other aspects of the same question, and apparently, regardless of how we go on this, we'll have to discuss that later. I wonder whether it's the intention of the proposer of this now to withdraw it, or are we going to have to discuss this again at a later time?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, Mr. Arness. Oftentimes people have things that they want people to understand and they put them out on the desks. Nothing happens till it comes through the Chair, and I think we should not discuss or debate things that get on your desks until they're brought up. You may read them so you understand them, but if you start discussing or debating them before they're brought to the Chair or put on the floor, you're oftentimes debating something that need not be debated. I don't know whether they're going to be brought up or not. I let any of you bring up anything as you please, and I suppose it depends. So I think the practice of letting people put things on the desks ahead of time is a good one, because it lets people understand and gives them a little chance to read them. But this cams up the other day, and I think we should not place too much significance on things put on the desks, except to read them, until they come before the body. Is there further discussion on Mr. Arbanas' proposal?

Mr. Artz.

DELEGATE ARTZ: Mr. Chairman, I have been patiently waiting for somebody to bring up this point, and I ask you to consider which is more important-this proposed Constitution or the life of an innocent person. Courts have made mistakes. Innocent people have been convicted. An innocent person has-after he has been executed, it becomes rather impossible to correct the mistake. I ask you how many have read the book, Convicting the Innocent? I also would like to ask you to consider one little sentence that goes about quite commonly; that only the poor are hung, not the rich. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Delaney.

DELEGATE DELANEY: Would Mr. Dahood yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE DELANEY: It would appear to me by these words "prevention and reformation" that you've already removed the death penalty in your article without this additional word.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Delegate Delaney, we have not done that. Contrary to a misconception that seems to be prevalent, our present Constitution does not provide for the death penalty as a form of punishment. It merely states that the Legislature may enact legislation providing for the death penalty in a given case. That language, in our opinion, doesn't serve any real purpose in the Bill of Rights. We have merely removed the language, which results in changing absolutely nothing. The Legislature still has the power to abolish the death penalty or the Legislature has the power to extend the death penalty, and I commend to you Delegate Eck's comments that perhaps we are dealing with an issue that, for this moment and for this time, does not have that kind of importance because of all the factors that have been discussed here, and there are more important issues for the electorate of Montana. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman, what Mrs. Eck and what Mr. Dahood say may be true, but unless Mr. Arbanas is going to arise to withdraw his amendment, I'm going to have to do one of three things. I'm going to have to vote yes, I go for abolishing the death penalty; I'm going to have to vote no, I favor keeping it; or I'm going to have to sit here and not punch a button and let somebody else make my decision. Now, I'm going to make a decision, and it's going to be on a very simple basis. I think that the death penalty is wrong. Now, that may sound very naive and very idealistic and it may sound just like what you would expect a minister to say, because I do actually say that kind of thing Sunday after Sunday. Now this is Thursday and my congregation is not here and I'm not behind the pulpit, but I'm sitting here where we're all sitting, behind these two buttons. Now, if everybody in this room is for capital punishment, I'll just make niy stand; I think it's wrong. If everybody in the State of Montana is for capital punishment, I still think it's wrong. I have voted that way on several issues. I believe in the right to free voting, so I voted that way. I would vote that way if somebody came in here and said everybody in Montana is for restricting the ballot. I would still vote that way. I voted for due process of law; I think no person should be denied it. If a whole group of people came in here and said this is going to make the Constitution in precarious balance, I would still vote for due process of law. I would vote against double jeopardy. I have voted for several issues in the Bill of Rights on the question of right or wrong and they have been my personal decisions, and I'll vote that way on this one, too. I do not think capital punishment is in accord with my principles, and so I shall vote against it.

(A dog entered the Hall and started barking—Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I don't expect to contend with that type of competition, but I would like to respond in some part to Delegate Artz's comment and also, I think, to a degree to Delegate Harper's comments. Since the time that I was in junior high school and studying the question of capital punishment, through high school, all the way through college, and to the present time, I have always been opposed to it in principle. I am opposed to it on a very basic ground that for the state to take a life is really not the proper way to conduct the government of the people. And if we here assembled were up against the question once and for all, with no further chance to determine the question, I would vote in favor of removing the death penalty. But, in fact, we're not in that position. There will be other chances to remove this particular practice. The Supreme Court of the United States of America could remove it tomorrow. The Legislature assembled here one year from now could remove it one year from now. And assuming that the Constitution passes, the people of Montana by initiative could remove this at any time that they pleased in the future by referendum. And I feel that this issue is such that people that are opposed to removing the death penalty, opposed to putting in the Constitution that the State of Montana under no circumstances shall ever use capital punishment, are not going to reason this question out. And this is the type of a question which people will, from the very depths of their intestinal fortitude, if you will, will vote. And I feel that the Constitution will be in very grave danger if it gave these type of people no option whatsoever. I support the committee position completely, and I feel that we should not lock the door to people of the State of Montana that feel so strongly about this issue that they are not willing to consider any of the other merits of the Constitution. If a movement is made to put the question to a side issue on the ballot, I would also support that. But at this point, I oppose the amendment of Harold Arbanas and support the majority position of the Bill of Rights Committee. Thank you for your attention. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. I would like to close, and I appreciate the many fine thinking and concerned over this issue. I tried to make some notes during the various talks, and I hoped that I could go back and kind of at least react from my point of view on what was said. I mentioned that a vote in favor of this amendment would be a vote of this state for a national movement. Delegate Woodmansey seemed to think that I was implying that we had to do what California did. I wouldn't suggest that. I think that we have to not wait for others to do it. I think we have a possibility of doing something and taking a lead. All through the debate, the one thing that kind of kept coming back to me, of course, was the fact that this first murderer that we talked about, and I suppose in a case of murder this first murderer was wrong. I don't know how that suddenly sets up that another murder is right. I must confess that George Harper and I would be right on the same wavelength. I just cannot see that there is a right thing here. There's a presumption in our talks that the state can do that thing—that suddenly, because the state does it, it's right. I think there's a great deal to be said on your individual philosophy of whether you look on any crime as a thing that makes a person bad, or whether you emphasize in your mind the possibility of rehabilitation. One of the books I was reading had a sentence which impressed me very much-"The civilized goal of criminal justice is rehabilitation." I suggest that we live in a civilized time. There's possibly many cop-outs that all of us can take during the forum of this Convention. One of the cop-outs, of course, is to throw in "as determined by the Legislature"-and sometimes that's good; sometimes its bad. Maybe even a more severe cop-out would be, let's refer it to the people. I react very strongly about the idea that kept coming up over and over again-they could do it. What I'm trying to tell you today is we can do it and we have to face it that way. There was some talk—Delegate Habedank, when you talked-about the fact of such-and-such a case, there was no reason to reform this man and that even religion wouldn't save him; I would have to say from the point of view of religion that I have always been taught that somehow or another it's never too late, and that's the kind of religion I kind of stick with. The business of a law officer-I think that's a real different case than a cool, calculating murder of a criminal, or if you want to put it, execution. I suggest that that cool, calculating execution is not too much different than the cool, calculating execution we started with, and the fact that we do give guns to law enforcement officers is quite a different matter. There was a suggestion, too-and I think this is very important for you to think about-that between execution and letting a man out in 15 years we had no middle ground; that there was a suggestion that we let people out now in the short time so they can go out and repeat the crime. Maybe that's where the reform has to take place. We don't have to jump from, let's say, a poor detention system, the men you reform, to capital punishment as an excuse for that. After hearing Delegate Romney's description of the execution, I found it difficult to agree with Marian Erdmann that somehow hanging was good housekeeping.

(Laughter) I have to agree-disagree, too,—disagree with Delegate Eck on the matter that we should avoid the problem because it's a tough one; that we're working for reform of government in Montana and that's the kind of government we want to set, she said, before the people. I think that's the real point. Are we going to avoid those—that kind of issue? Finally, I suppose I began the argument on the sacredness of life. I would just hope that if the day ever came that I was on the docket and accused of a crime I never committed, that there would be people around that believed in the sacredness of life-the fact that I could be rehabilitated. I don't believe we can keep saying they could do it; I think we have to say we could do it. I don't think we have to keep saying that the people of Montana will vote their emotions, and then vote our emotions. Somehow or another, somebody has to deal with this in a reasonable fashion. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Arbanas' motion—

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, we'll have a roll call-to add to the end of Section 28 the language: "Death shall not be prescribed as a penalty for any crime." So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Arbanas' motion, vote Aye; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, take the vote, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman 42 delegates voting Aye, 48 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 42 delegates having voted Aye and 48 having voted No, Mr. Arbanas' motion does not prevail and we're still discussing Section 28.

Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman, I would request that the clerk read my amendment which has been presented.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell has an amendment. Would you read it, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to place as a side issue on the ballot the following-quote: 'Death shall not be prescribed as a penalty for any crime against the state'-end quote. Signed: Campbell."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Campbell's amendment, which is to place this matter as a side issue on the ballot: "Death shall not be prescribed as a penalty for any crime against the state."

Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman, if I may. I won't take a great deal of time on this to discuss it. I think the issue has pretty well been discussed, and most of us have our opinion on whether or not we're for it or against it. We have decided as a Constitutional Convention not to place it in the Constitution on the ballot. It is a large question. It's one that I think the people themselves should decide. One of the booklets that our committee received while considering this matter was The Case Against Capital Punishment, a hundred and fifty of which have been passed out. You may or may not have had a chance to read this. It goes into many of the areas that have been discussed here today, and I feel that if the people of Montana will take the time to discuss it, that they can come to their proper decision on the June 6th ballot as a side issue. I think if you follow the development of capital punishment, you'll know back in the 18th Century capital punishment was used in such things as a deterrent for fishing in a private stream, robbery of a rabbit warren, and as a deterrent, the crime of pickpocketing. But they found out that pickpocketing was going on at the time of a hanging for the same crime. Michigan, in 1846, which was a hundred and twenty-six years ago, was the first state to abolish it. Since then we have 13 other states. California, as you know, by their Supreme Court abolished it; and the United States Supreme Court is considering abolishing it-which would affect Montana, of course-as being cruel and unusual punishment.

(Chairman Graybill gaveled for quiet)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Go ahead, Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Thank you. The present majority report does not in any way abolish the death penalty, which is still in the statutes of Montana. If the people themselves decide on this side issue that they do wish to abolish the death penalty, I think they should have every opportunity and right to do so. I have one other matter that I would bring in the closing. I don't know how much debate this would require. I feel it is a proper item to be considered on the ballot as a side issue.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, I move to amend the proposal of my learned brother Campbell to read as follows: "The death penalty shall not be authorized except for the murder of policemen or prison guards on duty and for the commission of a second capital felony."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Kelleher has proposed an amendment to Mr. Campbell's proposal. Do you mean, then, to have your language, which is on your sheet, Mr. Kelleher, as an amendment to the section? Do you mean to have it as a matter to go on the ballot?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Yes. It's the third one, Mr. Chairman, on that list.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes. Do you have that sheet with Mr. Kelleher's amendment? It's Number 3, but the title of it needs to be changed to move to put it on the ballot. And the substance of Mr. Kelleher's amendment is that the death penalty would not be authorized except for the murder of policemen or prison guards on duty or for the commisison of a second capital felony.
Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I'm going to attempt to do a service to both of these movements. I will suggest to both of you, if you lose this today, I think you've very well had it, Now, if you wait until you find out the relative importance of this thing by letting the Style and Drafting Committee come in with a report and possibly recommending this, and with the possibility of amending that report to include this, you're going to have a much better shot at it than if you try to bind the Style and Drafting Committee in its proposed ballot. I will say once again what I said last Saturday, that each issue as it's hot is the most important thing we're looking at, and the day after tomorrow it wanes just a little bit and it doesn't become so important. And you're just going to bind us to do something that is going to eliminate some other issue, and I urge the members of this committee to reject any binding of the Style and Drafting Committee on its ballot as of any hot moment. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. President, I concur with Mr. Schiltz, and I thought we were told that they would make the recommendations and then we'd vote on all of them. As a result of that, I voted against Mrs. Babcock on the anti-diversion because I thought it was an improper motion at that time. But I thought this was up to Style and Drafting, and I don't want to make a decision on everything that's going on the ballot till we know all the issues.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brown, that may require a comment from the Chair. The Chair doesn't invite these; I just take them when they send them up.

DELEGATE BROWN: I'm not criticizing the Chair.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay.
Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: I'd like to ask a question of Mr. Schiltz for clarification and, likewise, I hope all the rest of you listen to the question. Do I understand what you're saying is that the Style and Drafting will decide, after we are through with all the issues, all of these documents, which things are to go as special issues on the ballot or not? In other words, now we have voted against this motion of having the deletion of the death penalty. Now, that was a clear vote. I was on the losing side, but it was a clear vote. Do I understand that Style and Drafting may decide, "Well, actually the Convention didn't really mean to vote against that-they really meant to put it on the ballot", and so you'll come back with that written up that way without any directive from the Convention?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Are you through asking your question?

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: We won't decide anything. That's your original mistake. I've tried to say over and over again that we will propose a ballot and it may include things that have been rejected by this Convention as things that merit a choice by the voters. Now, if that's wrong, I want to be told by somebody that that's wrong.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: That's the very point of my question. I think right now we ought to tell the Style and Drafting Committee whether this is right or wrong. For example, I take it the Style and Drafting may come back with the idea that parliament should be an option, along with unicameral and bicameral. If the Style and Drafting Committee decides that anything that has been discussed that wasn't properly settled by the Convention, they can decide to propose-I realize it's not a final assumption, but you can propose it to us; and I just never dreamed that Style and Drafting had that kind of power, if you want to call it that. I think the Style and Drafting Committee, if and when this Convention directs that a thing should go on the ballot, should come back with a suggested way of putting it on the ballot, but not be allowed to suggest what issues go on the ballot.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Monroe was up, Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. Chairman, I am against the proposed amendment here, not in so much the intent, but in I think that we're, by putting this as a side issue or even suggesting us putting this as a side issue on the ballot, we're doing a disservice to ourselves and to the people of Montana. Rights, individual rights, rights we're trying to include here in the Bill of Rights of the State of Montana, should not be at the mercy of the whims of the majority of the people of this state or any state or any nation; and I think we'd be doing a grave disservice if we proposed that there should be anything in regard to the death penalty as a side issue on our ballot that we're proposing for the Montana State Constitution. And I would much rather just accept the vote that we just took and go with the majority report, rather than putting any of this as a side issue on our ballot.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I want to completely concur on the remarks of Delegate Harper. I, for one, would not expect to see anything on the ballot that we rejected on this Convention floor. It seems to me that our decision should be final and should be respected. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. Let me reflect, too, that during the debate one thing that impressed me was the fact the number of delegates who voted No and were opposed to this being in the Constitution, you know, made the statement that this should be a side issue and that's where it should be placed. And, you know, I respect them for their opinion; and somehow to say that we can't, as a group, say that's what we want to do is pretty tough procedure. We should be able to say that that's what we want to do. I resist that restriction. I'm sure it's not always wise and I'm not so sure it's wise here, but I would hate to see us not able to do that.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. One thing, if we do put it as a side issue on the ballot, it could lock it in the Constitution. Now, I kind of think that we're tilting at windmills here. We had a very emotional issue yesterday on gun control. Now, I think there's been more light than heat generated. I don't think we're a bunch of guys in white hats and guys in black hats. I think-I don't think there's any of us here want gun registration. I think there are many of us here that are against the death penalty, although we didn't vote with Mr. Arbanas; we voted to go along with the committee proposal. I wonder how many here would want to drop the pellets in the gas chamber or pull the trap on the—as the hangman or push the button in the electric chair. I just don't know. Of course, you let the state do it; and you're still responsible, but you do it. But here is two things, federal gun control-you could lock it in the Constitution, then the federal government wipes it out, so you've got an archaic thing in the Constitution that doesn't mean anything anyway. If you, by amendment, put the death penalty in the Constitution, the Supreme Court rules on it and knocks it out, it's another archaic thing. So why should we clutter up our new Constitution with things that actually will be decided for us?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. Fellow Delegate James, of course, is on the same committee, the Bill of Rights, and I'm afraid he misunderstands the nature of my motion, at least. My motion is to allow the people to decide whether or not they want to abolish the death penalty. If they vote No, that provision does not go in the new Constitution and it is left up to the Legislature, as the majority of the Bill of Rights Committee had recommended. This is not an either/or between two-one that will require it or one that will abolish it. It's whether or not the people want to abolish it, yes or no. If they don't want to abolish it, the Legislature still has it on the books and it would still be into effect. I would resist the amendment suggested by Delegate Kelleher. I think that this would lock something into the Constitution; this would not allow the Legislature to have the complete flexibility that it should have. And I think that the issue should clearly be presented-do we want to have the death penalty or not? And I feel that we should give it to the people to decide. In the book on capital punishment, they point out that some of these murders in prison have actually been committed by people who wanted to commit suicide and force the state to kill them, so I feel that Mr. Kelleher's amendment is ill-advised and would oppose it and urge that it be rejected.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Scanlin, did you want the floor?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, this was-1 was just inquiring a point of order and I was trying to write it out here. It seems to me that the Chair should rule on whether or not this is a legitimate part of the discussion; that is, to entertain a motion which is divorced from Section 28.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, I see your point. And since you've raised it, the Chair will rule that it is a legitimate time to debate it. We've had so much debate on it, I don't want to do that all over again. I want to catch it right now while everybody's knowledgeable on the subject.

Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, I feel we're exhausted on that subject. We've beat the death penalty to death. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Stick around, Mr. Scanlin. (Laughter)

Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman, could I direct a question to Mr. Schiltz?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I yield.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Schiltz, I believe that we are concerned in one aspect of this about what is the proper way of calling the attention or getting some consideration from your committee. And as I understand it, it was suggested to us that we could submit a resolution asking your committee to consider something. It was suggested this morning that a petition could be circulated among delegates, asking your committee to consider something. Would it be more appropriate, rather than directing you at this time, to put in a motion asking your committee's consideration of an issue?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That only came to me as a rumor. I have no official knowledge that there is going to be any form of resolution or anything else. I want to reassure Mr. Harper and Mr. Dahood and a great many others of you that this is no great amount of power that is in the committee. This happens to be the hardest-working committee in this place, and we're overburdened. And let me assure you that if we can get out of putting this thing together, we'd be happy to get out of it; wouldn't we, Jim and Rich and everybody else on our committee? But we conceived-and this is our conception-from osmosis, I suppose, we picked it up-that this is the way the ballot is going to be prepared. We look at other people's ballots and they have alternatives on it and it has come from the Style and Drafting Committee: and as a matter of fact, it's just another form ofreconsideration after we put that thing out to this body. We're not drunk with power; we don't even want the power, but we have it. If you want to do it by resolution and you got 87 names on it, we'll consider it. I haven't seen anything about a resolution.

DELEGATE ECK: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. President [Chairman], I spoke in behalf of the amendment that Mr. Arbanas made, but I think that at this point I agree with theremarks thatweremade by Mr. James a few moments ago and that I will vote against a motion to place this in the alternative on the ballot. I'm satisfied that we had a good discussion of it here. I think that if this body feels that it does not want to include that provision, then it should not go on the ballot. And I would be against the motion and against theamendment to the motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, the Chair is going to entertain the rest of your debate, but the Chair wants to point out that we do have these motions and people do have the right to make them. And I think this body has the right to instruct Style and Drafting or it has a right not to, and you people have to decide it. But let's now try and stick, if we can, to Mr. Kelleher's amendment, which is whether you want the thing on the ballot to say-if it went there, which we're going to decide too-"The death penalty shall not be authorized except for the murder of policemen and prison guards on duty and for the commission of a second capital felony." Now, if you have something to say on that, let's decide it, and then we'll vote on that. And then we'll go ahead and vote on Mr. Campbell's motion as to whether to put it on the ballot, and then we'll go ahead and vote on 28 again.

Mr. Aronow.

DELEGATE ARONOW: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Kelleher yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Yes.

DELEGATE ARONOW: Bob, in looking at the language in this thing-"The death penalty shall not be authorized except for the murder of policemen or prison guards on duty and for the commission of a second capital felony"-could this be so construed-in looking at it, there's a doubt in my mind that the death penalty must be meted out if there's a conviction in the last part in those two or three instances.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: For those three cases-the murder of a policeman, or (b) a prison guard on duty, or (3), a commission of a second capital felony. It is not my-that's a good question, and it was raised earlier. It's a very good question, but it is not my intent. That's what I'm going to say for the record. It's not my intent that that be the case.

DELEGATE ARONOW: Okay.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mr. Chairman, I am against the death penalty and I intend to vote, but I received a letter from a constituent which has a different viewpoint, and I want to read this to the Convention. I think it's quite important. "The Honorable Mr. Holland; Montana Con-Con, State Capitol, Helena, Montana. Mr. Holland: I would like to state my opinion on capital punishment. I think the people have the right to make a murderer pay for his crime with his life. I think if a murderer has been convicted and the state lawfully convicts him, he should pay for it with his life instead of being able to sponge off the people. I mean, we let a murderer kill somebody and then let him sit around while we give him a vacation for the rest of his life at our expense. This is not justice, to me. I understand that sometimes a man may be convicted unjustly, but this is just something that you have to take the good with the bad." (Laughter) Now, I'm going to make an amendment if these two bills don't, that if we keep the death penalty that the State of Montana be restricted to hanging no more than 10 innocent people a year. (Laughter) And I'm quite serious about this. England abolished the death penalty when they found out they hung a man unjustly, a man who was not guilty of the crime. And I am convinced, in this day and age-we haven't had an execution, I think, since 1966 or '67-I'm convinced that, we do one thing right, we should abolish this death penalty and do it today.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on—

Mr. Simon.

DELEGATE SIMON: Mr. Chairman. I've been listening very, very carefully to what everyone has had to say, and I didn't want to say anything until I had heard a great many people. I had an experience in my life that-it was as gruesome as my friend over here-when a 14-year-old girl left my store in Bridger, Montana, and the man that killed her brought her back in an hour, seated in his automobile, and drove up within a quarter of a block of my mother's home. Now, that's the gruesome part of it. But I think most of you know that I spent 5 years on your Board of Pardons of the State of Montana. I think most of you know that at the time the Board of Pardons was formed, that there were 685 people in prison. I think that most of you know that today that there's only two hundred and forty-or-fifty in prison, and most of them are out on parole or being given deferred sentences. Now today, with my conscience and my upstairs doing something to down here where your heart is, I voted green, and we lost. Now, I did that for a very, very specific reason. And I believe that what we've done here today has put us in a position that we are in at this moment; this hundred people, these hundred people here today, are saying to themselves, "I would not be the one that pulled the rope", and if we took a vote on that, I think we would have gotten a bigger vote in the green side. But I thought perhaps under some circumstances we must consider, or should consider-the fact is that we should give the people of Montana-now, each one of us represents about 7,000 people-we should give the people of Montana the opportunity to say whether they want to abolish capital punishment. Now, the reason that I voted as I did today-and I want to be very specific-that I have sat closer to more murderers, I believe, than anybody in this room, because I sat right across the desk in the prison, back in a little room they call the mug-room, and interviewed 4,400 interviews-twenty-two hundred-and-some people-on this Board of Pardons in 5 years. Now, the reason I voted like I did, and with the hope that we could give the people a chance on the ballot to ask these people, I thought perhaps that if we could take some time through the courts to find out how many people come into this state and are only in here from 1 day to 3 weeks that commit some of our more dastardly crimes from other states, you'd be astounded. The second reason I voted as I did, every murderer is innocent. And there was times in my life that I sat in front of a man-it was right-I was always in the middle of the desk-he was right there--where I was not sure that that man had been convicted of the crime. Now, they're all innocent, you understand, when they go to prison; but I was not sure that I could make that decision to turn that man loose. I could not make that decision if I had to, if I was going to say, "You put that man on the gallows, and I'll pull the string." I could not make that decision today. That's the reason I voted the other way. I would like a study made of our state that would indicate, in our major crimes of murder and rape, some sort of an analysis made of how many crimes are committed within 1 month, 1 year, 2 years-that are not our residents. I believe that this should go on the ballot. The people of the State of Montana should be given the opportunity to make this decision. I don't think we're making the right decision today. I think all of us voted as an individual; what we would do and not what the people of Montana would do. I urge you to put this on the ballot. If you have any doubts in your mind about how many come in here and commit dastardly crimes, you go down to the prison when the Board of Pardons meets, especially if they have 685, and listen to people who have been in the state for a few hours and have raped grandmothers, mothers, daughters-not once, but under three occasions on one conviction. Thank you very much, ladies and gentlemen.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, the Chair hopes to get a vote soon on these two things on the ballot, but Mrs. Babcock, you've been up before.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman, would a motion be in order to submit this issue of how we're going to put things on the ballot to the Rules Committee so that this could finally be decided? I think it affects some of our votes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I don't think it would be in order before we take these votes. The point is, this body can do whatever it wants to. It can send directions to Style and Drafting; it cannot send directions to Style and Drafting; it can send the whole thing to the Rules Committee if you want to; but this body can do as it pleases. I'm not trying to tell them and I don't think any of us can. And you may make a motion, I suppose to-1 suppose the only motion in order now would be a substitute motion to segregate-or to refer these matters to the Rules Committee. But I don't think you intend to refer the death penalty matter to the Rules Committee; you intend to refer the issue to the Rules Committee. And if you want to do that, you certainly may. But my point is that these things come up when people have them and send them, and that we have to vote on them and decide them. That's all I'm trying to do.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: I hope we can figure out some way how this body can do it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer's been up.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President [Chairman], I just wanted to clear up a point. Are we voting on Kelleher's deal as an alternative?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher moved that as an alternative to Mr. Campbell's, DELEGATE STUDER: Well, it doesn't say so on the sheet I got.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, but I've twice pointed out that you should amend the sheet, Mr. Studer, so that it says: "I move to put on the ballot the following."

DELEGATE STUDER: Okay, thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay. Are there further questions on Mr.-before we go to vote on Mr. Kelleher's motion?

Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. I wonder if we couldn't take just a couple of minutes to eliminate the confusion in my mind, and I think in the minds of most of the delegates, as to what the power of the Style and Drafting Committee is. In Rule 51 it says that the Committee on Style shall prepare for submission to the electorate the proposals of the Convention and a ballot. Now I don't see how they can come back and propose to us something that we have voted down. How can they? It isn't a proposal of the Convention unless we voted for it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I don't have the authority, probably, to give you a decision on what we do, but I can assure you that anything that the majority here doesn't vote for certainly will not be done, and the Style and Drafting cannot do it. We have to have a majority vote in this body on any motion that is made and it will so carry, and that's the way it will be done. So, to-what Style and Drafting does, it will have to be with this body's sanction.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: You know, about once a week I get confused.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's not Saturday yet, Mr. Champoux. (Laughter)

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I know, but I'm a day early this week. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Oh, that's right. You've made your point.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Wait till tomorrow. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You've made your point. Do you want to sit down while you're ahead, Mr. Champoux? (Laughter)

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: You know, I think this whole business about Style and Drafting could turn out to be a real dangerous thing and a lot of things could be read into it. For instance, if we get a motion back from Style and Draftingthat they feel that a certain thing should be on the ballot, isn't that indirectly a move to reconsider, sir?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Are you asking the Chair a question?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair has never suggested that the way to get things on the ballot is to wait for Style and Drafting. Style and Drafting has suggested that. The Chair thinks that this body-if you want to know what the Chair thinks, I think this body has to suggest or send something to Style and Drafting, as we did the first day with unicameral, and tell them to put it on the ballot. Now, if we do that, I think they'd tell us how. But-I'm trying not to debate this, but my view is that you have to tell them. I don't think they should come up with new suggestions out of the blue. I don't really think they're going to.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: All right, thank you, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think maybe they're, in an abundance of caution, trying to keep the issues down. All right, are we ready to vote on this issue? The issue is Mr. Kelleher's motion, which is a substitute motion, to put on the ballot the following words: "The death penalty shall not be authorized except for the murder of policemen or prison guards on duty and for the commission of a second capital felony." The way, the precise way, in which it would go on the ballot would be up to Style and Drafting, but whether or not to make that an issue to go on the ballot is what we're talking about.

Mr. Kelleher, do you want to close, or you just want to—

DELEGATE KELLEHER: No, I don't want to take the time to close. I think the matter has been very thoroughly discussed. But Mason Melvin has just called to my attention something, and I would like to, if there is no objection, substitute for the word "policemen" the words "law enforcement officers" so as to include sheriffs, highway patrolmen, and indeed, for therecord, all types of law enforcement officers.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of allowing Mr. Kelleher to make that amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered. All right, are you ready for the question then? Those in favor of Mr. Kelleher's motion, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, that one is defeated. Now we're discussing Mr. Campbell's mbtion, which is to place as a side issue on the ballot the phrase: "Death shall not be prescribed as a penalty for any crime against the state."

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATES: Roll call vote.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, we'll have a roll call vote.

Mr. Campbell, do you want to close?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I certainly am not going to spend much time on it. I have received one letter, which is the most moving letter I've received since I've been at the Convention. It's from an inmate in our own prison, and many of us think with all the safeguards, innocent men never get convicted. Of course not; it couldn't happen. I'd just like to read to you. The first part of the letter, they were very excited about the first part of this section as an incentive for rehabilitation. On the second page, this is what this man in our prison wrote to me: "Recently I was faced with a moral dilemma which I later realized never existed. Briefly, a full confession was made to me by another prisoner regarding a murder he had committed. This man further indicated in detail how he had successfully framed another individual for this same crime. I'm ashamed to say that for 2 weeks I kept this information to myself. Fortunately, I was able to muster enough guts to overcome this rather warped sense of values, and now I know I've made the right decision. The guilty man has since been convicted, while the innocent one has been returned his freedom." It can happen, A man lied to convict another man to save himself, and with all the safeguards our system has, this can still happen. And this is why I think that this should be placed on the ballot, that people should consider it; and certainly the majority in the early 1400's knew without thinking about it that the world was flat, and I think that this is one thing that we're going to have to think about. And I would sincerely hope that we give the people of Montana this opportunity to abolish it or let the Legislature deal with it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll have a roll call vote. The issue is on Mr. Campbell's amendment to Section 28 to place-it's in conjunction with 28—to place as a side issue on the ballot the following sentence: "Death shall not be prescribed as a penalty for any crime against the state." All those in favor, vote Aye; and those opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk take the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 58 delegates voting Aye, 35 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 58 delegates having voted Aye and 35 No, Mr. Campbell's motion prevails, and that will be sent to Style and Drafting for that purpose.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I move the committee recess for 15 minutes, until 3:35 p.m. this day.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, ladies and gentlemen, we're going to learn, I think, that we have to wait till this motion is put.

Mr. Rygg, do you have a-did you wish to be heard?

DELEGATE RYGG: I wanted to make a committee announcement. Is it possible to do that now?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE RYGG: I would like to have Revenue and Finance, in Room 437, immediately upon recess. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Now, all in favor of recessing for 15 minutes, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Thank you. Recess.

(Committee recessed at 3:20 p.m.-reconvened at 3:50 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The committee meeting will please come to order. Is there other discussion of Section 28?

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I have a motion which I'd like the clerk to read.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right. The clerk will read Mr. Habedank's amendment.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 28, page 40, by addition of the following: 'Nothing contained in this section shall be-allow a person convicted of crime to continue in or enter any business, trade, occupation or profession when prohibited from engaging therein by the licensing provisions provided by law.' Signed: Habedank."

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank, your amendment, which would add a sentence to 28 to the effect that anyone convicted of a crime may not enter a trade, business or occupation which-wherein he is prohibited by licensing provisions to do so, will be allowed and you may discuss it.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President [Chairman], the Bill of Rights Committee, in their presentation on the floor before, very forthrightly said that it was their intention in the adoption of this article that when any person had served his sentence, he was to be restored both to his political rights and to his civil rights; which meant, as they explained it in answer to a specific question by myself, that if I as a lawyer were convicted of a crime, sent to the penitentiary, served my sentence, I would automatically be restored to the practice of my profession when I finished my sentence. Each profession, whether it's lawyer, doctor, certified public accountant, or any of the other professions, have licensing boards who exercise some discretion as to whether or not a person should be admitted to practice; and in the exercise of that discretion, I think it is proper that they should not, for the mere fact that a person has been in the penitentiary alone, be allowed to refuse his admittance to practice. But the mere fact that a person has completed his sentence does not, in my opinion, necessarily entitle him to full faith and credit and be returned to a profession. Licensing provisions are made for the protection of the public. I think the licensing boards in each of the professions are people of character and discretion, and as I read this provision as given by the majority, they would not have this discretion. They would automatically be required to restore a person to his profession, and I think this is going too far as a matter of constitutional law. The Legislature should be left some discretion in this matter, and as I look at it, my amendment would do this. And I urge your support of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion?

Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman, I rise to oppose the proposed amendment of Mr. Habedank's. Certainly nothing is a greater threat to rehabilitation than the present restrictions we've placed on people whom, at the end of their sentence-not just the time that they're released from prison, but the time at which they are released from supervision, the time at which we tell them, "You have paid your debt to society, we are going to restore your rights." This is what we determined in the Bill of Rights Committee would be only fair. At the present time, a person cannot—there is no discretion in the board. If you have a felony in your record, you cannot engage in these occupations that the Montana Legislature has provided felony restrictions on. They include approximately 23 professions. It has gone all the way from the doctors, the lawyers, the teachers, all the way through the barbers and to the last classification that the Legislature put that a felon could not engage in, and that is an artificial inseminator for cattle. Now, I say to you, the Legislature is going too far, that there is no reasonable relationship between a person's pastrecord and the ability to practice any meaningful occupation in this state. This would be a step forward. It would judge a man on his merits. I still believe that if he was unfit to practice his particular profession, it could certainly be handled by the Legislature. We do not intend to bind this in as far as that goes. It's my position that right now there is no discretion on the boards at all; that if there is truly some relationship between a man's fitness to practice his profession, then certainly the board should and will have it even under this amendment. It's just saying that we're giving him the presumption, when he starts out, that he's capable, that he's paid his debt, that he can engage in some meaningful occupations which he cannot now. For the rest of his life he is, at the present time, excluded from all of these occupations and he's certainly rejected from the system And I think that if we are going to have rehabilitation, we're going to have to start with a clean slate. I've talked with the Parole Board on this. They have been very excited about this. This is one thing that would certainly help them in the rehabilitation, and I would oppose the amendment. I feel it is destroying the very thing that we're trying to do, and that is to make useful citizens out of people who have made a mistake and paid their debt. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion?

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Chairman, I would like to close. In answer to what Mr. Campbell has said, he is correct up to a point. But the Legislature can change this, and when we lock it in the other way, I submit to you that we are locking into the Constitution a provision that will prohibit you from protecting the public through the Legislature.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Habedank's-

Mr. Studer, you want to speak?

DELEGATE STUDER: No, I just wanted to ask if we could have that read to us-that amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'm going to read it to you.

DELEGATE STUDER: Okay.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The issue is on Mr. Habedank's motion that we add the following language to Section 28: "Nothing contained in this section shall allow a person convicted of crime to continue in or enter any business, trade, occupation or profession when prohibited from engaging therein by the licensing provisions provided by law. Nothing contained in this section shall allow a person convicted of a crime to continue in or enter any business, trade, occupation or profession when prohibited from entering therein by the licensing provisions provided by law." So many as shall be in favor-

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Roll call. So many as shall be in favor of adding that to the Section 28 on the Bill of Rights, please vote Aye; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk take the vote.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 24 have voted Aye, 54 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 54 having voted No and 24 Aye, the motion fails. Is there other discussion of Section 28? Members of the committee, you have before you for your consideration Section 28 and you've had the recommendation of Mr. James that when this committee does rise and report, after having had it under consideration, that we recommend it be adopted. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 28 is adopted. Will the clerk read Section 29.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 29, Eminent domain. Private property shall not be taken or damaged for public use without compensation to the full extent of the loss having been first made to or paid into court for the owner. In the event of litigation, just compensation shall include necessary expenses of litigation to be awarded by the court when the private property owner is the prevailing party." Section 29, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman, thanks for reminding me I brought up Section 28. It seems like a long time ago. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: How about Section 29, Mr. James? (Laughter)

DELEGATE JAMES: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having under consideration Section 29 of Proposal Number 8, it recommends that the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, the committee unanimously approved substantive changes in the eminent domain section. The thrust of the committeeeffort was to assure the full and just compensation—that full and just compensation be made in all eminent domain actions. Without it, some of the costs of eminent domain action fall where they do not belong-on the person whose property is being condemned. In order to give substance to the citizen's effort to challenge the compensation figure of the condemnor, the last sentence of this provision was added. Those testifying in opposition to the committee's original eminent domain proposal agreed that this sentence, which awards necessary expenses of litigation to the private property owner when he is the prevailing party, is just. The committee intends, by "necessary expenses of litigation", all costs including appraiser's fee, attorney fees and court costs. It is felt that when-this stipulation will produce a climate in which the condemnor's offer for compensation will be more-will more adequately reflect the compensation to which the property owner is entitled. The property owner will have a chance to collect the expenses he incurs in challenging the condemnor's action. In addition, it will redress the imbalance between the vast resources brought to bear by the state and those available to the individual property owner in contested cases. The committee recommends this section to the Convention as insurance that the compensation to the private property owner will, in fact, be just. Delegate Proposal Number 75 was amended to accomplish this provision. I think you're all familiar with the term "the public good". Sometimes this is rather elusive and is used to condemn property and a figure which may be unjust to the property owner is not contested because of the cost of litigation. This, I believe, will correct this situation. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion of Section 29?

Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Chairman, I move to amend Section 29, on page 41, line 29, by placing a period after the word "loss" and deleting therefrom the words "having been first made to or paid into court for the owner".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, you just want to delete the rest of that sentence, is that right?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Yes, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis proposes an amendment to Section 27 which puts a period after the word "loss" and strikes the words "having been first made to or paid into court for the owner".

Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Chairman. Although I confess I've not had the extensive experience in this matter that Chairman Dahood has, in the road problems we've had in our area with the state, the full extent of the loss has not been fully determined until after the road has been constructed. Many people have settled on what they thought were the full extent of the loss, then to find out that the underpasses wouldn't work or that right-of-ways weren't there, and so forth. I think that the expansion they made to have the additional cost paid are very fine, but I don't think we want to hold up the wholeinterstateroad program until all the litigation is over, and I don't think that you can make a determination of what the full extent of the loss is until after the construction takes place. We've had many representations made of many landowners in our area who have settled based on the right-of-way agreements, only to find out subsequently that their frontage roads weren't there or that their other underpasses, in some cases, were not adequate to get stock through or machinery from one side of the road or the other, and then they were precluded from getting the full amount of their loss. So I think that this amendment will be in keeping, I hope, with what they have in mind. I don't think that you can stop the program on road construction by having all the litigation settled, and I don't think-this again is a two-edged sword. It can work to the detriment of the landowner as well as to the-to his benefit; and I think it would be much better this way, in keeping with an orderly construction program, and also better for the owner, so they can determine what's actually happened after the construction has taken place; and I'll yield to Mr. Dahood to present his views on this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I think Delegate Davis is really addressing himself to the delegate proposal before we changed it. The comments that he has made, at the moment, in my judgment, do not apply to the section as it presently reads. The language that Delegate Davis seeks to omit by his motion is language that we have had in the State of Montana for80 years. The present constitutional provision, Article III, Section 14, reads: "Private property shall not be taken or damaged for public use without just compensation having been first made to or paid into court for the owner." The reasons that Delegate Davis has given for deleting this particular language relates to an entirely different problem. And, of course, the function of the court is to find out what is the full extent of the loss. When condemnation is made by the State of Montana, they are required by law to make deposit with the court with respect to the amount that is claimed by the property owner. That property owner is permitted, because it's necessary for him in order to protect his property position, to ask the court for permission to withdraw that sum of money. He is then permitted to present his case to a jury, to have that jury determine what is the full extent of the loss. That is the real conflict and the real controversy in an eminent domain proceeding. With respect to whether or not a frontage road is adequate, whether or not the underpass may be sufficient, that is a separate question that is not related necessarily to the amount of compensation. You have the plans of the Highway Department; they're produced in court. Their engineers testify, and the full extent of the loss is based upon what has been presented in that respect. If it turns out that the plans are later changed or that the construction does not fit that particular plan, you have then perhaps a different type of taking; and then, under this particular constitutional section, you have what we call inverse condemnation, where then the property owner can file a complaint in court and sue the state for an additional taking not within the contemplation of the first award. I took this time to explain for the benefit of the nonlawyer delegates what is involved, and I would ask Mr. Davis, Delegate Davis, if he would yield to a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: I yield, Delegate Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Now, Carl, perhaps I have not responded directly to your position; and in order to clarify it so that everyone will understand what the situation is, if you have another question, I would welcome it at this time.

DELEGATE DAVIS: I do have another question, and perhaps more, if you would yield.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I do yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Your principal change, as I understand-in the first sentence of this section from our present Constitution, which says "just compensation"-your principal change is to have "compensation to the full extent of the loss". Would you explain the difference in adopting that language.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Carl, in my judgment, I don't think it makes any real substantial difference. As you well know, there are many, many, many eminent domain cases decided by the Supreme Court of the State of Montana dealing with the question of what is the full extent of the loss. I do not think it is going to change the law that expands with time and circumstance. I think we have merely indicated here that we want to be sure that the court continues to recognize that we want the citizen compensated to the full extent of the loss. As you well know, the leading authority on this particular subject of the law is Nichols; that contains some eight volumes, and most of that work is related to the question of what is the full extent of the loss.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Thank you. Will you yield to another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis. Will you yield, Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I do, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE DAVIS: For the purpose of the record in this matter, Mr. Dahood, is it your thought that the highway construction can then proceed as they now are by either you consenting or getting their take and go ahead with the construction before all litigation is-has been concluded regarding this particular take, to determine the full extent of the loss?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Carl, without any doubt; we have not changed the present system whatsoever insofar as the ability of the State Highway Department to start construction.

DELEGATE DAVIS: All right, with that in the record, I'll withdraw my motion.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis' amendment is withdrawn. Is there other discussion?

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President [Chairman], would Mr. Dahood yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Yes, I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Dahood, for the purpose of the journal in future litigation over interpretation of this term, will you please state into the record what is meant by the words "prevailing party".

DELEGATE DAHOOD: By "prevailing party" I mean, for the record, the property owner, in the event that he is the prevailing party. The only person intended by this particular section and the sentence that has been added-"just compensation shall be awarded by the court only"— "just compensation shall include expenses of litigation only when the prevailing party is the private property".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Dahood, I failed to ask the question properly. If the Highway Department offered an owner $5,000 for his property and the owner refused it and went into court and secured a judgment from the jury for less than $5,000, would he then be a prevailing party?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: He would not be a prevailing party.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: If he obtained $5,001, would he be a prevailing—

DELEGATE DAHOOD: He would be a prevailing party.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Thank you, Mr. Dahood.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Section 29?
Mr. Harlow.

DELEGATE HARLOW: I merely wish to rise in support of this section. I want to ask Mr. Dahood the one question in between what Mr. Habedank-take the same case that Mr. Habedank had, and the party received only the $5,000. Would he be prevailing?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: He is not the prevailing party in that instance.

DELEGATE HARLOW: He's got to get $1 more?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: He has to exceed the offer made by the State of Montana.

DELEGATE HARLOW: Thank you. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on the motion of Mr. James that when this body does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 29, that it recommend the same be adopted. So many as are in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 30, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 30, Treason and descent of estates. Treason against the state shall consist only in levying war against it or in adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort; no person shall be convicted of treason except on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or his confession in open court; no person shall be attainted of treason or felony by the Legislative Assembly; no conviction shall cause the loss of property to relatives or heirs of the convicted. The estates of suicides shall descend or vest as in cases of natural death." Section 30, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman]. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 30 of Proposal Number 8, that it recommend the same be adopted.
Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman]. This section reads the same as the Section 9 in the 1889 Constitution, except for the last-right-starting on line 17 on page 10; and we did change the language there. We took out that business of the corruption of the blood. We thought that sounded a bit obscene and so wechanged it to "no conviction shall cause the loss of property to the relatives or heirs of the convicted." We thought it stated it in better English. And then we changed the last sentence to read: "The estates of suicides shall descend or vest as in cases of natural death", rather than the old, archaic language of the 1889 Constitution. And we thought about changing the language further, but some of the members wanted to leave the language as much as possible as is.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion?
Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman, will Mr. Blaylock yield to a question?

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock?

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: I yield.

DELEGATE HARPER: How do I go about committing treason to the State of Montana?

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Well, to think up a good example, Mr. Harper, I suppose one case of treason against the State of Montana would be if there were a conspiracy to be formed and they were to, say, storm this building and to try to take the seat of government of the State of Montana. That would be one case of treason against the state. I don't know whether you like it or not.

DELEGATE HARPER: Well, no, that's fine. I'm just glad-I'm just grasping for straws here because several people here in town have asked me, "Well, what [why] in the world are you going to have something about treason of the State of Montana? Is somebody going to wage war on Montana?" We're talking about aiding its enemies. They fought a war in the 1860's that decided that Montana can't-decided to be a sovereign state and leave the Union. And they pretty well settled that, and I wasn't really able-and I'm-if you could give me even one other illustration, I'd appreciate it; but storming the Capitol will probably do in Helena. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Are there any other questions or discussion on Section 30? Members of the committee, you have before you, on the recommendation of Mr. Blaylock that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 30, that we recommend the same be adopted. All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 31, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 31, Ex post facto, obligation of contracts and irrevocable privileges. No ex post facto law nor law impairing the obligation of contracts or making any irrevocable grant of special privileges, franchises, or immunities shall be passed by the Legislative Assembly." Section 31, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having under consideration Section 31 of Proposal Number 8, it recommends that the same be adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. President, I'd like to read the brief comments on this. "The committee voted unanimously to retain the former Article III of Section 2 unchanged. The protections against ex post facto laws, laws impairing the obligation of contracts and laws granting irrevocable privileges seemed adequate. No delegate proposals were received on this provision." With this ex post facto in here, I believe the cowboys of the Powder River country and the loggers of the Kootenai and, I hope, the 24 licensed attorneys will accept this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, there's one that would like to discuss it.

Mr. Choate.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Chairman, just for the benefit of some of the peons in this assembly, would somebody-perhaps the Chairman of the committee or maybe the Chair—explain the meaning of the word "ex post facto law"?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, it has nothing to do with what those Powder River cowboys think it means. (Laughter) Ex post facto means making a law that relates back to a period before the law was passed. In other words, if they passed a law in the next Legislature making it a crime to participate in a constitutional convention, that would be an ex post facto law. Is that right, Mr. Johnson?

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman, I believe those cowboys down there in Powder River country are thoroughly confused. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Section 31? It means you can't make a law that goes backwards, or behind the time the law was made. All right, members of the committee, you've had before you the recommendation of Mr. James that when this body does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 31, that we recommend it be adopted. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed? (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 32.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 32, Civilian control of the military. The military shall always be in strict subordination to the civil power. No soldier shall in time of peace be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war, except in the manner prescribed by law." Section 32, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE R.S. HANSON: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 32 of Proposal Number 8, it recommends that the same be adopted.

The committee voted unanimously to retain this former Article III, Section 22, as unchanged. In doing so, the committeenotes theimportanceof the declaration of principle that the civilian authority always supersedes that of the military. Although the quartering of troops prohibition has not been an issue in many years, the committee felt it was wise to retain the safeguard. No delegate proposals were received on this provision.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 32?

Mr. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: I'd just like to ask why the committee felt it was wise to retain that safeguard of quartering and-it doesn't make any sense to me.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE R.S. HANSON: Well, Ithink the committee felt they didn't want to take any of the rights away from the people and say that we had deleted something from the Bill of Rights. Now, I don't know why they probably put it in the one in 1889; but as long as it was there, they just continued to keep it in this present Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Maybe Mr. Dahood would answer that.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood, the question is, why do you keep, "No soldier shall in time of peace be quartered in any house"?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Well, simply because this is a right the people have at the present time. We do have such thing as a National Guard. We can have a militia. We've had situations involving a riot at the state penitentiary, where some well-meaning individual with military power and control may want to do something. We merely want to indicate that as far as the people of Montana are concerned, they want that particular protection and they're going to insist upon it and continue to do so.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to ask—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: (Gaveling for quiet) Mr. Rollins has the floor.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I'd like to ask Mr. Dahood a question, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Mr. Dahood, under what circumstances could martial law be proclaimed in the State of Montana?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Under what circumstances?—I would suppose under some type of state or national emergency.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: And if that occurred, would the civilian be superior to the military?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Would the civilian be superior to the military? I would hope with respect to this particular right, yes, about the quartering of soldiers.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: How about the first part of the statement? It said that the military would always be in strict subordination to the civil power. Would this prevent the declaration of martial law?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: No, it would not.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins, the Governor would always be in charge theoretically.

Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to amend that we put a period in after "power" and delete the rest of that.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee, you write that amendment up now and send it up to me.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee has proposed an amendment to Section 32 which would place a period after the word "power", so that the section would read: "The military shall always be in strict subordination to the civil power." She would then strike the words: "No soldier shall in time of peace be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war, except in the manner prescribed by law."

Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman, if it has had no use in the past Constitution, I don't understand why it needs to be kept and that's why I think it should be deleted. If no one can defend it, I don't see why we should keep it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Cross.

DELEGATE CROSS: Mr. Chairman, in the big blue and white book, Bill of Rights, page 91, you'll find an explanation of why this is kept. It goes back to the American Revolution, and it was one of the principles that was very important at that time. I'd like to quote some of this material. "Nearly every state Constitution has a provision prohibiting the quartering of troops in private dwellings. The principle was expressed as a complaint in the English petition of right of 1628"— and they quote that. I'd also like to read further. It says: "The principle of no quartering of troops is now well established and seems to be of little relevance today; however, the enunciation of such a principle is a sign of the pervasive colonial mistrust of the military and the colonists' desire to prevent the potential abuses with which they knew standing armies threatened society. In 1765, General Gage secured the passage of a quartering act to aid him in the enforcement of the Stamp Act and the Revenue Act of 1764." Well, maybe it won't happen again, but there's your history.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion?
Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, on behalf of the Bill of Rights Committee, I oppose the amendment. As a practical point, I don't expect that this is ever going to happen, but it's a protection that the people have. They have had it traditionally and they have had it historically. It could serve some purpose. There could be some violation of that right under some unique emergent circumstance that can happen; probably will not. But the people are entitled to have that. We took the position on our Bill of Rights Committee that we were not going to take away any of the rights of the people unless there was some overriding reason as to why there ought to be some change, some modification, or why the particular provision should be taken away. The people sent us here to protect their rights and to expand upon them where a reason required it, and we submit that striking that last portion of Section 32 serves no useful purpose and there is a useful purpose to be served by retaining it. I oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I guess I could talk to Daphne without getting to the microphone, but I've just been reading the story of the San Francisco earthquake recently, and there were some strange things that happened in the midst of that; and I would remind her we're sitting on an earthquake fault right here in Helena, and there may be reason to keep such a provision in the Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman, if the National Guard on maneuvers in the vicinity of Missoula are quartered in Daphne's house without her consent, perhaps the meaning of that would be more clear. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think, Mr. McNeil, the point is that it can't be without her consent. (Laughter) Perhaps the Chair should stay out of the argument. Is there other discussion? (Laughter)
Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: I'd just like to comment, Mr. Chairman, thatthey'd better not try to quarter anybody in Rachel Mansfield's grandmother's house. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, members of the committee, you have before you Mrs. Bugbee's amendment. So many as shall be in favor of her amendment to put a period after "power" and strike the quartering act, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is defeated. Are there other discussion of Section 32? Members of the committee, you have before you, on the recommendation of Mr. Hanson that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 32, that we recommend it be adopted. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's adopted. Section 33, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 33, Importation of armed persons. No armed person or persons or armed body of men shall be brought into this state for the preservation of peace or the suppression of domestic violence, except upon application of the Legislative Assembly or of the Governor when the Legislative Assembly cannot be convened," Section 33, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, having had under consideration Section 33 of the Bill of Rights Proposal Number 8, it recommends that the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman. Article III, Section 31, remains unchanged. The protection, initially established to prevent the importation of strikebreakers, is thought to be an adequate safeguard against any body of armed men coming into the state. No delegate proposals were received on this provision. This particular section was reviewed in somewhat similar light as to the one previous to it. The thinking of the committee on this question was the same. It does have some history to it, and there is a possibility that in the case of an unruly situation that someone might be inclined to bring armed men into the state. And we felt that it was a good safeguard, and the committee felt it was important that this be retained as a safeguard to the people of the State of Montana. Thank you, Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion? Members of the committee, you have before you, on Mr. Foster's recommendation, that Section 33 be adopted. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered. Section 34.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 34, Unenumerated rights. The enumeration in this Constitution of certain rights shall not be construed to deny, impair, or disparage others retained by the people," Section 34, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 34 of Proposal Number 8, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman, this provision is the same as the one we had in our last-in our present Bill of Rights, Section 30, and it's also contained in the federal Bill of Rights. I think that it is completely self-explanatory. There are rights which are not enumerated which the people of Montana should not be denied. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 34? Members of the committee, you have before you, on the recommendation of Mrs. Eck that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 34, that we recommend the same be adopted. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Members of the committee, we have one new matter.

Mr. Campbell, do you want to make your proposal now? Do you want to make this other one or not? Do you want to leave it-drop it?

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, you have on my desk an alternative proposal for the ballot on Section 12. I don't know whether you want it or not.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I would see if someone would--was going to move for reconsideration on that matter. If they did move for reconsideration, I would enter that later.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, we have for reconsideration one matter, and I understand-Mr. Studer, my point is, if you want to make a motion to reconsider, do so; but I don't think I can hold the article; so you prepare yourself one way or the other. Mrs. Warden, do you want to take your matter first?

Mrs. Warden.

DELEGATE WARDEN: Yes, Mr. President [Chairman]. Having voted on the prevailing side, I move to reconsider Section 12 of the Bill of Rights Article. I voted on the prevailing side and I've had second thoughts on this. This is the right to bear arms. I feel that I would like to suggest that instead of going through all the debate that we went through yesterday, that perhaps even a vote on this to put in those nine little words that were taken out yesterday would be in order. I think that we know pretty much what the problem is. We've talked about it; we've hashed it over for several hours yesterday. And I felt that I needed to bring it up today, and I would hope that we could have a vote without a great deal of debate. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I've been expecting this, Mr. Chairman, and I don't know whether to call it "here we go again", or "it seems to me I've heard that song before". (Laughter) It is another attempt to substitute a later action for an action that has already been taken by this Convention. I doubt that much new can be adduced by redebating this. I don't know why certain people would have changed their minds unless they got word back from the folks back home or had a sudden reconversion during the night. I wonder if we discuss this all again-I've been thinking of titles again-will we, by reconsidering it, be doing as Longfellow states, doing something real in earnest, or will we be, as Shakespeare suggests, be enacting a tale told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing. I oppose the reconsideration of this motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. I had a-1 get real emotional on this matter of guns, and yesterday I had prepared a 2-hour speech in support of a motion to delete the entire section, let alone amend it. But I forbore myself yesterday looking at my little sign that says, "Blessed is the man who, having nothing to say, abstains from giving in words evidence of that fact"-said sign having been distributed to us earlier. But I do believe I would be unable to resist the temptation today, if this matter were opened up, as I was successfully able in resisting the temptation yesterday. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, apparently the issue arises on Mrs. Warden's motion that we reconsider Section 12.

Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. President [Chairman], fellow delegates. I believe that we should reopen this for not too much debate, but for the simple reason that there are fifteen to twenty thousand people in the State of Montana that are a little bit emotional about this not being in our Constitution, not being added. And those nine little words certainly won't add much to the document as far as paper is concerned, but it can mean a lot in having a lot of other people concerned and voting for this completed document. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises on Mrs.-

Mr. Choate, do you want to debate or do you want to discuss? Go ahead.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Only to say that I would support the motion to reconsider. I've had about a hundred and fifty letters regarding this issue, and I would support the motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right now, that seems repititious. The Chair wants to get this going. All those in favor of Mrs. Warden's motion to reconsider—

Mrs. Warden, do you want to close?

DELEGATE WARDEN: I want a roll call.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You want a roll call vote. All those in favor of Mrs. Warden's motion to reconsider Section 12, please indicate by voting Aye; those opposed, vote No. It takes two-thirds or 51. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, I think the Chair stated that wrong. This is not to suspend the rules, this is to reconsider; so it does not take two-thirds or 51 percent, it takes a majority. Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, close the vote, take the tally.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 47 have voted Aye, 45 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 47 having voted Aye, 45 having voted No, Section 12 is reconsidered. Will the clerk please read Section 12.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 12, Right to bear arms. The right of any person to keep or bear arms in defense of his home, person and property, or in aid of the civil power when thereto legally summoned, shall not be called in question, but nothing herein contained shall be held to permit the carrying of concealed weapons." Section 12, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Warden.

DELEGATE WARDEN: Mr. President [Chairman], may I put in the same amendment that we had yesterday-"nor shall any person's firearms be registered or licensed"? I think it's all in the book. Do you need an extra amendment on it?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Would you read it to me.

DELEGATE WARDEN: "--nor shall any person's firearms be registered or licensed."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You want to insert that after-at the end?

DELEGATE WARDEN: May I ask, Mr. Chairman—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Or do you want to put it under--after the word "property"? Is that right? Or where do you put it? No, you put it-"shall not be called in question".

DELEGATE WARDEN: --"in question".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, on line 20 on page 6, in Section 12, Mrs. Warden moves to add the words "nor shall any person's firearms be registered or licensed".

Mrs. Warden.

DELEGATE WARDEN: I would just like to say again I would hope that there could be a simple vote on this without a great long bit of debate.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, I move to delete Section 12, the entire section of the Bill of Rights Committee proposal.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a minute. That's a substitute motion?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: As a substitute motion, yes, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher has now made a motion to delete Section 12 in its entirety.

Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. When I was at the-on active duty last summer at the War College in Pennsylvania, a mother calmly walked into a bedroom in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, and shot—pumped five slugs into her 16-year-old son as he lay in bed. Last week in Massachusetts a mother calmly shot three of her children and shot herself. Last summer in Billings, Montana, to get a little closer to home, a 20-year-old son had a dispute with his father, got the family .45 and did in the old man. Seventy-five percent of the homicides in the United States are with guns-that are with guns are committed in a fit of temper and a fit of passion. The only problem is they may cool off later, but the person who has been shot has been cooled off permanently. Seventy-five percent of these homicides with guns are between relatives or friends, people who know each other. I will not allow loaded weapons in my house, as has been said by some of the members here yesterday. I have stayed active in the Army Reserve for 23 years because I feel this is my duty in the field of national defense. And1 submit that anybody here, or anybody in this state who is very anxious to protect the State of Montana and its land and its people, they can either join the National Guard—the Army National Guard or the Air National Guard. I'd be very happy personally to swear them into the Army Reserve here in Montana. They are also eligible, you know, to join the Navy Reserve or the Air Force Reserve. If you are really interested in defending your state, I urge you, and anybody outside who has been writing you these mimeographed, hectographed letters, that they do likewise. In fact, under our new Constitution, I'm very happy to say that females will be able to live in our barracks in the future, and I think that's wonderful. They, too, can bear arms as long as they wear a uniform. I think that's great. I'm all for it. That beats beer in a barracks any day. I just wish I was born 20 years later, that's all. This matter of registration of guns, as far as I'm concerned-I don't care what anybody feels or says about it-1 would like to see us register guns. I would like to see very strict controls on handguns. If you want to belong to a gun association, let the Legislature provide for some kind of control of these weapons; you go out to the firing range and you can shoot at paper targets. I just don't like people shooting their kids, that's all-nor the old man, especially since I've got six kids. Might get mad at me, decide to do in the old man. The only problem with a gun, it's kind of final. Another thing about a gun is, it's very impersonal. If you go after me with a knife, at least I got a chance; you know, I can kick you someplace. Or if you try to poison me, I've got some kind of a chance; maybe I'll smell the poison in my drink or something. But with a gun, you just get away 10 or

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher, let's try and stay on the subject. We have a lot of other items to debate yet this afternoon.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: -they were always successful in finding my children, and I have the utmost confidence in them. And I'm not really going to carry out my threat, Mr. President, you know that. I have the utmost confidence in them, and I don't feel I've got to be carrying around--walking around with a .38 or a .45 hanging from my hip. It's not necessary. Therefore, Mr. Chairman and my fellow delegates, I urge you to strike Section 12, stop making America an armed camp where we settle every dispute like they did in the days of old, in the mining camps at Alder Gulch, with a .44. We have courts in Montana—and state courts and federal courts-and they are there with the help of us grateful and wonderful lawyers to settle any disputes that you have. You don't need to settle your disputes with a gun. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. President [Chairman], fellow delegates, I rise for the first time in support of my delegate friend, Bob Kelleher. You may think that's a little bit surprising, because I come from probably as strong a gun country as there is in the State of Montana. Before we got to this question, a few of the delegates were discussing it; and we felt at that time maybe a motion to delete this whole section might be the appropriate way to view this, because maybe then the people of this state would come to their senses about what we're doing in this particular section. Now, if this body at this particular time would pass this motion, we would not have prevented the right of the citizens of this state to keep and bear arms. The federal Constitution would still allow them to keep and bear arms, so we wouldn't have done anything completely out of the ordinary or completely wild. And we could let this thing sit for awhile, and we could see what the people of Montana think then. And if there is such a big rush for us to not only write the strongest gun control law in the whole United States, but in addition to that, legislate into that provision for the Constitution the provision that this state shall never register or license guns under any conditions in the future, then maybe we could reconsider it if it was all that important, and we could come back to a reasonable position which we found that the committee on the Bill of Rights took in the first place. Now, maybe that's begging the point, but I don't think it really is because these "right-to-bear-armers", I'll call them for eloquence or something, are really not satisfied with the strongest provision in the Constitution of any state in the Union. We gave them that, and maybe we gave it to them too easily. And I submit that if we delete this section, sit overnight, let them know where this Convention stands in our own minds, then maybe they'll be happy with the strongest protection of any state in the Union. This is an important issue, this guns. We talked about capital punishment. We were all extremely concerned about one man being killed by the state, and very well intended that we should be, but now we're putting a provision in the Constitution that ties the hands of the state in the future to in any way control guns under any circumstances. And I support the position of Delegate Kelleher that at this time that this Convention delete the section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President [Chairman], I rise to oppose the motion to delete this section and I also oppose Mrs. Warden's motion to change the section as it was submitted by the Bill of Rights Committee's majority report. When I was campaigning for the Constitutional Convention, I made a real effort on this section because I knew a lot of the fellows around Laurel, my hometown where I have lived for the past 14 Years, were very concerned about this business of right to keep and bear arms. I went to a number of them and I asked them about this specific section and I showed them how it was in our 1889 Constitution and I said, "Would you fellows be satisfied if we left that as it is?" And they said, "Well, that certainly looks good to us, and we'll go with it. This is what we want. We've been happy with this. Let's leave it alone." And as I pointed out yesterday, and I'm not going to repeat all the things I said then, but we had a great deal of-a great many indications from these different groups who are very, very concerned about this, and sincerely so. I don't question their sincerity. But they said the same thing; that they were satisfied with this section. I made that statement yesterday about this being the strongest one of any of the states of the United States. We have preserved that for our people who are concerned about keeping their rifles and shotguns; and so I say, let's leave it as it is. A few minutes ago, on this business of the death penalty, we heard people giving examples-some of the people who wanted to change this yesterday-talking about policemen getting shot down in the State of Montana and throughout the United States. This is true. We do have our police officers being gunned down, and my concern— and that's why I say there are not just nine little words. That's not all they are. There is this thing that the people of the State of Montana may someday want to take action to stop that kind of thing, and I don't believe that we should change this so that the state Legislature of the State of Montana cannot do that. So I ask this delegation, this Convention, to accept the majority report as it was given to this Constitutional Convention. Thank YOU.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Monroe.

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. Chairman. I don't want to belabor this body with much debate, but I was silent on this issue yesterday and I didn't think I'd need to get up and speak. I didn't think I'd have the opportunity again, either, but I see that I have. I thought our vote yesterday was rather rational. It was closer than I would expect, but considering the amount of pressure that was put upon each one of us, I can see why the vote was the way it was. There was a person from my delegation that told the people back in my home community that a number of people in my delegation were the ones that defeated the Berthelson amendment. I was rather offended by that particular report, and I guess I differ from some people in my particular delegation from my community and county in that respect. And I'm willing to stand on my conviction, as Mr. Romney is. I'm willing to go back to my community and get shot out of my saddle. I've been shot before. In 1959 I almost lost my life in a hunting accident, at the ripe young age of 13, and I'm willing to get shot again. If they want to bring a .38 right here and put it right at my head, I'll vote the exact same way as I did yesterday and I'll vote my conviction. And I'm going to watch everybody, how they vote today, and compare it as to how they voted yesterday; and I'll bet you that not one person under the age of 40 changes their votes and anybody that does change their votes is going to be over the age of 40. Thank you. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. President [Chairman], fellow delegates. I have received no threats from any of my constituents, if they didn't have this in the Constitution that they would work against it. However, I think that the number of names that have been sent in to a lot of the delegates means that a lot of people are concerned about this particular issue, because they haven't come just from the Flathead country; they've come from all over the state. Now, the 500 names that Mr. Blaylock has on this telegram actually were got through a scare tactic. The word got out, or a rumor, stating that the present guns part of the bill, just as we're trying to do now with Mr. Kelleher's motion, would be to take and do away with this. And this is what created the 500 names on this telegram, so they said leave it as is. Now, handguns are a different story, and I believe that proper use of them and the law can take care of that. When President Nixon visited our Flathead last year, his Secret Service body that were there before were really concerned because there were trucks and cars and so on parked around that airport and hundreds and hundreds of guns were shown right there in public view. The sheriff was, of course, not concerned, but the Secret Service was. And he says, "You don't have to worry about those guns-they're out where they can be seen." I also have a very good friend up there in our country that has at least 20 guns. He's a gun nut, as are a lot of people, and he says, "By golly," he says, "if the United States or the government ever starts to register my guns, I might register one or two of them but, boy, the others will be hidden"; and this would make crooks out of 90 percent of the gun owners in the State of Montana. I believe we should put these nine words in there and give us another chance of selling this Constitution. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. President [Chairman], I resent Delegate Monroe's remarks about the Geritol set. (Laughter) We, too, have our principles and we, too, vote our convictions. The thing about this that's bothered me, and I said this before, we're not taking anything away from them, we're not giving them anything. This whole issue is a sort of a mirage out in the desert. It's a will-o'-the-wisp that they're following. If registration comes, it will either come from the federal government or from the needs of the state to control crime. Thank you, Mr. President [Chairman].

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Felt, are you up'?

Mr. Harlow.

DELEGATE HARLOW: The issue has finally surfaced. What is a gun? The delegate from Flathead just made the remark that this registration-or these nine words did not apply to handguns; so, fellow delegates, these nine words need not be in there. If the handguns are dangerous, and one of their advocates just made the remark that this registration did not apply to handguns, then where are you going to draw the line between a one-hand gun and a two-hand gun? So, let's not be too wishy-washy. Let's keep those nine words where they were kept all night and for many, many years. We don't need those nine words. Let's remember just what was said, that they cannot—some guns should be registered and some should not, so let's keep the nine words out. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President [Chairman], I come from a country that does a lot of hunting and the people have a lot of guns. I haven't received one letter asking for this amendment-proposed amendment of Mrs. Warden's to our present Constitution. I received numerous letters from many people in the country, asking for this amendment. I've answered many of them, asking them why. First I told them how our present Constitution read and I said, "Why do you want this changed?" I received not one single answer as to why, so I'm opposed to the motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Delaney.

DELEGATE DELANEY: Are we debating the nine words, or are we debating Kelleher's amendment?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, it's-the Chair could sit up here and argue with each of you about what you're debating, but it's very difficult to determine whether you're debating-you know, if you strike the 12, I guess you don't get the nine words; so one side of the coin is one and one side is the other. So my inclination is to let you all talk yourselves out, and when you're all through, why, we'll vote on all these issues. And we've got several others on the Bill of Rights, so we'll continue to work when we're through, so go right ahead—have at it.

Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We are not ready to vote yet unless somebody else doesn't want to talk. Very well, now, the issue is on Mr.—

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, can I close?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You betcha, Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I just wish, my fellow delegates—this is like the preacher talking to the congregation, bawling them out for the people that aren't there in church on Sunday-but I just wish we had as much interest in whether we elected our judges or appointed our judges and whether we had a short ballot or a long ballot. It's very sad that we have to spend so much time on something like this. I do want to say that I don't want to take the guns from the hunters. I know people that give up good jobs to come out here so they can hunt; and I know people, in fact in my own community back in Yellowstone, that is the only meat they have is the deer and the antelope that they shoot. But the only thing that I'm really concerned about is the handguns, and I don't want mothers and kids to be able to get the handguns, that's all. Could I have five seconds?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, we're going to have a roll call vote, Mr. Kelleher. Now, the issue is on Mr. Kelleher's motion to delete Section 12 in its entirety. So many as shall be in favor of that, vote Aye; and so many shall be opposed to that, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegates want to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Take the ballot, please.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 13 have voted Aye, 79 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 13 having voted Aye, 79 voting No, Mr. Kelleher's motion fails. We're now on Mrs. Warden's motion to add the words "nor shall any person's firearms be registered or licensed" on line 19, Section 12, page 6.

Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman. I refrained from speaking on this issue yesterday, and I'm going to be very brief today. It saddens me to see the false identification of registration with confiscation. This is simply an indication of hysteria on the part of gun people. My youngest son, Steve, is a gun expert. He has earned all the awards available in the Junior Rifle Association and the United States Navy in marksmanship, and my opposition to this amendment is on his behalf. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, there is not one scintilla of evidence that there was any intention of requiring registration of firearms in the majority report. There is no evidence that the Legislature would impose that obligation upon people, like myself, who own guns. The history tells us that in the past, in 1918 or '19—'17, during World War I, there was a registration of firearms in Montana and people turned in their registration at the sheriffs' offices in the various counties of the state. There was never any effort on the part of anybody to sequester those firearms, confiscate them. The history of the movement throughout the United States has never indicated, so far as I can ascertain, any effort upon the part of the government to confiscate guns. We have no threat of registration. I think this is a red herring that is being drawn across the trail of the Convention in order to muddy up the issue and perhaps defeat the Convention. I think that we should defeat this motion of Mrs. Warden and go on with our business.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, everybody gets up and says, "I didn't speak yesterday and I was hoping I wouldn't today on this particular issue." It seems to me it's been well talked; but it's come to the point where you raise a question of whether you were even present if you aren't on the record on an issue like this. And so, you know, a hundred of us are going to get something on the record regarding this, and maybe that's our right and the reason we're here. I think we could make emotional statements that would inflame each other. We tried, at both ends of this thing, and I don't propose to do that. I could list how many guns I own. I'm an elk hunter and I have a Chesapeake Bay retriever and on and on, you know, those things can be shared. I was hunting elk on November 22, 1963, and I came home and heard the news about our President having been shot, and I could draw some kind of big emotional thing in terms of that experience for myself. I looked at that telescopic rifle I'd been carrying all day and I thought some very deep thoughts about what happens in a society, and what happens within each of us at times, in terms of selling out to some kind of hysteric or emotional impulse. I think the people of Montana are reasonable enough to know that there are more issues at stake that affect our lives vitally than are guns, and it seems like a cheap way to garner a lot of votes to go with this thing and say, you know, "We're going to get them, and this is a good way to do it. It doesn't really hurt anything." I see it as an opportunity to salute the intelligence of our people by saying, we do-we did what we thought was right, wherever it comes out. And really, you know, there were some issues that were more important than what we put in the Constitution with regard to our guns. It just seems to me that this promise of a lot of easy votes-and I can be a practical politician, too-but our people are smarter than that, and I'd like to salute their intelligence and vote the way I did yesterday, which is to say we have the strongest statement of any Bill of Rights. If we lived in any other state but this one and Alaska, I would be really afraid of that kind of a statement in the Bill of Rights, but we have few people and lots of space and so we're relatively safe out there hunting. Most states don't have that option; we still do. But I'm going to vote the way I did yesterday, and I wanted to be on record. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment. I did yesterday. I feel very sincere about this, and that's all I'm going to say except would Mr. Schiltz yield to a question?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I yield.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Schiltz, yesterday you impressed me very greatly with the knowledge you have of all types of guns, and I never-1 tried to catch you to ask you a question, just individually and out in the hall or someplace, but you eluded me all the time; and I know there's other people here concerned in the same area, and I could hardly sleep last night, and I've been so concerned. You said that you could put-or take those guns apart in the dark, but you didn't say whether you could put them back together. Can you?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes, I did and I could.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Choate.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Chairman, just so we don't cut the debate too short, I wasn't on the record yesterday on my position on this matter. I do support Mrs. Warden's amendment, as I supported Mr. Berth&on's amendment yesterday. I don't think it's a red herring if we have letters and indications from the electorate around the state in the number of thousands, because it will amount to that. I think they have expressed their preference, and I think that we're here to do their will. And I support it and I think it will pass.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises on Mrs. Warden's motion that we add the words "nor shall any person's firearm be registered or licensed" on line 20, after the word "question", to Section 12.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call vote.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of that motion, vote Aye on the voting machine; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The last time. Very well, take the ballot.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 39 have voted Aye, 52 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 52 having voted No, 39 having voted Aye, the motion is defeated.

Mr. Jacobsen, you had an amendment-do you want-a section to add. Do you want the Chair to read it?

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. President [Chairman], I'll hold that till another time in General Government. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McKeon, you have a section here for the Chair. May we read your amendment?

DELEGATE McKEON: Yes, please read it, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It'll be styled Section 35, proposed Section 35. Will the clerk please read proposed Section 35.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 35. The people of Montana declare that Montana servicemen, servicewomen and veterans of all wars may be given special considerations as determined by the Legislative Assembly." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McKeon wants to add a Section 35 concerning servicemen, stating that the Legislature may give special consideration to servicemen and women.

Mr. McKeon.

DELEGATE McKEON: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, that it recommend this section to pass. Mr. Chairman, this section is a permissive section to be added to the Bill of Rights, allowing the Legislature to give special consideration to veterans of wars. Mr. Chairman, there are-this section was adopted from the North Dakota Constitution. Also, Mr. Chairman, I would like to point out that Missouri just very recently adopted by constitutional amendment a section very similar to this. They adopted this by a four to one plurality. I think this exhibits the popularity of a section of this nature. Also, I would like to bring to the attention of the committee the fact that there are 100,000 veterans in the State of Montana. That, coupled with the fact that the majority of them are married or who have friends and relatives who would be very much in favor of this amendment, I think would give impetus to the Convention to pass something of this nature, perhaps just because of the salability of it. Mr. Chairman, as you, and I'm sure all the members of the Convention, are aware, the war in Vietnam has created a crisis not over there but a crisis at home. Our American fighting men and women are returning to our shores and are, as they return, Mr. Chairman, are being faced with serious problems. They many times lack education, lack the employment opportunities; many are wounded, many have become addicted to drugs; and things of this nature. I think all of us can agree that the veteran who returns now from Vietnam is at a great disadvantage when he tried to place himself back in the role of a productive citizen in this country, so I think that we should include a section of this nature in the Bill of Rights to give the Legislature an impetus to try and help these individuals who've gone over and given us the risk of their lives to protect our country, and in many occasions to fight a war in which they do not believe.

So, Mr. Chairman, without further adieu, I would recommend that this committee do pass it, because I think it is important and I think it is very good and I think what-it will be very helpful to all the people in Montana. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion?
Mr. Lorello.

DELEGATE LORELLO: Just a short comment, Mr. Chairman. There are 43 veterans, I think, in this group of 100. I hope that we can do something for our servicemen, servicewomen, and the veterans. I hope you'll support the motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Cate.

DELEGATE CATE: I believe that the war in Vietnam, the so-called war in Vietnam, is not a declared war. And I think that, as your thing reads, you ought to take into consideration an amendment there.

DELEGATE McKEON: -brief amendment with the permission of the committee—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a minute. Mr. McKeon, you may have the floor.

DELEGATE McKEON: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Chairman, I would request permission to amend the proposed section by deleting, on the second line, the phrase "of all wars".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of allowing the deletion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered. Is there other discussion? Mr. McKeon, do you need to close?

DELEGATE McKEON: I close, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises on Mr. McKeon's motion to add Section 35 to the Bill of Rights, which shall state: "The people of Montana declare that Montana servicemen, servicewomen and veterans may be given special considerations as determined by the Legislative Assembly." So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair is in doubt. So many as are in favor, vote Aye; so many as opposed, vote No.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call vote.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Too late. Has every delegate voted?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 50 having voted Aye and 39 No, the motion passes and the section is adopted. Now, Mr. Dahood, I'm afraid we did not put the motion properly, and I don't know who did it the other day, but may I say that--would you move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 12, after having reconsidered it, that it recommend the same be adopted? Will you so move?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I so move, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 12 is closed again. Now, we have an amendment from Mr.-a proposed new section from Mr. Kelleher which I've styled 36, and it's the one on alcohol, Mr. Kelleher. May we read it from the clerk-clerk, read number 36, please.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend by adding a new section of the Bill of Rights Committee proposal on page 11, line 10; the following words: 'Section 36. Addiction neither to alcohol nor drugs is a crime.' Signed: Kelleher."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Go ahead

DELEGATE KELLEHER: I'll be very brief, Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. You will note that this provides merely that the disease of alcoholism and the disease of drug addiction are not crimes. I believe in the case of Power versus Texas, it was taken up to the Supreme Court of the United States, and by a five to four decision the United States Supreme Court held that being an alcoholic can be a crime. Power, or whoever the defendant was in that case, was picked up for being an alcoholic 99 times, and they thought he might be a good test case, having been picked up for being drunk 99 times. But those nine wise men-five of them, anyway-decided that alcoholism was not-that alcoholism was a crime and a man could be put in jail for it. This merely would provide that alcoholism is not a crime. And also drug addiction. Now, this has nothing to do with drugpushing, please note that. I'm just as violently opposed to drugpushing as anybody else is, but as far as this is-the person, the individual, who has a habit of-they are actually addicted to narcotics. This is where it has reached, medically, the point of being a disease, and I-this only states that it would not be a crime. In the case of Robinson versus California in 1962, drug addiction-the Supreme Court of California struck down addiction as a crime and, briefly, the court said: "A California statute makes it a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment for any person to"—quote-'be addicted to the use of narcotics'-close quote-"and in sustaining petitioner's conviction thereunder, the California courts construed the statute as making the status"-in quotes-'the status of narcotic addiction a criminal offense for which the offender may be prosecuted'—quote—'at any time before he reforms'-close quote—"even though he has never used or possessed any narcotics within the state and has not been guilty of any antisocial behavior." The court held: "As so construed and applied, the statute inflicts a cruel and unusual punishment in violation of the 8th and 14th Amendments." Regarding the matter of alcohol, an association known as Alcoholics Anonymous was created in 1935. It has a very good record. It has a record of approximately 60 percent cures; but people, to go into AA, have to do it voluntarily, of their own free will. And we have found out a long time ago in AA-and I'm not ashamed to say that I am personally a member of AA and have been for some 14 months, because alcoholism is a disease for me, Bob Kelleher; I cannot take that first drink. I do not feel that I am a criminal because I had the disease of alcoholism, and that's all that this motion-this provision would provide, is that if a person is diseased, has the disease of alcoholism or is addicted to a narcotic, that it is not a crime. The courts would still have control over it. A man would be responsible for any crimes that he has-and he would still be-he would be responsible for any crimes he would commit under the influence of alcohol; any crimes he would commit under the influence of drug addiction. All this would do is--would provide that the person who is-that a person would not commit a crime because of the fact of addiction, that's all. Pushing, that's something else. This has nothing to do with that. And the same way with alcoholism. I have been asked, "Is alcoholism and drug addiction a crime under our present statutes?" My understanding that if you are picked up-1 know it is a municipal ordinance in Billings and I think most of our communities—I'll have to bow to some of the other prosecutors here in the other communities-but I know that being picked up for-you can be picked up for public drunk and put in jail, and this would prevent that. The judge could then send you to Warm Springs or refer you to medical treatment someplace else. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman, I can agree with Mr. Kelleher completely that alcoholism and drug addiction certainly should not be crimes. This was not proposed to our committee as a proposal. I can see no way that we can get into the Constitution a listing of what is and what is not a crime in the State of Montana. I think the same thing would apply to his other proposal. We did briefly consider the possibility of including crimes without victims, and here again we decided that this is a matter that has traditionally been left to statute and it is completely not appropriate for a constitutional document. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises on—

Mr. Simon.

DELEGATE SIMON: Would Mr. Kelleher yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher, would you yield?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE SIMON: I've been connected for some 30 years with Billings Deaconess Hospital and I was President for some 17 years; I'm still connected. We have our problems at the hospital under the insurance acts of malpractice. We have about a hundred and thirty-five doctors on the staff. I'm not an attorney, but I would like to ask Mr. Kelleher if he would answer how and who would establish at what point an individual becomes addicted-one cigarette of marijuana, one injection of morphine--and who would establish at what point he is addicted?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: The same way, Mr. Simon, that we now determine how a man is declared incompetent. We lawyers and a judge in a courtroom, we bring in a couple of doctors and get medical advice and decide whether you go to Warm Springs or not. That's the only way. It'd have to be competent medical testimony, that's all.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the question arises on Mr. Kelleher's proposal—

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, could I have five seconds, please, for a roll call?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay. (Laughter) The question arises on Mr. Kelleher's motion that Section 36—"addiction neither to alcohol nor drugs is a crime"-be added to the Bill of Rights. So many as are in favor, vote Aye; so many as are opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate want to change his vote?

(No response)

Mr. Chairman Nay

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 15 have voted Aye, 74 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, 74 having voted No and 15 Aye, the motion fails. Will the clerk please read proposed Section 37 by Mr. Kelleher about incarceration.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 37. Incarcerated persons lose none of their human or civil rights when convicted of a felony, other than the choice of habitation, the right to vote and to hold public office. No incarcerated person may be placed in solitary confinement. Signed: Kelleher."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. There is nobody here, of course, to speak for the people in the penitentiary or in the jails of our state. Once they're convicted, they can't even vote. But this section would merely provide that when they have been convicted of a felony, that they would lose only these rights: where they're going to stay, the right to vote, and the right to hold public office. And this conforms to what we've already done in the past. I'm concerned about the fact that so many members of the minority groups end up in our penitentiaries and in our jails, and I just want their rights protected. And the last sentence of this section provides that the penalty of solitary confinement shall not be given--authorized at any time. And my reason for that is, it's my opinion it has not yet been declared cruel and unusual punishment by the United States Supreme Court but that it is, indeed, cruel and unusual punishment, even for a short time. I don't know how many of you've been in jail, other than my brother attorneys--we've been in jail many times-but every time that steel door clangs behind me, I ask myself, "I wonderifthatsheriffs going to let me out of here." And it's a pretty terrible, terrible feeling. And we all know that not too long ago, within the past 10 years, a young man was placed in solitary over at Deer Lodge and was killed; he was sick. And I ask you when you vote on this matter to consider yourself. I know a lot of you are great law and order people, and I'm a law and order man or I wouldn't be a lawyer, but consider yourself-put yourself, when you vote on this, in the jail at Deer Lodge. If you have never been in jail, you can imagine what it's like. And imagine that you're in solitary confinement-and this is not a really big figment of your imagination that perhaps, just perhaps, you don't belong there. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Could I have a roll call on this, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, we're going to debate it first.
Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Kelleher yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher, will you yield?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Yes, Torrey.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Bob, just as a point of clarification, solitary confinement-now if you have a person who is very unpopular there and is in danger of bodily injury from some of the other inmates, you'd necessarily have to put him someplace, wouldn't you, to protect him from those people? And how would you call that?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Protective custody. We do that for other ways, too. That would not be prohibited.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: I mean, that would be provided for okay without—

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Yes, I'm glad you asked me that, in case this is accepted. That, of course, would be a valid exemption; to protect the man for his own physical well-being, he could be protected and set aside from the other inmates. That's right.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: I see. Thank you. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE McNEIL: Mr. Chairman, would Delegate Kelleher yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE McNEIL: Bob, in reading your three other proposed amendments, does this mean that an incarcerated person in jail would have a right to drugs, liquor and sex?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Well, how many-how much time can I have on that one?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, I'll rule it out of order for you, Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Thanks for the help, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Artz.

DELEGATE ARTZ: Mr. Chairman, would Delegate Kelleher yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Artz.

DELEGATE ARTZ: I want to have the record straight. I'm not a lawyer and I don't know exactly what you mean by "solitary confinement". Does that mean they have to have roommates, or can't they put one in a cell by himself? Thank you.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: No, that's a good question, too. What if it's a friendly little town; it's only got one customer in the jail? Obviously, he's in solitary confinement, but he's got the company of the sheriff and he can play stud poker with the sheriff. I'm not talking about that sort of thing. We don't have to provide company for them, no. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Choate.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Kelleher yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Kelleher, I'm wondering about, when you say he'll lose none of his human or civil rights except those specified, what about right of communication and that sort of thing?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: I think he should have that right. If we want to censor it-his mail, that's all right. I'll tell you what I had, frankly, in mind. The human rights is what bothers me. In a penitentiary, and it's a problem in our state-our state is not as-our penitentiary is not heavily populated as, say, Sing Sing or someplace like Pennsylvania's, But in the State of Maryland, a young l&year-old white boy was attacked by 12 other inmates of another race, and he was in surgery for 12 hours. and I just want those young men or women-1 don't know what it's like in a ladies' penitentiary-but I want those people to be protected. When they-even when-though they're in prison, they're human beings, and they're not to be treated like dirt. We treat our cattle and our sheep better than we treat the human beings in our penitentiaries, and this would protect their rights. That's all I have intended by this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the question arises on Mr. Kelleher's proposed Section 37 about incarceration of persons; losing their civil rights in jail. So many as shall be in favor of that motion-did you ask for a roll call on this, Mr. Kelleher?

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You did? (Laughter) Okay. So many as shall be in favor, vote Aye on the voting machines; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Pleasetake the vote.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 18 have voted Aye, 66 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 66 having voted No and 18 Aye, the motion fails. Mr. Kelleher, we'll read Number 38 now.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 38. Private sexual acts between consenting adults do not constitute a crime." Section 38, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher has proposed a Section 38 to read: "Private sexual acts between consenting adults do not constitute a crime."

Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, a typographical error omitted the word "private". The adjective should be in front of "sexual acts". I just don't want any off-Broadway plays down on 27th Street in Billings. So the word "private" should be added at the beginning. Our present sodomy statute provides that every person who is guilty of the infamous crime against nature committed with mankind or any animal is punishable by imprisonment in the state prison not less than 5 years. In other words, you can get life imprisonment under our present statute; and our court has held that this is not only a difficult case-an easy case to charge a person with, matter-but there is-as a result of intense prejudice, naturally you vote by such a charge or-convicting upon slight evidence, since the charge is easily made, hard to prove, and still harder to disprove. The State of Texas has now declared this type of statute, at least for married couples, as unconstitutional, and I'm not going to go through that decision as I planned, because of the lateness of the hour. And this is my last amendment, I assure you-the last one for the day. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Wait a minute, Mr. Kelleher, we've got you on the record on that first statement. (Laughter)

DELEGATE KELLEHER: It's primarily concerned to handle the problems of homosexuality, which, again, is a physical-mental disease. And I'm not a doctor-I'm having enough trouble practicing law with a license without trying to practice medicine without one-but this is a very serious problem today. And this, once again, where competent medical authority has declared that somebody is a homosexual that that's what it's primarily aimed at; that these people would not be put in jail for having a disease. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Could I have a roll call on this? It's the last one.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, you've only got two seconds so far, Mr. Kelleher. (Laughter) Okay, is there debate or discussion? Very well, the issue arises on Mr. Kelleher's Section 38, which would add a section to the Bill of Rights that "Private sexual acts between consenting adults do not constitute a crime." So many as are in favor of that, vote Aye; so many as are opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted'?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No photographs, please.

DELEGATE CATE: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Cate.

DELEGATE CATE: I don't want any inference drawn from the fact that Mr. Campbell and I voted together. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please announce the vote.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 16 have voted Aye; 69 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 69 people having voted No and 16 voting Aye, the amendment fails.

Mr. Harper, may we read your proposal?

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. Having voted on the prevailing side, I move to reconsider Section 10 as amended, of the Bill of Rights Committee Proposal Number 8. Signed: Harper."

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper has proposed to reconsider Section 10. Mr. Harper-on the issue of reconsideration.

DELEGATE HARPER: It's going to be hard for Delegate Ask to follow that act of Kelleher; but he asked me, since I voted on the prevailing side, if I would make this motion, and I do. And I now ask-for reasons of reconsideration, I yield to Delegate Ask.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman. Thank you, Delegate Harper, for making the motion to reconsider. We had Section 10 under consideration the other evening and maybe we acted rather hastily. I like the section, but I-if you'll all recall, and turn to Section 10, we deleted the last phrase "without the showing of a compelling state interest". And this went through rather hurriedly, and I got to considering that and became concerned about it; and I've talked to other attorneys here who are also concerned, and I have also talked to the members of the Bill of Rights. We maybe disagree on interpretation, but I think we should reconsider this section, not deleting it but putting back in the verbiage that the majority proposal proposes here. Now, the reason I say this is, the right of privacy has come down through the years by a case law, the U.S. Supreme Court and our Supreme Court; and they go on the idea of what's reasonable, the privacy that's justifiable as in regard to the state. And I think when we have the wording here that we presently have in Section IO-the way we adopted it, it says: "The rights of individual privacy is essential to well-being of a free society and shall not be infringed". So we're making this absolute now, and I don't think there's even hardly any opening for a court interpretation of this. At least, this is my view of it. I also contacted the Attorney General's office on that. They didn't want to become involved in anything on the Convention, but I requested them; I was a delegate; I felt that being in law enforcement, this would concern them. And they feel that the wording of this section is rather strong and it cannot be infringed and it could stop everything. And they didn't know how it would be interpreted by the court. Now, I also called Professor Elison—I believe Mr. Campbell has talked to him on the phone-and he indicated that he had looked at this section the way the majority proposal had it, and he was satisfied with it and thought it should be in the Constitution. I talked to him today and posed the question of how this would be interpreted. This is a-we've now made it an absolute right, just like religion; we can't interfere with religion by any statute whatsoever. No one can do anything about it, and it's in the Constitution. And he said, "Well," he said, "I don't know for sure how the court would interpret that, whether they'd interpret it with Section 11; I don't know how." Now, I don't know how either, but are we going to put something into the Constitution that we don't know how the courts are going to interpret it? Shouldn't we put something in there that's clear? And I submit that we don't have absolute, complete right of privacy in all phases. The U.S. Supreme Court doesn't feel that way, and certainly when there is a compelling state interest, they can invade privacy. Now, I don't know what we're doing here, but I think the majority proposal is right, that we should leave those words in there. And if you'll read their comments on the next page, it's a-they are showing the reasons for this section and how flexible-how it's going to work. By putting these words in, we're giving direction to the court how they are going to interpret this. If there's no compelling state interest, you can't invade a person's right of privacy. And this is going to have to be shown, and this is the direction to the court. And I submit that we should reconsider this section and put the original wording in as the majority of the committee proposed, so we clarify this issue and don't cloud it up and create a legal hassle in the years to come. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell. This is on the issue of reconsideration.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Right. I oppose the motion for reconsideration in this matter. The right of privacy is a right that has been established for some time. I'd like to quote you out of a federal case, just briefly, in Connecticut. The right was first suggested by the famous Warren and Brandeis article in the Harvard Law Review in 1890. "There are 22 American states which have recognized the right as part of their common law. In recent years the trend has been especially pronounced. Law review support is practically unanimous. Since 1936, no court in any state has denied the right. As recently as 1952", this federal case goes on, "Illinois and Montana adopted the right by express holding and with no misgivings". I submit to you that we do have in Montana a Supreme Court case which does hold that the right of privacy is embraced within the absolute rights of personal security and personal liberty. The basis of the right of privacy is the right to be let alone and is part of the right to liberty and pursuit of happiness, and they quote cases. I suggest to you that the Supreme Court is not going to be bound on this. They certainly are going to interpret the right of privacy. We had much discussion before our committee, and why not try to define the right, to put in specific examples. But it was our feeling that once you do that, you are running a risk that you may eliminate other areas in the future which may be developed by the court. As you have seen in the Montana Standard, they feel this right is a right that should have express protection in the Constitution. I think that the words that were deleted did not add anything. The court, when interpreting this, will of course interpret this to mean that there must be some limitations; it's not absolute. They have interpreted this in the past on what this is. I feel that it will be interpreted properly in the future, and I think that once we get into this, we could open up the entire area that our committee spent many, many hours considering. And I feel that it is proper the way we amended it and that I would oppose this reconsideration. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue arises on—

DELEGATE ASK: May I close?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ask, yes.

DELEGATE ASK: I would like to close on that. Mr. Campbell mentioned that this is recognized in so many states. I agree the federal government recognizes it, but they do not recognize it as an absolute right like we have written it into this section here. I think we're creating problems. I'm not against the right of privacy, but I think we're creating more legal problems if we don't give some direction. And these cases don't hold that this right of privacy is absolute. They all go by what's reasonable; what's justifiable. Now, there's the latest United States case, United States versus White; it was decided April 5, 1971, and in there it was quoted: "Our problem in terms of principles announced in Katz," which was a previous case, "is what expectations of privacy are constitutionally justifiable, what expectations the 4th Amendment will predict-protect in the absence of warrant." So they're under the 4th Amendment. There's nothing in the federal Constitution that gives this right of privacy. They've interpreted it from the 4th Amendment. Then going on, it says: "particularly under the 4th Amendment, which is ruled by fluid concepts of reasonableness." So you have to, when they interpret this section, you have to go to whether it's justifiable and the reasonableness of it; and I think if we add the remainder of this Section 10 that the majority committee came out with for our proposal, that we will be going in that direction and we will avoid a lot of misunderstanding of this section, misinterpretation. Thank YOU.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the question arises on Mr. Harper's motion that we reconsider Section 10. You've heard the discussion. All in favor of reconsidering Section 10, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair is in doubt. All in favor of reconsidering, say Aye; and all opposed, say No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 56 having voted Aye and 33 having voted No, we'll reconsider Section 10.

Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: Mr. Chairman. I move that we adopt Section 10, the right of privacy, in the full wording as proposed by the committee on the majority proposal-it's on page 23—that we—with the word "individual" that was included in the amendment and include the entire wording of that section. And I have given the reasons before, and I will not belabor the point. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, the Bill of Rights Committee has no objection. In the final analysis, I don't think the fears that have been expressed are valid; but nevertheless, we have no objection to adding that particular clause so that the right will read as originally submitted to this body.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman, I'd just like to put in one more little lick. The reason I said it in the first place-put a period there—"without the showing of a compelling state interest" is not defined, at least clearly, in my mind as to who must show thecompellinginterest, what it must be, and who decides what it must be. Section 11 deals with search and seizures, puts a limit on the-a limitation on the kind of invasion of privacy that the government can legally do. I guess I'm just not that worried about the state taking care of itself as I am worried about the individual being able to take care of his own privacy.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, I think that with the words "without the showing of a compelling state interest", that the thing is made meaningless. With the addition of those words, it's meaningless.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Ask's motion that we add back in the words "without the showing of a compelling state interest". So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's adopted.

Mr. Dahood, do you want to move Section 10 for me?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10 as now amended, that it recommend the same be adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee rearrange its calendar by passing the consideration of all other matters before General Orders at this sitting of the committee.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is to pass all other matters on General Orders. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, I move the committee rise and finally report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is that this committee rise and finally report.

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. President [Chairman], could I have the record show that I made a mistake in voting not to put the death penalty on the ballot? I'd like to show that.1 was in favor of that, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the record now shows that. The motion is to rise and finally report. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered. Now, if you'll just wait till it's ready, we'll do that.

(Proceedings moved from Committee of the Whole to Convention. President Graybill in Chair.)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Since it's getting late, the Chair would like to make an announcement or two while we're waiting for it to be printed. Please understand that John Gardiner, the ex-Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, is in town and will be addressing us in this Convention Hall at 8:00 p.m. tonight. This is on our Distinguished Speakers Series, as you know, and there is a cocktail hour that begins awfully quickly, if you want to get there. We'll try and adjourn in time. It's at the Colonial Club. Other than that, we'll expect to see you back, if you'd like to hear Mr. Gardiner, at 8 o'clock tonight, but not until we adjourn. Mr. Harbaugh-just a moment.

Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman, might we be advised of what the schedule will be tomorrow?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Well, tomorrow we're going to start on Style and Drafting, and I think-and we also have Section-and we also have some matters up on Order of Business Number 5, the General Government matter that we thought we'd get to today-General Government and Legislature on Order of Business Number 5. Style and Drafting-I think Judiciary is not up, because it has not been there long enough-and after we finish Style and Drafting—finish Order of Business Number 5, I presume we'll be on Education, which is next up.

Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman, does the Chair have either an inkling or indication of what the schedule-if we will be working Monday, or whether there's a possibility, or—

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: There's a possibility, but the Chair-we're only 1 day behind now, but I am hoping we won't be 1 day behind after another day or so, or 2 days. The Chair really wouldn't know until probably at least Friday night. We are 1 day behind, as you all know now, plus some style and drafting.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So I think there's a chance we might work Monday, yes. Will the clerk please read the Committee of the Whole report.

CLERK HANSON: "March 9, 1972. Mr. President: We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration Report Number 8 of the Committee on Bill of Rights, recommend as follows: that the committee pass consideration of other business on General Orders; that the committee rise and report. Signed: Graybill, Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Is there anyone who wants the Committee of the Whole report read in its entirety? If not, we'll pass that.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move we adopt the Committee of the Whole report and refer the Bill of Rights Proposal Number 8 to Committee on Style and Drafting.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to adopt the Committee of the Whole report and refer this Bill of Rights Article to Style and Drafting. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered. Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President, I move we adjourn until Friday, March 10th, 9:oo a.m., 1972.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to adjourn until tomorrow morning at 9:00 a.m. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Thank you. So ordered.

(Convention adjourned at 6:00 p.m.)

March 10. 1972 Fortv-Second Day Convention Hall
9:10 a.m. Helena, Montana

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: If you'll all stand, Delegate Scanlin will lead us in the invocation this morning.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: "The shouting and the tumult dies, the captains and the kings depart. Still stands that ancient sacrifice and a humble and a contrite heart." With these thoughts of Kipling in mind, let us pray. Suffering long hours of what seems to us to be interminable debate, help us, 0 Lord, to keep our prize in view. Let us neither gloat in times of victory or become glum in moments of defeat. May we heed the lesson of St. Paul when he wrote: "I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therein to be content." Amen.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: We'll take attendance by voting Aye on the voting machines, please.

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Babcock, Delegate Blaylock, Delegate Brown, Delegate Campbell, Delegate Choate, Delegate Drum, Delegate Kelleher, Delegate Swanberg. Mr. President, may Delegate Furlong be excused, please?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Yes.

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Blaylock, Delegate Drum, Delegate Kelleher, Delegate Swanberg.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: There's Drum.

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Blaylock, Delegate Kelleher, Delegate Swanberg.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Push the button, Mr. Drum, and we'll close the ballot. Mr. Drum, push the button. Very well, take the attendance.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, Delegate Swanberg present; 98 delegates present, 1 absent, 1 excused.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Who is absent?

CLERK HANSON: Blaylock.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Blaylock and Kelleher-is Kelleher here?

CLERK HANSON: Yes, Kelleher is here.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: He's here? Blaylock is missing. Very well, Order of Business Number 1, Report of Standing Committees.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. President. We, your Committee on Style, Drafting, Transition and Submission, submits to the Convention Report Number 6, Natural Resources and Agriculture. Signed: John M. Schiltz, Chairman; William Burkhardt, Vice-Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, that may be-is being printed and will be put upon your desks and is placed on General Orders. Reports of Select Committees.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 3, Communications. Mr. Clerk-Mr. Schiltz, are you on 1?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Are we on 1? Yes. Reports of Standing Committees. May we go back there?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right, back to Order of Business Number 1, Style and Drafting's Natural Resources is accepted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: No, I'm referring to the Legislative Article, which Style and Drafting reported back under Order of Business Number 5—and is—

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Right.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: --was on the desks yesterday.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: We're going to take care of that later. You're out of-you're up too quick.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Well, no, I just wanted to report it back under Order of Business Number 1 so you could refer it.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Oh, very well. And Executive, also?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: And Executive also, yes, but I-well, I don't think we need to report that back, but we do. All right, we'll report Executive back, too.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right, Legislative and Executive are back for Order of Business Number 5. Now, we went through Order of Business Number 2. On Order of Business Number 3, Communications, the Chair would like the record to show that last night, as the fourth speaker on our distinguished speakers series, we had John N. Gardiner here, who spoke to some of the delegates and who gave an excellent address, for which we are thankful.

CLERK HANSON: John W. Gardiner.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: John W. Gardiner; all right. Order of Business Number 4, Introduction of Proposals.

CLERK HANSON: None, sir.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Now, Order of Business Number 5, Final Consideration of Proposals.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, it's my understanding that the Legislative Style and Drafting report that Mr. Schiltz just gave verbally-that there are a-some matters, a matter or two, which should be discussed in the Committee of the Whole before we vote on this matter on--under Order of Business Number 5. So I would move at this time that we advance to Order of Business Number 10, which is General Orders, for the specific and limited purpose of considering this report on the Legislative Style and Drafting.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, you've heard the motion of Mr. Murray that we advance from Order of Business Number 5 to Order of Business Number 10 for the specific purpose of handling some minor changes in the Legislative Article placed before you. All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right, we're now—

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move the Convention resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for the consideration of the Legislative Style and Drafting report under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, all in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Convention resolved itself into Committee of the Whole. Leo Graybill, Jr., in Chair)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz, will you explain the problems in the Legislative Article.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes. Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, we shortcutted a little bit here. I hesitate to use that word because it might have a bad connotation in view of all the queries I got yesterday, but had we followed normal routine, we would have made some of these very minor changes on the Legislative Article and reported it back for ripening for 2 days under the Committee of the Whole and then we would have got to it some other time when everybody would have forgotten it. The changes were, indeed, minor. And you'll recall that the other day I asked that it be rereferred to Style and Drafting so we could incorporate the amendments that were made and also look for any anomalous situations that might have been created that we overlooked. So thereportthatyoushould belookingatis called unicameral--and--up in the upper right-hand corner-and it says, "Order of Business Number 5, Final Consideration, Style and Drafting, Legislative, Number 3." That's the one you should be looking at.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Order of Business Number 5, Style and Drafting report, Legislative Article, that it adopt the committee's report as to Section 4.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, will you explain Section 4, Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, here we're just making parallelism between the unicameral and the bicameral, and we inserted the words "for the Legislature" on lines 18 and 19.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 4?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Mr. Schiltz's motion as to Section 4, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 8 of the unicameral portion of Style and Drafting's report, that it recommend the same be adopted as amended.
Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: In this case, on line 14 again, we added the words "member of the Legislature" for parallelism.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 8?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Mr. Schiltz's motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 10 of Style and Drafting's report, it recommend the same be adopted as amended.
Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: In this case, we added the words, on line 29, "by law", and again for parallelism.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion'?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of Mr. Schiltz's motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And Section 10 is adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 14 of Style and Drafting's report, unicameral section of the Legislative Article, that it recommend the same be adopted, as amended.
Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 14 is on page 4.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right. We made a capital letter out of the "t" on line 29, and we changed--we added the word "senator", over on page 5, line 1. Otherwise, no problems.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 14, sub. 1?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 15, sub. 3, sub. (b), of the Style and Drafting report on the unicameral Legislative Article, that it recommend the same be adopted.
Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz, you've lost me. What page?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: On page 6. We're talking about line 10.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Page 6, line 10.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: This, as you will remember on Section 15, is more of the transition section in case we go back to bicameral, and we found that we had changed the numbers in the major sections but had not changed them into this-sections that are picked up in toto and put into the bicameral-put in as bicameral sections. Otherwise, there's no problem there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, is there any discussion on Section 15, sub. (b)?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That should be sub. 3, sub. (b).

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Sub. 3, sub.(b). (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 15, sub. 3—no, sub. 5, sub. (e), on page 7 of the Style and Drafting report on the Judicial Article, that it recommend the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, 15-5 (e) on page 7. It's styled Section 13 after the(e), so you can find it there on line 9.
Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: In this case, we incorporated the--again, this is still under Section 15—and we picked up the impeachment provisions pertaining to the bicameral section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And this implements Mr. Harlow's amendment?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That's right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of this section?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move when this committee does rise and report, after having had under consideration Section 15, sub. 5, sub. 2, on line-on page 7, line 16, that it recommend the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, that's 15-5, sub. (e), sub. 2.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Right; sub. (e), sub. 2.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: On line 17. Go ahead.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Again, this is the picking up of the bicameral portion to insert into Section 15, and it is the Harlow amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 9 of the bicameral portion after the divider page, which is page 2, that it recommend the same be adopted as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 9 is on page 2 after the divider?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, we again are straining for parallelism, and we inserted here "member of the Legislature" instead of "no senator or representative".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And the term "Legislature" in place of "either house".

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: And the same would be true in that same section on line 29, "either house" and "the Legislature". That's right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 9 is adopted.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 14 of the bicameral portion, which will be found on page 5 of the Style and Drafting report on the Legislative Article-I'm talking now about 14, sub. 3, on page 5-that it recommend the same be adopted. I really hate even to talk about this, because all we did was strike a comma on line 30, but we are thorough.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion about the saving in time and space by striking that comma on line 30? (Laughter)
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: That concludes the Style and Drafting report, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, since we're here for the limited purpose of doing just what we have now completed doing, I move that the committee rise and finally report on Style and Drafting report on the Legislature, which is Style and Drafting Report Number 3.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is to rise and finally report. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Proceedings revert to Convention from Committee of the Whole, President Graybill presiding.)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Will the clerk read the Committee of the Whole report.

CLERK HANSON: Do you want it all read?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: No, read the title and the—

CLERK HANSON: "March 10th, 1972. Mr. President. We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration Report Number 3 of the Committee on Style and Drafting, Legislative, unicameral and bicameral, recommend as follows: that the committee rise and finally report on Style and Drafting Report Number 3. Signed: Leo Graybill, Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Without objection, we will not read the whole report. Is there a motion, Mr. Murray, to adopt the report?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move we adopt the Committee of the Whole report and refer Style and Drafting on the Legislative, which is Style and Drafting Report Number 3, to Order of Business Number 5.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All in favor of the motion, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: I move the Convention revert to Order of Business Number 5.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to revert to Order of Business Number 5. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered. Very well, on Order of Business Number 5, the Chair would like to make a little explanation for you. If you'll take the Order of Business Number 5 reports of the Convention that we now have—Number 1, on Suffrage and Elections; Number 2, Constitutional Revision; Number 3, Legislative; and Number 4, Executive--we will go through these this morning. The rules require that these be adopted section by section. We will not read subsections. They also require-or, the intent is to do this without debate. Now, you should all know whether you have any objection and intend to vote against, either for the record or because51 percent of you want to, any particular sections that have now been adopted and gotten to this stage. But for the record, we must take a roll call vote on each section. That takes a little time. We will not read the section. We will read the title and take the roll call vote, and we will not read subsections. Now, the first one we'll do this morning is Number 1, Suffrage and Elections. Mr. Clerk, Section 1.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 1. Ballot."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Section 1, vote Aye on the voting machine; and so many as are opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Any delegate want to change his vote?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Take the ballot, Mr. Clerk.

Mr. Schiltz, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, my voting machine is not registering up there, I guess.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Well, you may not have voted quickly enough. I may have cut you off.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: I vote Aye in any case.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right. We'll catch you next time around then.

Mr. President Aye

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Would the floor manager mind looking at his telephone?

Mr. Blaylock, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: To announce my presence.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, show Mr. Blaylock's presence in the journal.

(Pause while voting machine being repaired)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Chair—as is obvious, the machine has jammed here a minute and we're fixing it. At the time we adopted the rules, that roll call vote on every section seemed like such a good idea, (Laughter) but if that voting machine breaks, I wonder whether we'll rue the day—

Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: While we're having a little trouble with the machine, I just wanted to register my protests to the next article that's coming up as an insult to our intelligence and an afront to future generations. Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right; we'll consider that not debate, Mr. Scanlin. Okay? The committee will be in order. Have you announced the vote for Section 6?

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 91 delegates voting Aye, 2 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Now, Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President, I rise for a suggestion on this. If we have to have roll call votes, since there's only two or three people voting No on each one of these, why don't we go through these section by section and have those people who are opposed stand and we take their names and the rest of us are counted as voting Aye? And it will speed it up and maybe save the machine.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Well, now, Mr. Blaylock, I appreciate your suggestion, but the machine is fixed. It's the same old thing with typewriters. The ribbon ran off the end; it didn't reverse. That happens to everybody's typewriter sooner or later. I think it'll be all right. I think that we may be presumptuous in assuming that we aren't going to get a number of negative votes; and everyone does have a right-and, in fact, the rules require--and, in fact, I think we have to get everyone on record. And this, unfortunately, is the crucial vote on which we have to do that. If the machine, in fact, is broken and won't take a lot more, why, we'll pass this order and we'll get the man over and fix it. But I think we do have to get everyone on the record and everyone has a right to register his protest, and I think we'll be able to do it. I realize that it's time-consuming, but that's, unfortunately, the nature of our business. Thank you. Ladies and gentlemen, you have passed each article of Suffrage and Elections Article, and the Chair will now rerefer Suffrage and Elections, as passed, back to Style and Drafting for inclusion in the final product. Very well. we'll proceed to the Constitutional Revision Article, Number II. Constitutional Revision Number Roman II, Section 1.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 1. Constitutional convention." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Section 1 of the Constitutional Revision Article, please vote Aye on the voting machine; and so many as shall be opposed, please vote No.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: The copy I have, unless there's been another one put out, does not show the words "and unlimited" written in. Is this-have these been written into the ones we're voting on?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Where is the word "unlimited"? I understand you're looking at the wrong copy. Let me see your copy, Mr. Clerk.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Thank you very much, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: This should be headed Order of Business Number 5, Final Consideration, Style and Drafting, Constitutional Revision, Number II-Roman II. Is everybody with us now? And this is Section 1, Constitutional Convention. All in favor, vote Aye; all opposed, vote No. Does any delegate-have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Let's put it this way: all the delegates have not voted; does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, cast the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 94 delegates voting Aye, no delegates voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Chair has just checked with the Rules Committee, and it is true that you do not have to vote on these things, but you are shown as absent on the vote if you don't vote on these things. So either vote or expect to be shown absent in the journal forever. (Laughter) Very well, Section 2.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2. Initiative for constitutional convention." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Section 2, vote Aye on the voting machines; and opposed, vote No.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: I notice in both of these sections that we-when we looked out at this article from--after Style and Drafting had it, we reinserted the word "unlimited"-and-both of these Sections, 1 and 2, and I don't see it.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: You're in your wrong book. Mine has the word "unlimited" on line 12 of Section 2. You're in a draft-you're in a previous draft. It's a draft with no cover on it— Order of Business Number 5, it says at the top.

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATES: We don't have it.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Would-the Chair would appreciate a show of hands of those who do not have the proper one. (Show of hands) All right, something's wrong. Did you all have the proper one for Number 1?

DELEGATES: Yes.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: May I ask if you all have the proper Order of Business Number 5, Unicameral, that we worked from this morning on Legislative?

DELEGATES: Yes.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right, and do you all have it for Executive?

DELEGATES: Yes.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right, hearing no objection, the Chair will set aside Constitutional Revision, the General Government one, and we'll start on Legislative. And meantime we'll see the Sergeant-at-Arms and see that everybody gets a proper Order of Business Number 5 on Roman I and II. Let's move to the Legislative Article, the one we just worked on this morning. Is everybody ready?

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Can we vote on the bicameral and unicameral?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: In the Legislative, we vote on everything that's in this pamphlet, yes. You vote on both the bicameral and unicameral. You may-what you're voting is-on the bicameral and unicameral, you're voting that-it's the sense of the body this go on the ballot, and this is the way you want the bicameral and this is the way you want the unicameral on the ballot. You don't have to be for one more than the other. You-this is the way you want these particular things to be if that one happens to be adopted by the public. Very well, we'll begin on Legislative Article, Section 1.

Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 1. Power and structure." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Section 1 of the unicameral article, Power and structure, vote Aye on the voting machine; and so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, take the ballot.

Mrs. Reichert.

DELEGATE REICHERT: Mr. President, after all my work on a unicameral, I certainly want my vote to register Aye, and it's not working.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: It isn't working now because it's closed, but if you vote before—

DELEGATE REICHERT: I did. I voted.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right, now, don't panic. (Laughter) We'll just-if you're-you know, watch your button when you push it, and if the switch doesn't work, push it two or three times; and if it still doesn't work, stand up and I'll recognize you and we'll get you on. And in this case, Mrs. Reichert, we'll make a special rule, and Mrs. Reichert votes Aye on Section 1. Would you announce the vote.

Mr. Choate.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Chairman, I'm wondering about the size as it's listed here. It says, a minimum of 90 and a maximum of 105. I thought that was to be 100. Is that correct?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: That's correct.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Okay.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll close the ballot. Please cast the vote.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 82 delegates voting Aye, 12 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Ladies and gentlemen, we'll have the pages pass out Section 1. Now, we do not have a hundred, so those of you who happen to have Section 1, please don't accept one from the pages. That's-we've already finished that, but we'll pass it out for you in case you didn't have one. Now, the sergeant tells me that these were put out. Apparently they were put out at some time when they were swept into the baskets along with all of the other things you didn't want, so some of you should have them; and you might look around, because we do not have enough Section 2's. Now, we'll go print some more.

Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: I have two, if you're short.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Well, just share with your neighbor there.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: They've all got 2.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right, now, the first thing we're going to do is put out Number 1. And if you don't have it, just take one, but if you do have it, please let the page not give it to you.

Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. President, I just rise to say that I don't blame anybody for getting rid of that Number 2.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Section 3.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 3. Election and terms." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Section 3, Election and terms, of the Unicameral Article of the Legislative Article, please vote Aye on the voting machines; and so many as are opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

Mr. President Aye

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I see we'revoting by sections but not by subsections. In such instances where there are two substantive propositions in the section, where you might be for one and against the other, what does a poor devil do?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney, I told you at the beginning of the vote on this that the rules require that we do this by section and not by subsection, and you have to then decide whether you want to go with the-with your vote or not. You have to decide whether you like the whole thing as a whole or not, and then you get to vote.

Mrs. Pemberton.

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: Mr. President, I was under the impression that we-this is the way it's to go on the ballot and that we are approving or disapproving of the wayitis worded.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: We're voting on the Legislative Article, and it will go on the ballot as the Style and Drafting Committee finally styles it, and you're approving the text of this material—

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: Thank you.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: -and you can vote for or against it, either way.

Mr. Romney, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I seek information.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Would it be possible for me, at this late date, to change my vote on Section 5?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: No, but you can explain it, if you want to, for the journal.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: I will be more careful in the future, I promise. I voted in favor of Section 5, being in favor of the first subsection, whereas I am against the second subsection, so the record will show that's my feeling.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Section 7, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: Shouldn't we announce the vote?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Oh, all right, announce the vote.

CLERK HANSON: 76 delegates voting Aye, 18 voting No. Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right, Section 7.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 7. Vacancies." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Section 7, vote Aye on the voting machines; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted? Section 7 is in the middle of page 2.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 88 delegates voting Aye, 5 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. President, yesterday afternoon we had an hour television program debating the unicameral and bicameral, and I can see now why Mrs. Reichert is failing to press that button properly. She probably was convinced that unicameral wasn't as good as she thought it was. (Laughter)

DELEGATE REICHERT: (Inaudible)-if it's not too late.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mrs. Speer.

DELEGATE SPEER: I vote Aye. This isn't working.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: On Section 17?

DELEGATE SPEER: Yes.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Chair knows that this is difficult for you. It's a little difficult for the clerk, too; and we're just running the tape back so we don't-we have-our only problem is the tape, and we've sent for the repairman, but bear with us and I think we can get this job done.

Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: For what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE BATES: In voting on Section 1, I voted wrong. I meant to vote No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, on Section 1 of the Legislative Article?

DELEGATE BATES: Yes, because it says "one-chamber body", and I'm not for a one-chamber.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: That's fine, Mrs. Bates. That may show in the journal-or the transcript.

Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I might have to confess. Like Mrs. Bates, I made an awful error and I didn't realize at the time. But I did make an error on Section 1, but I don't want any questions on it. I just wanted the body to know I did make an error.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Confession is good for the soul. (Laughter) We're now going to start on the Legislative Bicameral Article, after the middle sheet. Mr. Clerk, will you please read Section 1?

CLERK HANSON: "Section 1. Power and structure." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Section 1 of the Bicameral Article, on page 1 behind the manila-colored-or the cream-colored sheet, vote Aye on the voting machines; as many as are opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

Mr. President Aye

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 72 delegates voting Aye, 20 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Now, ladies and gentlemen, we have gotten enough copies of the Section--or of the Constitutional Revision Article printed, and we are going to have it passed among you by the pages. I think we have enough for everybody on this, so there isn't any problem. If the pages care to pass that out now, that will be fine. That's what's coming around. We'll do that after we finish Legislative. Very well, Section 5.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 5. Compensation." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Section 5, consisting of two subsections. So many as are in favor, vote Aye on the voting machine; opposed, No. Has every delegate voted?
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Any delegate want to change his vote?
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Cast the ballot. Mr. Clerk, Graybill votes Aye.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Babcock votes Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Babcock votes Aye.

Mr. President ..... Aye

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 89 voting Aye, 7 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Section 16.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 16. Code of ethics." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Section 16, vote Aye; opposed, vote No. Every delegate voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Cast the ballot.

Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, I think I'd better explain that last vote. I'm not against ethics, I'm just against the bicameral system. (Laughter)

Mr. President ..... Aye

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 90 delegates voting Aye, 4 delegates voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. By your vote you have adopted every article of both the unicameral and bicameral section of the Legislative Article, and the Chair will refer it back to Style and Drafting. Now, if the Chair may be permitted an observation, I am really at somewhat of a loss. This is serious business. We do want to record your vote. I'm at a little bit of a loss to know why people don't vote the same on identical sections two times in a row. So you might think about that. I mean, many of you-hardly any of these votes come out the same, even though the sections are identical. There are only a few different sections. So, I don't know what you're trying to do, but some of you are on record on both sides of these issues, which seems to me a little bit inconsistent of you. Now, we'll take up Number II. Very well, does everyone now have their Constitutional Revision Order of Business Number 5, Number II, before them?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Now, last time we took the vote on Section 1, but—and it was 94 to nothing-but I'll take it over again so that everyone-because some of you may have been confused as to which article you were working from last time. We're talking about the Constitutional Revision Article on General Government; it's numbered Roman II and it's under Order of Business Number 5. Mr. Clerk, Constitutional Revision, Section Number 1.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 1. Constitutional convention."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, so many as shall be in favor of Section 1, Constitutional Convention, of Genera1 Government's Number II, please vote Aye on the voting machines; and opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Seven delegates have not voted. Does any delegate wish to vote or change his vote?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll cast the ballot.

Mr. President Aye

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 95 delegates voting Aye; no delegates voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Ladies and gentlemen, by sustaining all of these sections, you have sustained the Constitutional Revision, and the Chair will refer Constitutional Revision Article Number 11 back to Style and Drafting for inclusion in the final Constitution. We'll stand at ease for a minute while we run the tape back.

(Convention at ease)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Convention will be in session.

Mrs. Bates, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. President, I just wanted to bring something to our attention. In voting here on Section 6, we voted for an oath that we haven't looked at yet. Is this a rubber stamp, then, for the future proposal?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Now, Mrs. Bates, I don't understand what you're talking about. Are you talking about the one-General Government?

DELEGATE BATES: Yes, it's one that we—

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: May I see a copy, Mr. Clerk? And your point is that Section 6 you haven't looked at? What do you mean?

DELEGATE BATES: The oath of office.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: (Gaveling for order) Will everyone please sit down and be quiet?

DELEGATE BATES: As yet, as far as I can recall, we haven't acted on the actual oath that will be provided in this Constitution and-

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: You're talking about Section 6, Oaths and vacancies?

DELEGATE BATES: Yes, in Section 2 of this Constitutional Revision; but I just thought maybe it was something that we should be aware of. Thank you.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: I don't understand you at all, Mrs. Bates. We have voted on Section 6, to my recollection. Now, I'll be glad to pull my book—

DELEGATE BATES: Yes, Mr. Chairman, we just voted on it now; but as far as the actual oath that will be included in this Constitution, we haven't acted on it previously as far as I can recall, although I did miss a session yesterday.

DELEGATE ETCHART: Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Etchart.

DELEGATE ETCHART: The oath is part of the General Government Article which will be coming out at the end of the last article.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: I see. Well, Mrs. Bates, you are absolutely correct. We have voted on an oath that we haven't seen. It will come out of General Government. This Convention took an oath. I think the delegates presumed that the next Convention, if there was one, would take an oath. I see what you mean. I'm--we're not supposed to debate or discuss it. If you have other questions-we've been through this one about three times. I think you're correct-technically correct-I think it's probably unimportant at this time, and you may certainly debate the oath when Mr. Etchart brings the oath in. Okay, now I understand what your point is. Very well, we'll now take up the Executive Article, Order of Business Number 5, Executive, styled Number Roman IV. Everyone should have that. It was put on your desks today.

Very well, Mr. Clerk, Section 1.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 1. Officers." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Section 1 of the Executive Article, being Order of Business Number 5, Executive Number Roman IV, please vote Aye on the voting machine; opposed, No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

Mr. President Aye

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 48 voting Aye, 46 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, Section 2.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 2. Election." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Section 2, consisting of subsections 1 and 2. All those in favor, vote Aye; opposed, vote No.

Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Point of order. On final consideration on Section l-am I wrong-do we not have to have 50-a majority of the membership of the body, rather than a majority of those present and voting?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Just a moment. We'll check. May I have your attention? I'm going to void the existing ballot on Number 2, and we'll come back to that. Just void that one. Mrs. Robinson has raised a point of order which I'm sure is interesting to everybody. And it's Rule 51, on page 23: "On final consideration of articles, the Convention shall finally consider individual articles at Order of Business Number 5, section by section-a majority of elected delegates-by a majority of elected delegates and refer the said articles to Style and Drafting." So, at the moment you have not-you are not going to send Section 1 to Style and Drafting. It's going to be deleted, 48 only having voted Aye.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move for a call of the Convention.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, a call of the Convention having been moved for, we'll-yes, Mr. Sergeant-at-Arms, we've had a call of the Convention. Will you call in the lobbies and see if we can't get the rest in here? All in favor of a call of the Convention, vote Aye-say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Will all those present please vote Aye on the voting machines, so we'll find out where we stand?

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Barnard.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen.

CLERK HANSON: Pemberton, Holland, Dahood.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Members of the Convention, you may be interested in-a call of the house having been ordered and voted, we're on, now, Rule 68: "No one shall be permitted to leave the floor of the Convention without permission of the President. The Sergeant-at-Arms will notify all members within the bar of the Convention", which the sergeant is now doing. "The roll of the Convention shall be called and the absentees noted. The Sergeant-at-Arms may be dispatched after absentees. The Convention may proceed to business under a call of the Convention pending the arrival of the absentees."

Mr. Murray, what's your pleasure?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Well, my pleasure is to advise the Convention that we have just done a most serious act. Apparently, we want to go back to January 17th and commence committee work again on the Executive Article by indication of our last vote. And I think that we should remind ourselves that we are in a most-probably the most critical stage of our Convention right now. We have, by the rules, required 51 votes to pass things. This means that the delegates should remain in this hall, should pay attention to their voting, and should be careful what they're doing. Now, if they intend to do that, somebody is going to have to get that particular section of the Executive Article back into that committee or do something with it. And I hope they have in mind some good idea as to what they're going to do, because that just simply destroys that committee and this Convention's work to this stage. Now, progress having been made with Delegate Pemberton having returned to the chamber, I move call of the house be dispensed with.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE ARBANAS: I'd like to have a more careful explanation. If we persist in this vote, what does it actually mean? What are the processes we'll follow?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Well, at the moment it means that we have no executive officers in the new Constitution.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Yes, but now what do we do about it? That's what my question-does this go back to committee?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: I'm sure the Executive Committee and others are thinking about that, Mr. Arbanas, right now.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Well, Mr. President, if nobody can come up with a better idea, then I would have to move to suspend the rules to put it back into the committee, which again places it in January 17th status.

DELEGATE SIMON: Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Simon.

DELEGATE SIMON: I would like to change my vote.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: I'm sorry, Mr. Simon, you can't change your vote at this time. The vote was cast.

DELEGATE SIMON: The vote is cast?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Yes. There's a lot of us might want to change our vote, but it's cast.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: I'd like to say1 just don't want Mr. Murray's remarks to go with no response. We are a plenipotentiary body, and we can do anything we darned please. And if we want to reconsiderthis and send it back to committee, that's our power to do so. Our people are going to live with this Constitution for a heck of a long time, presumably, and if it means a few extra hours or a couple extra days to redecide this matter, I see no harm in that.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: I don't think Mr. Murray meant anything-that we couldn't do that, Mr. Kelleher. The problem is, we have now a serious problem because we have destroyed the Executive Article. And that's fine; we'll certainly work on it.

Mr. Murray-Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman. I believe that I was the only member of the Executive Committee who voted for this, and I just want to reiterate the position that I've taken on the floor and that is that—

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Well, Mr. Martin, I am not interested in arguing the Executive Article now. If anyone has any discussion about the problem we're in, I will certainly be interested in—

DELEGATE MARTIN: Well, I think it is of—

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: -but I'm not interested in arguing the Executive Article.

DELEGATE MARTIN: It's a policy that I think the Convention should adopt, and that is not to reconsider and reconsider.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I made a motion that we dispense with the call of the Convention. Has that motion ever been voted on?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: No, it hasn't. The motion is to dispense with the call of the Convention. Is there other discussion on that motion?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All in favor of dispensing with the call of the Convention, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move that we suspend our rules for the specific purpose of revoting on Section 1 of the Executive Article.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I think that to be out of order. I think he can move to reconsider if he wishes to, but I don't think-question at this time if we should ask for the suspension of the rules. You have a number of issues here that can be used. You can reconsider this vote and get a majority and then revote it, or you can send this back to committee. But I don't see any question of suspending the rules for this.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, the reason that I make the motion to suspend the rule is so the matter can be handled under this Order of Business. If we do not do so, we have to pass it for the time, go on to Order of Business Number 7 and then move to reconsider. And that's why I make it now, Mr. Mahoney. I think that it should be made now so we can dispose of the matter.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: (Inaudible)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right, just a minute. No one has the floor. Will the Convention be in order. Mr. Murray, at this time, the Chair is going to rule your motion to suspend the rules out of order; there being, in the Chair's opinion, other ways of approaching the problem. I'd call the delegates' attention to Rule 66, Motion for Reconsideration: "Any delegate who voted on the prevailing side may move for a reconsideration of any question at the same session day of the Convention, or may give notice for the next day. If the delegate who gave the notice does not make the motion the next day"-and so forth. The Committee on Style also may do it. "A motion to reconsider shall take precedence over all other questions except a motion to fix the time to which to adjourn"-a motion to adjourn, and so forth. "A motion to reconsider shall not be renewed." I've asked the question once of the Rules Committee as to whether or not we can't reconsider at this stage. I see nothing in the rules that prohibits reconsideration at Order of Business Number 5; therefore, a motion to reconsider would be in order. The Chair voted on the prevailing side, and if no one else will do it, I'll make a motion to reconsider.

Mr. Habedank, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President, I voted on the prevailing side and I move that we reconsider our action, our vote on that section.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President, I thought the motion lost. I did not vote on the prevailing side.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Yes, Mr. Habedank, you're out of order.

Mr. Harlow, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE HARLOW: First, I was going to ask for a point of order, but it has been cleared up. I want to know who voted-or, that is, what was the prevailing side?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The prevailing side was—(gaveling for order)-Mr. Harlow has asked a question which the Chair intends to answer, so everybody take their time here. The motion that the Chair put was to adopt Section 1, and so I would say that the people that voted on the 46 side-that is, No-were the prevailing side. The Chair is going to rule that way. Does anyone care to challenge the Chair? In other words, the No votes were the prevailing side. Anybody that voted Aye can-anybody that voted No can move to reconsider. Now, let's check again, Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I voted No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank, having voted No, you are on the prevailing side. Mr. Habedank, having previously recognized you, I'll recognize you again. What's your purpose?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I move we reconsider the vote on Section 1.

DELEGATE FELT: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Felt, you do not have the floor.

DELEGATE FELT: I know. I'm seeking it.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Yes, I know, Mr. Felt. Mr. Felt, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE FELT: The Chair invited the question if anyone wished to challenge the ruling of the Chair, but none-given no opportunity to do so, I'm not—

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Just a moment, Mr. Felt. We have not proceeded. I'll be happy to give you that opportunity. I do have to think one thing through at a time, Mr. Felt.

Now, Mr. Felt, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE FELT: To challenge the ruling of the Chair that the No votes were the prevailing side.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE FELT: And I'm not trying to be obstreperous. I think it's a difficult question and it might require just a little more thought by all of us, but the-it would seem to me that no side prevailed-there was no prevailing side-and that no action was taken; and a motion to reconsider would therefore be of some questionable validity. And I would just like to suggest as a possibility, which I'm not sure is available, either that a motion to revert to Section 1 of the Executive Article—

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Felt, you're out of order on that. You've challenged the order of the Chair, and we'll take care of that matter.

DELEGATE FELT: I was just suggesting that as a possibility.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right, now Rule—

DELEGATE FELT: My only point is to challenge the ruling of the Chair.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Felt, and the Chair will allowyourchallenge. Rule 75 is the one that you want to look at on challenge of the Chair: "On all appeals from decisions of the Chair, the question shall be, shall the appeal be sustained?"-that is, shall the Chair be-shall Mr. Felt's appeal be sustained? "A favorable vote of a majority of the delegates present and voting shall sustain the appeal. The presiding officer may cast his vote on an appeal from his decision, and he shall have the right to explain his decision." Very well, I shall now explain my decision, and then we'll vote on Mr. Felt's challenge. When I put Section 1 to the body, I put it for adoption. Therefore, those that voted Aye were voting for adoption. It failed of adoption because oftherules; therefore, I've ruled that the prevailing side were people who were trying to keep it from being adopted. That's why I ruled that way. Secondly, I would like to point out that having ruled-that I have to rule one way or the other. We have to find-have someone do it, and then as soon as we have made that ruling, one of us, either Mr. Habedank or someone on the other side, can then make a motion to reconsider. It doesn't seem to me thatit makes much difference. If I'd ruled the other way, we would have had someone else make the motion to reconsider, but that's the way I ruled. Now, the issue is, shall Mr. Felt's challenge of the Chair be sustained? All those in favor of sustaining Mr. Felt's-and we'll take a roll call-all those in favor of Mr. Felt's motion challenging the Chair, vote

Aye; and those that wish to sustain the Chair, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll cast the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 9 delegates voting Aye, 86 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: 9 delegates having voted Aye and 86 voting No, the Chair is sustained. And the people that voted-the 46 of you-are the prevailing side and Mr. Habedank's motion is in order. Mr. Habedank's motion is a move to reconsider. Now, the Chair would like to explain at this time to all the delegates that I'm aware this is an important matter for many of you. The Chair is merely going to put these things, and we're going to get a vote. Obviously, we have a vote that upset the applecart. Now the question is whether there are enough people here to sustain that vote. Some people are willing to have it reconsidered. The Chair has to put thatreconsideration, and we will put the reconsideration. If we reconsider Section 1, then you can vote on it again; if we don't reconsider it, then we won't vote on it again and we'll have to take it from there. I suppose you want a roll call vote on the reconsideration.

DELEGATES: Yes.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Mahoney, are you up?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: (Inaudible)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: No? Just--all right. Now, the vote-we're going to have a roll call vote. So many as shall be in favor of reconsidering, vote Aye; and so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll close the ballot.

Mr. Aasheim, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE AASHEIM: For the purpose of information, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, state your point.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Will Mr. Murray yield to a question?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray, there's a point of information and you've been asked to yield.

DELEGATE MURRAY: I yield.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Could we not refer this section to General Orders, rather than back to the committee?

DELEGATE MURRAY: No, we're right here on Order of Business Number 5. The President has decided that he wants a reconsideration at this time; we've just voted to do that. My inquiry of the Chair and my motion was to suspend the rules because I disagreed with the President that we should have reconsideration here. He's authorized that motion; we've agreed. Now we'll vote on it. We don't take it out of here again; we leave it right here. If we lose it and we do not get 51 votes, then some appropriate motion will have to be made under Order of Business Number 7 to put it someplace.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: One more question.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: We could then put it to General Orders if we wanted to?

DELEGATE MURRAY: On Order of Business Number 7; but you can't do it here.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Chair would only like to correct the inference that the Chair cares. I'm going to vote, but it was not the Chair's idea that we have to do it this way. This way was available without suspending the rules. Someone took the way, and that's why we're doing it.

Mr. Mahoney, for what purpose—

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I might think we're on a roll call vote and this is highly irregular to be discussing. I think the President has been right in his decisions all the way, and I think we're on roll call. I believe the only thing you can do is explain your vote.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: This was a point of information, and that's why we took it that way. It's not a debate of the issue. Will the clerk please announce the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 83 delegates voting Aye, 15 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, 83 having voted Aye and 15 No, we will reconsider Section 1 of the Executive branch-Order of Business Number 5, Executive Number Roman IV.

Mr. Monroe, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE MONROE: Mr. President, I rise to explain my vote.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Well, it's too late to explain your vote after the-after it's cast; you have to explain it before we announce it.

DELEGATE MONROE: Okay, thank you.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, we're ready to vote again on Section 1.

Mr. Clerk, Section 1.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 1. Officers." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, so many as shall be in favor of adopting Section 1, Officers, vote Aye-and so many as shall--and that includes subsections 1, 2 and 3—and so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, cast the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 85 delegates voting Aye, 13 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Ladies and gentlemen, some of you have requested the pages to send up for certain of these votes. Now, you certainly can have them, but they all have to be separated. They're put together. Rosemary has to record them in the journal. They'll all be available at the clerk's office this afternoon, or I think at the recess-noon recess. It's just about impossible. And if you really want one, you'd better come up yourself and look at it and go back; but it's not possible to send you copies or lend them to you yet till we've recorded them. It's quite a job for the journal to record them all. Very well, Section 8.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 8. Appointing power." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Section 8 consists of four subsections. All in favor of Section 8, vote Aye on the voting machines; and opposed, No. Has every delegate voted?

DELEGATE SPEER: Oh, thank you. I regret that I was diverted when I was voting on Section 3. I wish there to be a record that I am opposed-that I wanted to vote Nay on Section 3, consistent with my original vote.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mrs. Speer, I think you're talking about basically Section 3, not subsection 3.

DELEGATE SPEER: Section 3, so—

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All right. Well, the record may show-the transcript will show your objection, but you're not really explaining your vote, because you have to do that before it's closed. I've closed the vote on Section 15. Will the clerk please take the vote on 15.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 92 delegates voting Aye, 3 voting No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Members of the body, you have sustained the sections of the Executive Article, and the Chair will rerefer it to Style and Drafting for inclusion in the final—

Oh, Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. President, as a point of information, I know-1 think Miss Spew-this-and I don't have any objection, but I think it would be better in the future if they would wait until after the roll call is completed, and then it will show definitely what section-as we had a subsection 3 in this-and I sure hope that maybe it would show--afterwards it would be better.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Right. Well, first of all, the Chair will refer this back to Style and Drafting. Now, secondly, the Chair would like to say it's been a little bit of a rough morning, but at least you begin to see that when you adopt it, it sometimes can get tough, too. And I would like to suggest to you all that I think perhaps some of us didn't pay enough attention beforehand. If you'll read over these when they come and mark in the margins the ones that you intend to vote against, then we'll go along much more smoothly and there won't be any problems. I realize it's difficult to follow and read all of this, but I think you can appreciate that it would be very difficult if we read everything in full, too, and took a lot of time. So why don't you read it over and mark the ones that you want to be careful on, and then the rest of them you can vote straight through on. And the Chair does let you explain your vote if you get up before the vote is shut off. And then we'll hold it open while you explain it, but if-once the vote is cast, we can't back off of it. And then the Chair will let you do a second thing-namely, we'll let you explain it, so that the transcript shows what you meant. Very well.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, just one remark before I make my motion. Most of us don't have any difficulty staying on the floor during this Order of Business, and I appreciate the fact that you do stay. If you do leave the floor, I would appreciate it if you'd let somebody know where you are so we can find you, because sometimes, as you can see, these things get suddenly very critical and without knowing where you are, it really slows us down, and I thank you for your consideration this morning. I hope that my remarks did not mean to indicate that I was lobbying one side or the other on that particular issue, because I was not. I just wanted you to realize the serious ramifications of the action which you took and that this is no stage at which to play. Now, Mr. President, I move that we advance to Order of Business Number 10.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well, the motion is to advance to Order of Business Number 10. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "March 10, 1972. The following committee proposals are now on General Orders: Education, Public Health, Local Government, General Government, Style and Drafting Number 5, Style and Drafting Number 6." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So the body may know the Chair's intentions, it is the intention of the Chair to take up Education at this time. Mr. Champoux has a short opening statement. We'll take that before lunch, and we'll be ready to debate after lunch.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, I move that the Convention resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for consideration of business under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All in favor of resolving this Convention into Committee of the Whole, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.

(Convention resolved into Committee of the Whole—Mr. Graybill in Chair)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You have before you the brightly colored orangefolderon Education, Number 10. The Chair will recognize Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. President, fellow delegates, at this time I'd like to stand and introduce the Education Proposal. Before I do, however, in compliance with the rules, I would like to state my special interest in this case. I am a history and political science professor at Flathead Valley Community College in Kalispell. I'm also the Chairman of the Social Science Division there. I think if you read over the article, you will find in no instance do we have any special favor cast for the community colleges. I also would like to state, at this time, that there were other members of the board from other levels of education-long experience as well as board members. Also, I want to indicate that we have received widespread support for this proposal from the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and from the MEA, which represents the lower educational support level. Also, at this time, I'd like to make some corrections in the proposal. If you would go to Section 10, please, on page-well, let's do it in the front-page 6, yes. There were some things left out. If you go to line 12, it should read "after the duties of'-would you please put in "this board and of'-line 12, page 6, after "the duties of', it should read: "this board and of the Superintendent of Public Instruction". If you go to Section-5 on page 4, line 25—Section 5, page 4, line 25. After "secondary schools", we should knock out the "s''-the plural "schools", make it singular, and add "districts''-"secondary school districts". The word to add is "districts". The word "districts" is plural. Now, as we go through the different sections of the proposal, on Section Number 4, Mr. Barnard will come in with an amendment. That will be brought to the Chair, and it is simply a way to correct Section 4 so that it comes into--excuse me, Section 3. If you look at Section 3, on page 4, it concerns the public school fund inviolate. Now, the last section of that is in violation with what we did under Revenue and Finance last Saturday in terms of investments. There will be an amendment from Mr. Barnard to correct this. Education occupies a place ofcardinalimportancein the public realm. The educational system is charged with the task of shaping and cultivating the mind of each succeeding generation and with developing the capacities for cultural and technical advancement of society. State and local governments devote a far larger share of their financial resources to the support of education than to any other single public activity. Because of this overriding importance of education, the committee recognizes the awesome task of providing the appropriate constitutional provisions necessary to protect and nurture the public educational system. Each aspect of existing and proposed constitutional language was thoroughly and deeply reflected upon by the committee in light ofpresent and future needs. Fundamental to the committee's considerations were the twin goals of protecting the integrity of a quality educational system and allowing for flexibility to meet changes as yet unknown but which will certainly occur in future developments in the field of learning. These were our primary objectives-very difficult ones, I might say, to adhere to. In light of these aims, the committee has preserved those provisions in the existing Constitution which have proven worth and which pose no hindrance to potential developments. On the other hand, the committee has made revisions in those places where it saw a definite need for constitutional improvement. Some of these changes have to do with basic aims of the educational system; others are concerned with structural or administrative adaptations to changing conditions in education. The most significant revisions are a clear statement of educational goals of the state, a mandate for thesupport of education allowing increased financial flexibility-and this was an extremely difficult one in light of the Serrano case, as we noted when we took up Revenue and Finance-the deletion of antiquated age and school term restrictions, and a revised administrative structure for both the public school system and for higher education. The committee views these proposed changes as vital to the quality and efficiency of education in Montana. The proposed article provides appropriate guarantees to the viability of the public school system, while leaving the way open to future transformations in the educational process. Individual members of the committee will be taking up sections. President Graybill has a list of who is assigned. At the end of this statement, I would just simply like to say that as we go through these, let's think of the present generation of young Montanans in our public schools and all to come. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Thank you, Mr. Champoux.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman, I move we recess until 1 o'clock this day,

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is to recess until 1 o'clock this day. All in favor, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered

(Committee recessed at 11:55 a.m.—reconvened at 1:12 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Committee will be in order. Mr. Clerk, will you read the title on Section 1 of the Education Article.

CLERK HANSON: "Montana Constitutional Convention, Education and Public Lands Committee Proposal Number 10, reported February 22, 1972. Champoux, Chairman; Noble, Vice-Chairman. Be it proposed by the Education and Public Lands Committee that there be a new article on education to read as follows: 'Section 1. Educational goals and duties of the state. It shall be the goal of the people of Montana to provide for the establishment of a system of education which will develop the full educational potential of each person. Equality of educational opportunity shall be guaranteed to each person of the state.'" Mr. Chairman, Section 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. Before I make the motion on this section, I would like to make two minor corrections. The committee has consented to these corrections. We are going to subsection-Section 1 into subsection 1 and subsection 2 and-at the paragraphs.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The motion is that on line 8, we put a sub. 1, and on line 13, we put a sub. 2. Is that correct?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: That's correct.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 1, subsection 1, of the Education and Public Lands Proposal, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: We in Montana are standing on the threshold of a great opportunity in the area of education. Mr. Champoux, in his opening remarks before lunch, mentioned some of the implications of this. But the fact that the convening of our Montana Constitutional Convention coincides with a time in which there are tremendous changes taking place in the area of education and in the methods of financing education put us in a very unique position. We in Montana are in a position of being on the cutting edge of a new frontier, not only in terms of philosophy of education, but in terms of the method of financing education. And it was in the full awareness of this unique situation that the committee undertook to draft these articles on education and public lands. Section 1 of the Education Article combines the present sections 1, 6 and 7 of the Constitution. The mandate of the present Section 1 and 6, which establishes a system of free common schools and provides for their funding, is included in subsection 2 of this article. The committee has omitted the age references which were included in Section 7 of the present Constitution, feeling that these things were better left to statutory detail and that their inclusion might stifle the development of the educational enterprise. In subsection 1 we have a broad statement of the goal of education in our state. And that goal, as it is stated, is to establish a system of education which will develop the full educational potential of each person. Now, this is something new, but the committee intends that this be taken in much the same respect as some of the provisions which we included and adopted in our Bill of Rights section yesterday-that really, just as we were in the area of political theory there, here we are also in the area of educational theory. And so we're setting forth a goal. Now, the committee realizes that economic resources of the state limit this goal, and yet it's our belief that it's very important to set forth a goal for education and that the development of our human resources to the fullest possible extent ought to be a primary goal of the state's educational enterprise. The inclusion of this kind of statement in a constitution is not new. The Illinois Constitution contains a very similar statement, and I'd like to read one line of that. It says, "A fundamental goal of the people of the state is the educational development of all persons to the limit of their capacity." The Constitution of Puerto Rico also contains a similar statement. It says, and I quote: "Every person has a right to an education which shall be directed to the full development of the human personality and to the strengthening of respect for human rights and fundamental free dom." We've also included in subsection 1 a statement guaranteeing equality of educational opportunity within this stated goal. Now, what does this mean? Well, basically, we are taking a stand which is in line with the more recent interpretations of the courts of this land, but it even reaches back further than that. And I'd like to read to you a quotation from Brown versus the Board of Education decision written in 1954 by the United States Supreme Court. In that decision, nearly 20 years ago, the Supreme Court said, and I quote: "In these days, it is doubtful that any child may reasonably be expected to succeed in life if he is denied the opportunity of an education. Such an opportunity, where the state has undertaken to provide it, is a right which must be made available to all on equal terms." And, of course, recent court decisions have affirmed this position. The committee recognizes that there is a corollary between the doctrine of equal protection under the law and the fundamental right to equality of educational opportunity. Now, does this statement set forth a mandate that opens the door to a welter of demands for making education absolutely equal for every person at every level? Obviously, it does not. The guarantee here is limited, as are all constitutional guarantees, by other factors and freedoms. No right is absolute, and it would be an absurd construction to interpret this guarantee as an absolute guarantee. One of the concrete limitations on this guarantee would be the ability of the state to finance a system of education which guarantees equality; and where the state can show a compelling cause-compelling state interest, such as the preservation of the economic welfare of the state, this would be a limiting factor imposed upon this guarantee. But the committee does wish to take the position that equality of educational opportunity is a fundamental right of all. And the time is long past when the state can afford to promote one standard of education for those who are members of one geographical area or economic or cultural group and a different standard for those who are members of some other geographical area or economic or cultural group within the borders of this state. Mr. President, I urge the adoption of Section 1, subsection 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck, I understand you want to have an amendment. At this point, it looks to me like your amendment goes to the first section, doesn't it?

DELEGATE ECK: Yes, it does, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. May we read your amendment?

DELEGATE ECK: Do you want me to read it, or the clerk?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, the clerk will read it.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 1, page 3, between line 12 and line 13, of the Education and Public Land Majority Proposal, by adding a new paragraph— quote: 'The state recognizes the distinct and unique cultural heritage of the American Indians and is committed to the preservation of their cultural integrity.' Signed: Eck."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The Chair will allow an amendment of Mrs. Eck to add, at line 12, the sentence that you all have before you from her concerning Indian cultural heritage.

Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman and delegates. During one of our very early hearings in the Bill of Rights Committee, there appeared before us two young Indian students representing student groups of the Fort Peck Reservation. They cams asking what we could do, or what the Convention could do, to assure them that they would have the opportunity-and their schools-to study their own culture, perhaps their own language, and to develop a real feeling of pride in themselves for their own heritage and culture, and also a hope that other students all over Montana would recognize the importance and the real dignity of American Indians in the life of Montana.

After that time, our committee, as well as the Education Committee, were visited by a large number of Indians coming with pretty much the same plea. We considered substituting a special article in the Constitution for Article Number II which we have now, which was military reservations. But after a good deal of discussion and talking with Indians and their representatives, it appears that the area that they are most concerned about is that of education. And after consultation with members of the Education Committee, we agreed that we would like to present this amendment to the Education Article. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion?

Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman. As some of you know, I've done a great deal of work with Indians. I think this is possibly the only place that this will appear or that anything about Indians is going to appear in the Constitution. They're a responsible segment of our society, and this should be included, so far as I'm concerned. They care a great deal about it, and they're entitled to have it in here. And my only problem is whether or not this belongs in this particular spot. And if Mrs. Eck would not object and if it does pass, I would consider relocating it somewhere in the Education Article-but that's beside the point. They are entitled to have something in, and this is the thing they care most about, some preservation of their own culture.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman. I rise in support of this motion. Now, the "red cowboys" from down on the Little Big Horn feel that the primary step in being an integral part of our social and economic competition in Montana is education. And I agree with this. I've lived in the area with the Indians all my life. I try to understand how they feel about it. They do feel very strongly that education is a basic necessity. If this isn't the proper place for it, I really don't know where. I would very much like to see it in this article. Thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman. Maybe you all feel like this already. I support this. The only thing that motivates a person, I believe, more than any other thing, for good is the self-image. That would also go for ill as well. And the one thing that any minority group needs-this has been true in all the development of black history in the recent few years of our country, where it has been for good development, and the same thing will hold true for the red man-is this self-image, which has been, in a sense, stomped in the dust. And now we must help him return to the kind of self-image that will give him the proper motivation not only to be an Indian, but to be an American. And I think this little section will help more than any other one thing we have done or probably will do in the writing of this Constitution toward that end.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. President, fellow delegates. I rise in support of this amendment. I perhaps should state my special interests here. I don't have any Indian blood, I am not an Indian, but I was once made an Indian chief. They called me Chief Little Duck. (Laughter) As I left the powwow that day, though, I think I lost it all when one Indian said to another, "It'll never get off the ground." (Laughter) Well, now that I have your attention, these Indians have come before the Education Committee, the Revenue and Finance Committee, the Bill of Rights Committee. Each time, what have they been told? Oh, that belongs-if they come before the Education Committee, they're told that belongs before the Bill of Rights Committee; if they come before the Bill of Rights Committee, they're told that belongs to the Education Committee. And they're sick of it. In other words, this has been a cop-out, and they know it. What we've been doing, then, is pushing them back and forth between the committees in an attempt to get rid of them, and they know it. Robert Gopher-a beautiful name, isn't it?-came before the Finance Committee, I believe it was. Eventually, he came before the Education Committee. And he asked for money for powwows. And some of the people laughed at him. They said, "What's he doing? He's foolish. What's he up here looking for money for powwows for?" Ladies and gentlemen, a powwow is an Indian educational endeavor. That's where they teach their culture. So he knew what he was about. Now, the first time-day I cams to this assembly, I looked around and wondered where were-why there were no Indians here as delegates. Later, as I left that door, I saw four Indian students-young college students from the University of Montana-standing out there against the wall. And I thought to myself, how ironic. Here they are, typically, standing outside the door while the white man makes all the decisions for them inside. Isn't it also ironic to see here today a Frenchman from Boston, without any Indian blood, standing at the Montana Constitutional Convention pleading for the Indians, to preserve their cultural integrity? We like to think of ourselves as a great melting pot where everyone becomes a-quote--"typical American", a homogenized society. We are, in fact, a heterogeneous country, a mixing bowl, made up of a colorful patch full of people with different cultural backgrounds. And each group has contributed and woven into the pattern of American customs from their respective homelands. These people are good Americans, but the emotional tie still remains; the identification with the countries of their origin. The argument has been made that it is not possible to single out one ethnic group as a special group. For our Indian people, it is impossible not to mention them as a special group. The State of Montana is composed of the sovereign State of Montana and five autonomous self-governing Indian nations whose people have a dual citizenship. Every other ethnic group in this country has a country of origin to relate to in their pride of heritage, and we have learned in our schools about their countries. All of us have taken Greek history, Roman history, English history, French history, and so forth. Why not Indian history? The Irish have a national day. Try to deny the Irish in this country or in Butte (Laughter) the celebration of that national day. I hope I can be there next Friday to celebrate it with them. (Laughter) We'd have a revolution on our hands. Why not a Chief Charlo Day, Chief Joseph, Chief Hungry Horse, and so forth? What is the country of origin for our American Indians? It is America. What have the average Americans learned in our schools about our American people? Very little, if not nothing. How many delegates sitting in this assembly could answer these questions? Who were the Indians of the Iroquois nation? Which Indians belonged to the five civilized tribes? Now, those are easy questions. They're eastern questions, but they're easy ones. Which-what happened to them? How about the native tribes? How many of us here can name the native tribes of Montana and tell me about their history and native cultures? We've all heard of George Kaplan, the great painter. Some of his works are to be found around this very Capitol. How many have heard this statement by George Kaplan about the Montana Indians? And I quote: "I love a people who are honest without laws, who have no jails and no poorhouses. I love a people who keep the commandments without ever having read them or heard them preached from the pulpit." Are we to tell the Indian people that their history has no place in our schools? Are we to tell them-the Indian people that their ways, their governments were wrong and that they must accept ours, because ours are better? Or will we help them to retain their ethnic identity and make their adaptation as Americans? If there is ever to be a solution to the Indian problem in this country, it will only come about when our educational system provides the knowledge which is needed to understand. And I agree here with Mr. Harper-Reverend Harper wholeheartedly. It will only come when our educational system provides the knowledge which is needed to understand and respect the cultural difference between us and the state helps to preserve and protect their cultural integrity. This is a matter of pride. All of us are proud of our heritage, whether we be English, Irish, Jewish, or whatever. We are proud because we know about our history, our culture and our integrity--our heritage. Are we now to continue to deny this to these, the first citizens of the State of Montana? Ladies and gentlemen, the Montana Indians are still waiting outside the door. Are you going to answer them?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE OSCAR ANDERSON: I rise in support of this amendment. My grandchildren have an Indian heritage. I am most proud of this heritage that they have. As a third-generation Montanan and American, I think it would be more fitting if the Indians were here to recognize our culture. I support the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman. As a first-generation Montanan, a second-generation American, I am very sorry that there are not more of the Indian people here to hear Rick Champoux's fine speech. Earl Barlow is sitting here, and I'm glad that he is here. But I think from-all the way from the Kootenai to the Powder River, every one of us are anxious to see something put in. I hate to see this put in as an amendment. I agree with Mr. Schiltz. I thought it was to be a separate article, but I wholly support the thinking here. And if we're to develop, as this section says, the full educational potential of each person and to recognize the Indian heritage and dignity, I hope that as Torrey and I support this-and we very seldom are on the same side of anything-but I hope this signifies unanimous support for this amendment,

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does anyone rise in opposition to this amendment?

Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President. I have lived among the Indians practically all of my life. I've had property on Indian reservations. I have many Indian friends. And I have seen the Indian heritage, at one time which was very prominent, go downhill from the participation of white people trying to give them and give them and give them. And you can never give anybody enough to satisfy them. I have many, many Indian friends that I think are as equal to the white person as anybody in this room, but I think they have been exploited. They have been provided for many years with equal educational opportunities. Then, what happened? They go back to their reservation for the simple reason that Uncle Sam provides a shed over them, and they don't go out and institute their initiative. These people want equal educational opportunity. They want to be recognized just the same as you and I do, as equals, and not being set aside. I have a thinking-feeling that this tends to set them aside as different from us, and I don't think they are. I think they're Americans, and I think that they need-needs to be emphasized that they do have the same educational opportunity as anyone else. And if they want to preserve their heritages and their cultures, more power to them. Each one of the races wants to preserve this, but to set them aside in the Constitution as being different, this I can't quite follow the reasoning of. And I don't think this is what the Indian people want. They want to be equal. Now, there is a movement on to teach their language in the schools. In my opinion, this is one way of keeping them in the back door. They have to learn our ways. The young people want to learn our ways, and if they pursue the equal educational facilities and become as well educated, which many of them are, they certainly are just as free to be a constitutional delegate, be a governor, a senator, representative, or hold any other office. All they have to do is cast aside the blanket that we, the white people, have thrown over them and take advantage of their education. Thank you, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you have an amendment here you want read?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I have an amendment to the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. I'll read it, and then you may speak on it. If you'll take Mrs. Eck's amendment before you, on the third line, after the word "committed", Mr. Harbaugh wants an amendment that adds "in its educational goals"—"in its educational goals". So that the sentence would read: "The state recognizes the distinct and unique cultural heritage of the American Indians and is committed, in its educational goals, to the preservation of their cultural integrity."

Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. I hope this is in accord with the intent of the persons who made the amendment. In speaking on the amendment itself, I also would speak in favor of the amendment. I think what Mr. Champoux said is correct, that the Indian people felt-who came to testify before our committees—that they were getting the runaround, that they were getting sent back and forth between one committee and another. And I think it is important, perhaps, to have something like this in here even though, in my interpretation of subsection 1, by granting equal opportunity--when I think of equal opportunity and when I interpret that phrase, to me it means that we recognize the distinctiveness of various groups within our society. And I would have to take very serious issue with Mr. Wilson on this particular thing. I have lived for almost 7 years on the Fort Peck Reservation at Poplar, which is the tribal headquarters for the Sioux and Assiniboine Tribes; and make no mistake, the Indian people are different from us "Wasituse" as they call us. There is a difference. And the fact that our culture for many, many years has failed to recognize the cultural differences has led to some very deep misunderstandings about how we ought to relate ourselves and our society to the Indian people. I'm very much in accord with the idea that the Indian culture aught to be upheld and that it ought to be protected as over against the dominant society. While I feel that, really, this is the intention of the Education Committee's report in setting forth equal educational opportunity, I do not resist the amendment here which makes this specific, and I would speak in favor of it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Harbaugh's additional amendment to add the phrase "in its educational goals" to Mrs. Eck's amendment.

Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROBERT HANSON: Mr. President. I would also like to rise in support of this amendment with Gene Harbaugh's addition to it. I think I have been quoted quite a bit-or it has been-gotten in-it has been in the paper about the Indians, and I would just like to say that I am in-very much in accord with this. And having lived on the reservation over in western Montana for somewhat over 59 years, I think I know some of the problems. And I think that in the last few years, through better education, we're finding many changes that are coming about that are much better. And we considered these things in the Bill of Rights, and I think that we should adopt this amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The issue is on Mr. Harbaugh's amendment.

Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman. I would just like to say that at the University of Montana-in the Department of Indian Affairs, for the last couple of years, they have been in the process of preparing books for Indian children. And they have coordinated-this is not only the Department of Indian Affairs, it's the Art Department, Religious Studies, and Education-and this is a coordinated effort to prepare these books. I've seen two of them, and they are really extraordinary. And I'd like to say that this amendment would certainly assure that this-these books and that continuing-that more books like this will be used. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman. I rise in support of the Harbaugh amendment and the intent of including a phrase on Indian cultures in this particular section. In the Bill of Rights Committee, in our rough draft, we suggested giving recognition to the Indians by, in the Preamble, putting in "the spirit of our Creator". We felt that the natives of this state—this great land had lived for thousands of years in a special relationship with their environment, with their mountains, with their wildlife, and they had a special relationship with the spirit of their unpopular, so we did remove it and it's no longer in the Preamble. I feel that we had many opportunities to hear from many different peoples, and the Indian people did come before our committee and say they wanted this particular provision. Delegate Wilson did not come before this committee, and no one came before the committee saying the Indian people did not want such a provision and such recognition. I don't own a big ranch in eastern Montana, but I have been close to Indian reservations. I think that they want this. I think they have a deep pride which has been crushed. And as a political matter, I think it would be very good for this Convention to put this particular provision in there now, to encourage working within the system and neutralize the red power, young militants in the reservations who want to change Custer's massacre to Sitting Bull's victory. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Reichert.

DELEGATE REICHERT: Mr. Chairman. I rise in support of the amendment. I want to mention that not long ago, the Christian Science Monitor featured an article on our Constitutional Convention. They mentioned very few issues, but they spent the major portion of that article on the Indian situation in this state. They were speculating whether Indians would be mentioned in our Constitution. I firmly support this amendment, and I hope we will almost have unanimity.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President. I support the amendment to the amendment, and the amendment. Through the years, we have given the Indians a great many things that didn't prove to be too good for the Indians. We gave them treaties which we later broke. We gave them discrimination, in the guise of such great statements as "the only good Indian is a dead Indian". We gave them social diseases. We gave them smallpox-infected blankets so we could reduce their surplus population. We gave them alcohol. We gave them a religion which we didn't live up to ourselves and we gave them massacres, such as at Washita and at Wounded Knee. Now, the Indians have appeared before our committees at this Convention and they have asked for these-or this inclusion in our Constitution. And I think-I certainly agree with Mr. Harbaugh. The Indians in Montana are different than any other group that came in here. They were here first; they owned it; and we took it all from them. And I think this is the CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, the Chair would like to point out that you can all get on the record on this when we vote. But if you have to make a speech, stand up.

Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Chairman. I rise in support of the amendment and of the original motion. I should point out a special interest. My law partner, Jean Turnage, and I are counsel for the Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation. However, I speak not as their counsel, but as their friend. Michelle Robinson will understand when I urge to this Convention that it would be a serious error of omission if we failed to include specific recognition of the cultural heritage of our American Indians. And I strongly support the motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Pemberton.

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: Thank you very much. I don't speak very often, but when I do, I'm really sincere about it. Three years ago, I was General Chairman of a National Presswomen's Convention in Billings, Montana. At this time, one of the greatest things we did was to introduce our women of the press across the whole United States to two of the great Indian tribes in the State of Montana. And we were able, through other friends, to take them to Crow Agency and to Custer's Battlefield. I don't believe it either--occurred to either of the two delegates from District Number 1, Torrey Johnson and myself, that we were set apart from anyone else within our area. And I know that our friends on both of these reservations would expect us to be representing them and supporting this amendment, which I do wholeheartedly. They didn't approach us. They didn't approach me in any way. They just took it for granted that I would be part of their own delegation. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Just one brief point, sir, if I may. Mr. Harbaugh, when you use the word "goals", do you intend that to mean for the future? There can be that connotation. I would suggest perhaps that we use the word "endeavors", if it would be all right with you, sir. Thank YOU.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman, may I respond?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I used the word "goals" because I think that this ties the statement in with the goals which are set forth in subsection 1. And since this is going to be included in the Education Article, it would seem to me to be appropriate to use the word "goals" and to relate back to the goals which are mentioned-the broad goals for education-in subsection 1.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue—

Mr. Wilson, do you want to speak on the amendment?

DELEGATE WILSON: I just wanted to make my position pretty clear.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay.

DELEGATE WILSON: I'm not against setting up something for the Indians. The thing that I am against is setting them aside, or making a different type of education for the Indians. I merely want them equal. I want them to have the same equal status as the white people. I don't want to set up a different educational system for the Indians and the white people. I want them to be the same.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Wilson said that he thought they were Americans. Well, I know they're Americans, and they know they're Americans. Last week I attended the Indian Education Conference at the Jefferson School. And I talked to many of their representatives there, and I was there long enough to hear Mr. Harold Gray from the University of Montana, a very fine representative of their people, speak on this very thing. And I think the people there were all unanimous in their endorsement of a recognition in our Constitution. And I think we've been rationalizing and evading them too long and avoiding our responsibility too long. I speak in behalf of the amendment and the amendment to the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Harbaugh's amendment that we add the phrase "in its educational goals" to Mrs. Eck's amendment, so that it reads: "The state would be committed in its educational goals to the preservation of cultural integrity." So many as shall be in favor of that amendment, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's adopted. Very well. The issue is now on Mrs. Eck's amendment, that the state recognizes the distinct and unique cultural heritage of the American Indians and is committed in its educational goals to the preservation of their cultural integrity. So many as want to add that to Section l-subsection l-of the Educational Article-yes, we'll have a roll call-may indicate so by voting Aye on the voting machines; and opposed may vote No. Have all the delegates voted?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate wish to change his vote?

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 83 delegates voting Aye, 1 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 83 having voted Aye and only 1 No, that motion passes. Is there other discussion of Section 1, sub. 1?

Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman—President, I have an amendment up there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It appears to the Chair that your amendment goes to Section 1, sub. 2, Mr. Martin. They've made a sub. 1 and a sub. 2 of those paragraphs.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Oh, I'm sorry.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'll call on you. Are there other amendments or discussion to sub. 1? That's the first paragraph-Oh--up from lines 7 to 12, plus the new material.

Mr. Nutting.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Harbaugh yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I yield.

DELEGATE NUTTING: 'The three words "full educational potential"-conceivably, could that mean kindergarten for every child in the State of Montana? Adult education for every person in Montana? Vo-tech for every person in Montana?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Yes, it is conceivable that it could mean that. It's inconceivable to me, however, that the Legislature would ever authorize that sort of thing, because, as I stated in my introductory remarks, this would probably break the State of Montana. That would be in my estimation, a compelling state interest and would be completely wrong, I think, and a misconstruction of the broad, goal-oriented statement that we're making here, to look at that in this way.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Nutting.

DELEGATE NUTTING: When you look at Section 1 and Section 2 and take them together-I know we make different statements on the floor, but still to read these two sections, I can't read them any other way but that the full educational potential of each person shall be developed. And in the last line, it shall be the duty of the Legislature to fully fund. So I-the statements we're making here on the floor and the statements that we-that I read on the page don't seem to be consistent.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: One of the reasons-the basic reason that I moved to amend this section to subsections is precisely for the reason that Mr. Nutting has pointed out. We are setting forth, in subsection 1, basically a broad philosophy of education. We're trying to lay out the goals of education. In subsection 2, which we will come to next, we're going to talk about the mandate-in other words, the implementation of those goals. And I think that you have to make this distinction, that the one is a goal; that the second is the mandate.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion? If not, the question arises on the issue of the adoption of Section—

Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: I think that a portion of my amendment to this section is in 1, the word "full".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, it may be. Your amendment says at line 13, and the word "full" doesn't appear on line 13. So if you'll tell me what you're talking about on line 10—

DELEGATE MARTIN: Thirteen of page 8.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Oh, well, just a moment. Very well. Mr. Martin, would you like us to read your amendment?

DELEGATE MARTIN: Yes, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin has an amendment. Will the clerk please read the first amendment to Mr. Martin's, because the second one applies to the second paragraph.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 1, page 8, of the Education and Public Lands Committee Proposal Number 10 as follows: At line 13, page 8, by deleting the word 'full'. Signed: Martin."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin would delete the word "full", so that the sentence reads, "provide for the establishment of a system of education which will develop the educational potential" rather than "the full educational potential".

Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. President. I find it nice to find, in the adoption of the amendment that was just made-to be on the popular side. And I must state a special interest. At one time, I was made a member of the Flathead Tribe. In talking about this amendment, I'd like to refer, if I may, to-or first of all, I'd like to extend my appreciation to the work of the Education Committee for the work that they did in preparing this article. I think it has some great potential and good for education. But I think that-there were some references made to some special interests that people had, and that was in the-an article which appeared in the Tribune this morning which indicated that anyone who would be in opposition to the committee would recognize—would represent some special interest. And particularly singled out was the Montana School Boards Association. At the moment, I might say that I am not a member of the Montana School Boards Association; I'm not a member of the Montana Education Association; I'm not a member of the Montana Board of Administrative School Officers. I only have a deep and sincere and abiding interest in the educational process. I think that Mr. Gardiner last night emphasized two points; the right to know and the right to have a say. And then he turned around and said, "It's time to open the doors and give the country back to the people." Throughout this article, I think there is an effort to centralize education, and I think that we should go back and review a little bit of the history. And I'm only sorry today that a man who I think was a pioneer in the promotion of educational opportunity for Montanans isn't here this afternoon, and that's Paul Harlow. Because Paul Harlow and some others were responsible for the development of the foundation program in the State of Montana. They sought and saw the opportunity to provide educational opportunity for the young people of Montana. But most of all, they took off the wraps so that the teaching profession of the State of Montana could participate in government. And I think it's a credit to the-this Convention that we have so many educators who are taking part in this. And most of all, I think it's to the credit of Montana that the educators at the State University units, as well as the educators in the schools, have taken off their wraps and buried their notions that they couldn't participate in government because that wasn't the thing for teachers to do. They were supposed to be nonpartisan, nonpolitical and shouldn't even have a chance to say. So we have provided an educational opportunity for not only the youngsters of the state, but the teachers and the people who participate in education, to participate and contribute to good government. Now, when we're talking about the full educational development, we're writing a check that would be hard to deliver, and that has been evidenced by the fact that the foundation program, since it's adoption, has never been able to fully fulfill the obligations that it started. So I think that before we write into the Constitution the idea of "full", we better take a good look at this proposition. I hope that my amendment to this section prevails.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, members of the Convention. I would like to speak in opposition to the motion to delete the word "full". I suspect that the-there's been a kind of a misunderstanding here of the problem. Certainly the inclusion of the word "full" does not command an unlimited expansion of the field of education. What it does-it does not foist upon us an artificial limitation of the field of education. So that—unlike the former Constitution that said we had to start only at this age and only go to that age or only this type of education or that type of education, the inclusion of the word "full" allows us to develop the education of Montana to its top potential in capacity. Therefore, I don't see the danger that Mr. Martin sees in the words.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Being the Chairman of the committee, I'd like to speak very briefly to this, if I may. Mr. Martin, of course, is a scholar of the English language and-(Inaudible). And actually, I think the thing we ought to be looking at, Fred, is the term "goals". And also, if we take out-what is the educational potential? I mean, can we ever measure it? Is it from 5 to a hundred and two? And if we take out "full", how much does that do for clarification? We still have educational potential as a goal. So this is the argument-I'm not quibbling over it, but I don't see any point in taking it out.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. I feel that the comments that Mr. Martin made may be of a legitimate concern, but not at this point. As I explained in my other remarks and as Mr. Champoux has just stated, we're talking here about a broad statement of philosophy. Now, we're not talking about the financing of the school system, which you referred to, Mr. Martin. And I would resist the amendment. I think that "full" is a modifier here of the educational potential, and to remove it, I think, would not do anything really to change the impact or the intent of this section. I would resist the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The question is—

Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Just as one other member of the Education Committee, Mr. Chairman, I would say I hope the word "full" remains. It would be like striking "liberty" from "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." It is a goal, and we'll hope to work toward it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The question arises on Mr. Martin's motion to delete the word "full" from line 10, on page 3, of Section 1. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Noes have it. Very well. Is there other discussion of Section 1?

Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. President. Will Mr. Champoux yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I will.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Rick, in the— we've divided Section 1, now, into two sections, after Mrs. Eck's amendment and the other amendments. Now, should the-at-on line 10, at the end of the line, a person should—

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: What page are you on, sir, please?

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: On page 3.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: At the end of line 10?

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: On the end of line 10, where you have a period-on "person". Should "in the public school system" not be added here, inasmuch as these two sections are divided now?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I'd defer that to Mr. Harbaugh, since he has this section.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: And also after "opportunity" on line 11, "in the public school". Mr. Harbaugh.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Let me see if I understand your question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh, the sense of his question is whether he doesn't want to limit the language in the first paragraph to "in the public schools".

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: "Shall be guaranteed to each person in the public schools?"

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: On line 10, it says "develop the full educational potential of each person." Shouldn't the words "in the public school system" be added there, inasmuch as we've divided this section into two parts?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. In response to that, I thinknot. I think thatif you would turn to the comments on page 9, here are some comments in regard to what we mean by this sentence. "It shall be the goal of the people of Montana to provide for the establishment of a system of education which will develop the full educational potential of each person." And here we state that learning is a gradual process--or gradually being recognized as a process which extends throughout life. And that-as we all know, there are being developed, across the nation and in our own state, many educational opportunities for adults, for people of various age groups. I think that in my opening remarks, when I spoke about a new philosophy of education-I think one of the things that we need to recognize is that education is no longer thought of just in terms of very narrow boundaries of certain age limits and, in looking at the goal ofeducation, thatwe want to realize that education is a continuing process. And many older people today are taking-are availing themselves of the opportunity to take courses and this sort of thing which, perhaps, they could not take when they were young. And to the extent that the state is able to provide this, we would like to make it a goal of the state to do this.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Will you yield to one more question?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Yes, I yield.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: But now, does this refer to the fact that aid to private schools could come under this?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. No, this has no reference to that, at least in my mind, whatsoever.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue arises that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1, sub. 1, as amended, that it recommend that this section shall be adopted. So many as shall be in favor of this motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Sub. 1 is adopt-

CLERK HANSON: 'Section 1, subsection 2. The Legislature shall provide for a system of high-quality, free public elementary and secondary schools. The Legislature may also provide for other educational institutions, public libraries and educational programs as are deemed desirable. It shall be the duty of the Legislature to provide by taxation or other means and to distribute in an equitable manner funds sufficient to insure full funding of the public elementary and secondary school system." Mr. Chairman, subsection 2.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 1, subsection 2, of the Education and Public Lands proposal, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: This subsection is the mandate for implementing the establishment of our educational system within the state. And in this respect, as I noted earlier, it is similar to Sections 1 and 6 of our present Constitution. We might note here that the courts have construed the present Sections 1 and 6 not as a limitation on the Legislature, but as a mandate to the Legislature. And this section states that the Legislature shall provide for a system of high-quality, free public elementary and secondary schools. What do we mean by the words "high-quality?" They've been used as an instruction here to the Legislature to provide not just a minimum education system, a substandard system, but one that meets a contemporary need and is capable of producing well-informed citizens. Now, the committee recognizes that changing systems of financing the public school system are in the direction of providing equality of education and that this could lead to a reduction of the kind of education that we have. In other words, we recognize that, if in the future it is required that education be equalized across the districts, that this could jeopardize the quality of education, and we would not want to see this happen. And this is what we wish to safeguard against. And, therefore, we stressed in this Legislative mandate that the state shall provide a high-quality system of education. Now again, I'd like to point out that this is not untried ground that recently adopted, states-and I quote: "The state shall provide for an efficient system of high-quality educational institutions and services". There are possibly some other words here that need explanation-the word "free". By the word "free" in subsection 2, it is understood by the committee to mean that those aspects of the elementary and secondary education which are essential to courses required by the schools for graduation shall be free of cost to the student. The words "public elementary and secondary" replace, in this article, the term "common schools", which was contained in the old Constitution-in the present Constitution. We feel that this is more precise. The term "common schools", back in 1889, referred primarily to the elementary school system. And also, we want to make it clear, by using the terms "public elementary and secondary", that the word "free" does not apply to all aspects of the educational system but that it applies to the basic education which the state is mandated to fund. In the second sentence ofsubsection 2, we've given a broad grant of power to the Legislature to provide for additional educational institutions and programs which it deems desirable. And according to the court interpretations of the present Article XI, Section 1, this right already rests with the Legislative Assembly under our present Constitution. So this is nothing new that is being added here. The last sentence of subsection 2 is directed toward the financing of the school system. Now, a great deal has been said about the Serrano-Priest case and other decisions across the land affecting the financing of the public school system. In analyzing our Montana finance structure, the committee found that there is great disparity between the level of school financing among the various districts of the state. This isn't something that has just come to our attention. For several years, across the nation, there has been a nationwide study being conducted on methods of financing public education. One of our members, Mrs. Cain, as probably most of you know, attended a meeting in Denver at her own expense, during the course of this Convention, to attend a meeting which solidified the results of several years of study on this very question. And whether the Supreme Court of the land rules on this matter or not seems to me to be beside the point. It's our feeling that the state should make every effort to insure that insofar as it is possible, equality of financial expenditures for schoolchildren of our state is implemented. Now, in the last sentence of subsection 2, we simply provide the means whereby this may be done. The Legislature is to provide, by taxation or other means, and to distribute in an equitable manner funds for the funding of our school system. Now, I'd like to point out here that the language that we've incorporated here is very close to that of Section 6—that we have incorporated some of the language of Section 6 in this last statement. Clearly, the existing school foundation program does not meet the aims of equalizing educational burdens and benefits. A most recent study of our foundation program shows that the expenditures by the state actually subsidize districts that are wealthy more than they do districts that are poor and that, in fact, the foundation program aggravates factors which tend to make the level of education dependent on the wealth of the district. We use the term "full funding". What does this mean? Well, it means that the state will insure the funding of a basic minimum program. After the state has assessed the needs and established what a minimum program ought to be, we feel that the state ought then to provide, by whatever means it sees fit, for the funding of that program. And if we fail to do this, if we fail to provide even the minimum that we establish, then we fall far short of the goal that ought to be ours in education. The full funding requirement here will substitute equity and rationality for the confusion and for the inequities that have often plagued school financing in the past. And it will also do one other thing that I think is very important: it will free the local school boards from a preoccupation with matters of finance, so that they can focus on the real issue of education in our local communities. Mr. Chairman, I move the adoption of subsection 2.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President. I move to amend subsection 2 of Section 1 by adding, in front of the word "system" on line 13, page 3, the word "basic"; and in front of the word "public" on line 20, page 3, the word "basic". Did you find that, Mr. President?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, I find it. I don't know why I didn't have it up here. The Chair will allow it, but I do wish if you're going to make amendments on these things, you should have thought about them, unless there's something that comes up in debate. But I'll allow it.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President. The explanation gave by the committee, through Mr. Harbaugh, shows that it is in-the intention of the committee that the Legislature shall be required to fund a basic system of quality education. This is carried out by their comments as shown on page 12, where they say "the fundamental principle established, however, is that every child should have approximately the same opportunity to receive an adequate basic education." On line 17, they again say they wish to "insure the quality-insure the existence of a quality-basic educational system." On page 14 of their comments, they again say, on lines 4 through 7: "Once the needs for a basic quality system of elementary and secondary schools have been realistically assessed, the state has the obligation to guarantee that this minimum basic program be fully funded." I am a former member of the Montana School Boards Association. I was its President back in 1952. I, along with Paul Harlow and many other dedicated citizens--at least, I think I was dedicated, and I'm sure Paul was-worked long and hard in developing the foundation program of education. At that time, it was called to our attention by educators that Section 1 of Article XI of the Constitution provided that it shall be the duty of the Legislative Assembly of Montana to establish and maintain a general uniform and thorough system of public free common schools. And it was argued, not without merit, that it was the duty of the Legislature under our original Constitution to fund the common schools. But we made the objectives so high that the Legislature, nor nobody else, paid any attention to that mandate. I think that the comments as made by the committee, which clarify the fact that they do, in fact, intend to require only a basic educational program system, is good. But the comments are not before the people of Montana. And as they vote on this, I think they should be told that it is the intention of those on the committee, in their very fine draft, to require the educational-to require the Legislature to do full funding of a basic educational program and that the frills and the things beyond the basic program, as the Legislature determines it, can still remain with the people. And for this reason, I urge your support of the addition of these words to Section 2.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Mr. President, will Mr. Davis yield?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis?

DELEGATE DAVIS: I yield, Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: You were on the-this committee, were you not?

DELEGATE DAVIS: I had theprivilegeof serving on this committee, yes, thank you.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: The last sentence of subsection 2, does that require the Legislature to put the Serrano versus Priest doctrine in at this time?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Well, let me read it. "It shall be the duty of the Legislature to provide, by taxation or otherwise, and to distribute in an equitable manner funds sufficient to insure full funding of the basic public elementary and secondary school system." It is my opinion, Mr. McDonough, it does not require us to put the Serrano versus Priest doctrine, whatever it is, in at this time. It seems to me that this section-the intent behind this section--was to provide for full funding of the foundation program. When I campaigned in my area, we found that one of the big problems we had was the lack of full funding of the foundation program. They had to come back in and have these various mill levies; and the first time in the history of our county, I think, we had to have three votes. So the intent there was to require the state to establish a priority for education that would make a full funding of the basic primary and elementary-secondary education programs, fully funded as a high state priority. Then, if they ran out of money at the other end, they'd have to cut their budget someplace else instead of cutting it on education each time and coming up with 90 percent or 85 percent and gradually downward, which causes us to increase our property tax levy and cause us a lot of difficulty on the local school level. Does that answer your question?

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: No, it does not, but I don't know if we can even answer it. I think—

DELEGATE DAVIS: It's my opinion, Mr. McDonough, it does not require us to put the Serrano versus Priest doctrine in at this time. They can go ahead with their foundation program; and hopefully the full funding really doesn't add anything to our present Constitution, where it says they will maintain a system. But it may be stronger language: we hope it is.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Thank you, Mr. Davis.

Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: I object to a number of words in this paragraph. I object to the words "high" and "quality". I object to the words "equitable manner". I object to the words "full funding". What it does, I think-we get back to a basic point I've made before; this is a mandate to the Legislature. We're no longer on goals; we're no longer on preamble. We're on a mandate to the Legislature to do a certain thing, and we get back to Mr. Brazier's talk of the other day that when you use these type of adjectives-in an equitable manner-that you're actually-you may be leaving it to the Supreme Court to decide what is "high quality"; what is distribution in an "equitable manner"; and what is "full funding" of the educational program? Now, that should be left with the Legislature and the Legislature only, and nobody else. They're the representatives of the people up here to decide fiscal matters, not the Supreme Court of Montana and not anybody else. It's the Legislature that has this power, and the Legislature should have it. And I'd like to make a motion, as a substitute for all other motions, thatwe strike the last two sentences in this subsection.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a moment. Mr. McDonough has made a motion to strike the last two sentences of subsection 2. That's the sentence, "The Legislature may also provide for other educational institutions, public libraries and educational programs as aredeemed desirable, and it shall be the duty of the Legislature to provide, by taxation or other means, and distribute in an equitable manner funds sufficient to insure full funding of the public elementary and secondary school system." Mr. McDonough, before I give you the floor, I'd like to point out that Mr. Martin does have an amendment coming in to strike the word "high" and the sentence that you're leaving there, so that may be of interest to you. Mr. McDonough has an amendment to strike the last two sentences of this section in their entirety, to delete them.

Mr. McDonough.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Mr. President. I think we're back again on specifics and details and what's constitutional and what's for good intents and purposes and what's legislative. Actually, the Legislature has all the power to do what it said in those two last sentences. And I'm sure they will, and I have full confidence that they will. There's going to be problems from time to time, but if you leave them in as they are now worded, you're going to have more problems of constitutional-legal construction on any lawsuits relative to the application of these last two sentences. I think it's certainly sufficient in a constitution to direct the Legislature to provide for a quality, free public elementary and secondary schools. And really, it doesn't have to say any more than that; and when you get more detail than that, you're just opening the door to various constructions, and so forth. That's all they have to do. If we have confidence in the people of this state to elect a Legislature that should represent them, then I don't think we have to say any more than this in this subsection. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. I would rise in opposition to this motion to delete. It seems to me that this effectively strips the intent of all that we have said in the goals; that it strips the intent of the Education Article. I wonder if the Legislature in the past-if we look at history, I wonder how Mr. McDonough can say that he has confidence in the work of the Legislature in the past, when we think in terms of what has happened to the funding of education and, in particular, in the funding of the school foundation program by the Legislature over the past years. I don't share that confidence. Education has taken a back seat long enough in this state. Always when we come down to the end of the session, education takes what's left over after all of the other programs have been funded. And I think by putting in the Constitution a mandate which says that we will establish a basic program, and that the state will fund that program, is very essential. These last two sentences are no more statutory than the sentences which are contained in the present Section 6. If you look at the present Section 6, you will find that it says it is the duty of the Legislative Assembly to provide, by taxation or otherwise, sufficient means in connection with the amount received from the general school fund to maintain a public, free common school in each organized district in the state for at least 3 months in each year. Now, this isn't nearly as statutory, it isn't nearly as specific as that is. And on the one hand, he argues that we're being too specific; and on the other hand, he argues that we are inviting court tests. It seems to me that this is an inconsistency in the argument, and I would speak against deleting these two lines-two sentences—from the report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Speer.

DELEGATE SPEER: I rise to object to Mr. McDonough's amendment because he would include in the deletion the second sentence, "The Legislature may also provide for other educational institutions, public libraries and the education-and educational programs as deemed desirable." I want to remind the delegates that this is the first time that there has been any constitutional recognition of public libraries as a part of the educational process in this state. It does not mandate the Legislature to provide for a public educational system, but I do think that it is of great value and it will strengthen the public library system in the state to include this second sentence in subsection 2 of Section 1.

(Committee of the Whole chairmanship assumed by Mr. Aasheim)

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Habedank, you have the floor.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I resist Mr. McDonough's motion to delete. I would again call to your attention what was provided by Section 6, which Mr. Harbaugh read to you, and Section 1, which I previously read to you, where the Legislature was mandated to do this and it saw fit not to do it for many years. We attempted to bring this into fruition through this foundation program, but the Legislature was never in a position to adequately fund it. Back in the years about 1952, a constitutional amendment was submitted to the Legislature, which did not make it through the Legislature, to the effect that it would be their duty to fund this-fund the state's share of the foundation program 100 percent. If you carry out Mr. McDonough's motion to delete, you are putting the thing right back in the situation where there is no teeth in this thing whatsoever, and I think it is time that the children of Montana have a right to have taxes levied where the property is and spent where the child is for a basic-and again, I want to go back to my motion-a basic system of public education as determined by the Legislature.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Harrington.

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. I rise to oppose the amendment to delete the words. Now, all through the committee's deliberations, we came up with the word "equitable". Were we providing an equitable education in Montana? And this was due to the fact that possibly we, in Montana, might face a court case similar to that of California. Now, for some of the delegates who do not understand exactly what the Serrano-Priest case-1 would like to go over exactly what it was. Now, the California Supreme Court finding on property taxes as the basis for support of education has generated considerable turmoil and a "back of the drawing boards" attitude on the part of the Legislature and many school people. Here is some background on the findings prepared by Gordon Winston of Sacramento Legislative Office. "Serrano versus Priest, the now-historic case involving school finance in California, began when the Western Center on Law and Poverty, a group of attorneys from UCLA, USC and Loyola Law School in Los Angeles, filed a suit in Superior Court of Los Angeles in August 1968 alleging that the scheme of financing public schools in California did not meet the test of equitable protection guarantees of the 14th Amendment of the United States Constitution and that the scheme was also a violation of equal protection clauses of the Constitution of the State of California. The defendants, various states, and Los Angeles County school and tax officials, represented by the State Attorney General's office, filed a demurrer to the complaint that was sustained by the court. A demurrer is a legal pleading which says, in effect, assuming everything you say in your complaint is true, so what? The court then gave the plaintiffs permission to amend their complaint to try the state legal cause of action. The defendants failed to amend the complaint, and the court issued an order of dismissal of the lawsuit. It was this order of the dismissal which appealed to the California Supreme Court and let the decision of Serrano-Priest. The theory of the plaintiffs' case was based upon the contention that under the system of financing public education in California, the quality of public education varied from district to district because of the accident of the amount assessed wealth, location of commerce and industry with the district. The 14th Amendment of the United States Constitution provides, in part, that no state shall deny any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of law. The attorneys for the plaintiffs in there arguing the case before the Supreme Court stated the proposition: a quality public education may not be the function of wealth other than the wealth of the state as a whole. As we went through this case, we found that Montana also would fall into this case with our type of funding of the public education system. And in making these statements, I feel that we will reach the point to possibly fund the program-the public education in a more equitable manner. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. President, fellow delegates. I suppose I have to reveal that I have been in education for some 23 years and have been on any number of special meetings of planning where, you know, education is going to be in the next 50 years, hundred years and that sort of thing. It's a very interesting subject, but oneofthe things they tell us in those meetings is the fact that our schools as we know today may be our minor way of carrying on the challenge of education in the coming years. The little red schoolhouse may graduate into all sorts of other forms. One of the strengths of these last two sentences in this article is the fact that it does not lock in education in schools as being completely coterminous, that education program in the state might well have to be much more than just our schools. In planning for the future, it would be unrealistic to let those sentences go.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mrs. Warden.

DELEGATE WARDEN: Mr. President. I would just like to say that there has been little talk of libraries in this Convention, and I have long been interested in libraries, so I'll have to reveal my vested interest. I am not a librarian as an official librarian, but I am interested in libraries. I think there is a place in this article for libraries. I think that the education that people can get in future years can come in a large part from the public library. It is the only place in the community that has the past, present, and the things of the future. I think that before we think about deleting this second sentence particularly, that we should consider the fact that libraries are important. They are the education--an educational field for many, many people who do not go back to adult education or other forms of school. You have many people that are currently using libraries to help retrain themselves in different jobs. This is a vital thing, and I would hope you would think long and hard before you delete the word "public libraries" from this Educational Article.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman. It isn't very often that I have a chance to resist my good friend, Delegate McDonough, in favor of Mr. Habedank on his basic idea. I stand here as a vested-interest person, as an instructor in adult basic education with School District Number 2, Billings, for the past 6 years. And I would hate to see stricken from this article the words "educational programs as are deemed desirable". If I could shift the camera in the opposite direction, you see before you, fellow delegates, a former student of mine who came crawling into our classroom literally on his hands and knees. He was a victim of an oilfield accident and paralyzed for 3 months. Without a high school education, he could go nowhere. And now, as a result of a program that was adopted by School District Number 2, Roger Stowakin is putting the camera on me and it should be on him. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I rise in opposition to my good friend Swede's motion. I wholeheartedly agree with Mr. Habedank's comments. I think, Swede, maybe we're missing something here. When we talk about equitable, we're talking about something that's equal, but notice the word "manner". Notice the word "manner". Now, what we're talking about here is the-it's M-A-N-N-E-R. By the way, if you look at the present method of distribution, which is the census method, that is an inequitable manner. And the proof of that is right here in this book. A study-it's called A Study Of Basic Educational Programs Funding Methodology in Montana, and I'm sure you're familiar with it. It's the study that was made by Mr. Mike Billings, Superintendent of Public Instruction Colberg's office. Now, in here, there is absolute proof that the method of distribution presently is inequitable. As a matter of fact, the variance is 10,000 to 1. And this is what I mentioned last Saturday when I said that we have evidence that a Serrano case decision could be won tomorrow. And I think you'd agree with me on this, wouldn't you? Not only that, but the study shows that wealthier elementary school districts tend to spend more-they receive more state aid per pupil in support of these programs. Now, my question is, "Why?" And I'll tell you why. It's because the manner of distribution has been inequitable, and that's why we changed it. Now to go on to the second point. If you'll look at this business of full funding, it has been developed that actually the Legislature--even though the mandate is in the present Constitution, they have not fully funded the program. Why? Because they know that whatever is needed back home, some of it can be picked up by the permissive county levy, so they can cop out if they want to. And that's exactly what's happened. So I'm against the amendment. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman. I seem to find some inconsistencies here myself, Mr. Harbaugh. In your explanation of full funding, I understood you to say you only meant full funding of a basic minimum program. But in this same subsection, it says "a high-quality" program. Now surely, I would like to have the Legislature full-fund it, but it seems to me there'd be quite a difference if you're going to full-fund a basic program or if you're going to full-fund a high-quality. And I don't know how much difference in money that would be, but to me, it's inconsistent to have this in there. Now, I realize there's an amendment there that would change it to "basic", but that hasn't passed yet. So at the moment, I can't help but think that we are inconsistent when we say we want to full-fund a basic program, but in the same sentence, we require a high-quality. And in defending the Legislature, which I've been a member of, I don't think they ever didn't want to; they just didn't have the money. And I still say if they're going to full-fund on an equal basis, we better not start right at the top. If you're really going to be realistic and find out if we can full-fund it, I don't think we can go right to the top right away. You're going to have to let them grow a little bit, I think.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: A point of order, Mr. Chairman. I think that's not within the section that we're debating.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: What is your point, Mr. Harbaugh?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Well, we're debating the deletion of the last two sentences and those remarks, while I will respond to those later, but I think they're not within the section we're debating now.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman, the section is to delete the two sentences. And I figure if we're going to be consistent, you can't have all three sentences in there. So that would be my reason for debating in that manner.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Well, in that case, I'll respond. The-I don't feel there is any inconsistency, I would disagree with you very much, Mr. Rygg, that there is an inconsistency. If we do not finance a high-quality basic education, then what do we finance? A low-quality basic education? I feel that we have a high quality of education in Montana at present. And I think that this in no way reflects the fact that we are going to do something that sets a standard which is extreme, which is far beyond what we have at present. I think that all we are saying here, simply, is that we want to be sure that as we assess the educational needs of the state, that we set forth a realistic standard that is high in quality of what our children and youth ought to be getting. And then, that we fund-that we see to it that the state funds-in some manner. And we don't know at this time what that manner of funding will be, but that-but we do want to insure that in some manner that the state does fund at least this basic program. And I am in concurrence with the word-the amendment which Mr. Habedank has proposed. I don't see any inconsistency here.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Mr. Chairman. I'm also on the Board of Education, and I rise in opposition to deleting the last two sentences. If you go back a number of years, the Legislature started out on a foundation program appropriating around-in the neighborhood of 80,85 percent. What did they do to us 2 years ago? They dropped to 66 percent. And if-1 think I'm not mistaken, if you want to get the right-correct figure, I think it's around 65 percent again this year, or 66. What does this do? It throws all the burden back onto the districts and the property owners. This is a very hard thing to say, but what I mean-this is one way that the property owners of Montana have—one way of saying no to the Legislature. And what are they doing? Voting down our special levies for our elementary and secondary schools. And if you think for one moment that we had trouble last year, I want to warn you, we're in serious trouble this year. Because I know of a lot of districts that are going to be in serious trouble for funding their schools to operate next year. And why? Because the Legislature leaves that foundation program the very last thing to provide for in providing for our school system, and it is wrong. I don't think if you will ever give the Legislature the power to do-to take care of our schools, they will never do it any more than what they have done in the past. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Chairman. I, too, am a member of the Education Committee, and I'm not a teacher, and I didn't even learn too much there at times; but a lot of effort was made on this. I think possibly Mr. McDonough's motion was partially made as a result of maybe a very poor answer I gave to him on his question about whether this dealt with Serrano, and also possibly because of my Delegate Proposal 68 which I had proposed-that, you may have noticed, at the back of your book, "that the Legislative Assembly of Montana shall establish and maintain a general, uniform, thorough and equitable system of public free common schools, open to all persons, as provided by law". This was not adopted by our committee, and that's not the reason I have the only negative vote cast against this in the back of the book. I am for the full funding. I do-there's just no way that I could not concede, as an attorney, Mr. McDonough, that the second sentence that says the Legislature may also provide for educational institutions, public libraries and educational programs as are deemed desirable-there's no way I could say anything-but that's statutory, because they have that authority whether it's in there or not. They've implemented that, starting with vo-techs and community colleges, and the great system of education we now have in Montana that's expanded from those few words in our 1889 Constitution. I do-so I could not argue with you as to the second sentence. It was a bow, in a sense, to the public libraries, which we're all for, and they were incorporated, and it was placed as the Legislature deemed desirable. Also, at the time I voted against this particular sentence, it was early, when we were more purists than we were now, when we had some constitutional thoughts of what should and should not go in a constitution. We've deviated quite a bit at this time, so I don't even object to that sentence. I do think the last sentence would have a lot to do with Serrano if it were tried in Montana. I have a basic thing-if taxation is equitably derived and equitably distributed, we will meet the test regardless of what formula we come up with. And I think if we can go with the basic system of education--and I can't speak for all the committee, I can certainly speak for myself-when we pass this section, which I voted to pass and with the majority on this, it incorporated the language. And Mr. Harbaugh has testified to the language here that he means a basic system. And I think we need a basic system, and I think the full funding is very important. And it seems to me that we're doing exactly the same thing you did here that you did, and we're consistent with your action in Revenue and Finance in taking off the 2-mill levy and leaving it open so there could be funding for this very purpose. Now, if you took the 2-mill levy off in Revenue and Finance for anything other than education, then I sure hope we can consider that later on again. So I would oppose the deletion of the last sentence in this and support some amendments as they come along. And I think we'll still have a pretty good section here.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Mr. Chairman. I rise in opposition to deleting the last two sentences of this article as proposed by Delegate McDonough. I'm afraid that if we do this, this may be an indication to the Legislature that we're not interested in full funding of the school program. I think that even though we may not get full funding all the time, that by leaving this language in, it at least is an indication that we would like to have full funding. I also-while I'm up, I want to also support Delegate Habedank's amendment to insert the word "basic". I think that that way, the Legislature then would be on-we'd go on record as notifying them that we expected them to fully fund a basic education system.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman. I wanted to simply refer, I think-and I'm speaking against the deletion of the two sentences as a member of the Education Committee. I wanted to refer to the report of the Revenue and Taxation Committee, on page 6, which Mr. McDonough has signed, and simply underscore what our fine lawyer member of our committee, Carl Davis, has just said. I'll read from that page 6 of their report, beginning with line 11: "The committee has heard conflicting testimony on the Serrano case and its application to the Montana situation, but the overwhelming weight of the evidence indicates its applicability. The committee simply had to face the possibility that Montana may have to levy a statewide property tax for educational purposes. That possibility was strengthened by the acceptance of the Serrano doctrine in Texas, Minnesota and New Jersey." I would simply say you have faced it there and done what you had to. We faced it here and did what we feel we had to.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: I wonder if Mr. McDonough will yield to a question, please.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. McDonough, are you aware of the fact that the voters of California have initiated an initiative to limit the property taxes in California in the light of the Serrano decision?

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Yes, I am.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Another question, sir, if I may.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: You may.

DELEGATE MARTIN: You're aware also, I presume, of the fact that 70 percent of every tax dollar in the State of Montana is for schools?

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Yes, I am.

DELEGATE MARTIN: And may I say one other-well, that wouldn't be pertinent to your question, so—

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: You may answer that if you want to, Mr. McDonough. You didn't finish your answer, I'm sure.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: What they're doing here is actually mandating Serrano versus Priest into the Constitution of the State of Montana. And that's what I object to; mandating it.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Woodmansey.

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: First of all, I'd like to say I was a member of this committee that worked on this document. I also think that you should know that I am a teacher, so I do have an interest here. Just a couple of comments regarding the motion to delete these two sections by Mr. McDonough. I think there's fear here that we're asking the state to do all of the financing for education. This is not what we're trying to do. I think what we're trying to do here is to do what the foundation program has not done. I don't think we're trying to eliminate levies at the local level. I don't foresee this, and I would hate to see it come. I think at the local level, still there should be ability-or the people should be able to have a higher quality of education and in some other community. And I really think the underlying fear here is that the state is going to provide the total financing, and this is not true. We're asking for the full funding; and when we're asking that, we're talking, really, in the sense that we have in the past in this area. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Holland.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Yes. Will Mr. Davis yield for a question?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Why did you come back? Yes, I yield.

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Mr. Davis, I'm a little bit concerned about this public library. I don't understand it. In some towns the libraries are owned by foundations, or sometimes by the city, sometimes by the county. Are you going to build libraries with school funds and fill them up? What is the meaning of that? That has me concerned.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Well, the meaning of "public", you know that, and the meaning of "libraries". And that means that if the Legislature wants, they can establish public libraries. As I say, there's no question; but that's all it means. And I defer that to our honorable Chairman. I don't know why you asked me, the only lawyer, about the libraries, with all the educators on our committee. Maybe Mr. Champoux can answer that. Would that be all right, Mr. Holland?

DELEGATE HOLLAND: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: Mr. Champoux, do you want to answer that?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Please. I would like to answer Mr. Holland. May I refer also to comments-

CHAIRMAN AASHEIM: You have the floor.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: First of all, Dave, there is a trend today-No to your question, all right?-in that it says "may". But there is a trend today in certain areas. We know of one instance, for instance, in the State of Montana where they're trying to consolidate library facilities in the city. It's a small town in eastern Montana. And there is something-there is a concept of what's called a learning resource center. So it is conceivable that in the future in the State of Montana, you might have, for instance, the library in conjunction with the educational institution in the city. By that I mean, there they would have stored things like films, audiovisual equipment, and so forth, and that the schools could also, you know, go and apply themselves in terms of distribution and getting the product. So we're saying "may" on the one hand, and we're providing the-you know, if the Legislature wants to do it, they can. May I refer to Mr. McDonough's question at this point, please? Swede, the Serrano case did not only concern taxation in terms of the tax burden, but it also concerned distribution. Have you ever read that case?

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Yes.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: And you know this, then. Now, if you look at what we have provided-we thought we provided-and I still—we think we have provided as flexible a section as possible, so that if Serrano does come into being—and I think you would agree that it's going to come-then we've made it as flexible as possible, so that the Legislature could bring into process, if you will, a method of equitable distributing of money in providing the taxation by either direct taxation or other means. You see? Thank you.

(Committee of the Whole chairmanship assumed by Mr. Graybill)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McCarvel.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Mr. Chairman. I wonder if Mr. Woodmansey would yield to a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Woodmansey?

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: I yield.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Mr. Woodmansey, I'm just one of these that didn't get an education, so I'd like to be educated here.

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: I don't say I'll do it, but I'll try.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Well I-you said that this does not mean that the Legislature is going to fund all the schools-public and elementary schools. And the way I read this, it says it will insure full funding.

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: We're talking about the foundation program; and I think, Mr. McCarvel, you know as well as I do, in each community throughout the state today there are voted levies. And even if the foundation program were funded fully, in many communities there would still be voted levies. And what I'm saying is that it's my belief, and I think it was the belief of the committee, that in a community who wanted-that wanted a higher quality education than the basic program-the foundation program provides, they still have the right to have voted levies. And the state isn't going to pay the full way in every community necessarily.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Would Mr. Woodmansey yield to another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Woodmansey?

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: Yes, I will.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: I see no place in this article where it says "foundation program". It just says it shall be the duty of the Legislature to furnish and provide taxation or other means to distribute, in an equitable manner, funds sufficient to insure full funding. I don't see where the foundation program comes in here at all.

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: I feel that it's implied in the area where we discussed the area of full funding. I feel that it's implied here. You may not feel so, but I think we felt, in the committee, that it's implied in this section, full funding.

DELEGATE McCARVEL: Well, to me, the section is vacant, Mr. Chairman. I don't know, I think they should do a little more work on it, because my basic education is-does not grasp anything other than the state will have to fund the whole school system by taxation.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. McDonough's motion to strike the last two sentences of subsection 2. Now, we'll continue to debate it, but let's be on the point.

Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. I'd like to ask Mr. McCarvel to open his Constitution to Section 6 of the present Constitution and to read the language in Section 6. It says: "It shall be the duty of the Legislative Assembly to provide by taxation or other means--or otherwise sufficient means"--and then some other words—"for the funding of the common schools." The language that we are proposing is really no different from this, and I think we are missing the point. I think that the intent of what we're saying in these last sections here is simply that the Legislature shall make provisions. The provisions may be to authorize property taxes at the local level; it may be that the Legislature will decide to make an appropriation. The Legislature already provides the means for the funding of the public schools, and as I see it, this does not change that at all. It simply opens the door so that if we have to change the system in some way, we can do it; we're not locked in.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is still on the motion to strike the last two sentences. Now, if you have something new to add, please speak. Otherwise, I think everybody has the idea.

Mr. Joyce.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Mr. Chairman. I may as well put the final coup de grace to Swede McDonough in that I rise in support of Mr. McDonough. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: See if you can make it quick, Mr. Joyce. Go ahead.

DELEGATE JOYCE: Before-the reason that-this just occurs to me. What if the next session of the Legislature repeals the Foundation Act, what will this section mean? It seems to me we've been talking doubletalk all around the room all day, that it means this and it doesn't mean that. And when we come right down to it, what everybody means is that the Legislature shall provide for a system of high-quality public elementary and secondary schools, period. And that's what we hope that they will do. That's all they can do. It's up to the people of Montana to be able to fund it if they can. To require them to do something which they-you can't force them to do anyway-it's just writing nonsense into the Constitution. Constitutions are supposed to be-to pertain to law. And the Legislators represent the people of Montana, and the people of Montana want to fund their schools if they can afford them, but they don't want to necessarily impose sales taxes to do that. I think that's relatively evident. And so it seems to me that the prudent thing to do is to do like the State of North Dakota did and simply say that we'll have a system of free public elementary and secondary schools. And, secondly, that just because we have statutory material in the current Constitution which has been ignored all these years and has been-no one has interpreted them to mean anything, is a good reason why we should get back to basic constitutional law and simply retain the first sentence of the section. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. McDonough's motion to strike two sentences.

Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I assure you I have something new to add or I wouldn't have rised.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Good.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman. It's going to take me just about one minute. To be against education today was like being against motherhood 10 years ago. This also may change. I hope I don't. And I want to express now that I also have an interest in education, because whenever we do not have a child that is properly educated, he may become a charge on the state and it will be my responsibility to help support him. However, I see that you have deviated from the original Constitution--our present Constitution. You name public elementary and secondary school system. Why didn't you remain with the language to say public schools? Then you are all-inclusive. I also want to warn you about this trend toward centralization of financing public schools. I am very much concerned that it may defeat, eventually, our concern for a better public school system. You know-and my district is one of them-they are willing to levy taxes to educate their youngsters way and beyond what some of you people realize because there are programs that they want. Some areas want a new gymnasium. By the way, are we funding-are we building school buildings in this program that you people are advocating? It doesn't say you're not. Under the present system, we can emphasize a music program if we so desire. We can build racetracks. We can have horseracing if we wanted to, if you want to go way out. If, under the present system-but if we're going to centralize our educational program, what incentive will there be on the local level to do a better job for our children? Think about this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Drum.

DELEGATE DRUM: Mr. Chairman. I, too, would like to rise in support of Mr McDonough's amendment. And I feel I sure got a dirty look from the Chairman there, but I have a comment. I would like to share a thought or two with you. First, as I was sitting and listening to the comments and to the expressions on the faces of the body here, I asked myself, "If I were going to send one person over here to write a Constitution that I thought would be the best one for the people of Montana, who would that person be?" And I'll tell you who that person would be: it would be Swede McDonough. So when Swede is concerned, I am pretty concerned myself about the impact this may have on our legislative bodies of the future. As I sat in an Education Committee meeting one day, the thought came back to me of a dog race that I had attended at one time in my youth, when I was somewhat wayward, and I noticed that the baying greyhounds were chasing a white rabbit around the track. And as the greyhounds got closer to the white rabbit, the white rabbit kept getting a little bit faster and a little faster. There was never any hope of the greyhounds catching that rabbit. And I happened to ask one of the people that was working at the track, "Do thegreyhoundsevercatch thatrabbit?" They said, "No; the biggest problem is not whether they catch the rabbit or not, it's whether the rabbit gets too far ahead of the greyhounds." Now, I kind of likened, as I sat in the Education Committee—perhaps we, the taxpayers-and you are certainly included in this "we"-are chasing a white rabbit around a track. I think it is important that we keep a fair gap between the rabbit and the dogs, or the taxpayer and education. If it gets a little too far away, the taxpayers are liable to say, "I'm tired running; I'm going to take my investment, I'm going to take my business, I'm going to leave Montana. I can't keep up with that white rabbit." Now, in the committee on Education we heard this testimony, that here in Montana, the taxpayer rates third-ranks third in the United States. Of 50 states, we rank third in the individual's contribution to education. That leaves two spots: number two, which we may be able to attain, but once we get into number one, there's nothing else to compare ourselves with. So when I peruse this article and I go back to the words which Swede McDonough referred our interest to, in the second line, "it shall be the duty". And I would like to say to Reverend Harbaugh that in his comments he continually uses the word "may", but I would refer him to the writing here, "It shall be the duty of the Legislature". And down in the next line, "to insure full funding of our elementary and secondary", and then, referring back to the wording in the top of the paragraph, "of high-quality, free public and elementary education." So when you take these three phrases and read them together-I personally understand what Mr. McDonough is talking about, and I am concerned. I would like to ask the body to consider his amendment and vote in the affirmative on his amendment. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman. My remarks will be brief, too. It said that this wouldn't really make too much of a change. I'd like to point out to you that once you put your school boards in nothing but an administrative position and instead of being tax collectors as they are now and responsible for the budget that they set, that they will now be administering the money that they get and every school board will be in there for all they can acquire from the state. And I can see no end to the amount of costs that we'll have, because all the little frills that we once wanted, we'll now be after. I think this is a very important difference in our school structure, whether it's on a local level or whether it's on a state level, as far as the funding is concerned and who's responsible in supplying the money. I have one other question that maybe somebody can answer. These two little words, this "other means". Just for the record, I wonder if the committee would go into a little more detail on what the "other means" are.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson, I'm not going to let Mr. Harbaugh speak till he closes. Do you want to speak, Mr. Wilson? Okay.

Mr. Harbaugh, I guess we're-

Mr. Harrington.

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: Mr. Chairman. I would just like to add one thing. If we adopt Mr. McDonough's amendment and strike these words, we will be taking a step backward. In the Constitution of 1889, they said "It shall be the duty of the Legislative Assembly to establish and maintain". We are not even going to give that command, if we adopt his amendment, to the Legislature. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, Mr. Harbaugh, you may close. You may close on your part, and then I'll go to Mr. McDonough to close.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I was just rising to respond to the question about "other means".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: "Other means" is the exact language that's taken out of the old Constitution. It refers, basically, to the foundation program-pardon me, not to the foundation program-to the income and interest funds that are presently distributed to the schools. This is not a taxation levy, but this is a distribution of the "I and I" money.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. McDonough, now you may close.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: Mr. President, this will be short. Actually, I'm in full agreement with the Serrano versus Priest case, and the Serrano versus Priest case is covered very fully under goals of Section 1 where it says "equality of educational opportunities shall be guaranteed to each person of this stat&'--and that's basically all Serrano versus Priest says-that-As to the distribution of money and so forth, we're getting back into a Legislative thing by that last sentence of the subparagraph 2, and it should be stricken and should be left entirely to the Legislature to guarantee the equality of educational opportunities to every person in the state. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Do you want a roll call vote? Very well. All-Mr. McDonough's amendment would strike lines 14 to 19—strike the last two sentences of subparagraph 2 of Section 1 and would leave just the first sentence of subparagraph 2. So many as shall be in favor of his amendment-namely, striking that—please vote Aye on the voting machines; so many as shall be opposed, please vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, take the vote.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 43 delegates voting Aye, 46 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 43 having voted Aye, 46 No, the amendment fails. We're now back on Mr. Habedank's motion about the word "basic"-to add the word "basic" on line 13 so it says "a basic system of high-quality education" and add the word "basic" on line 20 to make it "of the basic public elementary system". Is there any other discussion of that matter?

Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. I support the basic-addition of the word "basic" here. I would like to ask Mr. Habedank, however, if he feels that it is necessary to include it in line 20. It seems to me that it's somewhat redundant there.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Harbaugh, of the two places, I would consider "basic" more needed in line 20 than in line 13. I don't consider it redundant in either place.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I have no objection to it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, do you want to close, Mr. Habedank? Have you?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I close.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Habedank's amendment to add the word "basic" in line 13 and 20.

Mr. Romney, did I miss you? Do you want a roll call?

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: A roll call vote. All those in favor of adding the word "basic", vote Aye; opposed, No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate want to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, close the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 86 delegates voting Aye, 3 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 86 having voted Aye, 3 voting No, the motion to add the word "basic" prevails. Ladies and gentlemen, we have some other amendments to subsection 2 of Section 1, but before we take them up, I'd like to call on Mr. Eskildsen. And—

Mr. Schiltz, do you have a matter before then?

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Yes, Mr. Chairman. Members of the Committee, there's a gentleman sitting today at a desk that I once occupied when Mae Nan Robinson was 4 years old, and I'm sitting at a desk in the approximate area that he occupied at that same time. And I would like to call your attention to the presence of a great citizen of Montana, a gentleman who was the Speaker of this House of Representatives several times, in an era when we had some Legislative giants in Montana, and the father of our President, Mr. Leo Graybill, Sr. Would you all give him a hand.

(Applause)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Thank you very much, Mr. Schiltz. I did explain to him thatif he voted there, it was a felony. (Laughter) But Mr. Garlington and Mr. Gysler are taking good care of him.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I move we recess until 3:45 p.m. this afternoon.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is to recess till 3:45 p.m. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Recess 3:25 p.m.--reconvened 3:50 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The committee will be in order. Mr. Vermillion, will you close the back doors, please? Temporarily. Ladies and gentlemen, I want to make an announcement which may be of interest to you. It's the management's intention not to work tonight. I find that it's very difficult sometimes on some of you when we work too long. However, I would like to suggest that you might read carefully the rest of the book and get yourself ready for tomorrow so it doesn't take quite so long. We want to finish this article tomorrow. If we finish this article tomorrow, which will, I think, in itself be difficult, we'll still be one day behind. And we intend, therefore, to work Monday. So if you need to make plans based on that, you might want to make them. We intend to work Monday but not work tonight. Very well. The issue is on Section 1, subsection 2. We have a number of amendments presented during the recess.

The Chair will first recognize Mr. Martin. Do you want your amendment read from the Chair, Mr. Martin?

DELEGATE MARTIN: Yes, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read Mr. Martin's amendment.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 1, subsection 2, page 8, of the Education and Public Lands Committee Pro. posal Number 10 as follows: at line 16, page 8, by deleting the word 'high'. And further amend at line 22, page 8, by adding between the word 'manner' and the word 'funds' the following words-quote: 'to the several school districts of this state'-end quote. Signed: Martin."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The point of Mr. Martin's amendment is to strike the word "high" on line 13, the end of the line-end of the sentence-end of the line there so that the sentence reads: "The Legislature shall provide for a system of-for a basic system of quality free public elementary and secondary schools", instead of "high-quality", and then to add, on line 19—if you have your books-after the word "manner", the phrase "to the several school districts of the state" so that that phrase reads: "and to distribute in an equitable manner to the several school districts of the state funds sufficient to insure full funding of the basic public elementary and secondary school system."

Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. President. It seems obvious that we don't need "high" when we're talking about quality, because it contains the same language. So I think I'll just stop at that. But I would call your attention to the fact that Section 6 of the present Constitution provides "it shall be the duty of the Legislative Assembly to provide, by taxation or otherwise, sufficient means in connection with the amount received from the general school fund to maintain a public, free common school in each organized district of the state for at least 3 months of the year." In Section 5, we also have the reference to the several school districts of the state. It would seem that the present article completely omits the reference to school districts, and I would think that we don't want to see that happen.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. I wonder if Mr. Martin would yield to a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin, will you yield?

DELEGATE MARTIN: Yes.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Martin, would you have any objection to dividing your amendment, because as a committee, there may be a difference between how the committee feels about this? We have no real strong objection to deleting the word "high", but we do have serious reservations about the last part of that amendment, and I would explain our reasons for that. But would you consider dividing your motion?

DELEGATE MARTIN: Surely.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is it my understanding, Mr. Martin, you want to divide your motion?

DELEGATE MARTIN: I'd be agreeable if that's the way they want to go.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Let's take the word "high" first; so we'll hold the rest of Mr. Martin's amendment and we'll discuss only the deletion of the word "high". Is there any further discussion of that? If not, all in favor of deleting the word "high" on line 13 so that the sentence reads "The Legislature shall provide for a basic system of quality free public elementary", et cetera-so many as are in favor of that, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's passed and adopted. Now, Mr. Martin, we'll allow you to have the second part of your amendment. Is there discussion?

Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Do you want me to move it again?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, you don't need to move it again. Is there discussion?

Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Yes, Mr. Chairman. We feel that there is a reason why we deleted these words. These words were in the present Constitution and their inclusion in Section 1, I think, could cause serious problems for us in this respect-that the distribution of funds to the various districts involves distribution of the interest and income money of the state, and the way in which that distribution has been done in the past is on what you might call a flat grant basis. In other words, each district of the state gets so much money per child that they have in attendance in the school district. Now, this has been part of the problem causing an inequity in the financing of the systems. The flat grant method of financing in our state is one of the things that causes the spread between the wealthier districts and the poorer districts to be greater. And therefore there may be instances in the distribution of this money, if we're concerned about equalizing the financial funding of the school systems, there may be instances in which a district would not be eligible to receive the "I and I" funds, if we're trying to equalize education. And therefore to add here the language "to the several school districts" may indicate that each district was to receive the "I and I" funds. And we feel that this could be a problem, a sort of roadblock in the way of equalizing the educational expenditures across the state. So we resist the inclusion of these words in subsection 2.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there—

Mr. Wagner.

DELEGATE WAGNER: I'd like to ask Mr. Harbaugh a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh, will you yield?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I yield.

DELEGATE WAGNER: Gene, don't you say that the funds will be distributed in an equitable manner? Wouldn't that take care of that?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. Yes, I think it would. This is what we're aiming at, is an equitable distribution of the funds, and I think that the inclusion of this phrase would be a limitation on that, possibly that we wouldn't want to see put in there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman. I wonder if Delegate Harbaugh would lead-yield to a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh, will you yield?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Yes, I yield.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Isn't-presently, hasn't the foundation program enacted legislation which provides for a 25-mill and a 15-mill, 40 mills in each county for equalization?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Yes, it has.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Is it the intent of the committee that this would be abandoned, that all districts-all taxes would be paid or all funds would be supplied by the state rather than the counties?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: No, this is not necessarily the intent of the committee. All we are doing, Mr. Martin, is trying to leave the door open for some new system. We don't know what the system will be, but we don't want to place impediments in the road of possibly that type of system of funding.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Don't you think that the Legislature should have some leeway in what they could do?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: That's precisely what we're attempting to do is—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman. It seems to me that education is the grassroots of the people and that the school boards are an integral part of this movement and that the general public has some rights. We have given powers to the Legislature in the Legislative Article to have annual sessions to meet the problems as they arise. We haven't got the Serrano-Priest decision here yet; it probably will be several years before it comes. And I think that some consideration should be given to the counsel and judgment of the school districts throughout the state.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Cain.

DELEGATE CAIN: I think if Mr. Martin will look at our Section 8, he will notice that we, too, are recognizing the school districts and the election process of the district trustees.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I would like to state first of all that the committee believes that the local school board is the very basic foundation of our educational program and there is no intention whatsoever to take anything away from the local school districts. However, there are some problems here that's very obvious to us in the Education Committee that have studied this problem extensively that we're trying to bring out to you, and they're not coming through. For instance, if you look at the current method of distribution, which is called the census-this provides that every school-every child between the age of 6 and 21 is going to be counted, then they're going to distribute the money on the basis of that count. Now, what's resulted from that, as we have found out? Well, in some cities like-take for instance-well, we'll take Butte as an example-I was talking to Joe about it just a little while ago—that has a larger population-Catholic population-than typically another city has. In that city, every child between the age of 6 and 21 is counted and the funds are distributed to the public school system. Now, if you take another city that doesn't have any Catholics, we'll say, or any other nonpublic schools, the amount of money that would be distributed in those-in that city would be less than the amount of money that would be distributed in a school-in a district with a lot of nonpublic students. This is unequal. It is an inequity, and Serrano does apply. If you look at the-if you could study this foundation program and how it's developed, it does provide, as Fred has said, county equalization. That is not going to be taken away by this section whatsoever. That is a determination of the Legislature, as Mr. Martin knows. The thing we're talking about in themiddle here is this business of state equalization, though. And, for instance, when we talk about full funding of state equalization, we're not talking about 100 percent of all of the funds. That doesn't mean that every school district is going to get total funding from the state. But we're asking for total funding by the state of the state's obligation, by taxation or other means. I hope that will clear up a little bit more.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harrington.

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: Mr. Chairman. I would like to clarify a little more-go a little bit deeper than Mr. Champoux. Now, I, as a delegate from Butte-the first thing that came up—and, of course, we have to go ahead on this answer, because I think it all comes into perspective in this particular section-now, when this first came up, the dropping of the census as-which will be in Section 5 as a basis-now, I'm going to the Legislature to choose what method they will use. In other words, for using this "I and I" money. I protested quite vigorously. And I felt that Butte—Silver Bow County--would suffer greatly through this change, because we do have quite a parochial school attendance. And, of course, I did quite a bit of investigating myself on this matter, and I found that through the equalization process that we will have after this, the money that will not be distributed exactly on the number of students--on average number of belonging-will come back to the school districts and will come back on the foundation program. And actually, I think they will, actually, from what I could see, will benefit from this even more. So in other words, what I'm trying to-if someone had the idea that possibly they would lose on this, this is not true; by going away from the census and letting the Legislature decide whether they go on the ANB or any other type of funding-but I hope I've made it a little clearer on this one point, that these cities with parochial schools will not lose tax money because of this change.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a minute. Are you ready to close, Mr. Martin?

DELEGATE MARTIN: Delegate Champoux would yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I will yield.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Under the provision of this article as it's written, would you say that there would be an opportunity to expand some of the state educational funds for other purposes than for the districts and elementary and secondary schools?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: What, specifically, were you referring to, Mr. Martin, when you say "for other"?

DELEGATE MARTIN: Well, supposing we talk about community colleges.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: All right, suppose we do. Go ahead.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Isn't there that possibility, that some of these funds could be given for that? Should the decision be left within the Constitution, or shouldn't it be left to the Legislature?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. Martin, if you read the first sentence in here, it mandates the Legislature to provide for the system. Therefore, I think that that's all that has to be said. The Legislature has the provision.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Why is it the committee doesn't consider the school boards?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Well, we have considered the school boards, Mr. Martin. If you'll remember my opening remarks, I appended—amended Section 5 where it says "school districts", period. And there, you see, there's the funding again that Mr. Woodmansey will enlighten you on when we get to that section. So we haven't taken out the school districts; they're there. We love them; we hope they remain there. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harlow.

DELEGATE HARLOW: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. It seems to me that we are spending a lot of time and being completely confused about the amendment that Mr. Martin has here. I feel that it is very essential and something that will not detract from the integrity of the Education Committee but will make it a little clearer to whom this money is going to be distributed. It will merely be distributed equitably to the several school districts. And I think it's a good amendment. And I realize the committee seemed to have a moralobligation to themselves to get their exact wording put into the Constitution that they have labored so laboriously on and are cherishing so dearly. But from a truly educational standpoint and from an executive operation standpoint, I feel that these words are very useful and will tend to take away any fears that the school districts or the school people may have about how this money is to be distributed and to whom it is to be distributed. I hope we vote soon and in favor of Mr. Martin's motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Gysler.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Chairman. If I heard right, the committee said that this is what the-the words in Mr. Martin's motion are what they intended. I feel that if this is going to not be against what the committee intended and make it clearer for the people that read it, I think we should put these words in. So I support the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Just to make the point clear, we would agree to go for the school districts. You can put that in. However, if you say "several school districts", you may run into some problems, because this reinforces the inequalities of wealthy districts versus poor. But you can put in "school districts", as far as I'm concerned. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President. I rise in opposition to the substitute motion. We're getting right back into this same problem, which the committee tried to avoid all the way through its work, of setting up something that would be hard for the Legislature to face the-anything they-any proposition they might have to face under the Serrano versus Priest case. We want to give them plenty of leeway, and if we tie this down to each of the school districts, then we get right back into the very same thing that was stated in Serrano versus Priest. And while I'm speaking here, I'd like to make one other statement. I am sure no one on this Education Committee had any idea of, in any manner, deteriorating from the position of our present school districts. They like them, and they want to keep them there. But one thing we're all overlooking is that we may not be faced with Serrano versus Priest. We may be faced with a charge under the 14th Amendment of the United States Constitution, and then where will our small school districts be if we don't provide the leeway that the Education Committee has tried to provide for meeting those situations?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President and fellow delegates. I think we've got to realize a problem that we are at this juncture-that there's no one but the Legislature that can provide the finances for the school district because we've passed the Revenue and Finance section which says the Legislature is going to assess--equalize. So there's nobody but the Legislature that can do this. So that is one reason it's here. For the purpose of the record, I think that if you have a foundation program or whatever means-say you have so many mills in our district or in any district-the main idea is that the state sets up a program or formula and says "your district's share is this and our share is this" and they pay their share. In other words, they fund their part of it. And that's the big problem we've been having now with our schools throughout the State of Montana; they don't pay their share of their own formula that they've set up and adopted and then we have to come back and have an additional voted levy at the district level and the people don't understand why the schools are doing this. So I think the record should show, and I can confirm for the purposes of the record, that at no time in the Education Committee's hearings have we ever discussed operating schools other than through your local school boards and through your local districts, and we certainly wouldn't want it any other way. So I personally have no objection to the fact that the school districts should be in there, whether you want to put "several" or how you want to putitin. I think it'll all come out the same, because I know no Legislature is ever going to change that either, because they're all elected from someplace, too.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Will Mr. Davis yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis?

DELEGATE DAVIS: I yield.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Davis. I see what Mr. Martin is getting at. He wants to make sure that "several school districts" are mentioned in here, but just for a layman reading it, when you say to distribute in an equitable manner to the several school districts of the state, does that imply-it does to me-an equal amount to each of the school districts?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Well, I don't think so. It wouldn't be my thinking on it. I think under the Serrano case, they say what's equitable can be based on need. And it's based on need right now and it's inequitable. And that's what Revenue and Finance told us. Some counties weren't assessing up to the full value and another one was. So then the state funded the in-between. Does that answer it?

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Mr. President. I've been following this with interest to see where I've missed the point here. If this isn't distributed to somebody such as the school district, who is it going to be distributed to?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: When you use the term "elementary and secondary school system", all-there isn't a single elementary or secondary school outside of a school district in any system in the State of Montana. Now, if you want to put in "school districts", it's fine; but "several" might have problems with that word.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: If Mr. Davis would yield to a question?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Martin, I yield,

DELEGATE MARTIN: Isn't it true that, under the foundation program now, that within the counties there is what you might call inequitable distribution?

DELEGATE DAVIS: It depends on how you use the word "equitable". They distribute money within the counties on an ANB basis so each person gets the same per ANB. But in a district that's only got 90,000 valuation versus a rich district that got 800,000, it's grossly inequitable. So it does have to be some other basis of equity in there.

DELEGATE MARTIN: In other words, if you have a district that has a railroad running through it, then you have a district that doesn't have a railroad, the district that doesn't have the railroad gets more--a larger share of the county equalization fund, is that right?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Well, the first thing, if you've got a railroad, you don't need much else. (Laughter) That's as far as valuation is concerned. I'm not too sure I can answer that accurately. If you have a railroad, of course, you have a great deal of a valuation, but you could have another district without a railroad that could be bigger and have more. So I couldn't really answer it on just that set of facts.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Well, that has been-that was the real purpose of the foundation program, as I recall it and as my understanding of what it amounts to. And the point I'm getting about-getting at is I think that the school system of Montana needs the school districts and needs the school officials that would make them a part. And I can't see why the opposition to this.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Martin, to clarify a thing, if I could answer your question, it seems to me that we're now on the same side. Everybody's agreed to your amendment, so let's vote and get something else.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis, will you yield to a question from the Chair?

DELEGATE DAVIS: I'll yield, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: When you say "to the several school districts", is there any sense in which that can mean the present school districts?

DELEGATE DAVIS: It seems to me that it'll have to be to the school districts that exist at the time the distribution is made. Your school districts are changing all the time throughout the state, like consolidation, annexation or abandonment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there other discussion?

Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I'd like to ask a question of Mr. Martin. How do you interpret the word "several"? Do you interpret the word "several" to mean each?

DELEGATE MARTIN: No. I think that we could interpret this last sentence as a duty of the Legislature. It's a legislative mandate; it isn't anything else. And the Legislature could do whatever it wants with that. If we're going to have consolidation of districts as we do now, you wouldn't have several school districts. If you recall, the Peabody Report some years ago advocated that there only be one district in each county, and that could happen by legislative action.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I think his answer helps me some. At least if "several" does not mean "each", we're making some progress. The concern of the committee is not to try to deny the local school district any autonomy. It is not a subversive plot to take school districts out of the Constitution. We simply are trying to free up the constitutional language here in such a way that the Legislature can, in an equitable manner, give funds to school districts which need it. Now, if we give, on a flat grant basis, money to every district, we upset the applecart of equality. If we give money on the basis of equalizing to those which need it because they have low evaluation, then we can equalize. This is the only reason that we have deleted this language.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: You know, I'd be remiss if I didn't ask Mr. Martin this question. Mr. Martin, do you feel, under this, that some school districts would not get equalizing funds?

DELEGATE MARTIN: No.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Do you feel that everyone, then, would get some funds even though it was unequal within the district?

DELEGATE MARTIN: I think that under the present foundation program, there could be equalization. I think that the way this is worded in this section, it still would be up to the Legislature to do that. And when we're speaking in terms of how we're going to distribute funds, we've got to recognize that we have implemented the powers of the Legislature, given them an opportunity to meet more often, developed more committees, and to work out the program. I would say that with this amendment, you can work it out in good shape.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Well, my only answer to that, sir, is if you read Billings' study, the question is, "Why do we then have a variation of 10,000 to I?" Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Martin's motion to add the phrase "to the several school districts of the state" on line 19, Section 1, sub. 2. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair is in doubt. So many as are in favor of that motion, vote Aye; and so many as are opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, 44 having voted Aye and 41 having voted No, the Chair says that the amendment carries. I think it's obvious from the vote, however, that we don't all understand what we're doing. I'm sure I don't, if the rest of you do. Very well; it's passed. Very well. Mr. Artz, you have an amendment. May the Chair read it? Mr. Clerk, will you read the amendment of Mr. Artz.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 1, subsection 2, page 3, line 17 through 20, by deleting the following language-by deleting the last sentence: 'It shall be the duty of the Legislature to provide by taxation or other means and to distribute in an equitable manner to the several school districts of the state funds sufficient to insure full funding of the basic public elementary and secondary school system'." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Artz. We have now amended the last sentence. Do you intend to delete the part we just put in, too?

DELEGATE ARTZ: Yes, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Artz's amendment has the effect of deleting the sentence on line 17 to 20, including the part we just put in.

Mr. Artz.

DELEGATE ARTZ: Mr. Chairman. When Mr. McDonough brought up his original motion to delete both sentences, I had mixed emotions because I certainly did not want to eliminate libraries; I did not want to eliminate vo-techs or the university system. But when Mr. McDonough worries--and I worked with him on Revenue and Finance for a long time--about what this last line could do, I get very worried. Now, this thing has been discussed fully, and that's all I have to say. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Well, I just rise to say that it hasn't been discussed nearly as fully here as it was in the committee. And the committee is pretty firm about its feeling about this last sentence. I ask you to vote against the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue arises on Mr. Artz's-

Mr. Nutting, are you up?

DELEGATE NUTTING: Yes, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Just one moment. I think there's a little misunderstanding on what "full funding of the foundation program" means. Now, the foundation program is based on three principles. First, you have a basic levy that is throughout the state. Next, the amount of money that the Legislature has by other means, other than property, normally, is offered to equalize the program throughout the state. If you want more than that, then there are voted levies. Now, we're talking about 40 mills, but 40 mills is merely the figure set by the Legislature. So to fully fund the program, the Legislature can take the money that they have available from other sources-let's say it's 40 million for the biennium--and if they can't fully fund the program, they don't have to add a dollar from the state level. All they have to do is increase the mill levy on the local level. The basic level-levy can go up from 40 to 50 to 60, whatever it needs to be, and the program is fully funded; there hasn't been one more dollar come in from state funds. But I think we should understand that when we talk about full funding that it doesn't mean that there will be more money available from the state level.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brown.

VICE PRESIDENT BROWN: Mr. Chairman. I rise in support of Mr. Artz's motion. While we're discussing Mr. McDonough's motion, I went through all these other constitutions in our blue and white book. They're all very simple in this particular area. The model constitution is the same way; the North Dakota Constitution-and I do like it-is the same way. And this will allow complete flexibility by reason of any change in the federal laws or the Constitution. And this is legislative, and we've been arguing for 3 hours and showing why it is legislation. So I certainly wholeheartedly endorse this motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman. May I ask Mr. Nutting a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Nutting?

DELEGATE NUTTING: Yes.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: In this section, it doesn't say to fully fund the foundation program, does it?

DELEGATE NUTTING: No, it doesn't, but that's been the discussion on the floor-is the full funding of the basic education.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Well, this wouldn't provide the same type of funding then, would it?

DELEGATE NUTTING: The discussion has been that it would be based on the foundation program.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on whether or not to sustain Mr. Artz's amendment, which has the effect of deleting the last sentence of subsection 2 of Section 1.

Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Mr. President. Would Mr. Champoux yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I feel like Wade Dahood. Yes, I'll yield. (Laughter)

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Now, we all know that the school foundation program has for many years fallen short of the 80 percent-of the hundred percent of funding promised in our present law. As Mr. Nutting said, this could be increased and we could have fully funded this, but it would come from the same source, taxes. Property owners must always pick up the difference in special levies. Now, have you considered how the Legislature, will raise the cash to fully fund this foundation program?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Oh, boy. Yes, we did; but we threw it to the Mitchell Gang. In other words, when we started out with this, the committee was faced with a very obvious fact, and that is that the state-the Legislature had not adhered to its-the constitutional mandate, nor to its own Legislative Article, which is the foundation program. And if we accept the amendment that's being proposed, we're going back to that situation. Now, what we tried to do was to attempt to make it so that the Legislature would have to-maybe they'll avoid it again, I don't know. Now, as to the method of financing, we want to leave it flexible enough so the gentlemen over in the Mitchell Building would be able to develop a scheme for financing. No, we didn't-there's no way that we developed a specific system to finance it.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Thank you, Mr. Champoux.

Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: You know, we're putting more and more burden on this Legislature every day. Everything we do is legislative. Now, why don't we give the Legislature an answer to the question we're talking about here and-in the funding of our schools? Why don't we consider a 2-percent sales tax, a general sales tax by the Legislature, to fully fund the school foundation system and reduce property taxes accordingly? There's the answer. It takes the burden off of the Legislature.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President. May I take a shot at that last question of Mr. Jacobsen's?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes.

DELEGATE DAVIS: It's a thought that we discussed in our committee, whether we're right or wrong, this-if the Legislature establishes a program, whether you call it a foundation program or any other program, that to establish a basic educational course in your primary and secondary level, it's going to take so much money.

They say the local people will put in so much by whatever way they want and the state will put in so much. Our full funding intends, hopefully, that the state says, "We've got this priority. We owe so much to these schools out of this 2 million-200 million dollar budget. Education has got a commitment-we've made a commitment to that." So instead of when they get to the end oftheroad and they spend their 2 million, instead of taking it, deducting it from education and saying, "We're going to build a new building here or there", they're going to say, "We haven't gotthemoney to do that, because we've still got to fund the basic education program-so they've got that in their budget. So when they run short at the end, they can't take it out of education. And this is just basic for primary and elementary education. So, if that helps the explanation-but that's the way we discussed it, and that was our hope-that it would move this up as a priority and say, "Well, we'll give education, when we get through at the end, what's left"-say "We've got to fund whatever our commitment is and if something else doesn't get it, that's their tough luck, because that's a lower priority."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr.--wait a minute-now, wait a minute until you get the floor.

Mr. Jacobsen.

DELEGATE JACOBSEN: Why not, Mr. Davis, a direction to the Legislature to set a—up to-say, a maximum of 2-percent sales tax for the benefit of the schools? And if there is money left over, give the property owners some relief. The property owners are sick and tired of continually paying. They're failing to meet these things. They don't-the bond issues and so on are failing all the time. We've got to pass it. We could do it right here. We have the power to do it and direct the Legislature to put in a sales tax for school systems, period.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: We just defeated that-the people down in my county and the rest of the state-two to one; so you might put that in the Constitution, but you might save the rest of the money for this Convention and go home if you're going to put that in. People have spoken to that question very firmly. But that's not really the point. The point is you shouldn't tie in a constitution any method of financing. We've got to have a basic education program. How they might finance it or fund it this year or 10 years from now, or 50, would be entirely different. But it's got to be flexible, so we can't tie in a method. I mean, that would be my sincere answer on it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President. Would Mr. Champoux yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I yield.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Champoux. In connection with this section, you have provided for a great deal of leeway on the part of the Legislature toward full funding of education. I am wondering why you omitted, before the last line on page 23, following the words "full funding", the words "of the state's share of the basic public elementary and secondary school system".

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Well, I just—we just never thought of it. That never did come up in the committee, if that's what you mean. Is that your point?

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Yes.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: No, we didn't discuss that particular phrase, sir.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: May I ask Mr. Champoux another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I'll yield.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Is it not a fact, Mr. Champoux, that when you're talking about full funding, you have allowed in this and anticipated that the state might-the Legislature might continue as they have in the past with the present foundation program; but the problem that you're facing is the fact that the state, year after year, does not meet its share of the foundation program and as a result, the thing that Mr. Nutting spoke about, the local taxpayer being stuck for the difference, results in inequities?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Absolutely, sir.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Would you object, then, from the standpoint of clarifying it in the minds of everyone what "full funding" means, to an amendment adding "of the state's share" in here?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I wouldn't object, sir, if the other members of the committee wouldn't.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank, you're going to he out of order if you try to amend a section that we're deleting.

Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman. I'm concerned that-and I guess we've all been there at one time or another-I'm concerned that when we reach a point of discussion that we sort of throw up our hands and say, "Oh, let somebody else think about it later", and we just want to leave it there. I think what we've put in this particular section, this sentence that Mr. Artz has asked to delete, is a hit of direction. It is not the specifying of details of how it's going to he handled, but it's a bit of direction in terms of both the nature of the distribution. And we already have income and interest coming in which has to bedistributed, and there has to he a hit of direction in terms of how that's going to he distributed. The old Constitution stated it would he on a basis of a census, people between the ages of 6 and 21. We felt that was a hit tight in terms of interpretation as we looked ahead for years and years and years, and that it didn't belong. We simply say, "equitable distribution and taxation". Now, we have "the several school districts" in there so that there's no question about where it's going in terms of the elementary and secondary system, and it's not a great long legislative piece of statement, really. What concerns me is that if we don't get some direction, we do slip backward. And we, as a committee, spent many hours wondering: how do you nudge ourselves and our communities forward a hit in terms of their goals in education? And this seemed to heoneway to take advantage of what's going on in other parts of the country and to be aware of what we might do without forcing anybody to do anything. It seems to me that it's so much easier to kill a good idea than it is to nurture it. And I'm afraid that just out of inertia and fatigue, we'll kill a good idea which is to look ahead, rather than to assume that we're cementing what has been a past pattern. We're trying to give a direction hut leave it open for further growth. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I'd like to rise again just to speak in opposition of the motion to delete and to say that I would he very much in accord with the suggestion of Mr. Hahedank that we could amend the article as he suggested in the event the deletion fails.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President. I wish to resist this motion to delete this particular section. I can see the concern that the delegates have, but if we would leave it in there, I think it can be amended to not only express an idea of direction hut to express in positive terms the direction. And at the expense of killing what I have in mind, or having you kill it, I would like to explain to you what I thought-conceived to he a very good idea to fund the state's share way hack in 1952 when the constitutional amendment—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, Mr. Habedank-the Chair is willing that you explain your idea. You have explained your idea. The Chair is not willing to debate it. We're going to debate the deletion. You've explained that if it is not deleted, you would amend by adding those words. Now, otherwise, I want you to stick to the subject if you can, please.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I felt the—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I can't see how some other plan that was adopted or talked about several years ago has any relevance to the deletion. If you can show me how it will, fine, hut I do think that the Chair has some duty. Now, I've let everybody go on. We've talked education all afternoon. We must move on this. I think if we don't know enough about it, then we've got to think it through overnight; but I must insist now that you stay with the subject. If you can show me what you have is relevant, I'll he happy to let you talk.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I couldn't show you what I have is relevant without making a statement.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You may make a statement, Mr. Hahedank, but you started to describe another system of education.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: No,

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, that's what you said. But go ahead. Explain it to me, Mr. Hahedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Under this particular clause, if it's left in and if it's amended to refer to the state's share, if the body will look at what they have done in the Revenue and Finance measure, what will automatically be done is what has been stated here previously by Mr. Davis; that by removing the 2-mill tax limitation, any shortage would then be funded.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McDonough, you may close.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: I didn't make the motion, but if it's all right with Mr. Artz, I may close.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Artz says you may close. He doesn't want to close after you close.

DELEGATE McDONOUGH: I think, really, why the motion of Mr. Artz should be adopted is the discussion that's been had for the last hour, hour and a half. When you get into amending this section and this sentence, you think of a lot of things that should be in there or taken out. And you'll think of some tomorrow, and you'll think of some next year. And that's why it should not be put in this Constitution. It should be left-the first sentence of this section and the second sentence, if you so desire, as to the libraries. But what you're trying to do is develop a plan-or develop wording that means something now, and you'll think about it a half-hour later and you think of something else you want in. Really, all you want in this section is for the state to provide for an adequate, good, high-quality-if the word high is still in there, I guess it isn't-public school system. That's all you want, and that's all that should be in the Constitution. Thank you, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: For what purpose do you rise, Mr. Harrington?

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: To answer Mr. McDonough's statement on—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'm sorry, we've closed. Now, if you want a roll call, fine. We'll take a roll call vote. All in favor of Mr. Artz's motion to delete the last sentence of sub. 2, say Aye on the voting machines; opposed, No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 50 have voted Aye, 38 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 50 having voted Aye, 38 No, the last sentence of Section 1, subsection 2, is deleted.

Mr. Arness, you have an amendment up here that pertains to part of the section still remaining. Do you wish it read?

DELEGATE ARNESS: Please, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read it.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 1, subsection 2, page 3, line 14 of the majority Education Proposal by deleting the words 'elementary and secondary'. Signed: Arness."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arness proposes an amendment that takes out the words "elementary and secondary", so it says, "quality, free public schools".

Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Mr. Chairman. The purpose of this motion is simply to make the language in the section conform to the stated purpose of the committee in preparing this section. As I understand it, it's their position that education is in a state of flux and that the system as we presently know it-with a grade school, high school, college level-may be changing and probably is changing. For that reason, we shouldn't freeze these forms of school that we have into the Constitution at the present time. There's reference later on to a third level, a higher school, which obviously refers to the University System. I've discussed this with the Chairman of the committee, and it's my understanding that he agrees that this language should be removed so that the system can be as flexible as possible. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion? Very well. The issue is on Mr. Arness' motion to strike the words "elementary and secondary" on line 14 of Section 1, sub. 2.

Mr. Woodmansey, do you want to discuss it?

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: Mr. Chairman. I don't have these amendments before me; and this bothers me, because now we're making a decision to strike a section that we, in the committee, worked on for a period of time. I just am concerned that maybe we here, by doing this, may throw the doors open wider to some sort of thing that we don't want to do, or may not want to do at a later point. I would refrain from removing the terms "public elementary and secondary schools".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, now, Mr. Woodmansey, the motion is in writing at the Chair. And generally, when you people know them ahead of time-and that's why I urge you to get them in ahead of time. If they are important amendments, we have you-have them printed and spread. That, of course, becomes difficult on Saturday when we have no printer. I do then read them. If you don't understand them, I'm perfectly happy to go slow enough so that you can write them down. This is not a very difficult one. And if you'll take your book, Mr. Woodmansey, on page 3—

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: I can see it, but here in a minute I'm to make a decision regarding this. And I resist it, and I will vote against it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well—

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: I don't foresee the impact. And it looks to me, under—maybe under the foundation program, we're going to finance the colleges of Montana. And I don't believe this is what the people of Montana want. I think that they don't mind financing the public schools through the state's foundation program, but I think there might be real resistance if this can happen by so removing these words here. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, Mr. Woodmansey, you may argue the point. You did misstate it, and I want to clear up your mind on the matter. On line 14, the amendment takes out the words "elementary and secondary" and it leaves in the word "public", so that it says "The Legislature shall provide a basic system of quality, free public schools". Now, that's what it says now. We've added the word "basic"; we've taken out the word "high". And now, we're talking about the words "elementary and secondary". I don't mind it being debated, but if you don't understand the amendments, please ask and we'll make it clear. We can't print them all. You have to" many, unfortunately.

Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Sir, if I may, just to clear up a little point here. When Mr. Arness approached me and Mr. Aasheim, we were discussing it. If you look at the old article, it talks about the free common public schools. Now, in the "Id days, that meant up to the eighth grade. The question then became, why did we put in "elementary and secondary"? Well, this is what we're familiar with now. Of course, Mr. Arness' contention is, as I read it, what are we going to be calling them in the future? However, I felt that-or at least I thought that Mr. Arness was going to propose something else in terms of defining this, because I think Mr. Woodmansey's worry is a cogent one. What is the-what are the-what are we talking about when we talk about the free public schools? Mr. Arness might know. I don't know.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Cain

DELEGATE CAIN: Might I ask Mr. Arness a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arness, will you yield?

DELEGATE ARNESS: I yield.

DELEGATE CAIN: By this, do you mean to imply that all schools--elementary, secondary, kindergartens, junior colleges, vo-tech, universities, colleges--all free? The word "free" is also a modifier.

DELEGATE ARNESS: I'm not sure I understand your question. Is that—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, her question, Mr. Arness, is that if you take those words out, you're making kindergarten and university free. Is that what you mean?

DELEGATE ARNESS: No, I'm not trying to do that.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, then you better think about your amendment.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Well, I think that the amendment does speak for itself. The-if we—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Let's put it and see what happens.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Arness' amendment to take the word "elementary and secondary" out of that first sentence so that it reads: "The Legislature shall provide for a basic system of quality, free public schools", please say Aye-a roll call is called for; all right-vote Aye on the voting machines; and those that say No, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Have all the delegates voted?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Robinson, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Mr. President. I'm sorry, I punched the wrong button.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Robinson, that won't help us much unless you tell us which way you voted. She wishes to vote No, is that right? Very well. Mrs. Robinson wishes to be recorded as No. The vote is taken.

What about you, Mr. James?

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman, I wish to vote No, too

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. James wishes to vote No. The vote is taken, but we'll-the journal will so-the transcript will so show. Will you please announce the vote.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 7 delegates have voted Aye, 75 delegates have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Actually the vote is 73 to 9, Mr. Clerk. And they may show on the roll but they may not change their votes. Very well; 73 having voted No and 9 having voted Aye, the motion is defeated. Now, the Chair would like to observe for the body here that you must be careful if you're going to play around with what the committee has done. I'm not saying that a lot of people haven't had excellent amendments this afternoon. The problem, Mr. Arness, was that you were about to make the universities free, and I don't think the rest of us were willing. And I think you must be careful. And you're wasting a lot of time when you write these amendments at your desks and don't know what you're talking about. So please be careful. Now, let's go on. Are there other amendments about Section Z-subsection 2? Very well. Members of this—

Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROBERT HANSON: May I ask Mr. Harbaugh a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE ROBERT HANSON: I've been waiting until after all these amendments were over, but I've been listening and they've been talking about many studies. Did you and your committee come up with any figure as to how much-how many mills might be needed statewide to fund the program?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. We didn't think that was within our province to go into those kind of details. We did not.

DELEGATE ROBERT HANSON: Well, on the 15th of April, I know we're all going to be interested in some of these things.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Members of the body, you have before you on the recommendation of Mr. Harbaugh that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 1, sub. 2, as amended, that it recommend the same be adopted. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Would the clerk read Section 2.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 2. Public school fund. The public school fund of the state shall consist of the proceeds of such lands as heretofore have been granted, or may hereafter be granted to the state by the general government, known as school lands; and those granted in lieu of such lands acquired by gift or grant from any person or corporation under any law or grant of the general government; and of all other grants of land or money made to the state from the general government for general educational purposes, or where no other special purpose is indicated in such grant; all estates or distributive shares of estates that may escheat to state; all unclaimed shares and dividends of any corporation incorporated under the laws of the state; and all other grants, gifts, devises or bequests made to the state for general educational purposes." Section 2, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Woodmansey.

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: Mr. Chairman. I move when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 2 of the Education and Public Lands Proposal, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Woodmansey.

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: I'd just like to make a few comments regarding this section. This section is just the same as the present Section 2 of our present Constitution. Just a few comments taken from our report on page 14: "In securing assured sources of support for the educational system, the committee agreed that the constitutional protection should be supplied to the public school fund. Section 2 in the existing Constitution has provided this protection by itemizing the components of the fund and unequivocally specifying that these contributing funds should be used for education. The name public school fund which appears in this section is adopted as the name to be used consistently hereafter in the Constitution." Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion of Section 2? If not, members of the body, you have before you on the recommendation of Mr.

Woodmansey, when this body does arise and report after having had under consideration Section 2, that we recommend it be adopted. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Section 3, Mr. Clerk.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 3. Public school fund inviolate. The public school fund shall forever remain inviolate, guaranteed by the state against loss or diversion, to be invested under the restrictions to be provided by law." Section 3, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Members of the body, Mr. Barnard will take Section 3, and he does have an amendment. Mr. Barnard, do you want to explain your amendment, or do you want the Chair to read it first?

DELEGATE BARNARD: The Chair can read the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk, will you read Mr. Barnard's amendment.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman. I move that Section 3 be amended by striking the word 'of on line 8, and inserting in lieu thereof the word 'or' and by inserting a period after the word 'diversion' in line 8 and by striking the rest of the sentence. Signed: Barnard."

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President. In reviewing the—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a minute, Mr. Barnard. Let's get this straight.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Yeah, okay.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard's amendment has the effect of putting a period after the word "diversion" and striking the rest of the sentence. I don't see the "of'. It looks like "or" in my book. All right, on page 4, it's already "or" and on page 13, if it's "of ', change it to "or". Very well. Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President. I move we disregard the question of "of' or "or" and leave that to Style and Drafting. I noticed that myself. It was different in two different places. I also move to insert a period after the word "diversion" and delete the rest of the sentence.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE BARNARD: The reason for this is just to make it comply with the provisions and limitations we put in the Revenue and Finance Report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. All -Mr. Barnard has explained that this is to make it comply with what we've done in the Revenue and Finance section. All in favor of allowing the committee to make that amendment in the printed book here, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Barnard, it's done. Go ahead.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President. I move that when this committee does arise to report, after having had under consideration Section 3 of the report of the Education and Public Lands Committee, that the same be passed as amended.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there discussion? Members of the body, you have before you for your consideration Section 3, as amended, upon the recommendation of Mr. Barnard that when this committee does arise and report after this consideration, that we recommend it be adopted. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Will the clerk read Section 4.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 4. Board of Land Commissioners. The Governor, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Secretary of State and Attorney General shall constitute the State Board of Land Commissioners, which shall have the direction, control, leasing, exchange and sale of the school lands of the state and the lands granted or which may hereafter be granted for the support and benefit of the various state educational institutions, under such regulations and restrictions as may be prescribed by law." Section 4, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section XI-Article XI, Section 4, of the Education and Public Lands Proposal, that it recommend the same and be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: This section remains practically the same as in the old Constitution, with the exception of one word. We had at first taken out--away from on-the board commissioners, but then with long deliberation we contained the same as in it. This section remains almost unchanged from the original Constitution. The board, composedoffourelectiveofficials-the Governor, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Attorney General and Secretary of State--serves an important function in supervising the manage. ment of the state's school lands and the income derived from these lands. The board, while operating under this constitutional provision, has well worked in the past and would appear to be able to do the same for the foreseeable future. The only change deemed desirable at this time is the addition of the word "exchange". We felt that to make this more workable and more flexible, that we inserted this word. The Enabling Act of 1889, which gave Montana certain sections of land for school support, was amended in 1932 to state: "Any of said lands may be exchanged for other lands, public or private, of equal value and as near as may be of equal area", and so forth. Our Constitution has not been amended since this time. Since we are unable to provide for such exchanges as listed in the Enabling Act, we are now proposing that the Constitution contain a provision consistent with the Enabling Act to provide for exchanges of land, consolidate diverse holdings for better management. We hope to give the state the opportunity to exchange isolated tracts ofland for equal holdings adjacent to or in the near proximity of other state lands so that the management of all state lands may be done with a limited effort and achieving the maximum benefit to the school fund. This is borne out when one can observe one tract of state land completely surrounded by private land. The problems of leasing, maintenance and access in these areas would be solved by allowing for this isolated state land to be exchanged. Requests from officials for this provision-these came from the men who run into this type of problem often in trying to achieve the maximum amount of the benefit to the people of Montana. Mr. Ted Schwinden, Commissioner of State Lands; Mr. Gareth Moon, State Forester; the Constitution Revision Commission recommended the deletion of the Public Lands Article. Due to statutory nature, House Joint Resolution Number 32 asked the Convention for multiple-use classification and the need for sound land-management principles which encompass the inclusion of the word "exchange" to reach this goal. In summary, the committee feels that this provision, written in general terms yet providing for adequate safe. guards, would allow for greater legislative flexibility in future dealings with the state lands to best meet the changing needs and interests of the people. This provision will enhance the benefits obtained from state lands, whether it be for the school fund or from state lands or other prospective purposes that these lands were granted for. In conclusion, let me reinstate the need for this provision to bring Constitution up-to-date and, consistent with the present amended Enabling Act of 1889, to consolidate diverse holdings for better management, requests from officials who operate under the existing cumbersome provision. For these reasons and other testimonies given to our committee, I support you for this change. And this is the reason why that we would put this word in here. As you know, we have some state lands, especially in the northeastern part of our state, which takes from 2 to 3 days to maintain-to go down there and revalue--reappraise this land. And they were-from all of our testimonies, it took probably 2 years in rental money before they got enough to pay for the-for sending this man down here to maintain this. The only change deemed— is "exchanged" to the list of activities within the board's power. This is what-the reason why we did this. The need for this has become evident in cases where the state has been prevented from making advantageous exchanges of land by the omission of this power from the present constitutional provision. The committee also considered revising the membership of the board, and particularly reducing the number of members to three by omission of the Secretary of State, but decided that the four constitutionally named elective officers were as important so as to direct control and that an even-numbered board requiring a majority of three for a decision would emphasize the principle of caution over that of expediency. Mr. Chairman, I hope you will support our majority vote.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Section 4-there's an amendment proposed by Mrs. Warden. Do you want it read from the Chair, Mrs. Warden?

DELEGATE WARDEN: Yes, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Will the clerk read Mrs. Warden's amendment.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 4, line 11, on page 4, of the Education and Public Lands Proposal by deleting the words 'Secretary of State'-end of quote. Signed: Warden."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Warden wants to make an amendment leaving out the Secretary of State off the Land Board in line 11, Section 4.

Mrs. Warden.

DELEGATE WARDEN: Mr. President and fellow delegates. I hate to disagree with Mr. Conover and the Education Board, but I've worked on a great number of boards in the years that I've done public service, and I have yet to find that an uneven number wasn't more practical than an even number. And as a member of the Executive Committee, I felt that we should have a short ballot, and this may come to pass at another time. I think the Secretary of State as a record-keeper has statutory duties and that in order to provide for some future time, if there is a shorter ballot at some time, that perhaps it would be good to eliminate it. And I would strongly support a three-man board.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion?

Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President and fellow delegates. I'm afraid I have to take the responsibility for the Education Committee leaving the statute exactly as it was before. My argument before the committee at that time was, why delete it? Three is better-in this particular case, the only authority they have is exchange, sale, or lease public lands; and we said, in this case, we don't want them selling any anyway, so if they get hung up or deadlocked, that means they can't sell; so we decided to leave it in. But if you want it out, it really doesn't make any difference. As far as we were concerned, though, in this particular case, if they get deadlocked on selling something, well, let them stay deadlocked; that means they can't go ahead and sell it. We want to keep the lands in the state. We don't want to restrict them from selling it, but we want it to be done with the greatest deal of caution. So if they get deadlocked, we would be perfectly happy. We're not trying to make it an easy function in this particular area.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. Delegate Davis says it doesn't make any difference anyway. I think when the Executive Committee talked to the Commissioner of Land and to the members of the-and looked into the matter of the Land Board, there were many of us, at least, that had the doubt whether it made any difference we had a board or not at all. And I think that we ought to consider this very seriously. I must say, and I can only speak for myself, that we spent several hours talking to the people involved, and we were very impressed with the fact that the real work is done by the Commissioner of Lands. This board met regularly once a month for about a half hour-that's what we were told by everybody-pretty much rubber-stamped what the Commissioner had already decided. The regulations were there about, you know, that the lands were inviolate, so there weren't many decisions. And that-this seems like a protection, but I wonder if it really is. And I can't help wondering if we ought not to talk about deleting. I'd be--rather hear some debate before I make that motion, but it seems to me that if we left it to the Legislature to design that type of board that would give us the protection that we need and not tie up our four chief state officers in a half hour meeting once a month that-to rubber-stamp the work anyway, we might be much wiser. I think we should seriously consider that.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. I would certainly support the majority report in retaining the Land Board, but I wish to disagree with my colleague, Carl Davis. He and I discussed it somewhat briefly, and I can appreciate that we should pay some respect, I suppose, for tradition and the past. But it just does not seem to me to be good business or good draftsmanship to have a situation where you can have a tie vote. I would never draw a corporate document in that fashion. I would never put together a business enterprise or a business organization where you're going to have a tie vote and force the courts, of course, to break the tie. In this situation, I suppose if you had a tie, you would have no action at all. I support Delegate Margaret Warden. I think it's a very sensible amendment. I think it's one we should adopt.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Woodmansey.

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: I would like to make a couple of comments. I favor the recommendation of the committee. First of all, we have to remember that the State Land Commissioner is appointed by the Governor. We have the Governor on the board, and I feel that when we reduce this to a three-man board, we create a little bit more of the risk of having some of this land sold or done away with in some manner where the public schools of the state might be cheated. I don't believe in selling this land, and I don't believe anyone else does unless it's not economically feasible to keep them. But this land is a very valuable thing, and there are many people in this state who would like to get their hands on this land. And I don't think we should forget that. And just because we have four members on the board, I don't feel it's necessarily bad. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman. I support the position of the majority report. I think that we should have perhaps five on it if we have to have an uneven number, rather than four. They are elective officers. They possibly will be members of opposing political parties. They will all be watching each other, and I'm in favor of having them watch one another. This land is very valuable, as Delegate Woodmansey pointed out. I pointed out here on this floor a few days ago money that is coming to the state from one section of land down in Johnson-Pemberton land, of $9 million in the next 8 or 9 years. And this isn't any chickenfeed.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President. I have here a recommendation of the Montana School Boards Association, and they recommend that Section 4 be included without an amendment, and that includes that the Governor, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Secretary of State, and Attorney General shall constitute the ex officio members of the State Land Board. They urge the adoption of this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Mr. Chairman. Would I be out of order if I gave a few comments of the valuation of our land and investments?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, can you tell me how it applies to whether or not we keep the Secretary of State on the board?

DELEGATE CONOVER: Well, I'll be just-the reason why, they would probably make up their mind if they figured they need three or whether they need four or five.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, go ahead and do so briefly then, Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Fellow delegates. As you know, our public lands constitute five-point million acres, or pretty near 6 percent of the total land area of the State of Montana. The present value of this land is appraised at $114 million-plus. The interest in income alone from these state lands amounted to $10,531,000 for the fiscal year of 1970. It also should be noted that 90 percent of the receipts belong to the public school fund. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I support the amendment of Delegate Warden. I feel that the removal of the Secretary of State is admirable. If we really want to have a large board for controlling this particular situation, we might turn it back to the Legislature. But I think that the board-as indicated, the three members would be desirable to four. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The question is on Mrs. Warden's motion to delete the Secretary of State from the State Land Board.

Mrs. Babcock.

DELEGATE BABCOCK: I'd just like to point out that occasionally a Governor might be out of state, and if you eliminate the Secretary of State, you'd still have only two people acting on the Land Board..

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Gysler.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Chairman. Our committee also was involved in considerable study on this-on the publiclands situation. And I certainly wouldn't-will not support any amendment to decrease the number on that board.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Warden, do you want to close?

DELEGATE WARDEN: I just want to—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Oh, Mr. Woodmansey, do you want to speak?

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: I would just like to make one further comment. I'm sure many of you are aware-a short time ago, when you had a two-to-two tie on the board. It regarded some state land in the Lincoln area. And I think it was fortunate that we had a four-member board at that time. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Warden, do you want to close?

DELEGATE WARDEN: I'll just close. I think all the arguments have been said.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mrs. Warden's motion, which would eliminate the Secretary of State-the word "Secretary of State" from line 11 on Section 4. A roll call vote. So many as shall be in favor, vote Aye; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate want to change his vote?

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 2'5 delegates have voted Aye; 59 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well; 59 having voted No and 25 Aye, the motion is defeated.

Mr. Cate, you have an amendment before the Chair. Would you like it read?

DELEGATE CATE: Please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's very short. I'll read it, Mr. Clerk. Mr. Cate moves to take the words "and sale" out of Section 4, on line 14. The effect would be to take away from the Land Board the power of selling land, but they may still control, lease, and exchange land.

Mr. Cate.

DELEGATE CATE: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. When the federal government gave the State of Montana the federal-the state school lands, it was one of the greatest things that ever happened to our state. And the intention of the federal government in giving us those school lands was to allow the state to sell those lands to homesteaders and others for the purpose of financing the public school system within the state, the free public school system. Fortunately for the people of Montana, those lands were not sold in the manner that was intended by the federal government when they were granted to the State of Montana, and they have now become the greatest single asset that we have in the State of Montana. Now, presently, any citizen of the State of Montana can petition the Land Board for the sale of state lands. Then public notice of the sale is published in the newspaper; the land is appraised by the State Land Board; and ifthatindividualmeets the-he's required to meet the appraised bid-and the land can be bought by private individuals. What concerns me here is this: that I know of several situations where out-of-state corporations have purchased our state lands. And the manner in which they do it is this: they have someone who lives in Montana petition for the sale of state land and go in and pay the bid price, and then, after he has purchased the land, that individual transfers the land to this out-of-state corporation. Now, it concerns me that some wealthy individual or some out-of-state corporation could at some time in the future move into the State of Montana and accomplish the purchase of a substantial portion of our valuable state lands, which would then be gone from the school fund forever. And I think this amendment would take away from the State Board of Land Commissioners the right to sell the land, but I see no great restriction being caused by the removal of that. They still have the right to exchange land. So if a particular section of land was needed for some other purpose and someone wanted to obtain it from the state, they could arrange for an exchange with the state, but the trust fund itself would remain intact for all time to come. And I recognize that at the present time the average sale of state lands is only about 400 acres a year. That's been the average over the last 5 years; about 400 acres a year have been sold. But as the demand comes for more and more recreational lands in Montana, as we become more populated, the demand for these state lands and the petitions of citizens to purchase them are going to become greater. And I think that we ought to afford this protection to this trust fund, which has turned out to be the greatest asset that our schools have. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President. Will Mr. Cate yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Cate, will you yield?

DELEGATE CATE: I certainly would.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Jerry, did you talk to Ted Schwinden about this?

DELEGATE CATE: No, I did not.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Thank you, Jerry. I'd like to speak to it briefly. I'm as concerned as Mr. Cate and I appreciate his feeling on this about-that we want to preserve our state lands. But I have gone down and talked to Mr. Schwinden at times, and I think--I consider him one of the outstanding Land Commissioners we've ever had in the State of Montana. And there are times that arise when it is advantageous to the State of Montana and to our management of the trust lands to sell some of them. The last thing we want is to have them all sold off, but sometimes it is profitable to the State of Montana to sell them. So I think this would be too restrictive, if we were to strike those words. I would oppose the amendment to strike.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Johnson, you were next.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman. Would Mr. Cate yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Cate?

DELEGATE CATE: I'd be glad to, Torrey.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Jerry, I only have one small piece of school land on our ranch. If it were sold, it would bring, oh, probably $50 an acre. Now, if that money was put into this trust that's inviolate, you'd never touch it-couldn't it be invested so it would bring more than a dollar an acre, the approximate lease that most of the school lands bring at this time? Wouldn't it bring 5 percent or better?

DELEGATE CATE: Well, I don't know what you're paying for your school land right now, but if that's the case, perhaps the lands aren't being properly managed. My concern would be to protect-Money, Torrey, is, in an inflationary society, is not a very stable thing. But in any society, land has traditionally been the standard of value. A piece of land today, even though it might be leased out for less than it's worth, is a stable commodity. And $50—if it could be sold for $50 an acre today, 10 years from now $50 an acre might be worth 50 cents. But the land is going to have its inherent value for as long as there's a demand for land, and there's going to be a demand for land as long as there's people. So I don't think I'd-at the present time, I would agree with you that that would be the effect. The money invested would bring more money back, but on the other hand, if we have inflation, that money isn't going to mean anything compared to what the land would mean in that event. I think the land is better security.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Okay, thank you. Mr. Chairman. I wasn't trying to get somebody to sell me-or to have the state sell this particular piece of land, because, under the circumstances, and the way it has been, it's much cheaper for the person that's using the land to lease it than it is to buy it and pay taxes on it. This is the way it has been. But-and I wasn't trying to take any money away from the state. I was trying to point out that in a lot of cases, they would probably make more money if they had this money invested, maybe drawing a better rate of interest and so on. But as Mr. Cate pointed out, and thanks to him, I see what he means by holding onto it for another 10 or 15 years and it could easily be worth quite a little bit more. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Skari has been up.

DELEGATE SKARI: Mr. President and fellow delegates. I appreciate Mr. Cate's intentions there, but I think perhaps it's just a little bit too restrictive. I think we have insured that this land cannot be disposed of without very good reason by requiring a three-fourths vote on that. At times it may be profitable to sell, as Mr. Johnson pointed out. Some of these lands are small parcels and they're isolated and, at times, they bring very high prices. I know in my area they do; they're very seldom sold now. Also, landlords sometimes don't return the rental they should on these lands, for one reason or another. And sometimes, for this reason, it is better that the state dispose of them. There might be a few risks here, but I think that we should allow the State Land Board a little discretion there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Blend.

DELEGATE BLEND: Mr. Chairman. Would Mr. Cate yield to two points ofinformation, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Cate?

DELEGATE CATE: I certainly would try to, Mrs. Blend.

DELEGATE BLEND: Jerry, the money obtained from sales does go into the foundation plan, right?

DELEGATE CATE: Yes, as I understand, it does.

DELEGATE BLEND: And a share of the mineral rights are retained, right?

DELEGATE CATE: I'm not sure about that. I think they have the discretion to retain them. All of them are, yeah.

DELEGATE BLEND: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'd like those in the chamber to be quiet, who are not talking, and I'd appreciate it if the group at the back would either go outside or sit down. I can't see who's up. Thank you.

Mr. Drum.

DELEGATE DRUM: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I would like to oppose Mr. Cate's amendment for this reason: it is impractical for a State Land Commissioner to operate at full efficiency unless he has the ability, at certain times, to sell certain portions of the state-owned land. He would have to be able to do it in order to accumulate blocks of land. Exchanges, at some times, will be impractical. And I commend the committee for allowing the State Land Commissioner to operate more effectively. At the present time, Mr. Cate, it so happens that over a period of 15 years, I have leased a piece of state land along the Yellowstone River. It's about three-quarters of a mile of Yellowstone River land; it's a very nice piece of land. It costs me $5.14 a year to lease it, I think. And it's—my conscience bothers me every time I pay that bill. While I've been here in this delegation at the Constitutional Convention, I was contacted by the State Land Commission--would it be all right with me if they could sell that to the city of Billings for a park facility? And I said I'd be tickled to death to have the state to do that. As you know, the city of Billings is accumulating land in that area, and it, in the future, will become a very, very nice park area. Now, if your amendment is passed, it will take away the ability of the state to accumulate land, probably sell it to cities or to counties or to park systems or that type of thing. I would suggest that we leave the latitude that is recommended by this section in the hands of the Commission and depend upon the Legislature, which in the future--which presently limits the State Land Commission. They are very restrictivein the statutes as to how this can be handled, and I feel that we should give them this latitude and support the committee report. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Cate, would you like to close?

Mr. Davis, do you really want to talk?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Yes, I think I should, as Chairman of the Subcommittee on State Lands in this Convention and for the Education and Public Lands, much as I hate to. We considered Jerry's position very seriously because we're opposed to sales. We talked about making that prohibition. I woke up in the middle of the night and remembered I'd worked 20 years on the Clark Canyon Dam in Beaverhead County. They formed an irrigation district, and they had many acres of state land. If the state hadn't been able to sell that, we couldn't have had the project, a great project for the State of Montana to preserve its water. So it is too restrictive if we limit it that way. And we all feel the same as Jerry does on it. But they've been a great guardian of this trust. I mean, their record is such that I think that you can feel confident they will not sell any lands unwisely. Therefore, I would oppose the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President. I'd like to speak in opposition to Mr. Cate's amendment. I would like to also correct some statements that's been made here. We have a couple small parcels of school land on our operation, and we certainly pay more per acre for those lands than the taxes would be on them. And I would also say that I wonder how Mr. Drum got by as well as he did. But I think this is one of the reasons why we have a Land Board. And they try to correct these situations, and they do have to have the flexibility to be able to trade lands or sell lands in such a manner that it would be beneficial to the educational system in Montana. And I think that if we put this restriction on them, we would certainly be putting a restriction on the future of the educational program in the State of Montana. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, Mr. Cate, would you like to close?

DELEGATE CATE: Mr. Chairman. Would Mr. Davis yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Cate.

DELEGATE CATE: Would your committee have any objection to adding, after the word "and sale"-adding the words "in its discretion", which would give the Land Board the right to refuse to sell?

DELEGATE DAVIS: In answer to that—

DELEGATE CATE: So that there's a specific provision to that effect.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Cate, we have a lot of statutory law and policy on this.

DELEGATE CATE: Right. I—

DELEGATE DAVIS: And it is in their discretion now, and they exercise their discretion wisely, I think.

DELEGATE CATE: That's a judicable issue which is, in fact, presently pending down here in the local district court, whether or not they have discretion. And there's a serious question whether or not they have discretion. And if we put those words in there, then we'd be sure that they had the right to refuse to sell.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Well, I couldn't speak for the members of the committee, but I personally would object to making any change in the report as it now stands.

DELEGATE CATE: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I would have to disagree with Mr. Drum that the city of Billings would be prevented from selling this land to him or providing this land for a park, because all the city of Billings would have to do is to go out and buy some land to exchange with the Land Board for that land. The same situation applies in all these other cases. And for the rural people who are concerned about leasing school lands, well, it looks to me like they'd be getting a bargain forever here by eliminating this right to sell, because they'd never be forced to buy it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The question is on Mr. Cate's motion to strike the words "and sale" on line 14 of Section 4, taking away from the Board of Land Commissioners the right to sell lands but leaving the right to control, lease and exchange lands. Mr. Foster wants a roll call. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, vote Aye; and so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 10 have voted Aye, 77 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 77 having voted No and only 10 having voted Aye, the motion fails.

Mr. Studer, you have a motion before the Chair. Do you want it read?

DELEGATE STUDER: Yes, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: I didn't write it just right. I was in kind of a hurry. I really should have omitted the word "and" in front of "Attorney General" and put it behind it, in front of "State Auditor."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer has an amendment which proposes to add the words "State Auditor" to the list of people on the Board of Land Commissioners. If you add it after Public— "Superintendent of Public Instruction", you don't need another-to move the "and", Mr. Studer. So his proposal is to add the words "State Auditor" after "Superintendent of Public Instruction".

Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President. The only reason I done this was because I don't really like to see a four-board-four people try to decide on anything and go into a hassle over it and leave it up in the air for a great length of time. I don't see where adding another man wouldn't cure that problem, and with that, that's all I've got to say.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion?

Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Well, Mr. Chairman, this guarantees the protection that some of the delegates were talking about. Not even the Supreme Court would have an even number of people deciding the matters in controversy that are absolutely important to the liberty of the individual citizen. And it certainly is not good business. It's not good construction for any type of organization or board to have an even number on it. Delegate Studer's amendment is going to cure that particular vice, it's going to give greater protection to school lands, it's going to be more businesslike, and it's going to be more sensible. And I suggest that the amendment should be adopted.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion? Very well, the issue is on—

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman. We could do the same thing by just merely putting forth to the-in our record that we would suggest that the Land Board from now on only have the Chairman vote in the case of a tie. Now, if you have a four-member board, you would never have a tie, because there'd be two for it and one against it. If you had one member absent, you'd have two members, and he'd break the tie if they were opposite each other. So there really is no object in having a five-member board if you went along with that idea. It's very simple.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion? Very well. The issue is on Mr. Studer's motion to add the State Auditor to the Board of Land Commissioners on line 11, after "Superintendent of Public Instruction". So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair is in doubt. So many as shall be in favor, vote Aye; and so many opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Take the vote, please. No, it's not a roll call, so never mind. 48 having voted Aye, 40 having voted No, the motion prevails. Members of the committee, are there-is there further discussion of subsection 4, the Board of Land Commissioners?

Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: Mr. President. I've been trying to do a little fast arithmetic here while we were discussing this question. It seems to me we're overlooking a real bonanza, and I think we're treating it in a rather cavalier fashion. The statement was indicated here that we have 10,531,000 acres of land and our annual income is around $5 million per year. That comes to two bucks an acre. I don't know of much land around my part of the country that you can buy for much less than $40 at the present time. Just last fall, I sold a 160-acre tract about 30 miles north of town that was practically all gumbo, and I got 40 bucks an acre for it. A couple of years ago, I sold a 160-acre tract in the Bear Paw Montains. It was on top of a mountain. I sold it to the Henderson Ranch, and I got $50 an acre for that. This is land for people out of the state. I would submit that $40 an acre is probably the rock-bottom price for land in Montana at the present time, and that much of this school land is probably worth a hundred fifty to two hundred dollars an acre. But let's take just the $40 per acre figure. And if we sold all of the land-now mind you, I'm not advocating this; I, too, want to hang onto the land, but I want to see it managed. If we took ten and a half million acres of land and sold it for $40 an acre, that would produce $420 million. And if that were invested at 5 percent, which is a conservative figure at this time, that would produce an income of $21 million per year against the 5 million that we're getting. Now, I used a basic minimum figure of $40 per acre. And I submit that if the land were more realistically valued, it would probably be sold for closer to a billion dollars, or twice what it is now-and even that's conservative--which would produce an income of roughly $50 million per year to the State of Montana. Against this, we're getting 5. Now, there's something wrong. I don't know where it is. And I'm simply throwing this out to inquire of the committee if they took this matter up, or if the Finance Committee took this matter up. This is a chunk of dough worthgoing after. I think we could easily get $21 million a year out of this instead of the measly 5. Now, they might say that,well, we don't want to hire all those people to go out and check these crops, or we don't want to go out and hire all those people to go out and check land leases, or we don't want to hire these people to go out and check the return per barrel on oil land. But the truth of the matter is, there's an awful lot of money here that I don't think the State of Montana is getting. Now, I suppose this question comes up in the Legislature year after dreary year; but we're a Constitutional Convention, and we're sitting here setting up a commission that is entirely political. Every single one of those is an elected official, and undertheirdirection, they hire a man. Now does that sound like a good deal to you when it looks like we're dealing with about $21 million per year at a basic minimum? Don't you think that we should think a little more clearly about this and perhaps give some thought to taking this matter out of politics entirely if we can? If we can. One thought that I have just offhand is putting this in the Public Service Commission. There is an organization that's not nearly as politically oriented as the Governor and the Auditor and all the rest. And perhaps they could hire a group of people to go out and investigate these things and increase the return substantially. NOW, that's just one idea, but it does seem to me that the commission that we set up here in the Constitution is politically oriented, and that's probably one of the reasons why we're not getting the income we should be. I'm wondering if we shouldn't leave the whole thing out of the commission-out of the Constitution rather--and leave it up to the Legislature and let them see if they couldn't organize as nonpolitical a body as they could come up with to manage these lands.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman, I don't know where Mr. Swanberg got his figures, but they are not anywhere nearly close to being correct. He says we have ten and a half million acres. Somewhere there's about 6 million acres that, apparently, the Public-the Education and Public Lands Committee overlooked, because we have less than 5 million acres of school land. And I think this simply shows that when we react to things off the cuff, how wide of the mark sometimes we come.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion?

Mr. Drum. Well, let's see, Mr. Conover was up. I'll come back to you.

Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Mr. Chairman. I hate to do this to my fellow delegate in our Education Committee, but I'm going to have to correct both of you. The public land constitutes five million point eight acres that we have in the state school lands, and the income from those lands of 1970 was ten million, five hundred thirty-one thousand dollars and one cent. That makes the average paid value on this land of about $20 an acre. You want to remember that a lot of the state land today is basically up around the Fort Peck Dam. If you would put a cow on it, you'd have to give her a lunch bucket for her to go across it and come back, because she'd starve to death. (Laughter) I would like to see anybody here that would even buy a piece of land. Even if you put a price on it of five cents an acre or a penny an acre, there isn't a soul in here that would buy it. Now this is-these are the actual-State lands is appraised at $114 million-plus. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, Mr. Drum.

DELEGATE DRUM: Very quickly, Mr. Chairman, I would like to even correct Mr. Conover. (Laughter) In the State Land Department investments in 1970, the acreage was a net acreage of 5,287,000, of which grazing lands are 4,141,223.72; agricultural lands, in other words, wheatlands is about 500,000 acres. Now, my comment to Mr. Cate-where that this-put by injecting this word "exchange", it is going to allow the State Board of Land Commissioners to be much more effective in their management of these lands. It may break your heart to know thatright now the average income on an acre of rangeland to the State of Montana is about between 18 and 19 cents per acre. If that were on the tax rolls, it would be bringing in something in excess of 20 cents per acre, somewhere in the neighborhood of 23, 24 cents on the average throughout the State of Montana. So actually, right now, if all of this land were given to the fellow who is leasing it and let him pay taxes on it, somewhere there would be more money coming in from it. The problem is, if you will look at the map in Mr. Schwinden's office-is each one of these sections that is owned by the state-or the school trust-it is Section 16 and 36, and it is absolutely impossible to manage land that is located in that way. The ranchers who have it now are not going to fence it. They are not going to allow someone to come in and use it if they are-if they don't wish them to, because they're not going to give them the right-of-way to do it. So the ranchers are going to be able to use this land from now on, and maybe they should if it fits into their ranch. But what I'm saying is that in order for the state to come up with a fair and equitable return on this land, they are going to have to have the ability to trade it around, perhaps with the rancher, perhaps trade it for more recreational land. A trade may be in order or maybe a sale may be in order as the one I described down in Yellowstone County, because Yellowstone County certainly is not going to go out and buy another piece of land to trade for this land. I don't think that is going to be agreeable with the state. So the wording of the present section is going to allow, I believe, the Board of Land Commissioners to be more effective. And we hope that in the future they will be able to bring this income up, because that is truly the purest form of tax relief. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates, you were next.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I doubt that many of you really understand the problem of state land leasing. For many years we have leased state land. Now-this land was in the ownership of our family, and during the depression, this land was lost for taxes. We cannot buy it back. The state demands the interest on the money to be valued at what their income is now. This means that this land would now be sold at the-at a much higher going rate than is valuable, tillable land. Also, we must meet matching bids if we are to retain this land to farm. I would like to find some of this cheap rent-based land that some of you are talking about, because we find we are paying, on our state land, much higher rent than we are receiving from the private land-the place that we rent-lease. We must maintain, on the land that we lease, the buildings, the upkeep, the fences, all the other things that are necessary to maintain a ranch; while at the same time, the little farm that we lease out-we must, as the owners keep up this property. And I think this land must be maintained for our schools and for our children, and we must try to protect it; but don't think that the farmers are getting a deal, because they're really not.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair has no motions ahead-before it except just Section 4. Now, we can continue to discuss this; but when you're finished, we'll go to dinner.

Mr. Siderius.

DELEGATE SIDERIUS: Mr. President. I think one of our biggest mistakes here is that we're not getting enough for our grazing lands. Now, the state charges 86 cents a month per animal unit, which consists of a cow and a calf. They charge from 86 cents down to 66 cents. Now, when we lease from individuals--when one private party leases to another, they get as high as $4 a month per animal unit. Now, that makes quite a difference in the grazing rentals. And I think that's where our biggest mistake is-that is, the state's biggest mistake is-and I would sure like to see that brought up to where it should be.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President. We're going to have a Public Land Article that we're going to discuss subsequently. And there is quite a little material I know you'll want to know onwhat they're trying to do. But I wonder if we could defer that until we get to the Public Land, if it's possible. I certainly think everyone should have their say, but there's quite a bit they are trying to do statutorily; and I don't think we should get into that this evening.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Mr. Chairman, may I close?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You may close. (Laughter)

DELEGATE CONOVER: I have great respect for Jerry's motion that he wanted to make, because we thought of it, but it would be-it wouldn't be workable; it just couldn't be there. So I want to say very briefly that we-the article--or the section that we have here is practically the same as the old Constitution with only one word "exchange", and I hope that it will be ofbenefit for the future.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Now, Mr. Conover, we took care of that one, but we do need you to close on your article. But I think all we need to say is that--members of the body, you have before you for your consideration Section 4, on the recommendation of Mr. Conover, when this body arises and reports that it recommend the same be adopted as amended. All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 4 is adopted.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I move that the Committee of the Whole rise and report progress and beg leave to sit again.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Babcock, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE BABCOCK: Mr. Chairman. I rise for a point of personal privilege. I don't know if anyone has noticed, but we have a picture of the Vice President of the United States on the walls of this Convention Hall. It has been defamed, and it's been recorded on this machine all afternoon. And this tape will be used to show our children, and I don't think that's in good taste at all.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. I wonder if whoever owns that picture will take it down. And if they don't, in the morning we'll have a vote to see if we can take it down. The motion was to rise and report. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Report progress, that is. Very well, Opposed?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read the title and signature of the committee report.

CLERK SMITH: "March 10, 1972. Mr. President. We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration Report Number 10 of the Committee on Education and Public Lands, recommend as follows: that the Committee rise and report progress and beg leave to sit again. Signed: Graybill, Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Is there anyone who wants the entire report read?

DELEGATES: No.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. So many as are in favor of the report of the Committee of the Whole, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and so ordered.
Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I so move that we adopt the Committee of the Whole report. There are a couple of announcements.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman and delegates. The interns have asked me to announce that they are having a party at their house tonight. Kind of a-1 think this is the beginning of final week if they were in school, so it seems kind of the time for a last fling. Their address is 1215 Peosta—at 8 o'clock; and they would like any or all of you to come. Thank you.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Revenue and Finance, the meeting will only last 5 minutes but it will be in Room 437 on adjournment. Other announcements? Very well. All in—
Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. President. I move we adjourn until Saturday, March llth, 9:00 a.m., 1972.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: All in favor of adjourning till tomorrow morning at 9:00 a.m., say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: And so ordered.

(Adjournment 5:56 p.m.)

March 11.1972 Forty-Third Day Convention Hall
9:10 a.m. Helena, Montana

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: If you'll all rise, Father Arbanas will give us the invocation this morning.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Good Father, we are working on education. Help us to do a good job. We pray for our teachers, that they may teach both how to make a living and how a life should be lived. We pray for our students who are in school right now, that they may appreciate the wisdom of the past, the responsibility of the present, and the hope of the future. Lord, grant each of us today that we may keep in mind that one bright-eyed, freckled-face, squirmy kid is of more value than any and all of our institutions and that our most joyful privilege is to help young people to grow and to be free and to inherit a world just a little better than the one our parents left to us. Amen.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: We'll take attendance this morning by voting Aye on the voting machines.

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Babcock, Delegate Choate, Delegate Cross, Delegate Felt, Delegate Foster, Delegate Harbaugh, Delegate Heliker, Delegate Holland, Delegate James, Delegate Johnson, Delegate Joyce, Delegate Kelleher, Delegate Loendorf, Delegate Payne, Delegate Rollins, Delegate Scanlin, Delegate Babcock, Delegate Choate, Delegate Foster, Delegate Holland, Delegate Rollins. Mr. President, may Delegates Roeder and Furlong be excused, please?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Now list the absents once more, will you.

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Babcock, Delegate Choate, Delegate Foster, Delegate Holland.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Take the attendance.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to move this Convention into Committee of the Whole. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Committee of the Whole Delegate Graybill, Chairman)

CLERK HANSON: "The Style and Drafting Committee Proposal Number 5, having been duplicated and placed on the delegates' desks on the 9th day of March, 1972, at 9:00 a.m., is now in compliance with Rule 23 of the Montana Constitutional Convention Rules, March llth, 1972. The following committee proposals are now on General Orders: Education, Public Health, Local Government, General Government, Style and Drafting Reports Number 5, 6 and 7." Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. I think the point of Mr. Eskildsen's motion was that although the rules require that we take up Style and Drafting first, we--without objection we'll pass Judiciary on Style and Drafting and continue with Education this morning. Is there objection? Very well. We'll consider-continue with Education. Will the clerk please read Section 5 of Proposal Number 10, the Education and Public Lands Committee proposal.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 5. Public school fund revenue. Ninety-five percentum of all the interest received on the school funds of the state and 95 percentum of all rents received from the leasing of school lands and of all other income from the public school funds shall be equitably apportioned annually to the public elementary and secondary districts as provided by law. The remaining 5 percentum of all the interest received on the school funds of the state and the remaining 5 percentum of all the rents received from the leasing of school lands of all other income from the public school funds shall annually be added to the public school fund of the state and become and forever remain an inseparable and inviolable part thereof." Mr. Chairman, Section 5.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harrington.

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration the new Section 5 of the Education and Public Lands Article, that the same do pass.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harrington.

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: The proposed Section 5 is a shortened and revised version of Section 5 of the present Constitution. The intent of the provision-is [to] constitutionally protect the interest and income of the public school fund—is important. However, in the particular restrictions as its distribution to the schools are considered obsolete in light of present conditions. The language concerning the portions of the-distributed and which is to be reinvested remains the same as in the present Constitution. The methods of distribution previously specified are replaced by a general phrase, "shall be equitably apportioned annually to elementary and secondary schools as provided by law". The replacement language provides the desired flexibility to the Legislature to develop the school financing programs in tune with current necessities. Particularly relevant to the change is the trend across the nation, in accordance with recent court decisions under equal protection doctrine, to provide more equitable school financing systems. The flat grant type of aid provided under the old method of distributing income and interest to the school districts on a census basis is clearly antiequalizing under the standards discussed in the commentary in Section 1, but the-specifying only that the distribution must be equitable-and the new language allows the Legislature to determine the type of distribution which will attain this goal. Restrictionsin the form of specified districts, age, and school terms which may have been applicable at the time of writing an 1889 Constitution are no longer meaningful. Rather than attempt to apply new restrictions more in keeping with the contemporary school system, the committee's determined that it's preferable to allowforchangingneeds as interpreted by the Legislature by designating only a broad standard; namely, "equitably apportioned-as provided by law". A further element in the distribution system authorized by the existing provision is the specification that the interest and income money is distributed to the several school districts. This has been interpreted in the past to mean that funds deriving from this source be granted only to elementary schools, presumably because elementary schools are the only public schools in existence at the time when the provision was written. In keeping with this intention to expand legislative possibilities in educational finance, as discussed in the commentary on Section 1, the committee has replaced the phrase "several school districts" with "public elementary and secondary" schools. This would change the existing distribution system to include high schools as recipients of interest and income money. The immediate results is the-anticipated by the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction to result in a net saving of the administrative costs to the state. We have felt through this change that we have made a much more equitable section to the Constitution. Now, some actions taken in Section 1 yesterday may not be actually applicable to this. In other words, we've gone back to "several school districts". But the committee feels that this is very important. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there discussion of Section 5?

Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. Chairman. I had a delegate proposal in on this section. The committee has incorporated the-in different langauge, but the idea is there. I commend the Education Committee for changing this so that we get away from the old distribution formula to— where it was distributed to the students--or the children of a district between the ages of 6 and 21. This really didn't work out in these later years. It was-as Dan said, it might have been good for 1889, it certainly is no longer reasonable to have such language in. And I think that this is a great improvement and will give a great deal more flexibility on the distribution of these-income from these school lands. I support the Education Committee on this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin, are you up?

DELEGATE MARTIN: Yes, sir. Do I have an amendment up there?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Not to 5, that I know of.

DELEGATE MARTIN: If not—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You've got one to 8.

DELEGATE MARTIN: There's one on the same page as the one that was on yesterday.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Oh, well. All right. The clerk will read Mr. Martin's amendment.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 5, page 17, of the Education and Public Lands Committee Proposal Number 10, as follows: at line 5, page 17, by adding, between the word 'to' and the word 'public', the following words-quote: 'the several school districts of the state for'-end quote. Signed: Martin."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The phrase to add is "the several school districts of the state".

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a minute till we get it down, Mr. Martin. "Several school districts of the state for"-that phrase goes-if you're on page 4, it's on line 24, after "annually to the"-"several school districts". So the sense of the sentence reads, the money will be distributed— equitably apportioned annually to the several school districts of the state for public elementary and secondary school districts.

Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. President, Delegate Champoux was good enough to give me a book yesterday. He said my education had been neglected. And it's a working draft of a study of basic educational program funding methodology in Montana. I'll be very brief. On one page of it, it says: "The sources of revenue for school district general fund budget support for 1971 and 1972: general fund revenue, 134.8 million; the foundation program, state and county, 87.2 million, of which-and which included a permissive levy of the districts of 21.59 million and a voted levy of the district of 25.47 million." I think it evident from that that the school districts have a real part in financing education. And for that reason, I think that the amendment should be retained.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. Martin gets a "C" for the day. He didn't read far enough. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's better than "F", Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes, it is, sir. (Laughter) Fred, you're right. This is correct. I absolutely believe that the local school district is a necessity in this whole process. The problem is with that word "several", though. Now, if I may just briefly go over that point again. You see— because-if you read that report further, you'll find out that in many districts of this state, there is inequality in terms of the amount of money to be spent. Now, as Mr. Harrington noted on the business of the flat grant, a flat grant simply means a block of money that's apportioned to each individual district. Now, if the district is ahead in terms of money to begin with, when you give them the flat grant from the state, it even throws it further out of balance. You see that? So if it's unequal to begin with and you give them that flat grant, then it's going to be even more unequal. Now, when we use this-the term "several districts"--and why I asked Fred the meaning of that yesterday was to attempt to get on the record whether we mean by that every district, every district. Now, if you lawyers can convince me that the courts will say that does not mean every district, I will accept the word "several". However, if it can be open to contention, then we're in trouble. I will agree to the school districts any day, Fred. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin, the Chair would like to inquire of you. You're aware that Mr. Champoux, before he started this section, did amend line 25 on page 4 to put in the word "districts", so that it is now "annually to public elementary and secondary school districts". You're aware the word "districts" is already in the sentence?

DELEGATE MARTIN: I'm sorry, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Why don't you look at your book there? And either go to—can you go to page 4 a minute with me?

DELEGATE MARTIN: You bet.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Page 4, line 25. Before we started the whole Education Article, we amended by-they made some addenda to their draft here. And it says-the line should read "secondary school districts". They've got a little caret there. So that-1 just want you to know that word is there.

DELEGATE MARTIN: I'll withdraw my amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, I don't—okay?

DELEGATE MARTIN: I'm sorry.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. We'll let you. All right. Mr. Martin's amendment is withdrawn. Is there other discussion of Section 5?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Members of the body, you have before you for your consideration, on the recommendation of Mr. Harrington that when this committee does arise and report after having had under consideration Section 5 of the Education Article, that the same be recommended for adoption. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 5 is adopted. Will the clerk read Section 6.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 6. Aid prohibited to sectarian schools. Neither the Legislative Assembly nor any county, city, town, or school district, or other public corporations shall ever make, directly or indirectly, any appropriation or pay from any public fund or moneys whatever or make any grant of lands or other property in aid of any church or for any sectarian purpose or to aid in the support of any school, academy, seminary, college, university, or other library, scientific institution, controlled in wholeorinpart by any church, sect or denomination whatever." Mr. Chairman, Section 6.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee, after its consideration of this section of the Education Article, does rise and report that it move to adopt the same.
Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: We have, in this article-in this section, as—a majority of the committee recommended the retention of the existing language for several reasons, and I wouldlike, if you would be willing, to look with me at these reasons on pages 19 and 20 and 21. If you're like I am, on some of these reports, you've had excellent intentions, but you've been busy with your own committee and haven't had the time to maybe look in depth. And it could be that looking at them now would save us time as we carry on the debate which follows. I would direct your attention to the top of page 20. Page 19 simply states that we did very seriously consider the issue and here are some of the major points which came up. Number one, on line 3: "The primary and sigificant advantage secured by the present provision is the unequivocal support it provides for a strong public school system. The traditional separation between church and state, an important part of the American social framework, has also become a fundamental principle, of American education. The growth of a strong, universal, and free educational system in the United States has been due in part to its exclusively public character. Under federal and state mandates to concentrate public funds in public schools, our educational system has grown strong in an atmosphere free from divisiveness and fragmentation. Any diversion of funds or effort from the public school system would tend to weaken that system in favor of schools established for private or religious purposes." The second argument has to do with the fact that it is the function of the state to provide for education. We've recognized that already in the article as we proposed it. We do have that right as a state. Moving to line 26, in the third of the major points which we, as acommittee, considered-and this, I think, had perhaps as much to do with the decision we made as any of these that we have discussed-"Change in the present provision, whether substantial or merely formal, might endanger passage of the entire Constitution. The church-state issue, which is interwoven with the question of public aid to nonpublic schools, stirs deeply held emotional feelings in various sectors of the public. The emotionalism aroused over potential debates on this question might obscure other important issues in education and in the Constitution as a whole. The change in this area proposed in New York's 1967 Constitution is thought to have been a significant contributing factor to the Constitution's defeat at the polls. A large number of witnesses, representing various religious and nonreligious organizations, testified emphatically against any change in the present provision." Our fourth major point, that's listed beginning on line 10, poses the possible threat to religious groups if the state begins in some larger measure to participate in their educational process. Down on line 24 of page 21, we begin a bit of in-depth statement about the alternatives that have been proposed. "A second alternative considered by the committee was to exclude federal funds administered by the state from the applicability of the provision. A fundamental concern expressed by some witnesses before the committee was that some forms of federal aid to nonpublic schools, particularly of the type envisaged in revenue sharing programs, are or would be prohibited under the existing provision." The committee does not agree that this poses a realistic problem for, as indicated in Appendix F at the back of this report, there is a listing of the funds and the kinds of aid which have reached students in nonpublic educational institutions in the state. "It is the majority of the committee's opinion that presently operating federal aid programs in education are not being significantly affected by our constitutional provision. As to future federal programs, the committee feels that precedent shows that potential problems can be resolved without a change in the constitutional provision. No specific case was brought to the committee's attention in which federally granted funds have been denied in Montana to nonpublic schools because of the operation of the existing constitutional provision. A note from the Department of Public Instruction indicates that they have not kept any available federal funds from distribution to nonpublic schools." And I think if you look at the appendices that are in the back of our report, there's an indication of textbook loans and various federal programs which have been available and have been distributed in the amounts that are there stated. Let me say that, simply to make some kind of statement about feelings on this thing, it seems to me that I am somewhat uncomfortable in defending status quo things. I feel that life is a changing process and that we constantly have to be in a dynamic kind of dialogue with what's going on if we're going to stay in touch with what's happening in our world. Probably if we were starting from no place, the exact wording of this statement might not be as it is in our Constitution, but we did genuinely feel that this had had an effect on the New York Constitution, thatitwasestablishingat least the principle of separation that we have observed in our government and in our schools throughout history, and that to tamper with it would be to endanger the entire document. As a way of understanding this, I thought for myself that this Constitution, in some ways, can be likened to shipbuilding in this country in the middle of the 1800's, when there was a change going on from sailboats to steam engines. And for awhile those who advocated steam and those who advocated sails were in battle as to how to build vessels that would handle ocean transport. There was a period in our history when both sails and steam were onboard the ships; they didn't trust either one completely. I think Montana is in process of transition, as is our nation, and always is in the process of transition and there must be some holding firm on certain principles as we move out in others. And I've sometimes thought we're midway between the cow pony and solid fuel rocketry here in Montana. We have both. Both have a place, and each does a job. I profoundly hope that the solid fuel rocketry that's less than a hundred miles from here and-never is used in those silos; I hope we'll see the day when that's refashioned for a granary or whatever those things. But at any rate, this is where we are. And we felt that to play fair with the document as a whole, the majority of us would advocate keeping the section as it now stands. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. I'd like to move an amendment to this section. The amendment is the minority proposal on page 43. The amendment removes the word "indirectly" from the body of the majority proposal and adds, at the close, these words: "This section shall not apply to funds from federal sources provided to the state for the expressed purpose of distribution to nonpublic education."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh, what's the ward that you remove?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: The words "or indirectly", on line-well, it's on line 8 of the minority proposal, where the correction is made. In the majority proposal, it's on line 6.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Line-all right, on page what?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: On page 5, removing the words "or indirectly".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Line-I just want to be with you here. Line-page 6—

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Page 5, line 6. We're deleting "or indirectly".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay. So the sense of the minority proposal is to delete the words "or indirectly", on line 6 on page 5, and to add the sentence which is placed at the end, which is line 14 to 17 on page 43. Is that correct?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: That's correct.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Now, go ahead.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. I suppose at the beginning of this I should say that-1 should admit to my special interest here, that I am a member of a denomination which, along with three other denominations—two other denominations-has a financial interest in the support of Rocky Mountain College in Billings. The press had an interesting time with the fact that I was planning to debate this, and I hope that, if nothing else, this debate will prove that ministers are human and that they can disagree with one another. I'd like to give you some of the reasons why I think we need some changes in this section. First of all, I think that it's important to understand the background of the so-called Blaine Amendment, which is the section that is presently in our Constitution, which the majority is proposing that we retain. Now, this type of article is common to many states. I think there are 30-some states that have this particular type of article. It originated through a man by the name of James G. Blaine, who was an American statesman and politician back in the 19th century. In 1862, he was elected to Congress, and he introduced into the Congress the Blaine Amendment, which basically is the clause that we have in our Constitution. That amendment did not pass the federal Constitution, but it developed in an area when there was a great deal of concern across the country about foreigners and about Catholics in particular. A rather secret society grew up, the purpose of which was to be sure that no foreigners and no Catholics were elected to public offices. They called themselves the "Know-nothing Party", because whenever they were asked what party they belonged to, they would reply that—"I don't know." And so they gained the name of the Know-nothing Party. Now, even though the Blaine Amendment failed in the Congress-the amendment which espoused the purpose of the Know-nothing Party-at about this same time across the country, many states were writing their constitutions. And, consequently, as the hysteria of this movement spread across the nation, many state constitutions wrote into their document the Blaine Amendment. And so, in 1889, when Montana was developing its Constitution, along with the Dakotas, this section was included. So, here in 1972, or 80 years later, the State of Montana still retains in its constitution remnants of a long-past era of prejudice. And the inflexibility and the rigidity of this borrowed heritage is something that I do not think belongs in our Constitution. Now, having said that, I want to make the point that it is not my intention here to debate the doctrine of separation of church and state, because I think that doctrine has amply been set forth by the United States Supreme Court's interpretation of the 1st Amendment and there is absolutely nothing that we could do here as a body that could in any way alter 200 years of court interpretation and tradition. And so, the point of this amendment has to do with federal aid to nonpublic education; it does not have to do with state aid to public education. The minority is right in pointing-or the majority, rather-is right in pointing out that we are already receiving federal funds in this state and-although, because of the restrictive language of our present Constitution, sometimes we have to use some rather questionable methods in order to see that the aid gets to its destination. Just as one example, let me cite the way that we distribute textbooks in this state to the nonpublic schools. They have to go out on what is called permanent loan to the public schools, because the state cannot give textbooks to the public schools because of this particular section of our Constitution. And so, we loan them permanently. Now, you and I know that if we have a book in our library and we loan it permanently, what that means. And the purpose ofremoving the word "indirectly" from the majority section would simply serve to legitimatize constitutionally what we, in fact, are doing in many areas and would make it possible for the state to authorize other forms of indirect aid permissible under the 1st Amendment, which provides assistance on the child-benefit theory. So let's keep this clearly in mind. We're talking about federal aid in this amendment, not about state aid. Secondly, the primary thrust of this amendment would be to insure that any federal funds that were made available to nonpublic parochial schools in the future would not be denied. Why do we need this sort of amendment? Well, precisely because we don't know what the structure of the financing of the public school systems is going to be in the decades ahead. Let me read to you a section of a news clipping which appeared in the Independent Record just a few days ago: "A presidential commission urged today that the states assume the primary burden for financing public schools and said much less reliance should be placed in local property taxes for this purpose. The commission on school finance appointed by President Nixon 2 years ago also recommended the federal government distribute incentive grants that would reimburse the states for part of the cost of financing elementary and secondary education. In the appendix, the commission said it did not think it appropriate to offer recommendations affecting national tax policy, including, among other things, new revenue sources such as value added tax. The report itself did not mention such a possibility. The commission-and then it goes on to tell more about the commission. But the point is here that across the nation there are many studies going on affecting various methods of financing education. Currently there is in Congress a $24 billion package for higher education underconsideration, which, if it becomes a reality, would pump large sums of federal money into the states. Now, if the federal government should, in the years to come, make block grants, provide tuition payments to students, Montana might be in a position where we could not receive such funds if its Constitution forbade the distribution of those funds through the State Department of Public Instruction. And by the addition of these few words at this time, I think we could prevent this from ever happening. Private school students need all the help that they can get in these days of inflation and rising cost. And the state should not, in my opinion, take a position which might, because of its extreme inflexibility, deny at some future date funds which might legitimately bechanneled to them from federal sources. If we're serious about our concern to give all students within our state an equal educational opportunity without regard to their religious preference, here is a way in which that cause can be aided, and it can be done without any additional cost to the State of Montana. I urge the adoption of this amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman. I don't really know quite how I got mixed up in this. I don't belong to any church or have any affiliation with any college, public or private, or school, public or private. I guess I got mixed up in it because I looked at the language, and to me, the language seems eminently fair. It takes away nothing from anyone. We have-it is admitted that Section 6 is an especially stringent section that perhaps is among the most stringent in the nation. It seems to me that those who resist the minority report perhaps might be accused of taking a "dog in the manger" attitude; if we can't have it, you can't have it either. What would happen to the federal funds if they came to the State of Montana and, under the Blaine Amendment, they could not be distributed to nonpublic schools? Would they lay idle in the state treasury? Would they revert to the federal government? I think, Mr. Chairman, that this Convention has given great attention to the rights of minorities, and I submit to you that in this instance, we have a minority right of great significance. We have given great attention to the matter of pluralism in our society and the necessity to maintain it. I think these few harmless words could be of significant benefit and cannot possibly harm anyone in the State of Montana. I urge the adoption of the minority report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Driscoll.

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: Mr. Chairman. I rise in support of Mr. Harbaugh's amendment. I first must state that I do have an interest in this argument. I am a Catholic and the parent of 10 children attending both public and private schools. I've also been engaged in public education all my life. I look with a great deal of respect on Mr. Burkhardt. I have followed his thoughts during this Convention quite well. He speaks eloquently and persuasively in everything that he does. However, when he speaks of Montana in transition and yet wants to retain an archaic provision in our Constitution, I can't quite understand that. When we're going to put the welfare of 10,000 children against the defeat of this document, we must also remember that we are getting another minority group who will attempt to defeat the document. I feel that Mr. Burkhardt's provision is adequate. It doesn't provide for any religious emphasis. It does not provide for any conflict in church and state. It merely provides that we give children of another minority group as much of a benefit as we gave the Indians yesterday. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman. When I came in this morning, I was going to move to delete all of Section 6. I was requested not to, so I would like to speak on behalf of the minority. I'm a Protestant. I have five children. They all go to the public schools and to the state universities, and I have no intention of sending them to any private school at this time. The majority states that they know that parochial schools are getting funds from the federal government, and they say it's fine. If it is all right, why can't we accept this simple amendment? I cannot see their reasoning at all. I've heard the argument that if they want their own schools, then they should pay for them themselves. I agree with this doctrine, but if we want true separation of church and state, then the other churches-they don't pay property taxes; they don't pay any income taxes; when they have a donation or a bequest by reason of death, they pay no state inheritance tax, they pay no federal estate taxes. Now, if you want true separation, you should require your churches to pay these taxes, and don't ask for these benefits from the government. So I think it is really ridiculous not to accept the minority. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee. I'm with Mr. Brown. I've lived with the Blaine Amendment and the philosophy of the Blaine Amendment all the days of my life. I can remember during the Al Smith campaign when they burned crosses on the rim-rocks in Billings. I can remember being let out of school in the fourth grade to erase three "Ks" on the front doors of the Catholic church in Billings. I am a Roman Catholic. I'm not a card-carrying Roman Catholic; I'm a practicing one. I don'ttake up the collection or work very hard on drives, but I find something in my religion that I need, and I don't try to visit it on anyone else. To me, the Blaine Amendment is a badge of bigotry, and it should be repealed. I've been asked to back off on that and I'm going to try to be as reasonable as I can, although I feel much more emotionally about this than I do about our courts of justice which, just a week ago, I worked so hard on. My credentials on trying to get rid of badges of bigotry are good. In 1953, I personally and singlehandedly repealed the miscegenous marriage law of Montana on the very sound ground that our statute books should not be graced with such a despicable statute. I feel the same way about the Blaine Amendment. Somebody asked the other day how much purer we can get than pure, what we could do with our water to make it any cleaner than clean. I submit to you that the Legislative Article has a watered-down version of the Blaine Amendment in it, I don't know what more we could do than perhaps make it impossible for the Justices of the Supreme Court to approve any such legislation, or possibly prohibit the Governor from signing such legislation. My personal opinion is that this thing should come out of here as a badge of bigotry, but I'll be content with what-the well-reasoned statements that Mr. Harbaugh has made if that can be accomplished. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman. I am not exactly sure what Mr. Schiltz meant—what all he meant to include in this bigotry idea of his. I rather think that most of us do not believe that the separation of church and state is an evidence of bigotry. I think we rather believe it to be an evidence of an evolution in history that has proved to be very wise in this country. You don't have to go back just 5, 10 years. You can go back across the history of church-state relationships, not only in this country but in other countries, and back as far as recorded history of man is concerned. And somehow, when state and a dominant church, or any church, get mixed up, it always has seemed to work to the detriment of both the church-the religious institution, finally, and to the state itself. I don't think I need to make a long speech to document that. I believe Americans—thoughtful Americans are dedicated to the idea of church and state separation. Evidently, the minority group is dedicated to that idea because they do not wish to change this section. The remarks suggest that they want to change it, but there must be some reason that they do not ask to strike it all out. They simply would like to add this one particular amendment to say that we now allow, in definite words in our Constitution, that federal aid will not be prohibited. The majority report, I notice on page 20, simply says-or rather on page 22—said that no specific case was brought to the committee's attention in which federally granted funds have been denied in Montana to nonpublic schools because of the operation of the existing constitutional provision. The arguments for putting this sentence in is that it is done anyway. I presume the majority committee's suggestion for keeping it out is equally valid, that since it has no effect and does not limit the present situation-is not limited-and federal aid is able to be channeled for these specific purposes, that there's no real reason for including it. I did not identify myself as one with particular interests in this on the basis of being a United Methodist with interests in Rocky Mountain College, because several years ago our three denominations-presbyterian, Congregational and Methodist-gave up corporate control of Rocky Mountain College on this particular issue. The administration of the college said that they could not get federal funds because we were a church-related college and the church had corporate control. And because we did not see it several years ago, nor do we see now, any real way for a college to continue in existence in Montana without some kind of government help in terms of building and the rest of it, our three denominations voted to give up the corporate control of Rocky Mountain College. Rocky Mountain College is now a private institution. Our three denominations are still traditionally and historically and psychologically interested in Rocky Mountain College, but we do not now control it. We did it for two reasons: one, I've said that Rocky could not get federal aid for building and programs as a church institution that it needed to have and, secondly, that our denominations actually do believe in this idea of separation of church and state. And rather than receive aid for our church school, we gave up control of the school that we had built and maintained and sustained for nearly a century, through many hard times, here in Montana. I submit to you that many people of this state do feel very, very keenly on this issue. We've mentioned this on others. I would-1 don't think I'm going to vote just on that; I'm going to vote on the basis of my own private belief on this. But I think it is something that we need to take into consideration. One of the proponents of this minority proposal said that many people will vote against-perhaps be against the new Constitution if we do not make the change. Well, I submit to you that they hardly are going to espouse the old Constitution where the wording is exactly the same on that account. There are many other things that could be said, and I'm sure other people will put in their particular viewpoints. I simply rise to suggest that because many people are not rising on this other side is not because we believe that church-state separation is a badge of bigotry.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Mr. Chairman. I'd like to make a substitute motion, and perhaps the Chair would read it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk read Mr. Loendorf s substitute motion.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 6, page 5, lines 3 through 13, of the Education and Public Lands Committee Majority Proposal by deleting it in its entirety and inserting in lieu thereof the following words and punctuation: 'Section 6. Aid prohibited to sectarian schools. Neither the Legislative Assembly nor any county, city, town or school district or other public corporations shall ever make, directly or indirectly, any appropriation or pay from any public fund or moneys whatever or make any grant of land or other property in aid of any church or for any sectarian purpose or for the aid in the support of any school, academy, seminary, college, university or other-library, scientific institution, controlled in whole or in part by any church, sect, or denomination whatever. This section shall not apply to funds from federal sources provided to the state for the expressed purpose of distribution to nonpublic education.' Signed: Loendorf."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Loendorf has made a substitute motion the effect of which is to add to the majority report the so-called Blaine Amendment, the last sentence of the minority report about federal funds. So that we now have the majority report; we then have the minority report that has that sentence on it but also takes out the word "indirectly"; and we now have Mr. Loendorf s substitute motion which, if

I'm not mistaken, Mr. Loendorf , is the text of the majority report with the last sentence from the minority report written in. Is that correct?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: That's correct, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. You may have your substitute motion.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Okay. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. As Mr. Burkhardt indicated initially, he thought this was perhaps an issue that was a bit emotional, and I thought we could talk on it a completely common sense and logical basis. I see I've got the Chair a little excited; he's back to calling me Loendorf again. (Laughter) [Editor's note: Delegate Loendorf pronounced his name "Lendorf".]

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I had something else in mind and I just--excuse me, Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Right. But I do believe this body is capable of a common sense and logical approach to this question. I recognize it's emotional in certain areas, and I think the amendment I've made shouldn't cause much emotion. If you read it, it's as the Chair explained. It takes Article XI, Section 8, and keeps it asitis. It's different from the minority report in the sense it puts the words "or indirectly comma," back into it. What this section does in our present Constitution and what it means, I'm not sure. But under my provision--or my proposal, it will continue to mean and do whatever it does now. The minority report differed from the majority, then, in only one other area, and that was the last sentence, by which it excluded federal funds from application of that section. And I'd like to talk about that, I think, in an area I think that was forgotten. That is, what effect does this last sentence have on public schools? To me, whatever benefits it has for private schools, which I'm sure it was aimed at and attempted to do, it will have the same benefit for public schools. Now, the majority, if I read their comments correctly, did not reject that last sentence because they wanted to prohibit federal funds from coming into the state. Rather, they felt it was not necessary and, so far, I agree; it has not been necessary yet. But I would point out that no one has taken this matter to court yet. And in, these programs, which the majority mentions in their comment, involve some state administration, that is, aid to private schools. It may or may not be aid which our present Constitution prohibits. I don't know. But if somebody does take, say, one of these present programs to court-say the program mentioned in the appendix which concerned loans to textbooks-and were successful, the $5,000 that were-apparently went to loans to private schools would be lost to the state from the federal government. But the hundred and fifty-five thousand dollars which went to the benefit of public schools would also be lost. So what we're dealing with here is a two-edged sword. And I've observed this happen on two occasions. I'm a member of the Board of Directors for Legal Services for the state. Last summer, a gentleman from the federal government came from either Kansas City or Denver and told us we had to amend our bylaws, change our method of operation, if we wanted the federal funds. We did so and we did get the funds. One of the last special sessions of the Legislature was called for the purpose-so we could amend state law to comply with the Highway Beautification Act so we could receive federal funds there. And, of course, both these things we could do. We had flexibility there. It's easy to change a bylaw; you can change a statute. But here, we're dealing with a constitutional provision. And I think if we want to achieve the goal of the majority as stated by Mr. Champoux yesterday when he read to us initial report-or the initial statement of the majority-and that is to allow flexibility to meet changes yet unknown-then I think the last sentence proposed by the minority is something we should add. I'm not too concerned about present programs. I am very concerned about the future, what's coming under revenue sharing. We don't know what that'11 be, but we do know one thing for sure: that's going to involve a lot more state participation, state involvement. If from-what I read in the papers is true, the state will probably be granted funds to selfadminister entirely. Now, if we find ourselves in a position where we can't accept those funds because of our Constitution, we're in a rather precarious position, because it will not be easy to amend and put in this sentence that we have the opportunity to do now, quickly. It'll take a period of time, perhaps a couple years. If this never occurs, then this last sentence will never have any effect. So, merely what my amendment does, doesn't change anything. It merely maintains the status quo. It's like a doorstop on the door that's open that allows federal funds to come into the state, and nothing more than that. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President. Will Mr. Burkhardt yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt, will you yield?

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Yes.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. Burkhardt. On the New York Constitution which failed, as you told us about, on this issue, was that a matter, in their Constitution, where state funds would be distributed to the nonpublic schools?

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I think that was the fear, Chet, that was involved. They had substituted the 1st Amendment, as I understand it, for their former, more restrictive statement. Perhaps someone else has that right at the tip of their tongue, but that's my reaction.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: I am a public school teacher. I worked in public schools all my life. I am Protestant. I could not buy the 1st Amendment because of the deletion of the word "indirectly". I think that if that were out of there, that it would be fairly easy to appropriate a number of funds and then-to some other group and then say this will be done indirectly. However, I am going to support Mr. Loendorf s amendment. It is stated just as it is in the old Constitution, and I, for the life of me, can't see any harm with this where it says that this section shall not apply to funds from federal sources provided to the state for the expressed purpose of distribution to nonpublic education. And if those federal funds come in and are for those purposes, for all the children of the State of Montana, I can't see harm in that. And I shall support Mr. Loendorf s amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. Rather reluctantly, I will accept the deletion of this phrase "or indirectly". I really think that there's no need to have that in our Constitution. I think we ought to realize that we have at least two other places in the proposed Constitution we've already adopted: in the Legislative Articlein subsection 6 of Section 11, which Mr. Schiltz pointed out, that prohibits direct aid of any kind; and in the Bill of Rights, in Section 5, we adopted the language of the 1st Amendment. I guess if you put it in there three times, you've really got the message across. But there are a couple of other things that I think need to be said on this, particularly in regard to the New York Constitution. It's been pretty much accepted here that the New York Constitution failed because it substituted the wording of the 1st Amendment, and I would question that. There were many other reasons why the New York Constitution failed, one of which was that they spent $11 billion and-or $11 million. I think there were also some political considerations that had to do with the failure of that Constitution, too. There were many witnesses who testified before our committee on this issue. And those who favored retaining the present section very often did give evidence of being quite emotional about this thing. However, I made it a point during the testimony to question many of these people and to ask them, specifically, whether or not they objected to federal aid being received by our schools where it was allowable under the 1st Amendment. And I think that, as I recall, there was only one and possibly two exceptions of the-1 suppose we had nearly 40 people who testified on this-but with the exception of one and possibly two people, none of them that I questioned on this objected to the federal aid going to the nonpublic schools. Now, Mr. Harper mentioned that his denomination gave up control of its school because of the financial squeeze; and I think that's too bad, that we have to reach a state in America where that happens. I feel that we are approaching a situation in which the pluralism of our society could be very seriously threatened if, indeed, education becomes the prerogative only of the state. And I think we ought to keep that very much in mind. I think we ought to remember that there was a time in this country when there was no such thing at all as public education; that it was the religious denominations, in fact, who brought education to America and established it; and that for a hundred years, it was the denominations of this country which fostered education in America. And now, in a time when there is intense competition, our denominational schools are being forced out of existence. It seems to me that the situation is a little like that of a man who divorces his wife after she's lost her attractiveness and appeal to him.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman. Will Mr. Loendorf yield?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I yield.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Loendorf. The next to the last line of your amendment here says "to the state". Can funds be distributed to non-public education without going through the state? Is that possible?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Very possible. As I pointed out, Mr. James, we don't know how this will be done by the federal government. Now, I understand--although the educators, I'm sure, know this better than I-that they usually distribute them through the state.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Loendorf, will you yield again?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Yes, I yield, Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Do you think this would be more palatable to some who have objections if this "to the state" was deleted? Or do you suppose it would be as effective? I mean this is just one of those iffy questions.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I doubt-I don't think whether those words are in or out really makes any difference in the meaning of the section. It's-there's perhaps no problem with the federal government, and there wouldn't be if they distribute them directly. So it seems to me that you would need the words "to the state" in there that-to show that you're covering cases where the funds are funneled through the state to the schools.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Loendorf, the purpose of my comment was: I was wondering if taking out "to the state" wouldmake it more palatable and remove some of the emotion—

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Well, to me—

DELEGATE JAMES: --without emasculating the thing.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I guess I'm not a very emotional person. I don't see any emotion in "to the state".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. McNeil.

DELEGATE McNEIL: Mr. Chairman. I rise in opposition to the Loendorf amendment, in opposition to the minority report, and in support of the majority report as written. For the record, I'll state my personal interest in this matter. I am a Mason and a product of the public school system of the State of Montana in the city of Anaconda. However, I am happily married to a charming Catholic woman, JoAnn, we've been happily married for 14 years. I'm raising my son Chuck and my daughter Jolie as Catholics; and even the Pope will admit, that's pretty open-minded for a Bagdad Shriner. (Laughter) However, I am speaking to you today not as a Mason or as a Protestant, but as one who is dedicated to preserving our public school system. And that's what this issue is all about. I don't think we ought to dilute that in any way. We aught not to open the door to anyone. We have the finest public school system, open to all, that has ever been devised by any society. I glanced at the Helena telephone directory in the yellow pages and found over 40 listings under the heading "Churches". We're not just talking about some tax money to the parochial or Catholic schools. If we open the door to any of them, they all will be equally entitled to tax money. Speaking specifically to the two amendments, to the Loendorf amendment and the minority report, it absolutely escapes me, the distinction between state and federal moneys. For Reverend Harbaugh's information, I don't know whether you think this federal money comes from the collection plate on Sunday. It comes out of my pocket as a taxpayer. It is fundamentally wrong to take any tax money, and this applies to all federal money, and apply it to any church purpose. So, I think that both of these amendments really would open the door-could open the door to a violation of our public school system. I strongly urge that we maintain the majority report as written. I would not want to see the State of Montana to constitutionally say, "We can take tax money, run it through the hallowed walls of Congress and then it's all right to give it to a church school, but we won't take it from our taxpayers and run it through this house right here and give it back to the church school." I strongly urge that we support the majority report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: In all our testimony, as Mr. Harbaugh told you, we had three different church denominations that spoke before us who are very, very opposed to any public money--or any federal money-to be allocated to any of their church or schools. They wanted to preserve the article the same as written. To tell you specifics on one, the Seventh Day Advent schools-he talked to us and he pointed out very strongly that if any of this money is ever distributed to any private school, then the federal government or the state will take over part of their church work. And they specifically told us they wanted no aid from no taxes or any allocation of any kind. He pointed out that-"If we cannot support our private schools, then it's our fault. We are the ones that's running it, and we don't want nobody to interfere with us. We teach our religion and we want it this way." Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President. I rise in support of the majority report. I, too, am a taxpayer of the federal government and I don't want any of my tax money going into my church, and my church doesn't want it. And I think that both of these amendments start the opening of the door to the use of not only state but-federal money, but the possibility in the very near future of state money for the use of private and parochial schools.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Artz.

DELEGATE ARTZ: Mr. Chairman. I belong to Holy Family Parish in Great Falls. I am the financial adviser commissioner for the parish, so I do have a little prejudice. I don't think I'm emotional, though, because we're talking about money. Money is not a very emotional thing. (Laughter) I would like to go much farther, of course, than either of the amendments go, but I am a practical person; I realize it would be impossible. But to show you what some of the other ideas are and to give Father Gorman, my parish priest, full credit, I think I should read a little of his work into the record. Just one paragraph taken from his release of February 3, 1972, entitled Parish Goals and Objectives in Education-quote: "We cannot speak of the state as independent of the people who make it up, so we should not merely grant each other freedom of religion but actually facilitate the teaching of religion. At the present time in history, we can only hope that those who demand freedom for themselves will also grant it to others, for it is only those who silence their conscience who agree that justice is being served at the present time when only nonreligious schools receive taxes levied on all people for education."--end quote. You all got this booklet the other day put out by the Task Force on Economic Growth and Opportunity. The task force was made up of 100 corporation presidents, and, briefly, they bring up one other point-and I quote: "In brief, we recommend that the government consider continuing to finance education for all children but that it offer them, as an alternative to public education, financial support for private education up to the amount of the average expenditure per pupil in local public schools." Now, they're basically concerned with just one educational setup; there is nothing to compare it with. Quoting-"Where market discipline, the knowledge that if the job is not done as well as it can be, someone else who can do it better will get to do it, is absent, both complacently and timidity develops." And finally, on one other little issue, I have a letter here signed by Reverend Charles Gorman; Sister Mary Kevin, who is the Principal of Holy Family School. "To whom it may concern: As of now, Holy Family School has 18 students in attendance from Malmstrom Air Force Base in Great Falls. To date, the school has not received federal funding of any kind for these students."—end quote. We do receive, in the city of Great Falls, federal impact funds to take care of the cost of educating those children who come into Malmstrom and other federal projects. According to the report in the back of the article we're working on, there are 2,057 private school children in Great Falls. We are saving the taxpayers of Cascade County $1,364,081. That averages out-1 didn't have my calculator, but reasonably close to $658.76. Multiplying that by the 18 students, Holy Family is saving Cascade County approximately $12,000 on those 18 students. Therefore, I think in fair to-fairness, we should be at least entitled to a few federal funds if we can get them. Thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Lorello.

DELEGATE LORELLO: Mr. Chairman. I'm a Catholic and a taxpayer, and if I were to try to convince everybody in this hall that I knew everything about this Education Article, I think I'd be less than truthful. I've asked some educators who can't even explain the foundation program to me, and I really don't understand it myself; but I have a little problem in that I have two children going to school several blocks away from one another, and when they go to get on the school bus in the morning, the one that goes to the private school can't get on the bus and the other one can. Now, really, our problem in Anaconda isn't that great, because we have a very nice individual, Mr. Sonny Gore, who owns the buses, and he insists that they all can ride as long as he owns them. Now, I can't understand why my-both the children can't ride the buses, and my children can't either. I hope you'll support Mr. Loendorf.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Woodmansey.

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: I would rise to resist the Loendorf amendment and also the minority report. I think probably the best example that we've seen here of the double standard I think that we have here is that in our present Constitution, we do not allow any state funds to go to the private sector. And if our money goes to Washington and comes back, that's okay. And I believe that it was the intention of those who first set up this Constitution that there should be separation of church and state. Our public schools are free to anyone who wishes to go. In many cases, taking over those students from the private school will not increase the cost to the taxpayer that much. As we see at the present time, especially in the lower grades, the enrollments are going down. This does not necessarily mean a new building or necessarily a fantastic amount of new teachers. It may, in some way. I'll be glad to pay it. I want this separation of church and state, and I shall fight for it through our Constitution. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Choate.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Mr. Chairman. I rise first to request that my presence be noted so that I can vote, because I do want to support the Loendorf amendment. We live about a half a block away from a good public school in Miles City.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The journal may so show, Mr. Choate.

DELEGATE CHOATE: Thank you. We live about a half a block from a good public school in Miles City. I am a Protestant. We have two children in school. The Catholic school, the Sacred Heart School, is clear across town. They don't have any bus service going there so we, necessarily, have to get them there ourselves. And I drive them, or one of us does. We have both children in the Sacred Heart School. Now, either we're kind of stupid or else it's because it's a pretty good-quality school. I feel there is a good deal of merit to it, and I think they are entitled to some assistance federally. And I support Jerry's amendment. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President. Will Mr. McNeil yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE MCNEIL: I yield.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. McNeil. There can be no quarrel that tax money is tax money, whether it's state or federal. You're right. On the other hand, is it your position that if the federal government were to give public--or funds as this last sentence says, "provided to the state for the expressed purpose of distribution to non-public education," that you would want the State of Montana bound so it could not accept those funds, even though, say, Wyoming and Idaho and Minnesota could?

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Mr. Blaylock. If the federal government makes our tax money available for education, I want it to go to our public school system and not be divided among 40 different school systems.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any further debate?
Mr. Noble.

DELEGATE NOBLE: Mr. Chairman. I rise in support of the majority report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Skari.

DELEGATE SKARI: Mr. President, fellow delegates. I think this discussion here today reminds me of the poem I'm sure that—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Hold your mike a little closer.

DELEGATE SKARI: -most of you are familiar with. It's the "Mending Wall" by Robert Frost, wherein he describes the repairing of a fence on a farm in New England in the fall, I take it-or in the spring. I guess it's an annual chore there to repair these rock fences that they have between the farms. And Frost and his neighbor go out to share the job of putting up the stones from each side of the wall and replacing them. And Frost has mentioned several times that he writes his poems about New England, but not necessarily just for New England. When he's talking about-he talks about the fences that society builds. And he also asks the question, when we build a wall we have to take into account what we're walling in and what we're walling out. I think here we have to consider this, too. I think we have built a substantial, solid wall in our old Constitution. I think that this wall is good and proper. I don't think we could remove it if we wanted to. For this reason, I favor the-1 support the Loendorf amendment. I don't think we should, intentionally, build the same wall, however, in regard to the federal moneys. I think the states have rights here. I think they can be more stringent, but I think perhaps we would be a little unfair by building the same wall. I don't think this will undermine our public school system; I think it may even strengthen it. It will-financially, the private schools take some strain off our state system. Many other states will provide no obstacles to these federal funds, and I fail to see that we should either. Frost's farmer friend also mentioned that good friends-good fences make good neighbors. I think we-he was partly right here. It's a very earthy point. I think maybe he was partially right, but I think we have to take into account what we're walling in and whatwe're walling out. Thank you, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. President. Would Mr. McNeil yield to a question?

DELEGATE MCNEIL: I yield.

DELEGATE STUDER: What I wanted to find out, McNeil, is whether or not loans which are granted would be forbidden under your thinking? I mean, would you be against granting loans to students for education in which some [of] them are used in secular schools?

DELEGATE MCNEIL: Of course not, and our present constitutional provision, which is the majority report, does not foreclose that either.

DELEGATE STUDER: Well, I was wondering if it did. That's my question.

DELEGATE MCNEIL: No, it does not.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harrington.

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. When we first came here in January, I introduced a delegate proposal which stated that the State of Montana should use the 1st Amendment as the basis for this-to replace this article-section, rather. Now I find that even with myself, this 1st Amendment would not be strong enough, and I do support Mr. Loendorf s amendment, as I was part of the minority with Mr. Harbaugh. And I feel, possibly, as we look at this, we've-many times we've gone-it's come up on this floor-is the number of times signatures have come up on petitions stating whether they would or would not support a certain item. Now, as part of this, I think that, actually, we-all you're doing here is possibly guaranteeing, in a way, something that possibly we would not have—that—these parochial schools receive right now, in a way. Should we go to this revenue sharing? Should--we are not keeping this away-we are not keeping this money away from the state. But I do say that to go along with this minority proposal and with Mr. Loendorf s amendment, that we will make many friends of the Constitution, and I hope that we do. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berthelson.

DELEGATE BERTHELSON: Mr. Chairman, thank you. Fellow delegates, I rise to resist both of these amendments and to ask this body to support the majority proposal. I don't need to tell anyone in this group of 100 people to what denomination I belong, nor to how the denomination I belong to feels about the matter of education. I urge each of you delegates to think what has gone on here this morning. Think about it. Consider it, and let's vote for the majority proposal. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: In answer to Mr. Studer's question on loans to students. I went to the bank in the city of Billings when I was down there to investigate this very question, because I figured it would come up. The banks today will loan any student to go to any school, private or nonprivate, in the State of Montana. All the application they need is from the school which they're going to attend. If they are-have the requirements, the bank asks no questions and gives them the loan. They pay every quarter for their tuition, their books, and their room and board. If the student's parents make under $15,000 a year, the government will absorb half of the interest. If their income is over $15,000, the student absorbs all of the interest. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer.

DELEGATE STUDER: Would Mr. Conover yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Conover?

DELEGATE CONOVER: Yes, I will.

DELEGATE STUDER: Mr. Conover. You were getting just about to what I wanted. I thought that-you gave me an answer that-1 was talking about public funds. The government has granted funds to be loaned to students. They're being loaned in places like Texas, where their Constitution does not forbid their use, like, to Southern Methodist, or students going to Baylor, or schools like that-parochial schools, you might say. So what I really wanted to know-is direct grants from the federal government to be put out as loans to students going to-be a loan to students at the College of Great Falls or Rocky Mountain?

DELEGATE CONOVER: That's right, Ralph.

DELEGATE STUDER: Okay, that's what I wanted to know.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman. May I ask Mr. Loendorf a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I yield.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Loendorf. In the last sentence of your amendment, it says "from federal sources provided to the state". Now, if the state distributes federal funds directly to nonpublic schools, there's no need for this amendment, is there?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Neither the state nor the federal government now can distribute funds directly to nonpublic schools.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman. May I ask a second question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: That being the case, you a little while ago, eluded to the fact that the situation now is all right, but we don't-can't look into the future to see what's going to transpire then, about the matters you were discussing. We can't look into the future to see why not-the federal government might not deal directly in the future either, right?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I can't hear him, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: A little while ago, you spoke about not being able to look into the future to see what might transpire then.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: That's right.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Neither can you look into the future now and know for certain that the federal government will not deal directly in the future.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: No, that's the whole point. We don't know what's going to happen in the future.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: So if the federal government should deal directly in the future, your amendment would be unnecessary.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: That's right, It would be meaningless, harmless, of no purpose, and of no effect even. It's just there to provide for cases in case the federal government chooses to deal through the state as it has in the past. And no funds, no matter how-where they come from, either the state or the federal government, under either constitutional provisions-the present state provision or the federal provision-could be given by the federal government or by the state to private schools, as I interpret it.

(Committee of the Whole chairmanship assumed by Mr. Etchart)

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman. It seems to me, in listening to this debate, we're confusing two issues: the elementary-secondary and higher education. There is no way that we here today can blanket both issues. And I think the chances are best for the future to stay with the majority report. And consequently, I would reject any amendments. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Now, Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. I'd like to call Mr. Romney's attention to the paragraph on page 47 of the Education Article. You'll find in the indentation there a quotation from a recent study by the National Education and Finance Project. And this is a part of the recent national study that's just been made, and this is in regard to whether or not federal funds would go to the state, or how they would be applied. It says, "Whatever federal grants are made in the days ahead, they should not bypass state government. Instead, federal grants for public schools should be made to a state educational agency for allocation to local schools in accordance with state plans." And I heartily agree with that. I don't think we want to get into a situation where we bypass the state. And this is part of the concern to-of our amendment.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: No, that's just in response to the question you asked.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: That's a matter of opinion.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Mr. Chairman. I'd like to ask a question about WICHE funds, and I don't know-1 thought maybe Mr. Champoux could answer it. Maybe someone else can answer it. The way our Constitution is worded now, could WICHE funds ever be given to students going, say to Rocky Mountain College or Carroll College here in this state?

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Champoux, do you yield?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: No.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Would anyone care to answer that?

Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Yes, Jean, it can and it is being done now with the banks in Billings. This money comes from the federal government; and Rocky Mountain College-all they have to do is send a requisition or fill out a form to any of the banks and any one of these students to any private school can get four years of college education.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Well, Mr. Chairman, my understanding of WICHE money is that it's only state money appropriated by our State Legislature, matched by the college. We don't get federal money—

DELEGATE CONOVER: I couldn't answer you about state money.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Well, that's what I wanted to know. Mr. Burkhardt, do you know?

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I'm sorry, Mrs. Bowman. I'm not able to discuss that. I'm thinking-I'm aware of individual cases where people who are going to a medical school or a veterinarian school, with no regard to what institution they are now in, applied for these things. But, I don't have the facts in front of me.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman. I think that what Jean is talking about is the Western Interstate Commission on Higher Education. And the money that the state appropriates goes into a fund and can only be used to designated schools. I think in Montana, as I recall, forestry and some other schools can come, but I think that at present, no, Rocky Mountain or Carroll or the College of Great Falls would be eligible, or students would be eligible for those funds.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: WICHE is an organization of several states which provide and is funded by the Legislatures of thevarious states, It provides for education for students in Montana, for example, for students who can go to institutions of higher education where we have in our state no educational colleges for that purpose, such as medicine, veterinary, and several others. And the states--I think it's Montana, Idaho—there's six or seven of them-and they are funded and Montana appropriates a proportionate share.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I'm sorry, I was out of the room. I was getting a copy of a document. Essentially, Mr. Romney is correct. If the funds go to the school-it can go directly to the school-and there are many instances of this in the State of Montana, for instance. But if it goes through the state, it cannot go to the schools, Thank you.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman. I want to stir a little bit deeper here. Before I do, let me make this observation just for the record. As a churchman, there is a real principle we're talking about here. As of right now, at this moment, at this time in our history, it's not very large, it doesn't loom large here. The basic principle I'd like to iterate is this: that it's very difficult for a church supported by a state to be critical of the state, as I think a church should. We see evidence of this in Italy; we saw evidence of this in Germany; all across history. That's why I say this is no little thing, this matter of keeping separation of church and state. Now, I don't mean to take that blanket principle and apply it specific to every little detail that has been mentioned here. I'd like to-when I said I want to stir a little bit deeper, I would like to ask the Education Committee, and then those on the minority, and then Mr. Loendorf, what I think is a basic question. Why, in none of these reports, is any mention of private schools made? Now, I have sat here and I've looked through the entire Education report. In the very first instance, in Section 1, subsection 2, we passed this: "The Legislature shall provide for a system of quality, free public elementary and secondary schools." Now, listen to this. "The Legislature also may provide for other educational institutions, public libraries and educational programs as are deemed desirable." Now that covers a lot of territory. When we get to Section 6, we restrict this. We say they may do this. They may get up other educational programs. They may support other educational institutions. But they cannot directly or indirectly support any church or sect in any kind of educational enterprise. Now, this is my question for information. Where, in this entire document, is there a prohibition of the state's sponsoring or giving money to aid private education? Now, I also-1 spoke a moment ago from the viewpoint of a churchman. Let me speak now as a viewpoint of a man who comes from Alabama originally, where the big subversion of public school moneys was not to church, but to so-called private institutions, in order to get around the issue-to beat the issue of segregation and nondiscrimination. Do we have any kind of protection, or do you think any kind of protection of that sort is needed in our present-in our new Constitution? Mr. Champoux, would you like to start on that?

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I believe, if you remember, back in the Legislative Article, there was a-1 can't remember exactly the specific-in Section 6, if you read that, it specifically says that there will be no moneys given to private corporations and so forth. It's in there.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Kamhoot.

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman. I had hoped that this issue might not be a very emotional one up here, and I don't think it needs to be. I certainly agree with McNeil back here, with his thinking. I, too, pay federal taxes, but we do have to be practical. Life is a system of compromises. And the federal aid is coming in now, and it just seems to me that the way to get off center here, move this Convention on, perhaps not stand here and argue about it all day long and raise a lot of tempers, would be to accept Delegate Loendorf's amendment. I would support that and get on with the Convention. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman. When this committee gets ready to vote, I ask for a roll call.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman. Would Mr. Harbaugh yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Will you yield?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Yes.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Gene, this is a legal question, but maybe you've looked into it. If the--Carroll College or the College of Great Falls were ruled by a lay board of trustees, as many institutions throughout the United States are now, and if legal and equitable title to the property were transferred from the Bishop, who normally owns property like that as a corporation sole, to a private corporation, could then the Legislature grant state aid to Carroll College? Now, I'm not talking about federal funds; I'm talking about state taxes. And do you want to-Jerry would YOU-

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I'd have to defer to Mr. Loendorf. We're on his amendment here.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: First of all, Bob, I think those schools probably are operated that way. I don't know; I'm not that familiar with them. Secondly, the ownership of the property would have nothing to do with it. A public school can lease its institutions from a religion and operate them if they want to. And I don't think that has anything to do with what we're discussing, does it? I don't see your point. I don't think the Legislature-whatever it can do as far as state funds are concerned, we're not changing by this amendment. If it can do it now, it can do it; if it can't do it now, which I assume it cannot, then it cannot.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: so your amendment is limited, then, strictly to federal tax money--would allow the expense-we of federal tax money?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: It's completely and solely limited to that.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: And that's your intention?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Right.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Yes, all right, fine; you've answered two questions. Now, while you're still up-Mr. Chairman, may I ask Mr. Loendorf another question?

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Loendorf, do you yield?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I yield.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Now, is federal aid ever contingent-federal educational aid ever contingent, like OEO, legal funds, the highway funds and other moneys, upon a small percentage of state participation? And if educational aid from the federal government were contingent even upon a l-percent state participation, would your amendment authorize that?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: My amendment wouldn't authorize the state to participate with any funds. If the federal government chooses to endorse-or enact a program under the present provision or under the amendment I've attached, the result will be the same. I don't know what it'll be.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Thank you. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: As I understand the most recent decisions of the Supreme Court-in fact, just this past summer--a State Legislature may appropriate aid to a institution of higher learning above the secondary level. So that really is a moot point for grade schools and high schools. Now, the comment was made that the New York Constitution was killed because of this-because it did not contain such a provision as the so-called Blaine Amendment. I submit that the New York Constitution actually contained a directive to the Legislature. If the New York Constitution had merely contained the 1st Amendment, that would have been one thing, but it actually contained the following directive--and I'm reading from page 30, Article IX of their Education Article: "Section l-B, sub. 1: The Legislature shall establish and define a system of higher education for all the people of the state encompassing both public and nonpublic institutions by programs which may include free tuition grants, fellowships, and scholarships." As I understand it-and it's only hearsay-the Catholic hierarchy in the State of New York was responsible for urging this through and obtaining its passage at the New York Constitutional Convention. Now, I'm a "diaper Catholic" with six children. None of my children go to a parochial school. And I am almost a half century old, and in that time I think I've heard every argument, either sensible or nonsensible, on this subject. I'm a strong believer in the 1st Amendment to the federal Constitution. And regardless of what we do, we always have the protections of the 1st Amendment of the federal Constitution. And I think, in 1972, that it is time to bury some of our old prejudices and our fears, particularly our fears. I dislike the word "bigotry", because what is bigotry for me may be a very logical reason to another man. I went to parochial schools when I was a young boy. In fact, I spent 9 years in a Carmelite Monastery. I've been in state institutions, and I do not like to see the private school, whether it's sectarian or nonsectarian, disappear, because I think it is a valuable norm or canon against which state-owned institutions can guide themselves and determine whether they are keeping up with the times in the best possible methods of educational science. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I'm going to move as-if it's in order. I believe there are two amendments up there.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Right.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Perhaps I'd better ask the Chair first whether a substitute amendment is in order at this time. I believe you have two amendments now.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Well, we're on a substitute amendment by Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Now, is a substitute to Mr. Loendorfs amendment in order? That's my question.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: I-No, sir. An amendment to his substitute amendment would be in order.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Just-could I have just a moment to inquire of counsel? (Laughter) I'm not in order to make the motion-the specific motion that I want to make at this time. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Arness.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Will Mr. Harbaugh yield?

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Do you yield, Mr. Harbaugh?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Yes.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Is it my understanding now that the minority of the committee has acceded to the substitute motion which has—proposed by Loendorf, and that you're supporting that?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Yes, I'll support the amendment. I think that basically it doesn't change the intent of what we're trying to accomplish.

DELEGATE ARNESS: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Aronow.

DELEGATE ARONOW: Will Mr. Loendorf yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Loendorf yield?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I yield.

DELEGATE ARONOW: In looking at your amendment, Jerry, I-you say it will not—shall not apply to funds from federal sources provided to the state for the express purpose of distribution to nonpublic education. Do you mean by that that the funds have to be earmarked by Congress before the state can act as a conduit to transmit those funds from the state to nonpublic schools? In other words, the Congress has to specifically earmark those funds and say X-number of dollars to Rocky Mountain Collegeor X-number of dollars to the College of Great Falls? In the absence of that kind of earmarking, the state cannot act as a conduit?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Right, that's exactly what we mean, I think. That-in other words: a grant comes from the federal government; unless they expressly say in it that it's to be used for these purposes, then the section above applies. And they might not earmark particular funds. I don't think they will earmark funds for at least elementary and secondary schools. I don't think they can. But what they might do, and I think they do something similar to this now, is say, "Okay, purchase a certain amount of textbooks-or these funds are for the purpose of textbooks to be distributed to the pupils attending state-approved schools of the state, whether they be public or private."

DELEGATE ARONOW: Would you yield to another question?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Surely.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Aronow.

DELEGATE ARONOW: If moneys come to the State of Montana under an assumed revenue sharing type of deal that may be evolved in the future and those funds are not earmarked but they're X-number of dollars to be used for education in Montana, is it your opinion, under this amendment of yours, that the state could then say that X-number of dollars might go to nonpublic schools?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: No, I do not believe the state could, unless they can get around the first sentence of Section 6, which is Article XI, Section 8.

DELEGATE ARONOW: Thank you, Mr. Loendorf.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Would Mr. Loendorf or Mr. Harbaugh-Mr. Loendorf would be fine.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Loendorf, will you yield?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I yield.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Could this in any way dilute funds going to the public schools? I'm thinking of trade schools and things like this that we may develop in the future.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I doubt it, When the federal government enacts legislation creating a program for schools, they do it. The fact that we would not accept the funds unless they, say, limit them to only public schools, I don't think would make them change their minds. My experience in the other areas-for example, the legal service example I gave you-legal services had a different type of operational setup than prescribed by the federal government. As I say, when the gentleman came from-and I don't remember, it was Kansas City or Denver-he just told us we had to operate the way they said or no money. And that was it.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Well, Mr. Chairman. All I'm worried about on this deal is this-that I can see a proliferation of private schools developing United States-wide. And this might be that we've only got so much money coming in here after we get into block grants. And I think this is coming. I think this is no question about it. I think we're going to have the value added tax, and this is where-going back and send money back to the states under block grants. Now, I'm perturbed if these come, and I think they will. I see chances of-we've noticed it here, as Delegate Harper said, in the South. And we could get to the point we're going to have some private schools, and especially in vo-technical education and some of these. And if they have to divide it up on a student basis, we might could ruin our public vo-tech education. This, I think is coming, and this is what is bothering me about the whole situation on this-is not the question of parochial schools but the new-1 think parochial schools are going out. I think we're going to find these people come in, and we're seeing the start of a school out here. We're getting block grants. They're going to say, "This is so much going to the state. You've got 694,000 population, and you get so many dollars." Then, if we have to hand it out over these-and this is why I have to have a lot of clearance on that particular point.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Loendorf, do you wish to close?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I'll close if no one else wishes to speak. I perhaps misled you, Charley. Whatever we put in our state Constitution will not have any effect on that. If the federal government wants to provide for block grants to private w-technical schools, they can do it, irregardless of what's in our Constitution. I perhaps misled Mr. Lore110 also. At least, I've had a lot of questions raised here that I think my amendment has no effect on. It will not allow Peter's kids to ride the bus, and I hope I don't lose his support because of that. All this amendment does is maintain the status quo. It simply will allow federal tax dollars, which the federal government is going to take irregardless of what's in our Constitution, to come back as they are now. And it will insure that they come back in the future, whatever type of program the federal government develops in the future. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman. I tried to rise before Mr. Loendorf started to close on the thing. I would like to ask Mr. Loendorf a couple of questions, if he would yield.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Campbell, Mr. Loendorf has closed. A roll call vote has been called for. Members of the committee, the question now arises on the motion by Mr. Loendorf to delete Section 6 and substitute the wording as we have—as you have on your desks. As many as are in favor will vote Aye; as many as are opposed will vote No. Does any member wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: If not, the clerk will record the vote.

DELEGATE FELT: I vote No.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Felt votes No.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 53 have voted Aye; 40 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: 53 having voted Aye, 40 having voted No, the motion is carried.

Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman. I would like to say why I voted against the amendment was I was hoping that Mr. Campbell's amendment to the article, which I felt was-which I liked better, would be part of the article. I did not rise to my feet earlier because I was hoping he would submit his amendment, and I wanted to explain my vote. Also, I noticed in the back of the article where they listed the number of students, they missed the largest school in Gallatin Valley, which has 370 students at this time and is a private school. These people-I'm very pleased this amendment was passed, because I feel that these people are being loaded down with taxes for our public schools. I do support public schools; my children went to public schools. But I do feel that when they have an opportunity to receive some nonstate funds, they should. And I want the record to show that I do favor that. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Let the record so show, Are there any other amendments to Section 6?

Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Would Delegate Loendorf yield to a series of questions, please?

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Delegate Loendorf?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I yield.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Delegate Loendorf, in comparing the last sentence which you have in your amendment which was adopted, to the proposed amendment I would make, did you consider whether or not there may be any nonfederal sources, such as foundations or things like this, that might go through the state?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: That is possible, Bob, and my amendment doesn't cover those.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: And what if the Congress in its wisdom provided for a hot lunch program for the school children of Montana and gave it to the children of Montana for distribution through the state? Would the state, under your provision, be prevented from allowing nonpublic school children from receiving this hot lunch program?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I believe the federal government has done that now for all school children.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Well, in that type of a thing where some other thing that's similar to a lunch program, that a grant is made to the state but doesn't specifically say it's intended for nonpublic education, wouldn't your amendment still prevent that?

DELEGATE LOENDORF: If the grant coming to the state doesn't specifically say it's for nonpublic education, then my amendment would not allow nonpublic education to participate.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: I feel that this would restrict the state, and I would like to move that my amendment be read and considered at this time.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Will the clerk read Mr. Campbell's amendment.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 6, page 5, line 13, of the Education and Public Lands Majority Proposal by adding the following: 'Nothing herein shall prevent nonstate money from being distributed for the benefit of all students within the State of Montana.' Signed: Campbell."

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: This would be an amendment to the section that we just passed that Mr. Loendorf had approved. If I may speak just a few minutes on this, I feel that we are still not really achieving our goal. I'd like to go into a little background. I was raised in a small eastern Montana town. It's a town that is isolated geographically, and sometimes from ideas also. The town is very secure in that individuals are very secure in their absolute beliefs in their own faith. And they have, over the past, had a deep mistrust of others who didn't believe the way they did. In the past, this distrust has lessened with more enlightenment, and we do have, today, social events between groups that were in the past deeply suspicious of each other in their motives. I was very disturbed over the reaction in this town when this question of support for nonpublic education arose, because I felt that this was again bringing up the religious intolerances that I thought were slowly diminishing in that area. I firmly believe, as does Delegate Kamhoot, that life is a series of compromises. And I am deeply touched, in the Bill of Rights Committee, from the number of responses I have received from schoolchildren throughout the state. Many of them said, "Remove the Blaine Amendment and please help me in my education and save my school." I was very touched by their handwriting. And many times, of course-once in awhile, they would say, "Dear Mr. Blaine, please do something about the Blaine Amendment." But I feel that they do have a legitimate concern. In the Bill of Rights Committee, we did have the Montana Catholic Conference appear. And our questioning of that conference went to what reason they had for asking that this section be amended. They assured us that they did not intend to have the State of Montana funds diverted to nonpublic schools, to their schools. Their concern was, in the future, there may be a grant to the state which doesn't say parochial or nonparochial schools, and that this might prevent some type of program from uniformly being distributed within the state. I'm willing to take them at their word. I feel that by adding this amendment, we would take in the question of [if] there's any other nonfederal sources involved and also take care of the question of whether or not there's a specific direction from Congress. I'm worried about this, because a few states have this rigid requirement that we have against any nonpublic school or academy, directly or nondirectly. I think this would still give us the protection we want. It would allow these funds to be distributed, such as a lunch program, and I feel that it would be an addition which would give more flexibility than the present one that we passed. Thank you Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN ETCHART: Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Mr. Chairman. Bob is concerned about the free lunch program.

Every private school in the state can have private-school lunch program. I received this on school lunch programs, and this is for private and public schools. The commodities-flour, turkey, butter, and so forth-whatever-are commodities from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, are distributed free to both public and private schools. The Montana Legislature-in 1947, the Montana Legislature authorized a revolving fund of $25,000 to have commodities freighted into the state. They are shipped to Helena from the nearest federal terminal. This fund is not tax supported, except for the original year. Funds to keep the repayment to the fund by both public and private schools-the shipping charges fluctuate but average a dollar and a half per shipping unit of food donated. Charges are prorated by the amount purchased. The general cash is available equally to both public and private schools, and after they are set up, you can charge for lunches. This is what supports your school lunch program, regardless whether it's private or public. This is what maintains it. From the government on, children who cannot afford to buy lunch tickets are reimbursed to whichever school it involves. They will pay the total price of that lunch for this child by making application for it, and it's set up by the federal government and the state. It also says here that the public schools and private schools may participate throughout the State of Montana.

(Committee of the Whole chairmanship assumed by Mr. Graybill)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman. May I ask Mr. Campbell a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Yes.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Campbell, I'm confused. Do you intend to add your amendment to Mr. Loendorf s amendment or substitute it for his amendment? Just—

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Okay, I intend to substitute it for the last sentence of his amendment which we have just passed. I would replace: "This section shall not apply to funds from federal sources provided to the state for the express purpose of distribution to nonpublic education." Mine would replace that, saying: "Nothing herein shall prevent nonstate money from being distributed for the benefit of all students within the State of Montana."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think, Mrs. Bugbee, the Chair understands, then, that the effect would be if you pass the Campbell amendment, you'd have the original with-except the words "or indirectly" are out. Mr. Loendorf s was a substitute motion, so it took out the words "or indirectly" on line 6 of Section 7. Right? Pardon?

Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Mr. Chairman. My amendment put the words "or indirectly" back in.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Oh, I guess you're right. Okay, you put "or indirectly" back in. That's right. So it's just the same way as it was, with the extra sentence, and now this is to replace that extra sentence. All right, excuse me; now I'm straight.

Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I'm not sure the Chair has it straight yet, but you do have his amendment in front of you, do you?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, I do.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Fine. Well, then, it's there. It was enacted as he presented it. I have a question for the body and for Mr. Campbell. I'm wondering if the language of your substitute for Mr. Loendorfs language could be confused. For instance, if you have nonstate money in the form of local levies; what are you going to say about that? Are you saying those become available? What are you saying?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Burkhardt, no, I'm certainly not saying that local levies would not be included. It would be my intent to have local moneys construed as being state moneys, regardless if they're raised on the state or local level.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: But as the funds are administered, they're administered locally without going through a state source at the present time, as I understand it.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: That could be. Perhaps Mr. Champoux could better explain that than me.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Having been the proponent-or the person who had the task of presenting the original majority position, I would move to-or rather speak to defeat Mr. Campbell's motion. It seems to me that what we have added here by Mr. Loendorf is a face-saving thing for all of us. We left the "directly" in-or the "indirectly" in up above. We merely recognize, in the last sentence, the fact that this is now happening, and we trust will happen in the future, and that what he's done has been something that we can live with and can explain to our people. If we come in with this other one, it may be rather awkward in terms of what we mean by "nonstate money".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: I'll support Mr. Burkhardt's position, and I think, as usual, he's given very good reasons for it. It seems to me that Mr. Campbell's amendment does two things we perhaps do not want to do-well, one at least— and that would allow that the state could distribute money to nonpublic schools even if not designated to them. I don't think we want it to do that. All we wanted it to do in my amendment was prevent federal money from coming into the state just because it happened to be designated in part for nonpublic schools.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further debate on Mr. Campbell's motion to add, in place of Mr. Loendorf s last sentence, his phrase?

Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Mr. Chairman. I didn't understand what Mr. Loendorf just said. I wonder if he'd say it again, please. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Loendorf.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: The amendment that we added-that's been added now, the amendment I proposed--will allow federal moneys to come into the state even if designated in part for nonpublic schools. Now-and it will not require the state, in any way, to-well, it will allow the state to go along with the federal restrictions on that money and accept it. Mr. Campbell's amendment will allow the state to accept the money from federal government, which it can do anyway, but it may allow the state to distribute money from the federal government which is not designated specifically for nonpublic schools, to nonpublic schools, which was Mr. Aronow's concern.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Reichert.

DELEGATE REICHERT: Mr. Chairman. I'd like to speak in opposition to Mr. Campbell's amendment. I feel that it's totally unnecessary. I'm a member of a committee in Great Falls where aid to educationally--aid to children who are gifted-and this program completely circumvents our present constitutional provision, because the money goes directly from the federal government to the school district. And the children in Great Falls who attend parochial schools go to the public schools for this special educational program, which proves that money coming in from the federal government, going to school districts is now being accepted. And so I really feel that this amendment is completely unnecessary.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: I'd like to-Mr. President, I'd like to rise in opposition to Mr. Campbell's proposed amendment. I think that maybe we're overlooking something here. The wording of this particular amendment could possibly include grants from federal Forest Service lands to the State of Montana for education and other purposes. It could include grants from the Bureau of Land Management to the various counties. It could include floodplain land moneys that come into the counties for school and road purposes, and apparently it can include all of those things. So I think we're getting into pretty dangerous territory here if we adopt this amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Campbell's motion to add the phrase "nothing herein shall prevent nonstate money from being distributed for the benefit of all students within the State of Montana", in place of the language we adopted in Mr. Loendorf's amendment.

Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Could we have a roll call vote, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson, Mr. Campbell wants to close.

Mr. Campbell.

DELEGATE CAMPBELL: Fellow delegates. It's rarely that everyone agrees so unanimously on one of my proposals. (Laughter) But I do feel that Montana, being one of the few-and I've checked with Mr. Champoux-seven or eight states-that has this provision in there, may very well be denied, in the future, some funds merely because we are saying that the Congress should state explicitly that it must be made to nonpublic education. And I would feel that it would be a great disservice to this state-and I do not feel that Montana and the minority of states that are with it on this point would be enough to change the mind of Congress to make this provision simply for our benefit and because we put this provision in our Constitution. I really feel that if federal sources are given to the state for distributions in a program similar to a hot lunch program for distribution to all the children in the state, I certainly think they should receive them. Winston Churchill once said that a community can make no finer investment than putting milk into babies. And I don't think he meant just Protestant babies or just Catholic babies. Now, as you know, today we receive funds through the federal government through our ADC program to help children. Now, they don't say through those programs that if you give it to a Catholic family, that you are entangling church and state. We all agree there are certain things that young people need to be helped with, and I feel that my amendment would allow the Legislature to distribute these funds to all children based on need rather than on religious preference. And certainly if we denied funds like an ADC program to a family because it's Catholic, or because it's Protestant, would only leave one group open that could receive the funds, those of the family that had no religious preference at all. I don't think that's intended. I think that my amendment would not open new areas; we would still have the protection for State of Montana funds from not being diverted. And I feel that if the need ever arises in the future, we would have problems with the Loendorf sentence at the end; and I would urge you to accept mine. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster. Your presence is noted and you may vote.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux. We're about to have a roll call vote.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: A point of order, Mr. President, for clarification if I may. May I?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You may state your point, yes.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I don't want this assembly to get the impression that I agree with all of Mr. Campbell's statements. I only agree with the first sentence, which says that seven other states have a Blaine-type Amendment. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. You shoehorned it in on me, Mr. Champoux. (Laughter) The issue is on Mr. Campbell's amendment to replace the language at the end of the Loendorf amendment with the language concerning nothing to prevent nonstate money being distributed to students within the State of Montana. We'll have a roll call vote. So many as shall be in favor, vote Aye; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 13 delegates voting Aye, 79 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 79 voting No and 13 Aye, the motion is defeated. We are now back debating Section 6 as amended by Mr. Loendorf. Are there further amendments? Is there further discussion? Are we ready to vote? Members of the body, you have before you on the recommendation of Mr. Burkhardt, when this committee does arise and report after having had under consideration Section 6, as amended, that we recommend the same be adopted. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's adopted as amended. Will theclerkread Section 7.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 7. Nondiscrimination in education. No religious or partisan test or qualification shall ever be required of any person as a condition of admissioninto any public educational institution of the state, either as teacher or student; nor shall attendance be required at any religious service whatever; nor shall any sectarian tenets be taught in any public educational institution of the state: nor shall any person be debarred admission to any public institution of learning on account of sex, race, creed, religion or national origin." Mr. Chairman, Section 7.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Noble.

DELEGATE NOBLE: Mr. Chairman. As the committee rise and report after having this section under consideration, I move the adoption.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there any discussion of Section 7?

DELEGATE NOBLE: I think it's self-explanatory. It's about like the old Constitution, with the addition of "race, creed" and "religion or national origin". Other than that, it's the same as what we have.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. With the addition of the words about religion and national origin, is there any discussion about this section?

Mr. Harlow.

DELEGATE HARLOW: Mr. Chairman. I merely move-or rise for a bit of discussion and clarification in regard to this section it referred to as the nondiscrimination section. And it states that no qualification, along with the other words, shall be required to attend school. It hasdisturbed me over the years-and particularly in the later years, but over the years-that school boards will set up some arbitrary qualifications that a student must meet before they can attend school. Quite a few years ago, when the styles of ladies' dresses were coming higher, the Glasgow School Board said that the girls could not come to school if they wore stylish dresses. Just lately, we had a case that's been brought clear to the courts, both in Hamilton and in Columbia Falls, in which the school board arbitrarily set up a requirement on how often you were supposed to get a haircut. And the court upheld the student in Hamilton. He could not go to school because his hair was a little bit long-similarly applied to the students in Columbia Falls. Now, I would like to know if this word "qualification" in the Constitution will prohibit such actions by school boards. And if this word has been in here as it is said and as will I agree to-then what right has the Supreme Courts or-this didn't go to the Supreme Court; I think it may. But the local courts can state that school boards can set up qualifications before a student is allowed to come to school. Now, the-I'm perfectly willing to accept the fact that maybe some qualifications as to health might debar the student from coming to school, if it's a contagious disease or something along that particular line-he might want to come to school. But I would like to get some opinions from the various judicial lines here, if this word will restrict and make the school boards allow students to come to school where they are properly dressed and hair length and various other things.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President. As a member of the majority on this, it's my understanding that that has been interpreted only as saying "no religious or partisan test or qualification". I think it refers only to the religious or partisan test or qualification and doesn't go into these other matters in this Constitution. I think that's the reason why that has not been a factor in determining these, as near as I know, Mr. Harlow.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman. I'll now move to delete Section 7.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brown has made a motion to delete Section 7 in its entirety.

Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: I'm not moving to delete this because I believe in discrimination in education. I want to make that clear. But Section 4 of our Bill of Rights fully covers any discrimination in the exercise of any of your civil and political rights and covers race, color, sex, cultures, social, political, religious ideas. And this is not in most Educational Articles in other constitutions. I feel it's surplus, because it's been covered. Thank you, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: As Chairman of the committee, I feel I have to say something about this. I hadn't considered that, Mr. Brown, even though I was the mover of that particular one on discrimination in the Bill of Rights. We were concerned here about some problems in terms, well, first of all, of teachers that came up before the committee, teachers in certain areas. And, I believe, one of our committee members even made the point that he had experienced this where the community had been totally of one denomination-regardless of what it had been-and there'd been discrimination in that community in terms of hiring. That was oneofthe conditions. The other one was, if you'll notice, at the end, we've added the original statement said—had something concerning just sex in terms of-1 mean-discrimination in terms of higher education on the basis of sex. And we've extended it. Now, if you can satisfy us that this clause in the Bill of Rights does cover that, I would certainly be willing to accept it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Cain.

DELEGATE CAIN: The consideration of the rights of teachers in placement without regard to religion and other external personal choices has come full-cycle since I first began to teach. When I first began asking for teacher positions, there was a surplus of qualified teachers; there were more available than there were vacancies. A good opening was often obtained by political pull. Many application forms asked such questions as, "What is your church affiliation? Do you attend weekly? Would you be willing to teach a Sunday School class? Do you play cards? Do you smoke? Do you drink? Do you support a political party?" Those days passed, and we came into a period where there were more vacancies than there were qualified--and I emphasize qualified applicants. Now, we are again in a period like thelatethirties, when teachers are unable to find jobs. Could it not happen again?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Mr. President, will Mr. Champoux yield to a question?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Reluctantly.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Mr. Champoux. On your-this last section, dealing with discrimination, I noticed that in the Education proposed draft as compared with the Bill of Rights, you leave out political ideas, which was included in the Bill of Rights. And I-was that intentional?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: No ma'am, but we heard you had an amendment to put in there. We haven't seen it yet, but we heard.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Well, if Mr. Brown's move to delete does not prevail, I will offer such an amendment. Will you yield to one more question?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX:. I certainly will.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: The first section, as Mr. Davis indicated, has been interpreted to be religious or partisan test or qualifications. I'm not sure exactly what a partisan test is. But I think at a different time, and it may be a different court, could that not be interpreted to say that no test ofanyqualification could be required? That is, the University System would always be precluded from having entrance exams, for example?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Well, in reference to your--may I answer her?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Sure.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: In reference to your first question, a partisan test is usually interpreted as meaning belonging to one particular political party, for instance. These two lost words, "test" and "qualification", are nouns, as you well know, with the adjective modifier "religious" and "partisan". Now, it has held up for the many years since the Constitution has been in force, where it has never been subjected to the test whether that means that there are no qualifications that apply. Where that is precedent, I would say that it has never been challenged, to my knowledge, on the basis of the argument you make. I think it would stand the test of time. In reference to Mr. Harlow's-may I mention that or not?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux, you may have the floor.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: He brought up a good point-l think Mr. Harlow brought up a good point, and, Paul, I don't think at this point that our Constitution covers that, personally. And from the judges' opinions, apparently it doesn't, and I think it's certainly a lack. If you look at— there are two other things here, though, in reference to Mr. Brown's deletion movement, that are not applicable to the Bill of Rights section as I see it. For instance, it says here, "nor shall attendance be required in any religious service whatever". But more important than that, it says "nor shall any sectarian tenets be taught in any public educational institution of the state". Now, if we eliminate the entire section, we're going to be eliminating those two points too, and I think you should consider that. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Will Mr. Champoux yield to just one further question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes, I yield.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: It was not clear to me from your answer whether or not your committee dealt with the question of whether or not the institutions of higher learning in Montana could or could not use LSATs, or any kind of a test, for admission to the University.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Well, Mrs. Robinson, I didn't grab that question to begin with, or understand it. The answer is "No, we haven't; we didn't." And I know of no case that's been-come before the courts using this clause as a basis to support a test for entrance. It could perhaps; I don't know.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman. I'll briefly close. I think the questions have showed that we just keep adding things; we get more confusion. And we do have religious studies in our institutions of higher learning-I know Missoula does-and discrimination is completely covered very broadly by the Bill of Rights. And I repeat, I see no reason to put more of this into the Constitution. Thank you, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Apparently, we're ready to vote on Mr. Brown's issue of deleting Section 7 in its entirety.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Roll call.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster, do you want a roll call vote?

DELEGATE FOSTER: Please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be in favor of deleting Section 7 in its entirety, vote Aye on the voting machine; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Cast the ballot.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Heliker votes NO.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Too bad. You may explain your vote, Mr. Heliker, but you may not change it.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 33 delegates have voted Aye; 56 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 56 having voted No and 33 Aye, the motion fails.

Mr. Heliker, do you want the floor?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I got in a little late; I didn't vote. I wanted a No vote recorded.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You can show a No vote in the journal, but you can't record one. Very well. We're discussing Section 7. Is there other discussion?

Mr. Harbaugh, I don't know whether you want this substitute motion mentioned or not.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I think, Mr. Chairman, in light of the discussion, I would like to move the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You want to move it?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. I had 20 copies made because it's long, and I think people may want to see it. So, Mr. Clerk, will you have several of those-a couple in each row so people have a chance to see it. Now, Mr. Harbaugh, would you like-care to read your amendment? Mr. Clerk, did you keep one? Will the clerk please read Mr. Harbaugh's proposed substitute amendment.

CLERK HANSON: "Substitutefor Section 7. Mr. Chairman. 'All public educational institutions in this state shall guarantee the integrity of the diverse political, religious, cultural and social sectors of a pluralistic society. No discrimination on the basis of race, sex, religion, creed, or national origin shall be permitted in matters of employment in or admission to any public educational institution.' Signed: Harbaugh."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh has proposed that language as a substitute motion replacing the language in Section 7 as shown in the majority report. You're aware that the printer-the print shop is not open today, so I had 20 copies made on the Xerox so you'd have a chance to look at it if you can share it up and down the aisle a little bit.

Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: It was not my intention originally to move this, until I heard some of the discussion here on the floor this morning. And there seems to be some sentiment in favor of making some changes in this section. I think we do need a section comparable to the present one that we have, and I move this substitute motion because we did discuss this in our Education Committee and, after quite a lot of discussion, decided to stay with the original section. Possibly, this would be a compromise-type of article. There was a time, certainly, in the history of our educational system where we needed a listing, perhaps, of the sort that is contained in the present section. However, I think that times have changed and that we have seen that strict statements, such as the one in Article IX, have been construed sometimes in such a way that they prohibit some of the things that we maybe didn't want to prohibit; study of maybe certain religious material or this kind of thing in the public schools. And really, all I'm doing is trying to restate the tenets of the present section in a more positive language and term, so that it would not prohibit some of the things that I think we find desirable today in our educational institutions. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there discussion?

Mr. Noble.

DELEGATE NOBLE: As a member of the committee and the one who proposed this section, I resist Mr. Harbaugh's amendment. We talked in the committee, and the committee voted unanimously to adopt the other one.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: May I ask Mr. Champoux a question?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I yield.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Champoux. Again, I don't understand-when you use the word "sectarian tenets to be taught in any public educational institution", what do you do about a Department of Religious Studies? I agree with Mr. Brown. It seems to me that this is something to be studied and thought about and learned about.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. Brown had closed, and, of course, under the rules you can't stand up unless you can sneak one in, and I've already gotten one in this morning so I wasn't going to try again. But if you look at the word "taught" there--we brought this up in committee and we felt that the word "taught" has a, you know, a different connotation than the word "study". You won't buy that?

DELEGATE BUGBEE: No.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: All right. Well, (Laughter) if you go back to the original in the old Constitution, it says practically the same thing. As a matter of fact, in that area, it does say exactly the same thing. And the intent, of course, of the original section was to keep a public school teacher from teaching his particular religious tenets in the classroom. And this is the way it's been interpreted by the courts, as we understand it. Now, the University has, of course, had a School of Religion. I'm not quite sure, it isn't directly affiliated with the school-the University, is it? Directly is a part of the University?

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Yes, it is.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yeah, I knew it wasn't at one time. All right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just let Mr. Champoux answer. And then if you want the floor, I'll give it back to you. Don't pay any attention to his inquiries during his answer. (Laughter)

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Well, I'm a different kind of teacher. We, you know, we go back and forth in my classroom. Well, anyway—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: This is a different kind of classroom, Mr. Champoux. (Laughter)

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes, wait till this afternoon. Okay, now the only thing I can say at this point is that since the University has been able to do it up to this point without objection, I would say it's still allowed.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Champoux, I'd just like to answer. I think the thing-to me anyway, it's a can of worms. I'd also like to add that the Department of Religious Studies, the University of Montana, is the most prestigious in the country. I don't think many people know that. Also, they are bringing in a new person this year to teach, who is probably the best-known person in the world to teach Indian religion. And I-it's a—when you teach, you study-you study, somebody has to teach it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman. I think Mrs. Bugbee is right on to a point that is essential, and I think this is possibly one of the main reasons Mr. Harbaugh rewrote this. And looking it over this quickly, I like his rewriting, and I think I will support it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President. I rise in opposition to the substitute motion. I think this present section of nondiscrimination in education is well understood by the people. It's been interpreted many times, and I can't see why we should substitute something that isn't as good for something that is good.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Fellow delegates. In reading over the amendment, the words that impress me very much and that will, if you read them carefully, will allay the fears you may have. I think it-"shall guarantee the integrity" and "no discrimination". Certainly if there's any type of teaching, as Mr. Champoux would indicate, it would violate both of those tenets. And it seems adequately taken care of and yet allows the other factor which, if you're going to study in school, seems to be a very important one.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Reichert.

DELEGATE REICHERT: Mr. Chairman. Since we do not have copies of this amendment and since we are working on the Education Article, I think that we should be educated as to what we're voting on. I wonder if we could please have Mr. Harlow's amendment read to us.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right. There are some copies near you. Someone could perhaps hand you one. I'll reread it. "All public educational institutions in this state shallguarantee the integrity of the diverse political, religious, cultural and social sectors of a pluralistic society. No discrimination on the basis of race, sex, religion, creed, or national origin shall be permitted in matters of employment in or admission to any public educational institution." So the first sentence says "shall guarantee the integrity of the diverse political, religious", and so forth, "sectors" and the second one says "no discrimination"-with a big, long list of things-"shall be permitted in employment or admission to any education institution." Mr. Woodmansey.

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: I would like to direct a couple of questions to Mr. Harbaugh and, I think, the body here, if Mr. Harbaugh-if he would accede to the questions. There are a few words in the first part of your amendment here that bother me. First of all, you talk about the diverse political, religious, cultural and social sectors. The word "diverse" bothers me; the word "sectors" bothers me. You go on a little bit further, it says "pluralistic society". To tell you the truth, I'd like to know what you mean by each of these words. I don't understand them. I feel it's a poor choice in this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. I'll try to respond to that. "Diverse", in my understanding of the word, means the various. I suppose you could substitute the word "various", the various groups that are enumerated here. The word "sector" seems to me also to be fairly clear. You could use the word "segment" if you want. That, I assume, would be parallel to the word "sector". The word "pluralistic" is one that is more and more being employed by the courts. In fact, if you'll read some of the recent Supreme Court decisions regarding the 1st Amendment, you'll find that they use the word "pluralistic" quite freely. And it's, I think, accepted by almost everyone that we live in a pluralistic society, or that this is the intention, at least, of the great American dream—is that people who share different forms of culture, different religions, and so forth, live together in this society and that one of these particular segments or beliefs of society does not dominate any other. This is what I mean by "pluralism".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Woodmansey.

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: I think that answers my question, and I would resist the amendment. I feel it does nothing to add to the present Constitution. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I feel, in rising to speak to this, that there would beacouple of ways to go. If we are trying to state something about nondiscrimination in education, we might amend it by striking the first sentence and just stating no discrimination will be allowed. We're trying to say both a positive and a negative thing under a title of no discrimination, and I think that bears some scrutiny. The other thought is the former one which has been in our Constitution, has-in speaking to the teaching of sectarian tenets, is a different concept than Mrs. Bugbee was referring to, where you have an attempt to understand in depth the meaning and the history and the philosophy of various religious groups. That's one thing. Another thing is to advocate a particular tenet, and that is what this section originally was intended to protect, that you would not simply be, as in the University, examining in depth various philosophies and religions and thinking about them with some adult perspective. You would, perhaps, without this statement, be subjecting very young children to the sect prejudices of a particular teacher. And I think there are a couple of things here that are involved. As far as the one that Mr. Harbaugh has submitted, I assume that our educational institutions have some devotion to the search for truth. And the search for truth may or may not guarantee the integrity of every diverse political, religious cultural, social sector as it comes to us. It bears some thought.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. I think that what we're concerned about here is the difference between teaching and studying and indoctrination. And I believe that not only on the University level, but also down to the grade schools, as students become more involved in studies of the cultures of the world, they cannot really study these without studying the religious beliefs and tenets of those people. And it's possible that what we ought to try to do is to incorporate prohibition against indoctrination, rather [than] against teaching in this section.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Would Mr. Harbaugh yield to a few questions, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I'll try.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Now, Gene, you and I and the rest of the committee had a long discussion during this section on secularism. Remember? And some concerns were expressed that something called secularism, which I'm going to have you define here in a minute if you would, is becoming prominent in our schools. And perhaps there should be done-something else should be done to balance this a bit. Now, first of all, would you define secularism for me, sir?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Secularism? Well, secularism is not easy to define. I believe, though, that in one of the court cases-Supreme Court cases-1 can't recall just exactly which one-one of the Justices did, in effect, say that the teaching of certain tenets in the public school could amount to what I believe he described as a secular religion. And my understanding of it would be that, basically, it's the promotion of sort of an agnostic point of view in which we say basically this-we can't really know the truth about any of the religious beliefs, and therefore that's what we'll teach, agnosticism. And I suppose secularism would have to be equated in some sense with that and would, since we can't know the truth about these other things, would then say the truth is that the scientific, technological things that we can see and touch, and so forth, are basically the things we must believe in.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: May I ask him another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: All right, now, when we talk about a pluralistic society, is it your intent, then, by this-for the record perhaps to get more religion in our schools?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: No. My intent is that, as Mrs. Eck stated, that we simply not stifle the freedom of the student to study various beliefs and points of view. It's not my intention to make the public school into an institution that instructs youngsters or promotes any particular religious point of view.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Thank you very much. I've brought this out, sir, for the record, so that we could be clear on this. We had a long, extended discussion. Now, I simply acted as the devil's advocate at this point to bring this point out. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman and delegates. I think we're concerned about this matter of "taught", and I think it's justified. I'm sure that we're not trying to hinder the teaching of religion in any University System; the comparative religions in the high schools or grade schools. What we are concerned about is promoting one particular religion over another. So as a substitute motion for all motions pending, I move to amend, on page 22 of Section 7, in line 21, strike the word "any" and insert the word "one". In line 22, strike the "s" on "tenets". Strike the word "taught" and insert in lieu thereof "advocated above another". So we will have it reading like this: "nor shall one sectarian tenet be advocated above another in any public educational institution of the state."

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr.-just a minute now.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I shall repeat—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, just a minute, don't repeat yet. Mr. Harbaugh's amendment was styled a substitute amendment to replace Section 6 with a different set of language. We have not allowed substitute amendments to substitute amendments. Now that seems to me to put the Chair in the position of saying that you may amend Mr. Harbaugh's. And I suppose I could allow you to amend it by striking it in its entirety and putting in this other with some changes, but that amounts to a substitute amendment. I think you may explain the purpose that you have here, Mr. Aasheim, which I think you have done, and you may do it further if you feel. I think we've got to have the sense of the body on what we're doing with Mr. Harbaugh's motion before we get into restructuring another one, or else we're going to have substitute motions on substitute motions. And you wouldn't want Mrs. Robinson's substitute motion, which she has up here, on yours, so I think you may explain it, and then I'll rule it out of order. And then we'll consider Mr. Harbaugh's and we'll come back to you.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Your point is well taken, Mr. Chairman. And I like Mr. Harbaugh's ideas. But we have school teachers and we have school professors asking questions about the terminology and meaning of these terms. One of my directives when coming here was to make this language in this Constitution plain, so that eighth graders can understand it, and maybe sixth graders can understand it. I like-as I said before, I like Mr. Harbaugh's meaning, but I also like the original terminology, the wording of our present Constitution. I think what we're concerned about is the meaning of the word "taught". We don't want to prevent the evaluation of religions in our public schools or in our colleges. And with that, I'll close.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. So that everyone understands, Mr. Harbaugh has a substitute motion, and it can be amended once; but other than that, Mr. Aasheim has a proposal for amending Section 7, if it doesn't pass. Mrs. Robinson has such a proposal, and Mr. Harper has such a proposal. One of them deals with the word "taught"; one of them puts in another category to be protected-namely, political beliefs. Now, with that background, we can go ahead.

Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I, too, like the Harbaugh proposition, and I think we would do better to amend it than to replace it. That-and for that reason, I'll ask Mr. Harbaugh for a question, please.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Yes, I yield.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Do you think that we could clear up the matter by an amendment such as this at the end of your statement-by just saying simply, "no indoctrination of sectarian tenets shall be allowed"? It seems to me-I'm asking you first.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Harlow has just sent up an amendment to the Chair to that effect, and I would heartily endorse that.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: I'd like to— having heard the answer, then, I would like to make that amendment, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, now, do you want to make it before you hear Mr. Harlow's? It's already in writing on my desk.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Okay, very good.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay, Mr. Harlow, are you ready to have your amendment put?

DELEGATE HARLOW: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Harlow would amend Mr. Harbaugh's language by adding, at the bottom-and those of you who have the sheet might want to write this on it: "nor shall any sectarian tenets be promoted in any public educational institution of the state." "Nor shall any sectarian tenets"-T-E-N-E-T-S-"be promoted in any public educational institution of the state". Mr. Harlow, I'll allow your amendment.

Mr. Harlow.

DELEGATE HARLOW: Mr. Chairman. I move that amendment. I do it primarily and exclusively for the purpose of overcoming some of the objections to Mr. Harbaugh's amendment. This, I think, takes out the fear that has been expressed here. And if I may support the amendment in its entirety-that is, Mr. Harbaugh's amendment and this slight amendment I gave here-1 think it overcomes one of the objections that I had to original Section 7, in that it barred students from going to school because they were not conformists, because they had a little different thinking about their personal appearance. And I think it is sad here that this body, and particularly various members of it, are so concerned and so carried on and so want to perpetuate conformity in our society. Many years ago, maybeconformity was very fine-or it was accepted, let me put it that way-maybe it wasn't so fine. But we had conformity. As Mrs. Cain brought out, when she first applied for a teacher's certificate, there was various restrictions on what she could or couldn't do. I remember the same thing on my first application, or my first contract. I was not allowed to go to Billings more than two times in a semester. I thought Billings was all right. Of course, I just heard the remark here that that was a good thing to put in the contract to keep you out of Billings. (Laughter) It may have been at that time, but I think if such a contract was proposed today, it would be absurdity. And the same thing, I think, is wrong in allowing the school boards to put up various absurd conformities for children to go to school. That is my problem and my paramount reason for trying to amend this section of the Constitution to make it so that school boards cannot discriminate against the students. It has been done here in the past and is being done now. I'm hoping that this amendment that we have in here now will meet all of those qualifications. My qualifications, which allows no discrimination against a student because of his personal thoughts and no discrimination or not allowing--I mean, not allowing the schools to take over the teaching of a certain specific kind of religion or thought. We must keep this broader thought in mind: the amendment that was applied earlier in this article, that allowed us to teach Indian culture. I think if we get down too fine on the-on this discrimination, that we will nullify that amendment that was put on. I hope this amendment of mine prevails and then the amendment of Mr. Harbaugh's prevails. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I don't want to quibble on the words, but I think there's a concern here for what Mrs. Bugbee perhaps, was concerned about when we used the word "promoted". I don't know if you see that that way, Mrs. Bugbee. What's the difference between "teaching" and "promoted"? Or if you're lucky, at the end of the year—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Champoux, I agree with you. And I think there is-there will be confusion with the word "promoted". And I prefer Mrs. Eck's use of the word "advocated". I think if that were substituted, if "advocated" were put in, it would be adequate.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Harlow's amendment. I don't see why you'd need to close, Mr. Harlow. We've only had a minor exchange. Do you want to close?

DELEGATE HARLOW: The word definition came up here. The word "advocate" was considered better than the word "promote". If I may, at this time, cancel out the word "promoted" and put in the word "advocated".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any objection to allowing Mr. Harlow to substitute the word "advocated" for the word "promoted" in his amendment? Hearing none, it'll be done. Therefore, the issue arises on Mr. Harlow's amendment to add to Mr. Harbaugh's amendment this language: "nor shall any sectarian tenets be advocated in any public educational institution of this state". So many as shall be in favor of that amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair is in doubt. So many as are in favor, say Aye-vote Aye on the voting machines; so many as are opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The vote'11 be closed. The vote is 42 to 41 in favor, so it's adopted. Now, the issue is on Mr. Harbaugh's amendment that "all public educational institutions of the state shall guarantee the integrity of diverse political", and so forth, and second, No discriminatory- "no discrimination based on sex, religion, or creed shall be permitted", with the addition of this sentence: "nor shall any sectarian tenets be advocated in any public educational institution in this state." That's the issue.

Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a moment. We'll be at ease for one minute while we change the tape. Very well. We're back in order, Mr. Burkhardt. The issue is Mr. Harbaugh's amended substitute motion.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, would it be in order at this time to ask for a noon recess and get a chance to look at some of this and talk about it with the proponents and opponents?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, the Chair is very desirous of completing Section 7. I had expected to complete 7 and 8 before noon. We are working a little late. Some of the people may go to the prayer luncheon, and I told them I wouldn't recess until 12:30 at least. I don't see any reason why we can't finish it. We got lots of motions up here to go.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: All right. I wonder if Davis is in the room-1 wonder if Mr. Dahood would yield to a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I yield to a question, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Wade, by now you're an authority on so many things (Laughter) we might as well put you—

DELEGATE DAHOOD: The newspapers would disagree with you, Delegate Burkhardt.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt, I think this comes as a rude shock. (Laughter)

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I'm concerned, and I thought maybe as a lawyer, sir, you could speak to this. As I read it, we are here guaranteeing the integrity of diverse sectors of a pluralistic society. It doesn't say we're defending them in school. We're on record to go out and promote them and defend them everywhere. I wonder how we're going to afford that and other questions.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: You wonder how we're going to afford that?

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: No, I wonder if you read it the same way I do in terms of what we're guaranteeing by the language of this amendment. Do you have it in front of you, as Gene Harbaugh has—

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Yes, and I really have some doubt. In fact, I've expressed my opinion, and probably what we ought to do is find one sentence to indicate that we're not going to have any discrimination of any kind in education. And I think we'd be a lot better off.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I'll close on my motion if there are no more—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson, do you want to speak?

DELEGATE WILSON: Yes, Mr. President. I think the old section has served us well over the years. I don't see any quarrel with it at all. They've only added six words to the old section. I think this is sufficient and adequate. I think we know what we're voting on when we vote for it. I think the courts have determined that this is right, and I don't see any need to borrow trouble or stir up dissention. And I would urge the adoption of the majority report.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman. I'd like to direct a question to Mr. Harbaugh.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Harbaugh, there was some discussion about whether the cultural and social sectors would lead us to a matter of dress-hair for boys for example, and dungarees for girls attending school. Is that included in your-for the record?

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Romney, I doubt that it is. The courts have had some of these cases under advisement in the past, and I think that what we come up against in those questions is a question of the authority of local school boards and the autonomy of the local districts. And I doubt very much that this is directed to that particular question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there other discussion? Now you may close, Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman, I'd just like to say, in closing, that in rewriting this section, I don't think that we are doing anything radical or extreme, because in the annotations on this section, there are none in the old Constitution. So to say that the old one served us well, I'm not sure there's truth to that. It hasn't served us at all. The question hasn't come into the courts, and-at least in Montana, and I think this might be a more plausible way of approaching the question. I close.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Harbaugh's motion to substitute for Section 7 the language: "All public educational institutions in this state shall guarantee the integrity of the diverse political, religious, cultural and social sectors of a pluralistic society. No discrimination on the basis of race, sex, religion, creed, or national origin shall be permitted in matters of employment in or admission to any public educational institution nor shall any sectarian tenets be advocated in any public educational institution of the state." So many as shall be in favor of that amendment, vote Aye on the voting machines; so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, take the ballot.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 23 delegates have voted Aye; 62 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 62 having voted No and 23 having voted Aye, the motion is defeated.

Mrs. Robinson, you're next. Are you ready for your motion to be read?

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 7 of the Education Article, page 5, line 23, by adding the following words and punctuation-quote: 'political beliefs'-end of quote— after the word--quote: 'religion'-end of quote. Signed: Robinson."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, Mrs. Robinson wants to add an amendment to Section 7, on line 23, to add the words "political belief', so that it says: "No person may be debarred from admission to any public institution of learning on account of sex, race, creed, religion, political beliefs, or national origin." In other words, she's added "political beliefs" to the list of things for which you cannot be kept out of school.

Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Mr. Chairman. This is just to bring this up to what we passed in the Bill of Rights. And also, I'm really concerned about getting this "political beliefs" in here. I suspect that in a year or so, I may have to go to Butte to apply for a job as a schoolteacher, and with my conservative Republican voting record (Laughter), I wouldn't want them to refuse to hire me because of my political beliefs.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion? Very well. The issue is on Mrs. Robinson's proposal to add the words "political beliefs" to the list of things for which you cannot be debarred admission to public institutions of learning. So many as shall be in favor of that, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it. and she wins.

Very well, Mr. Harper, you're next. Do you want yours read?

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman, either mine or Mr. Aasheim's. Does he have one before you?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: He doesn't have one written. Will the clerk read Mr. Harper's here.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend the Education Article, page 5, Section 7, line 20, by changing the word 'taught' to the word 'advocated'. Signed: Harper."

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper's point is to change the word "taught" to the word "advocated" on line 20 in Section 7.

Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: It's a one-word change, and I think it strikes at many of the comments that have been made here, so I won't belabor the point. I suppose most of us have had experience with this kind of a conflict in the minds of people-administrators and teachers in our public schools, as to just how far they can go in even bringing up religious subjects. Mr. Champoux said a moment ago that they didn't mind people studying them, but we didn't want them taught. Well, that's hard to do. It's pretty hard for any person to bring up a subject, in a sense, without teaching it, though it was possible when I was a student, I'm sure of that. The school person--one schoolteacher, for example, invited me into a class on English Literature to talk about the Book of Job in the Bible. The next year, the same course was taught by another teacher, who felt that this would be a religious imposition on the students, and so the format of the course was changed. It didn't make any particular difference to me. I simply use it as an illustration of the fact that the word "taught" does mean different things to different people. I think the word-a word like "advocated", as Mr. Aasheim and I are suggesting, seems to be more directly to the point of what this whole section is about.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman. I concur with Mr. Harper's suggestion here, inserting the word "advocated". After consideration, I believe mine might have been in violation of the federal Constitution, because then an institution could have advocated two religions which would be, I would say, in violation. So I concur with eliminating the word "taught" and substituting "advocated".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion?

Mr. Rebal.

DELEGATE REBAL: Mr. Chairman. I believe we're trying to write words into a document that has already served us well. And it seems to me that we are getting away from the framework of a constitution and trying to write in words that we are not certain ourselves of the meanings thereof. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Studer. Oh, Mr. Studer was stretching.

Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman. As I understand this, we're dealing with placing the word "advocated" in, in place of "taught" in line 20?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's right. So it says, "nor shall any sectarian tenet be advocated in any public educational institution of the state."

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Very well.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Harper's amendment, which would add the word "advocated" in place of "taught", so that the phrase would be "nor shall any sectarian tenets be advocated in any public institution." So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's amended.

Well, Mr. Foster, I guess you're next. Would you like us to read yours, Mr. Foster?

DELEGATE FOSTER: Please, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk, would you read Mr. Foster's amendment.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend the Education Article, Section 7, page 22, line 21, after 'whatever', and delete the remainder of the section."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, let me have it, and I'll see if I can read it. Put a period after the word "whatever". The word "whatever" doesn't appear on that line, Mr.--oh, you're on page 22. Well, we'll have to transpose here. All right, now, if you go to your books, on line-it's on page 22, line 21, and on page 5, it's line 19. He wants to put a period after the word "whatever", so that the-Section 7 would read-and strike the rest-"No religious or partisan test or qualification shall ever be required of any person as a condition for admission to any public educational institution of the state, either as teacher or student, nor shall attendance be required at any religious services whatever." And then, he wants to leave out the rest of it about sectarian tenets and being debarred from admission on account of sex, religion, creed, public beliefs or national origins.

Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. The basic line of my reasoning here is the same as presented by Delegate Brown. However, I do feel that it's necessary to retain the provisions which come in the first portion of this section. "No religious or partisan test or qualification shall ever be required of any person as a condition of admission into any public educational institution of the state, either as teacher or student, nor shall attendance be required at any religious services whatever." And I can accept the fact that some of you may have concerns about deleting this wording. However, I think the lengthy discussion that we have had in the area of trying to prescribe what type of freedom or limitations on freedom in the area of studies, in the area of activities of our institutions, it's clear that we're getting into an area which we really shouldn't be getting into in the Constitution. I refer you to Section 4 in the Bill of Rights Article in which we state, "The dignity of the human being is inviolable. No person shall be denied the equal protection of the law nor be discriminated against in the exercise of his civil or political rights on account of race, color, sex, culture, social origin or condition, or political or religious ideas by any person, firm, corporation, or institution or by the state, its agencies or subdivisions." And I submit that what we're concerned about here is amply covered in our new section as written in the Bill of Rights. And I see no reason to belabor this argument, and I feel that the amendment, as presented, should be adopted. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Harper's amendment would put a period after the word "whatever" on line 19, page 5, of Section 7 and would delete the reference to sectarian tenets and to the phrase that says, "nor shall any person be debarred from admission to any public institution on account of sex, race, creed, religion, political beliefs, or natural origins." I'll amend "Harper" to "Foster"; it's Mr. Foster's amendment to strike thelasthalf of Section 7. So many as shall be in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Noes have it, and it's defeated. Now, ladies and gentlemen, you have for your consideration Section 7. I have no amendments up.

Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: May I ask Mr. Champoux a question?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Anytime, Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Thank you. You talked previously about that word "qualification".

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: You think there's no problem there?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I wouldn't say that. What I'm basing my conclusion on is the past record of the courts. That's all I'm basing it on. I think Mr. Davis will substantiate me on that, that we haven't had any problems on that. Whether we will in the future, who knows?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman. May I ask Mr. Dahood to yield, please?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Yes.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Dahood, what's your opinion of that word?

DELEGATE DAHOOD: I'm bothered by the word "qualification". I suppose somebody could use it in a way in which it's not intended. I regret that Delegate Foster's amendment didn't carry, and then perhaps we could have gone back to the word "qualification"-had something that's going to carry out our intent. But I could see where someone could cause some problem with respect to "qualification".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee and Mr. Dahood. May the Chair observe that Mr. Davis explained at the beginning of this, and I think it's not an unreasonable explanation, that the word "qualification" is modified by "religious" and "partisan". It's religious qualifications and partisan qualifications which the Constitution has been held so far to prescribe. Now, if you want to take it out of there, fine, but that's Mr. Davis' explanation.

Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President. This was placed in the Constitution in 1889. We've never had a case come up on it yet. Now, maybe we can change it and do better than they've done the last 80-some years, but I have some serious doubts. When I ran, I also told the constituents in my area that I was going to try to leave some of the things in that worked for about 80 or 90 years without causing any problems. So I support the majority to leave it in like it is.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Members of the body, you have before you for your consideration, on the recommendation of Mr. Noble that when this body does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 7, as amended, we recommend it be adopted. All those in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's adopted.

Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I move we stand in recess until 1:30 this day.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Let's make it about 1:40, since we're past the half hour. Is that all right? All right, the motion is to recess until 1:40. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed.

(No response)

(Convention recessed at 12:36 pm-reconvened at 1:45 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The committee will come to order. Ladies and gentlemen of the committee, when we recessed at noon, we had just finished adopting Section 7 as amended. Therefore, will the clerk please read Section 8.

CLERK SMITH: "Section 8. School elections, The Legislative Assembly shall provide for elections of School District Trustees." Section 8, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee arises, that they adopt Section 8.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the motion has been made that when this committee arises and reports, after having had under consideration Section 8, we adopt it. Mr. Martin, would you like us-Mr. Martin's not here.

Mr. Heliker, would you like us to read your amendment?

DELEGATE HELIKER: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk read Mr. Heliker's amendment to Section 8.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman, I move to amend Section 8 of the Education and Public Lands Committee Proposal on page 5, line 24, after the word and punctuation 'elections': 'The supervision and control of schools in each school district shall be vested in a school board.' Signed: Heliker."

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker, do you mean to put a period after the word "elections"? Oh, you want to substitute that language in place of the language that's there, is that it?

DELEGATE HELIKER: No, I want to add it before the language that's there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Add it before. All right. The purpose of Mr. Heliker's amendment is to add to Section 8, on line 24, page 5, right at the beginning of the section, the following sentence: "The supervision and control of schools in each school district shall be vested in a school board." Then it would go on and say, "The Legislative Assembly shall provide-" Mr. Heliker, are copies of your amendments on the desks?

DELEGATE HELIKER: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You might want to write that down then. "The supervision and control of schools in each school district shall be vested in a school board." Then the rest of the sentence-the rest of Section 8 would remain the same.

Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, not being a member of the Education Committee, although I am vitally interested in the subjects considered by that committee for the same reason that all of us are, of course, plus the fact that I am myself a teacher, but not being a member of the committee, I have become aware of the problems that the committee has considered only as its report has approached the debate stage and as it has come on the floor and been debated. And I became aware-that is, acutely aware, although I was generally aware before, I suppose, if I thought about it much-that there is grounds for concern of-concerning the autonomy of the local control, the local school boards, as financing of the schools gravitates toward the state more and more and as we see in the future the increasing likelihood that it-there will be a continuation of that trend. And the fear has been expressed here on-in this committee, when we were discussing these matters previously, that the local school boards would lose autonomy as they lost their control over the funds, if they do. Now, this committee has not provided, I notice, for autonomy in the Constitution for local school boards, although that autonomy is provided in the statutes which make the local school boards bodies corporate. At the same time, however, the committee proposal in Section 11 provides for autonomy to a certain extent for the Board of Regents, which they propose to establish as a constitutional board. And I feel, therefore, that we should give constitutional recognition and status to the local boards to-first of all, to allay the fears which have been expressed, which I think are well founded, concerning the preservation of local autonomy; and secondly, to give parallel treatment to the governing boards of the public schools, as well as the public universities and colleges. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. President, fellow delegates. I also have felt that there is quite a bit of fear on the part of many delegates here, and no matter what we say, perhaps they'd still have that fear that the local school districts are going to lose some control and some power. And if you'll note in my remarks to the-when we get to 9,10 and 11, you will note that we have even eliminated the word "control" in the new Public Board of Education, where it is in the old Constitution, and only use the word "supervise", By this amendment the intent is shown, I think, that this delegate-this body does want local control to remain with the local school districts, and I heartily support it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Mr. Heliker's amendment?

Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I was off the floor. I wonder if you could repeat the amendment. Perhaps others have the same question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the amendment is to add to Section 8, immediately after the title, a sentence as follows: "The supervision and control of schools in each school district shall be vested in a school board." Then the rest of it would be: "The Legislative Assembly shall provide for elections of school district trustees." It establishes a school board.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I would speak in favor of it and, as a member of the Education Committee, would heartily support it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, is there any more discussion?

Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman, I just rise in hearty support of Mr. Heliker's amendment. I think that our local school boards certainly should have constitutional status.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue, then, is on Mr. Heliker's amendment, which would have the effect of adding to Section 8 a sentence saying: "The supervision and control of schools in each local school-in each school district shall be vested in a school board." So many as shall be in favor of his amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

Now, Mr. Martin, may we read your amendment?

DELEGATE MARTIN: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Read Mr. Martin's amendment please.

CLERK SMITH: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 8, page 23, of the Education and Public Lands Committee Proposal Number 10 as follows: at line 23, page 23, by adding, following the word 'trustee' and before the period at the end of the sentence, the following words: 'which shall be separate from elections at which state and county officers are elected.' Signed: Martin."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Martin has proposed an amendment which would add to Section 8, after the word "trustees", language setting up the separateness of school board elections from state and county office elections.

Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. President, in our Executive Committee we gave consideration to the idea that perhaps the state elections, and particularly for Governor, should be in the off 2 years from the presidential election. The purpose of this amendment is to make certain that when we're discussing voting in school elections, that we have them separate and apart from other elections. I think that's-it needs no-1 don't need to belabor the point, and I urge your adoption of the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harrington.

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: Mr. Chairman. In the Education Committee this was quite a discussed item. And one of the things that was brought up-and the reason we dropped or deleted the words from the old Constitution, saying it would be a nonpartisan election held separate from any city, county, or state election-was the fact that in many counties at this time, we find that you have two elections every other year, back to back, and sometimes these elections cost ten thousand, twelve thousand dollars. And it's felt that the taxpayer has to pay for these extra elections; and by putting in the Constitution the fact that these elections cannot be held on the same day as another election, this is costing the taxpayers a great deal of money, where this money could possibly be saved if these elections could be combined. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: One other point that I may add if I-and it's in the notes, but I just bring it out-and that is that in at least one instance, there is a partisan election of school trustees in the state, and I believe it is Butte-is that correct, Mr. Harrington?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a minute. Just a minute, now. Now, who did you ask?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. Chairman, may I direct a question to Mr. Harrington?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You may direct a question to Mr. Harrington. What is it?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Is it correct that there is at least one-Butte-that has partisan elections?

DELEGATE HARRINGTON: Well, they have-they have parties that they call-it's supposed to be nonpartisan, I guess, but they have different parties-Independent United Party and Nonpartisan Party-and they vie against each other in election. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Mr. President. I support the idea of separate elections, but I don't think that we necessarily need it in the Constitution. I think that it could be done by the Legislature and probably would, in their wisdom.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President. In the absence of Mrs. Payne from Missoula, I think that someone should speak on her behalf. She was a very strong advocate of leaving this flexible so the school district people and the local people had an option on these elections. She indicated-and I don't remember the figure for sure, whether it cost 10 or 20 thousand dollars to hold a school trustee-or a school election in Missoula County. And with the change that may take place where you no longer have a mill levy election at a local levy, and the time may come when you don't have that, then the argument that was presented saying, "Well, you have to have a mill levy election anyway, so you might as well elect the trustees". There was a lot ofthinking that the trustees' election could be fixed by local option at some future date at a time other than in the spring when they're working on budgets—perhaps in the fall, when they'd have time to work their budgets out. But if no one else wants to carry the oar for Mrs. Payne, I am very happy to say that she was very concerned in this, and her argument was the one that persuaded us to change it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin, do you want to close?

DELEGATE MARTIN: Perhaps we should have an amendment to the effect that it would exclude Silver Bow and Missoula. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Martin's amendment to add to Section 8 language which would state "The assembly shall provide for elections for school district trustees which shall be separate from elections at which state and county officers are elected." In other words, separate school district elections would be required under this amendment. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Looks like it's wider than Butte and Missoula, Mr. Martin. All right, that's defeated. Are there other proposals for Section 8 as amended?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: If not, members of this committee, you have before you for your consideration, upon the motion of Mr. Champoux that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 8 as amended, that the same be adopted. Now, you realize-some of you came in late-the amendment says: "The supervision and control of schools in each school district shall be vested in a school board. The Legislative Assembly shall provide for elections of school district trustees." So we added that one sentence to Section 8. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Section 8 is adopted as amended. Will the clerk please read—well, just a moment. Now ladies and gentlemen, Section 9, 10 and 11 are associated, and I'm going to ask the clerk to read 9,10 and 11 all at once. And the committee has asked that they then be given a time in which to explain the interrelationships of 9, 10 and 11, and the Chair has before it three proposed amendments to 9, 10 and 11 as a group and three proposed amendments to Section 11, if we ever get there, and we'll take them up in the order that they've been shown. But will the clerk now read Sections 9, 10 and 11 all together.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman. "Section 9. State Board of Education. The Board of Public Education and the Board of Regents of Higher Education, as hereafter designated, shall together constitute the State Board of Education, which shall meet periodically on matters of mutual concern. In case of a tie vote at such meeting, the Superintendent of Public Instruction may cast a vote." "Section 10. Board of Public Education. There shall be a Board of Public Education which shall exercise general supervision over the public school system and such other public educational institutions as assigned by law. Said board shall consist of seven members appointed by the Governor, with confirmation of the Senate, to 6-year overlapping terms. The Governor and State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be ex officio, nonvoting members of the board. The duties of this board and the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be prescribed by law." "Section 11. Board of Regents of Higher Education. There shall be a Board of Regents of Higher Education, a body corporate, which shall govern and control the academic, financial, and administrative affairs of the Montana University System and shall supervise and coordinate other public educational institutions which may be assigned by law. Said board shall consist of seven members appointed by the Governor to 6-year overlapping terms, subject to confirmation by the Senate, under regulations provided by law. The board shall appoint its Executive Officer and prescribe his term and duties. The Governor and Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be ex officio, nonvoting members of this board." Mr. Chairman, Sections 9, 10 and 11.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. President, fellow delegates. At this point I would like to spend some time going over what the two-board concept is, and in the process telling you about some of the ramifications in terms of what will happen, for instance. I also intend to define "body corporate" along the way. Oh-I move that when this committee does arise, that we adopt 9,10 and 11. Is that proper at this time? No? Marshall just told me that.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That'11 do in this classroom, Mr. Champoux. (Laughter)

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Well, here we go. Sit back, relax. If you look at the old Constitution, here's where part of the problem develops. If you look at the old Constitution-I'll read it for you, you don't have to look at it-it talks about, in Section 11—the general control and supervision of the State University and various other state educational institutions shall be vested in a State Board of Education. Now, that's all right up to that point, because it gives this board a certain amount of power. The problem comes, however, when you look in the next sentence, where it says, "whose powers and duties shall be prescribed and regulated by law." Now, what the problem here is: on the one hand they've made this board and given them powers, and on the other they've taken them away. Not only that, there is a question, or there has been until our Supreme Court-there was until the Supreme Court decision was made—whether this board actually was to control the lower public schools. Well, Sections 9,10 and 11 of the proposed new article deal with the state administrative structure for education. Together, these sections provide a substantially revised framework for the operation of the educational system under the authority of Section 11 of the existing Constitution, which is a single Board of Education, which presently exercises supervision and control over the entire educational system, while sitting as the State Board of Education on matters concerning the public school system and ex officio in terms of Board of Regents on the University matters. Now, the proposed sections would replace this structure with the boards—with two boards which would separately supervise higher education on the one hand and the public school system on the other, but would meet jointly as the State Board of Education on matters of mutual concern. And incidentally, I want to stop right there and say that there was an editorial in the Missoulian 2 days ago that suggested perhaps that this board should present a unified budget to the state-the Legislature. Now, there's been a lot of fears expressed here that the two boards will tend to become competitive in terms of funds, insofar as the Legislature is concerned. Now, one of the things this committee wanted to do was tend to stop this ever-ending-never-ending parade of administrators coming to the Legislature, lobbying proliferation of courses. You know, one school gets a department, another school wants it; so the

ary education. The state administers over 25 major federal programs in education at this level. The kinds of education needed and offered are constantly changing and expanding. A board which is to cope adequately with this vast area of responsibilities must consist of members who are qualified and who have sufficient time to become knowledgeable about the particular problems and issues of public education. A board is no more capable than is a Superintendent of being competent to administer two fundamentally different areas of education. Now, another problem that's arising here, and I'm sure that if you've been reading the papers and you look at the Serrano thing and so forth, it's very, very obvious that we're going to get more federal funding. Now, there have been two studies on this. The commission-the presidential commission that was issued-the report that was issued last Monday said that we're going to get, at a minimum, 21 percent of federal funding-21 percent. Now, another intergovernmental commission that issued a report in January, a presidential commission, said that these grants will be conditional on matching or more funds. Now, if that's true-now, presently we're getting 70-7 percent federal funding. If we're going to have 21 percent federal funding, that means, then, that the state government is going to be putting in 21 percent; that gives you 42 percent. Presently the state government is putting in 27 percent. You're talking about 69 percent state and federal funding-69 percent. Now, it is my estimation from all that I know, and I'm sure that some of the members of the Revenue and Finance Committee will agree with this, since they have studied extensively, that that figure is going to be an absolute minimum. It is probably way too low. What I'm saying here, then, is that we're talking probably about anywhere from 80 to 85 percent federal and state funding that's coming, and we might as well face it. Now, with all of that money flowing through the state, don't you thinkweneed another board to be looking at it-a board of lay people watching over this, having a check on the State Superintendent's office, and so forth? The need for a separate board for public education promises, then, to become even greater in the future. The present trends indicate the assumption of much greater role in educational financing by state and federal, possibly as much as 90 percent--and I don't want to go into that, because this is according to Serrano, and there's a variance factor there that-constitutional lawyers say there's somewhere between 10 and 12 percent, but we don't know. Well, a well-informed and representative board would provide a much-needed balance to decisions on administrative policies, and that is one of the things I want to emphasize. In this whole business of the boards, we have to keep in mind all the time that the Legislature is not going to be here in session all the time, that the representatives of the people are not going to be here administering this. And the greatest fear is the bureaucracy; the greatest fear is the bureaucracy. A large majority of witnesses who testified on the subject, including key state officials and many educators, spoke in favor of the two-board concept. As a matter of fact, every major person involved in education, like the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the Presidents of all the University Systems, community—the university units-the community college presidents, the Montana Education Association, the largest education association in the state, and many, many other groups totally support this two-board concept. Three major studies that have been made since 1958—the Durham Report, the Peabody Report, and the Legislative Council study of 1958—all of them support the two-board concept. Not only that, at one time we had a constitutional amendment brought out-1 believe it was in 1960; three of them were brought out-they were never put on the ballot, because they weren't signed by the Governor. It had nothing to do with the two-board concept. The longest-serving member of the State Board of Education, Maury Richards—many of you know him-sent us a letter, and I quote: "Please give every consideration to a two-board system. Frankly, even the most capable, dedicated board member finds it impossible to do justice to the total assignment." Numerous studies have shown that we need this. The fear has been expressed that a separate board for public education might usurp the powers of local boards. There is no reason to be concerned about such a policy—possibility-however, since the powers granted the state board would be almost identical to those now granted, and what we have just done is to guarantee the control by the local board at the local level. Indeed, the committee has actually deleted the word "control" from the powers and granted-now granted the board, so that the new section reads: "exercise general supervision over the public school system." It would be difficult to argue that this grants any additional powers to the state board at the expense of local school boards. Under existing law, vocational-let me bring up this question about where's the vocational-technical schools going to go. This has caused a lot of concern. I want to make sure, at this time, for the record, the feeling of the committee and cite a number of other things. First of all, the committee wants it categorically stated that their feeling is that they want the vo-tech schools to remain under the secondary-primary board. Now, we have consulted with constitutional lawyers on this. They say that the statutes would not change unless the Legislature decided this. See? Now, why haven't we stated thatthevo-tech centers will remain under the secondary-or the primary board? Well, very simply because the vo-tech representatives that came to us and said-and I'm quoting directly from the transcript of the meeting-Mr. Driscoll and-Maurice Driscoll, a fellow delegate and Bill Korizek, representing the vo-tech centers, said that they "wanted no mention of specific units in the Constitution". No mention of them. And we agreed with that, because we felt it would be too restrictive and would set these units in concrete. Not only that, they stated-and I quote-they "favored one single board of education". I notice that Mr. Driscoll has brought up an amendment. He's going to be advocating that; and Mr. Gysler also has some connection with the vo-tech-is also advocating that. But notice this, and I quote from their own testimony-they "favor one single board of education with three subdivisions". Three subdivisions. Now, why are we concerned a little bit about this? You notice the same wording is used over in the new Board for Higher Regents, with one little variation that I will explain to you when we get to it. Now, why have we done this? Well, if you go back to 1889, who ever heard of vo-tech centers in 1889? Who ever heard of community colleges in 1889? What are these schools going to be called in 1999? What kind of schools are we going to have in 1999? What we've done this for, then, is to provide some flexibility so there can be movement back and forth. Not only that, I want you to note that only 61 percent of the vo-tech education is in the vo-tech centers; 39 percent of it is in either the community colleges or at Havre—at Northern at Havre. These figures come from the Department of Public Instruction, and also Mr. Ball's office in the Vocational office. Well, what we are trying to do, then, is to provide flexibility. From what we have found out, the greatest emphasis perhaps in the next 20 years is going to be on vo-tech education, or what would be called practical education. After all, isn't a teacher a vocation, too? And it's estimated, within 10 years, perhaps 50 percent of all education will be of this nature. This is why we have attempted to provide some leeway, some flexibility, where these units could move back and forth. Within 10 years, 50 percent, perhaps, of all education will be of this type, and it will be involved not only at the kindergarten level but all the way up through and including the university level. All right, the voting members of the board would consist of seven members selected by the Governor for 6-year overlapping terms. The Governor and Superintendent retain ex officio membership on the board, but in a nonvoting capacity. Now, the reason why we did that, we heard from many people voting-board members also-that sometimes these people come in-they come in with their proposals, you see; especially the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Here's her proposal to the board, and then she votes on it. And we thought that that perhaps wasn't right, so this is why we put that in there. We feel that the elected officials should be separate from the board decisionmaking but should retain membership on the board for informational and coordinating purposes. The committee feels that the duties of the Superintendent should be legislatively prescribed to allow for changing conditions and possible alterations of the relationship between the board and the Superintendent. It is fully expected by the committee that the office of Superintendent shall be provided by election, and it has been. A majority of the committee feels strongly that the Superintendent should be elected-well, I don't have to go into that. All right, let's go to the last board, this Board of Regents of Higher Education. The second fundamental component of the proposed new administrative structure for education is a Board of Regents of Higher Education. The same reasons which apply to the need for specialization and concentration on the public school board hold also for the Board of Regents. Higher education is fundamentally different from public school education in goals, curriculum, financing, control, operation, and so forth; and it must be administered accordingly. There is very little in common between the public school system and higher education, other than a shared need to provide a smooth transition for students between the two systems. Now, I have a kind of a suspicion that some of you are interested in what this word "a body corporate" means, so at this point I want to stop and define "a body corporate" and tell you a little bit about it. And at the end of this-my little lecture here today, I'm going to tell you what we see as happening if this occurs and what we see as not happening if it occurs. All right, let's look at the definition of a "body corporate"—this is from Black's Law Dictionary—one, it provides legal recognition as an entity apart from a normal administrative or executive agency. It limits liability of directors or members; and that point was brought up by some board members in terms that they can be sued without this. Under this the board can, but not members. It recognizes the perpetuation of the body between individual membership. It generally grants right to purchase or sell property, hold title to property, sue, contract, adopt a seal, and so forth. It generally grants right to the body to govern its own internal operations, and that should be emphasized. That is what the keys to all of this is about, the power to govern its own internal operations, according to articles of charter or incorporation—in other words, the grant of power. It has this power to exercise all powers necessary or convenient to effect any or all of the purposes which the organization is-corporation is organized, to sell things, and what-have-you. Now, the following states have a body corporate: Alaska, California, Colorado, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, New York and Florida. A body corporate is also a term applied to corporations, public and private, and is a term particularly applied to a public corporation having powers especially assigned. It indicates the distinguishing characteristics of a corporation-and what are the distinguishing characteristics? Is an artificial person a legal entity, capable of acting through its corporate offices and agents; of suing, being sued; of taking, holding property; of contracting its own name; and of continuing to exist independently of the individuals who compose it? All right. A public corporation is one created by the state for political purposes and to act as an agency in the administration of civil powers delegated to it, generally within a particular territory-a subdivision of the state-and usually invested for that purpose with subordinate and local powers, and so forth. Now, all school districts in the State of Montana, by statute, are body corporates. All school districts in the State of Montana, by statute, are body corporates. If you look at the Revised Codes, 75.6501, it says "any district shall be a body corporate." Every community college in the Stats of Montana -community college district -is a body corporate. If you look at the Revised Codes, 75-8102, these are by statutes; however, all vo-tech schools-centers which are administered by local school districts come under the powers of a body corporate. The University System is the only educational unit in the state that is not a body corporate. Now, what does it mean, really? It means that you are master of your own house; that you can set your own curriculum; that you can hire and fire. And 1'11 go into detail later on as to what the limitations on this power are. We've been using the term "autonomy" around here. I think we've been using it rather loosely, because autonomy means freedom, complete independence; and this isn't necessary to the case, as we shall point out, with this board. All right. A recognition, then, of the particular needs and problems of higher education has led all but two states in the Union-all but two-to establish separate state governing boards for higher education. Now, they've either established it by constitutional status or by legislative status. Montana and Idaho remain the only two states which retain a single board for both public schools and the University System. Some states have more than two boards for their educational system; some have three and four. But the generally recognized principle is that different educational tasks require different administrative structures. As noted in the comments to the previous sections, major studies of education in Montana recommended the creation of two separate boards-the Durham Report, 1958, and so forth. In addition to administrative questions, another fundamental reason exists for the establishment of a separate Board of Regents of Higher Education. Higher education is not simply another state service. The administrative structure of higher education cannot be considered an ordinary state agency. The unique character of the college and university stands apart from the business and usual of the state. Higher learning and research is a sensitive area which requires a particular kind of protection not matched in other administrative functions of the state. Few would dispute the vital importance of academic freedom to the process of higher learning. Such freedom is the essence of the American higher educational system. The great movements of mankind have come out of the great modern schools, the modern university system, ever since the time of the Renaissance. And the greatest of these movements have come out of the schools that were unfettered by controls that would tend to stifle them. Only in an atmosphere of independent, then, and unfettered inquiry can an objective pursuit of knowledge be conducted which is unhindered by prejudice and vested interest. The great contributions to both scientific and humanistic learning which have emerged from American colleges and universities can be attributed in large part to the freedom traditionally enjoyed by the teachers and students in such institutions. This was the idea implicit in the founding of both private and public colleges and universities in the United States. And here I want to stop for a minute and say something-that originally-(Laughter) You're awake. How about that?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You're entitled to one mistake, Mr. Champoux. Go ahead. (Laughter)

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I'm sure going to make more of you when I get through—saying something about that. (Laughter) Oh, we needed a pause. In the beginning these schools were established independently. If you go back in the Renaissance-only in modern times have we found this tendency for more state and bureaucratic control. And it's getting worse and worse, as I will show you, all the time. The society as a whole accepts the principle unreservedly. This was the idea implicit in the founding of both private and public colleges and universities in the United States, and it is an idea which still prevails. The society as a whole accepts the principle unreservedly. Rarely does a direct attack come upon the concept of free inquiry. However, a more subtle kind of coercion has made its appearance, and it is of the sort which is likely to become an ever--even greater threat to the integrity of higher education in the future; and this is the growing power of the centralized bureaucratic state. Without overtly intending to curtail freedoms, the modern state has absorbed an increasing amount of power and control in the name of efficiency. A pervasive form of influence and manipulation has grown hand-in-hand with the emerging predominance of the government form and the computer. What do I mean by that? Laws are made by Legislators, but the bureaucrats administer them, and that's the problem. We hear all the time about the unresponsive government, the unresponsive government, and so many times we think of it as being the Governor, the Attorney General, the Legislators, and so forth. The greatest danger in this country is not from our elected officials, but the ones that are hired to administer the laws. I'll never forget the day, 2 years ago, in a speech Senator Metcalf said, in Kalispell, that he had been in the Congress for I don't know how many years, and all of a sudden he heard about an agency down in the cellar of some building there that had fought at something he wanted to do. He looked into this, and he found out about an agency that had been never authorized by anyone, anywhere, and here it was administering programs. Not only that, Senator Goldwater-boy, I've hit both sides of the fence there, haven't I-over in Spokane made the same claim-I've got the right and left in on it now—that the greatest danger is from this bureaucratic control. A warning of this social trend was voiced in a landmark study of the condition of the American university conducted in the late 1950's under the chairmanship of Dr. Milton Eisenhower under a Ford Foundation grant-now I've got good old Ike on my side. The study described a variety of creeping controls on university systems which have appeared in recent years across the country. It warns that strict adherence by institutions of higher learning to a bewildering array of centralized bureaucratic controls will ultimately endanger the academic as well as the administrative freedom of the colleges in this country. This is from a book by-it's in a book called The Campus and the State by Malcolm Moos and Francis Bourke. Among the sources of growing controls which increasingly impinge on universities are state budget offices, state auditors, comptrollers, purchasing departments, personnel offices, central building agencies, and a variety of older forms of controls, such as legislative riders, which are being used in new ways to affect colleges and universities. The informal controls associated with these direct means often exert an even stronger influence on the educational process. The study concludes that the maintenance of the system of higher education free from unnecessary bureaucratic and political interference is important not only to a healthy academic atmosphere, but also to the administrative efficiency of the system of higher education. "Creative research"-and I quote-"by its very nature requires freedom to move in a different direction if the facts uncovered require it. The further away budget authority lies and the more time-consuming it is to get permission for such changes, the less will be accomplished. Research and instruction at the higher levels are not services for which specifications can be written in advance, and for which one seeks the lowest bidder. They are venture capital investments, where one successful strike in a multitude, either in the form of a new ideal or a trained individual capable of producing them, may spell the difference between a forward-moving or a retrograding nation. The power to coordinate and operate the system of higher education is one which belongs primarily, properly, to an informed Board of Regents who have the knowledge and ability to determine rationally the course of higher education. Master plans have been suggested for the guidance of higher education in Montana but have failed to be applied because of a lack of power." We could have a master plan in this state where all of the higher education units would be coordinated-all of them-so we wouldn't have this duplication of courses, this duplication of programs, and also the duplication of our units, if we only had power in a board that could enforce its own mandates in terms of its internal controls. And that is going to be one of the greatest benefits-and I want to put that on the record as the intent of this committee-that this unit would tend to put the house of our higher education in proper order. A Board of Regents empowered to carry out its informed judgments would be an important force for efficiency in the higher educational system. It is this factor of efficiency which is highlighted in the study chaired by Dr. Eisenhower. The primary conclusion of the study is that freedom actually enhances efficient operation of a university system. You might say, you know, "Why, we'll give them freedom, and they're going to go off and do their own thing." They're going to be very aware of public opinion, and once they can put their own house in order-they've got the control to do it-they will. The fact that higher education very largely owes its autonomous position in state government to the belief that freedom promotes rather than limits efficiency. In the future there is one point that colleges and universities will need to make to the public and its elected representatives very persuasively; this is simply that the goal of efficiency in higher education can be realized without noneducational officials intervening in the fiscal affairs of colleges and universities. The factors in particular add to the efficiency of a university-two factors-which is relatively free to control its own affairs--one, long-range planning. We've seen a lot of instant expert work in this very floor here-all the time. What would you feel like if you were a Professor that had planned something a long time and had come up, tried to get it passed in the Legislature, completely fail; and then some guy in the back row got up and decided, "Well, this is a brilliant idea", and passed it. And you'd have to administrate it, oftentimes without money to finance it. In the future there is one point that colleges and universities will need-well, long-range planning and administrative decentralization. There is a clear need for a strong Board of Regents tomakelong-range plans which are appropriate to the needs of higher education and free from short-term political whims. The limits of decentralization-centralization in government-oftentimes operations have become apparent, particularly in such an unpredictable and flexible field as higher education. A Board of Regents which is given the power to control and manage its own affairs would enormously improve the planning situation for higher education in Montana. Well, I want to get to something here now. Last Thursday, on the floor of this assembly, was distributed a letter to certain delegates from the Office of the Department of Administration. I heard about it. I finally acquired a copy, and I want to read you that letter. It says: "The Department of Administration is in favor of safeguarding the academic freedom of the University System in the Constitution. However, the proposed change goes far beyond the question of academic freedom. It gives the University System complete autonomy in the areas of finance and administration as well, without any control being exercised by the Legislature or central government. Past experience indicates the Board of Regents has not exercised its authority over the budget process." The attached newspaper clipping shows the board put its-quote-"rubber stamp" on the 1971-73 biennium education budget. Now, look at this-Great Falls Tribune, 2 years ago. They really had to search through the clipping file to get that baby, didn't they? Not only that, the headline doesn't coincide with what's said in the article: and we've had experience with headlines in this assembly, haven't we? Well, the general fund appropriations-it goes on, such-and-such-it names them-then it says, "The state is now in the process of developing a uniform statewide budgeting and accounting system. If the University System is excluded from thestate's financial and administrative rules and regulations, it will be impossible to adequately report on the state's financial operations. The taxpayers are entitled to know where and how their whole tax dollars are being used, and not just part of their tax dollars. Full disclosure in reporting is fundamental to achieve full accountability. If the University System is given full autonomy from financial and administrative controls, this means they will be"-and then he has about ten exemptions-ten exemptions-and I want to look at some of these exemptions, and then I'm going to give you my answers. He says, first of all—incidentally, this letter was unsigned. We sent a member of my staff down to the administration office, and we asked if this had come from the office. They denied it. They said no, they would never get involved in convention affairs in this manner. When we informed them that we had subpoena power, it was a different story and it was found out that Mr. Saxby, the State Comptroller, wrote this letter-a bureaucrat. Number one—says here-his letter-"they will be exempt from using the state treasury system." It's a nice interesting charge, but it's not true. All moneys appropriated by the Legislature would still be directed through the state treasury system. States with similar provisions as we're proposing employ the same-the state treasuries for such financial operations. Incidentally, we called five different states with this kind of a setup, and this is the information they gave us. Number two: Mr. Saxby says that they would be exempt from legislative audit of their operations. Absolutely untrue. The Legislative Auditor works for the Legislature and will continue to audit units of the University System as he saw fit. Legislative Auditors are continuously at work inspecting the operations of the universities in those states with similar provisions. Number three: exemption from an external preaudit of their claims. Partially untrue. The claims of the University System could be preaudited, although this would not automatically entitle a preauditor to absolute veto power over the University System claims. Preauditing continues on a full basis in states with other similar provisions. Number four: they would be exempt from investing their funds-funds for the Board of Investments. Now, that's an interesting charge in that it seems to indicate that Mr. Saxby didn't even read the financial-the educational report, nor even read the stipulation. Because in Number 12 that we'll be taking up here, I hope, this afternoon, it says university funds shall be-quote: "respectively invested under such regulations as may be prescribed by law", and certainly that would be through the Department of Investments. Number five: exempt from having their construction programs reviewed by the State Architect. This is questionable. Some states which have similar provisions still have the State Architect review building programs. However, the advisability of such a review, even if continued, is debatable. The new science building at the University of Montana, which has severe architectural defects, was reviewed by the State Architect. Six: They would be exempt from having their warrants issued by the State Auditor. Untrue. The state warrant process is the only method that state—that funds can be spent from the state treasury. Moreover, there is no reason why the Board of Regents would want to quibble with this process. They would be exempt from executive review of their budget adjustments. Untrue. The Department of Administration could still review budget adjustments. The department would not have absolute veto power, but it could most certainly voice objections to the Governor and the Board of Regents. States with similar provisions have exhaustive full-time executive reviews of university budgets. They would be exempt from executive review of their fee schedules and fee waivers. The Board of Regents currently has the statutory power to levy fees, not the Executive branch. The next one is a very interesting one: it says they would be exempt from the statewide budgeting and accounting system. It's interesting because it is a system not even in existence. Apparently the department plans to implement such a program and fears the University System might be excluded. The University System would not be exempt from this accounting system, as it would relate to state treasury funds. The University System's right to design and maintain its own internal accounting system is appropriate to its own activities, as it has traditionally been done, to provide proper management information as it has in the past. Then it goes on and on. Central Purchasing-it would be exempt from it. They wouldn't be exempt from Central Purchasing. If they felt that they wanted to-you know, it would be better and advantageous to them-but we're going to show you some examples herein a minute where it hasn't been advantageous to them, and so forth. Next, he makes the charge that-he's a former employee of Governor Reagan of California, incidentally. He makes the charge-he links the campus disturbances at Berkeley to the constitutional status of Board of Regents. This sort of innuendo is disgraceful. Anyone who has any knowledge of higher education knows that the situation at Berkeley had nothing to do with the powers of the Board of Regents; and more violent confrontations occurred at San Francisco State, the governing Board of which has no constitutional protection whatsoever. On the other hand, why haven't there been no riots at the University of Georgia, Michigan, Minnesota, Colorado, and so forth, that have corporate status? The real intent of the Department of Administration appears to be revealed in the last paragraph of their letter. The department wants power, bureaucratic power, and they're afraid that they might not be able to increase it if this Board of Regents goes into effect. Let's look at some examples of what's happened. Here's the Music Department at Missoula. Whenever they order something they have to come up here and put up their orders for bid, and such things as pianos and other instruments. Here are experts in the field down in Missoula and they come up here; they ask for a certain instrument, but it's overruled by an accountant, Why? They have to buy on the lowest bid basis. Oftentimes this lowest bid basis is an out-of-state bid. Sometimes it's only a few dollars cheaper than the local dealer, and they can't get service to be-service cannot be obtained locally. You can't buy secondhand equipment because of a state regulation, even from Helena, the city of Helena. Now, the problem comes when you've got 8-year-old Sears and Roebuck pianos. You ought to listen to some of those students and their piano playing. The State Department of Administration has been attempting for 2 years to impose an accounting system on the University System which is simply not appropriate to educational institutions. The University System has, in fact, been using a far more modern, double entry accounting system than the state has used for years, thesamesystem that's recommended by the American Council of Education and used nationally in all major universities for educational accounting. The University submits the most detailed and well-prepared financial reports in the state, double entry, twice a year. The obvious solution to this problem is simply to write a computer program that goes along with the University System and include it in the state system. I wonder if they've thought of that yet? The State Administration Department has expressed desire to incorporate other University-connected funds into the state General Fund, such as dormitories, fraternities, sororities, and so forth. These funds are self-sustaining and self-liquidating. It would be silly to bring them all the way up here, when they're going to have to be turned over so many times at Missoula, Bozeman, and so forth. Research grants by the government-they want to administer them all through the State Senate. But one of the better ones is the Motor Pool. This has been a fiasco from the start. The University was paying 8 cents per mile previously; now it pays 8.6 percent. Well, that may be inflation. Even after handing over approximately a hundred and fifty cars to the state, enormous inconvenience and extra cost in time is wasted going to and from the depots; adding mileage and time to the cost of going out of the way is probably greater than the savings. It takes 7 months to get billing. Not only that, anyone who uses a car permanently assigned to him must send in daily—daily-a report on its use. The man at the Agricultural Experiment Station has to drive 18 miles each way, each day, to get gas for his car. The state is in the process of getting into the gas station business-competing with private industry. All of this resulted from the bright idea of a bureaucrat that the car pool in Helena should be made statewide. Look at investment. In its review of the University investment policies, the Legislative Audit Committee complimented the University System on its fine record and said it should continue until the state could do as well. The state is making 3 percent on its investments; the University is making 6 percent.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux, I wonder if you could conclude as quickly as possible.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I'm going to, right now.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think you've had plenty of time.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Here it is. Okay. If you look at also some other problems; a tax on people, individuals, in the system-some of you remember Dr. Morton Borden here a few years ago because of a speech he made out in Minnesota, I guess it was, on cooperatives and the economic system, before the Farmers Union. He was severely attacked on this floor. They tried to eliminate his salary from the budget. As a result, Borden is now teaching, Head of the Graduate Program at the University of Santa Barbara. Dr. Louis Levine made extensive studies of mine taxation, and because of their controversial nature with respect to powerful mining interests, the Chancellor, under pressure from the Legislature and a threat to cut appropriations, suspended Dr. Levine. He resigned and went to New York. Well, if a board is created for higher education and given the responsibility for education but not the authority to carry out such responsibility, how can they be held accountable to the people? If the real authority for carrying out the policies of higher education is dispersed among the bureaucratic political frameworks of other agencies, who then is accountable to the public? A healthy post-secondary educational system must have freedom from political changes of fortune, while still maintaining its responsibility and accountability to the state. The institutions themselves, the centers of teaching and learning, must be immune from external political or ideological pressures. Thank you very much for the time I've spent.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue under consideration is Sections 9,10 and 11.

Mr. Rygg, you have an amendment. Do you want us to read it?

DELEGATE RYGG: Yes, would you read it, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk read Mr. Rygg's amendment to Section 9.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend by deleting in their entirety Sections 9, 10 and 11 on pages 24, 25, 27 and 31 of the Education and Public Lands Committee Proposal Number 10, and by substituting in lieu thereof the following section-quote: 'Section 10. The general control and supervision of the State University and the various other state educational institutions shall be vested in a Commissioner of Education, whose powers and duties shall be prescribed and regulated by law.' Signed: Rygg." Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg has proposed an amendment to eliminate Sections 9, 10 and 11 and put in place thereof a Section 9 which would set up a Commissioner of Education. Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman-

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I wish everyone that's not debating would sit down and get off the floor.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman-

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: This, I suppose, could be called a Kelleher amendment; that is to say, I'm sure it has no chance of passing-and my apologies to Bob, because he isn't here right now. But during the early days of the Convention, I approached several delegates with this idea, and each one said it wouldn't work. They said we'd tried the chancellor system once and it failed. Because of this, I did not prepare a delegate proposal, nor did I present my idea to the committee. And therefore, probably asking you folks to waste a few minutes of your time, but I'll try to make it up by not talking much the next few days. I do feel compelled to throw out this idea, though, as I believe it actually would solve Montana's problem of administering this school system. The only way we are ever going to get efficiency in our school system, especially in our higher education, is to have one man accountable. What I have observed, over the last 12 years, the University Presidents influence the Board of Regents, and that's understandably so because the layman bows to the professional. And the Presidents also, in my opinion, influence the Executive Director, even though I think he is supposedly answerable to the Board of Regents; and as a result, all six of the Presidents tries to build his own little empire, and that you can't blame them for. Now, a one-man rule could stop this empire-building and make the decisions as to what each institution should be offering as far as courses are concerned. This is especially true in the graduate field, but could apply in the other areas. Under the Commissioner of Education there should be one University President, and under this University President there should be six Vice Presidents and six Deans: and the Vice Presidents should be more businessmen than educators and the Deans, of course, should have charge of the academic field. Under this same Commissioner-in all, there should be three departments. The President of the University should be one; the second should be the Superintendent of Public Instruction, who should be in charge of the elementary and secondary schools, which is the case now; and the third department head is also needed, and that's one to be in charge of vo-tech and community colleges, so there are—because there are really three departments. I am convinced that a system like this, or one similar to it, is the only way out of Montana's present dilemma, especially in the field of higher education. Now, out of deference to Chairman Champoux who, of course, is my colleague from Flathead County, and in the interest of saving time, I hereby withdraw my motion. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, I understand Mr. Rygg to have made the following motion: "The general control and supervision of the State University and the various other state educational institutions shall be vested in a Commissioner of Education, whose powers and duties shall be prescribed and regulated by law." And I understand that he has now withdrawn that motion.

Mr. Gysler.

DELEGATE GYSLER: I have an amendment, Mr. Chairman. I wish the clerk to read it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, we'll read your amendment-Mr. Clerk, will you read Mr. Gysler's amendment.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend by deleting in their entirety Sections 9,10 and 11 on pages 24, 25, 27 and 31 of the Education and Public Lands Committee Proposal Number 10 and by substituting in lieu thereof the following section: 'Section 9. The general control and supervision of the State University and various other state educational institutions shall be vested in a State Board of Education, whose powers and duties shall be prescribed and regulated by law. The said board shall consist of 14 members, the Governor and Attorney General being members ex officio; the other 12 members thereof shall be appointed by the Governor, subject to the confirmation of the Senate, as provided by law. The State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be the executive officer of the board, shall perform such duties as the board shall prescribe in addition to such other duties as are provided by law, and shall receive such salary as is provided by law.' Signed: Gysler." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Gysler has proposed an amendment which takes out Sections 9,10 and 11 and substitutes a single State Board of Education.

Mr. Gysler.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Chairman. I rise with a little hesitancy, being a Norwegian born in the northeast corner of Montana and getting up against a Frenchman from Boston, especially after the very eloquent hour-and-some-minute speech he made. First, I want to say that probably I have a real interest in this-1 don't know if you would call vested or not-but I have three sons who are in the educational system of the State of Montana. I've been active at home in vocational education, but to those of you who think that I'm all things, I'm a real conservative. Things have been going on in the Fort Benton school system; and if you picked up today's Great Falls Tribune, you will see two pictures on the front page of what was happening yesterday in the Fort Benton school system; and if you will turn to page 12, you will find the writeup on what happened there. I was also one who taught school at a very unusual deal last October, when all of the teachers went to an in-training service session at the school. I confess that I have been more active in the line of vocational education than I have been higher education, and this is for a couple of reasons. But primarily the number one reason is because I feel the great inequity that we have had over the years between higher education and vocational education, and I have been working to help to try to correct that. As an invited participant to the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare's regional meeting in Denver last April-I believe it was Region 8 they called it-six states-and by the way, I paid my own expenses. Dr. Rump from the Department of Education in Washington, D.C., told us that by 1980 only 20 percent of the jobs available in our country would require a college education, so that this leaves 80 percent that do not require a college education. A couple of mornings ago while I was getting dressed, I heard on the radio that by-some national commentator, I forget who he is-comes on roughly 7:15—that just a few years ago, 15 percent of the jobs in this country required no education, or at least none beyond high school. In 2 or 3 years, that number will drop to 5 percent. So with this little bit of background, first I would like to explain what I've attempted to do with the article I've introduced. As with the majority proposal, the general supervision and so on-we say control, too-but just generally is vested in this board-the Board of Education, whose duties shall be prescribed and regulated by law.

(Delegate Eskildsen assumes chairmanship of Committee of the Whole)

DELEGATE GYSLER: I propose this to be one board and, as you will note, it's a total of 14 members, 12 of who are appointed by the Governor according to law so that there is enough people on it to subdivide and-if they so desire--and spend the time in separate areas as you do on a board of directors of most any large corporation. But this is one board. I was very happy to hear the Chairman of the Education Committee admit that there should only be one board when you come around to the dollars and cents aspects, and I submit to you that there's a lot more to education and a lot more coordinating needs to be done besides on the dollars and cents aspects. The Governor and the Attorney General are ex officio members, but I hope that I've got this so they're voting members. Now, I've taken the State Superintendent off from being a voting member because, really, I don't feel someone who is being the chief administrator should also be on the jury end of what the administration-of how the functions are being carried out. I also-and this will probably draw some fire-1 say that the State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be the executive officer of the board and shall perform such duties as the board shall prescribe, in addition to duties by law and so on. Now, this has drawn some fire, but really what I'm attempting to do here is to make one system of education in the State of Montana. It is very important that all levels of education be integrated, and by doing this, this is the intent of this article. Now, when I say the State Superintendent shall have such duties as prescribed by law, this was the only way to-that I could see, anyway, to be sure that the State Superintendent was elevated on up to the top of the whole works. Now, maybe we're going to have to take another look and just not elect a Superintendent of Schools that's good for primary and secondary education. But if we're going to have one board and one system of education in the State of Montana, this really is what we have to end up doing. Now, the duties in that part-the duties that I am assuming that the board will prescribe-would be in the general supervision category of what the board wants done in the University Systems; and under the State Superintendent, then, would be your Executive Officer as the present Board of Regents has. But this not only elevates the State Superintendent, but also it is, I think, a very economical and efficient manner to see that we are going to get the best education for the children of the State of Montana, and adults, that we can possibly get; because no matter how far we go along, I'm sure we're always going to be short, dollars and cents-wise. So this, I think, basically then, pretty well describes what I was talking about. I would like to-as long as I'm on this, I'd like to say that the only-1 have only received two pieces of correspondence from my school at home. The first one was just a letter, which I felt very complimented on, from the Superintendent, that said he regretted that he didn't see me to express his feelings, but he thought that education in the State of Montana wouldn't have to-or would be safe as long as I was working on it. The second one was the correspondence that1 received just shortly before I testified before the Education Committee, and had to do with figures of what is happening in our school system. In 1967 we sent 87 percent of the graduates out of Fort Benton High School to a 4-year college. Last year we sent, I believe it was 65 percent. I testified to this effect before the Education Committee, and I also testified that I thought as far as boards were concerned that vocational education should have at least as big a say as the University Systems. I believe that under one board they have this. I do want to take a little issue with the Chairman of the Education Committee when he is quoted in yesterday's Great Falls Tribune as saying that the School Boards Association is a special interest. I would hope that they are a special interest, but not in the manner Mr. Champoux referred. The school boards in all of our area are elected by you and I, if we're doing our job. What kind of pay do they get for it? They get long hours, we give them a lot of heck at times, but this is it. Now, as far as I'm concerned, there is only one goal that the school boards have, and that is to see that the best education system as can be provided is provided. I knew that Mr. Champoux would either snow me or shampoo me under with his eloquence, and I did come across-see a letter which was written by the Executive Secretary of the National School Boards Association which, in part anyway, says much more eloquently than I can what I mean. So I would like to read just a little bit from this letter-about three paragraphs or something like that. "Simply stated, I believe in one board of education for each state, composed primarily of laymen appointed by the Governor, confirmed by the Legislature. This board should have the power to oversee the curricula of all schools in the state elementary, secondary, collegiate, graduate, private, technical and parochial"--well, I don't know-well, I guess they do now in parochial, too. "The board should determine standards for health, safety of students, and standards for reasonable productivity. It should establish criteria for professional certification. The board should have the power to hire its executive officers, including such persons as the State Superintendent of Public Instruction"-well, we've already knocked that out-"and the Chancellor. The arguments for such a system are based upon simple assumptions and inherent logic. One: education should be viewed as a continuous process necessary in our complex society from cradle to the grave. Education at one level depends on the previous and is responsible to the next. It isn't a different kind, one level to the next, obeying different laws of learning. Education should strive for efficiency. The money for education comes from one pot, usually appropriated or authorized by the State Legislature. One board speaking for all education can present a unified and intelligent budget which takes into account all the priorities of the people. It can articulate among the levels of education and keep them in balance. The governing structure itself should be simple. It should be able to act quickly to change circumstances." I just want to interrupt here and say, one reason there is no mention here as to length of terms is to leave it open so that the Legislature can do this in case this board isn't responsive, and so on. "The State Board of Education should be powerful and widely respected. With only a piece of the action and without adequate power, it is forced to operate by importuning, cajoling, and mere persuasion. Some critics of a one-board system will quickly counter out of fear of the power of one board. This is inappropriate, because a state board is always modified by the Governor, by the Legislature, by the educational professionals, and by the weight of public opinion."

(President Graybill assumes chairmanship of Committee of the Whole)

DELEGATE GYSLER: "Other critics will argue that the unique attributes of the various levels of education require separate boards.

Higher education will be the first forward with these claims. On the other hand, boards of higher education have allowed colleges to become curricularly inappropriate, have feared crediting societies more than their public, have maintained questionable undergraduate majors, and so on. Many of the problems of higher education-its too often inappropriateness and its too low productivity per dollar expended-are due to the autonomy which has been granted to the institutions of higher education in the past. A third set of critics of one board in government will emerge from the professional groups who want self-regulation. This argument I dismiss with a harsh and insensitive caveat that a profession which is self-regulating is, from the standpoint of public interest, unregulated. Many states have one board for public elementary, secondary schools and one for-and one or more for institutions of higher education. In almost every state, Legislatures are faced with powerful lobbying factions and the demand for funds beyond reasonable capacity to produce. Jurisdictional battles are common, and Legislatures very often acquiesce to the most powerful forces rather than the most logical. Having one state board won't end the philosophical problems for the Legislatures but will simplify the interface." I heard the Chairman say about how many people testified before his committee in favor of the two boards, and it sounded like almost everyone there did. Would Mr. Woodmansey yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Woodmansey?

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: Yes, I would.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Woodmansey, you're on that committee-on the Education Committee. Who testified for two boards, and who for one board? What was the—

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: I assume you're asking me because you see I voted no in some way in this area. Yes, I'll be glad to respond to this, and I hope as accurately as my memory serves me. The-we had several members of the present State Board of Education who came before the committee. If my recollection is right, I don't remember any of them asking for a two-board system. We had the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who came before the committee and, as I heard it-1 didn't hear that she was opposed to this. The Governor came before our committee, and it was my understanding, after listening to him, that it could be either way; that he could live with the one board or have the two-boards system. Of course, the Montana School Boards Association was opposed to a two-board system. The Montana Education Association, which represents a majority of the teachers in the state, was opposed to a two-board system. I may have omitted others who appeared before the committee. I'm sure maybe someone else could contribute further, but this was my feeling after listening to them.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Thank you, Mr. Woodmansey. Another point I want to bring out is what the Chairman said about "body corporate". Well, I've been President of a body corporate for about thirteen years, and I know how they work. I've worked with a lot of other body corporates, and the board of directors run them; and that doesn't leave an awful lot for the rest of the people-which, in the case of the people of Montana, you would be the stockholders and the Board of Education would be the board of directors.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Gysler, do you have any idea about how much longer you'll need?

DELEGATE GYSLER: About 2 or 3 minutes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay.

DELEGATE GYSLER: So it is fine, like the Chairman said. The boards of school districts are now body corporates, but this is in the Legislature. It is not in the Constitution, and to me there is quite a difference. I want to just, in conclusion, say that this article that I have proposed is not proposed because of any special-interest group. The only thing that I have had to do with education is paying taxes, and paying my own expenses because I'm interested in it. And I certainly hope that when this body does arise and report, that you will accept this amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Driscoll, you have an amendment. Do you want the Chair to read it?

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: Yes, I would like—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read Mr. Driscoll's amendment.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Sections 9,10 and 11, being pages 5 and 6 of the Education and Public Lands Committee Proposal Number 10, by deleting these sections in their entirety and inserting in lieu thereof—quote 'The general control and supervision of the State University and the various other state educational institutions shall be vested in a State Board of Education, whose powers and duties shall be prescribed and regulated by law. The said board shall consist of 14 members; the Governor, State Superintendent of Public Instruction and Attorney General being members ex officio. The other 11 members thereof shall be appointed by the Governor, subject to the confirmation of the Senate, under the regulations and restrictions to be provided by law.' Signed: Driscoll." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Driscoll proposes an amendment which proposes a one-board system. I might quickly recap for you. The majority wants a two-board system. Mr. Gysler wants a one-board system with the Governor and Attorney General ex officio and the Superintendent of Public Instruction as the executive officer. Mr. Driscoll wants a one-board system with the Governor, the Attorney General, and the Superintendent of Public Instruction ex officio.

Mr. Driscoll.

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: Mr. Chairman, I'll be relatively brief. I lack the eloquence of the Chairman of the committee and his persuasive manner and this type of thing, but most of you people will notice that this is the present provision in our Constitution, with one minor change. The board now will consist of 14 members, with the Governor, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and the Attorney General being ex officio members. As I ran for this Constitutional Convention, I made the statement that there were a good many parts of our Constitution which I liked and which I thought should remain; and the present provision regarding the State Board of Education is one of these. In my testimony before Mr. Champoux's committee, I made some statements which I regret. One of the statements was that I didn't want vocational-technical education mentioned in the Constitution. I can see now that I made a mistake. I look around this assembly here, and I see at least two people, two members of the Legislature-one from the Senate and one from the House-who in 1952 and 1954 attempted to establish with me a vocational-technical center—centers in Montana. From the beginning, with Paul Harlow and Charley Mahoney-Charley Mahoney in the Senate and Paul Harlow in the House-we developed an adult education provision which is now prevalent in the state. We also laid the basis for our vocational-technical centers. I would like to report to the Committee of the Whole the present status of our vocational-technical centers. The status is ambiguous. We are in a netherland someplace. The way the law is written and is applied, the budget and curriculum are determined by the State Board of Education; administration, then, is left in the hands of the local school district in which the vocational-technical center is located. However, the largest part of administration is budget and curriculum determination. I would also like to remind the members of this committee that there are no local district funds involved in the financing of the vocational-technical centers. This is funded entirely by state funds and the l-mill countywide levy. And this experiment in education, which is probably the most exciting in the United States at the present time-we are in a situation which is rather nebulous. We don't quite know where we belong; we don't quite know where we are going. And under the proposals by the majority, we still wouldn't know where we belong. I don't know if the University System is going to exist as it is now, 20 years from now; I haven't the faintest idea. But if we take the majority's proposal, it is going to exist. I don't know where vocational-technical centers will be 20 years from now, but I do know that it has shown-that they have shown the greatest growth of any educational system that's in the state and that they have been received well and happily by most people. I would also like to talk briefly about the State Board of Education as being unresponsive. I venture to say that I have had more personal experience with the State Board of Education than anyothermemberofthis floor, and I have found those people responsive, dedicated, courageous, and concerned. I am sure that this little amendment which I propose, and a few more statutory meetings allowing them to develop a good committee system, will be in the best interests of education in general in Montana. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: If we could all be back here promptly at 20 minutes to 4:00, why, then I'll move to recess. I so move, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is to recess until 20 minutes to 4:O0. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Committee of the Whole in recess from 3:27 p.m. to 3:42 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wagner, will you close the door for me, please? The committee will be in session. Ladies and gentlemen of the committee, we now have before us, on Section 9,10 and 11, three proposals-the majority proposal which proposes a two-board system, a proposal by Mr. Gysler which proposes a one-board system with the Governor and Attorney General on the board and the Superintendent of Public Instruction as the executive officer of the board; then we have one by Mr. Driscoll that proposes a one-board system with the Governor, Attorney General and Superintendent of Public Instruction all on the board. The matter is open for discussion.

Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, the discussion of the three plans has centered down on whether we had two boards or one board. That's a very important item, but I think there's another important item that somehow is just a little bit lost in my mind anyway in the three discussions. And I'd like to take just a moment to get the information for you and for me, to try and clear up, and that's the position of the Superintendent of Schools in all three plans, because we have to face the fact that when the board goes home, somebody has to be left there to man the shop. And one of the big questions I think in the whole proposition is, who works for whom? Now, if Mr. Driscoll would yield to a question, I would like to ask one.

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: I yield.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Driscoll, the plan that you have is pretty much like we have it now, with the Superintendent of Schools relating strictly-or in a, you know, running sort of capacity to the elementary and secondary and in an advisory capacity to the higher education. Would that be a true statement?

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: It's exactly as it is now. She does not act in an advisory capacity to the higher education; she acts as a member of the Board of Education.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: A member of the board, yes, right. Fine. Thank you very much.

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: Thank you.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Driscoll-Mr. Gysler, would yield for a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Gysler? Will you yield?

DELEGATE GYSLER: I yield.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: As I understand your system-I'd just like to check it out—you have made the Superintendent of Schools the Executive Secretary of the board, is that right?

DELEGATE GYSLER: No.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Could you yield for another question?

DELEGATE GYSLER: Yes.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Would you picture that role a little bit clearer for me.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Certainly. Mr. Arbanas, what I have done here is to make the Superintendent not the executive secretary, but the executive officer; because I feel that under this system, then, the higher education, then, will have their executive secretary, and so on. Really, what I am attempting to do with this is centralize everything; and in relation to the higher education ends, that will be more a supervisory there in the fields than the State Superintendent is now in. The functions, I think, will stay the same, relatively.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Will Mr. Gysler yield for another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Gysler, will you yield?

DELEGATE GYSLER: Certainly.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: In other words, the relationship to higher education is different than the relationship to lower education.

DELEGATE GYSLER: I would say yes. I don't envision, except from an overall, probably responsibility standpoint-a member of the board could call up and say to Joe Doakes, Executive Secretary, "Get that stuff done." They would have somebody there checking and so on, but more— not actually under, but not too much control. I envision that the board really runs that and the State Superintendent is more there-as at present. But it centralizes it.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Champoux, would you yield for a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I certainly will.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: As I understand the board system you propose, I get the impression that the State Superintendent of School would be advisory to one board and be advised by the other board. In other words, you've changed the lower board and say that it's now supervisory, so she's more or less being advised by them; and the higher board, she's advisory to them, so to speak. Would that be true-accurate?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes, that is true. See, our problem with the situation there is— and I think one of the major defects of Mr. Gysler's plan is-that you have an elected official. Now, under his proposition you're having a lay appointed board giving directions to an elected official. I—

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Thank you very much.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: I'd like to submit to the Convention that, as far as I see in the three plans, there are strengths and weaknesses in all of them. But the thing that would worry me in all three plans is with the higher University System, that there is really nobody in charge when everybody goes home. Now, maybe I'm wrong, but that's the way it seems to me; that when it's all said and done, there's different ways that the board control. But I would like to have seen in the plan, and I think Mr. Rygg brings it out in his discussion, that the Commissioner of Education, there's-I feel that primary and secondary under all three plans is pretty well taken care of by the Superintendent of Public Instruction, but even though we have this new, independent Board of Regents, like Mr. Champoux would suggest to us, there's still no one to take care of it on a day-by-day basis when the-everyone's gone home.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Mr. Chairman, could I ask Mr. Champoux some questions, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I yield.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Mr. Champoux, the first question that I'd like to ask is, how do the two boards mesh with the elected Superintendent?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mesh? In what—

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Well, I can't see how the three of these entities are going to work together-the two boards and the elected Superintendent.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Well, I don't know. In what specific way? They're going to meet together over mutual concerns, and I have recommended that we amend that major board so they submit a combined budget, if that's what you mean. Is that the problem?

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Well, it's just the concept that I'm having a little trouble getting—

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Well, we have an elected Superintendent. Now, if you notice in the Executive Article, it says her duties shall be prescribed by law. Now, we have a board here, and we also mention "whose duties shall beprescribed by law". Now, the reason why we've done that is to keep it flexible, see? Is this what you wanted, or-

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Mr. Chairman, could I ask Mr. Champoux another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, you could. Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I'll yield.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Who will really be in charge of education in Montana-theelected Superintendent of Public Instruction, one or two or both of the boards, or the executive which is elected by the Board of Regents?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Well, what we are after here is a combination of things. First of all, we wanted direct participation by the people; and this, as we see it, are themembers of these lay boards. Secondly, we wanted some involvement by the Executive Branch, directly and indirectly. Directly, we have it through the Governor's presence; indirectly, because he nominates these board members. We also wanted some involvement in terms of the Legislature, and this is why we have confirmation. Another direct involvement by the electorate is the direct election of the State Superintendent.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux, that's not responsive. She wants to know who runs it.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Who runs—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, she wanted to know who runs education in the state under your plan, and you just told her a lot of other things. I'm just pointing out that you haven't answered her question.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: As I see it, the boards.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Could I ask just one final question, Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Have you considered letting the Governor vote on either one or both of the boards?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes, we did.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: And you decided that was not a good idea?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes, we did. We felt that his influence perhaps would be too much, in the fact that he's going to appoint the board members and they come within his term.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Garlington.

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: Mr. Chairman, I just want to point out that on the basis of the way these three articles are, the Superintendent of Public Education runs the whole educational system and is the officer who has the tie vote to swing the thing if an issue arises. Because under Section 10 there's a board of seven on public education; on Section 11, there's a board of seven on higher education; and Section 9 expressly says that in the event of a tie vote, the Superintendent of Public Instruction votes. So when the higher education people confront the lower education people, the swing is the Superintendent of Public Instruction. And there isn't any other way you can put these together. And I just have to say that we ought to note that that's the kind of architecture that we are drafting.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mrs. Warden.

DELEGATE WARDEN: Mr. President, would Mr. Champoux yield?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE WARDEN: I notice here, under Section 10—or, no, in Section 11-you say the Board of Regents of Higher Education, which shall govern and control the academic, financial and administrative affairs of the Montana University system. My question is this: would you envision that the budget of each unit would be presented by the proposed Board of Regents to the Legislature, or would each school-that is, each university unit-propose its own budget and come to the Legislature and see how many votes they could gamer to get their budget passed in relation to the other person's budget, which is the way it has been operating with a Board of Regents -that is, the Board of Education working 95 percent of the time as a Board of Regents?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Neither of those options; and that is that each unit would come to the board, and that's where they would do their lobbying. Then it would be the board, under the present system, that would present the budget-combined budget-to the Legislature. And then, when it came back, it would have to be proportioned out according to the original budgets from the different units. Now, if we follow my recommendation, though, and get an amendment to that upper board, then both boards will come together as a common board and submit a combined unified budget to the Legislature. I don't see these people lobbying, no.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Warden.

DELEGATE WARDEN: Mr. President, may I ask him another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux, will you yield?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I yield.

DELEGATE WARDEN: Under the present system, the Board of Regents, to my knowledge, has not determined a priority system on buildings on the campuses. Now, by your plan, do you envision that this would work better-that the Board of Regents would do this sort of thing and that they would come to the Legislature with priorities for the different schools?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I would assume that this would be argued out within the boards themselves-within the boarditself, before they ever came to the Legislature. And they would have the power, then, to internally decree where these priorities would go. As of present, they don't.

DELEGATE WARDEN: Well, why would they—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Warden.

DELEGATE WARDEN: Mr. President. Mr. Champoux, would you yield to a third question?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I will yield.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE WARDEN: How would you remedy this?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I guess—

DELEGATE WARDEN: There is nothing in the article that says that things will operate like this. The duties are prescribed by law, of course.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: That's what body corporate is all about. They will have the power then. One of the things that was considered in this committee was-and it was a proposal-I forget who put it in-that each unit have-become a body corporate. That would be probably the worst thing that could happen: but, you see, under this system the board is the body corporate. They have the right, then, to determine the priorities.

DELEGATE WARDEN: Thank you, Mr. Champoux. Thank you.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Well, Mr. Chairman, I think Mr. Champoux spoke very completely on the two-board system and on the body corporate, and I planned to speak at some length on the same subject but now find that I don't want to be repetitious, so my remarks will be brief. The Education Committee has submitted to this body a real blueprint for reform in our system of education. The two amendments now before you contain very little change from 1889. In fact, they lift the language from that section in many ways. I'm not sure that Montana wants to remain one of two states with a single-board system, and I hope that, in our haste to get away on a Saturday night, we give this more than cursory attention. I want to call your attention to an incident that I witnessed last year in connection with the two boards. The six University Presidents were in town for a meeting with the Board of Education and the Board of Regents. The board was in the process of a hearing upon a complaint from a teacher in the primary school who had been discharged. The two-the six University Presidents were kept waiting for 2 days during the period of this hearing. And I'm sure the teacher's complaint had merit-and I don't want to make any accusations in that way. But it's an illustration of the inefficiency and the impossibility of operating this system, this tremendous system, under one board; to keep those six Presidents here, waiting for 2 days during this hearing on a primary school teacher. Now, I want to talk very briefly about the body corporate concept. Mr. Champoux covered it completely. But I submit to you that you now have before you an example of what's happening in the University System because of the lack of a body corporate type of organization. The University of Montana unit at Missoula recommended three architects for the construction of the new Science Building to the State Board of Examiners. These architects were all rejected by the State Board of Examiners, and another architect chosen. And I'm certainly not going to pass judgment on his qualifications. Nevertheless, you've all read in the press-it's been in every daily paper-that building is in a mess; that it does not serve its purpose; that it's going to take substantial funds to put it in shape. Now, had we been operating under the body corporate system, the State Board of Examiners would not have been able to decline the recommendations of the University System for the hiring of those architects. So far as the housekeeping that Mr. Arbanas is concerned about, the board can easily take care of this themselves through an organization or a director, located here in Helena, to perform such functions as the board may direct. But I hope the Convention will give the committee report serious consideration. We do not want to step back into the 19th Century. I urge the adoption of the committee's report and the rejection of the two amendments. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to speak in opposition to the two-board system. And we've heard a lot of testimony today about the different studies that have been presented and so forth, and I just would like to bring up a few figures that came from the Session Laws: 1961, our general fund biennium budget was $71 million-that was 1961; 1971, our last session, was a hundred and eight-five point six million dollars. And it's estimated and been mentioned on the floor that our 1973 biennium budget would approximate $250 million. I don't know how we're going to raise that kind of money, but I just wanted to mention that in the 1971-73 university appropriation budget, the total was $86,000,772 million which is about $15 million more than our total general fund budget in 1961 forrunning all of the state government. And I notice, in this $86 million, with one board, we have $475,000 for the office of the Executive Secretary of the Montana University System. The State Board of Regents has $300,000 for a total of $775,000 per year, or a million five hundred and fifty thousand dollars for the biennium; and this is for one board. So if we were going to have another board, we would probably get another million and a half dollars every biennium, if we're going to go on this basis.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Robinson.

DELEGATE ROBINSON: Mr. President, I'm not sure exactly how we're going to reconcile any of these three plans with what we've done previously. The majority-the minority report that this committee adopted of the Executive Committee, we decided to elect the Superintendent of Public Instruction. The rationale behind that decision, which was advocated by the Education Committee, was that the Superintendent would be the major state educational officer. I don't believe, although they provided that the duties would be provided by law-that was the theory; that this was the chief educational officer of the State of Montana. I do not feel that any of these three plans that have been proposed encompass that idea, even tacitly. Mr. Gysler's proposal-I think I agree with Mr. Arbanas. It does make her the Executive Secretary. She can't even vote, and yet she's supposed to be one of the policy planners, and she can't even vote on that board. Mr. Driscoll's plan, also, she is an ex officio member. I would hardly think under his plan she could be the chief educational policy planner. Now, under the majority report, the Superintendent of Public Instruction is mentioned several times. The only real major function that is stipulated that she serve is that she may vote in case of a tie when the two boards meet together and that she serves as an ex officio member on both of the boards. In neither case is she really a part of the policy-making process. I think that this should, perhaps, in some way be reconciled. Under the majority plan-which I do favor the two boards-it seems to me a kind of a vacuum in terms of who is really going to be responsible. You have the Board of Regents of Higher Education who elect their own executive officer. You have the Board of Public Education, and there's no provision at all for an executive officer. Maybe it can be inferred that the Superintendent of Public Instruction will be the executive officer of that board, but it certainly doesn't say so. Most of the state Constitutions, at least the last nine that have been adopted, you know, do not try to reconcile what we're trying to reconcile here-the fact that we've already got the Superintendent of Public Instruction created in the Executive Branch, which really has nothing to do with the Executive Branch but deals with education. And here we are in the Education Article and we're trying to work around what we already adopted in another article that didn't have anything to do with that article. It seems that we're really going to have to decide if what we did in the Executive Branch, you know, if that's what we really intend. If we really want the Superintendent of Public Instruction to be in charge of the education of the State of Montana, then I think all three of these plans are going to have to be reexamined.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, the executive plan has been adopted, and it does prescribe that we elect a Superintendent of Public Instruction. I think that there was a good deal of merit in Mr. Rygg's plan, and I toyed with the idea of having an article that would read something—or suggesting one that would read something like this-that the education-the Superintendent of Public Instruction should be the Executive Officer of Education in Montana and that a board could be appointed. I have since decided, and I think I would support the amendment that was offered by Mr. Gysler, for the reason that, in my opinion, based on the testimony that the Executive Committee had with the educational officers as well as the joint committee meeting with the Education Committee, that we found this situation developed. We find a lot of headless monsters. The w-tech doesn't have any direction; the community college doesn't have any direction. All of these other factors in education aren't interrelated and interconnected, and we don't have one board or one power to direct education in Montana. As I told in the colloquy that we had with Mrs. Colburg, I said in my opinion it seemed to me that what we need in education is integration, not segregation. I think that this would be based on the experience of what I've observed down through the years as far as the University System. You've got competing units of the six units, and without having some sort of an executive officer, you're going to be in trouble. I think we could take a page from what happened in the Department of Administration when we established a board and set in motion a group which takes the prison, the home at Boulder, and all of the other units, and puts them together. And they've had little trouble with the Legislature, and they have effectively worked. I think the same thing could be done here, and in—under Mr. Gysler's amendment, the Superintendent of Public Instruction could employ, just as she has in other instances, could employ someone to be executive secretary of the university units and could work. We had this testimony from some of the board members; and to mention another special interest which Rick didn't convey or mention, the MEA has taken the position that they retain the present constitutional provision, which establishes a single State Board of Education capable of governing and supervising all levels of public education. We've heard statements today and we've studied, and those of us who have been in the field of education recognize that there are some real changes going on in education. I think that Mr. Gysler pointed out that probably by 1980, less than 20 percent will be going to college. There will be special training and special training programs. I think that in our testimony it developed that perhaps there needs some revamping in the elementary and secondary education program. It requires and will require some intensive study on the part of some boards, and I think thatinstead of integrating--or segregating and dividing this all up, we would be a lot better off to retain a single board.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, would the committee turn to page 5, line 30, and just listen to the following: "The State Board of Education shall meet at least quarterly with primary attention given to a unified budget. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be Chairman of this board."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: First of all, I want to answer Mr. Martin. Mr. Martin, on your desk yesterday morning you received a cover letter from me with three other letters in it in support for this proposal. The top one is from the Montana Education Association, which says-they did—you're right-originally oppose at our hearings the two-board system. However, now they unequivocally accept it. It says: "We have studied the committee proposal carefully and wish to commend you and your committee for developing an excellent article on education for the new Constitution. The proposal shows the results of a great deal of work, careful thought and excellent leadership. The only suggestion we have is that there should be constitutional safeguards for the investment of state trust funds." This was taken care of last Saturday in the Revenue and Finance Committee thing. "We should like to express our appreciation to you and your committee members for the courtesy and consideration given to all who wished to appear before the committee", and so forth. The last sentence-"Again, thank you very much for your excellent work. It's been a long, arduous task and we are careful--we are grateful." The MEA does support the two-board concept that we have proposed, unequivocally. All right, let's look at Mr. Gysler's-may I speak to Mr. Gysler's proposal?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Certainly.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: All right, let's look at this—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Briefly.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes. Yes, sir. (Laughter)

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Fourteen members of the committee-we looked at that. Can you imagine 14 members sitting in one room, all agreeing? It's too many on the committee. All right, we're concerned about vo-tech. Ifyoulook at ours, it's very flexible. It takes care of vo-tech all the way through and for the future. Mr. Gysler's and Mr. Driscoll's proposition doesn't get at the problem. All right, let's talk about the comment in the Great Falls Tribune yesterday. That was not directed at the state-the local state-local boards of education; it was directed at a special interest group that's been lobbying this Convention since the day it opened, the Montana School Boards Association. All right, if you have one board, the upper board, you have one budget. How can you say there's going to be competition? Another thing, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction overwhelmingly supports the two-board principle, and if she is in this room today, we can bring her right down here and she'll testify. Let's look at the people—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You can't do that, Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I know. (Laughter) I know, but I just want to clear up some of these misconceptions here. If we look at the total of the people that testified before our committee— and here it is, it's compiled. These are the people that testified for the two-board system: the Montana Federation of Teachers; the PTA; Bob Jovick, who was representing the Montana Student Presidents Association; the County Superintendent of Schools Association; Robert Pantzer, the President of the University of Montana, representing the Presidents of the University System; James Short, Western Montana College. Governor Anderson was ambiguous-the MEA was not— (Laughter)-1 didn't mean that as a-he was going both ways, sir. (Laughter) It was unclear. Dolores Colburg does support the two-board system. The faculty center at Eastern Montana College, all the community college presidents. Who were the groups against it? The Montana School Boards Association and the vo-tech centers. Thank you, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: First I would like to announce to the group my interest in education, the fact that I've been a part of the University community as a student and as a part-time student and as a part-time teacher and a faculty wife. And I have also spent a lot of time with Legislators who have been very much concerned about the direction of our University program. Somehow, I think that most of us found this whole issue to be one of the most frustrating ones we dealt with during the campaign, and I think that I came over here expecting somehow for the-a light to flash and all the problems be solved. My frustration, I think, is that I would like to see somereallystrong direction, some central direction to the whole University System, and I think that most of us involved in education feel this same thing. Yet we see this program of a Board of Regents and we're not sure that this Board of Regents is going to be very much stronger than our Board of Education, which also sits as a Board of Regents. And we considered all kinds of ideas. You know, we thought about letting the Board of Education be elected or having the Legislature elect the Board of Regents or having nominations come from groups of faculty people and student people and taxpayers around the state so that we got a group of people who would really concentrate attention on the problems. We've also considered the fact that Mr. Rygg brought up, that probably the one thing we need is some really strong leadership at the top, someone who is really in charge. And it's frustrating to look at a plan and not be able to determine who really is in charge. But on the other hand, I think that if we consider the various possibilities that we have to work with and look at the majority plan report, there is a great deal of flexibility here. It's not giving us, you know, a beautiful answer that we can see in black and white that is going to start working next year. It leaves a great deal to the Legislature. I can see a plan such as Mr. Rygg proposed actually working under this two-board system. I can see the possibility of the elected Superintendent of Schools being given some real responsibility, maybe almost complete authority in the area of public education. I think it would be perfectly possible for the Board of Regents to hire a very strong administrator who would be something like a Chancellor or a Commissioner of Education. I think that the possibilities that are presented in the majority report are the kind of possibilities that our Legislature and our Board of Education can work with for a long time to come, and that won't be limiting. On the other hand, I look at the two amendments and I can't see, really, any change from what we have now, which has not really proven to be very satisfactory. The only addition is really the addition of a couple of more board members. And true, this could help, but we don't have any indication that a couple of more people on the board are going to make that much difference. I don't see this as any great panacea to the problems, but I do think that the majority report has been looked at by educators of all kinds from around Montana and has given them some confidence that this is a good way for us to go. I don't think by debating this thing all night tonight, we're going to have-come up with some original, great idea of what to do, and I strongly recommend that we go along with the majority report. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman, I've listened to the arguments pro and con, and I gather that our paramount reason for being here is, first, of course, to make sure that the citizens of the State of Montana are protected with respect to their rights as citizens; and second, when we construct government, that it be efficient and economic. I've looked at the majority report, and I think what they're trying to do is give us a more efficient and more economical system. In the professions, there is a substantial trend towards specialization. The medical profession has demonstrated that to us over the years, and as a consequence they've increased the progress and the advance of medical science toward the frontiers that have provided us with problems. The legal profession is moving in that direction; and I submit to you that as the educational system expands and becomes more complex, that same degree of expertise is required. The higher education system of Montana has problems that are opposed to the problems that exist in the public school system. I think that it's far better to have separate groups who are connected with those particular systems who, through time and experience and devotion to that particular area of educational jurisdiction, can develop the type of expertise that's going to result in efficiency and economy. And, consequently, I submit that the two-board system commends itself to us at this time. I note, too, that all 11 members of the Education Committee support the two-board system. I think after 4 weeks of study, and with respect for their position as individuals particularly interested in education, that they should be recognized for their expertise in the area. And unless we have some real reason for disagreeing with their report, we should accept it. I do have one concern, and I share this concern with my fellow delegate from Butte, Mr. Driscoll. I think the vo-tech educational program is probably as important a program as we could have in the State of Montana. I do not think a liberal arts degree for everyone is necessarily a good thing. I am satisfied that for the majority of the young men that want to find a place in the working society in which we live, that a vo-tech education for them is the real answer. And I would like to inquire of the Chairman of the Educational Committee, if he will return, as to the proper place of the vo-tech program with respect to the two boards. Mr. Chairman, may I inquire and will Mr. Champoux yield to that inquiry?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will Mr. Champoux yield? Mr. Champoux, will you yield?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I will yield, sir.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Champoux, will you tell us under which board-the Board of Public Education or the Board of Regents-you would place the vocational education program of Montana?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: The Board of Public Education, sir.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Thank you very much. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman, I think that if you were to ask each member of this committee, they would be the first to say that they are not experts in this field. There are no experts in solving this problem; and I assure you, no matter which way we go, we will live with it and we will still have many problems. Right now, I can go either way and I'll be unhappy. (Laughter) Now, you're talking about a single strong head. We tried that. We had Chancellors. We had good Chancellors and they were strong Chancellors, but they could not last because they were too good. The last one was tremendous. So let's forget about that. And also let's go back and analyze our present operations. The people who control the purse strings of the University System are the people we send to this legislative body; and in case you don't realize how they function, let me tell you. The Appropriations Committee divides itself up into groups, and these groups go not only to the institutions, but they go to the university units. And they analyze and they talk with the presidents and the heads of the departments and ask them what they need for their operation of the University System. Now, they control the purse strings; and no matter what you do with the body corporate, the Legislature will control the purse strings. They've got to. Now, what they want with this body corporate, whether you like it or not, they want the money allocated to them and they want to spend it whatever way they please. If I were President, I would also. Wouldn't you? They don't want to have to answer to anybody, whether they use Mary Doe for secretary today and Helen Jones another time. They don't want to have to report back here to Helena how they spent their money, That's about what it means. They also want to have more authority about their curriculum. Now then, where does the present State Board of Education fit into this picture today? Actually they don't do much as far as administration is concerned. They advise the presidents. They approve curriculum changes, yes; and here's where you have problems. The President of one institution wants to put in a new course. The President of another one wants the same course, and we have a competition here, not only in the area of curriculum, but other areas. So this is a very difficult proposition to reconcile the differences between these university heads. It's a big problem. That's why the Chancellor couldn't operate, because it wasn't only the presidents, it was the downtown quarterbacks that were also pressuring the Chancellor, So let's reconcile ourselves to living with a board. Now, I'm thinking about this-1 lean to Mr. Gysler's and Mr. Driscoll's system, because I fear very much the setting up of one Board of Regents as being—controlling our educational-higher educational system. Now, Mr. Champoux, I'm going to direct to you because you are the spokesman here. You're political science. Naturally we are concerned with the particular area we are centered. We're going to work for this political science, someone else is going to work for mathematics, and someone else is going to work for other areas of social science. What I'm getting at is this-we become centered in the areas in which we are trained, and in the process of setting up a Board of Regents, the Board of Regents is going to be concerned about higher education only. Why do we teach algebra today in high school? Why? Because the University System says you have to have it sometimes to get into our system. There are other matters we could talk about in that same area. They are determining what's going to come up from down below. Now, Mr. Gysler, you said you were proud about the fact that you had 67 percent of your graduates going to college. Very commendable, but I wonder if it is so commendable after the records we have seen over the past years. The people who are going to college are not too happy with college. Very slowly we are changing this concept of education. The need to make the student happy with what he's taking and also to fulfill a place in society. Now, here we have a Board of Regents, and all it's concerned about is the higher education system. Don't we need somebody who'll start with kindergarten to elementary to high school, w-tech and college? Shouldn't they all be integrated? And I maintain if we have 12 members on the board, we can divide this board into three units-higher education, public schools and x-tech. Can't they concentrate in this big board? Can't the four people go to the University System, which I'm sure the eight aren't doing now, and find the problems? Can't fourdoit better? Can't four people study w-tech better? Can't four study the problems of elementary education better? And then, can't they come together like we have done here in our committee system and talk their problems over? They will not be competing for money. They'll say, "We've got to put this whole thing together." Therefore, I urge you to give serious consideration to the other two proposals. As I said, I'll be happy with any of them.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Hanson.

DELEGATE ROD HANSON: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of either the Gysler or the Driscoll, at the moment, amendment--whichever one we get to first, I guess. It seems to me like we've spent several hours here just a few days ago trying to decide how we could control the funds that the State Highway Department gets and talking about having a fourth house, or whatever you want to call it, there. And now we're talking here today about doing the same thing again in the education department. I would think that with a proposal like Mr. Gysler has, that with the State Superintendent of Public Instruction as the executive officer of the board-now, I would think that she could operate as the executive officer, not as the executive secretary. And through this type of a provision, you could develop a organization whereby you could have a policy-setting board and an administrative person who could hire a staff and do a sufficient job along these lines and yet have this same type of control that we have now back through the Legislature, instead of getting another monstrosity, if you want to call it that, like we was talking about in the Highway Department just a few days ago for several hours.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman, may I respond to Mr. Hanson's remarks? Of course there is a fundamental difference, Mr. Hanson, in these two agencies-the fundamental difference being that the Legislature still has the purse strings on the educational system under the two-board, the committee report. The Legislature does not have the purse strings in the Highway Department. That's the fundamental difference. Any other comparisons, of course, don't-or inconsistencies don't bear water-hold water. Because, of course, the whole business of academic freedom, curriculum, and individual liberties are not involved in the Highway Department, so any inconsistency that might be taken-might be charged against me in this regard doesn't hold water. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I'd like to follow up first of all from what Delegate Martin had to say about the need for integration, not segregation, and then what Delegate Aasheim and then what Delegate Hanson had to say. I really think we're going to divide ourselves into probably two groups of-you know, the one-board group and the two-board group. And I, at the present time, feel that the strongest proposition we have before us is the proposition of Mr. Gysler; but when I talked to him on the-with regard to the role of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, we got kind of mixed up in going back and forth, and I made some conferences with him. And I think it's important for us to consider as we see the strengths and weaknesses of both sides, that at least at the present time-and this is informal at this present moment-that he would be willing to accept this kind of an amendment if we ever got to thatpoint: "The State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be the Executive Officer of the Board'-that's as far as it's printed on the page-and then to go on and say, "and shall be the State Commissioner of the educational system of the state." The intention would be, of course, to take Mr. Gysler's plan and amplify, as Mr. Hanson was hinting at, that this being the Executive Officer would be equivalent to being the State Commissioner of Education. I think you'd have to go a long ways to find a more unified and stronger executive plan than that, with one board large enough to divide into several interest groups and a State Commissioner of Education, elected by the people, who is subject to the board and actually in control of the education of the state. I think that's where I stand right now.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President, I've listened here the biggest part of the afternoon to some very eloquent displays of orientation of education, but I will have to agree with Mr. Gysler's proposed amendment. I think that in all fairness to the people, the young people of the state, taxpayers of the state, that one board can better sit down together and analyze the problems of education. I think further that the State of Montana and the people of Montana are very much concerned today about education; and I think that as your Legislature convenes again and takes another look at education, that they are going to become more conscious of the problem. I have talked to many, many people across the State of Montana that are so thoroughly upset with the present system of higher education that they are in a quandary as to whether they even want to send their youngsters on to higher education, the way it is run today. Now, these are the problems that is confronting the educational system and the structure as it is today. If there isn't some improvement, you're going to have a taxpayers' revolt, because the educational system takes about a 70-percent bite out of your tax dollars; and we want to see good education, and we want everyone to take another good look at it. I can visualize, under the two-board system, that you will have a two-headed monster that will be going off in separate directions, pressuring the Legislature for funds, particularly for higher education, and you'll have the lower board for elementary education that will be working in the other direction. But if you have one board that can divide itself into subcommittees to study the different factions-vocational, elementary, and higher education-and then come together and put their feet under the table and talk about these things, I think they can provide better direction for education to go. I think that we need to really examine this proposition. I don't want to see a high dynasty set up, and I don't think any of us here do, and particularly the taxpayer. And I think your Legislature in the future will subscribe to these duties, and I think they will take appropriate action. And as far as having a directive-an Executive Director-they can also prescribe this if they see fit. But let's give the Legislature the flexibility and control that they need to have in working out the problems with future educational systems.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman, I think there are several things that have emerged for just a plain man looking at this situation. One is an obvious thing to me, that we need a division of labor. I think every person here knows that you would not expect anybody to be an expert on graduate education, as far as the University System is concerned, and have that same person really knowledgeable about kindergarten, elementary, secondary education. There just simply has to be a division of labor. And everybody who has spoken has admitted to this, whether we call it a basic one-board approach, or two, or what. If you don't call it a Board of Regents, then call it something else. But some group has to be specially concerned about higher education in this state or we will just simply take a step backward on this. I think most people understand-now, I'm just talking as a private citizen who doesn't know all the ins and outs of it-but when I vote for a Superintendent of Public Instruction, I, in the past few years, have voted for a lady schoolteacher. Now, in my mind, the Superintendent of Public Instruction relates to the State Board of Education and the state educational system the way the Superintendent of Public Instruction in Helena relates to our school board and to our elementary and secondary education. And I think the thing that is written into the majority report gives the Legislature--and into our whole Constitution-gives the Legislature a chance to spell this kind of detail out. That's where I think she or he belongs, and not having to try to find a person who can be an expert, both for elementary education and for higher education. Secondly, I think we all understand we need a combined budget approach. We do not want this business continued, of every different agency running to the state Legislature, vying for a position for appropriations. And with the kind of amendment that I have sent to the Chair for suggestion—for Section 9, of one sentence, I think we can make this State Board of Education that agency that can do this business of forming a plan for allocating funds and of one single approach to the Legislature about funds. Thirdly, and we're all agreed that the Legislature needs to have, and does have, in fact, control of appropriations and of money. Now, this is all complex. I'm sorry now that the report that came from the majority did not say that we call for one State Board of Education with two sections, because really, if you read it, that's what it says. We have two boards, we're calling them; and you've all referred to it as a two-board system. But Section 9 says "There shall be a State Board of Education", which, with a little doctoring and amending, can be set there to combine the efforts, particularly in terms of allocating funds and making approach to the Legislature in a one-board system. So I think we ought to stick with the majority report, beat on the floor on the vote these two amendments that are so-called one-board, though they call for different committees, and then take the basic approach that this committee has worked out in this complicated area for weeks and weeks of intensive study and amend it until it says exactly what we want.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the question is on Mr. Driscoll's amendment to Mr. Gysler's amendment, which is a substitute to the majority report. I merely want to point out that the Chair intends to debate this and then you may decide which way we're going. And we now have several other amendments, once we know which way we're going. Who wants to be next?

Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, I rise to speak on this issue from a multitude of conflicts of interest. You all know, of course, that I'm a professor of economics at the University of Montana. What some of you may not know is that I am the President of the University Teachers' Union, which is a local--local 497—with the American Federation of Teachers, which is affiliated with the AFL-CIO. This is the second time that I have been President of that organization; the first was in 1960. Since 1960 I have, off and on-mostly on-been engaged in a running battle with the administration of the University in a fight for more faculty rights as compared to the administration-more faculty power, if you will, against the administration. The administration, of course, represents the Board of Regents. Now, there is no question, I think, that a Board of Regents with more power, as the majority proposes to give it, could be more difficult for the faculty to deal with. Certainly, it is generally true that a weak administration or management, if you want to call it that, means at least the possibility of greater faculty control-it's easier to manipulate. Now, my second interest is that, being involved in the American Federation of Teachers, I'm necessarily involved in AFL-CIO. I know the state leadership of the AFL-CIO, many of the local leaders around the state. I, in general, sympathize with their objectives. You probably—many of you, I know, did receive a letter from James Murry, the Executive Secretary of the AFL-CIO, on the matter which is now before us; and that letter was critical of the majority proposal. It said a lot of things which I think Mr. Champoux has effectively answered; a lot of things which were in essence untrue and some other things which, if true, can certainly be handled easily in this Convention with little damage to the majority's proposal. On the other hand, the AFL-CIO's problems are real problems. What they are hung up on, to be quite frank with you, is the fact that they have had considerable amount of trouble in dealing with University unit administrators. I'm talking about negotiations for labor contracts by the plumbers and the other craft unions, such unions as that that deal with the nonacademic personnel. I can testify from my own experience that there are some pretty hard characters among the administrations of some of these units, difficult to deal with. And I can certainly sympathize with the AFL-CIO's feeling that they need to keep some kind of a handle, through the Legislature or through other means, on the University unit managements. Now, on the other hand, my interest--my third interest in this affair is that I am, as I said, a professor of economics at the University of Montana and have been for the last 17 years; and that I have two children who are attending two units of the University System at the present time, one at Missoula and one at Bozeman—one about to graduate at Bozeman in mechanical engineering. And as a professor and as a parent and as a Montanan, I want the best university that we can afford. I want it for myself, because I work there; I want it for my kids, because that's where they're getting their education; and I want it for all Montana kids with whom I have associated these last 17 years. Now, how to resolve these conflicts? Well, it seems to me there can be no question that the excellence of the University System must take precedence over any other consideration. We in the University Teachers' Union may find our problem more difficult if you adopt the majority proposal, but we will work with it and we will find ways to work with it. The AFL-CIO and some of its constituent unions may find it a little more difficult, but they're going to have to solve those problems in the way unions usually solve their problems-by better organization, by better negotiation. And, it seems to me, not by twisting the Legislators' arms and putting indirect pressure on the University administration. Now, I spoke of excellence. What does excellence in the University System require? It requires, of course, first of all, money. But we are always short of that, and we always will be short of that, and we are going to have to work within the constraints of the money that's available from the citizens of Montana. The second thing it seems to me that makes for excellence in a University System is a strong, unified management. The third thing is a faculty free from political intimidation-not necessarily from political influence, but political intimidation. Fourth, what excellence requires, it seems to me, is the support and understanding of the public, the people of Montana. Now, how will the majority proposal affect the excellence of the University System? In the first place, as regard to money, it's not going to get us more money; but it's going to mean the money we do get will be more efficiently used; and that's the same thing as more money. As to unified management, this, of course, is the name of the majority proposal. It means unified budget development, unified budget presentation, and it means unified management of the appropriated funds. As to the freedom of the faculty, it will, of course, mean more insulation from the Legislature, less of the sort of thing we had in the Morton Borden case. Although the Legislature is still going to be the boss, because he who controls the purse strings is going to call the tune and this body that meets here will control the purse strings-most of them, at any rate-and it will have the say as to the overall direction of the University System. Finally, as to the support and understanding of the people of Montana, I think Mr. Wilson is probably correct when he says that the people are at the present time somewhat disaffected with the University System, perhaps less so at the present time than they have been at times in the past. But I think the establishment of a strong Board of Regents that can really manage this system will have the effect, over a period of time, of increasing the people's confidence in the system, because the Board of Regents with that kind of authority will have the flexibility-will have the ability to really manage that they do not have now. Now, we may hope also that such unified management will lead to some elimination—or at least reduction-in the unseemly competition between the University units, which I think is a source of a good bit of the criticism of the University System by the people, and I think a justifiable criticism. Now, if you defeat the proposed amendments-which I hope you will, so that we can get back to the majority proposal-it is my intention and the intention of certain other delegates to propose amendments to the proposal which will allay some of the fears which have been expressed concerning it. On the matter of financial accountability, Delegate Aasheim says the University administrations don't want to report back here to Helena how they spent their money. This simply is not true. And I don't think anyone ever supposed that the majority proposal would free the University from financial accountability, particularly from a legislative audit. But if there is any such possibility in this proposal, then certainly we ought to amend it, and I will so propose to put in explicit provision mandating legislative audit of the University. As to the term "body corporate", the term "body corporate" as applied to the Board of Regents isn't any different than the term "body corporate" as applied to a local school board, and I don't think we ought to get hung up on that term. But if it is something like the public trust, which bothers people because of words, then take it out, because it isn't all that important. Now, finally, what to do about vo-tech? I wish that we could simply propose an amendment which would take care of Maurice Driscoll's problem, whatever it may be, because I don't really understand it. I don't think that anybody in the University System wants w-tech. I don't think the Board of Regents would want it except as it relates-that term may cover such things as are presently in the program of Northern College at Havre, which is one of the very effective parts of the University System which should be under the Board of Regents now and in the future, and I think we must leave to the Legislature the flexibility, the ability as conditions change, to allocate responsibility as is reasonably necessary. I don't think there's any way that we can solve this problem here by some kind of an amendment to the proposal of the majority which would say vo-tech shall be under the control of one or the other boards, because as a practical matter, it is now partly under one and partly under the other. We do, of course, at the present time have a two-board system in the guise of a one-board system. And because the two boards are combined as one, they don't work very well, because the board spends so much time on its duties as a Board of Education that it interferes with its performance of its duties as a Board of Regents; and it would be certainly much more efficient to separate them. Now, as to Mrs. Robinson's problem, to the extent that it isn't simply because her car wouldn't start this noon, I think we can safely leave this question of the duties of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, as we said we would in the Executive Article, to the Legislature. And Mrs. Colburg apparently thinks, and I see no reason to dispute her judgment, that the result will be satisfactory. Thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. President, fellow delegates. I feel, too, that since we have continued to call the Superintendent of Schools an elective constitutional office, that she should have responsibility and not be an ex officio board member, regardless of what type of board we set up. In coming here, as Dorothy has told you earlier, we were undecided what direction we must take-a one- or two-board. Early in the Convention we received a questionnaire that came from one of the Vice Presidents at the University at Montana State, and it was almost evenly divided amongst two groups as to a single board or a two-board. Most recently, I received a questionnaire from the Chamber of Commerce in Bozeman. In checking over their 18 questions, I find they're evenly divided. They have seven of their proposals-they've won seven and lost seven so far—to things that we have done here. As far as the two-board, they were almost two to one against a two-board. Now, this is a university town. The-I was wondering, Mr. President, now we have two substitute motions; would it be out of order to have an amendment at this time?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes.

DELEGATE BATES: To the substitute—Okay.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Unless you have a third major plan.

DELEGATE BATES: No, I do not have a third.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's fine. I want to find out which way we're going, and when we know which way we're going, we'll then consider and amend that particular plan as much as we need.

DELEGATE BATES: Okay, fine. Thank you, Mr. President. I feel very strongly that the Superintendent-and we must have responsibility someplace, and I don't feel the majority plan points to that responsibility. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates and members of the body, the Chair would like to observe that "ex officio" means that they are members of the board from their office. In both the Driscoll and Gysler plans, they would be voting members. In the board-in the majority plan it says ex officio, nonvoting members of-at least in Section 10—the Board of Education, and in that case they would not be voting; but ex officio does not mean you do not vote. Just so everybody understands.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise to speak against the two amendments and in favor of the majority proposal which has come in. And I'm looking forward to seeing the amendments which you have on your desks relating to that, so I'll be brief. Let me give you a bit of the feeling of this committee as we've lived and worked together over these weeks. Rich Champoux I've gained great respect for as a human being, as a former Bostonian, and as a Montanan. He's a slave driver. We met early morning, at night, at noon, and listened to many, many people in many, many fields. And I feel he's done a very creditable job, as have other members of the committee, in assessing our needs and trying to lay the foundation for the future that would be a sort of growing kind of opportunity for our young people, whether they be in the lower grades or in vo-tech or in higher education facilities or programs. I think one of the problems has been, as we've tried to deal with this on the floor and as different individuals have tried to address themselves to it, something to the effect that Marshall McLewen, as he sort of put into memorable terms when he said, "One of our problems in looking at the future is that we tend to go through life looking through a rear-vision mirror." And it's awfully hard to drive down the road if your line of sight is constantly in the rear-vision mirror. You've got to look there every once in awhile; it's important, but you can't make it if you have that kind of orientation altogether. It seemed to me, as we listened to testimony from those who were feeling threatened, really, and quite defensive about the thought that possibly higher education would be given some kind of more than equal status by our proposal, there was the feeling that it was our intent that they should win and other people should lose, in this admittedly limited field of finance which we have in our state. All of us know we're a capital deficit area; we have to depend on outside capital. No institution in this state is financed adequately; none of them are endowed. That's just a fact of life. But our intent as a committee, and I think if you look at it and allow yourself to look at it in a fresh way, was to strengthen all aspects of education in the state, not to promote one at the expense of another. I think those who have seen the work of University Presidents and lobbyists in the past in the legislative halls will be pleasantly surprised in the future to find that this combined board will come in with something unified, if these amendments are stated in the way that I feel they are going to be stated, and it will have something very much a step ahead that will help all of us in all of our programs. I think that Mr. Heliker made a very beautiful statement. I won't attempt to repeatit. It seems to me that as we look ahead, we have to provide the kind of foundation that will allow for the kind of future we're going to be living in, and it's going to require more and more education. Whether you think about it in terms of orientation toward vocations or not, there will be more education demanded in the years to come as the explosion of knowledge goes on, as our society grows more and more complex. How do you provide for it? What do you do to make the best kind of opportunity available? I don't know that we've solved it; we feel we have taken a step or two that gets us out of some of the snafus of the past and may allow us to take a step or two forward. But it doesn't settle it for all time, and it does leave the people of this state and our Legislature much to do in implementing it. I think the specialization thing is the thing that's convinced me, and the clear delegation of authority. And so I feel that this proposal as we have it is a strong one for the guys who have to represent people in the outlying areas of our state. I think somehow you need to know that. Once I went out and got on a horse, and I didn't know what I was doing. But I was asked by Sterling Loney and Jules Atune one time to come watch them brand some cattle out in Sarpy, east of Hardin-and they were branding their own stuff, as far as I know; I think it was theirs. (Laughter) And they put me on that horse, and I was circling around a bunch of bulls who were pawing the ground and snorting and fighting the flies, and I'm glad the horse knew what he was doing, because I was scared to death, just riding in a circle. They didn't have any corral; you were just out in the open. You had to do this thing. But the guys who were doing the branding knew what they were doing. And those calves weren't all 2 weeks old; some of them were pretty husky. They seemed to know how to use the momentum of the calf himself to catch him and throw a knee into his ribs and lay him down with an ear-and-a-hindquarter grasp. They gave him a knee to the ribs, and down he went. They used his momentum. And all I'm saying is, in the time in which we're living, we've got to use the momentum of the time which we're a part of, and we've got to use the facilities and resources and skills which our society provides. And we've tried to do that. You guys understand that as well as we do. You use the best skills for your work that you can bring to it. We feel we've done that as a committee. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt, you had Mrs. Pemberton's attention for the first time today. (Laughter)

Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin, will you yield? I suppose I'd—

DELEGATE MARTIN: Yes, I'll yield. (Laughter)

DELEGATE PEMBERTON: Mr. Chairman. First, I'm flattered to have had your attention-(Laughter)-and I think Mr. Burkhardt is also flattered to have mine, after some of the things that have gone on between us. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, I just want to take a minute to say that until Rick Champoux mentioned the letter and the material that was put on our desks yesterday, I didn't know about it and did-couldn't find it on this disheveled desk of mine. And my good seatmate here, Mrs. Mansfield, got it out for me. And I apologize, Rick.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, are there other people that want to talk before we vote on these three proposals?

Mr. Blaylock, do you have a question?

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Yes. Mr. Champoux, will you yield to a question?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I yield, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Rick, you, I think, would agree that what Mr. Burkhardt said a moment ago-that we are a capital deficit state; that we need money; that we're going to-there's always a struggle to get enough money. As I understand it, under your plan, with this two-board system, that when it comes to allocating the money, you're asking the Legislature for the money; that these two boards will come together and work out an agreement between the two boards as to how much money they're going to ask for. Now, if they are both championing their own cause-in one case the higher education; the other case the primary, secondary-what if those two boards cannot agree? Now what are you going to do?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Well, if we can ever get these two boards through, we have an amendment-Mr. Harper has suggested it-a unified budget-and I believe Mr. Garlington, are you going to move?

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: He's going to move that the Governor be the chief of the board. Is that correct?

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: (Nodding affirmatively)

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: And I believe Mr. Scanlin down here has another one making the State Superintendent the chief of the board. So if we get to that point, we might be able to solve some of these things. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman. I certainly am not an expert in the field of either higher or lower education, but I do know what I want. I want the Legislature to have the purse strings, and I guess they have it under any of these three plans. Another thing I want is to have control of the budget finally in the Legislature, and as I understand it they will have it. Another thing that I want is a real, honest-to-goodness audit. Chairman Champoux of the committee indicated there would be an audit, but I don't like the idea of somebody auditing themselves. I don't think that's a satisfactory audit, and that's what it is. But Delegate Helikerindicated that there—he was going to offer-or somebody was going to offer another type of audit to the Legislative Audit, and I think that that is a splendid idea. And I was wondering if I may ask Chairman Champoux-if such an amendment is offered, if the committee will entertain it.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. President, may I reply?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: For the sake of the information of the assembly, Mr. President, could you read Mr. Heliker's proposed audit—amendment?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker is going to have an amendment that says: "The Legislature shall be given an annual accounting of all the income and expenditures of each unit of the University System." In addition, the Chair would observe that the Legislative Auditor could still audit. Is there other comment?

Mr. Swanberg.

DELEGATE SWANBERG: I'll just be very brief, Mr. President. It just seems to me that with all the changes that are coming up in the field of education-this field of vo-tech, for instance—that I, for one, would want one single board to supervise it. I could see if there were two boards, the one board-the college board-might feel that some aspect of vo-tech should be under their jurisdiction and the other board might feel that some aspect of vo-tech should be under their jurisdiction, in spite of where it's assigned. And under this majority proposal there is no-any one person that makes these assignments. And I think in view of this, one board making all these decisions would be far to be preferred. That one board, of course, could divide itself up-there's 12 to 14 members-and one subcommittee could be on higher education, another subcommittee could be on w-tech, and the third subcommittee could be on the elementary system. And for that reason I favor either of the minority reports.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney,

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, I remember when Montana had a Chancellor. Then the Legislature, in its wisdom, refused to fund the Chancellor. They used to write in their appropriation, "There'll be no money expended for a Chancellor." The law stayed on the books. They didn't take it off. I saw some terrific fights. You think this is long. This is short one to what I saw in the Senate over a Chancellor fight. I don't think this is long at all on this. I think this is a very important discussion this afternoon, and I've enjoyed every minute of it. You people have stayed right on the line, and I think it's been marvelous. Now, I don't care what -we do, it ain't going to work. (Laughter) I have seen the Chancellor then come back. They thought everything was going to be fine; now we got the Chancellor system. So we got a new Chancellor, and he couldn't last. So then we increased the size of the Board of Education. They did that. So don't worry, whatever we do—and we're going back to that thing. We're going to have an awful time with it. There's a few things that I would like to see. Now, I heard Mr. Champoux say over here, and I think in all honesty he said that the vo-tech would be under the Board of Education. Well, then I listened to the distinguished-or our distinguished member here from Silver Bow-saying that the vo-tech is being funded entirely by the state; it isn't costing anything. So now we get the money coming from the state, going to be under the Board of Education, and they're not funded by the state because this goes back to the other angle. Now, I-we're going to have to get some of these things straightened out as far as w-tech is. Now, in going down here reading-and I'm not much of a reader-but in line 16 on page 6, it says down here, "a body corporate, which shall govern and control the academic, financial and administrative affairs of the University." Now, I hope if we can get to where-we're going to have to define what you mean by the word "financial". Are you guys, the body corporate, coming into this body-to the Legislature, and saying, "All we want is X-number of dollars. You give us X-number of dollars: we will spend it as we please." All six institutions-now, thank goodness, the vo-tech is out from there, because they'll have to get it someplace else. Now, if that means financial, I'd like to know that; if that's the way you're going to spend it. Now, I know having served on that Finance and Claims Committee—and I am sure that with Senator Groff or with Norris Nichols, through the appropriations-and I sets right down here-sets a former member of Appropriations Committee, Mr. Barnard, and a Chairman of it. I don't think you're ever going to get them to say, "so much money, and you divide it up". Now, you might say that they can do it, except that they will go and take out and says, "This is in the Constitution; this is not law. This is-you people don't have nothing to say about this." This is what bothers me. Now, when we vote on these two boards, I would like to see it go back to have one board. If we have it in the general plan, I'd like to see seven getting together once in awhile. I think Mr. Harper has a great idea. I hate to see these fellows meeting at the same time there. Now, I think another thing; we'd save a lot in administration. Now, I don't know whether you know this or not, but the Board of Institutions—their budget request last year, just for the Board of Institutions--not for the institutions--was $l,SOO,OOO for the biennium. This was the request. Now, these are the things when we start creating two boards. I just saw Ed Nelson up here today, who's now the Board of Regents Manager, and I think is doing a mighty good job. We'll have another one. Now, I've watched this Capitol grounds grow around here, and I go down and I'm telling you, Ed's got a beautiful spot down here on-down on 11th Avenue, and we'll have some more. Now, this is what we must realize--and when we go to these. Now, if we have to go back to the majority plan, do you suppose we could put a little connecting link in there so they would have the same office and the same administrator and we could let them use the same stenographer and save a little money? This is the main thing I'd like to see, because somewhere, somehow, somebody has to pay the freight around here. Thank you, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Kelleher.

DELEGATE KELLEHER: Mr. Chairman, my landlady stops feeding at 5:30, and in the last 10 workdays, I've missed 6 meals. When are you going to let me eat?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You'd better get a pair, Mr. Kelleher.

Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: May I answer very briefly, Mr. Mahoney? Charley, you're beautiful. He's great, isn't he? I think we ought to have an amendment to make him the Commissioner of Education of the state. However, vo-tech is funded in three ways. There are state funds, there are federal funds, and there are local funds. The other point that you were making concerning the Executive Secretary; I'm glad it was brought up, because Mr. Arbanas referred to who's going to be minding the store. Well, the store is being minded right now. They have an Executive Secretary, and he did refer to the gentleman. The building is already there. It's been in existence for I don't know how long. So actually, you're not-are you going to get rid of the building? Is this the thing? I mean, the building's there, so it isn't going to mean a matter-if I may just throw this—if I may answer you; the building is there. Going to sell the building, Charley?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Why did you have to end in a question, Mr. Champoux? (Laughter)

Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I might state, for the benefit of the assembly, this organization, the greater University, moved out of the Capitol building into a rented building last fall.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Driscoll, would you like to close, briefly?

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: Mr. Chairman, may I close? It's quarter after 5:00, and I have to get back to Butte, America, and I'd like to close. Thank you. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, the issue is on Mr. Driscoll's amendment. Mr. Driscoll's amendment is before you. It has the effect of calling for one Board of Education on which the Governor, Attorney General, and Superintendent of Public Instruction serve ex officio—

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Roll call.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -with 11 other members. We'll have a roll call vote. So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Driscoll's amendment, vote Aye; so many as are opposed, vote No.

Mr. Eskildsen, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I rise because I don't think this is a fair way to take this vote. I think if we are going to vote on a one-body group, we should vote on-decide whether we want one body or we should decide whether we want two bodies. And then decide, if we take the one body, to take either Driscoll's or Gysler's. If we decide we want the two bodies, or the majority plan, fine.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, Mr. Eskildsen. I'm sorry; the Chair will have to rule you out of order. We are in the middle of a vote. This is the way they came in. This is the last amendment to Mr. Gysler's amendment. If, when we get all through, you aren't satisfied, you send another amendment to the Chair and I'll put your amendment. Has all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll close the vote. Please take the ballot.

CLERK SMITH: Mr. Chairman, 29 delegates have voted Aye, 66 have voted No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 66 delegates having voted No and 29 Aye, the matter is defeated. Now, the next issue is Mr. Gysler's. Is there more discussion? Mr. Gysler, just a moment. Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Will Mr. Gysler yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Gysler?

DELEGATE GYSLER: Certainly.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: In your pi-o-posal, Mr. Gysler—or, Erv-"the general control and supervision of the State University and the various other state educational institutions"—what do you mean by "state educational institutions"?

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Aasheim, this term is broad to cover what-hopefully, whatever the Legislature would provide for the duties there, as far as education goes. It's the same as in the old Constitution there, Mags.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Will he yield to another question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Gysler?

DELEGATE GYSLER: Yes.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: What was your reason for making the State Superintendent of Public Instruction the executive officer of the board?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Gysler.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Aasheim, our reason for doing that-and I gave Mr. Arbanas a very poor answer an hour or two ago--my reason for that was to make the State Superintendent of Public Instruction in charge of the housekeeping when the people go home, when the board goes home. In other words, making the State Superintendent of Public Instruction the number one there.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Thank you. Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: I sort of, as I intimated when I spoke formerly-that I tend to favor this amendment or suggestion of Mr. Gysler's, but I think it needs, probably, a little working over. I think it should be mentioned-the fact that we are also including public schools here, rather than educational institutions. And I also question here the matter of making the State Superintendent the Executive Officer, as a senior officer above the Governor. I do like the idea of having one board, as I said, and having 12 members and dividing the membership into three different areas. But I think, like Mr. Eskildsen, that we probably have here, maybe, a Hobson's choice. And I would hesitate to adopt this Gysler proposal, even if I do like it, with the wording as it is now; and right now, I'm not ready to make any amendments to make it really workable. I really am not conversant with the problems that would be involved. However, as I said before, I do like this idea of a single board.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: May I inquire of the Chair, please? If this were to pass, it could be amended afterwards, and really, the choice we have is between the-now is between a plan with one and a plan with two; and once we adopt the plan, we can amend, can't we?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's right. Mr. Gysler.

DELEGATE GYSLER: Mr. Chairman, I'll be short in closing. What I'm trying to do-and I think I should say to Mr. Eskildsen: right now, I believe, is the time when you choose between one board and two boards. The thing that I want to primarily do is to make everything one board with enough people so that they can get the job done and so that we don't have two separate boards and then the two boards come together and fight. If there's going to be some fighting, let's get it done right inside of the board that meets, and every time a board meets, this board will meet. I take issue a little bit with Mr. Heliker's statement that the University System must be number one over all, because if the University System is number one over all and we let other phases of our educational system go to pot, then we won't have anyone qualified to go to the University System. Mr. Mahoney, as far as the things are concerned—everything is-your doubts-I feel that my plan basically takes care of them. Mr. Champoux, a long time ago, said that the board proposed by me was too large, but yet at the same time he says his board should get together and meet, and there's 14 plus 1, which makes a board of 15. With that, I will close.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: We're going to have a roll call vote.

Is that what you want, Mr. Kamhoot? For what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE KAMHOOT: Mr. Chairman, I rise for the purpose of explaining my vote. Delegate Kelleher has gone. He was going to vote against the amendment, and I want to vote for the amendment, but I'll not punch the button. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Very well, we'll have a roll call vote. The issue is on Mr. Gysler's proposal for substituting his Section 9 for Sections 9,10 and 11 in the committee report. His section calls for one Board of Education on which the Governor and Attorney General serve ex officio and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction as Executive Officer of the board. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, vote Aye; and so many as are opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 38 delegates voting Aye, 54 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 54 delegates having voted No and 34 having vote-38 having voted Aye, the amendment fails. Will the Chair please have the pages put these out. There's about 20 copies, 2 to a row.

Mr. Harper, you're the first up on amendments to Section 9. May we read yours, Mr. Harper?

DELEGATE HARPER: Please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, the pages put out about two in each row. This is an amendment that has some text to it, and we did not have any printing. I made about 20 copies so you can look at them. Will the clerk please read Mr. Harper's amendment.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 9, page 6, line 1, of the Education and Public Lands Committee proposal, by adding a sentence, following the period after the word 'concern'-quote: 'The State Board of Education shall determine budget requests to be made of the Legislature, after forming a plan for allocating funds to all phases of the state's educational programs.' Signed: Harper."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, you're going to have that before you in a moment. The amendment goes in on page 6, line l-page 6, line 1, after the word "concern" in the middle of the first line. It says-I'll read it again: "The State Board of Education"-that's the combined board-"shall determine budget requests to be made of the Legislature-comma-after forming a plan for allocating funds to all phases of the state's educational program." "The State Board of Education shall determine budget requests to be made of the Legislature, after forming a plan for allocating funds to all phases of the state's educational program."

Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman, this is just in the nature of getting to work now to see if we can put into our so-called two-board proposal some of the things that people who wanted the one-board proposal were concerned about. And the thing I heard mentioned several times was the matter of making sure that budget allocations were looked at in the light of total educational program of the state, rather than in two segments, then coming to the Legislature in a sense in the nature of a dogfight between two conflicting elements. And since we have, under this plan, a State Board of Education set up, combining the efforts of the two sections, I offer this amendment. It does a perfectly obvious thing: it suggests that the State Board of Education will make a budget request to the Legislature. And, of course, in order to do that, they have to decide among themselves how they will allocate a total amount of fund that they expect to get from the Legislature. I hold no particular brief for the wording of this, but I think the idea is perfectly obvious.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I'm in support of that amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: We still don't have copies.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, will someone in Mr. Romney's area get him a copy, and I'll also read it again slowly. "The State Board of Education shall determine budget requests"—now, that's by the State Board of Education they mean-Section 9; that's the combined boards—"shall determine budget requests to be made of the Legislature, after forming a plan for allocating funds to all phases of the state's educational program."

Mr. Woodmansey.

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: It appears to me that, in this case, I wouldn't particularly like to be the Superintendent of Public Instruction, because each board of seven members will be there to defend the request from their area and it will be up to the Superintendent to break the tie. And whichever way the Superintendent goes, it will be the wrong way, it appears to me. I don't know how we can alleviate this, but it looks like the Superintendent is going to get caught in the middle right from the start.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So that you—

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I think the body should have in mind these two other amendments. Mr. Garlington's amendment would substitute the Governor for the Superintendent of Public Instruction, so that the Governor would make the decision Mr. Woodmansey just discussed. Mr. Scanlin's amendment would leave the decision with the Superintendent of Public Instruction, but would require that the board meet at least quarterly to give attention to the unified budget, and the Superintendent would be Chairman.

Mr. Rollins.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Mr. Chairman, I think it's quite conceivable that a board-the two boards might be able to agree without necessarily a deadlock each time. You're assuming-someone's assuming that there will be seven on one board, dedicated solely to getting as much money for their segment as possible, and matched by seven on another board. It might possibly be that there are men and women with an intense desire to compromise and work out these matters for the good of all.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair would like to observe, for the benefit of the body, that both the Board of Public Education and the Board of Regents have seven public members, plus the Governor and the Superintendent. Now, I realize they have no votes in either case, but in other words, there are other people on those boards.

Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Mr. Chairman. will Mr. Harper yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper?

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes.

DELEGATE CONOVER: Mr. Harper, is it your intention that your--what you're getting at is at the w-tech schools? You know, at the present time, that the financing of our public schools is already administrated through the State Superintendent by the taxes and the foundation program. Now, just who are you relating this Board of Education-is it strictly to the vo-tech schools?

DELEGATE HARPER: I'm not sure I understand that question, Mr. Conover. My answer would be that the Legislature appropriates the funds for all of these now and will according to this plan, too. My concern was that the Legislature-the Committee, in the Legislature, on Finance-not be faced with asking from the vocational people and maybe in-as a part of that from different vocational units--not be faced by asking from various units of the University System, and so forth. But that the Board of Education would be the place-the State Board of Education would be the place where all of these things were threshed out together, so that when the Legislature was asked for an amount, there would have been some agreement reached between the vocational-tech people, the community college people, the university people, the-all phases of education.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

Mr. Nutting.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Mr. Chairman, would Mr. Harper yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper?

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes.

DELEGATE NUTTING: When we look at it realistically, though, we know what is going to happen is that the budget request is going to far exceed the amount of funds available. Is it your anticipation that this amendment will mean that the funds will be voted by the Legislature and then it will be up to this board to again decide where the cuts come--whether they'll come from the University or the elementary or the w-tech, or where they'll come from?

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: I can see two possibilities here. The Legislature would decide which of these two it wanted to do. It may not do always the same way. The Legislature need not come back with that kind of an appropriation and say to this board, "We leave it up to you to apportion it out." They may, having the asking from the board in their hands, simply make the allocation any way they want. On the other hand, there may be points at which-or times at which the Legislature might well say, "We have this much money-we will allocate this much of a fund to the Board of Regents of the University System; we'll allocate this much for another segment of it-and leave it up to the board to decide." I wouldn't want to try to second-guess the Legislature on that, but I don't think there's anything implicit in this motion that tells about how the funds have to be handled after the Legislature has allocated them.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Harper—may I direct a question to Mr. Harper?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper?

DELEGATE HARPER: Yes.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Maybe a couple.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: George, in line 17, Section 11, thefinancialpowerisgiven, at least to a degree, to the board, so if the Legislature-if the board comes up with a budget and the Legislature doesn't have enough money to fund it and cuts it in part-like you said, maybe one place or another-then does the Board of Regents lose its power to allocate?

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman. Mr. Romney, let's start with this. It's for sure that the-this Board of Regents is not going to be able to allocate any more money than the Legislature gives it. So if an asking comes in from the State Board of Education and then the Legislature appropriates only a portion of it, then obviously all of the original allocations can't be made. I was suggesting that-1 suppose that if this Section 11 is passed without further amendment, that what you are suggesting would be true. The money appropriated for this area of higher education would be given to the Board of Regents, and then they would make the allocation.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Harper, then it's a matter of who's going to divide the pie for the record, and that's what I was trying to bring out.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: There may be other amendments that need to be added in other sections here to answer this question of Mr. Romney-and that-they're probably in the minds of other people. I simply am trying, in this one amendment, to make clear the duty of the State Board of Education to correlate this business of financial askings to the Legislature.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: I have a question, I think, for Mr. Harper. I don't know that I understand just how this budget is going to be sent to the Legislature. Do I understand, then, that it will bypass the Administration Department or the Budget Department completely, and the budget will go directly to the Legislature? Would that be it? That would be a difference from the past.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: I must confess ignorance at that point. If the request is not made directly to the Legislature, if there are other channels through which it ought more properly to go, and if this does not afford the right channels, then I would be open to an amendment. I'm not posing as an expert in financial affairs. I'm just trying to make clear-at least give the basis for making clear here something that I think we'd all like to get at.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: This does cause me some concern. I'm not an expert on it either, but I have been on the Appropriations Committee a few times, and it would appear to me, by this amendment, that we are completely bypassing all other parts of the Administration Department. And if this is a body corporate, am I to assume, then, that that is it; that the-any other part of the Administrative Department is bypassed and this corporate body gets its one budget directly to the Legislature? That's the way this would read to me, and I don't know if that's the proper mechanics or not. I don't know what difficulty it would make, but I think it would be a definite change from the present. Now, maybe that's thewayit is supposed to be if this is a body corporate--and apparently is going to bypass all the Administration Departments or anything, and it's going direct to the Legislature. Mr. Chairman, could I ask Mr. Champoux a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I'll yield.

DELEGATE RYGG: Is that the way it would be then, Mr. Champoux?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Sterling, if you look at the examples in all other states, the procedure is to go through the executive Budgetary Department. And I would assume--we could specify here-but I would assume-1 think what we want to do is to go through the regular channels as they go through presently, which you have described. Do you think we should dress it up here with some more specific words, or—

DELEGATE RYGG: Well, the way it's worded, I certainly don't think it would go through the channels it goes through now.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: What do you suggest then? When you make a-May I, sir? May I?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg, you have the floor.

DELEGATE RYGG: Well, I don't know that I'm prepared to make that amendment in there unless you'd-I don't know if this is right—you'd say that-to the Legislature through the regular channels, perhaps, would get it down to where I think it ought to be.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, may I have your attention. The Chair would like to tell you that I would like to finish Section 9 only tonight. There are four amendments on Section 11. If it's not possible to finish Section 9 tonight, maybe we won't, but I would like to try to finish Section 9 tonight. We have three proposed amendments-this one on budgeting; one on whether to have the Governor or the Superintendent as the chief officer of Section-of the board; and the third one as to whether or not to have them consider the budget annually or quarterly. Those don't seem to be too difficult, and I'd like you to try and work them out. Now, I don't know-1 think this is an interesting point that has been raised.

And Mr. Leuthold, although you were up, I see that Mr. Davis, who is an attorney and has been on the Education Board, is here. I wonderifhe can shed light on this problem. I'll come back to you, Mr. Leuthold.

DELEGATE DAVIS: I think we can shed light on it by just unshedding the third line, "to be made of the Legislature", and make it read: "The State Board of Education shall determine all budget requests, after forming a plan for allocating funds to all phases of the state's educational program." Then it'll just go through regular channels. I would move to amend the motion of Dr. Harper's by striking "to be made of the Legislature".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Davis makes a motion that we strike out the words "to be made of the Legislature", so that the sense of the Harper amendment is that the State Board of Education is to determine budget requests after forming a plan for allocating them to the state's educational program, the assumption being that that would leave them to run through the normal budgeting process.

Mr. Leuthold.

DELEGATE LEUTHOLD: Mr. President. I'd like to help out here, and my suggestion is that we don't need any of these amendments; that in the-Section 1 we have given the responsibility to the Legislature to provide for education, and if they're going to provide for education, they're going to have to provide the money. I think everything is taken care of in Section 1, and I don't think we need any of these amendments.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: I would have to speak against that. I think what we're trying to do here, Mr. Leuthold, is to try to keep everyone from coming in directly to the Legislature with their own budget--each one of the units of the University System and the community colleges and votech, And this-in other words, they come up with a unified plan of all the educational expenditures and work that out in their boards and then present it. We do give authority to the Legislature to fund it all, but rather than have them have to hassle at all, at the outset anyway.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: May I simply accept Mr. Davis' amendment and strike that from my amendment, rather than to take the time to—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, we've debated yours far enough. I'm going to have to put it, but you may certainly say that you'll accept it.

Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, I know that Brother Harper and I are trying to head in the same direction, and would it expedite things if I submitted mine as a substitute motion at this time?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Your motion doesn't go to the issue of the budget that I can see, does it?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: It sure does, in about three words-about two paragraphs less than Brother Harper's

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a minute. Let me read it. Very well, I'll allow you to make it as a substitute to Mr. Harper's Wait a minute, now. I'll allow you to make it as a substitute motion; and if it prevails, fine; and if it doesn't, we're back on the Davis-Harper problem. Mr. Scanlin's motion may be read by the clerk.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 9, page 5, line 30, of the Educational proposal by striking the following words, starting on line 30-quote: 'periodically on matters of mutual concern. In case of a tie vote at such meeting, the Superintendent of Public Instruction may cast a vote'-end quote; and insert in lieu thereof the following words-quote: 'at least quarterly-comma-giving primary attention to a unified budget, period'. 'The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be Chairman period'-end of quote."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk, may I have it? Very well, Mr. Scanlin has offered a substitute motion, the effect of which is to put-is to strike out everything after the word "meet". Strike out "periodically" on the bottom of page 5 and the rest of the sentence on page 6, and substitute these words so that the sentence reads: "The Board of Public Education and the Board of Regents of Higher Education, as hereinafter designated, shall together constitute the State Board of Education, which shall meet at least quarterly, giving primary attention to a unified budget. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be Chairman." The point is that it simply says that this board shall meet at least quarterly, giving primary attention to a unified budget, and it makes the Superintendent of Public Instruction Chairman.

Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman, it seems to me the scare-word was "periodically". It weakened the whole proposal. The strength of these three sections is in Section 9. There you have your one board that everybody wants. I feel that the amendment that I offered would answer several of the very important objections that have been raised. First, it would fix the responsibility for a unified budget; second, it would solve the place of vo-tech by implication, as the-Chairman Champoux has indicated; third, it would give an elected official, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, a very definite position of control; and, finally, it would make the position of Superintendent of Public Instruction less attractive for unqualified political candidates. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion?

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Well, Mr. Chairman, I-this bothers me a little bit, too, because normally, the way it is now, the budget is made out on a 2-year basis. And I assume from what we're heading for, it'll be an annual basis; but I really don't see how you could have a budget each quarter. And this would specifically say they'd have to meet quarterly on a unified budget, and I rather think that it should have to be on an annual basis to establish a budget. So I would wonder why they should meet quarterly for that particular reason.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, I think we have to realize there's still a little protocol in the United States, and I would hate to see the Superintendent of Public Instruction presiding over a board that the Governor is ex officio member of. Now, we either let the Governor off entirely, or put him on as Chairman of thatboard. I think that he's the man-he's the Chief Executive, and I would hate to see him have to go in and sit down on that board as to be-1 understand Mr. Garlington has an amendment something along this line-1 don't know, but it was mentioned—but, please, don't put the Superintendent presiding over the board and the Governor ex officio, sitting there and can't even vote. With the highest-priced man we've got, I think—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion?

Mr. Scanlin, do you need to close?

DELEGATE SCANLIN: I'd like to clarify the concern of Delegate Rygg. The matter of meeting quarterly was not limited to a discussion of the unified budget, but the budget would be of primary concern in the difficulty that we face here. But it would not be limited simply to-the joint meeting of the two boards as the State Board of Education would not necessarily be limited just to financial matters. I would hope not. Mr. Chairman, I don't see where the Governor is mentioned specifically in Section 9, but I can see where Mr.-Delegate Mahoney, would bring the Governor in in both Sections 10 and 11. I recognize that objection.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the Chair would observe that if it passes, it can be amended; but if it doesn't pass, we won't worry about it. So many as are in favor of Mr. Scanlin's motion, which would have the effect of adding this language-the section would then read: "The Board of Public Education and the Board of Regents of Higher Education, as hereinafter designated, shall together constitute the State Board of Education, which shall meet at least quarterly, giving primary attention to a unified budget. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be Chairman." So many as are in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Noes have it, and it's defeated. Very well, we're back on Mr. Davis' amendment to Mr. Harper's amendment. Mr. Davis' amendment was to strike out the center line, the third line, of Mr. Harper's motion so that Mr. Harper's motion would read: "The State Board of Education shall determine budget requests after forming a plan for allocating funds," et cetera. It leaves off "to be made of the State Legislature"-"budget requests of the State Legislature."

Mr. Nutting.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Mr. Chairman, is a substitute motion in order?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, I'll hear it and see what its feature is.

DELEGATE NUTTING: I would move to strike the-everything after the word "shall", so that the-and add the following words, so that the sentence would then read: "The State Board of Education shall submit unified budget requests." The last sentence worries me about a plan for allocating funds, and I think this would get around the fact that the budget plans would be submitted--unified budget requests would be submitted. And it would also take the-everybody off the hook as far as where they are to be submitted, because they are-if our different-if we change procedures, they could be submitted wherever they would be necessary.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do I understand it to be the sense of your motion that Mr. Harper's motion would then read: "The State Board of Education shall submit unified budget requests"-is that what you're saying, Mr. Nutting?

DELEGATE NUTTING: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And you're making that as a substitute motion?

DELEGATE NUTTING: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue now will be on Mr. Nutting's substitute motion, which would have the effect of adding to Section 9 the following language: "The State Board of Education shall submit unified budget requests." Is there discussion?

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: I think this would be much better than the original motion. I think it would relieve me of my worries anyway. I think they would go through in the regular channels, and I would support this substitute motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper.

DELEGATE HARPER: Mr. Chairman, I have no pride of authorship. I think Nutting, as usual, has said in four or five words what it takes a preacher a paragraph to say. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue will be on Mr. Nutting's substitute motion. It will have the effect of adding a sentence that says: "The State Board of Education shall submit unified budget requests." So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as shall be opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. And the sentence will be added on page 6, line 1, after the word "concerned", where Mr. Harper suggested. "The State Board of Education shall submit unified budget requests." That's adopted, assuming that we adopt the section. (Laughter) Now, we've taken care of Mr. Scanlin. Mr. Garlington, you're next. May we read yours? Mr. Garlington's is very simple. I'll read it, It says: "substitute 'Governor' for 'Superintendent of Public Instruction' in the last sentence, so that the Governor casts the tie vote." In otherwords, in the case of a tie vote at such a meeting, the Governor may cast a vote. You see, otherwise the Governor and the Superintendent have no vote.

Mr. Garlington.

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: Mr. Chairman, my problem in connection with this, and the reason for the suggested amendment, is to remove what seems to me to be an implied conflict of interest on the part of the Superintendent of Public Instruction. I think it would be wrong to put that officer in that position. By tradition and history and common consent of all concerned, the Superintendent's primary function is in the field of elementary and secondary education. There are two boards of equal size and dignity here, and to put a person who is primarily associated with one board in the position of judging between the two if a deadlock should occur would create the very sensitive situation that Mr. Woodmansey referred to. Now, if you search around for some way to resolve this, the name of the Governor emerges as the most likely solution. He doesn't have any conflict between the one board or the other, because he appoints them both. And we're all citizens in the state together, and we're all concerned with education together. And since the Governoris elected by all hands and represents all hands and also is ex officio on both boards, so that he should have adequate information for casting a vote, he seems to make the most logical choice for being the one to break a tie if it should occur. I agree with Mr. Rollins that it would seem improbable that this would often occur, but the very fact that there is this means of resolving it, I think is healthy in avoiding the situation in any event.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there dis cussion?

Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: (Inaudible)—member of the board-of the Committee on Education, I think this would be a very good idea to relieve the Superintendent of being placed in this untenable situation.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. President, I-the Governor has the responsibility to submit a budget to the Legislature, and I think that this is one thing we don't ever want to take away from him. We want that budget submitted to the Legislature by the Governor. He is a budget officer. He is all of this. Now, I just question, if he's got a board there that all he sits there in case of a tie-1 would much rather see him the boss man of this board and say, "Now, you're going to submit this or I'm going to know the reason why." I don't like to relieve him of a responsibility in education. Let's get him right out there-this is-make it part of his responsibility. I hate to think of a Governor having to walk in and says, "Well, I can sit here, but I can't vote." Now, we don't do that with the President of the Convention. We don't do that in anything else-that we tell him he can be-sit around here, but he can't vote. Well, I think the time has come to go out here and make him a voting man of this board all the way through, the way we've had it. And he can-they've done it in the past, and I see nothing wrong, and I'd hate to have him just vote in case of a tie.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I would support Mr. Garlington's proposal. I think the Governor ducks in and out of these meetings and he's there from time to time, but he doesn't carry the major brunt of it. And I think when something critical is coming up, he'll be there-if there is a tie, he'll be on hand; and I would support his motion.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Garlington's amendment to substitute the word "Governor" for "Superintendent of Public Instruction", so that the last sentence of Section 9 reads: "In the case of a tie vote at such a meeting, the Governor may cast a vote." So many as are in favor of Mr. Garlington's amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. Very well, we now have Section 9 reading as follows: "The Board of Public Education and the Board of Regents of Higher Education, as hereinafter designated, shall together constitute the State Board of Education, which shall meet periodically on matters of mutual concern. The State Board of Education shall submit unified budget requests. In the case of a tie vote at such a meeting, the Governor may cast a vote." The Chair has no more amendments before it. Do you want to move it again, Mr. Champoux, or do you want me to?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: After4 hours, I would like to have the pleasure of moving this for a vote, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Please. Well, you want me to do it, though? Very well, members of the body, you have before you for your-on your consideration and on the record-for your consideration and on the recommendation of Mr. Champoux that when this body arises and reports, after having had under consideration Section 9, as amended, that we recommend the same be adopted.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Roll call.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Roll call. So many as shall be in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as opposed, vote No on the voting machines. Roll call has been called for. So many as are in favor, vote Aye; so many as are opposed, vote No. We are voting on Section 9 only, State Board of Education. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Please cast the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 74 delegates voting Aye, 13 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 74 delegates having voted Aye and 13 delegates having voted No, Section 9 is adopted as amended.
Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Mr. Chairman, I move the Committee of the Whole rise and report progress and beg leave to sit again.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The motion is that the Committee of the Whole rise and report progress and beg leave to sit again. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All opposed, NO.
(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll do that. If you'll sit around a minute, we'll have it done for you.

(Proceedings moved from Committee of the Whole to Convention, President Graybill presiding)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read the report of the Committee of the Whole.

CLERK HANSON: "March 11, 1972. Mr. President. We, your Committee of the Whole, having had under consideration Report Number 10 of the Committee on Education, recommend as follows: that the committee rise and report progress and beg leave to sit again. Signed: Leo Graybill, Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Are there—does anyone want the Committee of the Whole report read in full?

UNIDENTIFIED DELEGATE: Yes. (Laughter)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: You want to stand up and say that? (Laughter)
Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: I move the adoption of the Committee of the Whole report.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: It's been moved that we adopt the Committee of the Whole report. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.
(No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well.
Mr. Eskildsen.

DELEGATE ESKILDSEN: Pursuant to the general powers vested in Montana Constitutional Convention, in accordance with the provisions of Section 7(6) of the Enabling Act, Chapter 296, Laws of 1971, the Montana Constitutional Convention shall recess temporarily until 9:00 a.m. on Monday, March 13, 1972.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Now, the Chair would like to point out that we are going to meet Monday at 9:00, and there has been some notes sent up to me that you want to think about and do some draftsmanship. Please think about it before 9 o'clock Monday morning if you want to change Section 10 and 11. All those in favor of the motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered. Thank you.

(Convention recessed at 6:05 p.m.)

March 13, 1972 Forty-Fourth Day Convention Hall
9:10 a.m. Helena, Montana

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Convention will come to order. If you'll all stand, Don Belcher will lead us in the Pledge of Allegiance this morning.

DELEGATES WITH DELEGATE BELCHER: I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: And if you'll remain standing, Don Scanlin will lead us in an invocation.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Let us pray. Oh Lord, Thou hast given to us the responsibility for saying yes or no, aye or nay, green or red. Suffer us not too many mistaken, snap judgments made in the heat of the day. Let us rely more on Thee for insight and decision and not alone on the words and wisdom of men. Only thus may we truly fulfill the obligation placed upon us in our Master's name. Amen.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: We'll take roll by voting Aye on the voting machines.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, may Delegates Kamhoot, Davis and Artz be excused please?

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Yes.

CLERK HANSON: Delegate Choate, Delegate Dahood, Delegate Drum, Delegate Eck, Delegate Holland, Delegate Jacobsen, Delegate James, Delegate Johnson, Delegate Kelleher, Delegate Pemberton, Delegate Dahood, Delegate Drum, Delegate Holland, Delegate Kelleher, Delegate James, Delegate Pemberton.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Take the attendance. Delegate Davis' and Delegate Kamhoot's presence is noted, and they may leave when they need to today.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. President, 93 delegates present, 1 excused, 6 absent.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. A quorum is present. Order of Business Number 1, Introduction.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. President. We, the Committee on Style, Drafting, Transition and Submission transmits revisions of Report Number 8 of the Committee on Bill of Rights. John M. Schiltz, Chairman; William A. Burkhardt, Vice-Chairman." Mr. President.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. The Bill of Rights Style and Drafting Report is accepted and placed on General Orders. Order of Business Number 2.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 3, Communications. This morning, I would merely like to spend 1 minute with you considering where we stand. I think if we can complete debate this week, we will be in good shape. Now, when we complete debate, we're not quite through. By that I don't mean complete all the Style and Drafting and all the ballot debate; I mean the debate on the 10 articles. And if we can do that, we'll be in pretty good shape. To do that, we're going to have to work fairly hard this week, because, as you know, we still have Public Health, Local Government and part of General Government left to go after we finish Education. I am hopeful that we can finish Education either by noon or by early afternoon so that we can take Judicial, Natural Resources and Revenue's Style and Drafting today. From now on, we have to work very carefully with Style and Drafting, because we need their fuli time available so that they can keep up and catch up. It's either feast or famine with their committee. If we do these things, however, and are able to complete these major articles by Saturday, I think we will have no trouble financially. Mrs. Pemberton, your presence is noted. Very well. Mr. James, your presence is noted. Order of Business Number 4, Introduction and Reference.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 5, Final Consideration.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 6, Adoption.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 7, Motions and Resolutions.

CLERK HANSON: "Montana Consti-"

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President, the clerk has a resolution from the Rules Committee, I might ask that he read it at this time.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well.

CLERK HANSON: "Montana Constitutional Convention, 1971-72, Resolution Number 12. Introduced March 13, 1972. A resolution requesting a fiscal note. Whereas the Convention has recommended constitutional change which might cause Montanans more tax dollars; and Whereas the extent of such possible expenses is a matter of considerable interest and should be determined for delegate information to the extent possible. Now, therefore, be it resolved by the Constitutional Convention of the State of Montana that this Convention request that the Revenue Department prepare a fiscal note forecasting the amount of expenditures for the extra services, if any, provided in the proposed Constitution. Introduced by Committee on Rules and Resolutions. Marshall Murray, Chairman."

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President. By way of explanation, although I don't think that much explanation is necessary, this is in compliance with the request of Delegate Rygg last week who asked-who, under this order of business, moved that a fiscal note be requested from the Revenue Department. Rather than handle the manner [matter] in the fashion of having Delegate Rygg prepare and introduce the resolution, the Rules Committee has done so. We have met on the matter and, without objection-in other words, by unanimous vote-we agree that this would be a most valuable thing to all of the delegates at this Convention and to the public at large, and therefore we have prepared this resolution and introduced it, requesting that the Convention ask the Revenue Department of the State of Montana to prepare a fiscal note to the best of their ability to forecast the amount of expenditures, if any, that might be forthcoming from our proposed Constitution. And at this time, I would move that the resolution be adopted.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there discussion? All in favor of adopting the resolution asking the Revenue Department for a fiscal note on the amount of expenditures for extra services, if any, provided by the proposed Constitution, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and so ordered. Are there other resolutions or motions?

CLERK HANSON: None, sir.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 8, Unfinished Business.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 9, Special Orders.

CLERK HANSON: None.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Order of Business Number 10.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. President. I move that the Convention resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for consideration of business under General Orders.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: The motion is to resolve this Convention into Committee of the Whole. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

PRESIDENT GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Committee of the Whole)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk.

CLERK HANSON: Style and Drafting Committee Proposal Number 6, Natural Resources, having been duplicated and placed on the delegates' desks on the 10th day of March, 1972, at 9 o'clock a.m., is now in compliance with Rule Number 23 of the Montana Constitutional Convention Rules. Style and Drafting Committee Proposal Number 7, Revenue. having been duplicated and placed on the delegates' desks on the 11th day of March, 1972, at 9 o'clock a.m., is now in compliance with Rule 23 of the Montana Constitutional Convention Rules. March 13, 1972. The following committee proposals are now on General Orders: Education; Public Health; Local Government; Style Number 5, Judiciary; Style Number 6, Natural Resources; Style Number 7, Revenue; and Style Number 8, Bill of Rights." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman. By way of rearranging the calendar and in accordance with your earlier remarks this morning, I move that the committee take up the matters under the Education proposal at this time and pass consideration of the matters from the Style and Drafting Committee which are on General Orders before the Committee of the Whole until the next sitting of the committee.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The motion is to pass Style and Drafting reports on Committee of the Whole. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered. Very well. Mr. Kelleher, your presence may be noted. Ladies and gentlemen of the committee, when we finished on Saturday, we had discussed 9, 10 and 11 and we had finally adopted Section 9 as amended. Now, we have about five or six amendments to Section 11 before me, and we have a couple of proposals to amend 9,10 and 11 again. And I have pointed out to the proponents of these that this would require reconsideration of Section 9. I'm not against doing that, but I always have asked thatweconsiderreconsiderationsattheend of the article so that we don't get to reconsidering too quickly. Therefore, I have suggested that the persons who want to reconsider 9 and think that it's tied into 10 and 11-if they care to rise and explain their motions now, I-we will listen to their explanation, but we will proceed, as soon as that has happened, on Section 10.

Mrs. Bates, do you want to do that?

DELEGATE BATES: Yes, Mr. Chairman; thank you. I would recommend, when we do and if we should reconsider to reconsider, that we would delete Sections 9, 10 and 11 for one paragraph only, which would state: "The general control and supervision of the State University and the various other state educational institutions shall be vested in the Superintendent of Schools and one or more State Boards of Education whose powers and duties shall be prescribed and regulated by law." And this, I feel, would solve many of the problems that we would face by having two boards or tying anything down in the Constitution. And this would permit the Legislature to control it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harper, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE HARPER: To answer your request that suggestions for number-changes for Number 9 be explained.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE HARPER: This suggestion will be coming before us also-that, really, we make Sections 9,10 and 11 all Section 9 with three subsections-l, 2 and 3-and that, in effect, we would write a little bit more into what is the present Section 9. Since we now have stated "the State Board of Education, comprised of these two other boards"-the Board of Public Education and the Board of Regents of Higher Education-and since we have already said they would be charged with the business of presenting a unified budget, which implies that they would have to give some consideration to overall policy and general administration planning, a sentence like this might be written in-this is under Section-what is now Section 9: "It shall be responsible for a long-range planning and evaluation of policies, programs and administration for the state's educational systems." And then follow up with: "It shall submit unified budget requests." And then to suggest when we get down into IO-what is now presently 10 and 11-that, in the Board of Regents section, that instead of saying "an Executive Officer and prescribe his terms and duties", a suggestion that we call this person a "Commissioner of Higher Education", and they could prescribe his duties. And then suggest, in Section 9, that this person, along with the Governor and State Superintendent, also be a member of the Board of Public Education-a nonvoting member-and also in Section 11. So that you would have some person who'd be minding the store, as we've been saying, with definite responsibility set in there. But the key idea is to add this overall policymaking idea which it-now is implicit in the so-called "State Board of Education" in Section 9.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. We're ready to consider Section 10. Will the clerk please read Section 10.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 10, Board of Public Education. There shall be a Board of Public Education, which shall exercise general supervision over the public school system and such other public educational institutions as assigned by law. Said Board shall consist of seven members, appointed by the Governor, with confirmation of the Senate, to 6-year overlapping terms. The Governor and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be ex officio nonvoting members of the Board. The duties of this Board and the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be prescribed by law." Mr. Chairman, Section 10.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 10 of the Education and Public Lands Commission Committee Proposal, that it recommend the same be adopted.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: And I'm going to be brief, sir. Very briefly, if you look at this section compared with the old section, you'll find out that we've eliminated the word "control". Now, we did this to alleviate any fears that the local boards might have. This indicates, in our mind, that the local boards should stay in control of education at the local level. And we've indicated this also by passing the section, last Friday, which gives them control over local education. We use the word only "supervise". Notice the words "such other educational institutions as assigned by law". Here our intention is that things shall remain as they are presently. Now, under statutory law, the w-tech centers are assigned to this board. It is the intent, as I've indicated before, that this remain-the intent of the committee-remain as it is-also, at the suggestion of Morris Driscoll, who is the President of the Vo-Tech Center at Butte, and other leaders of the other w-tech centers. Now-and we're also going to indicate this in the other board under Section 11 for the community colleges. Now, when we get to the duties of the Board and the State Superintendent, we had a big, long discussion, quite a bit of deliberation. And the possibilities, of course, were do we make the board-give them power over the State Superintendent? Now, we thought that that was probably ridiculous, since she was an elected official. The other alternative is, of course, do we make her, then, in complete charge of this Board appointed by the Governor and representing, directly, the people? We thought that wasn't the best thing to do either. Then we looked at the present situation and we found that, as-at present, the duties and-how do we word it?-yes-the duties of the Board and the Superintendent are prescribed by law, and so we left it the same. It has worked quite well in the past, so this is why we left it as it is. Mr. President, thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion of Section IO?

Mrs. Eck, do you want to—

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. In keeping with the recommendations that George Harper just made, I would recommend--or I will move to add, after the word "Governor", line 10, page 6, the words "Commissioner of Higher Education".

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Just a moment. Do I understand that you propose an amendment which would add the term "Commissioner of Higher Education" on line 10? So that the sentence would read: "The Governor, Commissioner of Higher Education, and State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be ex officio nonvoting members."

DELEGATE ECK: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mrs. Eck has an amendment to that effect.

Mrs. Eck.

DELEGATE ECK: Mr. Chairman. Obviously, the idea of the Commissioner of Education really belongs in the next section on Board of Regents. But our thinking was that each of these boards should have an executive officer of equal status and that if the Superintendent of Schools is to be an ex officio officer on the Board of Regents as listed-and I think that she should be-also the Commissioner of Education should be an ex officio officer on the Board of Public Education in order to provide the coordination among these groups. We also, in looking at this, can see, as George had said, that the Board of Education itself, sitting as a joint body, should do more than just take care of matters of common interest and make final decisions upon the budget-that, really, there's a lot of planning, evaluating, policymaking that probably should be done as one joint body. Now, you can say that this is implied-and I think, indeed, it is-by a budget-making duty, but on the other hand, it would be very possible to circumvent any central planning and central evaluation in policymaking. It could be that these two boards would just come together as one to-to really haggle over the budget, and I don't think that this is what any of us have in mind here. So far as the need for a Commissioner of Education rather than an Executive Officer, I think that probably, except as a semantic maneuver, it really doesn't make much difference. It's true the Executive Officer could be truly a person with as much status as the Superintendent of Public Instruction, but I think that the Commissioner of Higher Education does infer this kind of status, and I really strongly feel that this is what the University System needs-is a person at the head who really serves as an officer for the Board of Regents and to whom--and who is responsible to the Board of Regents, rather, really, than being responsible primarily to the various university presidents. I think that through a strong person in this office, we'd get the kind of coordination that the people of Montana have been asking for for a long, long time. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Would Mrs. Yeck-Eck yield to a few questions please? Sorry, Mrs. Eck. (Laughter)

DELEGATE ECK: I'd be glad to.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: It was a hard Saturday, and I haven't recovered yet. Mrs. Eck, in your Section 11 that you're going to propose-is it proposed? Do I understand it that this individual, the Commissioner of Higher Education, is going to be appointed by the Board and his duties assigned by the Board?

DELEGATE ECK: Yes, very much so.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Very good.

DELEGATE ECK: Actually, there would be-what we have in mind for Section 11 is that the name "Commissioner of Education" would replace the name of ex officio-no, administrative officer.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Thank you. I'm in support of that amendment.

DELEGATE ECK: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Aasheim.

DELEGATE AASHEIM: Mr. Chairman and delegates. I hesitate to arise and oppose my delegate from Gallatin County, but as I mentioned Saturday, we have tried chancellors, and we've had good chancellors, and they were really hired commissioners. And I think we're just building a big monstrosity here, like the pioneers of the plains. They built one building, and when the family grew, they put a lean-to, and then it had a lean-to onto a lean-to. And I think that we should not put a commissioner into the Constitution. Let's leave it to the Legislature. If they feel they need a commissioner, let them do so.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there further discussion?

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: I guess I don't see why this commissioner is necessarily a chancellor. All we're doing is giving the present Executive Director, which they have now, a little more authority--which I think he needs, because, right now, I'm not sure who he looks to-if he looks to the six presidents or if he looks to the Board of Regents. It's my understanding he's supposed to be working for the Board of Regents in doing--as is suggested in here, but I have the impression—and it's only my opinion-that he looks more to the six college presidents and does as they wish. I can't see why this would be putting in a commissioner system. I think it would just be giving the man who works for the Regents a little more authority and a little more ability to try to arrange things the way they want. I think it's a good idea.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President. Would Mrs. Eck yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck?

DELEGATE ECK: Yes, I would.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mrs. Eck, do you think there should be any-did you give any thought to the fact as to whether you should call it a "Commissioner of Higher Education", so it wouldn't be confused with the fact that this man might be over all education?

DELEGATE ECK: Yes. I-in my amendment, that's what I have. I think that when I was speaking last time, I referred to him as the "Commissioner of Education"; "the Commissioner of Higher Education" is what the amendment reads.

DELEGATE DAVIS: All right, thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Garlington.

DELEGATE GARLINGTON: Mr. Chairman. I would like to speak a moment in support of this idea. I would like to call the attention of the body to the fact that this educational burden we have in Montana is really our most important trust and our biggest business. I don't know what the total figures that we spend on education amount to, but they're something in excess of a hundred million dollars a year. And I think it is incumbent upon us to be very careful that we discharge this responsibility fully. And this brings me to the setup that we have here of these two boards. Now, I quite agree with Mr. Dahood that areas of specialization are significant today and that a group of laymen cannot absorb all the facts and the problems in either area in the course of a few meetings, and I think they really need some expert counsel and assistance in discharging their responsibility. The problem with Section 9 is that it creates this State Board of Education without any head, without any guidance and simply says that it shall meet on matters of "mutual concern", which are really very vague. We added to the responsibilities of that board the matter of budget duty, and I think this could very easily become a situation where the Board of Regents presents a budget, the Board of Public Education presents a budget, and the two are then simply combined by the super board and transmitted to the Legislature. In other words, it could well become merely a conduit for the two separate budgets. Lacking in all of this is any concept of long-range programming and policy evaluation. I think we just have to have, in a hundred-million-dollar-a-year business, some office that will belooking ahead and making the best effort it can to see that we dovetail and avoid duplication and that we look ahead and we keep up with the developments in education as they come forward. And therefore it seems to me that the idea of clearly enunciating the duty of the super board to take care of program evaluation and policy in administration is essential in order to keep us from getting in a position of rivalry between the two boards. So I hope that we will be careful to include a clear statement of responsibility for the super board. As it is now, with just having responsibility for a unified budget in there, I think we're in danger of falling into one of the mantraps that seem to prevail in the Powder River country of having "expressio unius exclusio alterius." Therefore, we had better be careful to make sure that the big board has the big responsibility. And I think this all has to be knitted together in the study of Sections 9,10 and 11. And it seems to me that we can't expect a board of amateurs to discharge this awesome responsibility without some real professional assistance. The Commissioner of Higher Education would provide the service that we need. If we don't do this, it seems to me this is very similar to imagining the Dallas Cowboys trying to operate without the services of Tom Landry. If they tried to use only the line coach and the backfield coach and the run-back coach and the trainer, they probably wouldn't function very well, and I'm afraid that's the position we're putting our lay Board of Education up against unless we give them some professional guidance. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman. I don't have any particular objection to whatever it is we want to call this person, Commissioner of Education or whatever, but it seems to me that we are confusing a couple of things here. We have delineated an Executive Officer to the Board of Higher Education in the next article, in Section 11. And it seems to me that the thing that we're doing here is that we're giving certain duties of general supervision of the two boards to a person who is appointed by the higher board. To me, this seems to be a little inconsistent, and I think that, as thecommitteeproposalwasoutlined originally, that we intended that there should be someone to have some general supervision in both areas and to act as a liaison person and that that person would be, in fact, the elected Superintendent of Public Instruction. And it just seems to me that an elected official, elected by the electorate of Montana, would be in a much more responsible and better position to act as this liaison person than one individual appointed by one of the boards to sort of be the watchdog over both the boards. And I can't really see the logic or the reason for having one person selected by the higher Board of Education to be in this position and to serve as an ex officio member on the lower board. I think, really, that the proposal that the committee originally outlined provided for this type of liaisdn and I would have to resist the motion at this point.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood, the record is going to show your presence so you may vote. Go ahead.

Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President, I have to agree with Mr. Harbaugh. It seems to me that what Mr. Garlington says about we have to have an expert to take a look at our higher educational system, to provide some guidance there, makes good sense. I don't quarrel with that, but I don't see why, in order to get that person, that we have to have two Boards of Education. I think Charley Mahoney was right the other day when he said we've got a monster. And there's probably no solution to the whole thing, because we've got six units in this huge State of Montana. They're all fighting for prestige, and when things begin to go wrong with their particular area or their particular school, all they do is send their people over here to lobby in this state Legislature for the things that they want. And they have-of course, the Legislature has the power to say "This is what you're going to get", regardless of what any particular board may say. We're stuck with that; and I don't care what we do in this Constitutional Convention, you can't stop people from fighting for these various units that are around the State of Montana. That's always going to be. Maybe we were very unwise in the beginning to set up these six units, but be given the size of the state, we decided that in the early days that we had to do it. And we've gone ahead, and now we have it. But I read this plan; I've looked at it; I've tried to be objective about it. I can't see where setting up two boards is going to do one thing for the State of Montana. If we want to set up one Board of Education, with the Governor and the Superintendent of Public Instruction on there, and then to give them direction-that one board direction that we will have a Commissioner of Higher Education in the Constitution, fine. But let's not set up two boards. All they'll do is fight. Now, let's quit kidding each other. When they get down to the nitty-gritty of the money, which is where we always separate, and these two groups over here want a bigger piece of that pie, you're-they're not going to get along and they're not going to come to agreement. So let's have one board and go ahead and put in a Commissioner or a Chancellor or whatever you want to call him, but one board is all we need in the State of Montana.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, the Chair is somewhat disturbed by the turn of events here, because we did debate that and vote on it the other day. And I didn't want to stop you, Mr. Blaylock, from not considering the amendment, but the amendment is to add the term "Commissioner of Higher Education", so let's try and stick to the subject.

Mr. Woodmansey.

DELEGATE WOODMANSEY: I feel that by adding the words "Commissioner of Higher Education", we'll come to the point where we no longer have a Superintendent of Public Instruction in the state. We'll have a superintendent for elementary and secondary schools, and I resist the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I think, as a member of the committee, I would say the amendment really doesn't make that much impact on what we are recommending. I would support it. It's in the name that you're giving to the executive officer and implying by the name, as Mr. Garlington put it, a bit more recognition for the scope of the duties in this vast educational enterprise that we have in the state. I don't want to go back and debate what we did Saturday. We did at that time, I think, find ourselves feeling the need for the Board of Regents. I don't think this is the time to debate it. We may when we hit Number 11, but I think it makes sense to have this person who is in higher education, working with the Regents and the University System, to also be represented in the policymaking function that may be outlined for the joint boards. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I would like to make a comment in regards to Mr. Woodmansey's comment. At present, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction has very little to do with higher education, only in the areas of the vo-tech and the-that is, post-secondary-at least beyond the high school-and the areas of vo-tech and some aspects of the community college program. The only area which he would get involved presently is on the State Board of Education when they wear the ex officio hats as the Board of Regents. And she has stated publicly she'd rather not be involved in higher education. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman. This reminds me of a story that-1 suppose I shouldn't tell a story, but maybe it were early in the morning, and I suppose I could take that much time. This is in the book Rawhide Rollins of which Russell wrote quite a story. And he said that this boy was born up in Vermont. He said those kids didn't get to school very early, and he said the boys got quite big, because they had to go out to work, and so they just had a short time. So when they got up to this size, they determined that they'd kind of tell the teacher what to do, and if she didn't or he didn't, they'd just run him out. He said it was pretty good, and so the kids weren't getting much schooling. And he said the parents didn't particularly like that, so they decided they'd send one fellow down to New York City to look for a teacher. They wanted to get a stranger. And he said they go down and they find a prizefighter. He's out of work, and he said, "You know it's kind of funny, come in there the first morning and," he said, "you know, his front legs hung clear down to his knees." And he said he could back out of his shirt without unbuttoning the collar. He said he called the school to order, and the very first thing, somebody said something. And he said the next thing he knew, he was pouring water on him, bringing him to. And he said-so he lined them all up and he said the girls were all up in the front of the row and the little kids and he said, "Now listen, you little kids move back"-says, "I'm putting all you big boys up in the front. Now," he said, "we're going to sing a little song-'We love our loving teacher and love his kindly rule'." Now, this is what we've got with the University System. I've been thinking this over quite strongly since Saturday, and I'm bothered about this. Maybe this is not a solution, but it's something to think about. And it is an amendment, Mr. Chairman-I'm just putting it up-that we'd have a committee of three for the Board of Education. This committee of three--one would have to be from labor. And I'd like him out from either the teamsters or the bricklayers or the cementmasons or something. I want him big, and I want him tough. Then, I want a great big guy-something like Torrey Johnson over here--out of the agricultural step; I want him big, and I want him tough. Then I want a woman doctor on that board to administer first aid. Then I want them to put these six units of the University right up in the front row and have them singing that song every Monday morning-"We love our loving teacher and love his kindly rule." This is what we've got. This is the whole trouble. Mrs. Eck, your point is good, but Chancellor Brannon couldn't handle them; Chancellor Selky couldn't handle them. I'm telling you, there's never been a chancellor able to run that six units of the University. I wish that we had only one, like Wyoming. This would be fine. Then there wouldn't be the fight. This idea of a business manager as a chancellor-Now, do we want to put this in the Constitution? I remember one old senator that sat up here, and his only job was to see there was no appropriation made that the University System could have a chancellor. Now, I tell ya-it was Old Man Garber from Sanders County. This can happen again-they'll just get out their business manager. Now, if we could go out here and get a small board on the payroll all the time, so they didn't come in here four times a year and they've been looking after their cows or they've been looking after their own business-and they're fine people, but you can't deal with this fellow that's been on the payroll 7 days a week out there, and he's getting more than the Governor. This is what's happening. I think we have to realize that if we'd come out--I, myself, if I had my way about it, we'd leave it all to the Legislature-one thing-and let the Legislature-because every 4 years, they're going to change it anyway. And, 20 years, we'll have to have a constitutional amendment to offer. I watched the University System when they had a very small board. Then everything was going to be said. Senator Herb Hate from Fergus County says if we can get the eight-men overlapping terms, everything is done. We're no better off than we've had. This is what's bothering me with this University System. We have to get somebody to whip those boys into line. Now, I listened yesterday to "60 Minutes", and I thought it was marvelous. Here's Hayakawa from San Francisco State telling how he got control of that University again. And he's got them fellows standing now on the front row singing that song every morning-"We love our loving teacher and love his kindly rule." (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney, could you supply the Chair with a copy of that whole song? I'd like to work it over. (Laughter)

Mr. Champoux. Oh, wait a minute. Let's let Mr. Wilson talk, Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen. I'm perplexed by the things that we're doing here and the problems that we're creating, and I suggest to you that if you're going to have a Board of Education, what is this board going to do? You're proposing now to set up an executive officer who'll be in charge of education. He's going to sit there and tell the board what to do, I guess. Is that what the proposal is? Now, if you're going to have a Board of Education, shouldn't they have the right to elect their Chairman? Maybe you want the Governor to elect a Chairman. Maybe this isn't bad. But if you are going to have a Board of Education, if they're going to have any leeway to operate, shouldn't they be the one that will pick their executive officer? Now, you're talking about the Superintendent of Public Instruction. She's an elected official; supposedly, she is in charge of education, period, as an executive officer. Wouldn't it be possible that this Board of Education could choose her as an executive officer to mind the store when these board members are not present? Fellow delegates, I have sat on state boards. We've picked our own Chairman. We had executive officers that was in charge of the day-to-day functions, oftheregulations that we prescribed. And I see-foresee-the problems that you're creating here for this Board of Education. In my opinion, you just as well not have this Board of Education if you don't leave them the flexibility to perform their duties. And I think this whole three sections ties together, and I think we should be thinking about this as we're considering this. I disagree that you should have the Governor and the Attorney General as members of this board. Now, the Governor can come in any time and sit down with this board and make his wishes known. The Attorney General is the legal officer, and the board can call on him at any time that they have a legal problem. But can you imagine serving on a board-the Governor has appointed you, and he's a member of the board-he sits there with you. Are you going to feel like arguing with the highest officer in the state about any of these problems? What kind of position are you, as a board member, going to be in, sitting there arguing with the Governor? You just don't do those things. Now, many times in the board that I sat on-1 sat under three different Governors-that Governor would come over and sit in with us, and certainly we listened to him. And he was aware all the time of the things that we were doing or proposing to do. I don't wish to belittle the office of Governor; I think it deserves a lot of prestige. But I can see the harm that you're doing if you have the Governor required to sit in on every board meeting. I suggest that you think about this just a little bit. I think the board should have the flexibility to elect its own executive officer, if it so chooses. Perhaps the Legislature may want to take some action on this. But let's provide, if we're going to have a board-and I support the one board conception-but if we're going to have even two boards, then let's have them free to exercise the prerogatives that they wish to do so with education. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. Chairman. First of all, I thought the discussion was on the inclusion of a Commissioner of Higher Education under Number 10. At this point, I don't-1 haven't heard of anyone suggesting that we put a education czar at the top of this whole system, and I would certainly be against that because you would have power concentrated in one individual and there's no state system in the United States left who has a single individual who governs all of education. They found out what happened in some other states when this happened. Now, in reference to Mr. Mahoney's comments, Charley is even better early on Monday morning, and few of us can say that, I'll tell you. But I have a question, Charley. You named three people. Who's the teacher? Who are they singing to? Now, if we get a Commissioner of Higher Education on the Board of Regents, they'll have one person to sing to. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President, if I may be permitted to discuss this generally as a member of the Education Committee: We're really talking, now, at this sole issue, I suppose-if we want to limit it-as to whether you want a Commissioner of Education after we get over to the next article. And that-if you do, then whether you want him as a member of this Board of Education. It would seem to me that he's a nonvoting member, for consistency in thought and consistency in action throughout youreducationalprocesses, and as big an issue as this educational thing is and as big a problem, that he certainly is in a good position and should be on there and should be interested in the total education. I would like, off the point, if you'll permit, Mr. President, to clarify a little bit that was said last Saturday on the floor by our very able and hard-working Chairman, Mr. Champoux, in his enthusiasm when he referred to some of the people as "bureaucrats". That did not represent, I don't think, the feeling of the body in the thing; and when he referred to people as "special-interest groups", particularly the School Boards Association, that also was not a comment from all of us. And I'm sure, in his enthusiasm in defending the project, that was said. However, we have invited people to appear here; I, personally, have invited people to appear and present their views. And all these things have to be able to stand constructive criticism, or we're not going to get very far with it. So I'd like the record to show that that was probably in abundance of enthusiasm, rather than attacking anyone who didn't like our plan just the way it was written, because we certainly are open to everyone's suggestion. I favor the one board; as a matter of fact, I favored none in my delegate proposal, left it all to Legislature. But I was in the minority, and I signed the majority. And it's the majority will here that we have two boards. We've voted on that Saturday, and we spent a full day discussing it. Now, when we discussed whether the Superintendent of Public Instruction should be elective or appointive, she appeared and testified at great length about the duties of her office, how challenging they were and how great they were. And we toured her office, and we toured the annexes downtown where we have many other offices. And right now, her office is one of the biggest. I don't know, if there was a challenged matched between the Highway Department and Superintendent's office, exactly who would win, but it would be close. And then, we also have all the additional federal funding that we're going to have to look forward to coming. And there are bills before the United States Congress now, and these are going to be involved and have to be administered. So I think that the Superintendent's position that she should not get involved in the higher education, other than incorrelating to it, is very well taken, very well thought out on her part, and that it is a tremendously big job—just your financing, your public and elementary education, all your special programs. Therefore she should be on the Board of Education and on the Board of Regents. Now, the Executive Secretary; we've provided for an Executive Secretary in our proposal, the majority proposal. The name won't change it. We have him already. You're going to have to have an Executive Secretary. You can't have a board under as big a project as this now. Our board-right now, our Board of Regents--one member testified before our committee, and, I hope in a nonsarcastic manner, I asked if-how many units had been visited by this particular one. I said-well, they visited-only been on 2 years-they visited two units of the University System and one w-tech. Really left me kind of cold, you know-1 mean, as big a problem as this is. It's-if there's any way that they would be freer to devote more time to higher education, I think we should make it possible. It's an area that there's a lot of difference of opinion, but we thrashed it out very thoroughly Saturday. This is the majority, the democratic process. We decided we're going to have two boards, we want to make them as workable as we can. So it seems that a Commissioner of Education is a nice name-or Higher Education. I think one other point we should have clarified is the amount of time the two boards spend. A lot of discussion was given to that, and I think we should have that cleared up as we go along. It was discussed that they didn't spend much time on lower education. And what's the reason for that? Well, it's very, very simple. We've got local school boards that handle that. There's local school boards run the high schools and the grade schools. There's nothing for the Board of Education to do with grade schools, high schools, and elementary except approve of the curriculum and that sort of thing. Except one other thing-we have that great, expanding vo-tech program. It's our thought that should stay with the Board of Education. And as that program expands, it may justify this second board by itself. It's a great program, it's an expanding program, and I would be hopeful that we get a board and take some of the weight off Mr. Driscoll's shoulders and help he and the other people with this program, who battled it in this educational field pretty much by themselves to get it through. So I think your second board, your Board of Education and your Board of Regents, is just as workable as any plan anyone else has here. No one has come up with a better plan, and the majority has approved this plan. So I would be hopeful that we can proceed along the line. I'm kind of partial to Mr. Harper's thing as making it one article and making it three subsections, which would tie it all together, maybe, a little bit clearer. So I would support the Commissioner of Higher Education being on the Board of Education, as a nonvoting member, so they would keep all these things together. I think the Governor should be on this board. The Governor testified before our committee. He said he didn't know too much about what was going on in education, and he thought he should. And I think he should be on thatboard. That doesn't mean he has to attend all the time, as a nonvoting member, but it means that he can sit in on those meetings and keep abreast of that for his budget message and the total program for the State of Montana. So I'm hopeful that we can proceed with this the way it is. I don't think you're going to come up with better--anything better. You could discuss the problems, as we did for a month in the committee. We don't have a solution. If this will implement getting this educational thing off the ground, where it will be more flexible and where it will open the door for a total program for the educational process of the State of Montana, I think it would be a good thing. I don't think we can do more. I think Mr. Garlington said the doctrine-the--well, we call it the "Powder River Latin Doctrine"-is one you want to be concerned with. I was concerned over the weekend even about putting a unified budget in that article Saturday, because it might be easily construed to be—that that's all they were intended for, and I sure don't think it is. I'm wondering, if we put in some other language, if that will then be a limiting thing. I'm wondering if those things should not be left to the Legislature as to the functions of the two boards, to keep it flexible as we go along. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The journal may show Mr. Drum's presence.

Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: I'm wondering if Mr. Davis would yield to a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Yes, sir, Mr. Martin. I yield.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Section 11, you provide for an executive officer of the Board of Regents. In Section 10, you don't. Had you-did the committee consider designating the Superintendent of Public Instruction as the executive officer of the board?

DELEGATE DAVIS: I'm just taking a look, Mr. Martin. I'm sure that it was the consensus of the committee-at least, it would be my thinking-that she is the chief elected official in the-that area and that she would serve in that capacity unless, for some reason-it was flexible— if they didn't want her to do that.

DELEGATE MARTIN: In-if I may just go on-Mr. President, if I may just ask another question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin?

DELEGATE MARTIN: In the Executive Committee, we suggested that perhaps she might serve as executive board member-executive officer of the board, and she declined and set forth. some objections to it. I'mjustwondering, wouldn't that be a good idea?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Well, Mr. Martin, I personally think it probably would be, but if there are some reservations on her part, it's left in the way the article is written, it's left flexible. It says "as provided by law". If the Legislature made her Executive Officer, then she would be. If it didn't work out, then they could leave the Board the authority to elect their own Executive Officer. In other words-without going through a constitutional process again-in other words, it says "provided by law"; and the Legislature could put her in, and if it didn't work, they could take her back out again.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Would Mrs. Eck yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck?

DELEGATE ECK: Yes, I would.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: I think there's been a lot of confusion here as to just what we're talking about, and I'd like to ask you what would the authority and the responsibility of this Commissioner of Higher Education be in the area of the elementary and secondary education?

DELEGATE ECK: I don't see his having any responsibilities here, but I do think that it's very important, if you're going to have a coordinated program, that he would sit in on their meetings and would be aware of what they were doing. Just as I don't really see the Superintendent of Public Instruction's taking any responsible role with the Board of Higher Education-with the Board of Regents. In other words, I see each of these persons sitting on the boards of the other primarily as liaison persons, to coordinate and interpret, also, the program of the other board.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman, I think this helps to clarify the thing we're talking about. We're not talking here about someone to oversee the total educational program of the state when we're talking about this commissioner, and I think that needs to be clarified. Really, I think there's no objection to having an executive officer for higher education. We've mentioned this in our article in Section 11, and as long as this is clear, I think we can get on with this subject.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. President. I wondered if Mrs. Eck would yield to a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Eck?

DELEGATE ECK: Yes, I would.

DELEGATE BATES: Dorothy, I noticed you placed this executive--or this Commissioner of Education between the Governor and the Superintendent of Schools. Would you anticipate this would be an elective office, then, or an appointive office?

DELEGATE ECK: Oh, no. It states down in Number 11 that, in taking the place of the Executive officer, that it's appointed by the Board of Regents. You know, you put her in there-you put him in in that place, because then you don't have to add any "ands" or "commas".

DELEGATE BATES: Well, then, would you yield to another question?

DELEGATE ECK: Yes.

DELEGATE BATES: Then you—the executive officer mentioned in Section 11 would be the same person as you were anticipating here?

DELEGATE ECK: Actually, all we're doing here is changing the name from Executive Officer to a Commissioner of Higher Education, but we're also thinking of him in-as having a greater status here, and for that reason, we would like to see him serve as an ex officio memberofthe other board.

DELEGATE BATES: Thank you. Mr. Chairman, I feel, then, this should be clarified if we-in this article if we continue--or if we vote to retain this Commissioner of Education, because in the next article-or next section, it specifies an appointment, and I'm just wondering just how it would be handled. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Mr. Chairman. Would Mr. Champoux yield?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I yield.

DELEGATE JAMES: Now, I think, Rick, I'm a little bit concerned about this Commissioner of Education—

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Higher Education.

DELEGATE JAMES: -of Higher Education. In your estimation, if you agree with this, would he be coequal with the State-the elected State Superintendent, or a subordinate, or what would the relationship be?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: You have two questions there, as I see it. Number one, certainly he wouldn't be coequal, because she's an elected official. In terms of subordination, no, since he would be on a different board than she would. And the only way he would get himself involved in this other board, which would be ex officio, nonvoting, would be strictly as an advisory capacity. If something came up, as he was sitting there, that they want to know about higher education, he would be able to tell them. That's all it's about.

DELEGATE JAMES: Thank you, Mr. Champoux.

Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. James.

DELEGATE JAMES: Would Mr. Champoux yield again?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I will yield.

DELEGATE JAMES: There's another thing that bothered me here, this body corporate. There seems to be a problem here about the various units of the University System all coming together with their hand out. And do you feel that this body corporate would have authority to unify the University System so that we wouldn't have this problem? Is this implicit in your majority proposal?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: There are three questions involved here. First of all, I'll make the statement-I don't think the discussion of the body corporate at this point is relevant, because we're going to be going into great detail, I imagine, when we get to Number 11. Number two, I am not a very effective lecturer, because I run down at the end of the hour, and that was quite a point of emphasis last Saturday in my talk. And that's one of the things I hope to come about--we hope to come about-that is to say, some authority to bring all that higher education together, to stop the proliferation of courses, to stop the duplication of programs, and so forth. That's our intent; yes, sir.

DELEGATE JAMES: Thank you, Mr. Champoux. I would say, then, that this majority proposal does have the flexibility that's needed, and I would urge its adoption. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Now, the issue is on the--adding the words "Commissioner of Higher Education" on line 10 in Section 10.

Mr. Scanlin.

DELEGATE SCANLIN: Mr. Chairman. I'm somewhat perplexed by the lack of anybody available, in these proposals, who would assume the responsibility for the big picture. It has always been my understanding that the Superintendent of Public Instruction was elected by the people to represent them in the responsibility of getting the total picture of what our educational problem is here in the State of Montana. And the testimony of both Mr. Davis and Mr. Champoux indicates that the present Superintendent of Public Instruction has other, more important business than assuming any responsibility for the University System. Now, it seems to me, Mr. Chairman, that there exists in our state, at the present moment, a tremendous cloud hanging over our educational system. This is due, in my opinion, first, to the ascendancy of professionalism on the lower level and, secondly, on the dominance of the University System, aimed primarily on self-perpetuation and self-aggrandizement. I contend, with Charley Mahoney, that it will be impossible for us to resolve this problem here and now. Time and legislative action alone will be able to handle it. Our aim should be to make it possible for the future to face its responsibilities. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman. I had not intended to discuss this, because I am definitely a layman in the field of education. However, I've developed some ideas about the matter after listening to the debate and reading and a little study. I understand the proposition advanced by Delegate Eck for a Commissioner of Higher Education which will, undoubtedly, appear later in Section 11 and is merely incorporated in Section 10 to make up a liaison. I think that, perhaps, that is a good idea for the Board of Regents. It takes the place, as I understand it, of the present Executive Officer. In the-for the board-for the secondary and elementary area, we already have the Superintendent of Schools, an elective officer. And someday, according to the information produced here and which we heard in the Legislature when we enacted the statutes pertaining to the vo-tech, there will probably need to be a similar officer to handle vo-tech. Any and all of those now could be under the present Board of Education; the Superintendent is, the Executive Officer of the University is. They are already functioning. As I examine these Sections 9, 10 and 11, of which the Commissioner of Higher Education would be in two of them and, by indirection, in the Section 9, it seems to me that about all we have is we've taken Section 11 of the contemporary Constitution and divided it up into three parts—parcels, and into one of them we have incorporated a body corporate, and we are in process of performing an operation on the body corporate which would provide for the budgeting and for the auditing which we already have under Section 11 in the contemporary Constitution. So, I am drifting swiftly into a current which is carrying me back to Section 11 of the current, contemporary Constitution. Mr. Chairman, change merely for the sake of change is no good. Section 11 of the present Constitution provides everything that we have or need, and the Legislature would, through it, be empowered to put on the fringes and add the embellishments and take care of the necessities that will accrue in the future. I think that I am going to support a single body, and I hope that someone will provide a substitute to place Section 11 into the running. If someone else doesn't do it, I may do it myself.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Now, the Chair wishes to announce that I hope we're not going to have to redebate everything we went over last Saturday. And I have seven amendments to Section 11 before me, and I want to finish the Education Article, and I'm sure all of you do. And so, from now on, I'm going to ride herd rather tightly on you, and I expect you to talk to the subject of whether or not you want the words "Commissioner of Higher Education" put in on line 10. If you want to talk about that, I'm ready to listen.

Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I'd like to suggest that the addition of the Commissioner of Higher Education might be much more important than we think. Remember the opening talk of Delegate Champoux—when there was some talk about the present Board of Regents and that estimation that maybe they spent 80 percent of their time actually on the University System-or maybe it was 90 or someplace in that area? What I'm suggesting is that by making them separate, we're really not putting so much more power there, because that's what they are anyway. And so, the adding of the Commissioner with-1 would say, with much more strength than you're talking about, Delegate Eck, is really the only thing that we're doing to strengthen the higher education system. When it really comes down to it, it's not too much different without this commissioner. And that's why I think it's extremely important.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mrs. Eck's amendment, which has the effect of placing on line 10, after the word "Governor", the phrase "Commissioner of Higher Education", so that the sentence reads: "The Governor, Commissioner of Higher Education and State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be ex officio members—ex officio nonvoting members." I understand we want a roll call vote. All in favor of Mrs. Eck's amendment, vote Aye; opposed, No-on the voting machines. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 53 delegates voting Aye, 32 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 53 delegates having voted Aye, Mrs. Eck's amendment prevails and the term "Commissioner of Higher Education" shall be put in line 10. Is there other discussion of Section 10? Very well. Members of the committee, you have before you for your consideration, on the recommendation of Mr. Champoux that when this committee does arise and report after having had under consideration Section 10 of the Educational Article, that the same be recommended for adoption. All in favor, say Aye. Do you want a roll call vote?

DELEGATES: Yes.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 62 delegates voting Aye, 20 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 62 having voted Aye and 20 No, Section 10 is adopted as amended. Will the clerk please read Section 11.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 11, Board of Regents of Higher Education. There shall be a Board of Regents of Higher Education, a body corporate, which shall govern and control the academic, financial, and administrative affairs of the Montana University System and shall have-and shall supervise and coordinate other public educational institutions which may be assigned by law. Said Board shall constitute of seven members, appointed by the Governor to 6-year overlapping terms, subject to confirmation by the Senate, under regulations provided by law. The Board shall appoint its Executive Officer and prescribe his term and duties. The Governor and Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be ex officio nonvoting members of this board." Mr. Chairman, Section 11.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. Chairman. I move that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 11 of the Education and Public Lands Committee Proposal, that it recommend the same be adopted. I went into a long, long discussion of this last Saturday, and I don't intend to repeat it at this point. The only thing I want to notice here is that the section which says "shall supervise and coordinate other public educational institutions as assigned"-this is to-the intention here of the committee is to have the public community colleges under this Board of Higher Regents, as they are presently, by statute. As a matter of fact, that phrase is directly from the statute that now assigns them to the Board of Regents of Higher Education, and it was their wish and desire. It also provides flexibility, however, for movement in the future. Later on-I'm not sure if Mr. Heliker is ready to work into it at this point, but he was going to discuss something about the body corporate. Not now?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: He's next.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Okay. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

Mr. Heliker, you have an amendment. Do you want it read?

DELEGATE HELIKER: (Inaudible)

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 11, page 6, of the Education and Public Lands Committee Proposal by adding, at the end thereof, a second paragraph to read: 'The Legislature shall be given an annual accounting of all income and expenditures by each unit of the University System'." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker has an amendment which would add, as a section-a separate section of Section 11—separate sentence, at least-the idea that there would be an annual accounting of all income and expenditures by each unit of the University System.

Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: As I said on Saturday, Mr. Chairman, the purpose of this amendment is simply to lay to rest any fears there may be, as expressed, for example, by Delegate Aasheim, that the University units would not be required, under the majority proposal, to render an accounting to the Legislature of their expenditures. This-the purpose of this is to insure that that-although I think it was clearly implied in the majority proposal-but-to-nailed it down and made it certain. Now, may I ask Mr. Champoux a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux, will you yield?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE HELIKER: I was tuned out when you were saying something about "body corporate".

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Well, I thought you were going to discuss something in terms of the fears of this concept of the body corporate, one of them being that the Legislature would not have control, and you were going to indicate that this certainly is an area of control.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes. Mr. Chairman, if I may comment further. The crux of the matter here, as I see it, is whether we're going to give the Board of Regents the power to manage the University System effectively. In order, it seems to me, for them to have effective managerial power, they are going to have to have the kind of power that is established by Section 11 as proposed by the majority, which is to say, the power to govern and control the academic, financial and administrative affairs of the University System. That, right there, is the core of the matter. And if we substitute other language that their powers shall be established by the Legislature or provided by law or something of that sort, then what we are doing is cutting the guts out of this proposal. Because the proposal is to give an autonomy to the Board so that they can manage effectively as the managing authority of the University System. Without that authority, then, they're-we're back in the old rut. That's all I have to say now, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue is on Mr. Heliker's amendment.

Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: Will Mr. Heliker yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I yield.

DELEGATE BERG: Is your amendment limited to the six University units-six units of the University System? Does it include, for example, community colleges?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I can't hear you.

DELEGATE BERG: Does it include community colleges as well as units of the University System?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Champoux says "Yes". Perhaps he should answer the question. I'm not acquainted with the situation of the community colleges, but it says "each unit", so I would suppose it would cover them. That would be my intention.

DELEGATE BERG: Will Mr. Champoux, then-will yield?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I will yield.

DELEGATE BERG: Does-is a community college one of the units of the University System today?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: In answer to that question, no.

DELEGATE BERG: Then, is it covered by the accounting system as proposed in Mr. Heliker's budget?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: It would be the intent of that amendment to bring these under the control. They would be within the area of control by the amendment. And that's our intent.

DELEGATE BERG: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: If I understand the language of this amendment, it is restricted to the units of the University System, and I suggest to you that there is no clear definition that community colleges are a part of the units of the University System. I would recommend that this amendment be amended so as to include other educational institutions.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. I think the point is well taken, and I would therefore propose such an amendment to-or a change in my amendment to read "by each unit"—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker. How about "each unit of the University System and other state-supported educations-higher educational institutions"? Is that what you're trying to say?

DELEGATE HELIKER: "--under the Board of Regents."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: "-and other state institutions administered by the Board of Regents?"

DELEGATE HELIKER: That sounds all right to me.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Mr. Heliker would like to amend his amendment so that it says, "an annual accounting of all income and expenditures by each unit of the University System and other state institutions administered by the Board of Regents." I think we can find out on voice vote if we allow-if we'll allow him to amend his thing. All those in favor of amending this--allowing Mr. Heliker to amend in this manner--say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay, that amendment is allowed, and now the Heliker amendment includes the last clause including the other state institutions.

Now, Mr. Driscoll.

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: Mr. Chairman. Can I ask a question of Mr. Champoux, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I yield.

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: Mr. Champoux. In your language on lines 18-19, I do not think that they will prevent the w-tech centers, at some time in the future, coming under the Board of Regents.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Is—and—what is your question, sir?

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: At some time in the future, the w-tech centers may want to come under the Board of Regents. I don't think they're precluded from doing this by your language.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: No sir, they aren't, by the language.

DELEGATE DRISCOLL: Thank you.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: You bet.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. President. The amendment that Mr. Heliker gave and which you read several times very rapidly has not been written down, and I would—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'll read it again.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: I'd appreciate it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: In other words, you don't have the whole amendment, is that it? Okay. "The Legislature shall be given"-well, we're going to add it at the end of Section 11, either as a separate paragraph-or it doesn't matter. Anyway, we're going to add it to Section 11. "The Legislature shall be given an annual accounting of all income and expenditures by each unit of the University System, and other state institutions, administered by the Board of Regents." I'm not sure we need the comma after "University Systems". "The Legislature shall be given an annual accounting of all income and expenditures by each unit of the University System and other state institutions, administered by the Board of Regents." Do you have that, Mr. Habedank? Very well.

Mr. Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN: Mr. Chairman. I agree with Mr. Garlington; the more detail we start putting into these articles, the more we, by implication, are going to exclude. We have a legislative audit in our Constitution now, and he will certainly demand and receive all this information. I think this is unnecessary. If you'll look ahead to Mr. Rygg's provisions-if you want this in the Constitution, he's provided for it in much more simple language, and very flexible; so that I'd speak in opposition to this amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President. I rise in opposition to the amendment. It does absolutely nothing more than to make a report to the Legislature or whatever other accounting department of state government that you make the report to. If you read carefully this section-if you'll read this Montana-this last edition of the Montana Law Review, if you read some reports by the University of Missoula, it will show you they can make all the reports they want to to the state departments of government, but there is not one thing in there that says that they must abide by any one of them. You've got examples in Utah and other places where these reports have been made, where the authenticity of the report has been questioned, that it has gone into court and the courts have ruled that the Board of Regents had the full authority, that the-any other department of government couldn't question whether the accounts should be paid or not. They had to pay it, and they had no authority to question it. So a report of this kind is valueless except to show where the money went. You can't question whether it's valid or not valid, and no part-no division of government, under this particular section, would have that authority.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard. The Chair would merely observe that it says "an annual accounting". An accounting is an after-the-fact report.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President. (Inaudible) an annual accounting, and that's quite desirable, in a way, except that it accomplishes nothing because there's no authority on the people to whom the accounting is made to say whether it was authentic or not.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Romney.

DELEGATE ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman. I have all of the time been insistent upon a audit, and I don't think this gives it to us. This gives us an audit by the institution. That's me auditing myself. It won't work. Delegate Brown points out that the Legislative Audit would do it. I don't know. Up here in line 17, we're talking about "which shall govern and control the academic, financial and administrative". "Financial" is going to govern it. I'm not so sure that the Legislative Audit can get its work done there. I don't think this amendment of Delegate Heliker does the job.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman. I'd like to say, first of all, that no one has asked me to speak on this, and I'd like to describe something to you that I know fairly intimately. My husband is Chairman of the Philosophy Department at the University of Montana, and I think you would agree with me that he's a quitely—or a highly paid person for the State of Montana. Perhaps I shouldn't say this, but he has been offered four chairmanships of other departments in the rest of the country. All four of them were more than what he is being paid now, and he has turned them down. Now, I consider, and I think a number of people who-in this room who have had children who have-of theirs who have worked with him—he's very competent at what he does, but at the same time, within his daily work, he has an enormous amount of paperwork to face. He has told me that every year it gets worse. Now, this is not talking about the point of view of the top of the University itself, but what happens to someone who is a professor in the system. With this increase in paperwork, it means that this is what he does more and more. The very requisitioning of a typewriter in his department becomes something that has consumed hours of his time. And the real question I want to ask is-this has to do with autonomy and also how funds of the University are spent-but do you really want him-does the State of Montana want him to do-to work at something he does very well? Or do they want him to spend this sizable amount of time, which increases with every year, requisitioning paper clips, typewriters, paper, and so forth, which is increasing? I would like to read from the Eisen-hower Report-Mr. Champoux spoke about it the other day-but it expresses, better than I can, part of the problem which I think we should think about at this point. "For the greater part of the century, the relations between public institutions of higher education and state government have been marked by increasing anxiety. This tension has been more visibly and deeply felt by educators than by state officials. The point of departure for this development cannot, of course, be precisely fixed"-by the way, this was written in 1957, I think,-this Eisenhower Report that I'm reading from-but, generally speaking, it may be said to commence with the movement, beginning around 1917, to regroup state administrative units into a more centralized orbit and to bring them under tighter executive control." This won't take me very long. "The state budget office, beyond question, is now in a position to wield more actual or potential influence over higher education than any other state administrative agency. With the develop ment of the executive budget, in state after state, the budget office has moved forward to a point where its recommendations can have a decisive effect on the judgments reached by both the Governor and the Legislature on appropriations for higher education. Other central control agencies that have brought closer supervision over the operations of state colleges and universities are state auditors, controllers, purchasing departments, personnel offices and central building agencies," Mr. Champoux talked about this with the motor pool kind of thing. "Potentially, at least, the entrance of these new controls represents a grave threat to the tradition of free colleges or universities in America, for in their zeal to apply controls over higher education in the name of economy and tidy administration, some state officials have forgotten the compelling reasons that led to the grant of legal autonomy to institutions of higher education. With the steady advance of state controls, the legal independence of higher education in many of the states now stands in serious danger of erosion. The educator understands the rationale between-behind the steady increase in executive as well as legislative agencies of centralized oversight. He recognizes that the centralized controls have been prompted by the obviously sound purposes of economy and efficiency and that they have come about in response to urgent public demand and need. He despairs, however, of what he believes is the tendency of state officials to look at university life solely from the vantage point of fiscal procedures. Education is intricate in design and ancient in lineage. It cannot be viewed merely in terms of unit costs, rigid personnel requirements, and audit exemptions. Moreover, the tendency of all topside controls is to squeeze the sovereignty of the college in the conduct of its vital responsibilities in teaching research and the selection of distinguished personnel, as well as the procurement of intricate laboratory equipment. The educator pleads that central controls should not be imposed over any college in such a way as to jeopardize the performance of its essential functions. In short, educators agree that the Legislature and and Governor, acting through the Budget Office, have clear authority to decide the initial questions of what portion of a state's economic resources should be committed to higher education. This decision is immovably a political one, and, under a democratic system, it must be made by elected representatives in response to the public will. But the second phase of fiscal control, the expenditure and internal allocation of state funds once they have been appropriated, is another matter. Here, educators are convinced that once the Legislature has spoken, fiscal control thereafter should be the responsibility of the college or university itself. It is this principle of fiscal responsibility-if this principle of fiscal responsibility is accepted, then college officials believe that the schools will not be impaled on controls that not only frustrate day-to-day operation, but on occasion, threaten to decline in standards and quality at the institution itself." Thank you very much. Did I say in the beginning no one asked me to read this? This is on my own. Thank you very much.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. Mrs. Bugbee's comments are all well and good but are not directly pertinent to the problem before us right now. Now, as I said, what I wanted to get at was an absolute guarantee that the institutions under the Board of Regents would be subject to the Legislative Audit. Apparently, the language that1 offered was not sufficient to that purpose. It came from the Michigan Constitution, and I took it from the Michigan Constitution because Michigan has the kind of autonomy for the Board of Regents that we are seeking here in the majority proposal. If I may, I'd like to withdraw my amendment and substitute other language which will, I think, be clearer and get to the point that I want to get to.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, Mr. Heliker, tell me what you want to do. You want to withdraw your entire amendment?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right.

DELEGATE HELIKER: And to substitute for it, the following language.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Can you tell me where you're getting the following language?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes, the following language comes from the last sentence of the substitute amendment that you have before you, signed by Mr. Rollins.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, you can certainly do that. Mr. Rollins hadn't had it printed, and I just sent it out to printing. And I really don't want to-we'll do it, but I guess we'll wait for printing. Well, you can go ahead.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Well, it's a short sentence and very clear, I think. "The funds and appropriations under the control of the Regents shall be subject to the same Legislative Audit provisions as any other funds of the state."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. I've allowed you to withdraw your other one, and I'll allow you to make this amendment, but I will caution the group that Mr. Rollins has a Section 11 proposal of which that's only part. It is more-has a lot of other material in it. And I'm having it printed, and we'll get it up here as fast as we can. Yeah, I've got it; but it's just a matter of everybody else doesn't have it, Rick. I'll read it again in a minute. The amendment that Mr. Heliker now wants in place of his is: "The funds and appropriations under which"-No-"The funds and appropriations under the control of the Regents shall be subject to the same Legislative Audit provisions as all other funds of the state." Now, in about 5 minutes, everybody will have that on his desk, because it's now in printing.

Go ahead, Mr. Heliker. Do you want to speak to your amendment?

DELEGATE HELIKER: No, Mr. Chairman, except to say I hope it now satisfies everyone that the funds administered by the Board of Regents will be, indeed, subject to a legislative audit as all other agencies' funds are.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President. Will Mr. Heliker yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker, will you yield?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: George, what does this add that isn't already in effect?

DELEGATE HELIKER: I'm not sure it adds anything. I have pointed out that we have adopted a Legislative Audit. It is my understanding that that would apply to the Board of Regents; however, there has been some fear expressed that it wouldn't. I-my object here is to nail this down 100 percent certain that it would.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Dahood.

DELEGATE DAHOOD: Mr. Chairman. I think what concerns some of us is the fact that Section 11 is providing for a body corporate, and, of course, that has certain legalramifications that are rather important in determining whether or not we should vote for Section 11 precisely as it appears before this body at this time. I should think that the majority of the delegates certainly support the principle of academic freedom, but on the other hand, we want that academic freedom to be compatible with the demands of a contemporary society. And as a consequence, it would be, I should think, the judgment of a good number of the delegates that we want the Board of Regents of Higher Education, if it becomes a body corporate, to still be responsible to the people of this state. And I'm opposed to the amendment that's presently before this body for the reason that I think we have before us a-an amendment proposed by Delegate Rygg that provides that the powers and duties over financial and administrative affairs shall be prescribed and regulated by law, which I think is the type of balance that must be included in any type of provision if we're to have the type of public control that I think must be in any provision that we pass. And for that reason, I'm opposed to the amendment that's before this body.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair would like to announce that as soon as the printing is finished, we'll get Mr. Rollins' amendment out and we'll get-we'll ask the others whether they want theirs out. And if they-we'll get them all out here, and then we'll discuss them all at once.

Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: If I may react to the comments of Mr. Dahood?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You may.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: One of the problems there, Wade, is that it doesn't get at this business of internal control by the universities, as I see it. Now, if you'll look at-we're not discussing Mr. Rygg's, of course-but if you notice what he has in here, "prescribed and regulated by law", it's going to get back to the same situation as you have in the present Constitution where, under 11, it says "The general control and supervision of the State University is vested in this board." Yet, in the very next sentence, Wade, its says, "whose powers and duties shall be prescribed and regulated by law." See-this, then, gets the state government again and bureaucratic-or I won't use that word anymore-governmental bureaus involved, possibly, in things like hiring and firing of faculty, determination of, you know, what kind of pianos you're going to buy, whereas specialists say something else. This is the problem.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, now, the Chair would like to inquire of Mr. Rollins if you want your amendment passed out. Yes or No?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Yes, I would appreciate it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. We'll pass yours out.

Mr. Toole, do you want yours passed out?

DELEGATE TOOLE: I would prefer to have mine wait, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, we'll hold yours.

Mr. Barnard, do you want yours passed out?

DELEGATE BARNARD: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Pass out Rollins' and Barnard's.

Mr. Martin, do you want yours passed out?

DELEGATE MARTIN: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, Mr. Martin's passed out. I understand you have Mr. Rygg's before you.

Mr. Harper, I haven't printed yours yet. Do you want it printed?

DELEGATE HARPER: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay. Very well. We'll pass out Rollins', Barnard's, and Martin's. And you have Mr. Rygg's before you, and Mr. Toole is not passing his out. Let's just wait a minute till the passing out is done here. Mr. Heliker, the Chair would like to inquire whether you want to keep your last sentence of Mr. Rollins' separate. In other words, you want that as a separate proposal, is that right? Yes?

DELEGATE HELIKER: Yes. Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes. Okay. Will the committee please be in order.

Mr. Barnard, for what purpose do you rise?

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President, a point of information. 1 have one proposed substitute in for Number 11, but I also have a very short amendment which I might like to submit prior to that time. Would that be permissible?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, is it an amendment to your amendment? Or is it—

DELEGATE BARNARD: No, it would be an amendment to Section 11.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, let me show you how I think we're going to get at this, and then we'll see-you can see. I-you'll certainly have a chance sometime to put it in, especially if Section 11 survives. Now, if I may have your attention, you have before you an amendment by Mr. Heliker, and in keeping with the rule of only three layers, we're going to have to work around this a little here. Mr. Heliker's amendment-if you want to make notes-is the present Section 11 plus one sentence concerning fiscal responsibility—being-concerning the fact that the funds would be subject to a legislative audit, plus one sentence on the legislative audit, which happens to be the last sentence of Mr. Rollins' proposal. All right, now, Mr. Rollins has a proposal, which I presume he'll make in a moment, which has the effect of removing "the body corporate"-isn't that correct, Mr. Rollins?-from the language of Section 11 and otherwise provides for the Board of Regents with this legislative audit on the bottom. In other words, it's no "body corporate", plus a legislative audit. Then, Mr. Barnard has a proposal which also deletes the legislative audit-also deletes "the body corporate", but places the Regents in a position of operating the University System as a public trust in a manner consistent with the general laws and includes limitations on the legislative authority to change this system. Now, those three would fill up the docket. But, then, Mr. Rygg has one which has the effect of being Section 11 with a sentence that says, "Powers and duties over fiscal and administrative affairs shall be prescribed and regulated by law." In other words, it would place the fiscal control of the Board of Regents back in the Legislature. Those four proposals are before us, and possibly some minor amendments that might come up. At this time, I would-we already have Mr. Heliker's amendment, Section 11 plus the last sentence of Rollins'.

Mr. Rollins, I would entertain a motion to amend that by adding your Section 11. And after you've spoken, I would entertain a motion from you, Mr. Barnard, to put a substitute motion. And that would get your three before us, and then we can get Mr. Rygg's before us if we ever get there.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: At the time you were speaking about me, someone else came to speak with-to me. Would you say that again, please? The—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins, is there any question which one you're going to listen to now? I'm just kidding you. Mr. Rollins, would you like to move your Section 11 as an amendment to Mr. Heliker's motion?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Yes, Mr. President. I move that my amendment be read as an amendment to Mr. Heliker's.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Will the clerk please read Mr. Rollins' amendment.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend the Heliker amendment by adding the following language before his sentence. Section 11: 'The government and control of Montana's University System shall be vested in a Board of Regents, who shall be selected as provided herein. The Regents shall have full power, responsibility and authority to supervise management and control of the Montana University System and shall supervise and coordinate other public educational institutions which may be assigned by law. Said Board shall consist of seven members, appointed by the Governor to overlapping terms, subject to confirmation by the Senate, under regulations provided by law. The Board shall appoint its Executive Officer and describe his term and duties. The Governor and the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be ex officio nonvoting members of this Board. The Regents shall present a unified budget request to the Legislative Assembly. Signed: Rollins."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And then, Mr. Rollins' does, of course, incorporate the rest of that sentence there, because it's an amendment to Mr. Heliker's. So, it does have "The funds and appropriations under control of the Regents shall be subject to the same Legislative Audit provisions as other funds of the state." Is that correct, Mr. Rollins?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Yes, Mr. President. I'd like to speak to that a moment please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: In proposing this amendment, I'm trying to achieve certain things and to avoid certain types of objections. I'm trying to achieve a Board of Regents that has the essential powers to carry on the work of the University System and such other educational institutions as might be assigned by law to that Board of Regents. And in my opinion, the major duty of the-of higher education is education. And the only reasons why there should be administrative controls would be to make it so that it can carry out its primary task, with the additional need for accountability to the people who support it. So, I think that this amendment indicates a Board of Regents with the power to make the necessary decisions to conduct higher education. I am willing to sacrifice the idea of body corporate. Like the feller said, "I didn't understand it too well anyway," and apparently many others don't. And it's a bone of contention, and I think it's an old, dry, dead bone-maybe not worth chewing on for a considerable length of time. There are those who've expressed fears that there would be not— not be fiscal responsibility. Under this, I don't see how it could be escaped in any way, because the appropriations are made by the Legislature. And the University System--or the system of higher education would be subjected to the Legislative Audit. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Barnard, may the clerk read your amendment?

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President, first I would like to ask Mr. Rollins a question, if I might, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins, will you yield?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Was your intention in the last wording of your-It says "legislative audit provisions as all other funds of the state". I have a question I want to ask you. Presuming that we have a legislative audit of the University System and they find something is wrong; is your intention, then, that they would have authority to straighten that out, that the Legislative Audit Committee would?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Surely; I would say so.

DELEGATE BARNARD: And it's your intention that they would have that authority in this statement you've made here?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Well, Mr. Barnard, I can't say exactly what powers the Legislative Audit does have. I assume that if the Legislative Audit finds something, that there are-there's a mechanism to set things right. The University System would be subject to the same kind of action as would any other funds that the state supervises.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: May I ask another question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes.

DELEGATE BARNARD: My problem is, here, I'm a little bit worried about this thing, because there have been so many court decisions in other states on this very same subject where, even after an audit, the party--or the group conducting the audit or no other state agency had any authority to correct it, excepting the Board of Regents. That's my question, and that's the thing I don't want to see. I want to see somebody have some authority besides the Board of Regents. That's why I asked the question.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: It certainly wouldn't be my intention with this that the Board of Regents would defy the Legislative Audit in any way. I assume the Legislative Audit makes a report to the Legislature and is subject to any action that mechanics demand.

DELEGATE BARNARD: That's all, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Now, Mr. Barnard, do you care-do you want to put your amendment?

DELEGATE BARNARD: That is the amendment to the Section 11?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Yes, I could put my proposed amendment to Section 11. I have two copies I've just handwritten. Do you want one of them up there or-

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No. What I'm interested in-you handed up, a long time ago, a full Section 11 amendment which I had printed and spread. Do you want to make that amendment or don't you?

DELEGATE BARNARD: Well, I didn't want to make it at this particular time, but I will if—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No, now—I'm not trying to urge you to. I just want to know what you want to do.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Oh, I'd rather let it go for a little while.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, we'll let it go.

Mr. Rygg, that leaves a slot open for yours. Would you like to make yours?

DELEGATE RYGG: No, I'd just as soon—I'm content with Rollins'. Ifthatone goes through, why, that's fine. Otherwise, I'd want mine, but I'm willing to vote on this one.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. This is a hard bunch to manage. (Laughter) May I merely point out to the body that you have these others before you; and I'm perfectly willing that we debate the whole thing at once, because I don't see how we can debate it except all at once. And at the moment, then, we have Mr. Heliker's motion, which is Section 11 with "the body corporate" and the sentence on the bottom about the legislative audit. And we have Mr. Rollins' amendment, which is Section 11, somewhat modified, without "the body corporate" and with the language on the bottom. Which, I think, puts us in the position of debating "the body corporate".

Now, Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I think Mr. Rollins' amendment kind of takes in pretty much all of it. "Body corporate" is kind of like "public trust" around here, and I'm really afraid if we bring that up, Mr. Brazier is going to get up and talk again. (Laughter) And I like Jeff and-So, I would accede to Mr. Rollins' amendment, and I think it takes in everything. I would support it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman, I'll withdraw my amendment. I'll support Mr. Rollins' substitute.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, Heliker's second one is withdrawn. Okay.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Do I still have the floor, Mr. Chairman?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You may have the floor.

DELEGATE HELIKER: I'd just like to say that what I'd like to see achieved is a Board of Regents with the power to manage the University System. I want to see them fully accountable to the Legislature, and I think we should bear in mind that they will have to present a unified budget, with the Board of Public Education, to the Legislature. The Legislature will appropriate the funds. The use of those funds will be audited by the Legislature. The Legislature will know exactly how they're used, and then the Board of Regents will have to go back before the Legislature the next time around. So, it seems to me, you have full and complete legislative control under Mr. Rollins' proposal without sacrificing the necessary, it seems to me, ingredients of managerial authority on the part of the Board of Regents.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman. Since Mr. Rygg has withdrawn his amendment and since our Honorable Chairman supports Mr. Rollins' amendment, I will withdraw my amendment. And this, perhaps, will speed things along a bit.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. Yours isn't in yet, but you can withdraw it without it being in.

Mr. Loendorf, I guess you were up next.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Mr. Chairman. Would Mr. Rollins yield?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I yield.

DELEGATE LOENDORF: Mr. Rollins, I have no particular opinion on your amendment, I guess. I'm just concerned about one thing. The second-to-last sentence provides "The Regents shall present a unified budget to the Legislative Assembly." It seems to me, Saturday, in Section 9, we had the Regents and this other board operating together and presenting a unified budget to the Legislative Assembly. Do you have a problem here? Are you in conflict with Section 9 now?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Perhaps we are. That part of it could be either amended or deleted to make it in line with Section 9

DELEGATE LOENDORF: That's up to you. I have no opinion, as I say.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I would like, from my proposal to delete the sentence which says, "The Regents shall present a unified budget request to the Legislative Assembly" because that's already covered in Section 9.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: That's what we did the other day.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So, you want to delete that sentence?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Yes, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of letting Mr. Rollins delete that, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, Mr. Rollins, that's deleted.

Now, Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman. Would Delegate Rollins yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I yield.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: In the sentence where you talk about the Executive Officer, you know, being appointed by the Board of Regents, would we do better to actually name him the "Commissioner of Higher Education", because there's some possibility, in reading the two sections, he might come out as two different people. I wonder if that should be seriously considered?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: In the interest of consistency, Mr. Arbanas, I would say that that should be done. That could be changed to say "The Board shall appoint a Commissioner of Higher Education and prescribe his terms and duties." Mr. Chairman, may I make that correction?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Would you state it again, please?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: "The Board shall appoint a Commissioner of Higher Education and prescribe his term and duties."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right. If we want to do that, now, let's see. "The Board shall appoint a higher—a Commissioner of Higher Education".

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Yes, sir; "and prescribe his term and duties".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: And strike out "its Executive Officer".

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Yes.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins now wants to amend his Section 11 to say "The Board shall appoint a Commissioner of Higher Education." In other words, naming the Executive Officer the same name that we adopted in Section 10 a few minutes ago, and strike the words "it's Executive officer" so the sentence reads: "The Board shall appoint a Commissioner of Higher Education and prescribe his terms and duties." Does anyone care to discuss that proposed amendment?

DELEGATE BERG: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Thank you, Mr. Berg. Mrs. Bowman wishes to discuss it.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: I must ask a question, because I'm getting more confused as the morning progresses.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Is the Commissioner of Higher Education in Section 11 going to be the same person as in Section 10, or are each one of these boards going to have a Commissioner of Higher Education?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The same person, Mrs. Bowman.

DELEGATE BOWMAN: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there other discussion of changing the line that says "its Executive Officer" to "a Commissioner of Higher Education"? If not, all in favor of that amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, that amendment will be allowed. We may have discovered a new way to do this.

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: (Inaudible)-a point of clarification. Mr. Toole said I'd withdrawn my amendment. I didn't do that. I said I was willing to have you vote on his first, but I haven't withdrawn it yet. This is just a point of verification.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right. Okay, I'm with you, Mr. Rygg.

Now, Mr. Mahoney, you're next.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Would Mr. Rollins yield to a question?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I yield.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: In looking this over, Mr. Rollins-and I haven't had a great long time to study it, because you've got a lot of things in it--would this now remove the Department of Administration and the Department-and the Budget Director entirely from having anything to do over the Board of Education?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I wouldn't say so, Mr. Mahoney, but I don't know exactly what the relationship would be, because I don't know what it is right now.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to talk a little on this.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney, you have the floor.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: In my humble opinion-and I'm not a lawyer and, remember, I don't have any qualifications-but I can see this as we've taken away, now, from the Governor all charge of the Legislature of the pair-by having these terms. We're going to have them overlapping-six, seven members appointed by the Governor-overlapping terms. So, now the new Governor comes in and he has new ideas, and we're going to let him sit in there ex officio, nonvoting. I don't know what he'll do. Maybe if he's nonvoting, he can take out the ashtrays or do some sweeping or something like that. That's about all he can have under this "ex officio nonvoting member". He don't have anything to say. Now, we take him out-the Board of Education or the Board of Regents-from under the Budget Department of which-and also under the Department of Administration. I don't know what the Governor is going to have to do with this. So it'll all be under the Legislature, and I'm not too sure that we shouldn't have some executive control over the Board of Education besides the overlapping appointment of 6-year terms or six or seven members.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. Mahoney. Last Saturday, I went into great detail as to what the current situation is in terms of things like architecture, state warrants, the treasury system, investments, and so forth. I indicated, for the record, that these-many of them will not change, Now, if you want to look at the situation in North Dakota, which, incidentally, just passed a provision similar to ours but that has been in force in North Dakota since 1931. Now, if you look at the situation there in North Dakota, what happens? The university funds are kept in the state treasury. Preauditing occurs on travel vouchers, annual legislative audit. The University System goes through-the University goes through the Budget Bureau of the Investment Bureau. They issue reviews of salaries-the Executive does. The Executive reviews fees in the general budget. After all, the general budget, Charley, as you well know, has to go through the Governor's office. It's involved in a uniform accounting system. The University System indicates to us that they're going to involve themselves in the state system simply by developing a program that will fit into the state system. The central purchasing presently-it doesn't seem to me that the University System, under this control, would ever get out of it. There are some instances, however, like the pianos and certain great detailed instruments that they would, perhaps, want to purchase on their own. Central financing is provided for the reporting of it under this legislative audit. We have all kinds of control, plus the Governor sits on two boards that are involved in it, and he also names the members. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Reichert, you've been up—

DELEGATE REICHERT: Mr. Chairman. Will Mr. Champoux yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes.

DELEGATE REICHERT: I noticed in Mr. Rollins' amendment that he deletes any mention of time for this overlapping term. In your majority proposal, you do stipulate, on line 21, page 6, "6-year overlapping terms". Do you-does your committee have any strong feelings? Frankly, I support Mr. Rollins.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Thank you very much for bringing that to my attention. I missed it. I think we ought to put in "6 overlapping years". I think George would agree to that-"six overlapping terms"-I'd suggest we put that in.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, we know what you want. We'll let George speak for himself. (Laughter)

Mr. Rollins.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Mr. Chairman. I'm getting like the preacher that said it happened so long ago and so much had happened, he didn't know whether Lazarus came fourth or fifth. (Laughter) And I-part of the trouble is I didn't do my homework as thoroughly as I should. If I may do it, I should like to insert, after the word "appointed by the Governor to", "6-year overlapping terms".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Rollins wants to amend his amendment to include "6-year overlapping terms" instead of just plain "overlapping terms". Is there discussion of that issue?

Mrs. Reichert, you've discussed it.

DELEGATE REICHERT: Mr. Chairman. I thought Mr. Rollins had intentionally deleted "6-year overlapping terms". I had considered deleting that from the majority proposal. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: You want to speak against Mr. Rollins' proposed amendment?

DELEGATE REICHERT: Yes, in— because I feel we need a flexible Constitution. I would dislike seeing "6-year overlapping terms" written into our Constitution. I think that that following phrase of the same sentence, "under regulations provided by law", would mean that the Legislature could set these terms.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Well, at the moment, Mr. Rollins is setting it at 6 years. Is there discussion? Very well. So many as are in favor of "6-year overlapping terms", say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So many as are opposed, say No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair is in doubt, So many as are in favor of 6 years, vote on the machines Aye; and if you're not in favor, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote? Any other delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Take the ballot. This was not a roll call. I beg your pardon; 46 have voted No and 42 have voted Aye, so the 6 years are out at the moment-46 to 42.

Mr. Berg, you were up.

DELEGATE BERG: Will Mr. Rollins yield to a question?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I yield.

DELEGATE BERG: Mr. Rollins, I like your amendment, but I have some problems with regard to the second sentence, which reads: "The Regents shall have full power, responsibility and authority to supervise, manage and control the Montana University System." Now, I understand that that would relate to the six units of the University System. But as to other educational units, it has only the power to supervise and coordinate. Did you intend, by this amendment, to distinguish the authority which the Board of Regents would have over the University System as it might have over, for example, community colleges?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Yes, Mr. Berg, because I think there is a difference.

DELEGATE BERG: Did you—

DELEGATE ROLLINS: The community colleges have some local direction which the units of the University System would not have. There's also a sharing of funds there, involving local concern-consideration. So, I think that that's what I'd like to see.

DELEGATE BERG: Would he yield to a further question? Mr. Rollins.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Yes.

DELEGATE BERG: Did you deliberately leave out the word "coordinate" as it refers to the six University Systems?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: No, not deliberately, but I-that could be under the "full power and responsibility".

DELEGATE BERG: Would you object to an amendment which would include "coordination" of the University Systems?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Not at all. I would not object.

DELEGATE BERG: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Berg.

DELEGATE BERG: I move to insert, between the words "supervise" and "manage", the word "coordinate", so that the sentence reads: "The Regents shall have full power, responsibility and authority to supervise, coordinate, manage and control the Montana University System."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Berg has proposed an amendment to Mr. Rollins' amendment. It's on line 4 of the printed amendment before you; he wants to add the word "coordinate", so that it reads: "The Regents shall have full power, responsibility and authority to supervise, coordinate, manage and control-" Is there farther discussion?

Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Would Mr. Berg yield to a question, please?

DELEGATE BERG: I yield.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. Berg, for the purposes of the record on this article, when it goes out of here, regardless of how it goes-Under that language, you think it would be possible for the Board of Regents to close Western Montana College of Education if they thought they wanted to?

DELEGATE BERG: No, I don't. I think they could coordinate its functions and see to it that the educational program provided at Dillon corresponded with what was provided at Bozeman.

DELEGATE DAVIS: And that would, likewise, apply to any other units of the system?

DELEGATE BERG: Yes.

DELEGATE DAVIS: I want that clearly in the record, though, because some of the members of the public are going to be concerned about that. Thank you.

DELEGATE BERG: I don't think that the word "coordinate" changes it in any sense.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Are there other questions or is there other debate on Mr. Berg's amendment to add the word "coordinate"? All in favor of Mr. Berg's amendment, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted. All right, we're back on Mr. Rollins' proposal.
Mr. Nutting.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Would Mr. Rollins yield to a question?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I yield.

DELEGATE NUTTING: In your last sentence, where you say "subject to the same legislative audit provisions", would you object to removing the word "legislative"? I think that is restrictive in that we now have an executive audit, too, that does part of the work on the-So, that would then read: "subject to the same audit provisions as all other funds." So then, it would take in both provisions.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Mr. Chairman. May I answer that question by asking Mr. Nutting one?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: If Mr. Nutting will yield.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Yes.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Would all of these--are all of these other funds now subject to the legislative audit?

DELEGATE NUTTING: The legislative audit and the executive audit both working--are working and coordinate in different areas.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I would not object, then, Mr. Nutting.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Nutting. Let's make-it makes my bookwork a little easier. Do you want to make that amendment, Mr. Rollins?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I move to amend the last line of my proposal by striking the word "legislative".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Is there discussion? All in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. It just means that only you are doing this and I don't have to start another amendment. Mr. Nutting, have you other questions?
Mr. Skari.

DELEGATE SKARI: Mr. President. Would Mr. Rollins yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: I yield.

DELEGATE SKARI: Mr. Rollins, where you--we inserted "Commissioner of Education" in here and we struck "who shall act as Executive Officer". I know that you intend that he shall act as the Executive Officer. Do you see any problem? It seems to me it could be a little unclear here, that it doesn't-We have put the title in here; we haven't clearly expressed his duties. I'm sure that you intend that he be the Executive Officer of the Board.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Mr. Skari, I don't think I did, necessarily. I think the term "as prescribed by the Board" should cover that. The Board may wish to assign him some other kinds of duties.

DELEGATE SKARI: Thank you, Mr. Rollins.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman. May I ask Mr. Champoux a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I yield.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Does striking the word "legislative" mean that we get into the same kind of proposition we did with that science complex, that everything then comes under the Executive? Every paper clip has to go through the Executive Department, every typewriter, every everything?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I'm glad you brought that question up. Actually, it may; it might very well happen that way. Now, if it's the intent of this body that that do happen, maybe we should get it on record. As far as I'm concerned, it shouldn't happen, and that's what I was speaking against Friday-Saturday.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Chair would like to observe that you're talking about audit now. You're not talking about appropriation. The last sentence refers only to audit. And if you understand that and everybody does, fine, go ahead.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: It says, "Funds and appropriations under the control of the Regents shall be subject to the same audit provision."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Audit has nothing to do with appropriation. And if some of the legislators would like to explain that-the Chair doesn't want to, but the Chair doesn't intend to speak-but I'm sure some of the legislators that have been on the board will explain that to you. This is after-the-fact control, the audit.

Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: I'm sure this doesn't present a problem, Mrs. Bugbee, because this is strictly an audit and that would have nothing to do with the way it's spent. This is when it comes in afterwards, and they want to audit what has done, but it would have nothing to do with the purchasing of it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: I would just like to-I don't understand the internal mechanisms of this, obviously, but I am very concerned about that Highway complex and how that thing got meshed into all of the state government and the mess it was in because of the way it was tied together.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux, you're up. Would you like to speak?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Would Mr. Nutting yield to a few questions, please, sir, for the record?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Nutting.

DELEGATE NUTTING: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. Nutting, is it your intent that all of the units under this Board of Higher Regents-that they channel all of the purchasing and so forth, through the Administrative Division of this government?

DELEGATE NUTTING: Audit merely is after the fact, and that's what we're discussing in this last sentence. The funds and appropriations and the methods of establishing would be altogether different. They would not be-it-after the fact. They would be established beforehand.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: May I ask another question?

DELEGATE NUTTING: Yes.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: What-why do you feel that we need two audits? We have one from the Legislature-you want to-is it a double-check or—

DELEGATE NUTTING: It's in now, and it is-not that it's particularly good, but that is the way, and I do believe that the Governor has a right to audit the Executive Departments. They are his departments, and he should have somebody to look after them for him. The Legislative Audit is merely-operates in-on behalf of the Legislature, so you-both audits are really needed.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Thank you, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman. We spent considerable time with the Legislative Auditor and also the head of the Department of Administration to find out what was the nature of their work. The Legislative Audit has no executive or administrative authority. The only thing that he does is call it as it is, turn it over to his committee, and then the committee turns and asks the institutions which are audited to make a report back. And on the basis of that, they try to get compliance with the law. For instance, just to give you an idea of what the Legislative Audit did in-with respect to its audit of the University units, it came up with a number of recommendations. And I'll just take-quote briefly from the executive-or the Legislative Auditor's report with regard to the University units: One, was to transfer bank balances to appropriate funds in the State Treasury and deposit future receipts therein promptly upon their receipt; two-implement a formal-these were recommendations--a formal system of documenting the time expended by faculty personnel in the nature of their services; three, convert the University units' payroll to the central payroll system: four, establish more precise regulations regarding consulting fees, honorariums, and so forth, earned by University unit personnel; five, the State Controller establish an account in the appropriate treasury fund to receive, hold, and disburse all moneys available for general support operations for each University unit; six, collect administrative cost reimbursements and deposit the collective as-collections as revenue in the general fund to the extent the costs were involved in appropriated moneys; seven, seek legislation to provide the statutory authority for waiver or reduction of fees in those circumstances where such waiver or reduction is in the best interest of the state; eight, establish a uniform University accounting system which meets management's needs and is compatible with the statewide system currently in operation. With regard to the University fees, the Legislative Auditor's report found that over $625,000 in fees were waived by the University during fiscal year 1969 and 70. Of this amount, $525,877 in fees were waived under circumstances which are not specifically authorized by law. The Department of Administration has-is in the process of implementing an accounting in the budget system, and the Legislative Audit is just reporting the facts as they are. I think that they're-anyone that knows something about the competition that exists between the University units, how one president at one time has been in supremacy and the other president has been again, you could find reasons for the Legislature to be concerned and the Executive Department to have some concern for some sort of a coordinated policy on this proposition. In my opinion, I think that we shouldn't turn around and give and delegate all of the powers to a Board of Regents or to a Commissioner of Education.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I'd like to ask Mr. Nutting one question, for the record, please.

DELEGATE NUTTING: Yes.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: If I may, sir. Now, just to clarify this, if I may, when you said "after the fact", you do not-you mean "post audit". Is that correct, sir? You do not mean "pre-audit".

DELEGATE NUTTING: That's what an audit discussion is, right.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Thank you very much, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman. I am a little bit perturbed here-or worried or whatever the word that we could use—disturbed—yes, maybe that's good. When we get down here in this line that says "manage and control", how supreme is that? Now, I'd like to have Mr. Rollins define that for me, please, if he would.

DELEGATE ROLLINS: How complete should the control of the Board of Regents be of the University System? I can't answer that categorically, Mr. Mahoney, but I feel that the Board of Regents should have the power needed to carry out the academic functions of the University System without undue harassment from outside forces. Now, we're in the business of educating people; we're not in the business of running a business according to certain things; we're not trying to make a profit. I think we lose sight of the fact that the important ones in the University System are the students. And any management controls or anything like that should be devoted to making the University System more useful to the student. At the same time, I do not deny any responsibility on the part of the Board of Regents to give full accountability to the people. Does that answer your question, sir?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman. Another question-I have a couple more, Mr. Rollins, if you would, please, to answer.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. You may ask two more.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Is this going to pull the University System out from the-entirely under-from under the Purchasing Agent?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: No, sir. We would have to abide by the same kinds of rules and regulations concerning purchasing as any other agency of the government, and we do.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Would this pull, then-do you think, then, that it would not pull it out from underneath the Budget Director?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: If the Budget Director has certain relationships with all other agencies of the government, I assume he would have the same kinds of relationships with the University System.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Thank you, Mr. Rollins.

Mr. President-Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: I wish that I could agree with all of this, and I know we're starting to get in, I'm watching Mr. Champoux here this morning get a record. And I don't know how much the Supreme Court is going to pay any attention to this record when they get ready to rule. I'm afraid they're going to take the very wording that we are adopting here, and we are not going to be in a position to tell them what we mean except in the words that we put into this thing. Now, "manage and control"--now, I didn't get as perturbed about this-or whatever the word should be--until Delegate Bugbee started mentioning about the paper clips, and I wondered if we were getting out from under the Purchasing Agent in this. Now, I know that this Convention does not want to set up another separate branch of government out here that only the Legislature can look at. I want to keep this under the Governor; he's the Chief Executive. He runs and he gets out here and he gets the most votes, and then he should have a lot to do with it. One-third, I've always felt-the Governor, the Supreme Court and the Legislature—not in that order but-because I'm a legislator first. But I do feel that in this kind of wording, "manage and control"-this-they could do anything. Now, I'm going to tell you what's happening over here now, and I'm questioning it. Why do we have an architect working over in the present Board of Education? All right, we've got state architects; we've got those now. I wonder why we got to set up separate branches of government in here. This is what's bothering me on this-and I'm afraid if we get this far out of field-Now, I want to ask, while I'm on my feet--and I don't know whether this will do. I haven't been able to study the Rollins amendment as far as I'd like to, but this is in the court rules in the University of Michigan and this was under theirs and it was very nearly like the one that we have here before us—before this amendment-and they state, down here, "Unconstitutionally declared. Judge Salmon ruled unconstitutional section of bills which prescribed the number of classroom hours to be taught by the faculty." The Legislature couldn't say anything about that-"Limited the University's rights to set their own tuition rates or to raise them if they choose after the academic year has started." They've got that. Now, let's go on here a little further--"spelled out the number of out-of-state students the University could enroll"; the Legislature lost all control of that. And I think we've got a marvelous University System. I'm sure that we could get a lot more-"Provided for line-item appropriations under which funds given for research or expansion of a medical school could not be used for other purposes." In other words, the Legislature determined-the Legislature, for this appropriation, and the Supreme Court held-said, "You lost that." Now, "specified that no state money could be used to pay the salaries or employees of scholarships of students convicted of discrimination of campus-for destruction of campus property." The Legislature lost its power again. Then, here, "the three universities also won right to start branch campuses or to expand present branches without the approval of the Board of Education." Then, the state did not win on these two points. "The legislative authority to say what"-wait until I get my glasses here; can't read that big word-"construction funds shall be used for and its ability to order University to use a standard financial reporting system." That's the only thing they won on. Now, I know this Convention does not want to set up the fourth branch of government. I'm sure that you don't. We-I want to answer Mrs. Daphne Bugbee—pardon me, Delegate Bugbee-in regard to the Highway thing. This was as legitimate as anything in the world.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Highway what?

DELEGATE MAHONEY: The Highway thing that she mentioned about, Mr. President—about she wanted to know how this thing-how the Highway—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I don't think we should discuss how the Highway complex got in.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: All right-all right. That's all right. She asked the question, and I was going to answer it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Right. You tell her at noon.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: All right. (Laughter) Now, this is why I don't like to set up another branch of government here. I'd like to see-be sure. And if we-if you think the record is strong enough-but I don't think it is-that-be assured that it still remains under our state government all the way. Legislative-I don't think we'll get out from under the court, but I'm afraid that we're going to be stricken clean out from under the Executive under the way-this amendment. Now, I don't want to belabor a point. This is just my opinion, and I might be the last guy in here that's right.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard. Do you want to move your amendment now?

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President. Yes, please have the clerk read my amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Will the clerk read Mr. Barnard's amendment as a substitute motion.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move, as a substitute motion, to amend Section 11, page 6, lines 14 through 26, of the Education and Public Lands Committee Majority Proposal by deleting it in its entirety and inserting in lieu thereof the following words and punctuation: 'The government and control of the academic, financial, administrative affairs of the Montana University System shall be vested in a Board of Regents, who shall be selected as provided herein. The Regents shall have the power and it shall be their duty to govern the University System as a public trust in a manner consistent with the general laws of Montana. The Legislature shall pass no law which infringes upon, diminishes or transfers to another body any of the authority provided by this section. Said Board shall consist of seven members, appointed by the Governor to 6-years overlapping terms, subject to confirmation by the Senate under regulations provided by law. The Board shall appoint its Executive Officer and prescribe his term and duties. The Governor and the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be ex officio nonvoting members of this Board.' Signed: Barnard." Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President. First, I would like to say that I don't claim any pride of authorship in this particular proposal. It is a compromise proposal worked out by the-an attorney at Bozeman. It's kind of a compromise between the two extremes. I would like to state, first, that I do believe that the Board of Regents needs sufficient authority to do a good job in administering the affairs of the University System. I believe, also, that they should be accountable to the Governor of the State of Montana and to the people. And I believe that this might accomplish it. In the first place, we get rid of that thing we're arguing about, the body corporate, which so many of us seem to be wondering about. And we set them up-the system up as a public trust-the Board of Regents--as having a public trust to administer the University System for the people of Montana. Secondly, we set them up subject to the general laws of the State of Montana-that would be to all of the laws affecting all of the other divisions of state government. We have a provision, of course, that-in here that would limit the Legislature from passing punitive laws directly against the University System. The balance-the last paragraph is almost-is identical to theproposalofthe Education Committee in Section Number 11. And I just introduce this as a subject for discussion and we-something that might be worked out—something--we might work something out of it that all of us could agree with and would be workable with the University System. That's all I have, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: May I, first of all, direct a few questions--one question, at least, to Mr. Mahoney and then react to Mr. Barnard, sir?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Yes, you may.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Charley, I agree--where did Charley go?—where'd he go? (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Let's skip his question, shall we'?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: All right. Well, I'm going to-for the record, I'm going to state what I have to say about it anyway. The committee does not want to set up a separate unit of government here. We feel, by the Rollins' amendment-I do-that it provides all kinds of controls, but I certainly don't think the Governor wants to hire and fire the University professors, one after another. Nor, I'm sure, the Governor-does the Governor want to, every Monday morning, sign requisition slips for paper clips. Now, the State Architect's office was the one that reviewed the University science building. Perhaps if there'd been provision for a local architect on the scene, even as one of his subordinates-this would have-that is to say, attached to the Board of Regents of Higher Education--we might have avoided that problem. In Michigan, the problem is that each unit of the University System is an independent unit, each unit. Now, what we want to do is to give the control to this body here, called the "Board of Regents of Higher Education", so we can stop this independent movement on the behalf of all of these different schools. That's what the intent of that is. Now, let's look at Mr. Barnard's amendment, if I may. The first problem we're going to have here, of course--and I hate to start this one all over again-and that's the business about what's a public trust? And, by gosh, I'm going to read Saxby's book before I debate that one. Now, another problem that's going to be is what's the general laws of Montana? Why that phrase? Can we define that as distinct to other laws-from other laws? Thirdly, once we've given this power-you see, they have to be consistent with the general laws-then we say "The Legislature shall pass no law which infringes upon, diminishes or transfers to another body." Now, is that going to be a general law, or what kind of a law is that going to be? And also, number four, the board shall appoint its Executive Officer--aren't we going to have this Higher Commissioner of Education there? Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President. In the event we don't get this concluded before the noon hour-Mr. Barnard's first paragraph of his-comes from your Law Review that you all received of Lawrence Waldock, was considered extensively in committee. I don't care which one we finally go on and start delousing and get the thing so we can live with it, but you could all read your Law Review article during the noon hour if you want to find out about this. But I think Mr. Waldock, in his conclusion, said this-he said: "The quality of education in Montana will continue to depend more upon the caliber of the state's Legislators, Regents and general citizenry than upon the phrasing of this constitutional provision." And I think that's true. We can go with one or the other and get it worked over; but that is where it comes from; and you could read it over, if anyone's interested.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. It seems to me that essentially what Mr. Mahoney and Mr. Barnard both are saying is they want to make the Legislature the Board of Regents. And that is what the majority proposal is aimed at preventing-of giving the Board of Regents the authority to be the Board of Regents, giving the Legislature to control the Board of Regents via the appropriations and via the Legislative Audit. Now, I spoke on this subject at some length last Saturday and I pointed out to you that the AFL-CIO state executive secretary had given you a letter [in] which he has stated certain objections to the majority report and proposed a-what he called "a reasonable compromise". And that reasonable compromise is the exact wording of Mr. Barnard's proposal before you now. And I told you, then, the reason why the state AFL-CIO wanted that particular wording. They want it because they think it will leave the Legislature the Board of Regents, and they can't twist the arms in the legislative halls and put the pressure on the Board of Regents, which will make it possible-or easier, at least-for them to accomplish their ends in negotiating labor contracts with the Board of Regents or with the separate unit managements. Now, the basic question before us is still the same one that always has been, and that is, are we going to give to the Board of Regents the ability to manage the University System? Are we going to make them a real Board of Regents, with the power and the independence of the Legislature and of the Executive so that they don't have-so that the management of the University units do not have to run to some bureaucrat in Helena or have the Legislature specifying by line items and by particular instructions exactly how the University shall be operated, but shall have the authority to do that themselves. Let me give you an example of the sort of thing that comes up. It comes up all of the time. Enrollments in the University are never predictable, and in particular courses, they are particularly unpredictable. And we run, constantly, into the problem that we have more students than we expected and we have to have more equipment to handle a class than we expected we would have to have. Particularly this is true in the sciences, where they use fairly expensive instruments. For example, one that came up fairly recently was a gas-if I can pronounce it; this is a little bit out of my field-well, a mass spectrometer, for example, and a gas chronograph. These are fairly expensive items which have to be used in the classroom and in the laboratory, and they didn't have enough. Now, they didn't have, as things are now structured, the power to go out and buy those things immediately and have them available so that the students could use them in this course. They had to go through the state Department of Administration and take 3 weeks to get them-3 weeks out of a 10-week quarter, which seriously interferes with the ability to do the instructional job that we want to do. If the Board of Regents is given the kind of authority that the majority proposes, this sort of thing wouldn't happen, because the board would then have the financial authority to take care of this kind of problem. Now, there are other kinds of problems which arise because of the dependence of the Board of Regents upon the regulations of the-specified by the Department of Administration—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Heliker, unfortunately, we'd like to record your remarks, and we need you to stop.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Unfortunately? (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Unfortunately we need you to stop, because we'd like to record your remarks. How's that? (Laughter)

DELEGATE HELIKER: I accept the amendment. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay. Very well. The committee will be in session-the committee will be in order.

Mr. Heliker, you may proceed.

DELEGATE HELIKER: Mr. Chairman. To revert to the example that I was giving you of the scientific instruments, let me remind you that, should the University management by some-for some reason which is difficult for me to imagine, be extravagant in the use of this power, they will have to report. They are financially accountable. The Legislature will obtain the audit after the fact and can call them on the carpet when they next come before the Legislature. Now, the-another problem which has arisen, and as a matter of fact is a current problem, is the insistence of the Board of Administration-or the Department of Administration upon uniform classifications. Now, the fact of the matter is that the Board of Regents and the University administrations are in a much better position to determine the classification of University personnel than a Department of Administration. The Department of Administration turns out to have very strange ideas. For example, the functions of deans, who they want to throw in with such people as the heads of strictly non-academic departments. It seems to me, as a person who has been around higher education for a long time, that this is nonsense and that the University administration is in the best position to make these judgments. They should not be under the thumb of Mr. Saxby or other representatives of the Executive. They should have a measure of independence from them and must have a measure of independence from the Executive as well as the Legislature if they are to be able to do their job. That's the issue before us: are we going to make the Board of Regents the Board of Regents, or are we going to leave the Legislature the Board of Regents? The Legislature, I repeat, will-has and always will have plenty of power, because it controls the purse strings. It will have the power of appropriation and it will have the power of audit.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President. The first thing-I'd like to correct one statement that has been made here on the floor that this particular proposal I introduced was a creature of the labor organizations. I would have to tell all of you that the labor groups were not even awareofit until I pointed this out. When I was discussing this and looking for something that might work as a compromise that people would accept, I pointed this out to them. And that's where they got their information from. It was nothing they dreamed up and thought of that would work from--work to their own advantage. I'm responsible for whatever information the labor groups got for it, and nobody else. I picked this up and worked on it for weeks trying to figure out if it might work as a compromise. I don't know if it will or it won't, but I don't want any misunderstanding as to where it came from. Now, I would like to also point out something else. I've had some experience with the Purchasing Department downstairs, not just recently, but a few years back. I saw an instance where a switch from an outside purchasing group through the Purchasing Department saved the State of Montana a hundred and forty thousand dollars. It hasn't been too long ago. And yet, I know that the Purchasing Department doesn't demand that every item that any institution buys goes through that department. There are many things that they buy that are general items that they can buy locally at a better price and get them when they need them. They're not as ironclad as a lot of people here would like to let on like they are. I've worked with the Purchasing Department of the State of Montana and I've worked with the Purchasing Department of the federal government. They all work about the same. Where there's a need-a real need for immediate purchase and-there's no questions asked. When there's time to go through the Purchasing Department, that's what they like to have you do. And it saves you people money every time they do it. And just think of the one item-and it wasn't too big an item either-a saving of a hundred and forty thousand dollars that I saw not too long ago right through the Purchasing Department downstairs. That's the reason that I think we should have some connection with the general government of the State of Montana with the University System. Again, I want to state that I think the Board of Regents needs authority. They need sufficient authority to do a good job in a University System, but we don't want to sit them out on an island by themselves, completely nonresponsible to anyone. And that's the thing I don't want to accomplish. I don't, also, want to subject them to punitive laws by the general-Legislative Assembly, and that's why that the statement about the general laws of Montana is in here. There is some otherwording in here that perhaps doesn't do any good or any harm. I'm not overly proud of the proposal, but I still think it's probably the best one that we've got so far.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President, fellow delegates. We've got three proposals before us. There's not too much difference in any of them. And the most time has been taken, really, on Mr. Rollins'. I think the same thing could be done with the majority. But our Chairman, and I concur with him, thinks this is an adequate substitute. I think the work has been done on Mr. Rollins' in any language change, so I would recommend that we proceed, at this time, by defeating Mr. Barnard's, substituting Mr. Rollins', passing it, and then go to work on the language of Mr. Rollins'. And if you want to, put in Mr. Rygg's language and test it and Rollins', or whatever you want to do, and then we'll make some progress. Because I think we're stalemated here now and going in a circle.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of Mr. Barnard's proposal?

Mr. Barnard, do you want to close again?

DELEGATE BARNARD: I'd like to close this again by stating that, if there's-some other compromise is going to work out better, I'm not going to push this. I'm just looking for what's the best for the Board of Regents and the University System of the State of Montana and the people.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The issue arises on Mr. Barnard's amendment, which you all have before you, the purpose of which is to substitute two paragraphs in exchange for the Section 11 of the majority report. We'll have a roll call vote. So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Barnard's proposal, vote Aye; and so many as are opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Please take the vote.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 3 delegates voting Aye, 90 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue now is back on Mr. Rollins' amendment, as amended. You remember we put in the words "supervise, coordinate and manage" we put in the words "to appoint a Commissioner of Higher Education" in place of "Executive Officer". We left out any length of term, and we took out the sentence, "The Regents shall present a unified budget request to the Legislative Assembly", since that was already in the other one in Section 9. And we took out the word "Legislative" before "audit", in the last line. Is there further discussion of Mr. Rollins'?

Mr. Foster. First of all-Mr. Holland, the Chair will recognize your presence. And if you voted on the last one, the Chair will note that you were here before the last vote was taken, so you should have voted.

Mr. Rollins-or, I mean, Mr. Foster; excuse me.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman. Would Delegate Champoux yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I'll yield.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Champoux. I ask you this question because this same phrase was in the original majority proposal. On line 6 of Delegate Rollins' proposal, we have the phrase "which may be assigned by law". Now, I want to clarify, for my own purpose and also for the other delegates. Now, it would be my interpretation that this would refer to the other public educational institutions; and my question would be, then, that that would mean strictly other public educational institutions and would not refer to the Montana University System. It would also be my interpretation that if they could assign these educational institutions under the Board of Regents, that they could also remove them. Now, is this your interpretation of that wording?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Well, to begin with, as I said in my opening remarks, this was to take care of the community colleges. Now, this is the terminology that's used in the statutes that puts the community colleges presently under the Board of Regents. Now, if your concern is public educational institutions, by that we mean, very specifically, those in the higher education area, because you'll notice that this section in the majority proposal is called "Board of Regents of Higher Education"; and we would hope that Style and Drafting would keep it that way. Now, as to—this is to provide flexibility. As to whether they could remove them, I would say no. Well, wait a minute; no. It would have to be yes-it would have to be, yes-because then the flexibility would be there. They could move them either back and forth. That would be in answer to Mr. Driscoll's question earlier.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Foster.

DELEGATE FOSTER: Mr. Chairman. It was my intent that it be if they were able to assign them, that they could also reassign them. Now, I would just provide this information for Style and Drafting, in case they wanted to clarify the wording in that area. Thank you, Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Anderson.

DELEGATE JOHN ANDERSON: Mr. President. Would Delegate Davis yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis, will you yield?

DELEGATE DAVIS: I yield.

DELEGATE JOHN ANDERSON: Carl, I'm concerned about the second section in-or sentence, rather, in George Rollins' proposal, and I know you are also. My concern is the same as you mentioned briefly here a while ago in regard to Western Montana College. It seems to me that this proposal gives delegates full power, responsibility and authority to supervise, manage and control the Montana University System. And the thing that concerns me and bothers me somewhat is this, perhaps, could be adversely to a college like Western-so I'd like to have your thinking in regard to it.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Well, I'm glad you brought that question up, because it not only concerns Western, it concerns any of the minor units of the University System. There's a long history of the two major branches advocating closing all the rest of the system, for years. But I think we're past that point now, Mr. Anderson. I think even with the growth of community colleges and our vo-tech, I think we've turned the corner on that centralization. And I think that they would be adequately protected under this article at this time. However, if Mr. Rollins' prevails, I'm going to suggest a compromise-not at this time, but we'll wait till we vote on Rollins'-to provide that control of the academic and administrative be vested in the board and that the financial should be prescribed as-and regulated by law, because, I think you're, in fact, that way anyplace wherein I think this would possibly be an acceptable compromise, at least one that we can test the air on. But I think—in answer to your question, I think that all the units of the University System will have to be administered as they presently exist, without some major action by the Legislature or by the people in closing any of them. Thanks for asking the question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Blaylock.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: Mr. President. Will Mr. Rollins yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rollins?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: Yes, sir.

DELEGATE BLAYLOCK: George, under your statement here, "The Regents shall have full power, responsibility and authority to supervise, manage and control the Montana State--or Montana University System"-Now, under that language, do you see it that the Board of Regents then could, say, put in regulations as to what course that a student would have had to have followed in the secondary schools in order to be admitted to the University System? For instance, could Montana State University say, "You cannot enter this school unless you have had, say, algebra, geometry, chemistry"-whatever they might-and thus indirectly dictate the curriculum of the secondary schools?

DELEGATE ROLLINS: It could, I suppose; but that might be one of the values of another board, which would consult with the Board of Higher Education on such matters. The entrance requirements, I think, have usually been set up by the Board of Regents, sometimes as prescribed by law, perhaps. They could, I suppose, alter those; and it would indirectly influence the curriculum in the lower schools.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. If there is no further discussion, the issue arises on Mr. Rollins' amendment, as amended. We'll have a roll call vote, I suppose. Very well. The section as amended, at the moment, says-and Mr. Davis is quite right that once we've adopted it as Section 11, it's still open to amendment-"The government and control of the Montana University System shall be vested in a Board of Regents, who shall be selected as provided herein. The Regents shall have full power, responsibility and authority to supervise, coordinate, manage and control the Montana State-no, the Montana University System and shall supervise and coordinate other public educational institutions which may be assigned by law. Said Board shall consist of seven members, appointed by the Governor, with overlapping terms, subject to confirmation of the Senate, under the regulations provided by law. The Board shall appoint a Commissioner of Higher Education and prescribe his terms and duties. The Governor and the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be ex officio nonvoting members of this Board. The funds and appropriations under the control of the Regents shall be subject to the same audit provisions as other funds of the state." So many as shall favor that amendment, please vote Aye; and so many shall oppose, please vote No on the voting machines. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Please take the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 82 delegates voting Aye, 14 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 82 having voted Aye and 14 No, that form of Section 11 passes. Are there other matters?

I see, Mr. Davis, that you have a matter before the Chair. Do you want it read?

DELEGATE DAVIS: If you would, please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Clerk, will you read this for Mr. Davis.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Rollins' Section 11 of-line 4, following 'academic and administrative affairs'."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis, I think you've got to explain that to us.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President. At the end of line 4, it would then read: "The Regents shall have full power, responsibility and authority to supervise, coordinate, manage and control the academic and administrative affairs of the Montana University System."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: "Academic and administrative", is that what you added?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Yes, sir, "academic and administrative". And then, after the end of the second sentence, then we would add the language "power and duties over financial affairs shall be prescribed and regulated by law." In other words, that's the Rygg amendment, or a portion of it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Allright, just a minute. All right, if you have your Rollins' amendment before you, at the end of line 4, you want to put an asterisk and add this sentence-this language, "academic and administrative"-so that it reads: "The Regents shall have full power, responsibility and authority to supervise, coordinate, manage and control the academic and administrative-"

DELEGATE DAVIS: "Affairs".

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: "--affairs of-"

DELEGATE DAVIS: "-the Montana University System."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: "-affairs of the Montana University System." And then, which is the second sentence?

DELEGATE DAVIS: The second sentence is "The Regents"—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: -shall be subscribed by-they "shall-supervise and coordinate other public institutions as may be assigned by law." Then we'd add another sentence. "Powers and duties over financial affairs shall be prescribed and regulated by law." That's another asterisk after the word "law", on line 6. Very well. Mr. Davis may have that amendment. I'll repeat it once more. "The Regents shall have full power, responsibility and authority to supervise, coordinate, and-manage and control the academic and administrative affairs of the Montana University System." And then we add a sentence after the sentence-the middle sentence there--which says: "Powers and duties over financial affairs shall be prescribed and regulated by law."

Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President. I think this is really the heart of the matter-is how much control does this body want to give the University System? So let's face it head on, issue by issue, and vote and determine it. The next amendment of Mr. Rygg's provides that powers and duties over both financial and administrative affairs would be regulated and prescribed by the Legislature. This is one step above that and provides that only financial affairs will be. It seems that we all believe in academic freedom and that we don't want the Legislature prescribing what courses are going to be taught, who's going to teach them. And I think they should have the control over the hire and firing of their personnel, and not be subjected to coming to Legislature. Now, a lot of you feel they should have financial control, too. However, I suggest that that might be an area of compromise, because the Legislature, in fact, has financial control, regardless of what you put in there. They still are going to have to appropriate the money, and if they're not satisfied with the way you're doing it, they're still going to make you talk turkey to them. So, I think this may be a compromise where we'll start meeting these issues head on and find out which route we want to take.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion?

Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: As Mr. Davis knows, when he puts this in, he just goes back to the old Constitution and the old problem again. And he's been listening to me for 2 months, but I haven't convinced him. When you get-if you look at the old Section 11, it's been given general control and supervision. Then, it's been taken away from them in the second paragraph. And if you put the financial-all the financial controls as prescribed by law, you're doing that very same thing again. After all, if you're sitting in here in this assembly and somebody doesn't like a professor-and it's happened many, many times before-you simply delete his salary from the general appropriation. Isn't that one way to control the faculty? What we're talking about here-in terms of finances, if after the State Board of Education has brought this budget to the Assembly and the Assembly decides, you know, how they want to—the amount as to how much they want and the specific details, it'll be a detailed budget. Then, when it goes back, the University should have internal control of their financial affairs in terms of hiring and firing and this sort of thing. They're going to be using central purchasing. They would want to, since it's the cheapest way. But this simply-this is what the whole argument has been about this morning. Mr. Davis knows it. If you put this in, then you've undercut the whole thing.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President. I'm quite happy to support Delegate Davis' substitute motion, and I think that's the direction we were trying to go to start with.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Burkhardt.

DELEGATE BURKHARDT: I rise to oppose Mr. Davis' amendment. I think our Chairman, Mr. Champoux, has stated it very well. This says we want the Legislature to be the Board of Regents. And that's been our problem for many, many years. We need some kind of independent, decisionmaking authority. All of us sit on boards of various kinds. I happen to serve on a hospital board, and seven to ten people can make decisions and work and a hundred people have a hard time. They can make the overall appropriation, but they need the local-or, rather, the day-by-day kind of attention that a System and its Regents can back up. I would oppose Mr. Davis' amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Arbanas.

DELEGATE ARBANAS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I rise to oppose the amendment. I think Delegate Davis suggested that the Legislature makes appropriations anyway, and that's true. But I'm suggesting that the amendment says much more than that-that they've only had the fiscal control which the Legislature is willing to give. And I can't help feeling that there would be very little give, and we're back where we started from.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Felt.

DELEGATE FELT: Mr. Chairman. I, too, rise in opposition to the motion by Delegate Davis. I think that it would be completely wrong for us to seek to control the academic and administrative affairs of the University System and that the Constitution should be free of that language. I will not speak on the rest of it, but I intend to oppose the whole thing since that's in there.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: It seems to me that there's a little confusion here. The amendment provides that the Regents shall have full power, responsibility and authority to supervise, coordinate, manage and control the academic and administrative affairs of the University System. Now, the present Constitution--my learned Chairman of the History Department seems to think that says that in the present Constitution, but it says in the present Constitution they "will have general control and supervision subject-as prescribed by law" as to all three. Now, this limits the Legislature to-this gives you your academic freedom that you all want. This will give you your administrative freedom that you all want, but it's going to test the air as to whether this body is going to give you your financial freedom. And that's-I'm trying to get to the heart of it-and that's the thing we want you to do. Get up and take sides, and then we can vote, because that's really the only issue you have left here unless there's some in the body that don't even think you should have academic and administrative freedom.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I'm going to have to answer that again. Now, if you talk about "as prescribed by law", you go back to that old Constitution. That also included, Carl-and you know it-the financial affairs. And this is part of the problem we're having, total financial control. We're looking for internal control. If you say-to a degree-if you say that the Legislature is going to completely control the purse, you know that the power of the purse controls everything. Now, you said you want to get on, you're going to get to the heart of it, and so forth. All right. You also said that Mr. Rygg has got another proposal for an administrative-control over the administrative, but I submit if you give the financial and the administrative control, then you've lost control completely to this Board of Regents and you've got the State Legislature as the Board of Regents.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Mahoney.

DELEGATE MAHONEY: Mr. Chairman. I know that this body still believes in law and they still believe in the legislative system. And let the Legislature determine-I think that it's terrible if we go out here, and all of a sudden, we've got another group sitting out here. I-now-on this amendment, you see-and I think he said "administrative"-away goes the Purchasing Agent. I think he'll be out of there. And I think, also, that you're going to find that the budgeting-as far as the Budget Director-and the Governor trying to get a balanced budget. And he's suppose to-1 don't know what-1 don't remember what the new Constitution says, but in the old one, he had to present a balanced budget to the Legislature. Now, we come with this group, and all of a sudden, the Governor's got it and they come in here and say, "Well, now, here's what we want; you draw your budget, Mr. Governor, to the way we'regoing to get ours first." Now I-let's please get the University System back under law. Just a keen way of saying the University has-the Legislature's-to me is a supreme power in government. This is the only thing that can initiate; he can-they can initiate. The Governor can't initiate. He can send up, but the only person that can get it is the—introduction of a bill is on the floor, if it's a one-house or a two-house Legislature. So, all I'm trying to do is to just see that this one department, these six institutions located in the State of Montana—and they're great institutions-but let's just get them back under the rest of the government. We don't want them sitting out here to the side. That's all I want. And I question Mr. Davis' point of the Purchasing Agent. The Highway Department has to be under Purchasing. Everybody else is under Purchasing. The great institutions of the State of Montana are under Purchasing. Well, let's get these people under Purchasing. Then I think that we have those things that-let's get them under—all under one law, and Montana will be under one system. Now, in answer to this that I think Mr.

Champoux—and I-in answer to one question that he mentioned about this-the presidents'-the salaries that they could cut out, the Legislature-the Congress had that determined for them, I think, in two or three cases. They cut a man's salary off and said they would abolish the department, and the Congress-the Supreme Court of the United States said they couldn't do it. So I think that that is handled. Now, I know that we all hate to live under law. I'm sure that each one of us would like to break a law if we could, but please, let's all get under one law in the State of Montana.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Mr. Chairman. I rise in opposition to Mr. Davis' amendment. And, Mr. Mahoney, this--we're not taking the University System out from under the law. The Board of Regents, of which the Governor is a member, is not going to submit a budget that will make it impossible for him to submit a balanced budget as prescribed by the Constitution. And I don't-I think we should give the University System its right to manage its financial affairs. I oppose Mr. Davis' amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Rygg.

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Chairman. I'd like to ask Mr. Davis a question, if I may.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE RYGG: Mr. Davis, what do you feel you removed from there when you took the word "administrative"-Do you feel that had to do with purchasing and architects and things like that, or what does it mean?

DELEGATE DAVIS: I don't know. I think it means the same thing to me when I took it out as you had it in when you put it in. (Laughter)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Can you be a little more specific, Mr. Davis?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Yes, sir. In-Mr. Rygg's proposed amendment says, "Powers and duties over financial and administrative affairs shall be prescribed and regulated by law." I want the University System to have the power to administer their own affairs. I don't want legislators to be expert educators during the period of time that they gather here, so I want them to have the authority to administer their own affairs. Whether it includes purchasing, I think that will be up to the Board of Regents to make that determination. And we're going to have an appointed Board, confirmed by the Senate. I hope they'll be capable, qualified people. If they don't, the whole system is not going to work anyway, whether they've got it or whether they haven't.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The question is on Mr. Davis' amendment which has the-we'll have a roll call-which has the effect of adding the words "academic and administrative affairs of the Montana State University Systems"—so that it says: "The Regents shall have full power, responsibility and authority" and so forth "over the academic and administrative affairs". And then, put in another sentence: "Powers and duties over financial affairs shall be prescribed and regulated by law." So many as shall be in favor of Mr. Davis' amendments, vote Aye; so many as opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate want to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, take the ballot.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 40 delegates voting Aye, 52 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 52 delegates having voted No and 40 having voted Aye, Mr. Davis' amendment fails and we're back considering Section 11.

Mr. Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman. I move the Committee recess until 1:45 p.m. this day.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The committee-motion is to recess until 1:45 p.m. today. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No. (No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered.

(Convention recessed at 12:37 p.m.--reconvened at 1:50 p.m.)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The committee will be in session. The journal may show the presence of Mr. Artz. Very well, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, before lunch we were still debating Section 11 and we had adopted, tentatively, Mr. Rollins' amendment to replace the committee's majority report, and as you know, Mr. Rollins' language was amended in several specifics.

It's still open to amendment.

And, Mr. Rygg, I see you have a new one up. May we read that one?

DELEGATE RYGG: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, we'll start with Mr. Rygg's new amendment. Now, it's different in some respects from the one you have printed, so you'd better listen and see what he says.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend the Rollins amendment, in line 4, by adding, after the word 'the', the following words: 'academic afffairs of the'-"

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does that mean "control of the academic affairs of the"-is that what it says?

CLERK HANSON: Yes, sir.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is that all?

CLERK HANSON: "-and further amend, in line 6, after the period after the word 'law', the following words and punctuation 'Powers and duties over financial and administrative affairs shall be prescribed and regulated by law.' Signed: Rygg."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, this amendment is similar to Mr. Davis' amendment. You remember, we discussed that before lunch and Mr. Davis added the words "academic" and "administrative". Now, Mr. Rygg would add just "academic", on line 4, so it would read this way: "The Regents shall have full power, responsibility and authority to supervise, coordinate, manage and control the academic affairs of the Montana University System"-and then he would add, at the end of the second sentence, the language which is underlined in the middle of his proposal that's on our desks, namely: "Powers and duties over financial and administrative affairs shall be prescribed and regulated by law"-the effect of Mr. Rygg's amendment being to place in the hands of the Legislature both the financial and administrative but leave the academic in the hands of the Board of Regents. Is that correct, Mr. Rygg?

DELEGATE RYGG: That's correct, Mr. Chairman, and I think you've explained it well enough. It's just-the difference between Mr. Davis' amendment is that I have limited it to academic affairs and, of course, increased the powers of the Legislature over the administrative affairs, so I don't want to belabor it. I think we all know what it's about. It's just another chance to vote on it a different way. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there discussion?

Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: What we have here, 50 percent of it we have already voted down this morning. As a matter of fact, this is even more restrictive than what Mr. Davis offered, because now we're not only going to deny them the right to spend their money internally; we're also going to administer it-decide what kind of paper clips we're going to buy, what kind of pianos, and what have you. The same arguments that we used against Mr. Davis' amendments apply here, in that we go back to the old Constitution where you give them powers and then you deny it. There isn't any difference in this with that amendment than what we have presently, and you're going to have the same problems. I object to the Rygg amendment, and I oppose it.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion?

Mr. Toole.

DELEGATE TOOLE: Well, I don't—Mr. Chairman, I don't see how we can grant them financial powers and take away administrative powers. It seems to me we put them in a hopeless situation. I just don't see how we can--we're just in an absolute box if we do that, so I oppose the Rygg amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

Oh, Mrs. Speer, yes.

Mrs. Spew.

DELEGATE SPEER: I rise to speak against Mr. Rygg's amendment. I spent 37 years at the University of Montana as a documents librarian, and for about 15 or 20 of those years, I was in charge of the binding. I-In that experience I learned what the inefficiency and the cost to the state was of placing the University System under the administrative and financial regulations of the Legislature. This meant that the contracts for the binding had to be submitted each year to the Purchasing Agent and then were awarded to the lowest bidder. We spent-or I spent many hours each year in preparing estimates of the costs that were involved in changing binderies. This is a sort of an internal matter, but I just explain that this involved matching colors to a new bindery. It involves taking rubbings of the backs of the volumes in order to insure that you had the same kind of lettering, the same size, and the same placement on the back. If the Purchasing Agent then, awarded the contract to the lowest bidder, it didn't make any difference how far away or how long a time the volumes were away from the library and not available for use. Upon their return, then, to the library we—if we had to change to a new bindery, we had to spend the time in collating; that is, in going through the volumes to see if the binder could be relied upon to see that every page was there and was not torn or mutilated or missing. I cannot recall the amount of money involved in the binding budget of the University Library, but it was a very substantial sum, and there was a great deal of cost that was incurred in the changing of binderies every year. It did not always occur every year, but we were never-be--able to place the binding-renew the contract with the same bidder without going through all of this bidding procedure.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, is there other discussion?

Mrs. Bugbee.

DELEGATE BUGBEE: Mr. President, I'd just say that if we are ever to have a new day for higher education in this state, we must defeat this amendment. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Skari.

DELEGATE SKARI: I think that the sense of this body is to provide some degree of insulation for the field of higher education from political pressures. And for this reason, I resist the amendment by Mr. Rygg. I think that this insulation will not guarantee excellence in the field of higher education, but I think we have a better chance if we do provide it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Martin.

DELEGATE MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, I would just like to relate a story about budgets and university presidents. Not too many years ago, some of us were on a committee for the support of higher education; and at the meeting that we had prior to the adoption of the budget, it was sug gested that, in view of the financial status of the state, that perhaps the budget should be trimmed. One president said, "Well, we'll trim it, but I'm going to have some fat in it." After the Legislature had concluded its findings and it was-had-went over, supposedly with a fine-toothed comb, the President came back to the school, after having given statements that the University had-or the institution had been robbed, you might say, by the Legislature, he came back and, in an address to the faculty, explained that despite the cut, he was able to provide an increase of 13 percent in salaries for everybody all across the board and that he had ample money to operate the University. I think that there needs to be some supervision among the universities.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Rygg's amendment to add to the Rollins amendment the words "supervise, consolidate"-"coordinate"-rather-"manage and control the academic affairs of the Montana University System", and then to add this other line: "Powers and duties over financial and administrative affairs shall be prescribed and regulated by law." So many as shall be in favor of that amendment, vote Aye on the voting machines; so many as shall be opposed, vote No on the voting machines. Have all the delegates voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 38 delegates voting Aye, 58 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 58 having voted No and 33 having voted Aye, the motion is defeated; and we're discussing the language of the Rollins' amendment, substituting it for Section 11 of the majority report.

I take it, Mr. Rygg, your other amendment can be withdrawn?

DELEGATE RYGG: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Toole, I take it you don't want to make your amendment?

DELEGATE TOOLE: (Indicating the negative)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Okay. Members of the committee, you have before you on the recommendation of Mr. Champoux that when this committee does arise and report, after having had under consideration Section 11, as amended, that it recommend the same be adopted. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you want a roll call vote? Mr. Champoux likes roll call votes on this. All those in favor vote Aye on the voting machines; all those opposed, vote No. Have all the delegates voted?

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 68 delegates voting Aye, 25 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 68 delegates having voted Aye and 25 having voted No, Mr. Rollins' substitute for Section 11, as amended, is adopted. Will the clerk please read Section 12.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 12. State University Funds. The funds of the State University and all other state institutions of learning, from what other--whatever source accruing, shall forever remain inviolate and sacred to the purpose for which they were dedicated. The various funds shall be respectively invested under such regulations as may be prescribed by law and shall be guaranteed by the state against loss or diversion. The interest of said invested funds, together with the rents from leased lands or properties, shall be devoted to themaintenance and perpetuation of these respective institutions." Mr. Chairman, Section 12.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. Chairman, I move that when this committee does rise to report, after having under consideration Education and Public Lands Committee report, Section 12, that the same be passed.

Mr. President.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: This is identical to the old section in the old-in the Constitution; and it has served real well; and there have been no problems with it; and I don't see any use of belaboring the point, arguing one way or the other about it, so I close.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there any discussion of Section 12, State University Funds?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, members of the committee, you have before you, on the recommendation of Mr. Barnard that when this committee does arise and report, after having under consideration Section 12, that we recommend the same be adopted. All in favor, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered. Now, if you'll turn to page 49 in your booklets, you'll see the Public Lands Article. The majority report on the Public Lands Article is on page 49. Will the clerk please read Section 1 of page-of the Public Lands Article.

CLERK HANSON: "Section 1. Public Land Trust-Disposition. All lands of the state that have been or that may hereafter be granted to the state by Congress and all lands acquired by gift or grant or devise from any person or corporation shall be public lands of the state and shall be held in trust for the people, to be disposed of hereafter provided, for the respective purposes for which they have been or may be granted, donated or devised; and none of such land, nor any estate or inherent-interest therein, shall ever be disposed of except in pursuance of general laws providing for such disposition, nor unless the full market value of the estate or interest disposed of, to be ascertained in such manner as may be provided by law, be paid or safely secured to the state; nor shall any land which the state holds by grant from the United States, in any case in which the manner of disposal and minimum price are so prescribed, be disposed except in the manner and for at least the price prescribed in the grant thereof, without the consent of the United States. Said lands shall be classified by the Board of Land Commissioners in a manner prescribed by law. Any of said lands may be exchanged for other lands, public or private, which are equal in value and as closely as possible equal in area." Mr. Chairman, Section 1, Public Lands.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President, I move that when the committee does arise and report, after giving dueconsideration thereto, that we do adopt Section 1 of the Education Article on Public Land Trust.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President, fellow delegates. This article was jointly assigned to the Education Committee and the Committee on Natural Resources, and we met jointly with-or representatives of both committees met, reviewed the provisions of this article, and we agreed to present this proposal in this fashion for your consideration. I'll not reread it, but all but the last sentence thereof is identical to the first sentenceof Section 1. We have deleted the balance of the first section and given the Land Board power to classify lands as provided by law. We have deleted the statutory matter in-or what we felt was statutory matter in Sections 2 and 3. Since you all did so well on the Education Article and we got through, I trust I could have a couple of minutes on this article, because it's extremely important. I don't think it would be improper, I trust, to thank and give credit to C. R. Anderson, a great educator in our state, who contributed a lot of information on the public lands, which I used, which will come out in a book of his that's soon to he published. I also don't think it would be improper to put in the record our thanks to the members of our committee: Mr. Bruce Sievers, our research analyst in the Education and Public Lands Article; Sally Watson, our secretary; Geoffrey Rupp, Maureen Callaghan, Nancy Lien and John Murphy. These people provided-and the other interns on the staff-a great contribution to this Convention, and we're very grateful for what they have done, and I'd like the record to show that. I want to call attention, and I trust that all you historians and people who have heard this before will kindly bear with me for those who haven't, but it seems like it should go into this thing at this time, because no one has known what a public trust was in this Convention too much, and now is the time when we are going to talk about a public trust. We had some people in this country, years ago, who understood public trust. It went 'way hack in time, and I think it's worth consideration that the Land Ordinance Act of May 20, 1785, reserved lot 16 of every township for the maintenance of public schools within the territory, and the State of Iowa, in 1802, received Section 16 in trust for schools. In 1848, when Oregon became a territory, it was granted Sections 16 and 36 in trust for education, and the Organic Act for Montana of 1864 reserved Sections 16 and 36 for the public schools. Our Enabling Act, in 1889, in Section 10 thereof, granted Sections 16 and 36 to the State of Montana in trust for the support of common schools, and when we accepted the Enabling Act by Number 1 ordinance appended to the Constitution, we adopted-we accepted this trust, under certain terms and conditions which provided that we couldn't sell the lands for less than $10 per acre, and it provided for certain classifications. It also provides that we could exchange the land and said that they shall be public lands of the state and shall he held in trust for the people to he disposed of "as hereinafter provided". Now, the Constitution-the Enabling Act says that we could sell and lease the land, and our Constitution had a similar provision. The Enabling Act was amended by Congress in 1932, which gave us permission to exchange lands for other lands, public or private, of equal value or as near as may he of equal value. Now, our Constitution has never been amended since we were permitted to do this by the Enabling Act; hence, we have placed in this section the very small word "exchange", which is a real nice Constitutional, legal thing to do, and very simple to explain. Now, another thing about the public lands-you should know that the Enabling Act originally excluded lands that were mineral-hearing. This, too, was amended in 1921 and let us get mineral lands, hut those old people that placed this in trust at that time said you have to keep all your oil and gas. It's not optional; whether we sell the land, exchange them or otherwise, we retain the oil and all the mineral rights. So we therefore have a hundred and eighty-seven years of continuing concern by our lawmakers for education, and we have a hundred and eighty-seven years of the keeping of a great public trust. It states in your comments how well the lawmakers throughout the years have looked after this trust, and it has been discussed here on the floor that we have in excess of four and a half million acres of land in the trust; we have almost $3 million in deferred payments from sales-not annually, however-total; and we have close to $53 million in the permanent school fund. So, that accounts for the first step in our change. Now, the second step. The 1971 Legislature passed, by House Joint Resolution 32, for the Constitutional Convention to amend Section 17, Sections 1 and 2, to permit classification other than the four classifications that were in the original Constitution; and the main idea of this was so we could have classification for multiple-use purposes-and multiple-use, of course, will answer a lot of questions that have been in the minds of, maybe not you folks, hut the public, as to why more recreational use cannot he made of these lands. They have been constitutionally classified under agricultural, grazing, and so forth, but there was no other classification, and so we have deleted that to leave it statutory, and this was met with the unanimous approval of both the Natural Resources Committee and the Education and Public Lands Committee and should, then, permit the State Land Department to go ahead and classify these lands as to what natural resource benefits they should have. So, we merely deleted the classification restrictions and left it, then, to the Legislature. I might comment, just briefly, on another matter that was brought up on the floor-and I promised to comment on it atthat time-and that is as to whether the Legislature is trying to make the best use of these lands or obtain the greatest return for them-the lands. They have developed a policy to improve the state lands, and the Legislature has formed some objectives to improve the lands, and their objectives are to improve-to develop and improve state lands in order to promote increased returns to the trust or to restore the land to its productive potential, to place tracts of state land in their highest and best use and derive greater income for the support of the trust. And among the other provisions and policies adopted is-the conservation of wildlife habitat will be a consideration in any project undertaken. Every effort will be made to preserve existing habitat, and whenever feasible, plans for increased cover and feed will be incorporated in the projects. So the State Land Board is on a program, right now, of trying to improve these state lands to make a bigger yield and a bigger return. In reviewing this with the Land Department, our committee was provided with a summary of their resource developments, which showed with graphs and charts the expenditures they were making on the lands, what returns would be made to the State of Montana after these developments were made. So it would be our committee's recommendation to this body to adopt the committee report as it is here. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Cross.

DELEGATE CROSS: Mr. Chairman, I would like to state that I am very happy that Mr. Davis chose to define the term "public trust"; I wish he had done it 13 days ago. I know what the term means, and I think most everybody in this chamber knows what it means. It was accepted almost a century ago; and I submit that if it was a good idea then, it's a good idea today; and so I support Mr. Davis in his explanation here as far as the school lands are concerned. I would also like to say that if there were those in this Convention who did not know the meaning of the term, I submit it was because they chose not to know it. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Simon.

DELEGATE SIMON: Mr. Chairman, may I make just a comment before I-then permission to ask Mr. Davis a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well.

DELEGATE SIMON: In the exchange of—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Simon, speak up, and then we'll turn the volume down and cut out some of the music. Speak up good and loud.

DELEGATE SIMON: In some of the conditions of the exchange of land, I have recently, in the last 3 years, had some experience. Now, this is not state lands; this was federal land-1 mean, Forest Service land-but the State of Montana could get into the same condition. In the area at Red Lodge, we have a ski run that I helped start up there. Many years ago, on this same mountain there, was the Anaconda Company owned four pieces of land. Now, the land that they owned was cut over, and the timber was taken out, and then that grew up over the last 60 years. When we chose to put on the ski run at Red Lodge, we were in the drainage valley, where-the only place you could put your terminal. Four of these pieces of land were available, and the ski run bought one at the bottom and one at the top, just at the right of-a quarter of a mile from where they might land. The land at the top was not available for-and it wasn't any good for anything but just growing timber. It was in the Forest Service. The land at the bottom, where we owned the land, did not exactly set where we put our terminal. Now, we have about--with a road up there, the whole ski area is about a million dollars now. We went to the Forest Service--and this is where your exchange of lands could be really important-we went to the Forest Service, because our terminal did not set on our own land, and we were only a few feet from it. We had 80 acres of very fine land. We said to the Forest Service, "We would like to trade you 800 acres that's the only private land beyond what we could use in the ski run, 480 acres next to the ski run, the hundred and sixty acres on top, which was owned by the ski run, and some land we had down below, if we could get the land which was where our terminal sat. Now, the reason I'm bringing this up, you have a paragraph in here, Mr. Davis, that has to do with exchange and sale of public lands. Now, the state could get into this same situation. We went to the Forest Service, they went to Missoula, and Missoula went to the Washington, D.C.—and we offered them 1,488 acres of land, plus land we owned down below for exchange, a hundred and sixty on top, all surrounded by the Forest Service, at the price of the land before the ski run went in there. Part of the land next to it, I paid $2.35 an acre; it was just mountain. When we put in the ski run and attempted to make the change where we could put our own terminal on our own land and provide the Forest Service with-we only wanted 40 acres—1,488 acres surrounding the run, this is what we got, and this is what I want to bring to your attention. After 2 years of going back and forth and meeting with the Forest Service about 15 times and then going back, here's what happened, in brief. Each time we met with the Forest Service—this could happen to state lands-each time we met with the Forest Service, they came back one step at a time and said, "The land at the bottom of the mountain has now changed in value." Why did it change in value? I said, "It isn't any different from the land 16 feet from it," and they said, "Oh, yes it is. You have now put almost a million dollars, including the road in this area, and the land that your ski terminal sits on is now worth"-listen to this-"$2,000 an acre." They refused 2,000-w 1,488 acres for 40 acres that was all the same kind of land before the ski run went in. And I would caution you, in your last sentence, having had this difficulty and being right in the middle of it from Washington, D.C. down and the state could be the same way. Now, may I ask a question of Mr. Davis?

DELEGATE DAVIS: I yield, Mr. Simon.

DELEGATE SIMON: Supposing you had a piece of land that was in a position where development might take place. The thing that bothers me in your proposal, where you may, in a sense—any land may be exchanged for other land-so good-public or private-so good-which is equal in value-so good-but when you get down, as closely as possible, to equal acreage, you can lose your shirt; and I think that something ought to be done in that area, where we are having recreation come into our state in such great numbers, where something ought to be in this different than equal acreage. Do you have any comment, Mr. Davis?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Well, my only comment would be, I believe, Mr. Simon, that's the language that came with the amendment to the Enabling Act by the Congress. In other words, they permitted us to exchange land for other land, equal in value or equal in acreage or as nearly thereto as possible, so we have adopted the language that-1 think you've got a very good thing, and I'm glad you did bring it up. And, of course, the point you make, I think, is the reason we are all interested in retaining the state lands. It just gets more valuable as developments do take place, and will continue to.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion?

Mr. Cate.

DELEGATE CATE: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. Over the last couple of weeks, I received considerable mail-and I know the Chairman of the Educational Committee has received considerable mail-about public access to the public lands; and rather than to ask us to assume that issue, I've got an amendment, which I'd like to propose, which would allow the Legislature to provide for public access on these trust lands. And I think when you are dealing with a trust, as we are here, that one might say that the power to provide access is inherent; but I think there is a serious legal question when you are talking about trust lands. Therefore, I think that this type of an amendment is necessary in order to clear any question in the mind of legislators in the future as to whether they do have the power to provide public access. So, I would move to amend Section 1 of the Public Lands Trust proposal by adding thereto, on line 29, page 49, the following sentence: "The Legislature may provide public access to these public lands for recreational and other purposes." Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Settle down, please. Mr. Cate, will you send your amendment to the Chair. Very well. Mr. Cate proposes an amendment to Section 1 of the Public Lands Article by adding a sentence at the end of the article that says: "The Legislature may provide public access to these public lands for recreational and other purposes." "The Legislature may provide public access to these public lands for recreational and other purposes."

Mr. Cate, do you want to discuss that further?

DELEGATE CATE: I'll discuss it if anybody has any questions. Apparently Mr. Davis does.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All right, Mr. Davis, you have the floor.

DELEGATE DAVIS: Mr. President, fellow delegates. I very reluctantly take issue with Jerry on this matter, but I feel I must. The question of access was discussed in our committee. Now.

unfortunately, we didn't have any witnesses who appeared and testified-as you'll notice, the witness in the back of our comments--although access was included in our comments. The big problem you have in that question is whether that is in complete disregard of the Organic Act and the Enabling Act as to what the-who the principal beneficiary of this trust is. The beneficiary of this trust is the schools, and whether you can take money out of the school funds to provide public access for recreational use would probably violate the federal Enabling Act, but I don't think the problem is that serious. We've tried to meet that problem, and the Legislature is aware of the recreational interest in making the highest and best use of this land by changing the classification so we can get recreation in a classification by the Legislature and by the Department of Lands. Now, the Department of Public Lands right now is making a survey and a study of what the recreational value is of these lands. Now, if it's a question of getting access for recreation, it's the same as getting access for the highway. If you're going to have eminent domain proceedings to go through my house or Mr. Cate's, or whether there's access by a county road, they're studying that. In the policy of the state, as described by the Legislature of 1967, it states, under development of state land resources, I quote: "It is in the best interest and to the great advantage of the State of Montana to seek the highest development of state-owned lands in order that they might be placed to their highest and best use and thereby derive greater revenue for the support of the common schools, the University System, and other institutions benefiting therefrom, and that in so doing, the economy of the local community, as well as the state, is benefited as a result of the impact of such development." Then it goes on, and at this time they earmarked and permit a-two and a half percent of the income to go into a resource development so they could develop these areas and develop these lands to place them at a higher and better use. There, again, we're getting in a matter that I think that Mr. Garlington has spoke of this morning. Of course, the Legislature can provide for public access. They can do a thousand things with these lands-they're doing-so, if you start spelling out just one item that they can do, which they already can do, you may be excluding many other things, such as the resource development program they've already passed. So, most respectfully, Jerry, I'm glad you brought that up, because it needed to be discussed here on the floor. It's in our comments, and we received many, many letters on that subject of public access, but I think the answer to those questions primarily is that the Enabling Act places these things for school. I don't think the Land Department can give this land away for recreation. It has to get its highest and best value, and they are working to get a multiple-use classification. That's the very point of our changing the classification, so I most respectfully would have to resist the amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Schiltz.

DELEGATE SCHILTZ: Mr. Chairman, I would resist the amendment, and I would leave it to some of the ranchers who lease such lands from the state-Mrs. Pemberton and Torrey Johnson and others-but I have clients who lease grazing land from the state, and if you have dual use, as I think this would make possible, or at least it would constitute a recommendation for dual use, you're going to cut down on the revenue of that property, at least from what I hear from my clients. They're constantly beset by people getting or. those state lease lands and setting fires on them and rustling on them and doing all those other things on them, and I don't think we want to do that in this Constitution.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman, I would like to have Delegate Cate yield to a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Cate?

DELEGATE CATE: (Inaudible)

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Cate, now in the case of private land-and the only way they have access to state land is through private land-then what would you recommend in this case? Do you think the state should buy this, then?

DELEGATE CATE: Well, that's the problem that we're faced with. So much of our state lands are tied up and surrounded by private lands that there's no way for the public to gain access to it, and these public lands are the public's land—they belong to the people, not just tc the rancher that happens to be leasing them. That's our land—your land and my land-and I think that what we own we ought to have the right to use, and what this provision provides is not that the Legislature must provide access or not that all lands are open for access, but that the Legislature may provide access to public lands. Now, in certain areas surrounding the cities, where there is a need for recreational areas, this would provide a place that the city dweller could go hunting, the city dweller that doesn't know a rancher in the area; he would have a place to go hunting; he would have a place to go fishing-this type of thing. And in those situations where that area is surrounded by private land, the state would have to condemn a right-of-way-and that's contemplated-but this, Grace, this doesn't open up the whole thing. It says "The Legislature may provide", and, as Mr. Davis pointed out, there is a question, where you have a trust, whether or not--unless it's expressly provided, whether or not this is inherent in the trust powers-to provide access.

DELEGATE BATES: Okay. Would Mr. Cate yield to another question, Mr. President?

DELEGATE CATE: I certainly would.

DELEGATE BATES: I was wondering, now, in cases where now in residential areas, I understand 9 percent of the land must be put aside for recreation, for parks. There's an area in one town that I know that is really isolated from the rest of the people. Then, would you require, if you were renting a home in this strip where this park is in the center, that they, too, would have to allow access to this park?

DELEGATE CATE: Mrs. Bates, this amendment of mine is directed towards the school lands and wouldn't cover-it says, "The Legislature may provide public access to these public lands", referring to the lands in-that are in this section, which are school lands, not the parklands within the city that you're talking about.

DELEGATE BATES: Thank you.

DELEGATE CATE: However, in any event, I think that those parks are open to the public.

DELEGATE BATES: Thank you, Jerry.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Yes, I can see that this is a comparative thing, because either way, you would have to permit access over privateland, and one is the same as the other. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Champoux.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. We went at this in long, long discussions and detail. We have literally hundreds of letters from people concerned about public access to these lands. Now, we talked this over in great detail with Mr. Schwinden, the very capable Public Land Commissioner-he's done a wonderful job down there in that department in the past, also-and his problem is, as a trust, there is the responsibility. Now, what happens if damage is done to this land? Who's going to assume the damages? Is it going to be the lessee? Is it going to be the Public Land Commissioner, or shall the Legislature provide for the damage that might be done? There's the problem. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson.

DELEGATE WILSON: Mr. President, fellow delegates. I think you're opening up a very controversial subject here, and I think Mr. Champoux pointed out a very possible thing that could happen. If you have ever observed some of the hunting camps, some of the things that were done in camps, that they could move in and—

(Interference in sound system from radio broadcast)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Wilson, hold it a little closer and speak up, please.

DELEGATE WILSON: -they could move into a piece of school land and create a lot of damage, and as he has pointed out, who would be responsible? Now, this creates a problem. Also, many of these tracts are small tracts that are isolated in range operations, and you would have to go across several miles of private land to get to them. How many more roads are you going to create? How many more gates are you going to have left open? You're opening up a whole series of problems, and I do not think that wherever there is any basic need for the people to have access to these lands, such as fishing streams and so on, that they will be denied the right to go into them. But I urge you to think this over very deliberately—about the controversial issues that you are opening up if you go for this amendment. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, is there further discussion?

Mr. Conover.

DELEGATE CONOVER: I think that we're opening up something real wide, as he has told you. I want to remind you, I think every rancher in here, including myself, when we have state land, which I have some of, in a very dry year like we had last year and a shortage of grass and we move our cattle from different areas to protect this ground from the cattle tramping it-from dry-drouth areas. What would happen if you give them access to this land-that you're trying to protect the grass you've got on it for fall feed? I would guarantee you that, if you let all the hunters in there, that you wouldn't have any more grass unless you left a thousand head of cows in there, in a few hours. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON: Mr. Chairman, I would just like to point out that these public lands-these state lands, which are school lands, are in trust, as I understand it, particularly and only to the support of the schools of Montana, and they are not in trust like federal land would be—forest land, national forest, or this. When a person leases these school lands, he has particular obligations there to live up to. He can improve the land, it points out very carefully in the contract, but you must not delete it or destroy it or abuse it in any manner. These things are laid down. You are in possession of that land under the contract. It is just practically as if you owned it, but you certainly have a responsibility. But, again, I must repeat that it is in trust, just the schools. I think I'm right there. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: Would Mr. Davis yield to a question?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis, will you yield?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Yes, Mr. Ask.

DELEGATE ASK: Say this provision is not placed in the Constitution, could the Legislature some day provide for public access for recreation to certain sections of land, should the thinking change, particularly in their lease agreement?

DELEGATE DAVIS: The Legislature—the State Land Board is doing that now. They're trying to provide access. Without any constitutional provision, the Fish and Game Department is buying access to the major streams for fishing sites, and it is a goal under one of the goals set out under the statutory on the development of the lands-under goal Number 9 of the Land Board, it says, "Certain areas of the state land can be readily adapted to recreational purposes. In developing these areas, consideration must be given to multiple-use for the state lands." So, your answer is not only yes, they are doing it right now under the present Constitution.

DELEGATE ASK: Thank you, Mr. Davis.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Harbaugh.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman, I know a little about some of these lands because I was born and raised in eastern Montana, and the land that we are talking about, by and large, is grazing land. Mr. Conover, the other day, stated, I think, there's 4.6 million acres of this total package that we're talking about that is grazing land. You would be very hard-pressed, I think, to describe most of this as recreational in value, Most of it is dry grassland, and there isn't very much there that you could find recreational use for in the first place. As has been pointed out here, in cases where there is land that does have recreational potential, we are now flexible enough, I think, in our Public Lands article so that the state can exchange, in cases where that can be done, and give public access to this. But I wonder if the public wants access to the grazing land that we're talking about, that four--over 4% million acres we're talking about; if the public is willing to pay part of the lease when they go out to drive around on these lands, or whatever they're going to do on them-I'm not sure what they're going to do-1 wonder if they're ready to assume the liability for fires or this kind of thing that might develop on this land. I think if they're willing to do these things, fine-then let them use the land. But until they are, it seems to me that we have an obligation to the school fund, which is no small fund-it amounts to over $52 million-and this has accrued as a result of the management of these lands in the past. I doubt very seriously that the Legislature would want to change this pattern unless they can see where the school lands are going to bring in the kind of revenue that's been brought in under the present program. We'd better defeat this amendment.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Cate, do you want to close?

DELEGATE CATE: Yes, I do. First of all, who's responsible for damage? Well, I don't know what type of damage you're talking about. I go out on your land and shoot a cow, I'm responsible for

it. If that cow is on state land or federal land or private land and I shoot that cow, I'm responsible for it. If I go out and set a forest fire, I'm responsible for that forest fire and I can be sued for it by the federal government, and, likewise, if I set a range fire on state land, I can be sued for that. The individual is responsible for the damage that he does. Now, North Dakokta has a provision that is strictly enforced and works. With regard to hunters-to the use of their state lands, you cannot drive an automobile off the road, and if you do, you're subject to fine. And that practice is generally followed throughout North Dakota, because—I have some personal knowledge about that because my family has about 80 sections over there-and people don't drive off the road; they drive on the road. That prevents the individual from going out and driving all over the property, like Mr. Conover talks about. I think that the demands of the city people have to be recognized here, and we're not opening this up so that every section of state land is open to the public. What we're providing is that the Legislature could provide that certain state lands, like that land down on the river Mr. Drum has, can be used by the public. That's what we're talking about-in the wisdom of the Legislature if they see fit-and supplemental payments could be made by Fish and Game if necessary to supplement the school fund in order to provide this public access in the use of these public lands by the public. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Cate's amendment, which would add to Section 1 of the public trust-of the Public Lands Article the following language: "The Legislature may provide public access to the-to these public lands for recreational and other purposes."

DELEGATE FOSTER: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Do you want a roll call? So many as shall be in favor of this amendment, vote Aye; and so many as shall be opposed, vote No. Has every delegate voted?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Does any delegate wish to change his vote?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, take the vote.

CLERK HANSON: Mr. Chairman, 23 delegates voting Aye, 69 voting No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: 23 having voted Aye and 69 No, the amendment fails. We're considering Section 1 of the Public Lands Article. Is there further discussion?

Mr. Belcher.

DELEGATE BELCHER: Would Mr. Davis yield to a question, please?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Davis?

DELEGATE DAVIS: Yes, sir, Mr. Belcher, I yield.

DELEGATE BELCHER: Carl, probably somewhere in the Constitution or somewhere along the line there is some mention of mineral rights being reserved by the state, but I fail to see it. Could you answer this for me?

DELEGATE DAVIS: I'll answer your question. Mineral rights were first reserved by the United States government, and we could only select nonmineral-bearing grounds. When they—they didn't identify all this land, and when they did, finally-we did get land and there certain new minerals were found as time progressed. And I think it was in 1921 that the government changed the Enabling Act and said we could locate mineral-bearing grounds, or confirmed our ownership of the minerals on the lands we'd already located; so regardless of whatever date it is, the act now provides that we have to retain for the school fund-the Enabling Act-any minerals in any of the lands; so that's by the Enabling Act, right when we took it. Now, in addition to that, the Legislature has passed a statute saying that in any sales, leases or exchanges, the State of Montana reserves all the mineral rights, so it's not a discretionary matter; the mineral rights are reserved to the school fund.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Members of the committee, you have before you, on the recommendation of Mr. Davis that when this committee arises and reports, after having had under consideration Section 1 of the Public Lands Article, that it recommend that the same be adopted. So many as shall be in favor of that motion, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: It's adopted.

Now, Mr. Champoux, do I understand that there is no-Is there a majority Investments Article, or is there—

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: The-as I indicated the other day to you, Mr. President, if you look at the majority and the minority, they've already been taken care of in the Revenue and Finance Article under investments, unless there's an objection to that.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Then am I correct, Mr. Champoux, that we have now acted upon each article of the Education and Public Lands proposal?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I think Mr. Barnard has a question.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Mr. Barnard.

DELEGATE BARNARD: Mr. President, yes, we have acted on that already. That was the amendment we put in Revenue and Finance report the other day, unless we missed something.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, Mr. Champoux. I think one of the reasons I'm having trouble is that my book doesn't have a page 55, but I think it might be a good idea that you make a motion that Section 1 of the Investments Article not be adopted, Mr. Champoux, and then we'll find out whether it's taken care of or not.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: I so move.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. The motion has been made that when this body arises and reports, after having had under consideration Section 1 under the Investments Article on page 55 in the committee's book, the majority proposal—and there is a minority in the book, on page 61, I think it is-that we recommend the same not be adopted. Is there any discussion?

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: All in favor of not adopting anything on investments in the Education and Public Lands Articles, please say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

(No response)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: So ordered, and Investments are dropped out.

Now, Mr. Champoux, I think we've covered your article, is that correct?

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: Yes, sir. Shall I move to—

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: No. Mr. Murray, do you want to move that we rise and finally report?

DELEGATE MURRAY: (Inaudible)

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Oh, all right. I guess we want to go back to reconsiderations. Oh, I thought I might get by there. All right, Mr. Murray, you've made a request to reconsider. Do you want to state it?

DELEGATE MURRAY: Mr. Chairman, it appears you couldn't avoid me either way. Mr. Chairman, having voted on the prevailing side, I move to reconsider Section 1, subsection 2, commencing particularly on line 20, page 8, of the majority proposal of the Education and Public Lands Committee, to permit consideration of an amendment of the last sentence of subsection 2, which was deleted by the Committee of the Whole, and I defer at this time to Delegate Harbaugh for explanation.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well. Mr. Harbaugh, if you want to explain briefly for purposes of the motion to reconsider what it is you want to reconsider.

DELEGATE HARBAUGH: Mr. Chairman, we realize that there were some fears about the meaning of this phrase "full funding" in connection with Section 1, subsection 2, of the Education report; and the committee members, along with some of the various other delegates here, have discussed the implications of this section and feel that it ought to be reconsidered; and there has been placed on your desks several items. One is this pamphlet "Here's How it Works", which explains the foundation program and which we hope some of you have had time to look at since last Saturday--or Friday, when we discussed this. We felt that this might better help us to understand the concerns that the committee has with respect to the full funding of the state's share of the basic elementary and secondary program; and if this section is accepted for reconsideration, we would like to move Mr. Habedank's amendment which has been prepared and placed on your desks.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Is there other discussion of the motion to reconsider, limiting the discussion strictly to that?

Mr. Habedank.

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Mr. Chairman-Mr. President. I feel that the action of this committee on the Bill of Rights equal opportunity has set forth the goals of what we want to do but that when we came down to subsection 2 and the elimination of the last sentence, we closed the door to carrying out these rights. I urge you to let us discuss the amendment which you have before you and show you why it is-at least, we feel it is--necessary that a sentence worded similarly to what I have set forth in my amendment be considered and passed as a part of the Constitution; and for that reason, I urge you to give us an opportunity to reconsider our action in this regard.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the motion is Mr. Murray's motion to reconsider Section 1, subsection 2 of the Education Article.

Mrs. Bates.

DELEGATE BATES: Mr. Chairman, would I be out of order to ask for reconsideration of Section 9, 10 and 11, too, at this time, too?

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: I'm coming to you next, but I think we'd better take them one at a time. Section 1, subsection 2.

Mr. Champoux-on the issue of reconsideration.

DELEGATE CHAMPOUX: As Chairman of the Education Committee, I am for that move to reconsider that section. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Very well, the issue is on Mr. Murray's motion to reconsider Section 1, subsection 2. All in favor of the motion to reconsider, say Aye.

DELEGATES: Aye.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Opposed, No.

DELEGATES: No.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: The Ayes have it, and it's adopted.

Mr. Habedank, do you want the Chair to have the clerk read your—

DELEGATE HABEDANK: Please.

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Will the clerk please read Mr. Habedank's motion.

CLERK HANSON: "Mr. Chairman. I move to amend Section 1, subsection 2, commencing on line 20, page 8, of the majority proposal of the Education and Public Lands Committee, by adding the following sentence after the words 'deemed desirable': 'It shall fund and distribute in an equitable manner to the school districts of the state the state's share of the basic elementary and secondary school system' Signed: Habedank."

CHAIRMAN GRAYBILL: Now, if you happen to be on the other page, it's at line 17 on page 3-Section 1, Article 2, and Mr. Habedank would add the language: "It shall fund and distribute in an equitable manner to the school districts of the state the state's share of the basic elementary and secondary school system." The last sentence was deleted previously. Very well.

Mr. Habedank.
