Waiting to Meet Ms. Perfect?

It must be really tough. Do you think you are just a victim of bad luck and that is the reason Ms. Perfect has not appeared in your life yet? Or have you decided that maybe Ms. Perfect only exists on movie screens and not out here in the real world? BINGO! You've got it. She does not exist anywhere except in your imagination and on movie screens.

The truth of the matter is that the reason Ms. Perfect has not appeared has nothing to do with your luck, good or bad, but everything to do with you and the fact that you are busy looking for a person that does not exist! You cannot date with your eyes closed and some impossible dreams in your head. You will get so caught up in this whole exercise of dating that you will forget to look for the qualities you seek! You have not met the person of your dreams because you are not looking for the things that will make them close- enough- to- perfect for you.

You are so confident that every woman you have met could not give you what you wanted. But what was it that you wanted in the first place? Once you are sure of what you want, you will know exactly what to look for in your woman. What are the qualities that you feel are necessary in a person? What are the attributes you are willing to make a compromise on? Have you thought about all of these?

Remember that nobody on this earth is perfect. Everybody has faults...some are bigger faults than others. Some are faults you can overlook and some are faults that you could not overlook on your best day even if she was the most beautiful, most sexy woman on the planet.

When you meet a woman, remember, however hard you try to impress others, you cannot control their thought processes. Instead, it is far better to concentrate on your needs and desires, and how much of what you need would be fulfilled if you dated this woman.

Do not Judge a Woman by Her Looks!

I know this tip may sound very cliché, but it is true. At some point or another we are all guilty of judging something, or someone, based on appearance alone. While it is not right, we still seem to have that tendency to be superficial. This type of behavior can be very detrimental when it comes to seducing a woman. Women like to be appreciated for who they are, not what they look like. Even those women who have great physical beauty do not necessarily want to be judged on that characteristic alone.

Women keep the thought, in the back of their mind, that one day they will have a child. If and when they become pregnant, look at all the changes their body goes through. The mere fact that their body has to expand at a very rapid pace to accommodate the growth of the baby is frightening. And the knowledge that their figure may never be the same is equally frightening.

Another thought that women have is that eventually we all get older and less youthful in appearance. We know that in general, a man is considered more distinguished looking when his hair takes on the salt and pepper look, whereas women merely look old. A few wrinkles on a man are no big deal, but for women the first sign of a wrinkle is cause to consider botox treatment, or more. Society has made women terribly self conscious. Bear in mind when considering what you truly believe is important in a woman. If looks is top on your list, it will surely lead to a very dissatisfying experience for you, and your woman.

I am not trying to say that you have to resolve to be happy with someone you find utterly unattractive. Women all have preferences in looks, personality and many other traits that we have to abide by. It is a matter of compatibility. But what women do have to take into consideration is that attraction is not just a matter of physical appearance. So take the time to find out what is inside before you discount women based on what is outside.

Know What to Look for in a Woman

Sometimes, knowing what you are looking for in a woman can be quite difficult. And if you are one of them, do not get discouraged. It truly is not as difficult as you may think to find the right woman for you.

The very first thing you must do is resign to be very open-minded. You need to cast aside all the standards that you may have been using and start from scratch. Forget what all your buddies say is attractive. Never mind what you see in the lingerie commercials on television. You will want to start with the very basics of what makes two people compatible, not two lovers, but two people in general, in order to find what kind of person works for you.

In order to find out what you are really looking for in a woman, you need to take the time to consider the complete person, not just the body. You need to take into consideration things like personality, interests, ambitions and then looks. You are probably wondering why I listed those traits in the order I did.

If you consider looks first it will tend to cloud your judgment on all the other traits. Men tend to be very easily visually stimulated. For this reason, what excites them at first sight tends to be what they think they want.

However, if you consider what you want in the other areas, the looks may not be so important. You may find that a woman with a great personality that likes football and racing as much as you do and who takes her career as a human resources director seriously, but who happens to be a brunette with only an average build, would suit you just fine. Personality, intelligence, ambition, sense of humor and interests play a much bigger role in attraction than just physical appearance.

Nice Guys Do It, Too!

I am talking about online dating, of course. When the phenomenon of online dating sites started several years ago, they were a haven for perverts, sexual predators, nerds, and weirdoes of assorted varieties.

That is just no longer the case. All the stigma of online dating is gone. Online dating has gone mainstream and is, not only acceptable but, expected. Online dating has become the primary tool of single people of all ages to generate an interesting and rewarding social life.

Let us face it...we are busy guys. We just simply do not have the time, the energy, or the financial wherewith-all to date several nights each week while we look for the "one". You can sort through hundreds of profiles in a month for less money than you would spend on one evening out, thus, saving time and money. We use the internet to save ourselves time and money for a lot of things like investments, shopping, medical information, and communications.

Why not make use of such a useful tool for our social and personal lives as well? You could find the love of your life. At the very least, you will meet some interesting people and possibly make some lasting friendships. It is easy to get started. All you need is a computer and an internet connection. You will need to search for online dating services that meet your specific needs. They are many and varied.

Join one or two. Then you will need to write a great profile, upload a recent picture of yourself and start making and answering contacts. That really is all there is to it...that and patience.

Do not wait any longer to start your new and interesting social life. Miss or Ms. "Right" could be only a few clicks of the mouse away.

What Are the Odds of Finding Mr. Right Online?

The odds of finding your “soul-mate” online are a lot better than you may think. It does not happen for everyone, of course, but it can happen for you. The world of internet or online dating has exploded over the last few years.

As our lives become busier and busier we need to make better use of our time and energy in our search for the our partner who will make our lives complete.

The old saying, “You have to kiss a lot of frogs before you find a princess” is no longer true. Why kiss frogs when you can read hundreds of profiles and look at the pictures that go with them for a small monthly fee? That saves time and money...not to mention lip burn.

These are a few good reasons to consider online dating:

- (1) There is a wide range of men to choose from. You are not limited to the men in your social circle or work environment.
- (2) You have the opportunity to get to know a lot about a man before you ever contact him for the first time. You will know his age, marital status, what city he lives in, whether he has children, his height/weight and his likes and dislikes all from his profile. You will even see a picture of him.
- (3) You have a better chance to present yourself in a favorable way. This is especially useful for those who are shy. Women will have time to think about how they want to say things about themselves and can avoid being tongue tied. Even those who are more extroverted can take time to reflect on who they really are before writing their online profile.
- (4) Online dating is certainly a time saver. You can meet so many more men in a lot less time than you ever could out in the real world.

Blind Dating

Blind dating is a common way for dating also. It often occurs when someone is set up on a date through a friend or a third party. People are often set up on a blind date through a friend or a co-worker who knows both parties and believes they would make a great couple.

If you are recommended to go on a blind date by a friend who knows you well, you might want to consider it. If your friend knows the other person as well as he or she knows you, that friend might be right about the two of you connecting and getting along well together. When you go on a blind date you might not have any idea what the other person looks like or you might have been shown a picture.

In all cases, the person you will be going out with will be someone you have never met or spoke to before. It is common to be nervous about going on a blind date because you do not know if the person will like you and you do not know if you will like the other person.

Some people really enjoy being set up on a blind date and many blind dates turn into successful relationships if you are set up to the right person. You should try to know as much as you can about the person before you go to be sure the date will not be a disaster.

However, even if the two of you decide that you are not a compatible couple you might meet someone who becomes a very good friend of yours in the long run.
