Using Images in Craft

As Colouring sheets . . .

Print the page you require on your printer.

If you do not have a printer, trace image from your computer monitor onto a sheet of paper. Computer monitors can double as light boxes! Place a sheet of paper over the monitor's display, tracing with pen or pencil the image that now shows through.

As embroidery, stained glass, latch hook, cross stitch or long-stitch designs . . .

Use your monitor as a light box, tracing the image onto your fabric, glass, or aida. Choose your colours and start filling in the design with paint, yarn or cotton.

For Punch Needle embroidery . . .

Punch Needle embroidery requires images are backwards as the design is created from the back of the fabric. To do this, an image must be transferred to a paint program first. Open the e-book, displaying the image you wish to use. Press your CONTROL button down and tap PRINT SCREEN also.

Now open your paint program and select PASTE. A picture of your entire screen will now appear.

To flip the image, select FLIP HORIZONTALLY or MIRROR. This will make the image backwards. You can now trace the image off the monitor onto your fabric or woven interface.
